BLACKBURTON, OXFORD, a parochial town in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bampton, union of Witney: 77 miles from London (coach road 71), 6 from Witney, 6 from Burford. Gt. West. Rail. to Oxford, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through Rugby and Banbury to Oxford, &c., 109 miles. Money orders issued at Bampton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Oxford: pres. net income, £148: patron, Christ Church, Oxford: pres. incumbent, James Lupton, 1827: contains 1,300 acres: 66 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 331: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 382: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £346: poor rates in 1837, £216. The inappropriate and vicarial tithes, the property of the Dean of Oxford and the vicar, were commuted in 1770.

BLACK-CALLERTON, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Newburn, west division of Castle ward: 309 miles from London (coach road 280), 6 from Newcastle, 11 from Morpeth. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, to Newcastle, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 177 miles. Money orders issued at Newcastle-on-Tyne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> at noon: post closes 8½ p.m. There is a school here, endowed with £9. 10s. per annum, payable out of the Callerton estate. Contains 80 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 503: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 578: poor rates in 1837, £293.

BLACK-CHAPEL. See WALTHAM (GREAT).

BLACKDEN, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Sandbach, hun<sup>d</sup> of Northwich: 167 miles from London (coach road 170), 3 from Northwich, 7 from Knutsford. Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to station: from Derby, through Uttoxeter, Crewe, &c., 71 miles. Money orders issued at Northwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. Contains 760 acres: 32 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 195: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 224: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,018: poor rates in 1837, £122.

BLACKFORD, SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Whitley, union of Wincanton: 132 miles from London (coach road 112), 4 from Wincanton, 10 from Ilchester. Gt. West. Rail. through Chippenham to Westbury, thence 23 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Chippenham, &c., 195 miles. Money orders issued at Wincanton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £6. 11s. 3d.: pres. net income, £177: patron, B. H. Hunt, Esq.: pres. incumbent, James Senior, 1838: contains 680 acres: 21 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 178: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 204: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £948: poor rates in 1837, £67. S.W., Compton House—for which see COMPTON-PAUNCEFOOT.

BLACKFORDBY, LEICESTER, a chapelry in the parish of Ashby-de-la-Zouch—(which see) for access, &c.): 117 miles from London, 2 from Ashby, 13 from Derby. Money orders issued at Ashby-de-la-Zouch: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. Contains 1,320 acres: 67 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 376: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 432: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,039: poor rates in 1837, £123.

BLACKHEATH, KENT, a hamlet chiefly in the parish of Greenwich, but extending into those of Lewisham, Lee, and Charlton, hund<sup>d</sup>. of Blackheath, lathe of Sutton-at-Hone: 6 miles from London, (coach road 5), 1 from Deptford, 4 from Woolwich. Greenwich Rail. to Greenwich: from Derby, through London, &c., 138 miles. Money orders issued at Deptford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m., 1, 4, 6, 8 p.m.: post closes 10½ a.m., 12, 3, 7 p.m. The heath, celebrated for the salubrity of its climate, is bounded to a great extent on two of its sides by villas. There are two Episcopal chapels here, one in the parish of Lewisham, and the other in an extra-parochial place called Kidbrooke. There are also several schools here, the most important of which is a free grammar-school, founded and endowed in 1625 by the Rev. Abraham Colfe, vicar of Lewisham, for the education of all the sons of the clergy in the hundred of Blackheath, and 31 boys from Lewisham and the adjoining parishes. On the east side of the heath is Morden College, founded in 1695 by Sir John Morden, Bart., for decayed merchants. Sir John was an affluent Turkey merchant, and after a life of usefulness, died in 1708, and was interred in the chapel here. He endowed the college with the manor of Old Court, which now produces more than £1,600 a year. The establishment consists of a chaplain and thirty brethren, who must be upwards of fifty years of age. The hundred of Blackheath is called, in Doomsday-book, the hundred of Grenoez or Greenwich, but the present name was in use as early as the 7th year of Edward I., and was probably derived either from the colour of the soil, or from its exposed situation. In consequence of its vicinity to London, Blackheath has been the scene of many historical incidents. It was here that, in the reign of Richard II., Wat Tyler and his motley followers encamped, previous to their march upon the city. Here also Jack Cade and his followers rested. And it was upon Blackheath that the corporation of London met Henry V. after his return from the battle of Agincourt. It was here also that Henry VII., in 1497, met and vanquished the Cornish rebels under Lord Audley. Close by the heath, on the Deptford side, a cavern, containing several chambers, was discovered in 1780. It had been cut out of the solid rock, and is supposed to have been intended as a place of retreat during the Danish incursions. Fairs, May 12th, October 11th, for horses, bullocks, and toys.

BLACKHEDDON, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Stamfordham, north-east division of Tindale ward—(which see for access, &c.): 288 miles from London, 14 from Newcastle, 12 from Morpeth. Money orders issued at Newcastle-on-Tyne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. Contains 12 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 73: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 83: poor rates in 1837, £76.

BLACKHOUSE, KENT, in the parish of Polton, hund<sup>d</sup>. of Bewsbury, lathe of St. Augustine.

BLACKLAND, WILTS, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. and union of Calne: 102 miles from London (coach road 85), 2 from Calne, 6 from Devizes. Gt. West. Rail. to Chippenham, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Chippenham, &c., 165 miles. Money orders issued at Calne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Wilts, diocese of Sarum, is valued at £3. 10s. 10d.: pres. net income, £160: patron, certain Trustees: pres. incumbent, W. M. Macdonald, 1844: contains 460 acres: 13 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 81: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 93: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,613: poor rates in 1837, £33. The population of the tithing of Blackland, so called, though not actually in the parish, is about 150. Blackland House, the residence of John Tanner, Esq.

BLACKLEY (or BLAKELEY), LANCASTER, a chapelry in the parish of Manchester, hund<sup>d</sup>. of Salford—(which see for access, &c.): 186 miles from London, 4 from Manchester, 7 from Ashton. Money orders issued at Manchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. Some of the most extensive dyeworks in England are established here. The Wesleyan Methodists, Independents, Presbyterians, and Unitarians, all have chapels here. The living is a curacy, not in charge, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Manchester: pres. net income, £150: patron, Manchester College Church: pres. incumbent, W. R. Keeling, 1840: contains 1,840 acres: 492 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,202: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,682: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £5,455: poor rates in 1837, £456.

BLACKMANSTONE. See DYMCHURCH.

BLACKMORE, ESSEX, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Chelmsford, union of Ongar: 27 miles from London (coach road 24), 8 from Brentwood, 8 from Chelmsford. East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Ingatstone station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 159 miles. Money orders issued at Brentwood: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. Bishop Tanner says of Blackmore—A hermitage or priory of black canons was built here by Adam and Jordan de Samford, to the honour of St. Lawrence, before or in the beginning of King John's reign. This was one of the small monasteries which Cardinal Wolsey procured to be dissolved in the 17th year of Henry VIII., in order to the endowment of his two colleges at Oxford and Ipswich, at which time the Earl of Oxford claimed to be founder, and it was valued at £89. 5s. 7d. per annum. Upon the attainder of the Cardinal, this priory was granted in exchange, in the 23d year of Henry's reign, to Waltham Abbey; and after the general suppression, to John Smith. The living (St. Lawrence), a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £6. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £83: patron, Representatives of the late C. A. Crickett, Esq.: pres. incumbent, B. Harvey, 1808: contains 1,990 acres: 127 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 709: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, £815: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,248: poor rates in 1837, £280. Fairs, August 21, for cattle. N.E. 1½ miles, Writtle Park; E. 2 m. Copthold Hall.

BLACKPOOL, LANCASTER, a chapelry in the parish of Bispham, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Amounderness—(which see for access, &c.): 234 miles from London, 4 from Poulton.—(For access and postal arrangements, see BISPHAM.)—This place, which was formerly an inconsiderable hamlet, has now risen into a thriving town, in consequence of having become a summer bathing-place for the citizens of Manchester, whence it frequently numbers as many as 800 visitors at one time. The sea appears to have encroached considerably upon the land, and has formed a smooth and sandy beach, which is particularly agreeable to the bathers. The view from it on a fine day is very varied and extensive, comprising, towards the north, the crags of Lancashire, the hills and fells of Cumberland and Westmoreland, and, on the opposite side, the bold outlines of the mountains of North Wales. There are several good hotels, and abundance of travelling accommodation. A theatre, a library, and a news-room, have lately been erected, and assemblies are occasionally held. There is an Independent chapel here. Near the pool, which is at the south end of the village, there is a building called Vauxhall, now in a ruinous condition, but it was once celebrated as being the retreat of Popish recusants, and the Pretender was concealed there for some time in 1715, till the measures were ripe for a general insurrection.—The living is a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond, diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Manchester: pres. net income, £200: patron, five Trustees: pres. incumbent, W. T. Freeday, 1846.

BLACKROD, LANCASTER, a village and chapelry in the parish of Bolton, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Salford: 213 miles from London (coach road 203), 5 from Chorley, 8 from Bolton.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Manchester, and Bolton, to Blackrod station: from Derby, through Manchester, &c., 120 miles.—Money orders issued at Chorley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.—There is a free grammar-school here, with an endowment of £140 a year, and a house for the master; and there are three exhibitions for scholars, on the foundation of £60, £70, and £80, at Pembroke College, Cambridge, for four years, which were founded, in 1568, by Mr. John Holmes. The place is pleasantly situated on an elevation, and is supposed to be the site of a Roman station, called, by Ptolemy, Rigodunum, and by Antoninus, Coccium.—The living (St. Catherine), a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Manchester, is valued at £21. 0s. 9d.: pres. net income, £100: patron, Vicar of Bolton: pres. incumbent, Peter Browne, 1846: contains 2,660 acres: 447 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,615: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,007: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £4,618: poor rates in 1837, £365.

BLACKTHORN, OXFORD, a hamlet, formerly a chapelry, in the parish of Ambrosden, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Bullington—(which see for access, &c.): 52 miles from London, 4 from Bicester, 13 from Aylesbury.—Money orders issued at Bicester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.—Contains 2,280 acres: 81 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 479: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 550: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,179: poor rates in 1837, £192. Tithes commuted in 1776.

BLACKTOFT, EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the wapentake of Howdenshire, union of Howden: it comprises the townships of Blacktoft and Scalby: 229 miles from London (coach road 177), 8 from Howden, 10 from Crowle.—Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough to Hull, thence by Hull and Selby to Staddlethorpe, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Rotherham, Wakefield, and Selby, to Staddlethorpe, &c., 103 miles.—Money orders issued at Howden: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.—The village stands near the confluence of the Ouse and the Trent with the Humber.—The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of the east riding, diocese of York, is valued at £20: pres. net income, £200: patron, Dean and Chapter of Durham: pres. incumbent, E. Ward, 1838: contains 2,730 acres: 74 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 505: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 581: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,053: poor rates in 1849, £185.

BLACK-TORRINGTON. See TORRINGTON-BLACK.

BLACKWALL. See POPLAR and BLACKWALL.

BLACKWELL, DURHAM, a township in the parish of Darlington, south-east division: 267 miles from London (coach road 240), 2 from Darlington, 11 from Richmond.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, to Darlington, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 135 miles.—Money orders issued at Darlington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 9½ p.m.—Contains 1,670 acres: 48 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 311: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 358: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,377: poor rates in 1837, £202.

BLACKWELL, WORCESTER, a hamlet in the parish of Tredington, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Oswaldstow—(which see for access, &c.): 85 miles from London, 2 from Shipston, 8 from Stratford-on-Avon.—Money orders issued at Shipston-on-Stour: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.—Contains 48 houses—(other returns with the parish.)

BLACKWELL or BLACKHALL (HIGH), CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of St. Cuthbert, within the liberties of the city of Carlisle—(which see for access, &c.): 300 miles from London, 2 from Carlisle, 11 from Wigton.—Money orders issued at Carlisle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 9½ p.m.—This manor was given by Margaret de Wigton, heiress of Sir John de Wigton, to Sir Robert Parvinge, sergeant-at-law, and afterwards lord chancellor, in the reign of Edward III., for successfully conducting her cause against Sir Robert de Bridekirk, who had impugned her title to the property. There is a school with a small endowment here.—Contains 45 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 308: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 354—(other returns with the parish.)

BLACKWELL or BLACKHALL (LOW), CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of St. Cuthbert, within the liberties of Carlisle—(which see for access, &c.)—Contains 29 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, £172: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, £197—(other returns with the parish.)

BLACKWOOD and CROWBOROUGH, STAFFORD, a township in the parish of Horton, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Totmonslow: 173 miles from London (coach road 158), 4 from Leek, 10 from Newcastle.—Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Harecastle, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Burton to Hare-castle, 51 miles. Money orders issued at Leek: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. Contains 106 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 606: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 697: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,708: poor rates in 1837, £166. W. 2 m. Knipersley Hall. N. 2½ m. Horton Hall.

BLACKWORTH. See BACKWORTH, NORTH-UMBERLAND.

BLACON WITH CRABHALL, CHESTER, a township in the parish of the Holy Trinity, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Wirrall: 181½ miles from London (coach road 190), 2 from Chester, 7 from Hawarden. Nor. West. Rail. through Stafford to Chester, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Uttoxeter to Chester, &c., 81½ miles. Money orders issued at Chester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. Contains 1,170 acres: 12 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 82: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 94: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,852: poor rates in 1837, £84. Blacon House.

BLADON, OXFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Wooton, union of Woodstock: this parish contains the hamlet of Hensington, and unites with the borough of New Woodstock and adjacent parishes in returning one member to parliament: 73 miles from London (coach road 61), 2 from Woodstock, 7 from Oxford. Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Woodstock, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Rugby and Banbury to Woodstock, &c., 89 miles. Money orders issued at Woodstock: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 9½ p.m. In 1798, an almshouse for six poor women, each inmate of which receives £1 monthly, was erected by the Duchess of Marlborough, who endowed it with £3,000, 3 per cent. consols. The living, a rectory with the chapelry of Woodstock, in the archd<sup>r</sup>. and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £16. 0s. 5d.: pres. net income, £329: patron, Duke of Marlborough: pres. incumbent, G. W. St. John, 1848: contains 1,350 acres: 125 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 687: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 790: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,986: poor rates in 1837, £272. All the tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1766.

BLAEN-AERON, CARDIGAN, a township in the parish of Caron or Tregaron, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Penarth, South Wales: 193 miles from London (coach road 205), 10 from Lampeter, 16 from Aberystwith. Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 90 miles: from Derby to Worcester, 71½, thence 74 miles. Money orders issued at Lampeter: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 6½ p.m.: post closes 4½ a.m. Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 350: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 402—(other returns with the parish.)

BLAENCARON, CARDIGAN, a township in the parish of Caron, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Penarth, South Wales—(which see for access, &c.): 205 miles from London. Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 108: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 124.

BLAENGWRACK, GLAMORGAN, a hamlet in the parish of Glynnorwg, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Neath—(which see for access, &c.): 195 miles from London, 10 from Neath, 12 from Merthyr Tydvil. Money orders issued at Neath: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 4 p.m.: post closes 8½ a.m. Contains 69 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 476: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 547: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £242: poor rates in 1837, £127.

BLAEN-HONDDAN, GLAMORGAN, a hamlet in the parish of Cadoxton, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Neath—(which see for access, &c.): 201 miles from London, 3 from Neath, 9 from Swansea. Money orders issued at Neath: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 2½ p.m.: post closes 10 a.m. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in the copper mines in the neighbourhood. Contains 218 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,183: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,360: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £684: poor rates in 1837, £497.

BLAEN-PENAL, CARDIGAN, a chapelry in the parish of Llan-ddewr-brefi, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Penarth, South Wales: 193 miles from London (coach road 220), 11 from Lampeter, 12 from Aberystwith. Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 90 miles: from Derby to Worcester, 71½, thence 74 miles. Money orders issued at Lampeter: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7 p.m.: post closes 9 p.m. The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Cardigan, and diocese of St. David's, is valued at 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £84: patrons, Earl of Lisburne and R. Price: contains 109 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 503: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £700: poor rates in 1837, £72.

BLAEN-PORTH, CARDIGAN, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Troedyrur, union of Cardigan, South Wales: 196 miles from London (coach road 235), 6 from Cardigan, 12 from Llanarth. Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 105 miles: from Derby to Worcester, 71½, thence 104 miles. Money orders issued at Cardigan: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ p.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. On a tumulus in this parish, there was a castle of great strength, supposed to have been built by Gilbert, Earl of Clare; it was besieged and taken in 1116 by Gryffydd-ap-Rhys, and subsequently destroyed. There are also traces of two ancient encampments in the vicinity, one called Caer Sonydd, and the other Castel Tydur, or Tudor's Castle; they are both upon the coast. The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Cardigan, diocese of St. David's, is valued at £5: pres. net income, £97: patron, Earl of Lisburne, and J. V. Lloyd, Esq., alternately: pres. incumbent, Isaac Hughes, 1826: contains 155 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 752: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 864: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,260: poor rates in 1837, £228.

BLAGDON, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Stannington, western division of Castle ward—(which see for access, &c.): 284 miles from London, 7 from Morpeth, 10 from Newcastle. Money orders issued at Morpeth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 1 p.m.: post closes 12½ p.m. Pop<sup>n</sup> returned with the parish.

BLAGDON. See FITMINSTER.

BLAGDON, SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Winterstoke, union of Axbridge: 133 miles from London (coach road 132), 13 from Bristol, 8 from Axbridge. Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Yatton station, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, &c., 146 miles. Money orders issued at Bristol: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 1 p.m. There is a school here, with an endowment of £17. per annum; and a fund producing £13 a year is appropriated to apprenticing poor children. The other parochial charities produce about £20 per annum. Teasel is cultivated to a considerable extent here; and there is a paper-mill, at which several of the inhabitants are employed. At Reg-hill-bury, in the neighbourhood, there are some remains, which, by tradition, are stated to be those of a royal palace. The celebrated Dr. John Langhorne was rector of this parish, died, and was buried here. Dr. Langhorne, distinguished both for his classical attainments and his literary ability, was born at Kirkby Lonsdale, in Westmoreland, whence, his father dying young, he was sent by his mother to Appleby school, where he particularly distinguished himself. After leaving school, he obtained subsistence as a tutor to the sons of gentlemen; and, at the age of twenty-four, was enabled to enter at Clare Hall, Cambridge. He published several pieces which obtained great popularity, one of which was particularly noticed. It was a poem, entitled "Genius and Valour;" and having in the course of it defended Scotland against the attacks Lord Churchill had made against her in his "Prophecy of Famine," he was complimented by the University of Edinburgh with the degree of Doctor of Divinity. In 1770, he published, in conjunction with his brother, a translation of Plutarch's biographies, a work which, for style, aptness of expression, and purity of diction, will always secure a place among the classics of English literature. He was collated to a prebend in the cathedral of Wells in 1777, and died two years afterwards, at the comparatively early age of forty-four. The living (St. Andrew), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £29. 13s. 9d.: pres. net income, £512: patron, J. George, Esq.: pres. incumbent, D. G. Wait, 1819: contains 4,600 acres: 161 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,178: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,354: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £5,308: poor rates in 1837, £473. N.W., Mendip Lodge.

BLAGRAVE. See HADLEY WITH BLAGRAVE.

BLAISDON, GLOUCESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Westbury: 120 miles from London (coach road 112), 5 from Newnham, 8 from Gloucester. Gt. West. Rail. through Stonehouse to Gloucester, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Gloucester, &c., 102 miles. Money orders issued at Newnham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £5. 7s. 3½d.: patron, Anna Gordon: pres. incumbent, R. R. Hurl, 1846: contains 760 acres: 44 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 264: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 303: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,139: poor rates in 1837, £60.

BLAKEDON, DEVON, in the parish of Paington, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Haytor. Tanner, in speaking of this place, says—In the 28th year of Henry III. one Nicholas de Blakedon gave lands in Blakedon, Aleborn, &c., to Ralph de Wulveleg, prior of Torneford, chief minister in England of the order of the Holy Trinity, for the redemption of captives, upon condition, that before Michaelmas that year, or at farthest, before Michaelmas the next year, there should be placed here at Blakedon, at least seven brethren of the same order, who were to serve God and keep hospitality according to the rules of the same order. It is almost needless to say that all traces of the monastery have long since disappeared.

BLAKEMERE (or BLACKMOOR), HEREFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Webtree: 158 miles from London (coach road 121), 10 from Hereford, 8 from Weobley. Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 40 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 111 miles. Money orders issued at Hereford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, united with that of Preston, and having jointly a pres. net income of £250: patron, Dean and Chapter of Hereford: pres. incumbent, Edward Howells, 1821: contains 1,080 acres: 36 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 183: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,119: poor rates in 1837, £48.

BLAKEMORE FOREST (or WHITE HART FOREST), DORSET, in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and division of Sherborne. "The vale or forest of Blakemore comprehended, according to Hutchin's History of Dorsetshire, a large tract of this county in the north and western parts of it, viz. the whole hundreds of Browns-hall and Buckland Forest, the greatest part of Sherborne and Whiteaway, and some parts of Pimper, Tollerford, and Gateminster hundreds. And Leland says of it, that this forest stretched from Ivel to the quarters of Shaftesbury, and touched with Gillingham forest that is neare Shaftesbury. The name of White Hart was given to it from a circumstance which occurred within its precincts. As Henry III. was hunting in the neighbourhood, among the several deer which he had one day run down, there was a white hart which so interested him by its beauty, that he spared its life; but the poor creature was afterwards hunted and killed, at a bridge, since then called King's Stag Bridge, by a gentleman in the neighbourhood, of ancient descent and special note, named Thomas de la Lind, and his companions. When the king heard of it he was so deeply offended that he not only punished them by imprisonment and heavy fines, but laid a severe tax upon all the lands which they then held—a tax which, in the shape of fines upon the property, is paid up to the present day into the exchequer, and the money is called White Hart Silver. Tanner, in his Notitia Monastica, in speaking of the precincts of the forest, says—Here was formerly a house of friars hermits, who had been settled before A.D. 1300, in which year died Edmund, Earl of Cornwall, who had been a great benefactor, if not founder of it. But the convent seems to have forsaken this habitation before 1460, for after that time it was spoken of as a free chapel, the mastership of which was bestowed upon secular priests, till it was annexed to Cern Abbey in the 5th year of Henry VIII. It was dedicated to the Virgin Mary. All traces of it are now eradicated.

BLAKENEY, GLOUCESTER, a tithing in the parish of Aure, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Bidesloe: 123 miles from London, 4 from Newnham, 13 from Chepstow. Money orders issued at Newnham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. There is a Baptist chapel here. The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, and diocese of Gloucester and Bristol: pres. net income, £232: patron, Haberdashers' Company: pres. incumbent, C. Brooksbank, 1843—(pop<sup>n</sup> returned with the parish.) Market day, Wednesday. Fairs, May 13, and Nov. 12.

BLAKENEY, NORFOLK, a parish and seaport in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Holt, union of Walsingham: 150 miles from London (coach road 120), 6 from Holt,

8 from Wells.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>a</sup>. Rail. through Cambridge to East Dereham, thence 23 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough, to East Dereham, &c., 169 miles.---Money orders issued at Holt: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m.---This place has an excellent harbour for sheltering vessels, and it is calculated that between sixty and seventy vessels, averaging 60 tons burthen, belong to the port, several of which are employed in the oyster fishery. Henry III. granted the town a market, but its name at that time was Snitterley. There are some fine remains here of an ancient Carmelite monastery, of which Tanner says—About the 24th year of Edward IV., Richard Stormer, John Stormer, and Thomas Thober, and other copyhold tenants of the manor, gave and set apart thirteen acres of ground thereon to build a church and habitation for friars of the Carmelite order, which grant was afterwards confirmed by the king and Sir William de Roos, knight, lord of the manor; so the church and all the offices of the house were finished in 1321. The friars were by composition to acknowledge the said Sir William and Maud his wife, (daughter and one of the co-heiresses of John de Vallibus), as their principal founders, and from them the patronage of this house descended to the Earls of Rutland. But after the suppression the site was granted to William Rede. The church is an ancient and curious structure. The Wesleyan Methodists and the Baptists have chapels here, and the educational facilities of the place are amply sufficient. Several small charities combined, produce to the parish about £9 a year.---The living (St. Nicholas), a rectory united with Cockthorpe, in the diocese of Norwich, is valued at £26. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £506: patron, Lord Calthorpe: pres. incumbent, Joseph Cotterill, 1824: contains 1,630 acres: 215 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,021: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,174: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,468: poor rates in 1837, £569. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1820.

BLACKENHALL, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Wyubunbury, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Nantwich: 170 miles from London (coach road 159), 6 from Nantwich, 9 from Burslem.---Nor. West. Rail. through Stafford to station: from Derby, through Burton to station, 60 miles.---Money orders issued at Nantwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.---There is a daily school here, supported by a charity of Sir John Davies Broughton and his family.---Contains 1,700 acres: 39 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 281: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,441: poor rates in 1837, £197.---N. 1 m. Lea Hall.

BLAKENHAM (GREAT), SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Bosmere and Claydon: 75 miles from London (coach road 74), 5 from Ipswich, 4 from Needham.---East. Co<sup>a</sup>. Rail. through Ipswich to Claydon station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 207 miles.---Money orders issued at Ipswich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.---In speaking of this place, Tanner says—Walter Gifford, Earl of Buckingham, in the time of William Rufus, gave this manor to the abbey of Bec, in Normandy, to which it became a distinct alien priory, though sometimes reckoned a part of the priory of Okeburn in Wiltshire, or of Russlepe in Middlesex, both of which were subordinate to that great abbey. After the dissolution of the alien priories, King Henry VI. gave this to the provost and fellows of Eton, and King Edward IV. confirmed it to them.---The living (the Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Suffolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £6. 16s. 4d.: pres. net income, £166: patron, Eton College: pres. incumbent, C. R. Ashfield, 1827: contains 1,850 acres: 35 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 180: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,011: poor rates in 1837, £135.

BLAKENHAM (LITTLE), SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Bosmere and Claydon: 74 miles from London.---(For access and postal arrangements, see above.)---The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £10. 3s. 4d.: pres. net income, £280: patron, Rev. J. Jackson: pres. incumbent, John Jackson, 1847: contains 250 acres: 24 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 119: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,302: poor rates in 1837, £73.

BLAKESLEY, NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Green's-Norton, union of Towcester: it contains the hamlet of Woodend: 68 miles from London (coach road 70), 4 from Towcester, 8 from Daventry.---Nor. West. Rail. to Blisworth, thence 5 miles: from Derby to Blisworth, &c., 64 miles.---Money orders issued at Towcester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---It is said traditionally, that a fraternity of the order of St. John of Jerusalem occupied the hall which stood here. There is a free school here for the children of all the resident inhabitants, founded in 1669 by Mr. William Foxley, which is endowed with lands that yield £85 a year. There are also two Sunday schools here, for the endowment of which Sir John Knightley left £200; but the property having got into Chancery, the funds are received at long intervals.---The living (the Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Northampton, diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £9. 17s.: pres. net income, £176: patron, J. W. Wright, Esq.: pres. incumbent, T. Burnaby, 1847: contains 2,840 acres: 172 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 830: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 954: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. 5,256: poor rates in 1837, £141.

BLANCHLAND (HIGH), or SHOTLEY HIGH QUARTER, NORTHUMBERLAND, a chapelry in the parish of Shotley, eastern division of Tindale ward—(which see for access, &c.): 271 miles from London, 10 from Hexham, 22 from Newcastle.---Money orders issued at Hexham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.---The village is placed in a deep and narrow glen on the north bank of the Derwent, and is enclosed by heathy hills and morasses, in the former of which there are some rich lead mines. According to Speed—In 1165, Walter de Bolbec founded here an abbey of Premonstratensian canons, in honour of the blessed Virgin. The abbot was raised to the House of Peers in the 23d of Edward I.; and at the dissolution the revenues were valued at £14. 9s. 1d., there being an abbot and fourteen canons in the establishment. The property was granted, in the 31th year of Henry VIII., to John Bellow and John Brozholm. It was afterwards bought by Bishop Crewe, who bequeathed it, along with other estates, for charitable purposes. The gateway and other parts of the buildings yet remain. In 1752 the trustees of Lord Crew formed a chapel out of the tower which was left, and they also built a house for the curate. In the churchyard there are some ancient and interesting gravestones. There are two day and two Sunday National schools, which are also supported by the trustees of his lordship; the scholars are divided into four classes, the boys being taught writing and arithmetic, and the girls knitting and sewing. All the children within distance sufficient to reach the school are admitted, whatever may be their creed or parochial settlement.---The living (St. Andrew) is a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northumberland, diocese of Durham, not in charge: pres. net income, £198: patron, Trustees of Lord Crew: pres. incumbent, J. M. Mason, 1848: contains 85 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, £476: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, £547: poor rates in 1837, £100.

BLANDFORD-FORUM, or CHIPPING-BLANDFORD, or BLANDFORD MARKET, DORSET, a market town and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Pimperne, Blandford union and division of the county, possessing separate jurisdiction: 126 miles from London (coach road 104), 16 from Dorchester.---Son. West. Rail. through Southampton to Wimborne, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, Reading, and Southampton, 203 miles.---Money orders issued at Blandford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---Blandford is situated in the north-east part of the county, in a pleasing neighbourhood, on a bend of the river Stour, which flows to the westward and southward of the town. The place must have been anciently distinguished, for we find, in the Doomsday-book, that no fewer than nine parcels of land are included under the general name of Bleneford, or Blansford, as it was at that time called. Four of these for a long time, and three still retain the name, viz. Blandford-Forum, Blandford St. Mary, Blandford Bryanstone, and Long Blandford, also called Langton. It is with the first of these only that we have now to deal, and its olden history presents so complete a description of the way in which property was acquired and disposed of in the earlier centuries of our annals, that we think it but right to transcribe the facts. This manor was, in the time of Richard I., part of the honour of Leicester, and duchy of Lancaster, but was mortgaged by Robert Billomont Fitzsparnel, Earl of Leicester, for £452. 6s. 8d. to Aaron, the Jew of Lincoln, whose estates being afterwards seized with the cruelty and injustice customarily shown to that people, was, with others, put into the royal roll for the king's use. Not long after, the earl procured a discharge, under the seal of Aaron, for £240. 6s. 8d., and dying very rich, his estates were divided between his two sisters, Margaret and Amicia, the latter of whom married Simon de Montford, Earl of Leicester; the other married Saier de Quincey, afterwards Earl of Winchester, one of the twenty-five barons who had possession of the city of London in the time of King John, and was also deputed to govern the realm. For this he was excommunicated by the pope, and refusing to submit to the papistical authority, he was declared disaffected, and was consequently elected by the equally disaffected barons, jointly with Robert Fitzwalter, to solicit the Dauphin to lead their army against the sovereign---about one of the most complicated pieces of policy that ever was accomplished. In the first year of Henry III. he kept Mountsorrel for the Dauphin, and repulsed the king's friends, but being taken prisoner at the battle of Lincoln, he was pardoned, and his lands and honours were restored. Soon after this he joined the crusaders, and proceeded with the Earls of Chester and Arundel, and several other noblemen, to Damietta, but died upon the passage. He left one son, named Robert, who married Avica, sister and coheir of Rundle de Meschines, Earl of Chester and Lincoln, and their daughter and heiress having married John de Lacy, he through her right became Earl of Lincoln, and possessor of the manor of Blandford. Henry, the son of that nobleman, performed great feats of arms in the wars of Edward I. in France, and led the van of the army at the battle of Falkirk, which put an end at once to the present independence of Scotland, and established one of the foulest usurpations that ever was attempted. He was one of the guardians of Edward II.; but Thomas Plantagenet, who had married Alice, his only daughter, having been taken and beheaded, his widow, after a second marriage, bequeathed this manor to Henry Plantagenet, Earl of Lancaster, her brother-in-law, through whom it ultimately vested in the Crown, in the person of Henry IV., after the death of Richard III. The accounts are contradictory; but the real property of it was at length vested in the corporation created by the charter of James I., who also made a grant of the manor. During the civil war, the inhabitants were celebrated for their attachment to the king, and suffered severely in consequence from the parliamentary troops under Major Sydenham. It was also much injured by conflagrations in 1677, 1713, and in 1731, during the last of which the whole of the town, and the neighbouring villages of Bryanstone, and Blandford St. Mary, with the exception of about 40 houses, were burnt to the ground, so that, although of such ancient origin, Blandford has altogether a modern aspect. This last disaster is commemorated very appropriately by the erection of a pump in the town-hall, by a Mr. John Bastard, who caused an allusive inscription to be placed near to it, on the wall of the building. A local act was afterwards obtained, which contains but one provision, and that is, that none of the houses should be built with thatched roofs, and two supervisors of fire are appointed every year. The streets are regular and well lighted with gas. There are three good bridges over the Stour, and there is an ample supply of water. The church is a fine edifice, with a pleasing tower. The town-hall has a handsome façade of Portland stone in the Doric style. The theatre is neat, and is generally open at race-time. There was formerly a good deal of bobbin-lace made here of the finest texture, which was said to be superior even to that of Valenciennes and Brussels, but the business has altogether declined, and yielded to the machinery of Nottingham and Leicester. By the new municipal act, the corporation consists of a mayor, four aldermen, and twelve councillors, and the only court now held as a borough court is the court-leet before the recorder. The petty sessions for the Blandford division are held here, and the courts of the bishop and the archdeacon are also held here monthly. The corporate revenues, which amount to about £200 a year, are derived from tolls at the markets and fairs, from premises let at rack-rents, from quit-rents, annual fines for encroachments, and from the renewals of leases. Blandford is one of the polling-places for the county. The Independents and the Roman Catholics each have chapels here. The parochial charities are numerous. There is a free grammar-school here, in which Archbishop Wake received his own early education. The archbishop founded a blue-coat school in 1729, which he endowed with £1,616, the produce of which is now £48. 9s. 8d. a year. There are several infant schools, three of which have endowments of £12. 12s. a year. In 1685, George Ryves, Esq., founded almshouses for ten aged persons, bequeathing the residue of his estate, which now yields £120 per annum, for the education of the poor. Besides six almshouses in the churchyard, founded in 1736 by the corporation, there is a fund for charitable purposes, founded in 1621, by a gift of £3,000, by Mr. William Williams, which now produces £300 a year from the rental of a landed estate. There is an ancient intrenchment in the vicinity of the town, and on the east are the remains of Damory Court, the residence of the ancient family of Damory, who were once the lords of the manor. Near the house there stood until lately an old oak, a remnant of the Saxon times, of large dimensions. About a century ago it was 75 feet in height, the branches overshadowed a space of 72 feet, and the trunk was 23 feet in diameter. The Duke of Marlborough takes the title of Marquis of Blandford from this place. The Blandford Poor-law Union comprises 33 parishes, extending over a space of 92 miles, containing a population of about 13,000, and a workhouse has been erected here by the poor-law commissioners at an expense of £1,200. Blandford has been the birth-place of several distinguished men, among whom Archbishop Wake is pre-eminent. He was born in 1657, and was educated at Oxford. On his entry upon the duties of the ministry, after his ordination, he soon distinguished himself by his advocacy of the protestant cause, though with the marked displeasure of the court. This gained him the favour of the new sovereign, and, shortly after the accession of William III., he was made king's chaplain, rector of St. James's, and dean of Westminster. In 1705 he was raised to the see of Lincoln, and in 1716 he was advanced to the primacy. His great object was to promote a union between the Anglican and Gallican churches, the attempt to effect which brought upon him most unjustifiable calumnies. He died in 1737, leaving behind him several works of great merit. The living (St. Peter and St. Paul), a vicarage formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Dorset, and diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Sarum, is valued at £12. 8s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £167: patron, Dean and Chapter of Winchester: pres. incumbent, H. T. Parker, 1836: contains 920 acres: 522 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,349: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,851: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £6,019: poor rates in 1837, £985. Market day, Saturday. Fairs, March 7th, July 10th, November 8th, for horses, sheep, and cheese.

VOL. I.

Races, August. Bankers, Branch of the Wilts and Dorset Bank. Bryanstone House, the seat of Lord Portman—(for which see BRYANSTONE); E. 1 m. Langton House—(for which see LANGETON); S. 1 m. Brown House.

BLANDFORD (St. Mary), Dorset, a parish in the hund<sup>l</sup> of Coomb's-ditch, Blandford union and division of the county: 105 miles from London. (For access and postal arrangements, see above.) This was the birth-place of Dr. Browne Willis, the celebrated antiquary, who died in 1682. He was the son of Dr. Willis, one of the most eminent physicians of the seventeenth century, and was educated at Christ Church, Oxford, whence, on taking his degree, he removed to the residence of Dr. Wotton, the author of Leges Wallie, where he spent three years, which quite induced him to adopt the line of study which he afterwards so successfully pursued. In 1705 he was chosen member for Buckinghamshire; on the revival of the society of antiquarians in 1717, he was elected a member. He possessed the most complete set of coins in England, which he presented to his own university, and in return for which, the heads of it complimented him with the title of LL.D. After immense labour in provincial and ecclesiastical antiquity, his MSS. on Buckinghamshire alone amounting to 150 volumes, he attained the highest celebrity. His History of Cathedrals, Notitia Parliamentaria, and other publications, are still held in great esteem. He died in 1760, at his own residence, Whaddon Hall, and was buried at Fenny Stratford, where there is a monument to his memory. The living, a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Dorset, and diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Salisbury, is valued at £15. 17s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £313: patron, Heirs of Sir J. Burrough: pres. incumbent, J. B. Fenwick, 1847: contains 420 acres: 70 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 407: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 468: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,278: poor rates in 1837, £192.

BLANKNEY WITH LINWOOD, LINCOLN, a parish in the second division of the wapentake of Langoe, parts of Kesteven, union of Sleaford: 159 miles from London (coach road 125), 10 from Sleaford, 10 from Lincoln. Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough and Boston to Kirkstead station, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, Newark, and Lincoln, to Kirkstead, &c. Money orders issued at Sleaford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. There is a school here, supported by Mr. Chaplin. The living (St. Oswald), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £16. 10s. 7½d.: pres. net income, £821: patron, C. Chaplin, Esq.: pres. incumbent, E. Chaplin, 1800: contains 6,000 acres: 96 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 640: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 736: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £4,811: poor rates in 1837, £384. All the tithes of Blankney and Scopwick, the property of the Bishop of Lincoln, the clerical rector, and the vicar, were commuted in 1797. Blankney Hall, the seat of Charles Chaplin, Esq. The family of Chaplin has been long of high consideration in the county of Lincoln. It derives its immediate descent from Sir Francis Chaplin, Knt., alderman of London in the time of Charles II., one of whose descendants, Sir Charles Chaplin, was elevated to the baronetcy in 1715, but the title afterwards lapsed from the want of direct heirship. From that gentleman the present proprietor is the seventh in descent. Mr. Chaplin sat for Lincolnshire from 1818 to 1831, and he is a magistrate and deputy-lieutenant of the county.

22

BLASTON (St. MICHAEL), LEICESTER, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Gartree: 105 miles from London (coach road 89), 7 from Market-Harborough, 6 from Uppingham. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Market-Harborough to Holt station, thence 1½ miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Rugby, &c., 85 miles. Money orders issued at Market-Harborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. The share of the rents of Goodman's charity due to this parish amounts to about £10 a year. The living, a curacy subordinate to the rectory of Hallaton, having jointly a pres. net income of £646: patrons, C. Bewicke, Esq. and Rev. G. O. Fenwicke: pres. incumbent, T. C. Peake, 1843: contains 1,300 acres: 14 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 102: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 110: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,986: poor rates in 1837, £87.

BLATCHINGTON. See BLECHINGTON, SUSSEX.

BLATCHINGWORTH AND CALDERBROOK, LANCASTER, a chapelry and township in the parish of Rochdale, and hund<sup>d</sup> of Salford, near which the Rochdale Canal runs: 213 miles from London (coach road 201), 5 from Rochdale, 12 from Burnley. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Manchester, and Rochdale, to Littleborough, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Manchester, &c., 117 miles. Money orders issued at Rochdale: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. Contains 715 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,854: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 5,582: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,892: poor rates in 1837, £490.

BLATHERWYCKE, NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Corby, union of Oundle: it comprises the parishes of the Holy Trinity and St. Mary Magdalene, united in 1848: 86 miles from London (coach road 88), 10 from Wandsford, 11 from Stamford. Nor. West. Rail. to Northampton and Oundle, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Weedon, Northampton, &c., 108 miles. Money orders issued at Wandsford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. The living (Holy Trinity), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £14. 13s. 3d.: pres. net income, £394: patron, S. O'Brien, Esq.: pres. incumbent, S. Backler, 1838: contains 2,750 acres: 39 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 236: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 258: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,673: poor rates in 1837, £61. E. 2½ m. Blatherwycke House, the seat of Augustus Stafford O'Brien Stafford, Esq. (late Stafford O'Brien, Esq.) M.P. for the county, who derives his descent from Henry O'Brien, Esq. of Dromoland in Ireland, whose widow afterwards married Arthur Geofheghan, Esq. of Westmeath, who afterwards assumed the surname of Stafford, and from that gentleman the present proprietor of Blatherwycke is the fourth in descent. The mansion is a fine old house, seated in a pleasing park. S.E. 2 m. Moreham Lodge—(for which see MOREHAM.) S. 2 m. Bulwick Hall—(for which see BULWICK.)

BLAWITH, LANCASTER, a chapelry in the parish of Ulverstone, hund<sup>d</sup> of Lonsdale, north of the Sands: 250 miles from London (coach road 264), 7 from Ulverstone, 6 from Broughton. Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Preston to Milnthorpe, thence 17 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 161 miles. Money orders issued at Ulverstone: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. There is a school for boys here, endowed with £6. 8s. per annum. The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond, diocese of Chester, is valued at £4: pres. net income, £63: patron, T. R. G. Braddyll: pres. incumbent, J. Patch, 1846: contains 2,620 acres: 32 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 173: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 186: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £859: poor rates in 1837, £98.

BLAXHALL, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> and union of Plomesgate: 85 miles from London, 9 from Woodbridge, 9 from Aldborough. East. Co<sup>h</sup> Rail. to Ipswich, thence 17 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 217 miles. Money orders issued at Woodbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. The poor of this parish receive £18 a year, from land left for that purpose by Mr. and Mrs. Garthwaite. The living (St. Peter), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £20: pres. net income, £498: patron, A. Ingleby and others: pres. incumbent, Ellis Wade, 1836: contains 1,930 acres: 57 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 576: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 662: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,203: poor rates in 1837, £413.

BLAXTON, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Finningly, soke of Doncaster: 178 miles from London (coach road 158), 5 from Bawtry, 7 from Doncaster. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Nottingham, Retford, and Bawtry, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, Newark, &c., 61 miles. Money orders issued at Bawtry: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. Contains 1,640 acres: 32 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 202: poor rates in 1837, £38.

BLAYDON, DURHAM, a small village in the township of Winlaton, parish of Ryton, western division of Chester ward—(which see for access, &c.)

BLAZEY (St.), CORNWALL, a parish in the eastern division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Powder, union of St. Austell: 280 miles from London (coach road 239), 4 from Austell, 5 from Lostwithiel. Gt. West. Rail. to Plymouth, thence 29 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Plymouth, &c., 288 miles. Money orders issued at Austell: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 3½ p.m.: post closes 9 a.m. Many of the inhabitants are miners. The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cornwall, diocese of Exeter: patron, Col. Carlyon: pres. incumbent, C. E. Hosken, 1844: contains 2,000 acres: 343 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,234: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,719: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,878: poor rates in 1837, £602. Fairs, Feb. 2, for cattle.

BLEADON, SOMERSET, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Winterstoke, division of Wrington, and union of Axbridge: 152 miles from London (coach road 135), 6 from Axbridge, 10 from Wrington. Gt. West. Rail. to Weston-super-Mare, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Weston, &c., 165 miles.---Money orders issued at Wells: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---The living (St. Peter), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £27. 7s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £469: patron, Bishop of Winchester: pres. incumbent, D. Williams, 1820: contains 2,490 acres: 95 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 778: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 894: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,522: poor rates in 1837, £231.

BLEAN (or St. COSMUS AND DAMIAN-IN-THE-BLEAN), KENT, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Whitstable, lathe of St. Augustine, union of Blean: 83 miles from London (coach road 56), 2 from Canterbury, 5 from Whitstable.---Sou. East. Rail. to Canterbury, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 215 miles.---Money orders issued at Canterbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.---A court-leet is held here for the manor of Blean, at which a borsholder is chosen. The north part of the parish is all coppice-wood. The Blean Poor-law Union comprehends sixteen parishes, spread over fifty-four square miles, comprising a population of about 11,000. A work-house has been erected by the commissioners, at an expense of £6,300, which is capable of accommodating 478 persons.---The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £346: patron, the Master of Eastbridge Hospital: pres. incumbent, H. Fielding, 1816: contains 5,760 acres: 101 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 606: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 697: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,092: poor rates in 1837, £137.---S., Hares Place.

BLEASBY, NOTTINGHAM, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Southwell and Scrooby, union of Southwell: 149 miles from London (coach road 128), 3 from Southwell, 7 Newark.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Nottingham to Southwell, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, &c., 32 miles.---Money orders issued at Southwell: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---The church was repewed and renovated at an expense of £200, of which Mr. Kelham contributed three-fourths, and the other parishioners the rest.---The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the peculiar jurisdiction and patronage of the collegiate church of Southwell, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £4: pres. net income, £107: pres. incumbent, J. W. Marsh, 1848: contains 1,550 acres: 60 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 353: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 405: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,116: poor rates in 1837, £57. The great and small tithes, the property of the prebendary of Normanton and the vicar, were commuted in 1777.---Bleasby Hall, the seat of Robert Kelham Kelham, Esq. The family of Kelham is of great antiquity in the counties of Nottingham and Lincoln, as we know that Richard Kolham of Allington, in the latter county, possessed lands there as early as 1428; and Robert Kelham purchased property at Great Gonerby, near Grantham, of which the present proprietor of Bleasby is still in possession. Mr. Kelham, whose original name was Langdale, assumed his present surname in pursuance of the will of his maternal uncle, Robert Kelham, Esq., in 1812. Mr. Kelham's paternal ancestors were descended from a younger branch of the Langdales of Houghton, in Yorkshire, from whom was also descended Sir Marmaduke Langdale, the celebrated cavalier commander in the time of Charles I., who was, in 1658, created Lord Langdale of Holm. The house is a handsome structure, surrounded by some very pleasing grounds.---Gourton, the seat of Thomas Hind, Esq.

BLEASDALE, LANCASTER, a chapelry in the parish of Lancaster, hun<sup>d</sup> of Amounderness: 225 miles from London (coach road 229), 6 from Garstang, 14 from Lancaster.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe, &c., to Garstang, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield to Garstang, &c., 126 miles.---Money orders issued at Garstang: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---The living, a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Manchester: pres. net income, £80: patron, Vicar of Lancaster: pres. incumbent, Henry Short, 1846: contains 8,490 acres: 39 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 271: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,642: poor rates in 1837, £90.

BLEATARN, WESTMORELAND, a hamlet in the parish of Warcop, east ward---(which see for access, &c.): 266 miles from London, 5 from Brough, 6 from Appleby.---Money orders issued at Penrith: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1½ p.m.: post closes 11 a.m.---The manor was given, in the time of Henry II., by John Tailbois, to the abbey of Byland, in Yorkshire, a cell of which was founded here, and which appears to have been originally of great extent. The site of the village is pleasingly sequestered, and Wordsworth has immortalized it in his "Solitary," as--- "A little lowly vale---
 A lowly vale, and yet uplifted high Among the mountains."

---Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 170---(other returns with the parish.)

BLECHINGDON, OXFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Ploughley, union of Bicester: 76 miles from London (coach road 60), 9 from Oxford, 5 from Woodstock.---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Woodstock, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Rugby and Banbury to Woodstock, &c., 92 miles.---Money orders issued at Oxford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---There are almshouses in the village for four poor persons, founded in 1620 by Leonard Power. The other parochial charities produce about £40 a year.---The living (St. Giles), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £12. 9s. 4½d.: pres. net income, £356: patron, Queen's College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, Thomas Dand, 1846: contains 2,540 acres: 131 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 638: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 733: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,580: poor rates in 1837, £471.---Blechingdon Park, the seat of Viscount Valentia. Arthur Annesley, Viscount Valentia, Baron Mountnorris, and Baron of Altham, in the peerage of Ireland, and premier baronet of that country, succeeded his kinsman George, second Earl of Mountnorris, in 1844. His lordship's family derives its name from Anneslie, in the county of Nottingham, where its founder, Richard de Annesley, was seated at the time of the Conquest; but their immediate progenitor was Robert Annesley, Esq., a descendant of Sir John Annesley, M.P. for the county of Notts, who was a naval officer in the reign of Elizabeth, but took a military command, raised to repel the rebellion of the Earl of Desmond. He afterwards undertook to effect the plantation of Munster, and was at length succeeded by his eldest son, Sir Francis Annesley, who held some of the most important official positions in Ireland. He was one of the principal secretaries of state, was a member of the privy council, and held beside several other dignities. On the institution of the order of baronets in Ireland, Sir Francis was the second person upon whom the honour was conferred. He was subsequently invested with the reversion of the Irish viscounty of Valentia on the death of the possessor, Sir Henry Power; but before that event occurred, he was raised to the peerage by the title of Baron Mountnorris. His son Arthur, the second baron, who was treasurer of the navy in 1667, and lord privy seal in 1673, was created Baron Annesley and Earl of Anglesea in the English peerage. Arthur, the fifth earl, died childless, when the honours devolved upon Richard, fifth baron of Altham. But the legitimacy of his eldest son being contested, an investigation took place, when his claims were admitted to the Irish peerage; but on applying to be admitted to the British parliament as Earl of Anglesea, he was refused. He continued, however, to sit as Lord Valentia in the Irish House of Lords, and was created in 1793 Earl of Mountnorris. The grandson of that nobleman died without issue in his father's lifetime, and the Irish honours passed to Arthur Annesley, Esq. of Blechingdon, the present peer.

BLEDINGTON (or BLADINGTON), GLOUCESTER, a parish in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Slaughter, union of Stow-on-the-Wold: 86 miles from London (coach road 78), 5 from Stow-on-the-Wold, 7 from Chipping Norton. —Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Bledington station: from Derby, through Birmingham and Worcester, to station, 103 miles. —Money orders issued at Morton-in-Marsh: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. —The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, and diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £6. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £88: patron, Christ's Church, Oxford: pres. incumbent, J. O. Hill, 1843: contains 1,110 acres: 71 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 354: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 407: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,567: poor rates in 1837, £145. All tithes, the property of the dean and chapter of Christ's Church, Oxford, were commuted in 1769.

BLEDD-FA (or BLETHVAUGH), RADNOR, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Kevenleece, union of Knighton, South Wales, in the forest of the same name: 163 miles from London (coach road 158): 7 from Knighton, 5 from Radnor. —Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 45 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 116 miles. —Money orders issued at Presteign: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1½ p.m.: post closes 10½ a.m. —The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Brecon, and diocese of St. David's, is valued at £10. 12s. 3d.: pres. net income, £181: patron, Bishop of St. David's: pres. incumbent, John Price, 1835: contains 41 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 235: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,171: poor rates in 1837, £188.

BLEDLOW WITH BLEDOW-RIDGE, BUCKINGHAM, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Aylesbury, union of Wycombe: 42½ miles from London (coach road 39), 3 from Princes Risborough, 10 from Wycombe. —Gt. West. Railway to Wycombe, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Aylesbury, 86, thence 8 miles. —Money orders issued at Tring: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —The church stands on the edge of a cliff which overhangs a deep glen. —The living (the Holy Trinity), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Buckingham, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £16. 9s. 7d.: pres. net income, £175: patron, Lord Carrington: pres. incumbent, W. Stephen, 1808: contains 4,130 acres: 217 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,205: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,386: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,108: poor rates in 1837, £564. All the tithes, the property of the lay impropiator and the vicar, were commuted in 1809.

BLENCOW (GREAT), CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Dacre, Leath ward—(which see for access, &c.): 291 miles from London, 5 from Penrith, 11 from Keswick. —Money orders issued at Penrith: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. —(Other returns with the parish.)

BLENCOWS, CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Broomfield, Cumberland ward—(which see for access, &c.): 311 miles from London, 5 from Wigton, 9 from Allonby. —Money orders issued at Wigton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 1 p.m. —Contains 37 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 260: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,918: poor rates in 1837, £54.

BLENCOW (LITTLE), CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Greystoke, Leath ward—(which see for access, postal arrangements, &c.). —Contains 11 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 68. —(Other returns with the parish.)

BLENDWORTH, HANTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Finch-Dean, Alton, south division, union of Catherington: 93 miles from London (coach road 62), 3 from Petersfield, 11 from Portsmouth. —Brighton and Sou. Coast Rail. to Havant, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Banbury, Oxford, and Basingstoke, to Portsmouth and Havant, &c., 199 miles. —Money orders issued at Petersfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. —There is a school here for young children, which has a small endowment, left in 1695 by William Appleford. —The living (St. Giles), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £6. 7s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £226: patron, Rev. —Ward: pres. incumbent, E. L. Ward, 1835: contains 3,110 acres: 63 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 280: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,441: poor rates in 1837, £183.

BLENHEIM, OXFORD, an extra-parochial hamlet, locally situated in the parish of Woodstock, hun<sup>d</sup> of Wootton, liberty of Oxford: 72 miles from London (coach road 63), 1 from Woodstock, 8 from Oxford. —Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Woodstock, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Rugby and Banbury to Woodstock, &c., 88 miles. —Money orders issued at Woodstock: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 9½ p.m. —Blenheim Castle, the seat of the Duke of Marlborough, is one of those few instances which history presents of a nation's gratitude. It was founded in 1704, and built out of a fund of £500,000, voted by parliament for the erection of a residence for John Churchill, first duke of Marlborough, on a domain given to him by Queen Anne for his distinguished services in the field, in the course of the wars occasioned by or through the ambitious encroachments of Louis XIV. of France; it was named after a German village, near which the duke gained a decisive victory on the 2d of August, 1704. On the anniversary of that battle, it is directed in the grant that, as a tenure, "Every year, for ever, the inheritor of his Grace's honours and titles should render, at Windsor, to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, one standard or colours, with three fleur-de-lis painted thereon, as an acquittance of all manner of rents, suits, and services due to the Crown," a custom which is strictly and invariably observed. The castle stands in a splendid park. The architect was the most celebrated man, in his line, of the day—Sir John Vanbrugh; and though not faultless—for what is?—and presenting some incongruities, is justly styled a magnificent pile of building. "No architect," said Sir Joshua Reynolds, "understood the picturesque in building so well as Vanbrugh." A triumphal arch, on the road from Woodstock, leads into the grounds; and after traversing a road so judiciously designed as to give continually fresh views of the most delightful scenery—such partial views of it as to gradually accustom the eye of the spectator to the character of its style—the castle, in all its grandeur, strikes upon the view. Extensive, lofty, affluent in design, judiciously broken into parts, so as to give it every combination and variety of perspective outline, yet so beautifully harmonized, that altogether make up one unbroken whole, Blenheim has few compeers as the mansion of a lofty noble. Fault has been found with the front, and it has by many hypercritics been deemed too heavy; one witting, indeed, in alluding to the architect, wrote two lines which obtained very considerable celebrity in their day, and, as a witticism, they are not so much amiss. He said,

"Lie heavy on him Earth! for He Laid many a heavy load on Thee."

The building may be somewhat too heavy when viewed merely as a domestic dwelling, but when considered as a palatial edifice, the glorious testimony of a nation's regard for the greatest of its warriors, the exhibition of its sense of the extent of his services, the feelings rise with the subject, and Blenheim appears the apt exemplification of its purpose. As might be surmised from what has just been said, the front of this great edifice is mixed and highly ornamental. The pediments of the centre is supported by Corinthian columns, and communicates with wings on either side by open colonnades, the extreme length of the façade being 348 feet. The site on which it stands is fine naturally, and has been much improved by art—not so high as to detract from the magnitude of the building, but sufficiently elevated to give full force to all its varied effects. In front, in tortuous wanderings, flows the placid water, which forms one of the greatest beauties of the park; its banks rising among ridges of hills, which continually intersect each other; here crowned with noble forest-trees, there clothed with the sweetest verdure—at one place dotted with underwood, at another showing the pebbly beach of a parent stream, while in the broadest part of the river, just opposite the mansion, a noble bridge has been thrown over, a fit avenue for the palace. To the right, at some distance, are seen the arches of a second bridge, constructed of the most finished masonry; and proudly peering above all, from the summit of the highest of the knolls which adorn the country, a lofty pillar has been raised, which is surmounted by a statue of the first duke in a triumphal garb. The south front of the building is of a chaste and subdued, but still fine elevation, and happily assimilates with the quiet elegance of the scenery around it. Over a Corinthian portico there is a colossal bust of Louis XIV., adorned with various military emblems, which was taken from the gates of Tournay, after one of the victories of the duke; and on the pediment there is inscribed,

"Europeæ Hæc Vindex Genio Decora Alta Britanno," an admirable compliment, although very indifferent Latin, intending to personify Europe, in her character of avenger, awarding these high honours to the genius of Britain. The interior of this superb pile is worthy of its external accompaniments. The hall rises to the whole height of the building, sixty-seven feet, and has a ceiling painted by Sir James Thornhill, with an allegorical representation of Victory crowning the Duke of Marlborough, while she points to a plan of the battle of Blenheim. Over the marble doorway which leads to the saloon there is a Latin inscription, which has been thus translated:—

"Behold the man to distant nation's known,
Who shook the Gallic, fixed the Austrian throne,
New lustre to Britannia's glory gave:
In council prudent, as in action brave,
Not Julius more in arms distinguished shin'd,
Nor could Augustus better calm mankind."

In several portions of the hall there are some fine sculptures. In the bay-window room there is some of the peculiarly fine tapestry for which the mansion is remarkable; the subjects here are the battles of Blenheim and Wynandael. The design is well made out, and the colouring is so vivid, that, as Dyer says,

"So lively glows
The fair delusion, that our passions rise
In the beholding, and the glories show
Of visionary battle."

The saloon is a noble and spacious apartment, occupying, with the hall, the whole breadth of the centre, and, like it, rising to the height of the building. The lower division is lined with marble, of which material its four door-cases are composed. Above the basement there are six compartments, painted by La Guerre, to represent the several nations of the world. The ceiling was also covered by the same artist. The library is an apartment well worthy of its object; it occupies the whole of the west front, and is a truly magnificent room, 183 feet long and 31 feet wide. It contains one of the most valuable private collections of books in existence, comprising upwards of 20,000 volumes. The basement is of black marble, and solid columns of veined marble support a rich entablature, which is again surmounted by a vaulted roof, divided by stucco-work into compartments. At the upper end of the room there is a fine statue of Queen Anne, by Rysbrach, with an inscription expressive of gratitude for her munificence in the bestowal of Blenheim. The bay-windows on the west command the views over the winding descent to the lake, and the woodland scenery beyond. The chapel is situated in the western wing of the castle, and is entered by a piazza. The interior is sober, subdued, and in accordance with the sacred object for which it was erected; it contains a monument to the memory of the duke, and two of his sons who died young. But to enumerate all the various objects well worthy of inspection would be far beyond our space, and it may therefore be sufficient to observe, that every apartment has not only one, but many valuable works of art to render it attractive. The princely district, enclosed by walls as an appendage to the castle, comprise a space of about two thousand seven hundred acres, the circumference of which is supposed to be about twelve miles. The space which lies without the river is called the Great Park, that within its circuit of the castle, the Little Park. In this latter portion are the gardens, which occupy about two hundred acres, laid out as flower and pleasure grounds. They are arranged with admirable taste, and are quite consonant with the spirit of the place which they are intended to adorn. Its appropriate ornamental buildings are sufficiently numerous. Among them is the 'Temple of Health,' erected in 1789; the 'Shepherd's Cot,' a small thatched building, constructed of the trunks of trees, in a division of the grounds termed the sheep-walk, a very symbol of tranquillity enwrapped by varied foliage. In a pensile and secluded dell there is a spacious basin adorned with the last work of Bernini, a copy from the magnificent fountain in the Piazza Navona at Rome, which was a present to the duke from the Spanish ambassador at the Papal court. It is intended to represent four river gods—the Danube, the Nile, the La Plata, and the Ganges, sculptured in white marble at the four corners of a rock, which support an obelisk. At some distance from this, on an elevation commanding beautiful views, a temple of Diana has been erected. Within it there are three medallions; that placed centrally represents Hippolytus offering to Diana a wreath of flowers, and on the lateral ones are verses from the play of Euripides, which have been thus translated:—

"To thee, fair Goddess, these fair flowers I bring,
A chaplet woven from th' unstained mead,
Thy cool sequestered haunt, where never yet
Shepherd approached—where the rude hind ne'er heaved
Th' unhallowed axe, nor voice, nor sound is heard,
Save the low murmuring of the vernal bee.
The day-spring from above the dew distills
Genial and mild from the pure stream exhaled,
On every fragrant herb and favourite flower."

Within the pleasure-grounds there was formerly a flower-garden, dedicated to Madame Pompadour, but that, with great good taste, was done away with, and an aviary of rare and beautiful birds stands upon its site. The gardens for the service of the table are extensive, and are amply furnished with hot-houses and a conservatory. John Churchill, Duke of Marlborough, to whom this magnificent tribute of a nation's gratitude was paid, was the son of Sir Winston Churchill of Ashe, in Devonshire, where he was born in 1650. At twelve years of age he left school, and became a page of the Duke of York, afterwards James II., who, in 1666, gave him a pair of colours in the Guards. His first service was at the siege of Tangier; and on his return to England, being a youth of remarkably fine appearance—he was called the handsome Englishman—he became the favourite of the Duchess of Cleveland, who gave him £5,000, with which he very wisely purchased an annuity for life. He served afterwards under the celebrated Marshal Turenne, and behaved so gallantly at the siege of Maestrecht, that the King of France publicly thanked him at the head of his regiment. On his return to England, he was made a lieutenant-colonel, gentleman of the bedchamber, and master of the robes. In 1682, he was raised to the peerage by the title of Baron Eyemouth. In 1685, he was created Lord Churchill of Sandbridge; and the same year he suppressed Monmouth's rebellion, and took him prisoner. He afterwards took several places in Ireland, and remained faithful to James, till the arrival of William III., who made him Earl of Marlborough in 1689, and appointed him commander of all his forces. On suspicion, however, not altogether groundless, of plotting to restore the exiled monarch, he was dismissed from all his employments, and sent to the Tower; but on the death of Queen Mary, he was restored to favour and to his commands. Then came the most brilliant period of his life. In 1702, he recommended a war with France, in order to repress the dangerous predominance of Louis XIV., was sent into Holland, and obtained some splendid victories, for which, on his return to England, he received the thanks of parliament. In 1704, he again proceeded to the continent, and the following five years, during which he was constantly at the head of great armies, and conducting extensive operations, witnessed a constant succession of triumphs; among others that of Blenheim, for which he obtained the grant of his domain and a dukedom. France at length sued for peace. The Duke returned to England in 1711, and through party intrigues was again dismissed from all his employments. He then, with his Duchess, went into voluntary banishment, in disgust at this unjust treatment. He returned in 1714, and was received on his landing at Dover with the loudest acclamations. He was restored to his public employments, but retired into private life, and died in 1722 at Windsor Lodge. By the act which settled the domain of Blenheim on the Duke, the property and title are entailed upon the descendants of his daughters, as well as his sons, and his grace the present Duke inherits, through the Countess of Sunderland, the second daughter.

BLENKINSOP, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Haltwhistle, western division of Tindale ward—(which see for access, &c.): 278 miles from London, 3 from Haltwhistle, 18 from Hexham. ← Money orders issued at Carlisle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 2 p.m.: post closes 11½ a.m. ← There are extensive coal works here. The castle is a strong square tower, built upon vaults, on a little eminence on the south side of the river Tippal. It was, in ancient times, the seat of the Blenkinsopps, who were noted for their border feuds. A few rooms in the castle are tenanted by persons employed in the neighbourhood. The stones of which the tower is built have the same appearance as those found in the Roman stations, and an altar, bearing the following inscription, was found at this place early in the last century:—

DEABUS NYM
PHIS VET
MANSUETAE.
LAUDIA TYR
NILI FIL. V. S. L.

It is at present in the garden wall of the inn at Glenwhelt, a small village a little to the north of this place, where there is also a colossal head, five feet in circumference. Mr. Horsley reads the inscription thus:—Deabus Nymphis Vetiæ Mansueta et Claudia Turbinilla filia votum solverunt libentes. This estate, in the time of Henry III., was held by Ralph Blenkinsopp, of Nicholas de Bolthby, Baron of Tindale, by the annual payment of half a mark, and is at present in the possession of John Blenkinsopp-Coulson, Esq. of Blenkinsopp Castle, a residence which he built about forty years ago, on the banks of the Tippal, opposite the old castle. The Blenkinsopps, who, by Camden, are styled 'a right ancient and generous family,' have resided, as will be seen by what has just been said, on this site for many centuries, a persistent interest of the truly English character. In the time of Edward I. the castle and manor were in the possession of the family, and descended, with few collateral changes, to Thomas Blenkinsopp, Esq., who was at the head of it in the time of George I. He had an only daughter and heiress, who married William Coulson, Esq. of Jesmond House, in the county of Northumberland, the son and heir of John Coulson, Esq., by Elizabeth, daughter of Robert Bromley, Esq., who was a descendant of the famous Sir John Bromley, who lived in the time of Henry V. From that gentleman and lady the present proprietor is the fourth in descent. In Haltwhistle church there is an effigy of one of the Blenkinsopps, as a knight-templar recumbent in armour, who had made the crusade with Richard I.; and there is also a tablet to one of the family, who, having distinguished himself in the wars, exchanged the spear for the staff, and made a pilgrimage to the Holy Land.---Contains 57 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 395: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 454: poor rates in 1837, £188.

BLANNERHASSET AND KIRKLAND, CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Torpenhow, ward of Allerdale-below-Darwent—(which see for access, &c.): 303 miles from London, 7 from Wigton, 8 from Cockermouth.---Money orders issued at Wigton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> at noon; post closes 12½ p.m.---Contains 45 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 273: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,047: poor rates in 1837, £92.

BLETCHINGLY (or BLECHINGLY), SURREY, a borough and parish, formerly a market town, in the first division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Tandridge, union of Godstone: 18 miles from London (coach road 21), 3 from Reigate.---Brighton Rail. to Bletchingly: from Derby, through London, &c., 150 miles.---Money orders issued at Reigate: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---The town is situated on a lofty ridge of the chalk range, which here intersects the county, and commands beautiful views of the South Downs and other parts of Sussex. Until the Reform Bill this borough had returned members to parliament, since the 23d of Edward I., the right of election being vested in the resident holders of burgess tenures, being about 130 in number; but all the property being vested in one individual, he alone returned the member, but, as the French say, all that is altered. This destroyed the imaginary value of the property, and in 1835 it was brought to the hammer, when about a hundred dwelling-houses, and some valuable land, were sold for about £11,000. John Perkins, Esq. of Pondhill, a large landed proprietor, bought the manor. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in agriculture. The church is an ancient structure in the early English style, and contains a striking monument to Sir Robert Clayton, who was Lord Mayor of London in 1680, and his lady. There is a school here, founded in the 8th year of Elizabeth by Mr. John Whatman, which is endowed with £23 per annum, having a house and garden for the master annexed. There are also almshouses for ten aged persons, founded in 1668. The other parochial charities produce about £28 a year. There was formerly a manor-house here, which was inhabited by Stafford Duke of Buckingham, who was beheaded by Henry VIII., at the instigation, it is believed, of Cardinal Wolsey, because his independent spirit refused to brook the proud churchman's arrogance. Here was also the residence of Earl Goodwin, who retreated to this place after his estates had been inundated by the sea, and the only remains of which are the noted Goodwin Sands. There was formerly a Roman road near the town, and several interesting remains have been found here.---The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Surrey, and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £19. 19s. 4½d.: pres. net income, £1,200: patron, H. Chawner, Esq.: pres. incumbent, C. F. Chawner, 1841: contains 5,250 acres: 201 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,546: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 4,077: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £6,770: poor rates in 1837, £711.---Fairs, May 19, and November 2, for horses, bullocks, and toys.---W., Gattton Park.

BLETCHINGTON (EAST), or BLATCHINGTON, SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Flexborough, rape of Pevensey, union of Newhaven: 62 miles from London (coach road 60), 2 from Seaford, 8 from Lewes.---Brighton Rail. through Lewes to Seaford, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 194 miles.---Money orders issued at Lewes: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---The living (St. Peter), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Lewes, diocese of Chichester, is valued at £14: pres. net income, £88: patron, Rev. N. R. Dennis: pres. incumbent, R. N. Dennis, 1844: contains 2,110 acres: 20 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 163: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £785: poor rates in 1837, £194.

BLETCHINGTON (WEST, or BLATCHINGTON), SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Whalesbone, rape of Lewes, union of Steyning: 52 miles from London, 2 from Brighton, 14 from Cuckfield.---Brighton Rail. to Brighton, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 184 miles.---Money orders issued at Brighton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---The living is a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Lewes, diocese of Chichester, subordinate to the vicarage of Brighton, and having jointly a pres. net income of £900: patron, Bishop of Chichester: pres. incumbent, H.

M. Wagner, 1824: contains 590 acres: 10 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 64.---Hangleton Place.

BLETCHLEY, Buckingham, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Newport, union of Newport-Pagnell: it comprises part of the chapelry of Penny-Stratford and the township of Water-Eaton: 46½ miles from London (coach road 45), 1 from Penny-Stratford, 8 from Woburn.---Nor. West. Rail. to station: from Derby to station, 85.---Money orders issued at Penny-Stratford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.---The church, which was repaired by the celebrated Dr. Browne Willis, is a handsome structure, and contains a very fine monument to the memory of the Earl of Wilton, as also a curious engraved brass to the memory of Dr. Sparks.---The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Buckingham, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £29. 13s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £456: patron, J. Fleming, Esq.: pres. incumbent, F. D. Broughton, 1832: contains 3,150 acres: 254 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,450: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,667: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £5,377: poor rates in 1837, £172. All the tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1810.---1 mile E., Water-Eaton Manor-House.

BLETHERSTON, Pembrokeshire, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Dungleddy, union of Narberth, South Wales: 265 miles from London (coach road 255), 5 from Narberth, 12 from Pembroke.---Gt. West. Rail. to Weston-super-Mare, across the Severn, by rail to Merthyr-Tydvil, thence 83 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Weston, &c., 267 miles.---Money orders issued at Narberth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ p.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---The living is a curacy, not in charge, attached to the vicarage of Llawhaden, diocese of St. David's, having jointly a pres. net income of £152: patron, Bishop of St. David's: pres. incumbent, Daniel Jones, 1836: contains 53 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 271: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £1,892: poor rates in 1837, £127.

BLETHVAUGH.---See BLEDD-FA.

BLETSOE, Bedford, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Willey, union of Bedford: 69 miles from London (coach road 56), 6 from Bedford, 7 from St. Neots.---Nor. West. Rail. to Bedford, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Northampton to Wellingborough, 82, then 9 miles.---Money orders issued at Bedford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---There are two Sunday schools here, supported by a bequest of £8 a year. The other parochial charities produce about £12. 10s. per annum. The petty sessions for the hundreds of Willey, Barford, and Stoddon, are sometimes held here.---The living, a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bedford, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £17: pres. net income, £316: patron, Lord St. John: pres. incumbent, J. T. Day, 1832: contains 2,220 acres: 63 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 420: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 483: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £2,611: poor rates in 1837, £217.

BLEWBERRY, Berks, a parish, partly in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Reading, and partly in that of Moreton, union of Wantage, containing the chapelry of Aston-Upthorpe and the liberty of Upton and Nottingham-fee: 54 miles from London (coach road 49), 3 from Wallingford, 4 from East-Isley.

---Gt. West. Rail. to Wallingford Road station, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Banbury, and Oxford, to Wallingford Road, &c., 117 miles.---Money orders issued at Wallingford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.---A Baptist congregation was formed here in 1835. There are three daily schools in the parish, which were endowed by the late Mr. Malthus with estates, which now produce about £600 a year. Thirty children of each sex are taught and clothed on this foundation. The boys are allowed 1s. 6d. a week each for the first two years, and 2s. a week each for the following two years, and are severally granted £20 to apprentices them. The girls have 1s. 6d. a week for three years, and £1. 15s. to fit them for service, and if they remain a year in one place, they receive a further sum of £2. 5s. There is an almshouse here, endowed in 1732 with £271. 13s. 4d. by Mr. Bacon. A battle was fought in the vicinity of the village between the Saxons and Danes, and some remains of intrenchments are still observable in the neighbouring hills. The British road Grimsditch, and the Roman road Iokleton, traverse the parish.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage with the curacies of Aston-Upthorpe and Upton, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Berks, diocese of Salisbury, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £16. 6s. 10½d.: pres. net income, £316: patron, Lord St. John: pres. incumbent, J. T. Day, 1832: contains 6,950 acres: 197 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,096: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,260: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £7,789: poor rates in 1837, £730.---Fair, Thursday after September 29.

BLICKLING, Norfolk, a parish and manor in the hund<sup>d</sup> of South Erpingham, union of Aylesham: 141 miles from London (coach road 226), 1 from Aylesham, 10 from Holt.---East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Norwich, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough to Norwich, &c., 183 miles.---Money orders issued at Aylesham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---Blickling Park: The manor of Blickling was owned by Harold, afterwards king of England, in the time of the Confessor; and when the Domesday Survey was made, one part of it belonged to Beausac, bishop of Thetford, and the other moiety was vested in the Crown. William endowed the see with the whole of it; and as it was entitled to the rights of the ancient demesne, it was exempt from the hundred, and had the lets with all the royalties. After the see was settled at Norwich, the bishops had a seat or country palace here, with a noble park; and it appears, from the institution books of the itinerant justices, the manor was allowed the view of frankpledge, assize of bread and ale, a gallows, tumbrel or cucking-stool, and free warren. The manor and living continued appendant to the see till 1535, when both were vested in the Crown; and Henry VIII. granted the advowson to Sir John Clere, who held it in capite of the Crown. The manor afterwards passed through the possession of Dagworth, Fastolf, Boleyn, and Hobart, and there are several monuments in the parish church to distinguished members of each of these families. The present noble mansion, which is a fine specimen of the period, was finished in 1628; and Blomfield, in his history, says of it, that it is a curious brick fabric, four square, with a turret at each corner; there are two courts; and with the fine library, elegant wilderness, good lake, gardens, and park, is a pleasant, beautiful seat, worthy of the observation of such as make the Norfolk tour. The house is placed in a beautiful situation, in a "hollow," as it is called in the neighbourhood, or low ground, with a running water passing through it, nearly surrounded by lofty forest-trees of ancient growth. Mr. Gilpin, in describing it, says—The moats, the bridges, the turrets, the battlements, are all impressed with the ideas of antiquity. A tale of woe also contributes to dignify this mansion. It was the birth-place of the unfortunate Anne Boleyn. Blickling is now very expensively fitted up, and contains many grand rooms, in which the chimneys, ceilings, wainscote, and other ornaments, are in general suitable to the antiquity of the whole. It was from this house that the gay, capricious, selfish, sensual despot, Henry VIII., married the beautiful, but apparently designing and really unfortunate Anne Boleyn. Charles II., with his queen, visited Blickling in 1671; and in reference to its historical incidents, Stephenson, in his poems, has this quaint and not unpleasing passage:—

"Paston and Hobart did bring up the meat,
Who the next day at their own houses treat.
Paston to Oxhead did his sovereign bring,
And like Aramiah offered as a king.
Blickling two monarchs and two queens has seen;
One king fetched thence, another brought a queen.
Great Townshend of the treats brought up the rear,
And doubly was my lord-lieutenant there."

The park comprises about a thousand acres, is finely timbered, and enlivened by one of the finest sheets of water in the east of England. About a mile from the house there is a mausoleum, which contains the remains of the Earl of Buckingham and his first countess. —The living (St. Andrew), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, united with that of Erpingham, is valued at £10. 13s. 4d., having jointly a pres. net income of £521: patron, Dowager Lady Suffield: pres. incumbent, J. Custance, 1889: contains 2,240 acres: 83 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 356: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 409: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,605: poor rates in 1837, £239.

BLIDESLOE.—See AURE.

BLIDWORTH, NOTTINGHAM, a parish in the liberty of Southwell and Scrooby, union of Mansfield: 144 miles from London (coach road 138), 6 from Mansfield, 10 from Southwell. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Nottingham to Kirkby Woodhouse, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, &c., 23 miles. —Money orders issued at Mansfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. —The church has been desecrated. There is a Wesleyan Methodist congregation here. There are day-and Sunday schools, to which a lending library is attached. —The living (the Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, a peculiar of Southwell College, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £4: patron, Prebendary of Southwell: pres. incumbent, C. F. Fenwick, 1824: contains 6,610 acres: 157 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,132: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,302: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,157: poor rates in 1837, £143. —The great and small tithes, the property of the prebends of Oxtun and the vicar, were commuted in 1805. Tithes of wool and lamb, the property of the lay impropiator and the vicar, were commuted in 1769. —2 m. W., Newstead Abbey, the seat of Colonel Wildman—(for which see ANNESLEY.)

VOL. I.

BLINDBOTHEL, CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Brigham, ward of Allerdale-above-Darwent—(which see for access, &c.): 306 miles from London, 2 from Cockermouth, 8 from Maryport. —Money orders issued at Cockermouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. —Contains 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 122: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £691: poor rates in 1837, £25.

BLINDCRAGE, CUMBERLAND, a joint township with Isall and Redmain, in the parish of Isall, ward of Allerdale-below-Darwent—(which see for access, &c.): 306 miles from London, 3 from Cockermouth, 5 from Maryport. —Money orders issued at Cockermouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. —Contains 58 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 371: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 426: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,631: poor rates in 1837, £85.

BLISLAND, CORNWALL, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Trigg, union of Bodmin: 270 miles from London (coach road 235), 4 from Bodmin, 10 from Newport. —Gt. West. Rail. to Laiva, thence 30 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Gloucester to Laiva, &c., 224½ miles. —Money orders issued at Bodmin: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes 9 p.m. —The living (St. Pratt, or St. Proto), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cornwall, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £13. 10s.: pres. net income, £571: patron, Rev. F. W. Pye: pres. incumbent, F. W. Pye, 1834: contains 6,800 acres: 120 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 688: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 791: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,643: poor rates in 1837, £199. —Fair, first Monday after September 22.

BLISWORTH, NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wymerley, union of Towcester: 60 miles from London, 4 from Towcester, 6 from Northampton. —Nor. West. Rail. to Blisworth, 63 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Blisworth, 69 miles. —Money orders issued at Towcester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. —The Grand Junction Canal passes through a tunnel near to the village; and the London and Birmingham Railway passes through a remarkable deep cutting here, which, though not the largest on the line, was, on account of the difficulty of the material, the most arduous and extensive work of that kind of the whole undertaking. The Tring cutting contains a greater number of cubic feet of contents, but being an excavation entirely out of chalk, there were not the same difficulties to overcome, as was experienced in executing the work at Blisworth, where the substance to be excavated consisted of hard blue limestone, belonging to the oolitic series, and which, in consequence of the fissures of the rock, and the numerous land-springs, continually yielded, throughout the whole execution of the work, large quantities of water, which had of course to be drawn off before the men could proceed. The work was rendered the more difficult, by the limestone being everywhere interstratified by cross layers of blue shale, which, being impervious to water, rendered every means of drawing off, except that of pumping, of no service. The cutting at Blisworth required the removal of 1,200,000 cubic yards of earth, the cutting being two miles in length, and fifty feet deep. About 400,000 of them were carried to each end of the cutting, to form an embankment of about forty-five feet in height. The remaining 800,000 were raised up the steep side of the excavation, and deposited on the adjoining lands, to form what are termed spit banks. The work is believed to be the largest of the kind ever executed, and the cost in the whole was about £200,000. — The living (St. John the Baptist), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £20. 3s. 9d.: pres. net income, £531: patron, Rev. William Barry: pres. incumbent, William Barry, 1839: contains 1,980 acres: 145 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 882: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £2,725: poor rates in 1837, £248. Tithes commuted in 1808.

2 s

BLITHFIELD WITH NEWTON, STAFFORD, a parish in the southern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Pirehill: 130 miles from London (coach road 126), 8 from Bugeley, 8 from Stafford. — Nor. West. Rail. through Tamworth and Rugeley to Colwich, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth and Rugeley to Colwich, &c., 44 miles. — Money orders issued at Rugeley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — There are two schools here, endowed respectively by Elizabeth Bagot and Jane Jones in 1729, to which Lord Bagot has further contributed a lending library. The other parochial charities produce about £23 per annum. — The living (St. Leonard), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stafford, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £10. 19s. 2d.: pres. net income, £388: patron, Lord Bagot: contains 4,180 acres: 80 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 390: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 448: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £4,009: poor rates in 1837, £189. — Blithfield House is the principal seat of Lord Bagot, whose other residence is Pool Park in Denbighshire. The mansion is an ancient building in the form of a court. It contains many noble apartments, and is principally celebrated for a splendid collection of paintings, by some of the first masters, the chief of which are portraits. Besides those of distinguished members of his lordship's family, there are others of the greatest men of their respective periods; and among them, particularly worthy of notice, are those of Lord Burleigh, prime minister of Elizabeth; Henry, Earl of Huntingdon, celebrated for the gay licentiousness of his life, who died in 1588; Sir Walter Aston of Tixal, who was the chief agent for bringing about the Spanish marriage in the time of James I., and who was, it is said, exceedingly anxious to further the designs of the young prince, afterwards Charles I., and his favourite, the Duke of Buckingham, and whom Charles raised to the peerage, soon after his accession, by the title of Lord Forfar. The likeness of Walter, Earl of Essex, the father of the generous and impetuous, but unfortunate, favourite of Elizabeth, is also interesting from the story of his life. He was a man of singular sagacity and courage, and distinguished himself greatly during his government of Ireland. The ministry, however, neglected to support him, and he returned to England to report his grievances to the queen. He was very graciously received, and soon afterwards sent back with promises of better usage. These promises seemed so little likely of fulfilment, that feeling himself in a difficult and intricate situation, he fell into a state of melancholy, and death soon put a period to his existence, not without strong suspicion that he had been poisoned at the instigation of Robert Dudley, Earl of Leicester, who was enamoured of his wife—a suspicion which was very likely ungrounded, but which was certainly in appearance justified by the hasty and indecent marriage of that nobleman with the countess very shortly after her husband's death. The park of Blithfield lies at some distance from the house; it displays some beautiful scenery, and is particularly distinguished for the number of fine oaks which stand within its precincts. The ancestors of his lordship's family are recorded in Domesday-book as being holders of Bagot's Bromley in Staffordshire, under Robert de Stafford, who was founder of the old feudal house of Stafford, which terminated some time in the reign of Richard I., in an heir female, Millicent de Stafford, by whom the feudal barony was conveyed to her husband, Hervey de Bagot, a member of a younger branch of the family. Their son Hervey assumed the name of Stafford, and became the progenitor of the succeeding barons and earls of Stafford, and dukes of Buckingham. The pedigree in the family, and other monuments in their possession, satisfactorily deduce their descent from Hervey de Bagot of Bromley, and give the lineal succession from him to Sir Ralph de Bagot, who, in the time of Edward III., married Elizabeth, daughter and heiress of Richard de Blithfield, a very ancient family, seated on the manor of that name. With this heiress Sir Ralph became possessed of the property at Blithfield and Littleby, in Colton, which had been in the possession of his wife's ancestors from the time of the Conquest. After his marriage he removed to Blithfield, where his descendants have ever since continued to be settled. From him the property descended to Hervey Bagot, Esq., who was created a baronet in 1627, having served the office of high sheriff during the previous year. Sir William, the sixth baronet, was the representative for Staffordshire from 1754 to 1780, and was in that year elevated to the peerage by the title of Baron Bagot of Bagot's Bromley, in Staffordshire. His present lordship, who is LL.D., F.S.A., and F.L.S., succeeded to the title and estates in 1798, on the death of his father.—E. Newton Warren House.

BLOCKLEY, WORCESTER, a parish surrounded by Gloucestershire, but belonging to the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Oswaldslow, union of Shipston-on-Stour: it comprises the hamlets of Aston Magna, Blockley, Ditchford, Dorne, Draycot, Northwich, and Paxford: 91 miles from London (coach road 86), 8 from Moreton-in-the-Marsh, 9 from Evesham. — Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Moreton-in-the-Marsh, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Worcester to Moreton, &c., 104 miles. — Money orders issued at Moreton-in-the-Marsh: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — There are several silk mills in this parish, beside some corn mills on a branch of the river Stour, and several stone quarries in the vicinity. The Baptists have a place of worship here, the church of which was formed in 1820. There are two daily schools, endowed with £12. 14s. per annum, arising from the interest of money bequeathed for their support. There was anciently a monastery here, and previous to the Reformation there was a bishop's palace, but its foundations even have altogether disappeared. Vestiges of the Roman fosse-way are still visible within the parish, and many coins and other relics of the people by whom it was made have been discovered in the neighbourhood. The living (St. Peter and St. Paul), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £54: pres. net income, £762: patron, Bishop of Worcester: pres. incumbent, Miles Coyle, 1831: contains 7,660 acres: 431 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,136: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,456: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £11,722: poor rates in 1837, £752. The inappropriate and vicarial tithes of the township of Blockley, and the hamlets of Draycot and Paxford, were commuted in 1772. Fairs: Tuesday after Easter week, for cattle, and October 10. N. is Norwich Park.

BLOFIELD, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Blofield: 133 miles from London (coach road 121), 3 from Norwich, 12 from Yarmouth. East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Norwich and Brundell, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Peterborough to Norwich, &c., 111 miles. Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. There is a daily school, endowed with land lying in the parish of Halvergate, left by the Rev. Charles Reeve for charitable purposes. The other parochial charities produce about £84 a year. Petty sessions for the hundred of Blofield and Walsham are held here. A workhouse has been erected here for the union of Blofield, at an expense of £5,810, which is capable of accommodating 250 persons. The union comprises 32 parishes, spread over 73 square miles, having a population of about 10,000 persons. A paid constabulary has of late been successfully introduced in the parish. The living (St. Andrew), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £23. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £296: patron, Caius College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, T. S. Turnbull, 1847: contains 1,990 acres: 215 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,112: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,279: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,168: poor rates in 1837, £636.

BLOOMFIELD, WORCESTER, a village in the parish of Tipton. The Wesleyan Methodists have a chapel here, the congregation of which was formed in 1823.

BLOORE-IN-TYRLEY, STAFFORD, a township in the parish of Drayton-in-Hales, northern division of Pirhill hun<sup>d</sup>—(which see for access, &c.): 153 miles from London, 8 from Eccleshall, 13 from Newport. Money orders issued at Eccleshall: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. Contains 72 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 456: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 524.

BLORE, STAFFORD, a parish and township in the northern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Totmanslow, on the western bank of the river Dove: it comprises the chapelry of Blore with Swainscoe, and part of the chapelry of Calton: 168 miles from London (coach road 139), 5 from Ashbourne, 12 from Uttox-ter. Nor. West. Rail. through Leicester and Uttoxeter, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Burton, Uttoxeter, &c., 36 miles. Money orders issued at Ashbourne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. The church contains some curious monuments of the Basset family. Bloreheath was the scene of a sanguinary conflict during the wars of the Roses. The living (St. Bartholomew), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stafford, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £8. 8s.: pres. net income, £130: patron, O. Shore, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Hugh Wood, 1836: contains 3,730 acres: 71 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 333: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 383: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £623: poor rates in 1837, £125.

BLO-NORTON (or NORTON-BELLEAU), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and Union of Guiltcross, on the northern bank of the river Waveney: 109 miles from London (coach road 89), 5 from East Harling, 10 from Thetford. Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Harling Road station, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, and Wymondham, to East Harling, 122 miles. There is an endowed school here, at which about sixty scholars are taught. The living (St. Andrew), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £5. 6s. 3d.: pres. net income, £336: patron, Rev. C. H. Browne: pres. incumbent, C. H. Browne, 1834: contains 1,400 acres: 57 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 435: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 500: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,665: poor rates in 1837, £337.

BLOXHAM, OXFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bloxham, union of Banbury: 89 miles from London (coach road 69), 4 from Banbury, 12 from Chipping-Norton. Gt. West. Rail. to Banbury, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Banbury, &c., 77 miles. Money orders issued at Banbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. The Presbyterians and Baptists have chapels here: the congregation of the latter was formed in 1814. There is a free school here, endowed, under the will of Mr. Job Faulkner of Bloxham, with the interest of £666. 13s. 4d. in the three per cent. consols. From the feoffee's estate of this parish, a clear income of £213. 13s. is derived, which is divided into three parts, one of which is carried to an account called the poor's book, the second to the town's book, and the third is devoted to the repairs of the church and the bridges. The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, united with the curacy of Milcombe, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £17. 9s. 4d.: pres. net income, £262: patron, Eton College: pres. incumbent, George Bell, 1789: contains 4,240 acres: 350 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,543: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,774: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,879: poor rates in 1837, £781. The great and small tithes of the parish were commuted in 1799 and 1800.

BLOXHOLME, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Flaxwell, parts of Kesteven: 175½ miles from London (coach road 136), 5 from Sleaford, 14 from Lincoln. East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Lincoln to Saxelby, thence 2 miles. Money orders issued at Sleaford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. The living (St. Mary), a rectory with the vicarage of Digby, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £9. 9s. 4½d.: pres. net income, £245: patron, R. A. Christopher, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. Mackinnon, 1825: contains 1,100 acres: 15 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 67: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,355: poor rates in 1837, £46.

BLOXWICH, STAFFORD, a chapelry in the parish of Walsall, southern division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Offlow—(which see for access, &c.): 121 miles from London, 3 from Walsall, 6 from Wolverhampton. Money orders issued at Walsall: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.—The parish is intersected by the Essington and Wyrley Canal. The Roman Catholics have a chapel here, licensed under the marriage act. The hamlet is celebrated for the production of good saddlery.—The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stafford, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £7: pres. net income, £150: patron, Vicar of Walsall: pres. incumbent, John Baylie, 1826.

BLOXWORTH, DORSET, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Coomditch, Blandford division of the county: 132 miles from London (coach road 113), 6 from Wareham, 7 from Bland.—Sou. West. Rail. to Wareham, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, and as above, 264 miles.—Money orders issued at Wareham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.—There are vestiges of a Danish fort in the neighbourhood. The church is a small, ancient, and curious structure; it contains several memorials of the Trenchard and Pickard families. Edward Pickard, Esq., is lord of the manor, and chief owner of the soil. The manor-house, a good substantial building, is occupied by George Morant, Esq.—The living (St. Andrew), a rectory, a peculiar of the dean of Salisbury, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Dorset, diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Sarum, is valued at £15. 7s. 1d.: pres. net income, £230: patron, E. Pickard, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Carrington Lee, 1841: contains 3,420 acres: 34 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 306: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 352: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,115: poor rates in 1837, £116.—N. 1 m. Bloxmouth House; S. 1 m. Morden Park.

BLUBBERHOUSES, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Fewston, lower division of the wapentake of Claro—(which see for access, &c.): 215 miles from London, 12 from Knaresborough, 11 from Skipton.—Money orders issued at Knaresborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes 1 p.m.—There is an Independent chapel here.—Contains 3,600 acres: 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 136: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £303: poor rates in 1837, £14.

BLUNDESTON, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Mutford and Lothingland, in the vicinity of the Norwich and Lowestoft navigation: 150 miles from London (coach road 113), 4 from Lowestoft, 7 from Yarmouth.—East. Co<sup>n</sup> Rail. to Lowestoft, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough to Lowestoft, &c., 213 miles.—Money orders issued at Lowestoft: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.—There is a small school here, endowed with a cottage and half an acre of land, which produce about £11 a year. The Baptists have a chapel here.—The living (Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, with Flixton, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £13. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £617: patron, S. M. Peto, Esq.: pres. incumbent, E. M.

Love: contains 1,500 acres: 106 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 592: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 681: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,397: poor rates in 1837, £207.

BLUNHAM, BEDFORD, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Wixamtree, including the hamlet of Moggerhanger, on the western bank of the river Ivel: 70 miles from London (coach road 51), 6 from Biggleswade, 7 from Bedford.—Nor. West. Rail. to Bedford, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Bedford, &c., 133½ miles.—Money orders issued at Biggleswade: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.—The church is an ancient Norman structure, in excellent repair, many enlargements and excellent improvements having been recently made. The tower is lofty, and of noble appearance.—The living (St. Edmund), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bedford, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £46. 2s. 11d.: pres. net income, £731: patron, Earl de Grey: pres. incumbent, J. H. Mountain, 1831: contains 3,300 acres: 187 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,050: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,207: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,807: poor rates in 1837, £222.—Moggerhanger House, the residence of Stephen Thornton, Esq.—The Orchard is the residence of Joseph Usher, Esq.—Blunham House is the residence of Sir Charles Gillins Payne, Bart. Sir Charles traces his descent from Stephen Payne, Esq. of St. Christopher's, member of an ancient family in Devonshire, whose son, Abraham Payne, was a member of the council of that island, and although brought up a churchman, took up arms in behalf of Charles I. He was present at the battle of Worcester, and afterwards escaping from England, settled in St. Christopher's. He had three sons, the eldest of whom, Abraham, was ancestor of Sir Ralph Payne, who was elevated to the peerage in 1795, by the title of Lord Lavington, but died without issue in 1807, when the title dropped. Abraham Payne was also the ancestor of General Sir William Payne, who was created a baronet in 1812, and assumed the name of Galway, and of Admiral John Willet Payne. The second son, Charles Payne, was knighted and made Major-General of the Leeward Islands, and created a baronet in 1737. The present, the fourth baronet, succeeded to the title and estates in 1843, on the death of his father.

BLUNSDON (ST. ANDREW), WILTS, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Highworth, Crickdale, and Staple: 83½ miles from London (coach road 81), 4 from Highworth, 5 from Swindon.—Gt. West. Rail. to Preston, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Stonehouse, Preston, &c., 128½ miles.—Money orders issued at Highworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.—The living, a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wilts, diocese of Salisbury, now in the diocese of Gloucester, is valued at £8. 19s. 2d.: pres. net income, £305: patron, J. J. Calley, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. T. Wyld, 1834: contains 1,420 acres: 12 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 79: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,968: poor rates in 1837, £47.

BLUNSDON (BROAD), WILTS, a chapelry in the parish of Highworth, hund<sup>d</sup> of Highworth, Crickdale, and Staple: 80 miles from London.—(For access and postal arrangements, see 'above.')—The living, a chapelry in the diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, and having jointly a pres. net income of £555: patron, Prebendary of Sarum: pres. incumbent, E. Rowden, 1804: contains 2,260 acres: 154 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 848: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 975.—(Other returns with the parish.)

BLUNTISHAM AND EARITH, HUNTINGDON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Huntingstone, on the western bank of the river Ouse: 76 miles from London (coach road 63), 4 from St. Ives, 11 from Huntingdon.——Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Cambridge to St. Ives, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, and March, to St. Ives, &c., 116 miles.——Money orders issued at Truro: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 6½ p.m.: post closes 9 p.m.——The church is a light, handsome Gothic structure. The Independents and Baptists both have chapels here. There is a school here, endowed with land yielding £100 a year. The other parochial charities produce about £108 per annum. In 1741, a most destructive hurricane occurred here.——The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Huntingdon, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £32. 16s. 4d.: pres. net income, £1,010: patron, Bishop of Ely: pres. incumbent, E. Baines, 1841: contains 2,410 acres: 137 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,457: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,675: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,618: poor rates in 1837, £706.

BLURTON AND LIGHTWOOD FOREST, STAFFORD, a chapelry in the parish of Trentham, northern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Firehill—(which see for access, &c.): 140 miles from London, 5 from Newcastle, 5 from Stone.——Money orders issued at Newcastle-under-Lyne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.——The Grand Trunk Canal runs close by the village.——The living, a curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stafford, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, not in charge: pres. net income, £189: patron, Duke of Sutherland: pres. incumbent, J. Hutchinson, 1843: contains 2,210 acres: 149 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 876: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,007.—(Other returns with the parish.)

BLYBOROUGH, LINCOLN, a parish in the western division of the wapentake of Aslaoce, parts of Lindsey: 190 miles from London (coach road 148), 9 from Gainsborough, 15 from Lincoln.——East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Boston and Gainsborough to Bylton, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Lincoln to Gainsborough, &c., 74½ miles.——Money orders issued at Gainsborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 12½ p.m.: post closes 1 p.m.——The living (St. Alkmund), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stow, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £19: pres. net income, £519: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, W. P. Graham, 1847: contains 3,080 acres: 30 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 197: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,935: poor rates in 1837, £152.

BLYMILL WITH BRINGTON, STAFFORD, a parish in the western division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Cuttlestone: 144 miles from London (coach road 135), 6 from Brewood, 12 from Wolverhampton.——Nor. West. Rail. through Birmingham to Penkridge, thence 7½ miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Penkridge, &c., 66 miles.——There is a day and Sunday school here, where about sixty scholars are taught, which has a small endowment.——The living (St. Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stafford, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £13. 10s. 7d.: pres. net income, £560: patron, Earl of Bradford: pres. incumbent, J. H. Dickenson, 1840: contains 2,190 acres: 122 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 633: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 728: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,490: poor rates in 1837, £321.

BLYTH, NORTH, AND WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish comprising the chapelries of Austerfield and Bawtry, in the wapentake of Strafforth and Tickhill, union of Doncaster,—the township of Ranskill, in the liberty of Southwell and Scrooby,—the market town of Blyth,—the lordship of Hodsock, and the townships of Barnby-moor with Bilby, Styrrup, and Torworth, in the Hatfield division of the wapentake of Bassettlaw, union of Worksop: 168 miles from London (coach road 152), 4 from Bawtry, 6 from East Retford.——Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Nottingham, and Newark, to Torworth, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield and Retford to Torworth, &c., 76 miles.——Money orders issued at Bawtry: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.——The town of Blyth is a pleasing village occupying a gentle ascent, and had formerly a market on Wednesday, but that has fallen into disuse; however, the fairs are still well attended. The church is a spacious and noble Gothic structure, with an ancient tower. The interior is remarkably striking, and much increased in interest by its lofty pillars being intersected by some beautiful monuments of the Mellish family. The Society of Friends have a place of worship here; and there are several endowed almshouses. The other parochial charities produce about £28 a year. Tanner, in speaking of this place, says—Here was a priory of Benedictine monks, built by Roger de Bully and Muriel his wife, about A. D. 1088, to the honour of the blessed Virgin. It was in some respects subordinate to the abbey of the Holy Trinity, on the mount of St. Catherine, near Rox, in Normandy; however, it was not seized with the alien priories, but continued till the general dissolution, when the revenues were equal to £126. 8s. 2d. The site was granted, in the 35th year of Henry VIII., to Richard Andrews and William Ramsden. An hospital for a warden, three chaplains, and several leprous people, was founded here by William de Cressy, lord of Holdesac, and dedicated to St. John the Evangelist. It was valued, in the 26th year of Henry VIII., at £8. 14s. The country all around is singularly rich in its aspect of rural beauty, abounding in all the varieties and gentle features of English scenery, affluent in its cultivation, and wears more the appearance of embellished park-ground than of land under only ordinary rustic cultivation. Even the highway itself, which runs for a mile or two by the village, looks more like the ornamented walk of a nobleman's domain, than the common road for every farming operation. It leads over the noble bridge, built of Rock-Abby stone, which spans the fine piece of water formed by damming up the river Idle and the brook of Rytton, which here intersects the country.——The living (St. Martin), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Nottingham, diocese of York, is valued at £14. 9s. 4d.: pres. net income, £751: patron, Trinity College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, John Raine, 1834: contains 17,070 acres: 502 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,488: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £24,255: poor rates in 1837, £1,761.——Market day, Wednesday.

Fairs, Holy Thursday, and October 20, for cattle, horses, and swine.---N., Serleby House.

BLVTH, a township in the above parish.---(For access and postal arrangements, see above.)

---Contains 166 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 933: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,073: poor rates in 1837, £368.

BLVTH (NORTH). See BEDLINGTON.

BLVTH (SOUTH) and NEWSHAM, NORTHUMBRELAND, a seaport town and chapelry in the parish of Earsdon, eastern division of Castle ward: 318 miles from London (coach road 287), 9 from Morpeth, 13 from Newcastle.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, York, and Newcastle, to Crumlington, thence to Blyth: from Derby, through York, &c., 186 miles.---Money orders issued at Morpeth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1½ p.m.: post closes 12 noon.---There is a chapel of ease here, erected in 1751 by Sir M. W. Ridley, in whose family the patronage of it still remains. The Church of Scotland, the Wesleyan Methodists, and the seceders from that body called the New Connexion, and the United Seceders, have all places of worship here. The township has abundance of educational institutions. The trade of the port is active, there being as many as a hundred vessels belonging to it; but though the harbour is secure, it is accessible unfortunately to vessels of only small burthens; the principal exports are coal and salt. There is, however, as much as sixteen feet of water on the bar in high tides; and there is a lighthouse, showing a fixed light, which is visible in clear weather as far as ten miles out at sea.---The living is a donative curacy in the diocese of Durham: pres. net income, £93: patron, Sir M. W. Ridley: pres. incumbent, R. Greenwood: contains 246 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,921: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, £2,209: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,909: poor rates in 1837, £791.

BLVTHBURGH, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> and union of Blything: 99 miles from London, 4 from Southwold, 5 from Halesworth.---East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Lowestoft, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough to Lowestoft, &c., 222 miles.---Money orders issued at Wangford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---The church is an ancient structure, but has now become very much dilapidated, a severe thunder-storm having occurred on Sunday, the 4th August, in 1577, during divine service, when the edifice was struck by lightning, and sustained very material damage; twenty of the congregation were struck down by the electric fluid, most of whom were severely scorched, and two of them were killed. There are two daily schools here, in which together upwards of 150 children are taught; they are supported out of the poor-rate paid by the incorporated hundred of Blything. A Sunday school also here has an endowment of £3 per annum. There was formerly a weekly market here, and three annual fairs, but the town has declined from its ancient importance; the market has long since ceased, and only one of the fairs has been kept up. This adversity was chiefly owing to a disastrous fire which occurred here in 1679, when property to the amount of nearly £2,000 was destroyed. Many of the inhabitants, from inability to rebuild their houses, and others from the failure of trade, removed elsewhere, so that the place was reduced to comparative poverty. Tanner, in his Notitia Monastica, says---Here was a priory of black canons, cell to the abbey of St. Outh in Essex, to which house the church here was given by Henry I. It was dedicated to the blessed Virgin, and valued in the 26th year of Henry VIII., about which time there were five religious here, at £48. 8s. 10d. per annum. It was granted, in the 36th year of Henry VIII., to Sir Arthur Hopeton.---The living (Holy Trinity), is a perpetual curacy, not in charge, in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich: pres. net income, £45; patron, Sir C. Blois, Bart.: pres. incumbent, Thomas Harrison: contains 3,590 acres: 113 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 837; probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 962: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,818: poor rates in 1837, £583.---Fair, April 5, for toys.

BLVTHFORD, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> and union of Blything, on the northern bank of the river Blythe: 158 miles from London (coach road 100), 3 from Halesworth, 7 from Southwold.---East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Lowestoft, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough to Lowestoft, &c., 222 miles.---Money orders issued at Halesworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---The living (All Saints), a donative in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Suffolk, and diocese of Norwich, not in charge, is valued at £16; patron, Rev. Jeremy Day: pres. incumbent, Jeremy Day: contains 1,240 acres: 23 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 223: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 256: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £709: poor rates in 1837, £182.

BLVTON WITH WHARTON, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Corringham, parts of Lindsey: 185 miles from London (coach road 153), 5 from Gainsborough, 20 from Lincoln.---East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Boston and Gainsborough to station: from Derby, through Lincoln to Gainsborough, &c., 70½ miles.---Money orders issued at Gainsborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.---There is a school here, endowed with £20 a year.---The living (St. Martin), a vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Stow, and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £12: pres. net income, £399; patron, Earl of Scarborough: pres. incumbent, R. Roberts, 1824: contains 2,830 acres: 117 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 647: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, £744; ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,946: poor rates in 1837, £190.---N. 1½ m. Bloughton Hall.

BOARHUNT, HANTS, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> and division of Portadown, union of Fareham: 86 miles from London (coach road 75), 2 from Fareham, 10 from Portsmouth.---Sou. West. Rail. to Fareham, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London and as above, 218 miles.---Money orders issued at Fareham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---The living, a donative in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Winchester: pres. net income, £154: patron, T. Thystlethwaite: pres. incumbent, H. B. Williams, 1847: contains 1,850 acres: 25 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 232: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,744: poor rates in 1837, £118.---W. 1 m. Upland House, and Roche Court.

BOARHURST. See SADDLEWORTH WITH QUICK.

BOARSTALL. See BORSTALL.

BOBBING, KENT, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> and union of Milton, lathe of Scray: 39 miles from London, 1 from Milton, 9 from Chatham.---Sou.

East. Rail. to Chatham, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through London and as above, 199 miles. ---Money orders issued at Sittingbourne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. ---Bobbing Court, which is now in ruins, was the ancient residence of the Savages, and in the principal chancel of the village church there are some curious memorials of several members of that family. Titus Oates, the pretended discoverer of the popish plot in the time of Charles II., was vicar of this parish. ---The living (St. Bartholomew), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £30. 16s.: pres. net income, £96: patron, Rev. G. Simpson: pres. incumbent, G. Simpson, 1818: contains 1,040 acres: 60 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 404: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 465: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,549: poor rates in 1837, £153. ---S. 1 m. Grove Court, the residence of F. A. Bradley, Esq.

BOBBINGTON, STAFFORD, a parish in the union of Seisdon, partly in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Brimstrey, county of Salop, and partly in the southern division of the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Seisdon: 162 miles from London (coach road 130), 9 from Wolverhampton, 18 from Birmingham. ---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford and Worcester to Dudley, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Kidderminster to Dudley, &c., 92 miles. ---Money orders issued at Wolverhampton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. ---There is a school here for twenty boys and twelve girls, founded in 1792 by Mrs. Hannah Corbet, and endowed with £1,400. ---The living (St. Mary or Holy Cross), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Salop, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry: pres. net income, £97: patron, T. Whitmore, Esq.: pres. incumbent, G. H. B. Gabert, 1831: contains 2,320 acres: 82 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 418: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 491: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £4,025: poor rates in 1837, £187.

BOBBINGWORTH, ESSEX, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. and union of Ongar: 32 miles from London (coach road 23), 2 from Chipping-Ongar, 7 from Epping: ---East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Roydon, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 164 miles. ---Money orders issued at Ongar: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. ---The living (St. German), a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Essex, diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £18. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £398: patrons, J. A. Honblon and C. Cure, Esqrs.: pres. incumbent, W. M. Oliver, 1838: contains 1,480 acres: 48 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 357: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 410: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,458: poor rates in 1837, £190. ---S. 1 m. Blake Hall, the seat of Capel Cure, Esq., who was high sheriff in 1830, and is a deputy-lieutenant of the county.

BOCKENFIELD, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Felton, eastern division of Morpeth ward---(which see for access, &c.): 297 miles from London, 8 from Morpeth, 11 from Alnwick. ---Money orders issued at Morpeth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 1 p.m.: post closes 12½ p.m. ---Contains 26 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 128: poor rates in 1837, £51.

BOCKHAMPTON. See STRINGSFORD.

BOCKING, ESSEX, a parish and village in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Hinckford, union of Braintree, on the northern bank of the river Pant: 46½ miles from London (coach road 42), 2 from Braintree, 5 from Halstead. ---East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Braintree, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London and as above, 178½ miles. ---Money orders issued at Braintree: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. ---It is the northern suburb of Braintree, and derived much of its importance, until lately, from being on the main road of access to the eastern counties. The manor was given to the see of Canterbury by Ethelred, and remained attached to it until the general alteration of the ecclesiastical system of the country at the dissolution of the monasteries by Henry VIII., but it is still the seat of a deanery. The church is a spacious and striking structure, and contained, until the Reformation, three altars and five chantries. An Independent church was formed here in 1710, and still continues to flourish. There is a school here endowed by Gauden, bishop of Worcester, and besides it there is an abundance of educational institutions, to several of which there are lending libraries attached. The manufacture of silk and crape has given considerable importance to the place, and causes employment for several hundreds of hands in the town and neighbourhood. There are also some corn and fulling mills here, which are worked by power derived from the river Pant. There are almshouses here endowed with £80 a year, and an hospital founded by John Doreward Esq. in the time of Henry VI. for a provost or master, and six poor persons. There are petty sessions held here and at Halstead for the division of Hinckford. ---The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Rochester, is valued at £35. 10s. 8d.: pres. net income, £923: patron, Archbishop of Canterbury: pres. incumbent, H. Carrington, 1845: contains 3,800 acres: 647 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,437: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,952: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £6,957: poor rates in 1837, £2,015.

BOCKLETON, WORCESTER, a parish in the union of Tenbury, partly in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Broxash, county of Hereford, and partly in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Doddingtree, in the above county: it includes the hamlet of Hampton-Charles: 133 miles from London (coach road 132), 6 from Tenbury, 6 from Leominster. ---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Kidderminster, 66, thence 22 miles. ---Money orders issued at Tenbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m. ---About 100 acres in this parish are under hop cultivation. ---The living (St. Michael), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Salop, and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £13. 4s.: pres. net income, £127: patron, Rev. T. E. Miller: pres. incumbent, J. K. Miller, 1830: contains 3,300 acres: 71 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 358: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 411: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,864: poor rates in 1837, £239.

BOCONNOC, CORNWALL, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of West, union of Liskeard: 269 miles from London (coach road 231), 4 from Lostwithiel, 6 from Bodmin. ---Gt. West. Rail. to Laira, thence 25 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, Laira, &c., 219½ miles. ---Money orders issued at Lostwithiel: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 2 p.m.:

post closes 9 p.m.---In Boconnoc House, which was once the property of Lord Camelford, Charles I. resided for some time during the year 1644, and was shot at whilst walking in the grounds. The ball missed the king, but killed a fisherman who was gazing at him. Some lead mines were formerly worked here, but they were not productive. The great statesman William Pitt was born here, but a memoir of him will be more appropriately given with an account of Hayes, which was his seat during the plenitude of his power.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory with that of Broad Oak, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cornwall, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £9. 17s. 8d.: pres. net income, £378: patron, Lady Grenville: pres. incumbent, A. Tatham, 1832: contains 2,230 acres: 49 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 312: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 359: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,254: poor rates in 1837, £116.

BODALIOCH.---See TREP-EGWYS.

BODDINGTON, GLOUCESTER, a parish in the union of Tewkesbury, partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Tewkesbury, and partly in that of Westminster, lower divisions: 124 miles from London (coach road 100), 4 from Cheltenham, 7 from Gloucester.---Gt. West. Rail. through Stonehouse to Cheltenham, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Cheltenham, &c., 91 miles.---Money orders issued at Cheltenham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---The living, a curacy subordinate to the vicarage of Staverton, in the diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, and having jointly a pres. net income of £486: patron, R. Purnell, Esq.; pres. incumbent, T. Purnell, 1841: contains 1,550 acres: 62 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 414: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 476: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,243: poor rates in 1837, £229.

BODDINGTON (LOWER and UPPER), NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Chipping-Warden: it includes the hamlet of Barrow: 80½ miles from London (coach road 65), 10 from Daventry, 9 from Banbury.---Nor. West. Rail. to Weedon, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Weedon, &c., 79½ miles.---Money orders issued at Daventry: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---There is a small endowed school here.---The living (St. John the Baptist), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £20: pres. net income, £757: patron, Emanuel College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, T. Golightly, 1807: contains 3,770 acres: 122 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 675: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 776: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,117. All the tithes of Upper Boddington, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1758.

BODEDERN, ANGLESEY, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Llyffon, union of Anglesey, North Wales: 262 miles from London (coach road 253), 7 from Holyhead, 10 from Aberffraw.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Chester to Tycroes, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Chester, &c., 153 miles.---Money orders issued at Holyhead: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3¼ p.m.---There is a Calvinistic Methodist chapel here, the congregation of which was formed in 1784. A school here, where about eighty scholars are taught, is supported by an endowment. There are two druidical cromlechs in the neighbourhood.---The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Anglesey, diocese of St. Asaph and Bangor, is valued at £12. 15s.: pres. net income, £104: patron, Jesus College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, J. B. G. Jones, 1844: contains 228 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,085: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,248: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,038: poor rates in 1837, £436.---Fairs: Mar. 13, April 16, May 5, June 9, Whit-Tuesday, Aug. 16, Sept. 14, Oct. 21.

BODENHAM, HEREFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Broxash, union of Leominster: 138 miles from London (coach road 135), 8 from Hereford, 7 from Leominster.---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 25 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Kidderminster to Worcester, &c., 109 miles.---Money orders issued at Hereford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---There are two daily schools and a National school here, supported by an endowment of £30 a year. There is also an endowment for poor housekeepers who do not receive parochial aid.---The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £12. 1s. 5½d.: pres. net income, £686: patron, R. Arkwright, Esq.: pres. incumbent, H. Arkwright, 1843: contains 5,550 acres: 199 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,017: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,169: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,661: poor rates in 1837, £400. The great and small tithes, the property of the Bishop of Hereford, the clerical rector, and the vicar, were commuted in 1802.

BODEWRYD, ANGLESEY, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Twr-Celyn, North Wales: 280 miles from London (coach road 273), 4 from Amlwch, 17 from Holyhead.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Chester to Holyhead, thence 17 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Chester, &c., 183 miles.---Money orders issued at Bangor: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m.---The living is a perpetual curacy, not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Anglesey, diocese of St. Asaph and Bangor: pres. net income, £70: patron, Lord Stanley of Alderley: pres. incumbent, S. R. Hughes, 1838: contains 6 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 32.

BODFARY (or BODVARI), FLINT, a parish in the union of St. Asaph, partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Ruthin, county of Denbigh, and partly in that of Rhudalan, in the above county: it contains the township of Aberwheeler: 201 miles from London (coach road 316), 5 from Denbigh, 4 from St. Asaph.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Chester to Flint, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Chester to Flint, &c., 102 miles.---Money orders issued at Denbigh: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3¼ p.m.---There is a school here, partly supported by the interest of £100, bequeathed by the late Sir R. Cotton, Bart., which is paid by Lord Combermere.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of St. Asaph and Bangor, is valued at £9. 5s. 2½d.: pres. net income, £296: patron, Bishop of St. Asaph: pres. incumbent, Edward Hughes, 1818: contains 170 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 945: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,086: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,870: poor rates in 1837, £131.

BODFERIN (or BODVERN), CARNARVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Commitmaen, union of Pwllheli, North Wales: 282 miles from London (coach road 236), 11 from Nevin, 14 from Pwllheli.---Nor.

West. Rail. through Crewe and Chester to Bangor, thence 44 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Chester, &c., 183 miles.---Money orders issued at Pwllheli: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 4½ p.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---Contains 11 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1843, 64: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £250: poor rates in 1837, £14.

BODFUAN (or BODVEAN), CARNARVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Dinlleyn, union of Pwllheli, North Wales: 268 miles from London (coach road 248), 3 from Nevin, 5 from Pwllheli.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Chester to Bangor, thence 30 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Chester, &c., 169 miles.---Money orders issued at Pwllheli: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 2½ p.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---The Calvinistic Methodists have a chapel here, the church of which was formed in 1827, and there is a daily school endowed with £100.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bangor, and diocese of St. Asaph and Bangor, is valued at £6. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £198: patron, Bishop of Bangor: pres. incumbent, T. L. Owen, 1838: contains 69 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 366: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 420: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,175: poor rates in 1837, £156.

BODHAM, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Holt, union of Erpingham: 127 miles from London (coach road 122), 3 from Holt, 7 from Cromer.---East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to East Dereham, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough to East Dereham, &c., 186 miles.---Money orders issued at Holt: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £9: patron, T. J. Mott, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. Partridge, 1840: contains 1,680 acres: 65 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 292: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,356: poor rates in 1837, £225.

BODICOTT, OXFORD, a chapelry in the parish of East Adderbury, hun<sup>d</sup> of Bloxham: 89 miles from London (coach road 67), 3 from Banbury, 19 from Oxford.---Gt. West. Rail. to Banbury, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Banbury, &c., 77 miles.---Money orders issued at Banbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---There is a Baptist chapel here, the church of which was formed in 1817.---The living is a curacy not in charge, annexed to the vicarage of East Adderbury: contains 1,680 acres: 138 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 729: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 838: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,968: poor rates in 1837, £400.---N. 1 m. Wickham Park, the residence of Mrs. Stewart: S. 1 m. Bloxham Grove, the seat of G. Warrener, Esq.

BODIHAM, SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Staple, rape of Hastings, union of Ticehurst, on the northern bank of the river Rother, over which there is a bridge here: 86 miles from London (coach road 52), 7 from Battle, 12 from Hastings.---Brighton and Sou. Coast Rail. to Hastings, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 218 miles.---There are a daily and a Sunday school, supported by the vicar.---Bodiham Castle, the ruins of which stand at a small distance to the eastward of the village, has been a noble pile of building, and is even now highly imposing. It is surrounded by a large and deep moat, the water of which is now stagnant. The great gate is flanked by two massive square towers, and over it there are three escutcheons of arms, which, with the iron portcullis, are still entire. The chapel, the hall, and the kitchen, which were of large dimensions, may all be distinguished. The castle was built in the 13th century, as is supposed, by one of the Dalyngriges, a family of great consequence in the county. From them it passed, during the time of Henry VI., with Philippa, daughter and heir of Sir Richard Dalyngrige, to Sir Thomas Lewkenor, whose family was also of high consideration in Sussex, giving several knights of the shire, and nine high sheriffs to the county. It was afterwards the property of the Earl of Thanet, from whom it was purchased by Sir Thomas Webster, and, with his other estates, descended to its present owner, Sir Godfrey Webster. The rugged walls and mouldering towers of the venerable edifice, beautifully mantled with ivy, as they are at present, produce a remarkably pleasing and picturesque effect.---The living (St. Giles), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Lewes, diocese of Chichester, is valued at £6. 18s. 6½d.: pres. net income, £280: patron, Rev. J. Image: pres. incumbent, John Image, 1842: contains 1,480 acres: 58 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 377: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 433: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,665: poor rates in 1837, £165.---W. 1½ m. Bridge Place.---Fair, June 6, for cattle and pedlery.

VOL. I.

BODMIN, CORNWALL, a borough and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Trigg, union of Bodmin: 270 miles from London (coach road 235), 21 from Launceston.---Gt. West. Rail. to Plymouth, thence 30 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Gloucester, to Plymouth, &c., 286 miles.---Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> at noon: post closes 12:50 p.m. and 8 a.m.---The limits of the borough are now well defined, and extend far beyond the bounds of this ancient town, stretching along the valley in which it is situated, and up the sides of the hills by which it is surrounded. The town itself stands in about the middle of the county, and consists of one long street, running east and west, very well lighted by gas. It was formerly a stannary town, and has now a good communication by a railway up the vale towards Camelford, something more than 14½ miles in length. In the olden time, St. Guron founded an hermitage here, on the site of which St. Petroc erected a cell for four monks, about the year A.D. 518; and if we were to take Dr. Borlase's opinion, this was the first place in which the bishopric of Cornwall was instituted; but Whitaker expresses himself as a strong dissentient against the learned doctor's statement. At any rate, it was a place of importance in the earlier ages of the Roman Catholic Church in this country, as we find that King Ethelred granted the monastery of Bodmin to the Bishop of St. Germain, in the year 994; and the following is the account of it given by Bishop Tanner in his Notitia Monastica:—The body of St. Petroc having been moved to this place, there was a church built to his memory; and the episcopal see of Cornwall was therein placed by King Edward the Elder, and Archbishop Plegmund, A.D. 905. Here King Athelstane is reported to have met with old Saxon, or rather British monks, following the rule of St. Benedict, to whom he granted so great privileges and endowments, that he is reported

3 T

founder of the monastery here, about A.D. 926. That settlement was destroyed by Danish pirates in 981; yet the religious continued here under several shapes, and much alienation of their lands, before and after the Conquest, till about the year 1120, when one Algar, with the king's license and the consent of William Warlewast, Bishop of Exeter, re-established this religious house, and placed therein monks of the order of St. Austin, who continued here till the general suppression, in the time of Henry VIII., when it was styled the priory of St. Mary and St. Petroc, and was valued at £289. 14s. 11d. per annum. The site, with the demesnes, was granted, in the 36th year of that monarch, to Thomas Sternhold, one of the first translators of the Psalms into English metre. There was another monastic institution here. It was a house of Greyfriars, which stood on the south side of the market-place, begun by one John, a merchant of London, and was augmented subsequently by Edmund, Earl of Cornwall. After the dissolution, this friary was granted to William Abbot, in the 27th year of Henry VIII.; and in Queen Elizabeth's time it was the house of correction for the county. The town was formerly of much greater extent than it is; for, besides the priory and cathedral, it had, according to Hals, no less than thirteen churches and chapels, the foundations of many of which are yet distinguishable; but it afterwards fell from its high estate, and was one of those towns for the repairing and restoration of which grants were made in the 32d year of Henry VIII. From historical records, it would appear that the inhabitants had the right of cutting wood for fuel in the woods of Dunmeer, and that the use of this right often led to serious riots in the days of the prior of Bodmin, to whom these woods belonged. After the dissolution, however, they became the property of John Chamond, who conveyed the mills of Dunmeer to the corporation of the borough, under the express condition that the rents and profits should be applied to the relief of poor persons who resided within the limits of the place. According to the report of the municipal commissioners, the rents derived from these mills, and the profits arising from fines upon the renewal of leases, have been during later times appropriated to the general purposes of the corporation. There was formerly an ancient hospital near the town, endowed with lands which produced £140 a year, and the revenues of which have been transferred to the infirmary of Truro, by a decree of the Court of Chancery. The present church of Bodmin is a spacious and ancient edifice, built in the early style of English architecture; it contains a large Norman font, and a finely-sculptured monument to the memory of Thomas Vivian, Bishop of Megara, one of the latest of the priors, whose bones are kept above ground in a closet. Some years ago bonelace was made to a considerable extent here, but that business has succumbed to machinery; and the principal trade of the place is now derived from the making of shoes. The Wesleyan Methodists, the connection of Lady Huntingdon and the Bryanites, have each places of worship here. The congregation of the Methodists was formed in 1802—that of the Huntingdonians in 1825. The schools are numerous, and one of them has an endowment, founded in the time of Queen Elizabeth. An excellent market-house was opened here in 1840. The town was formerly governed under charters, under which it was as rich, if not richer, according to its size, than any other place in the kingdom; for the corporation are in possession of one, granted by Edward III., in the 36th year of his reign; of another granted by Richard II., in 1380; of another by Elizabeth, in 1563, extended in 1594; and of another by George III., in 1798; besides one given by James II., which is considered illegal. By the municipal reform act of 1885, all these are abrogated, and the power is vested in a mayor, four aldermen, and twelve common councilmen, the mayor and the late mayor being ex-officio justices of the peace. By the charter of George III., a court of record was given, before which all actions of a personal nature, not exceeding £100 in amount, can be tried. There is, in addition, a court of pie-powder. Bodmin, in conjunction with the parishes of Lanivet, Lanhydrock, and Holland, returns two members to parliament; it also is the place of election for two members for East Cornwall. The county sessions and assizes are also held here, the spring assizes having been removed from Launceston, and the sessions from Truro: a new hall has therefore been erected for the assizes, in which there are two well-appointed courts, with a grand jury-room, indictment-room, and all the necessary offices. A new mayoralty house and judge's lodgings were also erected in 1888. Part of the ancient convent of Greyfriars, noticed above, with some modern additions, is used as a corn-market. The county gaol, a neat and well-arranged building, is placed below the town: it contains 177 cells and 15 wards, with day-rooms and proper airing-yards, two tread-mills, both connected with the same shaft, two crank-machines being attached to the building. The Bodmin poor-law union comprehends 19 parishes, with a population of about 19,000 souls, spread over a space of 128 square miles. There are three intrenchments in the parish, one called the Castle Canyke, the Beacon, near the town, and one in Dunmeer Wood. Above the ford at Nantallon, a Roman camp has been discovered within these few years, in which some pottery, and several coins of Vespasian and Trajan, have been found. North of the town there is an old ruined tower, called Berry Tower, which stands at the height of 418 feet above the sea level; it formerly formed a part of the property of the Holy Rood Chapel, which was built in the reign of Henry VII. The curious Druidical circles, called the Hurlers, are in the vicinity of the town. —The living (St. Petroc), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cornwall, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £13. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, $283: patron, Lady Basset: pres. incumbent, John Wallis, 1817: contains 6,310 acres: 641 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,643: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 5,339: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £10,861: poor rates in 1837, £943. —Market day, Saturday. Fairs: January 25, Saturday before Palm-Sunday, Tuesday and Wednesday before Whit-Sunday; December 6, cattle, horses, and sheep. —Bankers: Robins, Foster, & Co.—draw on Williams, Deacon, & Co.; Devon and Cornwall Banking Co.—draw on Barclay, Bevan, & Co. —Inns: Oliver's Hotel, Town Inn, London Arms.

BODNEY, NORFOLK, a parish in the hund of South Greenhoe, union of Swaffham: 97½ miles from London (coach road 88); 9 from Brandon, 7 from Swaffham. — East Co. Rail. to Brandon, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Peterborough to Brandon, &c., 134 miles. — Money orders issued at Brandon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — The living is a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory subordinate to Great Cressingham, and having jointly a pres. net income of £607: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, Benjamin Philpot, 1839: contains 2,590 acres: 8 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 98: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,000: poor rates in 1837, 391.

BODWEG, ANGLESEY, a parish in the hund of Llyfon, union of Anglesey, North Wales: 264 miles from London (coach road 265), 7 from Aberffraw, 14 from Holyhead. — Nor. West. Rail. through Chester and Bangor to Ty Croes, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Chester to Ty Croes, &c., 155 miles. — Money orders issued at Bangor: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12½ p.m.: post closes 11 a.m. — This parish has the privilege of sending twelve children to the National school in the adjoining parish of Llandrygarn. — The living is a perpetual curacy, united with that of Llandrygarn: contains 63 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 358: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 411: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £896: poor rates in 1837, £145.

BOGNOR (or HOTHAMPTON), SUSSEX, a market town and chapelry in the parish of South Bersted, hund of Aldwich, rape of Chichester: 74 miles from London (coach road 67), 7 from Chichester. — Sou. East. Rail. to Bognor: from Derby, through London, and as above, 206 miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — Bognor is one of the most agreeable watering-places on the coast, being sheltered from the north by the South Downs, and commanding some beautiful inland prospects. Mr. Dally, in his Bognor Guide, says very happily—

The mildness of the temperature of Bognor is manifested by the luxuriance of the trees and shrubs which grow near to the shore, and the facility with which all native and many exotic plants can be cultivated. At the very edge of the ocean, the elegant tamarisk is seen to blossom in full perfection during several of the winter months; and whilst the snow lies embedded on the northern sides of the hills, it is either not seen here, or soon dissolves under the genial influence of the climate. Bognor, or as it perhaps ought always now to be called, Hothampton, owes its present importance to the patronage of Sir Richard Hotham, who, having amassed a considerable fortune in commercial life, happened to visit this part of Sussex some time about the year 1784, and conceived the design of rendering the place, then occupied only by a few farmers and fishermen, one of fashionable resort. To accomplish this, his favourite project, he spent upwards of £60,000 of his fortune, and devoted the remainder of an active life, leaving only £8,000 a year, to the surprise of those who expected to inherit the mass of his property; but in his attempt he eminently succeeded. Ranging over there are some very beautiful views across the sea, beside those inland. The immediate vicinity of the town commands the Isle of Wight, and in a clear day the Ower's light may be distinguished, looking at night like a gem sparkling on the surface of the ocean. Bognor contains several handsome villas, and has a number of highly respectable and comfortable lodging-houses for the accommodation of visitors. There are also several very commodious hotels, and there is communication by a ferry over the Arun, from which, in pleasant rides, both Worthing and Brighton may be reached. The warm and cold baths for invalids are sufficient, and conveniently arranged; while for the healthy there are the baths in the open sea, and occasional races on the sands. There are also two subscription libraries, very fairly stocked with the publications of the day. With the exception of fishing for the London market, the town has no other means of external support than its visitors. An act of parliament has lately been obtained for the establishment of markets on Thursdays and Saturdays, and a spacious market-place has been prepared for holding them. The regulation of the town is under commissioners appointed by an act of parliament; they meet once a month, and levy a duty of two shillings per chaldron upon coal, culm, and coke, brought into the town, which amount is applied to repairing the roads. A chapel was erected here in 1821, and the Independents and Wesleyan Methodists have each chapels here; the church of the former was established in 1826. The jubilee national school was instituted by her late Royal Highness the Princess Charlotte of Wales, in 1809; fifty girls are instructed in it, in their religious duties, reading, writing, and needlework, and are also partly clothed. There is also another school for girls, chiefly, if not entirely, supported by Mrs. Smith of Bersted Lodge. — The living is a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Chichester: pres. net income, £107: patron, Archbishop of Canterbury: pres. incumbent, E. Miller, 1838 (pop<sup>n</sup> returned with the parish.) — Hotels: Norfolk, Claremont, York, and the New Inn. — S. 1 m. Gore Court.

BOLAM, DURHAM, a township in the parish of Gainford, south-western division of Darlington ward—(which see for access, &c.): 249 miles from London, 6 from Bishop-Auckland, 8 from Darlington. — Money orders issued at Bishop-Auckland: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — Contains 810 acres: 26 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 132: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £953: poor rates in 1837, £43.

BOLAM, NORTHUMBERLAND, a parish in the union of Castle ward, consisting of the township of Trewick, in the western division of Castle ward; the townships of Bolam, Bolam-Vicarage, and Gallowhill, in the western division of Morpeth ward; and the townships of Belasay, Bradford, Harnham, and Shortflatt, in the north-eastern division of Tindale ward: 327 miles from London (coach road 290), 16 from Newcastle; 8 from Morpeth. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, to Morpeth, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through York, Newcastle, &c., 295 miles. — Money orders issued at Newcastle-on-Tyne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — Bolam was the barony of Gilbert de Bolam, and granted to him by King John. From 1345 to 1368, it in a great measure belonged to the Raymes family. It then came to the Horsleys, whose heiress, in 1809, married the Rev. J. H. Beresford, son of the Archbishop of Tuam, who now resides at Bolam House. The church is a very ancient structure: there is within it the figure of a knight-templar, supposed to be the effigy of Sir Walter de Bolam; there is also a tomb of the Middletons of Belsay Castle. The village is said to have once consisted of as many as two hundred slated houses. There is an oval camp to the west of it, near which, on both sides of the way, there are inequalities in the ground, which look like intrenchments. Further west there is a height called Gallow-hill, which was used as a place of execution before the power of capital punishment was taken from the barons; and still farther west, by Wadling Street, on Bolam Moor, there is a tumulus of earth, between two large upright stones, from which Mr. Warburton took a stone coffin, smoked within, and containing only several lumps of glutinous matter. The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northumberland, diocese of Durham, is valued at £6. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £238: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, S. S. Meggison, 1817: contains 8,260 acres: 112 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 603: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 693: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £7,505: poor rates in 1837, £211.

BOLAM, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the above parish. (For access and postal arrangements, see above.) Contains 11 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 77: poor rates in 1837, £35.

BOLAS (MAGNA) AND MEESON, SALOP, a parish in Newport division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of South Bradford, union of Wellington: 158 miles from London (coach road 149), 7 from Newport, 9 from Drayton. Nor. West. Rail. to Stafford, thence 16 miles: from Derby, through Burton to Stafford, &c., 52 miles. Money orders issued at Newport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £7. 9s. 4½d.: pres. net income, £304: patron, Viscount Hill: pres. incumbent, J. Hill, 1831: contains 2,650 acres: 48 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 288: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £2,505: poor rates in 1837, £126.

BOLD, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Prescott, hund<sup>d</sup> of West Derby: 197 miles from London (coach road 189), 5 from Prescott, 6 from Warrington. Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Warrington, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Crewe to Warrington, &c., 89 miles. Money orders issued at Prescott: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. Contains 3,910 acres: 130 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 995: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,144: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £6,572: poor rates in 1837, £360. Bold Hall, the mansion-house of the family of the same name, who are said to have resided here, in uninterrupted succession, from the time of the Conquest until the year 1761, is now the seat of Henry Houghton, Esq.

BOLDON (or BOLDEN), DURHAM, a parish, containing the townships of East and West Boldon, in the eastern division of Chester ward, union of South Shields: 297 miles from London (coach road 272), 4 from Sunderland, 7 from Newcastle. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, York, and Durham, to Boldon station, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through York, &c., 165 miles. Money orders issued at Sunderland: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>.

11 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. This manor has from time immemorial belonged to the bishopric of Durham, and been noted for having given its title to the celebrated provincial Domesday-book, called the Bolden-Buke, from its frequent references to services within the manor. The Wesleyan Methodists have a chapel here, and there is a school, endowed with £10 a year by the Rev. H. Blackett. The other parochial charities produce about £7. 17s. per annum. The ordinary schools are numerous for the place. The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Durham, is valued at £24. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £653: patron, Bishop of Durham: pres. incumbent, J. Collinson, 1840: contains 3,980 acres: 156 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 915: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,052: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £6,704: poor rates in 1848, £418.

BOLDRE, HANTS, a parish in the eastern division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of New Forest, union of Lymington, New Forest division of the county: this parish comprises the village of Boldre, the hamlet of South Baddesley, and the borough of Lymington, which latter has separate jurisdiction: 94 miles from London (coach road 86), 2 from Lymington, 11 from Southampton. Sou. West Rail. through Southampton to Beaulieu, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, Reading, and Southampton, &c., 181 miles. Money orders issued at Lymington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 9½ a.m. The church is an ancient and pleasing structure, placed on a thickly-wooded eminence about a mile from the village, and the view from the churchyard is very extensive. There are two day and Sunday schools, supported by an endowment. The Rev. W. Gilpin, author of 'A Tour of the Lakes,' and many other well-known works, was vicar of this parish. He was born in 1724 at Carlisle, and was educated at Queen's College, Oxford. For many years he kept a school at Cheam, in Surrey; and afterwards obtained the vicarage of Boldre, and was made a prebendary of Salisbury. His works were numerous, being chiefly 'Lives of the Reformers,' 'Sermons,' a 'Tour of the Lakes,' and 'Observations on Natural and Picturesque Beauty.' They were distinguished for a remarkable felicity of diction and purity of taste. He died, and was buried at Boldre. From the profits which he derived from his pen and pencil, he endowed two schools here, one for twenty boys, and the other for as many girls, "who are to be taken, as far as can be, out of the labouring part of the parish." Such part of the parish of Boldre as lies within a line drawn from Eastend Bridge, through Boldre church to the west bank of Lymington river, unites with Lymington in returning two members to parliament. The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, with the curacies of Lymington and Brockenhurst, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £12: pres. net income, £394: patron, Rev. C. Shrubbs: pres. incumbent, C. Shrubbs, 1818: contains 5,216 acres: 438 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,888: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,321: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £7,780: poor rates in 1837, £938. Tithes commuted in 1811. N. 1½ m. Brockenhurst Park—(for which see BROCKENHURST.)

BOLDRON, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Bowes, western division of the

wapentake of Gilling—(which see for access, &c.): 244 miles from London, 2 from Barnard-Castle, 12 from Richmond.---Money orders issued at Darlington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.---There is a daily National school here, which is a branch of the endowed school at Bowes, the trustees of which allow £10 a year to relieve the master at Boldron, and benefit the poor.---Contains 1,340 acres: 34 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 170.—(Other returns with the parish.)

BOLE, NORRINGHAM, a parish in the North Clay division of the wapentake of Bassetlaw, union of Gainsborough: 189 miles from London (coach road 147), 3 from Gainsborough, 21 from Lincoln.---East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough and Lincoln to Gainsborough, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham and Lincoln to Gainsborough, &c., 68 miles.---Money orders issued at Gainsborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m.---There is a daily school here, with a small endowment for the education of four children.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, a peculiar formerly in the diocese of York, now in that of Lincoln, is valued at £4. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £100: patron, Bishop of Lincoln: pres. incumbent, J. H. Willan, 1837: contains 1,250 acres: 35 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 191: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,537: poor rates in 1837, £50.

BOLEHALL AND GLASCOTE, WARWICK, a township in the parish of Tamworth, Tamworth division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Hemlingford: the place, in fact, forms part of the extremity of the town of Tamworth: 111 miles from London (coach road 114), 8 from Lichfield.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Tamworth, thence 1 mile: from Derby, to Tamworth, &c., 25 miles.---Money orders issued at Tamworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---Contains 92 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 484: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 556: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,965: poor rates in 1837, £257.

BOLINGBROKE, LINCOLN, a market town and parish in the western division of the soke of Bolingbroke, parts of Lindsey, union of Spilsby: 154 miles from London (coach road 130), 4 from Spilsby, 7 from Horncastle.---East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Cambridge, Peterborough, and Boston, to Tattershall, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham and Lincoln to Tattershall, &c., 73 miles.---Money orders issued at Spilsby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---William de Romara built a castle here, in which Henry IV. was born, and from which circumstance he was called Henry of Bolingbroke. The mound and moat alone remain. The family of St. John take the title of Viscount from this place. The church suffered much during the civil wars of Charles I. There is a daily school here, which is endowed with lands for the instruction of the children of Bolingbroke and Hareby.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory, united with Hareby (since 1739), in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £9. 19s. 4d.: pres. net income, £454: patron, Sir John Smith, in Dorsetshire: pres. incumbent, E. S. Boesauquet, 1841: contains 2,570 acres: 160 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 500: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 600: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,950: poor rates in 1837, £366.---Fair, St. Peter's day.---Inns: Black Horse, and Duke's Head.

BOLLEN-FEE, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Wimalow, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Macclesfield: 190 miles from London (coach road 170), 3 from Macclesfield, 8 from Stockport.---Ner. West. Rail. through Crewe to Chester, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Buxton and Uttoxeter to Macclesfield, &c., 74 miles.---Money orders issued at Macclesfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.---The inhabitants are chiefly employed in the silk and woollen manufacture. Besides other schools, there is one attended by as many as 245 children on Sundays, which has a lending library attached to it.---Contains 2,360 acres: 339 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 2,052: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 2,359: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,341: poor rates in 1837, £411.

BOLLINGTON, CHESTER, a township, partly in the parish of Bowden, partly in that of Rosthern, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Bucklow—(which see for access, &c.): 180 miles from London, 6 from Knutsford, 11 from Warrington.---Money orders issued at Knutsford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---Contains 400 acres: 50 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 308: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 354: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,097.

BOLLINGTON, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Prestbury, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Macclesfield: 190 miles from London (coach road 170), 3 from Macclesfield, 10 from Buxton.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Macclesfield, thence 4 miles: from Prestbury station, 3 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Uttoxeter to Macclesfield, &c., 74 miles.---Money orders issued at Macclesfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.---The Macclesfield Canal runs by the township. There is a new church here, which has been built by the church-building commissioners, in the Gothic style, with a tower, at an expense of about £4,000. There is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel here, the congregation of which was formed in 1807. The Roman Catholics have also a chapel here.---The living, a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Chester: pres. net income, £150: patron, Vicar of Prestbury: pres. incumbent, George Palmer, 1839: contains 1,000 acres: 900 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 4,350: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 5,002: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,067: poor rates in 1837, £82.

BOLNEY. See HARPSDEN WITH BOLNEY.

BOLNEY, SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Buttinghill, rape of Lewes, union of Cuckfield: 41 miles from London (coach road 39), 4 from Cuckfield, 14 from Brighton.---Brighton and South Coast Rail. to Haywards Heath, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 173 miles.---Money orders issued at Cuckfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Lewes, and diocese of Chichester, is valued at £5. 12s. 2½d.: pres. net income, £162: patron, Prebendary in Chichester Cathedral: pres. incumbent, W. St. A. Vincent, 1827: contains 3,550 acres: 97 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 713: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 820: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,066: poor rates in 1837, £404.---Bolney Place, the seat of William Marshall, Esq.; and Bolney Lodge, the property of Sir Richard Ryecroft—the present occupant is James Slater, Esq.

BOLNHURST, BEDFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>.

of Stodden, union of Bedford: 69 miles from London (coach road 58), 7 from Bedford, 7 from Kimbolton. — Nor. West. Rail. to Bedford, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Rugby to Bedford, &c., 108 miles. — Money orders issued at Bedford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — There is an endowed day and Sunday school in the parish. — The living, a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bedford, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £9: pres. net income, £150: patron, Rev. H. W. Gery: pres. incumbent, H. W. Gery, 1828: contains 2,130 acres: 50 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 344: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 395: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,968: poor rates in 1837, £238. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector and lay impropriator, were commuted in 1778.

BOLSOVER, DERRY, a parish, and once a market town in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Scarsdale: the parish contains part of the township of Glapwell: 156 miles from London (coach road 146), 10 from Mansfield, 6 from Chesterfield. — Nor West. Rail. through Rugby to Chesterfield, thence 6 miles: from Derby to Chesterfield, &c., 31 miles. — Money orders issued at Mansfield. — When the Norman survey was made, of which Domesday-book is the register, this manor belonged to William Peveril, who built a castle near the spot now occupied by a mansion which was erected early in the seventeenth century, and which is distinguished by the title of Bolsover Castle. The ancient fortress passed, with the estates of the Peverils, to John of Mortaigne, during the absence of his brother Richard I. in the crusades, and was, by him, committed to the care of Richard del Pec. Soon after John's accession to the throne, William Brivere, his favourite, was appointed governor. When the contest between the king and his nobles began, it was seized by the disaffected barons, in whose power it remained till 1215, when, according to the Chronicle of Dunstaple, it was retaken by the Earl of Derby. During the reign of Henry III. it was granted to John Scott, Earl of Chester, who died without issue, and Bolsover was allotted as a portion to Ada, his fourth sister and co-heir, who married Henry de Hastings, Lord Abergavenny, but it again became invested in the crown through a compulsory exchange. It subsequently passed to the Howards, and from them to the Earl of Shrewsbury, who gave it to Sir Charles Cavendish. Henry, the second duke of Newcastle, who was a grandson of Sir Charles, dying without male issue, the manor became the property of Margaret, his sister, who was married to John Hollis, Earl of Clare. They had an only daughter, who married Harley, Earl of Oxford, from whom, by a daughter also, it was conveyed to the Bentincks, dukes of Portland. In the time of Leland the castle was in ruins, and vestiges of it are now remaining in the lower story. The building now called the castle is a domestic residence, standing upon a height from which a great extent of country can be viewed. It was built in the year 1613, by Sir Charles Cavendish, and is a square lofty-embattled structure of brown stone, having a tower at each angle, that to the north-east being much larger and higher than the others. A flight of steps on the east side leads through a passage to the hall, the roof of which is supported by stone pillars, and thence to the only room intended for habitation on that floor. This apartment, now the drawing-room, has an arched ceiling which is sustained by a pillar in the centre, round which there is a circular table. The upper rooms are not numerous, but the ceilings are of stone. A magnificent entertainment was given in the hall of Bolsover in 1633, by William, Marquis of Newcastle, to Charles I. and his queen, and such was the splendour of the festivity, that the expenses came to as much as £15,000. All the neighbouring gentry were there, and the scenery and the speeches were devised by Ben Jonson; the duke on this occasion resigned his seat at Welbeck for the service of the king and his suite, he himself residing at Bolsover. The marquis, who was son and successor to Sir Charles Cavendish, was one of the most distinguished leaders on the side of Charles during the civil war, and suffered more than any other individual in the royal cause, his losses being estimated at little less than £950,000. After the restoration of Charles II. he began a very magnificent building at Bolsover, to the west of the old fabric, but it was never completed, and the outside walls are the only parts that remain. The site of the intended structure may be surmised from that of the gallery, which is 220 feet long by 28 wide. In the church there is a noble monument to the memory of Sir Charles Cavendish, with a long inscription recording his numerous virtues. Bolsover was at one time highly celebrated for the manufacture of steel buckles, and the test of their excellent temper is still reported in the traditional assertion, that if the wheel of a loaded waggon were to pass over a Bolsover buckle, it would not, in consequence of its elasticity, suffer any permanent change of shape. But the trade has greatly declined, and the making of tobacco-pipes is that which now is most active in the place, a kind of clay peculiarly suited to the purpose being found in the neighbourhood. The fire-bricks made here are also held in high repute. The Wesleyan Methodists and the Independants each have places of worship here. There is a very fine building stone found in the neighbourhood, and the committee of scientific men who were appointed to examine the qualities of the stone quarried in the different parts of the kingdom for durability and appearance, unanimously preferred that from Bolsover for the purpose. In their report they say — Having weighed to the best of their judgment the evidence in favour of the various building stones which has been brought under their consideration, and freely admitting that many sandstones as well as limestones possess very great advantages as building materials, they feel bound to state, that for durability, for crystalline character, combined with a close approach to the equivalent proportions of carbonate of lime and carbonate of magnesia; for uniformity of structure, facility and economy in conversion; and for advantage of colour, the magnesian limestone, or dolomite of Bolsover moor and its neighbourhood, is, in their opinion, the most fit and proper material to be employed in the proposed new houses of parliament. The report was acted upon, and all the outer portions of the magnificent pile of architecture on the banks of the Thames at Westminster are, with the exception of the base, built of Bolsover stone. The parochial charities, including a legacy of £3,308. 4s. 3d.

consols, bequeathed by Mrs. Isabella Smithson, produce about £104 per annum.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Derby, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £5. 19s. 4d.: pres. net income, £111: patron, Duke of Portland: pres. incumbent, J. H. Gray, 1831: contains 6,060 acres: 513 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,512: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,739: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £5,280: poor rates in 1837, £535. The great and small tithes of Bolsover, the property of the lay impropriator and the vicar, were commuted in 1778.---Fair, Easter-Monday.

BOLTBY, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a chapelry in the parish of Felix-Kirk, wapentake of Bridforth---(which see for access, &c.): 222 miles from London, 5 from Thirsk, 10 from Northallerton.---Money orders issued at Thirsk: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9<sup>h</sup> a.m.: post closes 8<sup>h</sup> p.m.---Weaving has been almost discontinued in this chapelry, and the population has accordingly declined. The devisees of the late Edward Manners, Esq., pay £5 a year for the teaching of five children.---The living, a curacy united with the vicarage of Felix-Kirk, having jointly a pres. net income of £450: patron, Archbishop of York: pres. incumbent, C. V. B. Johnstone, 1827: contains 3,140 acres: 65 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 393: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 350: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £3,912: poor rates in 1837, £187.

BOLTON, CUMBERLAND, a parish in the ward of Allerdale below Derwent, union of Wigton, consisting of the townships of Bolton High-side and Bolton Low-side: 324 miles from London (coach road 303), 8 from Wigton, 9 from Cockermouth.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Carlisle, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, Lancaster, and Carlisle, to Wigton, &c., 216 miles.---Money orders issued at Wigton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5<sup>h</sup> p.m.---Coal and limestone are found here in great abundance, and a copper mine has within these last few years been opened. A copper battle-axe was found in the moss of Bolton Wood.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £19. 18s. 4d.: pres. net income, £512: patron, Earl of Lonsdale: pres. incumbent, H. Lowther, 1822: contains 8,760 acres: 225 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,211: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,393: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £7,157: poor rates in 1837, £416.

BOLTON, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Eldingham, northern division of the ward of Cotesdale: 346 miles from London (coach road 314), 6 from Alnwick.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, York, and Newcastle, to Leasbury station, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 214 miles.---Money orders issued at Alnwick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1<sup>h</sup> p.m.: post closes 6<sup>h</sup> p.m.---Several remains of antiquity have been found in this place. Tanner in speaking of it says---Here was a collegiate church, or rather an hospital, founded by Robert Boos of Hamdale before the year 1225, for a master or prior, three chaplains, thirteen leprous men and lay brethren. The abbot of Ryevall and the prior of Kirkham were by the founder appointed governors of this house, which was dedicated to St. Thomas the Martyr, or rather to the Holy Trinity. The Earl of Surrey held a congress here on the 5th of September, 1513, before the battle of Flodden, which was attended by noblemen and gentlemen who, with their followers, made up a number of 24,000 men. The village is situate on the north bank of the Alne.---The living, a curacy not in charge, annexed to the vicarage of Edlingham: contains 29 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 134: poor rates in 1837, £131.---Bolton Hall.---Showdon Hall.

BOLTON, EAST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Bishop-Wilton, Wilton beacon division, wapentake of Harthill: 238 miles from London (coach road 215), 3 from Pocklington, 11 from York.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, to Pocklington, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through York to Pocklington, &c., 106 miles.---Money orders issued at Pocklington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---The living is a curacy annexed to the vicarage of Pocklington: contains 960 acres: 21 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 118: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £1,042: poor rates in 1837, £78.

BOLTON, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Calverley, wapentake of Morley: 221 miles from London (coach road 198), 3 from Bradford, 9 from Leeds.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Leeds, to Bolton, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, Leeds, &c., 89 miles.---Money orders issued at Bradford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9<sup>h</sup> a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---There is a daily school here, at which sixty children are instructed.---Contains 510 acres: 144 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 771: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 886: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £1,344: poor rates in 1837, £169.

BOLTON-ABBAY (or EAST BOLTON), WEST RIDING, YORK, a chapelry in the parish of Skipton, eastern division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Ewcross: 238 miles from London (coach road 215), 7 from Skipton, 14 from Ripley.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Leeds, to Skipton, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, Leeds, &c., 106 miles.---Money orders issued at Skipton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes 1<sup>h</sup> p.m.---The abbey is part of the conventual church of the ancient priory. According to Dr. Whittaker, this priory was founded by William de Meschines and his wife Cecilia, at Embsay, in the year 1121, and continued there about thirty-three years, when it is said by tradition to have been transferred to Bolton, in consequence of the unhappy fate of the Boy of Egremond, as he was called, who, surviving his elder brother, became the last hope of his family. But that hope was destined to be frustrated, for, being out coursing with a greyhound in the leash, he inconsiderately leapt across a narrow but deep brook, called the Strid, without loosing the dog; the animal hung back, and his unfortunate master was drawn into the torrent and drowned. Wordsworth's poem of 'The White Doe of Rylstone' is founded on a tradition connected with the priory churchyard; and the same author has also written a poem of great beauty, of which the Boy of Egremond is the subject. The neighbourhood is exceedingly beautiful and romantic, and especially in the vicinity of the river Wharfe. The remains of the priory, Mr. Baines says, being surrounded by bold and majestic high grounds, are scarcely seen until the traveller arrives upon the spot. Bolton Priory stands upon a beautiful curvature of the Wharfe, on a level sufficiently elevated to protect it from inundations, and low enough for every purpose of picturesque effect. In the latter respect, it has no equal among the northern houses, perhaps not in the kingdom. Opposite to the east window of the priory church the river washes the rock, which is there nearly perpendicular. To the south all is soft and delicious; but the glories of Bolton are on the north. Whatever the most fastidious taste could require to constitute a perfect landscape, is not only found here, but found in its proper place. In front, and immediately under the eye, is a smooth expanse of park-like enclosure, with native elm, ash, &c., of the finest growth; on the right, a skirting oak wood, with jutting points of grey rock; on the left, a rising copse. Still forward are seen the aged groves of Bolton Park, the growth of centuries; and farther yet, the barren and rocky distances of Simonseat and Bardenfell, contrasted with the warmth, fertility, and luxuriant foliage of the valley below. About half a mile above Bolton the valley closes, and either side of the Wharfe is overhung by deep and solemn woods, from which huge perpendicular masses of grey rock jut out at intervals. Here a tributary stream rushes from a waterfall, and bursts through a woody glen, to mingle its waters with the Wharfe. There the river itself is nearly lost in a deep cleft of the rock, and next becomes a horned flood enclosing a woody island. Sometimes it reposes for a moment, and then resumes its native character, lively, irregular, impetuous. The cleft mentioned above is the tremendous Strid. This chasm, being incapable of receiving the winter floods, has formed on either side a broad strand of native gritstone, full of rock-basins, or 'pots of the lin,' which bear witness to the restless impetuosity of so many northern torrents. But if the Wharfe is here lost to the eye, it repays another sense by its deep and solemn roar, like the voice of 'the angry spirit of the waters,' heard far above and beneath, amidst the silence of the surrounding woods. The terminating objects of the landscape are the remains of Bardon tower, interesting from their form and situation, but still more so from the recollections which they excite. The principal remains of Bolton Priory now standing, were parts of the church, and the nave is still used as a parochial chapel. There are two escutcheons over the west door: that on the north side displays the arms of the Cliffords; that on the south, a cross formée; parts of the nave and choir also remain, though much mutilated. There is also one of the gates left, which, by stopping up its openings, has been converted into a dwelling-house; the ground-floor being one large room, which is occasionally used as a residence by the Duke of Devonshire. The priory was dissolved in 1540; and, in 1543, was granted to Henry Clifford, Earl of Cumberland, in whose family it remained till 1635, when Elizabeth, the sole daughter and heiress of Henry, Earl of Cumberland, having married Richard, the first Earl of Burlington, conveyed the demesnes into that family. Charlotte, the daughter and sole heiress of the earl, in 1748, married the Duke of Devonshire, to whose descendant, the present duke, the property now belongs. The living, a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £32. 10s.: pres. net income, £111: patron, Duke of Devonshire: pres. incumbent, John Umpleby, 1843: contains 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 127: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,165: poor rates in 1837, £89.

BOLTON-BY-BOWLAND (or WEST BOLTON), WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the western division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Ewcross, union of Clitheroe, on the northern bank of the river Ribble: 228 miles from London (coach road 223), 13 from Skipton, 6 from Clitheroe. Nor. West. Rail. through Manchester and Blackburn to Clitheroe, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Manchester to Clitheroe, &c., 130 miles. Money orders issued at Skipton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 2½ p.m.: post closes 12 noon. There is a school here, supported by a small endowment. The other parochial charities produce about £12 a year. The living, a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £11. 13s.: pres. net income, £335: patron, Mrs. A. Littledale: pres. incumbent, T. Staniforth, 1831: contains 4,940 acres: 199 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 933: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,073: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £6,249. Bolton Hall is the seat of Lord Bolton, whose principal seat is Hackwood House, Hants—(which see for the family history.)

BOLTON-CASTLE, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Wensley, western division of the wapentake of Hang—(which see for access, &c.): 239 miles from London, 7 from Middleham, 6 from Askrigg. Money orders issued at Middleham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes 12½ p.m. The inhabitants have the privilege of sending four boys to the free school of the adjoining township of Redmire. Here are the ruins of the castle of Lord Scrope; and it is from it, and the surrounding estates, that the present Lord Bolton and his ancestors have derived their titles. Bolton Hall, the family mansion, stands three miles farther down the stream, in the preceding parish. The living is a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Ripon: pres. net income, £115: patron, Rector of Wensley: pres. incumbent, J. Calvert, 1827: contains 5,160 acres: 52 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 230: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,585: poor rates in 1837, £115.

BOLTON-IN-COPELAND. See GOSEFORTH.

BOLTON-LE-MOORS, LANCASTER, a very large parish, and a recently-enfranchised borough, in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Salford, poor-law union of Bolton: the parish forms the north-west part of the hundred, and comprises the chapelries of Blackrod, Little Bolton, Bradshaw, Darcy-Lever, Rivington, and Turton; and the townships of Anglezarke, Great Bolton, Breightmet, Edgeworth, Entwistle, Harwood, Little Lever, Longworth, Quarlton, Sharples, and Tonge with Haulgh, and the hamlet of Lostock: 200 miles from London (coach road 197), 11 from Manchester. Nor. West. Rail. to Bolton: from Derby, through Manchester to Bolton, 115 miles. Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m. and 7½ p.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. and 9.45 p.m. The town derives its name from its situation in the moors. From the earliest records which we have of the history of the town, it is evident that the manor was one of great antiquity;

but the first precise notice that we have of it, is in the statement that it was alienated by Roger de Maresay, with his other lands between the Mersey and the Ribble, to Ralph de Blundeville, Earl of Chester, for 240 marks of silver, and a pair of white gloves, to be presented annually at Easter. It afterwards became the property of the families of Ferrers and Pilkington, but was confiscated to the Crown, on the attainder of Sir Thomas Pilkington, in the first year of the reign of Henry VII., for his adherence to Richard III. and appearance at the battle of Bosworth. Henry granted it to his relative Thomas, Lord Stanley, whom he then created Earl of Derby. After the death of the gallant nobleman spoken of below, a considerable portion of the property was confiscated by parliament; and the manor of Bolton is now held by five different lords in unequal proportions. The town was of but little importance until about the year 1337, when some emigrant Flemings fixed their abode here, and introduced the manufacture of woollen cloth. That laid the foundation of its future standing as a manufacturing town; and after the revocation of the edict of Nantes, many of the French refugees, being attracted by the likelihood of employment which the trade of the town afforded, flocked to it, and thus increased both its population and its business. When the civil war broke out between Charles I. and his parliament, the inhabitants of Bolton took the side of the latter; and the town was garrisoned and kept until 1644 by the republican troops. But in that year Prince Rupert advanced into the neighbourhood with an army of 10,000 men to relieve Latham House, which was then beset by 2,000 of the Parliamentarians, compelled them to raise the siege, and retire into Bolton. Being joined by the Earl of Derby from the Isle of Man, the prince marched his army upon the moors to the south-west of the town, and there held a council of war, the conclusion of which was a determination to storm the place. An assault was accordingly made with remarkable energy and intrepidity, but it was met by the troopers from within with equal perseverance and courage; and the garrison, at that time amounting to 3,000, signally repulsed the royalists, who retired with the loss of more than 200 men. Another council of war was then held, at which it was determined to repeat the attack; and, at his own earnest request, the Earl of Derby was ordered to lead the force. Placing himself at the head of 200 Lancashire men, chiefly his own tenants and their sons, he marched directly to the walls, where the contest was for some time carried on with the most obstinate fury, and prodigious acts of valour were performed on both sides; but the earl, bearing down all opposition, burst his way into the place, and the whole garrison fled in the utmost consternation. The royalists pursued them in all directions, killing every man they could overtake, and ultimately plundered the town. Bolton continued for some time in the possession of Charles's adherents, but was ultimately given up to the parliament. During Charles II.'s ineffective descent in the time of the Protectorate, the Earl of Derby joined his standard, and was present at the battle of Worcester, but was unfortunately taken prisoner, condemned by a military tribunal at Chester, and sent under an escort to Bolton, where he was beheaded. The town comprises the townships of Great and Little Bolton, which are separated by the river Croal, and has been greatly enlarged under the authority of an act of parliament, obtained in 1792, for enlarging Bolton Moor, two hundred and fifty acres of which were divided into allotments, and part of these are now covered with buildings. By a subsequent act, obtained in 1817, the power of the commissioners were enlarged, since which time three spacious squares, several ranges of buildings, and some public offices, have been erected. In order to show the advance of the place, it may be stated, that in the year 1823 alone, 428 houses were built in Great Bolton, and 196 in Little Bolton, while very considerable improvement was made in the roads leading to the town. The town is well lighted with gas, the company for effecting which was incorporated in 1820; and it is well supplied with excellent water, brought from a distance of a mile and a half in earthenware pipes, into a reservoir twenty acres in extent. From that reservoir it is conveyed through a main, thirteen inches in diameter, to all parts of the town; and the water, descending from a height of seven hundred feet, rushes through the main with a force sufficient to raise it to the height of eighty feet, without the aid of any engine, so that the upper stories of all the houses can with the greatest facility be served. This great convenience for the inhabitants was obtained at an expense of £40,000, subscribed by a company in 1824, in £50 shares. The company was incorporated by act of parliament; and a handsome stone building was erected for their use, in the front of which there is an emblematical tablet, representing a Naiad, seated by a fountain, pouring water from a ewer to a thirsty child. There are three public libraries, one of which, established within these few years, is conducted on less restrictive principles than the other two. Its stock is kept in the Exchange Buildings, a neat stone edifice, erected in 1825, with two Ionic pillars at the entrance; the lower room, which is of large dimensions, is appropriated for the transaction of general business, and is, moreover, used as a news-room; the upper floor contains the books and the reading-rooms. The principal branch of manufacture carried on here is that of cotton, and upon that the wealth, prosperity, and extent of the town have been built. Sir Richard Arkwright became a resident here, and here brought the spinning-jenny and water-frame machines to their perfection; he afterwards established his works at Derby and Nottingham. But he was subsequently exceeded by another ingenious inhabitant of this place, named Samuel Crompton, who combined the qualities of both in a machine which he called a mule; and for the invention of which he received a donation from his fellow-townsmen, first of £105, another afterwards of £400; and, subsequently, parliament made him a grant of £5,000, as a reward for the benefit which he had conferred upon the trade of the country. Before the introduction of the cotton business, however, some weavers, who came to this country from the palatinate of the Rhine, had added to the manufacture of woollen cloth, which was already in existence here, that of a fabric composed of a mixture of cotton and wool, and also another of linen yarns. The principal articles that were made were jean, thickset, and fustian; velvet, entirely of cotton, was first made here in 1756; and dimity, quilting, and muslin succeeded. After the introduction of the cotton trade, the manufactories rapidly spread; but having no motive power but that of water, they were necessarily conducted on a comparatively small scale: as soon as steam was rendered the active agent in propelling machinery, the plants were immediately increased in number, and greatly enlarged in extent. There are now more than twenty factories with steam-engines, comprising an aggregate of nearly 1,000 horse power; and the other establishments are both numerous and important. The bleaching grounds are very extensive, and more than 10,000,000 pieces of cloth are bleached in a twelvemonth. Among the several bleaching establishments, there are three, in each of which from 130,000 to 150,000 pieces are bleached every month. There are several very extensive iron foundries, in one of which between three and four hundred hands are constantly employed, the main business being the making of steam-engines. Machinery of all kinds, and mills also of every description, are made to a great extent. The neighbourhood of Bolton abounds with coal, which is brought into the town, at comparatively little expense, by a railway, which communicates with the Leeds and Liverpool Canal at Leigh, about eight miles distant. This work was begun in 1825, under an act of parliament, at a time when such attempts were considered the boldest of enterprises; it was completed at an expense of £80,000, by a company whose shares were £100 each. The canal from Bolton to Manchester was formed in 1791; a branch of it to Bury diverges from the main stream at Little Lever, in this parish; while the railway communication opened up to the town, adds wonderful facilities for the transit of passengers and commercial property. Veins of lead ore and calamine were discovered at Rivington, and were worked for some time, but did not prove productive. The market is held in the area of the new square, in the centre of which there is a handsome cast-iron column, thirty feet high, placed upon a pedestal, and on the top of it there is a large lantern lighted with gas. A very neat and commodious edifice has been erected in Little Bolton for a town-hall; and it is in contemplation to build another in Great Bolton, to supersede the present somewhat inconvenient rooms which are now used for the transaction of public business. The old church is large, and is principally in the style of the later English architecture: it contains some interesting monuments in the chancel. A church, dedicated to the Holy Trinity, was built in 1825 at an expense of £13,500, at the cost of the parliamentary commissioners; it is a handsome structure, with a tower, and, like the old church, it is in the later style of English architecture: the living is a perpetual curacy, the net income of which is £121, and it is under the patronage of the vicar. There is a church in Little Bolton, dedicated to St. George, which was erected in 1796; it has a perpetual curacy, under the patronage of the vicar, the net income being £168 a year. The chapel of All Saints, in Little Bolton, has been rebuilt within these few years; the living is a perpetual curacy, with a net income of £128, and the patron is T. Tipping, Esq. The free grammar-school was founded in 1641 by Robert Lever, Esq., a citizen of London, who bequeathed estates for its endowment, which now produce £400 a year; to this the income belonging to a former school has since been attached; and the whole revenue of the institution, therefore, is now £485 a year: it is under the direction and control of a body of governors, incorporated in 1784, who appoint the head master, with a salary of £160 per annum; a second master, with a salary of £100 per annum; and a writing master, who receives £75 for his services. There is a small exhibition to each of the universities. Mr. Robert Ainsworth, author of the Latin Dictionary, and Dr. Lempriere, compiler of the Classical Dictionary, were both masters of this school, and the former was educated here. In 1693, a charity school was founded here by Mr. Nathaniel Hulton, for the instruction of 30 boys and 30 girls, the income of which is now about £277 per annum; it is under the management of trustees, who appoint a master and mistress, the former with a salary of £45, and the latter with one of £25 a year. In 1714, a school for the clothing and instruction of poor children was founded here by Thomas Marsden, Esq., who endowed it with £150, which, by judicious management, now produces £14. 10s. a year; ten guineas is paid to the master, and the rest is expended in repairs. There are Sunday schools connected with the Established Church and all the churches, and the numerous dissenting congregations in the town, in which more than 7,000 children are instructed; that in connection with the parish church is a large and handsome erection of freestone, built in a style to correspond with the church; it was erected in 1819 by public subscription, at a cost of £1,800, and contains a good organ. A dispensary was established here in 1814, which is very liberally supported by voluntary contributions; the building, which cost £1,700, is neat and appropriate in appearance. There is a clothing society, supported chiefly by ladies; and a society, also, for the relief of poor women during childbirth, was established in 1798. There are two chapels each for the Baptists, Independents, and Unitarians; and one each for the Society of Friends, the Swedenborgians, and the Roman Catholics, and seven for several denominations of Methodists. The town is under the jurisdiction of the county magistrates, one of whom attends every Monday to adjudicate upon cases of inferior importance; and a petty session for the division is held here every Monday and Friday. A boroughreeve, two constables, and a deputy-constable, are chosen for each of the townships of Great and Little Bolton, at the court-leet of the lord of the manor. Bolton was constituted a borough by the act 2d William IV. c. 45, with the privilege of returning two members to parliament, the right of election being vested in £10 householders: the limits of the borough comprise 1,748 acres. At the first general election, the number of voters registered was 1,040; and £210. 15s. 6d. was the amount paid for expenses by the boroughreeves, who are the returning officers. — The living, a vicarage in the diocese of Manchester, is valued at £10. 3s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £464: patron, Bishop of Chester: pres. incumbent, James Slade, 1817: contains 31,390 acres: 10,866 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 73,905: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £320,467: poor rates in 1837, £9,071.---Market days, Saturday and Monday. Fairs: July 30th and 31st; October 13th and 14th, for cattle, horses, and cheese: fortnightly fair, Wednesday, from Jan. 5 to May 12.---Bankers: Hardcastle & Co.—draw on Jones, Lloyd, & Co.; Bank of Bolton—draw on Barclay, Bevan, & Co.---Inns: Swan Hotel, Lever's Arms, Commercial Inn.

BOLTON-ON-DEARNE, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the northern division of the wapentake of Strafforth and Tickhill, union of Doncaster: 181 miles from London (coach road 169), 7 from Rotherham, 9 from Doncaster.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Rotherham, to Wath-upon-Deane, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Rotherham, &c., 49 miles.---Money orders issued at Rotherham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---There is a school here, endowed with £11. 12s. per annum. The other parochial charities produce about £19 a year.---The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of York, is valued at £6. 15s. 5d.: pres. net income, £88: patron, Executors of W. H. Marsden, Esq.: pres. incumbent, C. J. D. Marsden, 1848: contains 2,390 acres: 124 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 671: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 771: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,247: poor rates in 1837, £266.---A statute fair, second Thursday in November, for hiring servants.

BOLTON-PERCY, EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the ainstry of the city: it includes the townships of Appleton-Roebeck, Bolton-Percy, Colton, and Steeton: 212 miles from London (coach road 194), 8 from York, 8 from Selby.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Normanton, to Bolton-Percy station: from Derby, through Chesterfield, Normanton, &c., 80 miles.---Money orders issued at York: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---The church is an ancient and noble structure, with much painted glass in the windows. It was erected by Thomas Parker, the incumbent, in 1423, and contains several monuments to members of the Fairfax family. Great part of the timber grown in a wood here, was used in the building of York cathedral. The Lords Beaumont had formerly a mansion here, the foundations of which may still be perceived. The parochial charities produce £30. 16s. per annum.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of York, is valued at £39. 15s. 2½d.: pres. net income, £1,540: patron, Archbishop of York: pres. incumbent, W. V. Harcourt, 1837: contains 7,320 acres: 201 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,040: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,196: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £9,887. All the tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1797.

BOLTON-PERCY, EAST RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish.---(For access and postal arrangements, see above.)---Contains 2,170 acres: 35 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 253: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,346: poor rates in 1837, £610.

BOLTON-LE-SANDS, LANCASTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Lonsdale, south of the sands: it comprises the chapelry of Over-Kellet, and the townships of Bolton-le-Sands, Nether-Kellet, and Styne with Hest: 235 miles from London (coach road 245), 5 from Lancaster, 12 from Kirkby-Lonsdale.---Nor. West. Rail. to Lancaster, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Crewe and Manchester to Lancaster, &c., 135 miles.---Money orders issued at Lancaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.---The church has recently been rebuilt. There are seven schools in the parish, two of which are endowed. The parochial charities produce £125 a year.---The living, a dioc<sup>e</sup>. vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Richmond, diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Manchester, is valued at £4. 15s.: pres. net income, £169: patron, Bishop of Chester: pres. incumbent, R. Gibson, 1824: contains 7,630 acres: 345 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,774: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,040: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £7,630: poor rates in 1837, £1,249.

BOLTON-LE-SANDS, LANCASTER, a township in the above parish.---(For access and postal arrangements, see above.)---Contains 1,370 acres: 131 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 799: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 919: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,009: poor rates in 1837, £384.

BOLTON-IN-THE-SANDS, WESTMORELAND, a chapelry in the parish of Morland, West ward: 283 miles from London (coach road 274), 4 from Appleby, 10 from Penrith.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Lancaster to Clifton station, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Crewe and Lancaster, &c., 183 miles.---Money orders issued at Penrith: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 12 noon: post closes 1 p.m.---The chapel has been recently rebuilt. The Methodists have a chapel here. There are three daily schools, one of which is endowed with £13 a year, for the instruction of thirteen children. Beeley Castle, in the vicinity, was anciently one of the residences of the Bishop of Carlisle, but is now occupied as a farm-house.---The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £19. 18s. 4d.: pres. net income, £80: patron, Vicar of Morland: pres. incumbent, William Shepherd: contains 83 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 383: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 440: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,019: poor rates in 1837, £197. All the tithes of Bolton manor, the property of the Dean and Chapter of Carlisle, the vicar, and perpetual curate, were commuted in 1808.

BOLTON-UPON-SWALE, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a chapelry in the parish of Catterick, eastern division of the wapentake of Gilling---(which see for access, &c.): comprises the townships of Scarton, Uckerby, Bolton, Whitwell, Ellerton, and Kiplin: 230 miles from London, 2 from Catterick, 6 from Richmond.---Money orders issued at Catterick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---There is a school here, eighteen of the scholars of which are instructed through funds provided by the Earl and Countess of Tyrconnell. The charities of the chapelry produce about £17 a year. Henry Jenkins, who lived to the amazing age of 169 years, was a native of this place. He died on the 6th December, 1670, at Ellerton-upon-Swale, but was buried in the churchyard here; and a handsome monument, to record the fact, has been erected in the church.---The living, a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Richmond, diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £17. 5s.: pres. net income, £100: patron, Vicar of Catterick: pres. incumbent, A. Cumby, 1836: contains 500 acres: 20 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 96: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,214: poor rates in 1837, £64.---The statistical details comprise the accounts both of the chapelry and the township of Bolton-in-Swale.---Fair, June 28, for cattle and pedlery.

BONBY, LINCOLN, a parish in the northern division of the wapentake of Yarborough, parts of Lindsey: 202 miles from London (coach road 162), 5 from Barton, 6 from Glandford Bridge.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. through Cambridge and Peterborough to Ulceby station, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Chesterfield, Beighton, and Retford, to Ulceby station, &c., 108 miles.---Money orders issued at Barton-on-Humber: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 12 noon: post closes 7½ p.m.---There are two daily schools here. Bishop Tanner, in speaking of this place, says—The churches of Bondeby, Sazelyby, and Stamford All Saints, being granted to the priory of St. Edmund in Normandy by the priory and convent of Merton, in exchange for other revenues, in the beginning of King John's reign, there was shortly afterwards an alien priory erected at Bondeby, which was granted in the 4th year of Henry IV. to the Charleux-house at Beauval, in Nottinghamshire.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup>. and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £6. 4s. 4d.: pres. net income, £233: patron, Earl of Yarborough: pres. incumbent, Weaver Walter: contains 2,900 acres: 70 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 386: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 444: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,535: poor rates in 1837, £123.

BONCHURCH, HAMPS, a parish in the south-eastern division of the liberty of East Medina, Isle of Wight: 112 miles from London (coach road 88), 10 from Newport, 7 from Brading.---Sou. West. Rail. to Portsmouth, across the channel to Newport, in the Isle of Wight, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Banbury, and Oxford, to Portsmouth, &c., 209 miles.---Money orders issued at Newport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m.---Bonchurch is one of the most beautiful and enchanting parts of the island, concentrating all the wild and picturesque aspects that the most devoted lover of nature could desire. From the summit of the Pulpit Rock, all its varied features lie spread out before the tourist; the rich leafy landscape lying far below his feet, the road winding romantically through a grove of lofty elms, as in a narrow valley or a glen, hemmed in on one side by an abrupt declivity of the grand line of cliff, and on the other by a ridge of colossal rocks. Near a cluster of rural habitations of the peasantry, a remarkably bold crag rears up its bald brow from amid the foliage; and upon it there is a flag-staff, the platform around which is an excellent point of view. Immediately below it there is a gentleman's residence; and beyond it, nearer to the shore, embosomed in the surrounding trees, is the little ancient parish church, whose grey walls have stood the sunshine and the shade since the Norman William ruled the state; and round it, in their still repose,

"The rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep."

Standing on every favourable spot are the residences of several of the gentry, shaded by lofty trees and environed by elegant shrubberies, and affluent in all the sweet witcheries of nature.

"Banks clothed with flowers, groves filled with sprightly sounds,
The yellow tilth green meads, rocks and rising grounds;
Streams edged with osiers, fatt'ning every field
Where'er they flow, now seen, and now concealed."

Among other things, the presence of a fairy lake essentially contributes to the beauty of this almost unrivalled scenery; and this, combined with a single rustic cottage shaded by noble elms, a winding umbrageous road where the passer is soothed by the ripple of a pebbly brook, bold rocky banks clothed with hanging shrubs, the whole surmounted by a mountainous acclivity of lofty heights, constitute a picture as entrancing in reality as it is suitable for the painter's art. The coast is also singularly rugged and picturesque here, the rocks rising to the height of from ninety to a hundred feet.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory, with the curacy of Shanklin, in the archd<sup>r</sup>. and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £6. 15s. 5d.: pres. net income, £134: patron, Rev. W. White, and C. P. Hill, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Justly Hill, 1809: contains 150 acres: 24 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 302: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 347: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £464: poor rates in 1837, £43.

BONDGATE. See AIMUNDERRY.

BONDS. See BARNACRE WITH BONDS.

BONEHILL AND BANGLEY, STAFFORD, a township in the parish of Tamworth, southern division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Offlow: 111 miles from London (coach road 115), 1 from Tamworth, 6 from Lichfield.---Nor. West. Rail. to Tamworth, thence 1 mile: from Derby to Tamworth, &c., 25 miles.---Money orders issued at Tamworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---Contains, including Fazely, 2,150 acres: 59 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 325: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 374.---S., Drayton Manor-house, the seat of the Right Hon. Sir R. Peel, Bart. The new mansion, built by Sir Robert on the site of the ancient manor-house, is constructed of white stone, in the Elizabethan style of architecture. It is an edifice of very imposing appearance, the towers being grouped with very picturesque effect, and it covers a large site of ground. The house is furnished with all the appliances of the most recherché taste; and the works of art are numerous and costly, in accordance with the known artistic perception and wealth of the owner. The family of Peel, Peele, or De Pele, as it was most anciently written, had long been settled in the district of Craven, in Yorkshire, before the beginning of the fifteenth century, but about that time became seized of lands in the Salesbury and Whilpshire portion of the lower division of the hundred of Blackburn, in the county of Lancaster. Towards the end of the sixteenth century, Robert Peel left East Murton, in Craven, and settled at Hole House, in the county of Lancaster, with which the family have been ever since connected. His great-grandson had two sons: the elder, Robert Peel of Peel Fold, Oswaldtwistle, who died in 1713, turned his attention to agricultural pursuits. His grandson it was, of whom we are about to speak in connection with that great branch of our staple trade, the manufacture of cotton, with the development of which he was so largely connected, who stood pre-eminent, alike for fortune and character, in the great outbreak of commercial enterprise. His son, also named Robert, evinced a spirit similar to that of his father, and was created a baronet for the services which he rendered to the state, by raising a regiment at his own expense, for the defence of the country, during the early years of the French revolutionary war. The honourable baronet was a man of singularly strong character and comprehensive views. It was by no slow degrees that this remarkable family have risen to wealth, distinction, and the first rank of aristocratic influence, and have attained a station so singularly eminent, through the exercise of those powers of mind, which are at once serviceable to their possessors, and beneficial to mankind. We transcribe the following statement from a little work recently published, under the title of the 'History of Wonderful Inventions;' and as the statement there contained is illustrative of the rise of that great branch of business with which Sir Robert Peel's family have been so closely connected, we are tempted to trespass upon an interesting topic somewhat beyond our usual limits, simply premising that the term farmer, applied to the grandfather of the present right honourable baronet, should intimate a man of some landed substance, respectable alike from his means and his character. "Among others who began to be affected by the growing spirit of enterprise which, about the middle of the last century, pervaded the manufacturing interests throughout the north of England, was a farmer of little means, who lived at the village of Blackburn in Lancashire. He was a man of observant and inquiring mind, shrewd, diligent, and energetic. Labour was of little consequence, provided an object was attained by it. He had remarked the tediousness of the process by which the raw cotton wool was brought into a state fit for spinning by the common hand-card; and he it was, as there is almost every proof, that invented the cylinder for doing the work so much better and more expeditiously. Success attended him here sufficiently to induce him altogether to give up farming; and seeing everybody busy about him, he adapted himself to another part of the business, and the farmer turned calico-printer. He set to work, and with his own hands he cut away on blocks of wood with such tools as he could command, till he had formed the figure of a parsley leaf. At the back of each of these blocks he fastened a handle, and put a little pin of strong wire at each of the four corners in front. Each of these blocks was ten inches long and five broad. He then got a tub, into which he put some coloured mixture with a little alum in it. He then covered the tub with a woollen cloth, which sunk till it touched the colouring matter, and became saturated with it. The calico was stretched tightly across the table top, and the quondam farmer of Blackburn then touched the woollen cloth with the face of his parsley-leaf block, and soon as the figure was fairly covered with the colour, he placed it squarely on the cloth, and struck it sharply with a mallet, so that the figure of the engraving was left upon the white calico. The little points at the corners enabled him to repeat the process with regularity, and so he continued till the whole was complete. Soon as it was dry, his wife and daughters set to work, and ironed it with the common smoothing-irons, and this they continued to do for some time. But the ingenious farmer was as little satisfied with the loss of time in this instance as he had previously been with the hand-card, and having seen the good effect of a cylinder in that case, he determined to try it in this. He had an oblong frame made with a smooth wooden bottom and upright post, and a rail on each side. Running from side to side there was a roller with a handle to turn it, and round the roller there was a rope wound round spirally. Each end of the rope was fastened to an oblong deep box, as wide and as long as the frame. It was filled with bricks, and of course was very heavy. The farmer had now a machine more forcible than the strength and warm irons of his wife and daughters. He therefore wound his pieces of calico round smooth wooden rollers, which were placed under the box, and that being drawn backwards and forwards by means of the rope round the upper roller, the which soon gave the requisite smoothness to the new work. This, in truth, was the mangle now used for domestic purposes, by which many a poor woman gains a livelihood. It was afterwards superseded by superior machinery, worked on more complex though not more scientific principles. But it answered the purpose admirably. The farmer worked on; his goods were readily bought, and he was much sought after, for the cautious fellow kept his knowledge to himself. And so he went on, step by step, till he became the head of one of the largest houses in the country. His eldest son joined him in business, and the tide of affluence flowed fast and constantly upon the firm. With the wealth thus acquired, at a time of great national emergency, the son raised, at his own expense, a regiment of horse for the general defence, and the Government made him a baronet. His son, whose name, like his own and his father's, was Robert, he brought up well and sent to college, where the young man, by good abilities and diligence, obtained great distinction. He afterwards obtained a seat in parliament, lived to sway senates by his word, and ultimately became the prime minister of an empire, whose power never was excelled, and the extent of which never was equalled. The name of the humble farmer of Blackburn, the self-taught calico-printer, the inventor of the mangle, the founder of a family which, in two generations, has risen to an equality with the oldest nobility in the land—that farmer's name was Peel. Mr. Peel was, however, not content with hard labour, even facilitated as it was by his own inventions, and he accordingly removed to a place called Brookside, about two miles from Blackburn, for the sake of water, and there, by the assistance of his sons, extended his business very considerably. In 1778, his eldest son, Robert, who had always been his chief support, left the concern, and entered into partnership with a Mr. Yates and his uncle, whose name was Haworth, and with them carried on an extensive business at the town of Bury. Two other sons entered into partnership, and established their business at a place called Church, and were, like their elder brother and their father, eminently successful. The principle of block-printing, however, was found too slow, especially when more than one colour was to be used, and cylinders were again adopted. The pattern to be printed was engraved on the face of a cylinder (and to the credit of this adoption, Mr. Peel appears to be peculiarly entitled), which revolves in connection with another of equal size. The lower cylinder, on which the pattern, was wrought, turns with half its circumference in a box which contains colouring matter, which in the course of its progress is shaved off by a blade of soft steel, except where the pattern is engraved. The cloth is passed between the two cylinders, and receives the impression of the pattern; it is afterwards passed over another cylinder filled with hot steam, and almost instantly dried. Where three or four colours are to be used, there must be as many cylinders; and thus a piece of calico, of twenty-eight yards in length, can be printed in various colours in about two minutes, a work which, by hand labour, could not be performed in less than a week. But another improvement was made. These cylinders had been usually made of copper, and they were not only expensive to engrave, but soon wore out; and it was therefore an immense advantage to the calico-printers when a plan was adopted for reducing that expense. This system was, to engrave a very small steel cylinder, of two or three inches in length, with the pattern desired, when the metal was in what is called the decarbonised, or softened state, after which it was tempered till it became very hard. When it was hardened to the utmost, it was worked by powerful machinery against a large cylinder, which, being duly softened, received the design; that also was in its turn hardened, and then worked against the copper roller, which received the impression as originally engraved, and thus was fitted for the printing process. At this point it was that chemistry—that strange and wonderful science, which more, perhaps, than any other, has unlocked the secrets of nature—came in to the assistance of art. A substance was discovered, called chlorine, which has the peculiar property of discharging all vegetable colours, and thus, with a magic exceeding all the tales of romance, bleached the cloth to a fairer and purer white in a few hours, than could, by the old process of exposure to the air on the grass, have been obtained in many months. And this was of inestimable value, for in order to print the richest patterns, the most perfect white that could be obtained was necessary. But a complaint was made that, however beautiful, the prints would not wash, and, consequently, when once dirtied, a dress became useless, and the earth was ransacked to obtain what are called mordants for the several colours. The term, it is needless to say, is derived from the French word mordre, to bite, as it seems to make the colour bite into the cloth, and become fixed; and one of the plans adopted, was to print the cloth with the mordant only, then to dip it in the dyeing vat, and afterwards wash it out, when the mordant was found to have retained the pattern in beautiful integrity. Another plan is to print the pattern with lemon juice; the piece is then steeped in the mordant, dried quickly, and dyed in the vat. When washed, the acid is found to have resisted the mordant, and the pattern stands out in pure white, all the rest of the cloth of course retaining the colour in which it was dyed. This is called discharge-work, and gave to the Peels an opportunity of imitating very beautifully the Indian patterns, which were at that time very much admired, and obtained for their house a character which never was lost, for it enabled them to produce goods, excellent in every respect, both for beauty and fastness of colour. There was, however, another discovery made by a person named Grouse, a commercial traveller of London, who, although utterly destitute of anything like scientific knowledge, is stated to have been fond of fire-side experiments. He sold his invention to the late Sir R. Peel, the father of the present statesman, for five pounds, and there is little doubt but the person who bought it realized more than ten thousand times that sum by it. The process is called resist-work: it consists in printing the cloth with a kind of paste, and then dyeing it with indigo; after being properly dried, it is found that the paste has resisted the colouring matter, and the pattern is left of a pure and beautiful white colour. Without the paste, the indigo would not wash out, and this is the means through which those beautiful blue dresses with the white spots, which no one can see without admiring, are made. All this, however, was not sufficient. It was not enough to have utility, durability, and neatness, for beauty of design was also requisite to satisfy the ripening faculties, and the improving character, which a long period of peace has brought out, and all the efforts of the most ingenious artists have been put into requisition to attain that object." In a publication avowedly divested of everything like party feeling or political tendency, it is obviously a duty to avoid expressing any opinion of the principles, the motives, or the conduct, of any one distinguished in the political world; but to omit all notice of the long career of the great statesman whose fame has now for so many years been world wide, and who has now for more than thirty years taken such a large share in the government of this great empire, would be unpardonable. Having distinguished himself greatly at the university of Oxford, and having taken his degree as a double first classman, Mr. Peel entered parliament, and soon became noted as one of the most eminent among the many eminent men who were members of the House of Commons, about the conclusion of the great continental war. He was first returned for Cashel, in 1809, and in a few years was promoted to office, being made under-secretary of state for the home department; not long afterwards he became secretary for Ireland; and in 1822, succeeded Lord Sidmouth as principal secretary of state for the home department, having been elected as its representative by his own university. Sir Robert continued in the office of home secretary, until the break-up of the Liverpool administration in 1827, when he resigned, and remained out of place till the formation of the Wellington cabinet, when he again returned to the post which he had previously occupied. In 1828, in conjunction with the Duke of Wellington, he brought in the bill for giving to Roman Catholics a right to sit in parliament. In 1830, he was returned for Tamworth, for which borough he has ever since sat. In that year he succeeded to the baronetcy. On the termination of the Duke of Wellington's premiership, Sir Robert also retired, and some time afterwards went for a tour upon the continent; but on the sudden dissolution of the cabinet of Earl Grey, who, up to the latter end of 1834, had held the reins of power, a messenger was despatched to request his return. He left Rome immediately upon the call of duty, and was installed as prime minister of the crown. He retained office, however, only for a few months, having been placed in a minority upon a resolution moved by Lord John Russell, for the appropriation of Irish church lands for the general purposes of the state. On the breaking up of Lord Melbourne's administration, in 1841, Sir Robert once more resumed the office of first lord of the treasury, which he retained until July, 1846. From the eminent position which he has for so many years held, Sir Robert Peel has of course largely participated in all the great political occurrences which have taken place during the last forty years. The first of the great changes of which he has been the author, was the reformation of our currency system. By an order in council, in 1797, Mr. Pitt, on the urgent representations of the directors of the Bank of England, suspended gold payments, and paper money gradually grew all over the country, until the guineas became worth 28s. and 30s. a piece. A parliamentary committee sat for several years to investigate the subject, and they ultimately recommended a metallic standard for our monetary circulation. Sir Robert carried a bill through parliament to accomplish that object, which came into full effect in 1825, no doubt altering all the previous pecuniary and commercial relations of the country. Sir Robert's next great object was the criminal law, which he revised, and consolidated, and amended, to such an extent, as to confer a benefit upon society, which would alone have been sufficient to shed a lustre over the course of any ordinary statesman. He then rearranged the system of metropolitan police, and converted it from being the very worst into the very best in Europe. His next great measure was in connection with the claims of the Roman Catholic portion of the British population for admission to the legislature. The repeal of the Test and Corporation Acts had already broken down that barrier of exclusiveness, by which theretofore all the places of emolument and trust in the civil departments of the public service had been confined to those who were, or professed to be, members of the Church of England. Sir Robert Peel carried the principle of that measure farther. He introduced the Catholic Relief Bill, or, as it is more popularly called, the Catholic Emancipation Bill, and succeeded in carrying it through both houses of parliament; and although great discontent was experienced for some time, the act by which the spiritual subjects of the Bishop of Rome were admitted to seats in the parliament of the sovereign of Britain, has not been as yet, at any rate, productive of the various evils which its opponents predicted. To the passing of the Reform Bill, that great social yet bloodless revolution, Sir Robert was a determined opponent. Whiggism and toryism, as such, were for ever banished, and parties were broken up. Then appeared before the general public the consummate generalship for which he is remarkable, and by which he organised a new party, which gradually grew in strength and energy, till it became powerful enough, after only four years' exclusion from power, to justify the resumption of the reins of government. He acceded to the wishes of the king, William IV., and took office; but finding those who thought differently from him still so numerically great, as to outnumber him on great questions of national polity, he scorned to retain his place without the necessary influence to render it available for the public good, and retired from the cares of Downing Street, to the refined luxuriance of Whitehall and the tranquil beauties of Drayton. Still, during the six years through which the Melbourne ministry existed, his voice was heard, and his weight was felt in every great senatorial encounter, and at length, in 1841, he was again called to the head of his sovereign's councils. One of his first measures, after again taking his place on the treasury benches, was to pass an act for granting a sum of money annually for the erection of chapels of ease, in connection with the church, wherever the inhabitants of a district should evince, by their subscriptions, a desire to enjoy the advantages of Christian observances according to the rites of the establishment. Two years afterwards, the term for considering the charter of the Bank of England having arrived, Sir Robert again went through the whole of the subject of the currency, and after long, animated, and renewed debates, once more succeeded, through the will of the legislature, in affirming the doctrines which he had originally declared to be the sound principles on which the monetary dealings of a great empire ought to be based. In the following session he did for the Roman Catholics what he had previously done for the Church of England. He obtained a vote from parliament for increasing the government grant to Maynooth College, the leading seminary of that body in Ireland: to this he added a further grant, through the aid of which, four other colleges are in course of establishment there, without regard to religious or political feeling. Sir Robert next addressed himself to the state of the commercial relations of the country, and ventured upon that great step which was a second time to gainsay the repeated asseverations of long years of official aptitude; and with a boldness, an address, and a singular fascination over his audience, which has rarely, very rarely, been equalled, and never surpassed, he propounded the grand theory, that, whatever be the advantages possessed by foreigners, however little they might be inclined to reciprocate our good-will, or return the benefits thrown open to them by this country, the energies and capabilities of Englishmen were competent, overloaded as they were with debt, to meet and overcome every emergency which might arise in consequence of the disadvantages under which they might be placed; and the decree was passed which altogether annihilated that protection from foreign competition which the agricultural community of the realm had previously enjoyed. Sir Robert had, however, prepared for this by a revision of the whole British tariff of commercial duties, altogether striking out, or greatly reducing, the imposts upon no less than twelve hundred articles of merchandise, liberating the business of the country from great burdens. To enter upon his great financial operations, through the agency of one of which he at once reduced the interest of the public debt by more than £1,200,000 a year, would be evidently beyond our limits, and it may therefore suffice to say, that shortly after the abolition of the corn duties, Sir Robert retired from office—still, however, taking an interested and large share in the parliamentary debates; and every sentence that falls from him retaining its wonted influence.

BONGATE. See APFLEY.

BONINGALE. See STOCKTON.

BONNINGTON, KENT, a parish, partly within the liberty of Romney Marsh, and partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Street, lathe of Shepway, union of East Ashford: 75 miles from London (coach road 60), 7 from Hythe, 7 from Ashford.---Sou. East. Rail. to Ashford, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 207 miles.---Money orders issued at Hythe: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---The parish is intersected by the Royal Military Canal, dug to convey stores, and for the defence of the coast during the late war.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £10. 12s. 8d.: pres. net income, £206: patron, T. Papillon, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Thomas Clarke, 1841: contains 1,810 acres: 34 houses: pop<sup>a</sup> in 1841, 155: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,747: poor rates in 1837, £86.

BONTESHALL (or BONSALL), DERBY, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wirksworth, on the western bank of the river Derwent, and in the vicinity of the Cromford Canal: 161 miles from London (coach road 143), 2 from Matlock, 3 from Wirksworth.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Derby to Ambergate station, thence 8 miles: from Derby through Ambergate, &c., 19 miles.---Money orders issued at Matlock: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The church is a handsome edifice, with a tower and spire. There is a school here, with an income of £100 per annum; it was founded and endowed, in 1704, by Mr. William Cragge and his wife, and it received a further endowment of land, in 1763, from Mrs. Elizabeth Turner. The master receives £46 a year, and the remainder is spent in the purchase of religious books and the apprenticing of boys in the parish; the school generally contains about 100 children. There is a Baptist chapel here. Some mines of lead and zinc are wrought in the neighbourhood, and there are also caulk-mills here, for grinding and converting caulk into an article but little inferior to white-lead; there are also some cupolas for melting lead ore.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Derby, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £9. 16s. 3d.: pres. net income, £201: patron, Bishop of Lichfield: pres. incumbent, E. S. Greville, 1838: contains 2,750 acres: 278 houses: pop<sup>a</sup> in 1841, 1,496: probable pop<sup>a</sup> in 1849, 1,720: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,886: poor rates in 1837, £386.

BONVILSTON, GLAMORGAN, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Dinas-Powis, union of Cardiff, South Wales: 153 miles from London (coach road 168), 8 from Cardiff, 5 from Cowbridge.---Gt. West.

Rail. to Weston-super-Mare, across the Bristol Channel to Cardiff, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Weston, &c., 171 miles.---Money orders issued at Cardiff: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 1 p.m.---The living is a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Llandaff: pres. net income, £83: patron, J. J. Basset, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. Evans, 1811: contains 50 houses: pop<sup>a</sup> in 1841, 263.

BONWICK, EAST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Skipton, northern division of the wapentake of Holderness—(which see for access, &c.): 192 miles from London, 4 from Hornsea, 11 from Driffeld.---Money orders issued at Hull: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> at noon: post closes 1½ p.m.---Contains 920 acres: 2 houses: pop<sup>a</sup> in 1841, 25: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £948: poor rates in 1837, £19.

BOOKHAM (GREAT), SURREY, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Effingham, union of Epsom: 26 miles from London (coach road 22), 3 from Leatherhead, 5 from Dorking.---Epsom Rail. to Epsom, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 158 miles.---Money orders issued at Leatherhead: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---There are two day and Sunday National schools here, for this and the adjoining parishes of Little Bookham and Fetcham. Tanner is of opinion that there was anciently an hospital here, dedicated to St. Anthony. The villas of the gentry here are very numerous.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Surrey, and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £9. 17s. 3d.: patron, W. Heberden, Esq., M.D.: pres. incumbent, William Heberden, jun., 1821: contains 3,170 acres: 157 houses: pop<sup>a</sup> in 1841, 963: probable pop<sup>a</sup> in 1849, 1,107: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,867: poor rates in 1837, £421.---E., Eastwick Place.---Fair, Old Michaelmas-day, for cattle, horses, &c.

BOOKHAM (LITTLE), SURREY, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Effingham, union of Epsom: 23 miles from London, 4 from Leatherhead, 5 from Cobham.---(For access, &c., see preceding article.)---The living, a discharged rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Surrey, and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £6. 15s. 7d.: pres. net income, £156: patron, Representatives of Rev. G. P. B. Pollen: pres. incumbent, D. S. Halkett, 1848: contains 950 acres: 27 houses: pop<sup>a</sup> in 1841, 237: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £990: poor rates in 1837, £61.

BOOLEY, SALOP, a township in the parish of Stanton-upon-Hine-heath, Whitechurch division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of North Bradford,—(which see for access, &c.): 152 miles from London, 5 from Wem, 9 from Shrewsbury.---Money orders issued at Shrewsbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.---Contains 25 houses: pop<sup>a</sup> in 1841, 158.

BOOTHBY, LINCOLN, a parish in the union of Lincoln, higher division of the wapentake of Boothby-Graffo, parts of Kesteven: 177 miles from London (coach road 125), 9 from Lincoln, 10 from Sleaford.---Nor. and East. Co. Rail. through Peterborough to Lincoln, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham and Newark to Lincoln, &c., 58 miles.---Money orders issued at Lincoln: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £11. 12s. 3½d.: pres. net income, £638: patron, J. Fullerton, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Pen. Latour, 1801: contains 2,850 acres: 34 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 214: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,876: poor rates in 1837, £90. Tithes commuted in 1771.

BOOTHBY-PAGNELL, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Winnibriggs and Threo, parts of Kesteven, union of Grantham: 132 miles from London (coach road 109), 7 from Colsterworth, 7 from Grantham.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough to Stamford, thence 16 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Syston to Stamford, &c., 84 miles.---Money orders issued at Stamford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup>. and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £11. 10s. 5d.: pres. net income, £375: patron, T Fardell, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. C. Newcome, 1846: contains 2,560 acres: 23 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 132: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,598: poor rates in 1837, £51.

BOOTHEN. See PENKULL and BOOTHEN.

BOOTHIS (HIGHER), LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Whalley, upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Blackburn: 216 miles from London (coach road 215), 4 from Burnley, 10 from Colne.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe, Manchester, and Bury, to Accrington, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, Manchester, &c., 118.---Money orders issued at Burnley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---This parish has increased very greatly of late years by the promotion of cotton manufactories. There are seven daily, six Sunday, and four infant schools here.---Contains 2,000 acres: 728 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,999: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 5,749: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £5,096: poor rates in 1837, £522.

BOOTHIS (LOWER), LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Whalley, upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Blackburn: 207 miles from London, 4 from Burnley, 10 from Blackburn.---(For access, &c., see preceding article.)---The inhabitants of this township are also chiefly engaged in the manufacture of cotton fabrics.---Contains 630 acres: 395 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,504: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,880: poor rates in 1837, including Dunnoekshaw, £338.

BOOTLE, CUMMERLAND, a parish and market town in the ward of Allerdale above Derwent, union of Bootle: 274 miles from London (coach road 290), 7 from Ravenglaas, 17 from Ulverstone.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Liverpool to Fleetwood, thence across Morecambe Bay to Piele, whence by railway to Bootle station: from Derby, through Crewe, Fleetwood, &c., 166 miles.---Money orders issued at Ravenglaas: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 1 p.m.---The town consists of a single well built street, and for its size has a considerable trade with Liverpool, in corn, pork, and bacon. There is an independent chapel here, and Bootle is one of the polling-places for the western division of the county. There are some remains of a Benedictine monastery at Seton, in this parish, which was founded by Gunild, daughter of Henry de Boyville, fourth lord of Millom. In the time of Henry IV. it was annexed to the hospital of St. Leonard, in Lancaster, and the revenues, at its dissolution, amounted to £13. 17s. 4d. One of the schools here has an endowment of £16. 3s. per annum. In the immediate vicinity of the town, the scenery is very bold, the Corney and Bootle Fells being almost immediately adjoining, and among them is the lofty mountain of Black Comb, which rises to the height of 1919 feet above the level of the sea. The Bootle poor-law union comprises twelve parishes, with an aggregate population of something more than 5,000 souls.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Richmond, and diocese of Chester, is valued at £19. 17s. 3½d.: pres. net income, £470: patron, Earl of Lonsdale: pres. incumbent, Arthur Wilkin, 1847: contains 6,652 acres: 123 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 696: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 800: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,965: poor rates in 1837, £283.---Fairs: April 5th, September 24th, corn; April 25th, August 3d, horses, cattle, and sheep.

BOOTLE WITH LINACRE, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Walton-on-the-hill, hun<sup>d</sup> of West Derby: 284 miles from London (coach road 207), 3 from Liverpool, 9 from Prescott.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Liverpool, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Crewe, &c., 104 miles.---Money orders issued at Liverpool: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---The village is a place of great resort of the inhabitants of Liverpool during the summer months for sea-bathing.---The living (St. Mary) is a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Chester: pres. net income, £164: patron, W. S. Millar, Esq.: pres. incumbent, John Crump, 1846: contains 1,050 acres: 183 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,962: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,256: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,197: poor rates in 1837, £287.

BOOTON, NORFOLK, a parish in the southern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Erpingham, union of St. Faith's: 141 miles from London (coach road 113), 2 from Reepham, 13 from Norwich.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Norwich, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough to Norwich, &c., 181 miles.---Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup>. and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £7. 12s. 6d.: pres. net income, £228: patron, H. Elwin, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Caleb Elwin, 1804: contains 1,030 acres: 46 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 241: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,150: poor rates in 1837, £191.---Booton Hall, a handsome building, the seat of Samuel Bircham, Esq., stands upon a handsome lawn near the centre of the town.

BORDEAN. See EAST MEON.

BORDEN, KENT, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Milton, lathe of Scray: 41 miles from London (coach road 39), 3 from Sittingbourne, 10 from Maidstone.---Gravesend Rail. to Rochester, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 173 miles.---Money orders issued at Sittingbourne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.---The church is ancient and interesting, and still contains a portion of its Saxon masonry. Sutton-Baron Manor-house was the birth-place of Dr. Robert Plot, the natural historian of the counties of Oxford and Stafford, to whose memory there is a mural monument in the church.---The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup>. and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £8. 10s.: pres. net income, £250: patron, J. Musgrave, Esq.: pres. incumbent, G. M. Musgrave, 1838: contains 2,010 acres: 164 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 860: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 989: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,122: poor rates in 1837, £293.

BORDESLEY (see ASTON), WARWICKSHIRE, a chapelry in the parish of Aston, forming part of the town of Birmingham: 113½ miles from London (coach road 109), 1 from Birmingham, 6 from Solihull. — Nor. West. Rail. to Birmingham, thence 1 mile: from Derby to Birmingham, &c., 42½ miles. — Money orders issued at Birmingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.

BORDESLEY, WORCESTER, a hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Tardebigg, upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Halfshire—(which see for access, &c.): 114 miles from London, 2 from Redditch, 12 from Birmingham. — Money orders issued at Redditch: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — Tanner, in speaking of this place, says—Maud, the empress, built, A.D. 1138, a Cistercian abbey here to the honour of the blessed Virgin. Its yearly revenues, not long before the suppression, amounted to £392. 8s. 6d. The site of this monastery was granted, in the 34th year of Henry VIII., to Andrew, Lord Windsor. The chapel was a part of the ancient abbey. — The living, a curacy not in charge.

BOREHAM, ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Chelmsford: 33 miles from London (coach road 32), 4 from Chelmsford, 7 from Maldon. — East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Chelmsford, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 165 miles. — Money orders issued at Chelmsford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. — The church contains some monuments to the Radcliffes, Earls of Sussex. In this parish there is a mansion called New Hall, which was erected in the time of Henry VII. It was successively occupied by the Princess Mary, Villiers Duke of Buckingham, Cromwell, and the Duke of Albemarle. It is now inhabited by a community of English nuns, who were driven from Liege during the first French revolution, and are now chiefly occupied in superintending the education of Roman Catholic ladies. A school here is endowed with rents of lands for teaching and clothing 25 children of the parishes of Boreham and Baddow. The Independents have a place of worship here. — The living, a vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Essex, and diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £10. 3s. 9d.: pres. net income, £432: patron, Bishop of London: pres. incumbent, Henry Brown, 1845: contains 3,820 acres: 101 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,054: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,212: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,411: poor rates in 1837, £644.

BORESFORD AND PEDWARDINE, HEREFORD, a township in the parish of Brampton-Bryan, hun<sup>d</sup> of Wigmore—(which see for access, &c.): 155 miles from London, 4 from Presteign, 13 from Ludlow. — Money orders issued at Presteign: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11½ a.m.: post closes at noon. — Contains, including the township of Brampton-Bryan, 3,190 acres: 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 125.

BORLEY, ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Hinckford, union of Sudbury: 62 miles from London (coach road 54), 3 from Sudbury, 7 from Headingham. — East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Marks-Tey station, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 194 miles. — Money orders issued at Sudbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. — In the church there are some splendid monuments of the Waldegrave family. — The living, a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Essex, and diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £9: pres. net income, £240: patron, Earl Waldegrave: pres. incumbent, J. P. Herringham, 1822: contains 730 acres: 41 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 188: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,335: poor rates in 1837, £65.

BORLEY. See OMBERSLEY.

BOROUGH, CARMARTHEN, a hamlet in the parish of Llanelly, hun<sup>d</sup> of Carnwallan, South Wales: 215 miles from London (coach road 221), 9 from Kidwelly. — Gt. West. Rail. to Weston-super-Mare, thence across the Bristol channel to Penarth, thence by rail to Merthyr-Tydvil, thence 40 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Weston, &c., 227 miles. — Money orders issued at Carmarthen: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ p.m.: post closes 9 p.m. — The inhabitants are chiefly miners and sailors. Excellent coal is found in the neighbourhood. — Contains 736 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,798: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 5,518.

BOROUGHBRIDGE, WEST RIDING, YORK, a market town and chapelry in the parish of Aldborough, lower division of the wapentake of Claro: 240 miles from London (coach road 206), 24 from York. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, by Raskelth, to Boroughbridge: from Derby, through York, &c., 108 miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. — Boroughbridge stands on the southern bank of the Ure, which is navigable here, and over which a stone bridge has been thrown. The town derives its name from a bridge over the Ure, erected very shortly after the Norman conquest. In 1322 a battle was fought in the neighbourhood between the army of Edward II. and the forces of the Duke of Lancaster. It was formerly a borough—the elective franchise having been conferred by a charter of Queen Mary, under which two members were returned to parliament, until it was placed in schedule A, by the Reform Bill; the right of election, until it was disfranchised, was held by about seventy-four individuals on burgage tenures, all of whom were entirely under the control of the Duke of Newcastle. The church is a small building, with a tower at the west end. In the market-place, which is about the centre of the town, there is a lofty stone cross formed of eight columns, united by a foliated capital. There is some trade in hardware, but until lately the town derived its chief support from the travellers who constantly passed through, it being situated on the great north road from London to Edinburgh. There is a Methodist chapel here, and the Independents and Baptists have each places of worship here; the Baptist church was formed in 1836. The chapelry is well supplied with schools. About half a mile south of the town there are three rude stone obelisks, which are called the devil's arrows; they are said to be monumental pillars, and are respectively 18, 22, and 31 feet in height. They are formed of the common ragstone, and that portion of them which is below the ground has evidently been wrought with a chisel. Dr. Stukeley, in speaking of them, says—Here was, in ancient British times, the great Panegyre of the Druids—the midsummer meeting of all the country round to celebrate the great quarterly sacrifice, accompanied with games, sports, races, and all kinds of exercises, with universal festivity. This was like the Panathenæan, the Olympian, Nemæan meetings and games among the Grecians. These obelisks were as the meta of the races; the remembrance hereof is transmitted in the great fair held here on St. Barnabas'-day. Dr. Stillingfleet regarded them as ancient British deities, but Leland, Drake, and Camden supposed them to have been works of the Romans, many relics of that people having been found in the neighbourhood, and it is known that they had a station at Aldborough. Races are held annually in the neighbourhood. —The living, a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond, and diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £82: patron, Vicar of Aldborough: pres. incumbent, J. Hartley, 1805: contains 220 acres: 155 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,024: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,178: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £894: poor rates in 1837, £374. —Market day, Saturday. Fairs: April 27 and 28, June 22 and 23, Oct. 23, for cattle and horses. —Bankers, York City and County Banking Co.—draw on Barnett, Hoares, & Co. —Inns: Crown, Greyhound, and White Horse.

BOROUGHBRIDGE, SOMERSET, a chapelry in the parishes of Ling, Othery, Middlezoy, and West Zoyland, hun<sup>d</sup> of Andersfield and Whitby—(which see for access, &c.): 131 miles from London, 6 from Langport, 10 from Taunton. —Money orders issued at Langport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. —The village stands on the eastern bank of the river Parret, which is navigable here. The chapel is an ancient cruciform structure, now in ruins; but a church has, within these last few years, been built for the accommodation of the residents, which is capable of containing 360 persons. There is a Baptist chapel here, the congregation of which was formed in 1837. Warner, in speaking of the place, says—Close to the hamlet of Boroughbridge, and near to the conflux of the Parret and the Thone, a large mound or barrow to the left hand, which gives name to the neighbouring village, attracted our attention. From the regularity of its form, we immediately judged it to be at least partly artificial; and this idea of its origin was strongly confirmed, when we learnt that the materials of which it is composed are not found within three miles of the spot where the barrow is situated. Its summit is crowned by an ancient chapel dedicated to St. Michael, who, by-the-by, seems to have been complimented with these elevated situations, probably from his being the head or chief of the angelical hierarchies. Having fallen into ruins, it has of late years been repaired and modernized. From the loftiness of this mound, swelling boldly out of a wide level, and towering far above the adjoining country, it appeared to be peculiarly adapted for the use to which it was originally dedicated; for as the district around exhibited only a woody marsh, without roads cut through it to any particular spot, it was indispensable to place the house of worship in a conspicuous situation, that the inhabitants might more easily find their way to this place of public meeting. The barrow, however, does not appear to have been always the pacific scene of prayer and thanksgiving. During the disturbances of the seventeenth century, it served for different purposes, and echoed the tumults of warfare, the shouts of triumph, and the cry of defeat. Goring having seized its summit, garrisoned it with 120 men, and made a gallant and successful resistance against the parliamentary forces. Nor was it taken from the royalists till after the battle of Langport, when all hope of relief being extinguished, and a formidable body of forces being prepared to attack it, the governor was compelled to surrender the place he had so long and so nobly defended. —(Returns with Ling and the other parishes.)

BOROUGH-FEN (VILLE), NORTHAMPTON, an extra parochial district in the liberty of Peterborough: 108 miles from London, 5 from Peterborough. —East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Peterborough, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Stamford to Peterborough, &c., 88 miles. —Money orders issued at Peterborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. —Contains 3,130 acres: 26 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 230: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £4,196.

BOROUGH-GREEN. See BURROUGH-GREEN.

BOROUGH-GREEN, KENT, a hamlet in the parish and hun<sup>d</sup> of Wrotham, lath<sup>s</sup> of Aylesford—(which see for access, &c.): 26 miles from London, 1 from Ightham, 4 from Seal. —Money orders issued at Seven Oaks: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. —(Other returns with the parish.)

BORRAS-BOVAGH, DENBIGH, a township in the parish of Wrexham, hun<sup>d</sup> of Bromfield, North Wales—(which see for access, &c.): 176 miles from London, 1 from Wrexham, 11 from Chester. —Money orders issued at Wrexham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. —Contains 6 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 51: poor rates in 1837, £43.

BORRAS-RIFFREY, DENBIGH, a township in the parish of Gresford, hun<sup>d</sup> of Bromfield, North Wales—(which see for access, &c.): 181 miles from London, 5 from Wrexham, 6 from Chester. —Money orders issued at Wrexham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. —Contains 4 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 47.

BORROWBY, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Leak, wapentake of Allertonsshire: 239 miles from London (coach road 222), 6 from Thirsk, 8 from Northallerton. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Leeds, to Thirsk, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Leeds and Thirsk, &c., 107 miles. —Money orders issued at Thirsk: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. —Contains 1,280 acres: 85 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 402: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 462: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £1,405: poor rates in 1837, £98.

BORROWBY, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Lythe, eastern division of the liberty of Langbaugh: 286 miles from London (coach road 245), 10 from Whitby, 12 from Gisborough. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby,

Derby, and York, to Whitby, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Normanton and York, &c., 154 miles. Money orders issued at Whitby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 1½ p.m.: post closes at noon. Contains 650 acres: 15 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 78: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £804: poor rates in 1837, £16.

BORROWDALE, CUMBERLAND, a chapelry in the parish of Crosthwaite, ward of Allerdale above Derwent: 359 miles from London, 7 from Keswick. Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe, Lancaster, Carlisle, and Whitehaven, to Cockermouth, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, Lancaster, &c., 276 miles. Money orders issued at Keswick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 2 p.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. There are two daily schools here, and at Grange and Crosthwaite the dissenters have a chapel. The chapelry of Borrowdale is celebrated for the production of the first plumbago in the world; and a very considerable business in the manufacture of lead pencils has consequently arisen in the district. The mineral is found embedded in nodules in grey felspar porphyry: the whole of it is sent to London; and even the pencil-makers of Keswick must apply to the makers in the metropolis for any supply they may require. The mine is only opened once a year, when a sufficient quantity is extracted to supply the market during the whole of the ensuing twelve months. The product is carried in small pieces of about three or four inches long to London, where they are exposed to sale in the black-lead market, held at a public-house in Essex Street, Strand, on the first Monday in every month. There are not more than seven or eight buyers, who investigate the quality of the lead by testing its hardness, that which is too soft being considered of inferior value. The individual who has the first choice pays 45s. a pound for the mineral; the others pay 30s.: but as this is the only opportunity of purchasing the material during the year, the several lots, as the sale draws to a conclusion, are again and again examined, in order to secure the best of those which remain: the sale generally produces about £3,000. No fresh supply has been brought into the market for some considerable time, with a view to using up the stock on hand, which accounts for the great deterioration in drawing-pencils so much complained of, an inferior quality being obtained on each succeeding visit to the store. Science has lately been brought to the aid of nature: the lumps of plumbago are pulverised and cleared from the grit, which is the great defect, constituting inferior quality; and in order to restore it to the solid form, without the admixture of any extraneous substance to bind it, the powder is submitted to immense hydrostatic pressure, uniting it into a mass, which is cut into slips to make pencils. A mark made with a pure plumbago pencil is entirely removed by the application of india-rubber; but a pencil made by using any adhesive mixture to bind the black material of which it is formed, leaves a stain which cannot be altogether effaced. There are the remains of an ancient fort here; and at the lower extremity of the dale there is a mineral spring, the properties of which are similar in some respect to those of the Cheltenham waters. The country in the vicinity of the chapelry is remarkably grand and picturesque.

Beyond Waterlath to the west, there is the tremendous pass opening out of the amphitheatre of hills which bind the head of Derwent water. Dark caverns yawn at its entrance, terrific as the wildness of a maniac, and disclose a narrow strait running up between mountains of granite, that are shook into almost every possible form of horror, and resemble the accumulations of an earthquake, splintered, shivered, piled, amassed. Through this region of desolation, which furnishes such a succession of romantic and picturesque scenes, that their features can in force and impressiveness be hardly paralleled anywhere in Britain, the river Derwent urges onward its headlong course—here struggling with torrent-like but impotent fury through some narrow passage, to which the clifly banks confine its course—there, brawling with a hoarse but not unmusical sound over its shallow bed, impeded by huge boulders and fallen masses of granite; or leaping from rock to rock, giving a lively animation to its rude, horrid, or fantastic boundaries. Near the entrance of the gorge there is a detached mountain, which derived its name from a fortress that once stood upon its summit to guard this pass, which, in the time of the border warfare, was all-important. At its foot is the romantic village or hamlet of Grange, placed among the woods and meadows which there skirt the Derwent. The views from the top of Castle Crag are singular and remarkably striking. On one side stretch out the vale and lake of Keswick, with all their varied beauty of rocks, islands, villages, seats, farm-houses, and cottages, with the lofty brow of Skiddaw overlooking his rugged neighbours in the back ground; on the other lie the straits of Borrowdale, where immense mountains, broken and jagged in their outline, are huddled together in the most singular manner, as if emerging from, or returning to, the wildest chaos; rock riots over rock, and mountain triumphs over mountain, until the eye is wearied in the endeavour to trace out the order in this apparent "confusion worse confounded." The living is a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Carlisle, not in charge: pres. net income, £80: patron, Vicar of Crosthwaite: pres. incumbent, G. Newby, 1838: contains 64 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 369: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 424: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £5,043: poor rates in 1837, £113. Fair, September, for sheep.

BORROWDEN (or BURRADON), NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Allenton, western division of Coquetdale ward—(which see for access, &c.): 310 miles from London, 7 from Rothbury, 16 from Alnwick. Money orders issued at Morpeth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7 p.m.: post closes 8 p.m. Contains 38 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 199: poor rates in 1837, £79.

BORSTALL (or BOARSTALL, sometimes written BURGHSTALL), BUCKINGHAM, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Ashendon, union of Bicester: 72 miles from London (coach road 52), 8 from Thame, 9 from Oxford. Gt. West. Rail. to Oxford, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Rugby and Banbury to Oxford, &c., 104 miles. Money orders issued at Thame: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. The chapel was rebuilt in 1818, by Sir John Aubrey, several monuments of whose family it contains. The charitable bequests of the chapelry produce about £20 a year. There is a well-authenticated tradition, that Bernwood forest was, in the time of Edward the Confessor, infested by a powerful wild boar, which was at last slain by a huntsman named Nigel, when the king, in consideration of his service, granted him some lands in the forest, to be held by cornage, or the service of a horn. On the lands thus granted, Nigel erected a manor-house, and called it Bore-stall, or Boar-stall, in memory of the event. The estate has descended in uninterrupted succession, by several heirs female, from the family of Nigel to that of Aubrey; and the original horn by which it was conveyed to the former is still in the possession of Sir Thomas Aubrey. The horn is of a dark brown colour, variegated like tortoise shell, the ends being tipped with silver. During the civil wars, Borstall tower being in the vicinity of the quarters of both the royalist troopers and the parliamentary forces, it was frequently the scene of contest. It was early garrisoned for the king, but was reduced in 1646 by General Fairfax. Sir Thomas's principal seat is in Wales, and he has another residence at Chalton, in this county. There is an ancient decoy-pond for wild ducks within the lordship. The living is a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Buckingham, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Oxford, united with that of Brill, and having jointly a pres. net income of £101: patron, Sir T. D. Aubrey, Bart.: pres. incumbent, J. S. Baron, 1814: contains 3,080 acres: 49 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 252: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,530: poor rates in 1837, £242.

BORWICK, LANCASTER, a chapelry in the parish of Warton, hun<sup>d</sup> of Lonsdale, south of the Sands: 254 miles from London (coach road 249), 7 from Kirkby-Lonsdale, 9 from Lancaster. Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Lancaster to Burton station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Crewe and Lancaster, &c., 144 miles. Money orders issued at Kirkby-Lonsdale: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. Contains 820 acres: 43 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 310: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 356: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,085: poor rates in 1837, £228.

BOSBURY WITH UPLEADER, HEREFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Radlow, union of Ledbury: 132 miles from London (coach road 124), 4 from Ledbury, 8 from Bromyard. Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 85 miles. Money orders issued at Ledbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. There is a school here, endowed by Sir Rowland Morton; but the property having got into Chancery, the revenues are swallowed up by the law expenses; the houses are dilapidated, the school-room is shut up, and the tenants now refuse to pay the rents. The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £10. 3s. 8d.: pres. net income, £337: patron, Bishop of Hereford: pres. incumbent, J. H. Underwood, 1830: contains 5,200 acres: 224 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,137: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,307: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £576: poor rates in 1837, £718.

BOSCASTLE (or BOTTEREAUX CASTLE), CORNWALL, a small port on the Bristol Channel, in the parishes of Forrabury and Minster, hun<sup>d</sup> of Lesnewth. (Returns with the parish of Forrabury and Minster.) The place is situated in a deep valley, surrounded by mountains, the eminences of which are clothed with brushwood. There was formerly a castle, belonging to the family of Bottereaux, who settled here in the time of Henry II., and gave their name to the place. The old chapel is now in ruins. The Wesleyan Methodists have a chapel here.

BOSCOBEL, SALOP, an extra parochial liberty in the division of Hales-Owen, hun<sup>d</sup> of Brimstree: 136 miles from London, 7 from Shifnal, 10 from Newport. Money orders issued at Shifnal: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. The manor-house, now much altered, was the place to which King Charles II. retreated after his defeat by Cromwell, at the battle of Worcester, on the 3d of September, 1651; and a large oak tree was long shown in the grounds as the place where he found an effectual concealment during the pursuit of the republican forces on the following day. The particulars of his flight and concealment in this neighbourhood, were very graphically given in a narrative, published during the year of the king's restoration, and is singularly curious. From it we learn, that immediately after the fight was over, when he quitted his court and lodgings, he rallied the most faithful and distinguished of his followers, and those who chose to share his flight. Colonel Careless, who was among the number, undertook to check the pursuit, which he did with great gallantry and success, no doubt saving the life of the fugitive monarch; and the Earl of Derby, who afterwards paid the penalty of his loyalty with his life, recommended the king to one Charles Gifford, Esq., a person of note in that county, as the conductor of his escape; and Francis Yates, a follower of that gentleman, acted as guide. After a rapid ride of twenty-five miles, the king and his party arrived, about three o'clock in the morning, at a house called White Ladies, which was about three quarters of a mile from Boscobel. The White Ladies was a house belonging to one Fitzherbert, where one George Penderell, hearing somebody knocking at the gate so early, and, opening the window, espied the aforesaid Francis Yates, who was his brother-in-law, with Mr. Gifford, to whom he presently opened the door, and inquired of his brother Yates what news from Worcester, who told him that the king was defeated, and in pursuit; and therefore bade him haste and put on his clothes. But before he could make himself ready, the king, with most of his lords, had entered the house, and come into the hall, where, after a short consultation held among them, the Earl of Derby called for William Penderell, the eldest brother, who, being come, George was sent to Tonge to one Robert Beard, an honest subject, to inquire of him whether there were any scattered parties of the king's thereabouts, or any of the enemy's appearing, who brought word that the coast was yet clear, and no parties at all to be seen. Having thus, for a time, obtained the assurance of safety, they set about disguising Charles; one gave him a hat, another a coat, another a pair of breeches, whilst a fourth acted the part of a tonsor, and cut off his hair close to the crown, so that he soon assumed the appearance of a very respectable woodman.

But their perils were not yet over, the huntsman was soon upon their heels, and the only means of secrecy appeared to be the branches of an oak in Boscobel Park. In one of Pepys' manuscripts, entitled "An account of his Majesty's escape from Worcester, dictated by the King himself," there is a detail of the adventure. It says—Major Careless told me (Charles) that it would be very dangerous for me either to stop in that house, or to go into the wood, there being a great wood hard by Boscobel; that he knew but one way how to pass the next day, and that was to get up into a great oak, in a pretty plain place, where we might see round about us, for the enemy would certainly search at the wood for people that had made their escape. Of which proposition of his, I approving, we (that is to say, Careless and I), went, and carried up with us some victuals for the whole day, viz., bread, cheese, and small beer, and nothing else, and got up into a great oak that had been lopped three or four hundred years before, and being grown out again, very bushy and thick, could not be seen through, and here we staid all the day. I having, in the meantime, sent Penderell's brother to Mr. Pitchcroft's (Whitgreave?), Penderell's brother, to know whether my Lord Wilmot was there or no; and had word brought me by him at night, that my lord was there—that there was a very secure hiding-hole in Mr. Pitchcroft's house, and that he desired me to come thither to him. Memorandum, That while we were in the tree, we see soldiers going up and down in the thick of the wood, searching for persons escaped, we seeing them, now and then, peep out of the wood. That night, Richard Penderell and I went to Mr. Pitchcroft's, about six or seven miles off. There were six brothers of the Penderells, who all appear to have been acquainted with the place of the king's concealment; but Richard and William were chiefly instrumental in aiding his escape. The former was known by the name of "Trusty Richard." Some of the brothers were taken into the royal service; and in 1680, Humphrey, the miller, who had, at White Ladies, lent the king his hat, turned up on all sides, was a footman to the Queen at Somerset House. It would appear from the numerous engravings of Richard and William Penderell, noticed in Granger, under the head of "persons remarkable for a single circumstance in their lives," they were popular characters, and well known in London. Richard died there, and lies buried in the church of St. Giles'-in-the-Fields, where a monument has been erected to his memory, and has the following inscription upon it:—"Here lieth the body of Richard Penderell, preserver and conductor to his sacred Majesty King Charles of Great Britain, after his escape from Worcester fight, in the year 1651, who died February 8, 1671," together with some lines, which, "as they are curious in themselves, and as singular a piece of bombast as we are likely to meet with, we will transcribe:—"

"Hold, passenger, here's shrouded in this herse, Unparalleled Penderell, thro' the Universe;
Like when the Eastern Star from Heav'n gave Light
To three lost Kings, so he, in such dark night,
To Britain's monarch, lost by adverse War,
On Earth appeared a second Eastern Star;
A Pole star, in her rebellious Maia,
A Pilot to her Royal Sovereign;
Now to triumph in Heaven's eternal sphere,
He's hence advanced for his just steerage here, Whilst Albion's Chronicle, with matchless Fame,
Embals the story of Great PENDERELL'S name."

Who was the author of the precious morceau, has never yet been ascertained; but if the lines were not Sir Richard Blackmore's, they ought to have been. Charles, afterwards, when jocosely "fighting his battles o'er again," among his gay companions, used to say that the rustling of Richard's calveskin breeches was the best guide for him during that dark night's walk. To facilitate his escape, after reaching Mr. Pitchcroft's, Mrs. Woolf discoloured his hands with walnut juice, to render their appearance more in consonance with his other disguise; and William Penderell's wife regaled him with a homely posset of skimmed milk and small beer, in all probability not the least acceptable part of his entertainment in his perilous position; and as his host could find no other shoes to exchange for those taken from his dripping feet, the kind-hearted woman put hot embers into them to evaporate the damp. Her husband then shaved the king, and cut off most of his hair, as short as the scissors could shear it, leaving it longer, however, about the ears, in order to render his countenance as much like that of a Roundhead as possible, and according to the fashion of the lower orders of the people in that country. The king enjoined his faithful subject to burn the hair which he had cut off, lest a discovery should ensue; but William was a wiser man than to obey such an injunction. He buried it, and when the good time came round for such a purpose, as Blount says, "with parts of it he pleased some persons of honour;" and, doubtless, as the applicants were numerous in those days of rising loyalty, as in the case of Shakspeare's mulberry tree, "there was a good deal of it;" and William's stock would not be very soon at an end. The oak at Boscobel, to which the name of Royal Oak is now given, is supposed to have sprung from an acorn from the very tree in which the king was concealed.—(Pop<sup>n</sup> included with that of Donnington parish.)

BOSCOMBE, WILTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Amesbury: 105 miles from London (coach road 174), 5 from Amesbury, 9 from Salisbury. —Sou. West. Rail. through Bishopstoke to Salisbury, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Banbury, Oxford, Reading, and Bishopstoke, to Salisbury, &c., 194 miles. —Money orders issued at Amesbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. —The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Sarum, is valued at £13. 17s. 1d.: pres. net income, £330: patron, Bishop of Salisbury: pres. incumbent, C. Fawcett, 1830: contains 2,000 acres: 31 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 156: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,023: poor rates in 1837, £19.

BOSHAM, SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bosham, rape of Chichester, union of West Hampnett: 82 miles from London (coach road 66), 3 from Chichester, 14 from Portsmouth. —Brighton and Sou. Coast Rail. through Chichester to Bosham station: from Derby, through London, &c., 214 miles. —Money orders issued at Chichester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. —The colossal head of a rude Saxon idol was found here in the churchyard. There is a school here, endowed with £5 per annum. The Independents have a chapel here. The manor of Bosham or Bosenham was one of the lordships of the see of Canterbury, till, through a clever but deceitful device, Godwin, Earl of Kent, obtained it for himself. Having a great desire to obtain the manor, Godwin met the archbishop on a certain occasion, in a particular place, when, addressing him with a feigned countenance, he said, Da mi Basium; i. e. 'Give me a kiss,' with which the prelate immediately complied; but the wily noble chose to put another construction upon the word, took the act as a confirmation of the grant, and immediately with his dependents assumed possession, thanking the archbishop for his munificent present, and thenceforth kept it peaceably. The editors of Lyson's Magna Britannia, in speaking of the place, after detailing this anecdote, say that—*Harold, his son, inherited it after him, but as it was unlawfully gotten it proved fatal to him and his family; for, retreating hither upon a time, as he used to do, for a privacy, because it is situated between woods and arms of the sea, he in a pinnace put to sea for his pleasure, and the wind turning on a sudden, he was driven ashore at Ponthieu in France, where, being taken prisoner, he was forced to pretend that he was sent of a private message to the Duke of Normandy, which he could not deliver to him unless that the duke would get his release, which he soon did, and Harold was carried into Normandy, where he behaved himself so well, that the duke was in love with him. Harold, it is probable, had then no thoughts of being king, but being desirous to ingratiate himself as much as he could with the duke, promised him to deliver the castle of Dover (which was then his own estate) to him, and to contribute his assistance to make him King of England, after Edward the Confessor's death, which last promise he confirmed by oath, and so was dismissed to England. King Edward died a little after, and Harold possessed himself of the throne, which William, Duke of Normandy, being enraged at, not so much for Harold's breach of oath, as for his own disappointment, raised an army, and having conquered Harold, made himself king. This manor, upon this revolution, was given by the Conqueror to William Fitz-Aucher and his heirs, in fee-farm, paying out of it yearly into the exchequer forty pounds of silver tried and weighed. After him it was the inheritance of William Marshall, and from him it passed to the family of Berkleys; for Maurice, Lord Berkley, having recovered it from those to whom his brother William had given it, died possessed of it and other estates in the 22d year of Henry VII. Herbert de Bosham was a native of this place; he was a good scholar, and amanuensis to Thomas à Becket, archbishop of Canterbury. He was present at the murder of his master, but had that discretion to make no resistance lest he should suffer the same fate. He wrote many books, and among the rest, one of his master's sufferings and death; after which, going over into Italy, the pope made him bishop of Benevento, and afterwards a cardinal. His death is not known as to the time. Tanner, in speaking of the ecclesiastical history of this place, says—*Upon St. Wilfrid coming among the South Saxons, about A.D. 681, he found, as venerable Bede says, here a small monastery of five or six religious, under the government of one Licul, a Scottish monk. After the Conquest, William Warlewast, bishop of Exeter, obtained of King Henry I. the grant of this place to himself and successors, who were patrons and visitors of the secular canons or prebendaries founded by that bishop in the choir of the parish church here, which was look- upon as a royal free chapel, dedicated to the Holy Trinity, and exempted from the ordinary jurisdiction of the bishop of Chichester and his archdeacon. The bishop of Exeter was in the place of dean or provost; the prebends of Waleton, Chedeham, Westbrook, Fountington, and Apulderham, are mentioned in the Lincoln taxation, and some show of a collegiate church remained here till the general dissolution. The site of this free chapel or college was granted, in the 6th year of Elizabeth, to Vincent Calmady, and the next year to the dean and chapter of Chichester.—The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Chichester, is valued at £6. 11s. 3d.: pres. net income, £120: patron, Dean and Chapter of Chichester: pres. incumbent, Henry Mitchell, 1845: contains 3,860 acres: 211 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 1,091: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 1,255: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £6,545: poor rates in 1837, £429.

BOSHESSTON, PEMBROKE, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Castle-Martin, union of Pembroke, South Wales: 234 miles from London (coach road 277), 6 from Pembroke, 9 from Milford. —Gt. West. Rail. to Weston-super-Mare, across the Bristol Channel to Penarth, by rail to Merthyr-Tydvil, and thence 50 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, to Weston, &c., 237 miles. —Money orders issued at Pembroke: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. —There is a cave, or rather a deep pit here, wide at the bottom but narrow at the top, called Bocheston Meer, which is of great depth, and communicates with the sea, into which the waters rush with violence at full tides, with a noise equal to that of the Bullers of Buchan in Scotland; and there are instances on record, in which, when the sea has been swollen and impelled by heavy gales, the waves within the confined space have been so agitated, as to cast up a column of foam more than thirty feet above the top of the pit. —The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of St. David's, is valued at £11. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £175: patron, Earl Cawdor: pres. incumbent, Wm. Allan, 1831: contains 40 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 225: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £603: poor rates in 1837, £105.

BOSLEY, CHESTER, a chapelry in the parish of Prestbury, hund<sup>d</sup>. of Macclesfield: 188 miles from London (coach road 162), 5 from Congleton, 6 from Macclesfield. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Leicester, and Uttoxeter, to Eaton, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Uttoxeter, &c., 56 miles. —Money orders issued at Congleton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. —The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Chester, is valued at £3. 10s.: pres. net income, £110: patron, Vicar of Prestbury: pres. incumbent, Wm. Sutcliffe, 1833: contains 3,180 acres: 97 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 552: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 634: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,541: poor rates in 1837, £196.

BOSSALL, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a parish, partly in the union of York, partly in the wapentake of Birdforth, and partly in that of Bulmer: it contains the chapelry of Sand-Hutton, and the townships of Bossall, Butter-Crambe, Claxton, Harton, Sand-Hutton, and a part of Flaxton-on-the-Moor: 238 miles from London (coach road 206), 10 from York, 11 from Pocklington. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, to Kirkham station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Normanton, York, &c., 106 miles.---Money orders issued at York: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---The church, which is cruciform, is an elegant edifice.---The living, a vicarage, with the curacies of Sand-Hutton, Flaxton, and Butter-Crambe annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cleveland, diocese of York, is valued at £12: pres. net income, £445: patron, Dean and Chapter of Durham: pres. incumbent, S. Gamlen, 1836: contains 9,820 acres: 248 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,184: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,362: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £11,866: poor rates in 1837, £564.

BOSSALL, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish---(which see for access, &c.)---Contains 1,090 acres: 9 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 87.

BOSSINEY. See TINTAGELL AND BOSSINEY.

BOSSINGTON, HANTS, a chapelry in the parish of Broughton---(which see for access, &c.)---hun<sup>d</sup> of Thorngate, Andover division of the county, on the western bank of the river Anton, and in the vicinity of the Andover Canal: 75 miles from London, 4 from Stockbridge, 11 from Winchester.---Money orders issued at Stockbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.---Contains 1,500 acres: 8 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 60: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £986: poor rates in 1837, £25.

BOSTOCK, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Davenham, hun<sup>d</sup> of Northwich: 166½ miles from London (coach road 170), 3 from Middlewich, 3 from Northwich.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Winsford station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Crewe, &c., 67 miles.---Money orders issued at Middlewich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.---Contains 930 acres: 35 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 251: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,363: poor rates in 1837, £158.

BOSTON, LINCOLN, a parish, borough, port, and market town in the wapentake of Skirbeck, union of Boston, parts of Kesteven and Holland: 136 miles from London (coach road 149), 36 from Lincoln.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Cambridge and Peterborough to station: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough, &c., 116 miles.---Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---The name of the town is supposed to be derived from a contraction of Botolph's town, a monastery having been founded here in the year 650 by the Saxon king St. Botolph, and in the Ordinatio Stapularium of Edward III. it is termed St. Botolph. Such indeed would appear to have been its original designation, and that it was changed or corrupted by degrees, for Lambard says---St. Botulphes now Bostonstow. A good towne in Lincolnshyre, commonly and corruptlye called Boston, wheare, whiles men weare occupi<sup>d</sup>. at a faire holden in tyme of Edward I., one Robert Chambers and his companions set fyre on sundry partes of the same; and when they of the towne leavinge their bouthes did their best to quenche it, he ran upon them, and killing them, spoiled their goods, 1288. Vide Part 2, Bale 27, of another Botulphes within the jurisdiction of Lincolnne towne, &c. During one of the incursions of the Danes in 870, at that time so frequent along the eastern coast of England, the whole town was sacked, plundered, and burnt, but the monastery was shortly afterwards rebuilt to the north of the church, and its remains are still visible in a dwelling-house which is called Botolph's priory. Dr. Stukeley expresses an opinion that a ferry formerly existed here, across the river Witham, a supposition which is extremely probable, as this must have been the great line of communication on the eastern coast. Boston must always have been a place of considerable importance, as it offered the best entrepôt both for merchandise and passengers, south of the Humber, on that margin of the sea, to all the vessels coming from Holland and the coast of France; and accordingly, we find that, in 1204, the town paid £780 of duty, while London in that year paid only £836, so that it must have ranked in commercial estimate next to the metropolis itself. But it had many checks to its prosperity, for it suffered not only, as has just been stated, by fire, in the time of Edward I., but also, three years before, from a dreadful inundation, and its wealth and importance rapidly declined. To revive these, however, in the 27th year of Edward I., it was made a staple for wool, leather, lead, tin, and other mercantile goods; and the Hanseatic merchants having settled a guild here, its welfare was rapidly advanced, so that in the time of Edward III. it was able to send sixteen vessels towards an armament for the invasion of Brittany. But the mouth of the Witham becoming choked, the navigation was impeded by muddy shoals; and when Leland wrote in 1530, notwithstanding the patronage of Henry VIII., and afterwards of his daughter Elizabeth, it again sunk to comparative littleness. The town is, however, now more elevated than ever it was; the port has been improved, the harbour and the place enjoy the benefit of railway communication, and Boston cannot but very speedily become one of the most important coasting towns of England. An Augustine friary was founded here in 1307, the site and revenues of which were granted in the 37th year of Henry VIII. to the mayor and burgesses for the benefit of the town; a Dominican monastery, founded about 1288, was granted in the 32d year of the same sovereign to Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk, the king's brother-in-law; and a Franciscan monastery, founded by the Esterling merchants, with a Carmelite friary, was also granted in the 37th of Henry VIII. to the mayor and burgesses. The town is well built, contains many handsome houses, is well supplied with shops, abounds with granaries and warehouses for the stowage of mercantile commodities, and wears altogether the air of a thriving, active, bustling place of business. It is excellently paved and well lighted with gas, under the provision of a local act, but hitherto the efforts, numerous and expensive as they have been, to obtain a good supply of water have been abortive, as is the case with most coastwise towns. In the markets, large quantities of poultry and fish are weekly placed; the greater portion of the former is bought up for the London consumption; but the latter is chiefly sent to the midland counties. An extensive business is also done in corn and wool, a great portion of the former going to Manchester, and of the latter to Leeds. The cattle market, which is held always once, sometimes twice a week, is upon an open space to the north-eastern end of the town, called the Lower Bargate. Since the middle of the last century, the depositions in the Lower Witham have been removed, its bed has been equally deepened, and a canal has been carried from it to Dogdyke with the most beneficial consequences, not only to the town, but to the whole of the surrounding district. The quay is now accessible to vessels of 100 tons burthen; the river has been made navigable as far as Lincoln, whence there is a vast inland communication with the Trent, and, through it and its contingents, with the whole of the manufacturing districts of Nottinghamshire, Derbyshire, Lancashire, and the neighbouring counties, as well as with Birmingham and the south. Extensive powers are granted to the mayor and burgesses, under two local acts, for the improvement of the port and harbour, and their authority has not been suffered to lie useless. By those acts they are authorised to collect tonnage, wharfage, and lastage, from vessels coming into the harbour, according to certain specified rates, which have lately been reduced, the proceeds of which, after paying all necessary expenses, are to be applied to deepening, cleansing, and improving the harbour. The expenditure, under these acts, from 1812 to 1832, was something under £90,000, and the vessels now belonging to the port are about 200. There are no manufactures, properly so called, carried on in the town, but there are two iron foundries, and three building yards, one of which has a patent slip, where vessels of 200 tons burden, and under, are continually in course of construction. The tide rises thirteen feet in the harbour, but when the great improvements on the Wash have been completed, it is expected that a tidal depth of nineteen feet will be obtained. The export trade consists chiefly in carrying the produce of the rich agricultural district by which Boston is surrounded; and this has increased greatly since the draining of the extensive fens in the neighbourhood, from which upwards of 70,000 acres of good land have been recovered. There is a custom-house and pilot-office here. The church is a handsome and spacious structure; the tower is 262 feet high, and resembles that of the cathedral at Antwerp. It forms an excellent guide for sailors, being visible as far as forty miles out at sea, and is surmounted by an elegant octagonal lantern, which seems designed to have been lighted up at night as a sea-mark. The church was founded in 1309, it is supposed, by Sir John Tilney and his lady, whose effigies are placed in the church. The burial-ground of St. John's has been disused, the church dedicated to that saint having long since been removed. The chapel of ease, erected in 1822, is a perpetual curacy, of the value of £100 per annum, and is under the patronage of trustees. The Independents, the Wesleyan, and New Connexion Methodists, the General and Particular Baptists, the Society of Friends, the Roman Catholics, and the Unitarians, all have places of worship here. In 1554, Queen Mary founded a free grammar-school here, the head master of which receives £100 a year, and the usher £60, under the direction of the corporation, who are the trustees. In 1707, a school for twenty-five boys was founded by Mr. Laughton, each of whom, at the age of fourteen, is apprenticed to a free burgess, and is entitled to have a fee of £15 paid for him; the original endowment was only £50 a year. There are also a National and a blue-coat school, the latter of which is partly supported by the produce from bequests; and there is a dispensary in the town. Boston is a borough by prescription, but has received numerous charters to secure and define its privileges, and is chiefly governed by that of the 37th of Henry VIII., confirmed and extended by one granted by Queen Elizabeth. The other charters bear the dates of the 3d of Elizabeth, 2d of James I., 3d of Charles I., 1st of James II., and 4th of James II.; the freedom of the town is acquired by birth, servitude, gift, and purchase. By the general municipal act of 1835, the town has been divided into two wards—those of Boston West ward, and Bargate ward. The mayor is, ex officio, general escheator, returning officer at elections for members of parliament, and clerk of the market; a commission of the peace having been granted to the town, he is of course by right a magistrate. Under the charter of Queen Elizabeth, the corporation had a right to hold admiralty courts for the neighbouring coast; quarterly courts of session, and other courts for the recovery of small debts, were also held in the borough. Petty sessions are now held every Friday. By the local act passed in the 47th of George III., a court of requests was established for the recovery of small debts, not only in the borough, but also in the parish of Boston, and in the hundreds of Skirbeck and Kirton, except in the parishes of Gosberton and Surfleet; and a court of pie-powder is held at each of the fairs, at which the mayor presides. There are also here the house of correction for the parts of Holland, the borough gaol, and the guild-hall, which is an ancient building. The two former stand upon ground known as the Dock Pasture, which is the property of the corporation; it is detached from other buildings, but is very insecure, owing to the want of a boundary wall. It is a plain building of three stories, the cells of the prisoners being ranged along central passages. The keeper is allowed sixpence a day for the maintenance of each of the prisoners. The tread-wheel for the male and female prisoners is on the same shaft, and of course moves with the same velocity in both departments of the prison. Before the wheel for the men, there was a novel and not unamusing plan adopted for keeping the prisoners at work—a pit or trough of water, about three feet deep, extends the whole length of the wheel, to prevent them from jumping off. In ordinary periods, the total number of prisoners is about 130. The Boston poor-law union comprehends twenty-seven parishes, spread over an area of 163 miles, and contains about 30,000 inhabitants. The average annual expenditure on the poor, previous to the passing of the poor law, was £16,705, which was afterwards reduced to £10,161. Although a borough by prescription, the direct right of returning two members to parliament was conferred in the reign of Edward VI., from which time Boston has always returned two, the right of election being vested in the resident freemen paying scot and lot, who were about 400 in number; and, during the old regime, bribery prevailed to a tremendous extent, it being, it appears, the regular custom to give five guineas for a single vote, and ten guineas for a plumper. By the Reform Bill, the limits of the old borough were extended; they now comprise the parish of Skirbeck, and the hamlet of Skirbeck quarter, exclusive of the fen-allotment of that parish, and these together now return two members to parliament. The Irby family derive the title of Viscount from the town. There are penny-posts to Leak, Leverton, Bennington, Wrangle, Sutterton, Gosberton, Wanfleet, and Friskney. Boston is a polling-place for the members of the parts of Kesteven. John of Boston, sometimes called Boston of Bury, the celebrated ancient ecclesiastical writer, was a native of this place. The editors of Lyson's Magna Britannia, in the Edinburgh edition of 1738, say of him, that—He travelled all over England, and exactly perused the libraries in all monasteries, whereby he was enabled to write a catalogue of ecclesiastical writers, as well foreign as English, extant in his age, in which he was so accurate as not only to give us the general titles, but the initial words of every book, and the place in each library where they are to be found, which was a great help to John Leland. His manuscript was never printed, but the Archbishop of Armagh is said to have rejoiced much in this,—that he had the best copy of it in Europe. It is certain that the lovers of antiquities value it as a rarity of rarities. It was dedicated to Henry IV., king of England, in whose reign he flourished, and finished this work in the year 1410, or thereabouts. But Boston was also the birth-place of a more celebrated and far more useful man, John Fox, the author of the 'Book of Martyrs.' He was born in 1517, and educated at Oxford. Applying himself early and diligently to the study of theology, he became a sincere convert to the principles of the Reformation, was in consequence expelled from his college for heresy, and suffered great privations. Some time before the death of Henry VIII., he was employed as a tutor in the family of the Duchess of Richmond, to educate the children of her brother, the gallant and refined Earl of Surrey, at that time a state prisoner through the jealousy of some of the tyrant's minions. Shortly after Edward VI. ascended the throne, he was restored to his fellowship; but on the accession of Mary, deemed it prudent to retire to the continent, where he obtained a livelihood by acting as a corrector of the press, for an eminent printer at Basle. When the tyranny of popery had passed away, he returned to England, and settled in the family of his former pupil, the Duke of Norfolk, where he remained till his death, receiving shortly after his return a prebendal stall in Salisbury Cathedral. He was the author of many controversial tracts; but the work on which his fame rests—and it is a world-wide fame—is his details of the sufferings, the patience, and the fortitude of those heroic men, who did not hesitate to seal their faith with their blood, and to pass through the fire at the stake to their promised inheritance, during the reign of the bloody and unhappy Mary. Fox died in 1587, at the age of 69.—The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £36. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £360: patron, Mayor and Corporation: pres. incumbent, J. F. Ogle, 1838: contains 5,220 acres: 2,437 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 12,942: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 14,883: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,423: poor rates in 1837, £5,051. The great and small tithes of East Boston, the property of the corporation, were commuted in 1810; and all tithes of Fen, West Boston, the property of the mayor and burgesses, were commuted in 1771.—Market days, Wednesday and Saturday. Fairs, May 4 and 5, cattle; Aug. 4, sheep; Aug. 5, fat cattle; Nov. 18, horses; Dec. 11.—Bankers: Garfitt, Claypons, & Co.—draw on Masterman & Co.; Gee and Co.—draw on Roberts, Curtis, and Co.; National Provincial Bank—draw on Spooner, Attwoods, & Co.; Stamford, Spalding, and Boston Banking Co.—draw on Barclay, Bevan, & Co.—Inns: Peacock, White Hart, and Red Lion.

vol. 1

27

BOSTON, WEST RIDING, YORK, a hamlet in the parish of Bramham, wapentake of Barkstone-Ash, on the southern bank of the river Wharfe—which see for access, &c.): 196 miles from London, 4 from Tadcaster.—Money orders issued at Tadcaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—The town is well built, and highly respectable in appearance. The church is a very handsome modern structure, with a tower at the west end. There is a saline spring here, the qualities of which were first discovered in 1744: its waters are conveyed by the agency of a small pump into a room, for the convenience of visitors; and immediately adjoining this room, hot and cold baths have been prepared. The discovery of this spring, and the sweetly picturesque beauty of the scenery around the village, have attracted many strangers, and the place is now a favourite resort for the whole district.—The living is a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York: pres. net income, £146: patron, Vicar of Bramham: pres. incumbent, T. Brounrigg, 1818.—(Other returns with the parish.)

BOSWORTH (HUSBANDS), LEICESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Gartree, union of Market-Harborough: 92 miles from London (coach road 83), 6 from Market-Harborough, 6 from Lutterworth.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Bosworth: from Derby, through Rugby, &c., 59 miles.—Money orders issued at Market-Harborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.—There is a school here endowed with £15 a year, and two others are respectively supported by private benevolence. The other parochial charities produce about £79 a year. A Baptist congregation was formed here in 1793, and the Roman Catholics also have a chapel.—The living, a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Leicester, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £24. 15s. 7½d.: pres. net income, £929: patron, Rev. J. T. Maine: pres. incumbent, H. P. Costobadie, 1843: contains 3,870 acres: 177 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 953: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,095: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,875: poor rates in 1837, £510. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1794.—Fair, Oct. 16, for cattle and sheep.

BOSWORTH (MARKET), LEICESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Sparkenhoe, union of Market-Bosworth: it comprises the market town of Bosworth, the chapelries of Barleston, Carlton, Shenton, and Sutton-Cheney, the township of Barton-in-the-Beans, and part of the township of Osbaston: 114 miles from London (coach road 106), 7 from Hinckley, 14 from Leicester. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Leicester, to Desford station, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, &c., 41 miles. — Money orders issued at Hinckley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The church contains some interesting monuments of the Dixie family, and has a fine spire. The Baptists and Independents have chapels here. There is a grammar-school here, free for the children of all residents, which was founded in 1592 by Sir Wolstan Dixie, who had been lord mayor of London; but the property attached to it has been long in Chancery: tuition has consequently been suspended, and the funds have accumulated to the amount of £20,000: the governors are ten in number, including the rector and the churchwardens of the parish. Connected with the school there are two fellowships of £30 each, and four scholarships of £10 each, all founded by Sir Wolstan Dixie. The Rev. Anthony Blackhall was one of its masters; and among its ushers it numbered the great lexicographer and moralist, Dr. Johnson; and the celebrated mathematician, John Simpson, who was a native of the town. The inhabitants have a right of sending six poor widows to the hospital founded by Mr. Ferrand Spence, near Skipton, in Yorkshire, and at the present time the whole number are there housed; each of them has a separate apartment, and an income of £21 a year. At Sutton-Cheney there is an almshouse for six poor men, and other parochial charities produce about £60 a year. The poor-law union, of which Market-Bosworth is the chief place, comprises 28 parishes, extending over an area of 79 square miles, with a population of about 12,000 souls. Previous to the formation of the union, the expenditure in the district for relief was about £7,000 a year; afterwards it was reduced to about £5,500. The charter for the market was granted by Edward I. There are some manufactures of coarse woollen here; and the Aahby Canal passes near the town. John Simpson, the celebrated mathematician alluded to above, was born here in 1710; and from an humble origin and extreme poverty, rose to fame, respectability, and competence, through the energetic application of his mental endowments. Though precluded from a scholastic education by the penury of his parents, he ultimately became a proficient in mathematical learning. Of what his early predilections were, we have no account, but his genius, if latent, appears first to have been roused when he was about fourteen years of age, by an eclipse of the sun, which greatly excited his curiosity, and induced him to enter upon that study which stimulated, whilst it gratified, his mental appetite. From one of those itinerant pedlars and astrologers, who were the medium of transmitting the superstitions of the seventeenth century to that which followed, he obtained some knowledge of arithmetic and the occult sciences, and he then determined to try his fortune in London. Poverty, however, was for some time an insuperable bar to the gratification of his wishes; but this was at last surmounted by the friendly assistance of a shopkeeper in the town, who had long seen the lad's predilections, and had had an inkling, as they would say in that part of the country, of his after success—a presentiment of his future fame. In 1732 he made his way to this Babylon of aspiring spirits, broken hearts, and lofty attainments, and obtained subsistence as a silk-weaver in Spital-fields, eking out his little earnings by giving instructions in the mathematics to those more ignorant than himself; and to enable him to do so, constantly keeping a book open upon his loom. Diligence is never without its reward. His progress was so rapid, that by the year 1737 he had written, and contrived, through friendly assistance, to publish, his excellent treatise on Fluxions. It should be recollected that the man who wrote it was only twenty-seven, and was a weaver earning his daily bread. That work established his fame, and its success induced him to prepare another work on Chances and Annuities, which he published in 1740, but which involved him in a controversy with Demolivre. Three years afterwards he was appointed professor of mathematics to the military school at Woolwich. Not long after that, he was elected a fellow of the Royal Society, and a member of the Academy of Sciences at Paris. He died in 1761, and his widow had a pension granted to her by the Crown. Beside these works, he wrote several papers which appeared in the Philosophical Transactions, and a treatise on the Elements of Geometry and Algebra, which was, and still is, a university tuition-book. His remains were interred in Sutton-Cheney churchyard, yet no appropriate memorial has been raised to his memory; but, as in the case of Sir Christopher Wren, his fame is his constant epitaph; and, as Shree said of Sir Joshua Reynolds,

"Si monumentum requirita, circumspecte;"

"Genius, like Egypt's monarchs, timely wise,
Constructs its own memorial ere it dies;
Leaves its best image in its works enshrined,
And makes a mausoleum of mankind."

Adjoining the town is Bosworth House, the seat of Sir Willoughby Wolstan Dixie, Bart., a descendant of the Sir Wolstan Dixie spoken of above, who presented the estate at Bosworth to his great nephew, Sir Wolstan Dixie, descended from Wolstan Dixie of Chatsworth, in the county of Huntingdon, living in the time of Edward III., and who seated himself at Bosworth in the time of Queen Elizabeth. The son of that gentleman, Sir Wolstan Dixie, Knt., warmly embraced the cause of the king on the breaking out of the civil war; and Charles, in grateful acknowledgment for his services, presented him with the patent for a baronetcy, which, however, owing to the confusion of the times, was not taken out until after the Restoration, in 1660. From that gentleman, Sir Wolstan, the eighth baronet, the present proprietor of Bosworth, is lineally descended. On an extensive moor in the neighbourhood, between Bosworth and Hinckley, was fought the celebrated battle between Henry of Richmond and Richard III., which put an end to the contest of the Roses that had for nearly a century desolated the country with rapine and bloodshed. It was fought on the 22d of August, 1485. The well at which the king refreshed himself is still in existence, and bears a Latin inscription from the classic pen of Dr. Parr. Henry, Earl of Richmond, landed at Milford on the 6th of August, and arrived at Tamworth on the 18th.

On the 19th he had an interview with his father-in-law, Lord Stanley, when the measures were concerted for their future operations—operations which were destined to leave Richard a corpse, and wreath the brow of Richmond with a crown. On the 20th he encamped at Atherstone, and on the 21st both armies were in sight of each other the whole day. Richard had entered Leicester with his army on the 16th; he slept at Elmesthorpe on the night of the 17th; and on the 18th he arrived at Stapleton, where he continued till Sunday the 21st. The number of his troops exceeded 16,000, while those of Richmond were only 5,000; but crime has its attending evil waiting only for the moment to destroy. Richard was able, enterprising, brave as his own sword; but the spirit of the man had oozed through his hypocrisy; the cool, calculating covetousness of wealth and honour, which prompted the cold-blooded murder of his innocent nephews, had not been overlooked by an all-seeing Providence. The nobles avoided him, the middle classes hated him, and by all he was feared though not despised. The Duke of Norfolk alone was the only peer that held steadfastly to his cause, and he died for his fidelity. The only person of ability he could trust was Lord Stanley, the near relative of the man who was come to drive him from his throne. That nobleman leaving his son, Lord Strange, as a hostage for his good conduct, went into the west to raise troops, and soon gathered 7000 men. With these he waited on the confine of the battle-field, anxious to serve Richmond, but fearful for his son. This disposition was suspected, if not seen, by Richard; but the paucity of his noble followers obliged him to put up with that, which, had circumstances been different, would speedily have cost Stanley his head: confident in the numbers of his men, he conceived that he might neglect the circumstance for a moment, to punish it, in all probability, with the greater severity at an after-time. The night before the battle was an awful period of suspense. The prize was a country and a crown. Life and death, honour and interminable disgrace, hung upon the issue. Richmond appears to have been calm, cool, and vigilant; while the fiery nature of Richard, stung with the insult of the incursion, and lashed by the remorse of conscience, left him no repose. He is represented as passing the greater portion of the night in his tent, ruminating on the coming contest; and, harassed by the deep obscurity around, as he looks out upon the darkness, and listens to the sounds borne upon the air from the opposing camps, exclaims—

*"How awful is this gibom! and hark, from camp to camp
The hum of either army stilly sounds,
That the fix'd sentinels almost receive
The secret whisper of each other's watch.
Steeds threaten steed in high and boastful neighings,
Piercing the night's dull ear. Hark, from the tents
The armourers accomplishing the knights,
With clink of hammers closing rivets up,
Give dreadful note of preparation; while some,
Like sacrifices by the fires of watch,
With patience sit, and idly ruminate
The morning's danger."*

On each side the leader addressed his troops, which, says an old historian, was scarcely finished, but the one army espied the other. Conscience! how hastily the soldiers buckled their helmets! how quickly the archers bent their bows and brushed their feathers!

how readily the billmen shook their bills and proved their staves, ready to approach and join when the terrible trumpet should sound the bloody blast to victory or death! Very shortly after the commencement of the engagement, Lord Stanley joined Richmond, and thus almost equalised the forces of the two parties, encouraging one and dispiriting the other. Richard performed prodigies of valour; but his troops gradually gave way. Urged on by his natural impetuosity, he sought a contest with Richmond himself, who was by no means disinclined to the combat. Hewing his way through the contending hosts, he endeavoured to meet his foe, in doing which he slew Sir William Brandon, Richmond's standard-bearer, and Sir John Cheney, who endeavoured to cover his commander; but Sir William Stanley hemmed him in with his troops, and he fell covered with wounds. His corpse, after the battle, was thrown carelessly across the back of a horse, carried to Leicester, and buried there in the Greyfriars' church. He was the only English monarch who fell in battle since the Conquest, and the second who entered the field with his crown, Henry V. having appeared at Agincourt in his, which was the means of saving his life, as it was cleft by the blow of a battle-axe, and thus prevented it from dividing his skull. Richard's fell off during the engagement, was taken up and secreted in a bush, where it was found by Sir Reginald Bray, and placed upon Henry's head; and thence it was, that the device of a crown in a hawthorn bush was sculptured on Henry's tomb in Westminster Abbey. The battle lasted not more than two hours; but, during that time, 1000 of Richard's men were slain, although the loss on Richmond's side did not amount to more than one-tenth of that number. In 1644, Bosworth field was again the scene of contest, a sharp skirmish having occurred there between the parliamentarians and the royalists, in which the latter were defeated. The living, a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Leicester, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, with the curacies of Sutton, Barleston, Carlton, and Shelton annexed, is valued at £55. 18s. 4d., having jointly a pres. net income of £903: patron, Sir W. W. Dixie, Bart.: pros. incumbent, N. P. Small, 1847: contains 8,040 acres: 523 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,531: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,911: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,982: poor rates in 1837, £611. Market day, Wednesday. Fairs: May 8, July 10, for horses, horned cattle, and sheep. Bosworth Park.

BOTCHARDBY, CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of St. Cuthbert, within the liberties of the city of Carlisle—(which see for access, &c.): 302 miles from London, 1 from Carlisle, 10 from Brampton. Money orders issued at Carlisle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 165.—(Other returns with the parish.)

BOTCHESTON AND NEWTON, LEICESTER, a township in the parish of Rathy, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Sparkenhoe—(which see for access, &c.): 104 miles from London: 8 from Leicester, 9 from Hinckley. Money orders issued at Leicester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.—Contains 15 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 94: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,168.—(Other returns with the parish.)

BOTESDALE (or BOTULPH'S DALE), SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Hartismere: 93 miles from London (coach road 86), 6 from Diss. —East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. by Haughley Road station to Thranleston, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, and Norwich, to Thranleston, &c., 189 miles. —The town consists of one long street, with a few cross minor thoroughfares, which extends into the parishes of Upper and Lower Rickinghall. The chapel contains the remains of Sir Nicholas Bacon, the father of the great philosopher, Lord Bacon, and of Lord Chief Justice Holt, two of the greatest lawyers and most upright judges that ever sat upon the bench; and there are monuments to their memory. There is a free grammar-school here, which was founded and endowed in 1576 by Sir Nicholas Bacon; it has six exhibitions at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge. There are also a day and Sunday school, at which about 150 children are taught, through a bequest of sixteen acres of land by J. Dyas, Esq. Botesdale is a polling-place for the western division of Suffolk. Sir Nicholas Bacon was the first lord-keeper who was ranked as Lord High Chancellor; he died in 1579. Sir John Holt, celebrated alike for his firmness, integrity, and great legal knowledge, was born at Thame, in Oxfordshire, in 1642; he remained some time at Oriel College, Oxford, and then became a member of Gray's Inn. For about a year and a half he filled the office of Recorder of London, but his uncompromising opposition to the repeal of the Test Act exciting much enmity, induced him to resign his civic duties. He afterwards entered the House of Commons, and distinguished himself so much by his exertions and ability, in what was called the convention parliament, that on the accession of William III. he was made Chief Justice of the Court of Queen's Bench. On the retirement of Lord Somers from the woolsack, he was offered the chancellorship, but he declined it, and continued to discharge his official functions with an uprightness and readiness which gained him great popularity whilst living, and secured him the respect of posterity after death. He died in 1709. —The living is a curacy in the diocese of Norwich, annexed to Redgrave, and having jointly a pres. net income of £777: patron, G. St. Vincent Wilson, Esq.: pres. incumbent, T. D. H. Wilson, 1844: contains 540 acres: 119 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 633: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 728: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,565: poor rates in 1837, £310. —Market day, Thursday. Fairs, Holy Thursday, for cattle and toys. —N., Redgrave Hall.

BOTHAL, NORTHUMBERLAND, a parish and township in the eastern division of the ward and union of Morpeth: it comprises the townships of Ashington with Shipwash, Bothal-Demesne, Longhirst, Old Moor, Pegswood, and Hebburn Chapelry, in the west division of the ward: 323 miles from London (coach road 291), 3 from Morpeth, 15 from Shields. —Nor. West Rail. through Rugby, Derby, York, and Newcastle, to Morpeth, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Normanton, York, &c., 191 miles. —Money orders issued at Morpeth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. at noon: post closes 1½ p.m. —Bothal was made the head of a barony by Richard I., and was for some time in the possession of the Bertram family; from whom it passed by the marriage of Helen, daughter and heiress of Robert Bertram, who was sheriff of Northumberland in the time of Edward III., with Sir Robert Ogle, who bequeathed his paternal estate to his son Robert, and his barony of Bothal to his younger son John. The former, levying a force of two hundred men, took possession of it by force of arms, but was subsequently ejected from it by parliament. Having, however, greatly distinguished himself on the side of the house of York during the war of the Roses, he was created Baron of Bothal and first Lord Ogle of Ogle, and retained possession of the barony. From the Ogles it passed to the Cavenishes, and subsequently to the family of the Duke of Portland, whose property it is at the present time. The village stands in a small vale on the north bank of the river Wansbeck, sheltered on three of its sides by a fine range of hills, which rise about it in the form of an amphitheatre. The country around it is delightfully varied, and abounds in rich and picturesque scenery. On the north bank of the Wansbeck, between Bothal and Morpeth, there are the remains of an ancient oratory, dedicated to the Virgin Mary. The greater portion of the old baronial castle is in ruins, but the keep has within these few years been repaired and fitted up as a residence for the agent, William Sample, Esq. In a survey, called the "Booke of Bothool Baronrye," we find this building thus spoken of—the period referred to is 1576—Ane castell, in circumference 480 foote, wharto belongeth aue castell, great chaulmer, parlor, vii bed chaulmers, one galore, butterie, pantrie, lardener, kitchinge, backhouse, brewhouse, a stable, an court called the yett-house, wharein there is a prison, a porter-loge, and diuerse faire chaulmering, an common stable, and a toure called Blanke toure, a gardine, aue nurice, chapel, and an toure called Ogle's toure, and pastrie, with many other prittie beauldings herenot specified, faire gardinges, and orchetts, wharin growes all kind of hearbes and floures and fine apples, plumbes of all kynde, peeres, damaskes, nuttes, wardens, cherries to the black and reede, wallnuttes, and also licoris varie fyne, worth by the years xxx. The ancient church of the Holy Sepulchre at Shipwash, which formerly stood two miles lower down the river, has disappeared. The other ruined churches are Our Lady Chapel, in Bothal Wood; and a chapel built on a site where the remains of St. Cuthbert rested, on the occasion of the memorable flight of the monks of Durham. The two rectories were united between 1691 and 1736, during the incumbency of the Rev. Christopher Stafford, who was succeeded by the Hon. and Rev. Robert Hay Drummond, who was presented to the united rectories, and was afterwards Lord Bishop of Asaph, and then Lord Archbishop of York. There are three parochial schools, patronised by the Duke of Portland, viz., at Bothal, Longhirst, and Tridington; that at Longhirst was built by the Rev. Henry Hopwood in 1847. The other parochial charities produce about £25 a year. —The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Lindisfarne, and diocese of Durham, is valued at £25, having jointly a pres. net income of £1,307: patron, Duke of Portland: pres. incumbent, Henry Hopwood, 1845: contains 15,130 acres: 249 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 800: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 920: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £18,236: poor rates in 1837, £663.

BOTHAL-DEMESNE, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.)—Contains 47 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 261: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,895: poor rates in 1837, £80.

BOTHAMSALL (or BOTHUMSELL), NOTTS, a parish in the Hatfield division of the wapentake of Bassetlaw, union of East Retford, on the northern bank of the river Meden; 138 miles from London, 4 from Ollerton.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Nottingham, and Newark, to Darlton, thence 6 miles.—Money orders issued at Ollerton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.—There are two small daily schools in this parish, the inhabitants of which have a right to send their children to the free school at Haughton with Serlby.—The living, a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Nottingham, diocese of York, now in the diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £21. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £52: patron, Duke of Newcastle: pres. incumbent, G. Rawlinson, 1848: contains 1,630 acres: 58 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 325: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 374: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,810: poor rates in 1837, £122.—W. 1 m. Thoresby Park, the seat of Earl Manvers, is situated in a district which has not inaptly been termed the Dukery, the parks of the Duke of Newcastle, the Duke of Portland, and the Duke of Norfolk, lying so as almost to join each other; so that the tourist or the passer-by may, for a distance of several miles, traverse nothing but parklike scenery, where he may, in some places, almost conceive himself rambling amidst Transatlantic forests. Around him rise—

"Majestic woods of every vigorous green,
Stage above stage, high waving o'er the hills;
Or to the wide horizon, far diffused,
A boundless deep immensity of shade."

The mansion stands in an open and rather low situation, near the centre of the park, backed by rising grounds well covered with wood. The old house was burnt to the ground in 1745, and the present was erected upon its site by the Duke of Kingston, the grandfather of the present noble proprietor. The basement is rustic, of stone, adorned with a tetrastyle portico of the Ionic order; the upper stories are of brick. The principal entrance is in the basement, and leads to a fine hall, in which there is a staircase, which, after the first flight, diverges two ways, and gives access to a circular apartment called the dome, which is lighted by a lofty skylight. The dome is supported by fourteen pillars of factitious verd antique marble, alternately round and square, which contrast handsomely with the scagliola marble of the walls. Upon these pillars a balustraded gallery rests, from which admittance is obtained to the upper apartments. The house is handsomely furnished; and while there is every appearance of the most refined luxury, there is also an air of the most complete comfort shed over its internal aspect. The works of art are numerous and interesting, and the gardens are very fine, some of them having been laid out, under the directions of the late duchess, in the German style, with numerous arbours and trellised foliage. In the shrubbery, a cascade forms a beautiful object from the windows of the back front. The park, which is thirteen miles round, contains several sheets of water: the lake near the house, which is very fine, is laid out to seem like an extensive river, and, being surrounded on every side by sloping lawns, gives to the miniature vessels which ride upon its bosom a very fine effect. The most immediate ancestor of the present noble proprietor of Thoresby, was Daniel Meadows, Esq., who, in 1630, purchased the lordship of Whitnesham from Sir Robert Hitcham, and was the father of Sir Philip Meadows, knight-marshal of the king's palace, and ambassador to the courts of Sweden and Denmark. His son, Sir Philip, married Dorothy, sister of Hugh Boscawen, first Viscount Falmouth. The son of that gentleman, Philip Meadows, Esq., was deputy-ranger of Richmond Park, and married Frances, daughter of William Pierrepont, Earl of Kingston, eldest son of Evelyn, Marquis of Dorchester, who was afterwards created Duke of Kingston. Charles, his eldest son, in 1788, assumed, by sign-manual, the surname and arms of Pierrepont, in consequence of having inherited the estates of his uncle, whose dukedom, with its inferior honours, became extinct at his death. Mr. Pierrepont represented the county of Nottingham in parliament from 1778 to 1796, when he was elevated to the peerage by the titles of Baron Pierrepont and Viscount Newark; and was created Earl Manvers in 1806, in which title he was succeeded by his second son, Charles Herbert Pierrepont, ten years later.—N.W. 2 m. Clumber Park, the seat of the Duke of Newcastle—(for which see CARBURTON.)

BOTHEL AND THREAPLAND, CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Torpenhow, ward of Allerdale below Derwent: 325 miles from London (coach road 305), 7 from Cockermouth, 10 from Wigton.—Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Carlisle to Aspatria, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, Lancaster, Carlisle, &c., 226 miles.—Money orders issued at Cockermouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.—There is a school here, endowed with £42 a year; attached to it there is a lending library, the gift of Sir W. Lawson.—Contains 86 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 466: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 535: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,758: poor rates in 1837, £158.

BOTHENHAMPTON, DORSET, a parish in the liberty of Bothenhampton and Lodors, Bridport union and division of the county: 156 miles from London (coach road 135), 1 from Bridport, 15 from Dorchester.—Sou. West. Rail. through Southampton to Dorchester, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Banbury, Oxford, and Basingstoke, to Dorchester, &c., 248 miles.—Money orders issued at Bridport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.—The living, a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Dorset, diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Sarum, not in charge: pres. net income, £46: patron, Sir H. M. Nepean: pres. incumbent, Alfred Fisher: contains 600 acres: 62 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 533: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 613: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,927: poor rates in 1837, £161.

BOTH-HERGESTS, HERTSFORD, a township in the parish of Kington, hund<sup>l</sup> of Huntingdon—(which see for access, &c.): 163 miles from London, 2½ miles from Kington.—Money orders issued at Kington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post

closes 2 p.m.—Contains 84 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 182.—(Other returns with the parish.)

BOTLEY, BERKS, a tithing in the parish of Cumnor, hun<sup>d</sup> of Hormer—(which see for access, &c.): 55 miles from London, 2 from Oxford, 7 from Abingdon.—Money orders issued at Oxford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.—Contains 24 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 153.—(Other returns with the parish.)

BOTLEY. See CHESHAM.

BOTLEY, HANTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Mansbridge, union of South Stoneham, Fawley division of the county: 79 miles from London (coach road 76), 4 from Bishop's-Waltham, 7 from Southampton.—Sou. West. Rail. to Botley station: from Derby, through Rugby, Banbury, Oxford, and Bishopstoke, to Botley, 166 miles.—Money orders issued at Bishop's-Waltham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.—The church contains a curious and ancient font. The Independents have a place of worship here, and the schools are numerous for the parish. A very good market is held here every other Monday. There are some flour-mills on the river Hamble, within its boundaries.—The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £5. 10s. 2½d.: pres. net income, £290: patron, Duke of Rutland: pres. incumbent, Richard Baker, 1803: contains 1,800 acres: 144 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 904: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 780: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,660: poor rates in 1837, £399.—Fairs, Feb. 20, and May 28, for cheese; July 23, Aug. 20, and Nov. 30, for cattle.

BOTOLPH (Str.) See LONDON.

BOTOLPH-BRIDGE. See ORTON-LONGVILLE.

BOTOLPHS. See BUTTOLPHS.

BOTTESFORD WITH NORMANTON AND EASTTHORPE, LEICESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Framland, union of Grantham, in the vale of Belvoir, and intersected by the Grantham Canal: 143 miles from London (coach road 117), 7 from Grantham, 16 from Melton.—Nor. West. Rail. to Nottingham, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, &c., 29 miles.—Money orders issued at Grantham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.—The church is a large and handsome building, with a lofty spire. It is peculiarly rich in the monumental remains of the Manners family, and contains many to the earls and dukes of Rutland, and their countesses and their duchesses. The present incumbent of Bottesford is a nephew of the Duke of Rutland, and his lady (the Lady Adeliza) one of his Grace's daughters. A school here has an endowment of thirty-two acres of land. There is an hospital here, founded and endowed by Roger, Earl of Rutland, in 1612, the emoluments of which were subsequently enriched by successive earls and dukes of Rutland; and by an order of the trustees, in 1821, the number of the recipients was subsequently increased to seventeen, each pensioner receiving the annual allowance of £23. 16s. 8d.; a matron is attached to the establishment, who receives a salary of £15 a year. There is also an hospital for six poor widows, founded and endowed by Samuel Fleming, a rector of Bottesford, who died in 1620, the whole of the income of which amounts to £132. 17s. 8d. per annum. The other parochial charities produce £78. 8s. 3d. a year.—The living, a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Leicester, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £51. 5s.: pres. net income, £993: patron, Duke of Rutland: pres. incumbent, F. J. Norman, 1846: contains 5,010 acres: 277 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,375: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,581: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £7,825: poor rates in 1837, £413. Tithes commuted in 1770.

BOTTESFORD, LINCOLN, a parish, partly in the northern, and partly in the eastern division of the wapentake of Manley, parts of Lindsey, union of Glandford-Brigg: it contains the chapelry of Burringham, the townships of Ashby, Bottesford, and the hamlets of Holm and Yaddletorpe: 208 miles from London (coach road 158), 7 from Glandford-Brigg, 14 from Gainsborough.—Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Peterborough, Lincoln, and Gainsborough, to Glandford-Brigg, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham and Lincoln to Glandford-Brigg, &c., 88 miles.—Money orders issued at Glandford-Brigg: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.—The living is a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, in the diocese of Lincoln, united in 1727 to that of Messingham, and having jointly a pres. net income of £698: patron, the Bishop, and Dean and Chapter of Lincoln, alternately: pres. incumbent, John Bowstead, 1840: contains 8,210 acres: 233 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,586: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,824: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £6,213: poor rates in 1837, £509. All tithes of the township of Bottesford and hamlet of Yaddletorpe, the property of the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln, and the vicar, were commuted in 1794.—E. ¼ m. Holm Hall.

BOTTESFORD, LINCOLN, a township in the above parish.—(For access and postal arrangements, see above.)—Contains 20 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 329: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 378: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,188: poor rates in 1837, £44.

BOTTESLAW, STAFFORD, a township in the parish of Stoke-upon-Trent, northern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Pirehill—(which see for access, &c.): 150 miles from London, 2 from Newcastle, 10 from Cheadle.—Money orders issued at Newcastle-under-Lyne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.—Contains 9 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 74.—(Other returns with the parish.)

BOTTISHAM, CAMBRIDGE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Staine, union of Newmarket: 64 miles from London (coach road 57), 6 from Newmarket, 6 from Cambridge.—Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Cambridge, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough to Cambridge, &c., 132 miles.—Money orders issued at Newmarket: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.—The church is an ancient and interesting structure, and contains the remains of Elias de Beekingham, who was chief justice in the time of Edward I. Henry I. founded here a small priory of Augustine canons, some parts of which are yet visible. It was dedicated to the Blessed Virgin and St. Nicholas, and its revenues, at the dissolution, were £149. 18s. 6d.; a farm-house now stands upon its site. Sir Roger Jenyns, in 1730, endowed a school here with £20 per annum, for the instruction of sixteen boys and four girls; the master and scholars are appointed by the proprietor of Bottisham Hall. The village was almost entirely destroyed by fire in 1712. The Baptists and Independents each have chapels here. The petty sessions are occasionally held here. The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Ely, is valued at £16: pres. net income, £268: patron, Trinity College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, J. Hailstone: contains 4,700 acres: 255 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,497: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,721: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £5,597: poor rates in 1837, £668. Tithes commuted in 1801. N., Bottisham Hall, the seat of the Rev. G. L. Jenyns. Mr. Jenyns has an ancient lineage. In the year 1563, Sir William St. Loe, Knt., resigned all his right in the manor of Churchill, in Somersetshire, to Ralph Jenyns of Islington, in Middlesex, whose descendant, Richard Jenyns, sold it to John Churchill, Esq. of Lincoln's Inn. His son and representative, Sir John Jenyns, was knighted in 1603; and the son of that gentleman, again, was created a K.B. by Charles, Prince of Wales; and he served as the sheriff of Hertfordshire, and M.P. for St. Albans, in 1626. The great-grandson of that gentleman purchased Bottisham Hall and the contiguous estate. He died in 1740, and left as his successor the celebrated writer, Mr. Soame Jenyns. Mr. Jenyns entered early into life as the representative of the county of Cambridge, and began his career by supporting the ministry of Sir Robert Walpole; and, in the course of time, was rewarded with a commissionership of the Board of Trade, which he held for more than twenty years. Mr. Jenyns was highly distinguished as a magistrate and country gentleman, but his chief celebrity was derived from his writings. As an author, he was witty, shrewd, and terse. His chief works are 'Poems,' in two vols.; 'An Inquiry into the Origin of Evil,' and 'A view of the Internal Evidence of the Christian Religion.' He died in 1787, childless; and, after the decease of his widow, his estates descended to his cousin, the present proprietor.

BOTTWNOG, CARNARVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Gafflogian, union of Pwllheli, North Wales: 278 miles from London (coach road 254), 10 from Pwllheli, 8 from Nevin. Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Chester to Bangor, thence 40 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Crewe to Bangor, &c., 177 miles. Money orders issued at Pwllheli: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 1 p.m.: post closes 12 noon. The congregation of the Calvinistic Methodists, who have a chapel here, was formed in 1784. There is a daily school here, with an endowment of £170 a year, in which sixty boys are educated. The living is a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Bangor, not in charge, annexed to the vicarage of Meylltyme, and having jointly a pres. net income of £178: patron, Bishop of Bangor: pres. incumbent, R. Jones, 1848: contains 40 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 191: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £450: poor rates in 1837, £77.

BOTUSFLEMING, CORNWALL, a parish in the southern division of East hun<sup>d</sup>, union of St. Germans: 255 miles from London (coach road 223), 3 from Saltash, 6 from Callington. Gt. West. Rail. to Plymouth, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Plymouth, &c., 272 miles. Money orders issued at Plymouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11½ a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m. The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Cornwall, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £16. 15s. 7½d.: pres. net income, £250: pres. incumbent, H. Sweeting, 1845: contains 1,290 acres: 47 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 232: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same: poor rates in 1837, £213. Hatt, the seat of William Symons, Esq.—Moditonham House, the residence of Frederick Crosswell, Esq.

BOTULPH'S DALE. See BOTESDALE.

BOUGHROOD, RADNOR, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Pains-Castle, South Wales: 178 miles from London (coach road 165), 9 from Hay, 14 from Brecknock. Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 60 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 131 miles. Money orders issued at Hay: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 12½ p.m.: post closes 11 a.m. The parish is beautifully situated on the northern bank of the Wye, in a picturesque glen, where the Machwy and the Caletwhr fall into the river just opposite to each other. The dingle of the Machwy, which is noted for the beauty of its scenery, is terminated by an enormous rock, on the summit of which there are the remains of an ancient rude structure, the singularity of which greatly excites the curiosity of tourists. A bridge has been built over the Wye here, under the authority of an act of parliament. The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Brecon, diocese of St. David's, is valued at £12. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £213: patron, Bishop of St. David's: pres. incumbent, W. de Winton, 1816: contains 63 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 322: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 370: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,480: poor rates in 1837, £168. Boughrood Castle.—W., Llangore Castle.

BOUGHTON, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Clackclose: 95 miles from London (coach road 90), 2 from Stoke-Ferry, 7 from Downham. Nor. and East. Rail. through Cambridge and Ely to Downham-Market, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, and Ely, to Downham, &c., 135 miles. Money orders issued at Brandon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. The name of the several places which bear it, is supposed to have been derived from the Saxon boc, signifying a charter, and ton, a town, that is, a place held by a charter. The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £400: patron, Sir W. J. H. B. Folkes, Bart.: pres. incumbent, George Hunt, 1820: contains 1,500 acres: 41 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 209: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,880: poor rates in 1837, £115.

BOUGHTON, NORTHAMPTONSHIRE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Spelhoe, union of Brixworth: 72 miles from London (coach road 70), 4 from Northampton, 14 from Market-Harborough. Nor. West. Rail. through Blisworth station to Northampton, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Weedon to Northampton, &c., 77 miles. Money orders issued at Northampton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. The church is in ruins, but a chapel has been erected for the celebration of divine worship. The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Northampton, diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £20. 9s. 7d.: pres. net income, £296:

patron, R. W. H. Vyse, Esq.: pres. incumbent, G. S. H. Vyse, 1843: contains 1,400 acres: 84 houses: pop<sup>a</sup> in 1841, 389: probable pop<sup>a</sup> in 1849, 447: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,495: poor rates in 1837, £207.---N., Boughton Lodge, the residence of the present Rector.

BOUGHTON, NOTTINGHAM, a parish in the Hatfield division of the wapentake of Bassetlaw, union of Southwell: 1.69 miles from London (coach road 138), 2 from Ollerton, 7 from Tuxford.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Nottingham, and Newark, to Tuxford, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham to Mansfield, &c., 44 miles.---Money orders issued at Ollerton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---The church is in ruins. The congregation of the Baptist chapel here was formed in 1806.---The living, a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Nottingham, and diocese of York, now in the diocese of Lincoln, united with Kneesall, is valued at £10, having jointly a pres. net income of £150, patron, Chapter of the Collegiate Church, Southwell: pres. incumbent, John Chell, 1843: contains 1,630 acres: 62 houses: pop<sup>a</sup> in 1841, 309: probable pop<sup>a</sup> in 1849, 355: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,331: poor rates in 1837, £102.

BOUGHTON-ALUPH, KENT, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Wye, lathe of Scray, union of East Ashford: 73 miles from London (coach road 53), 4 from Ashford, 10 from Canterbury.---Sou. East. Rail. through Ashford to Wye station, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through London, &c., 205 miles.---Money orders issued at Ashford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---The church, a spacious cruciform structure, with a low central tower, is built of flint and ashlar stone. The river Stour flows on the eastern side of the parish, within the boundaries of which there are, on an average, about thirty-five acres under hop cultivation.---The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £6. 5s.: pres. net income, £216: patron, Trustees of Dr. Breton: pres. incumbent, J. Billington, 1822: contains 2,200 acres: 77 houses: pop<sup>a</sup> in 1841, 524: probable pop<sup>a</sup> in 1849, 603: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,193: poor rates in 1837, £489.---Fair, Monday after June 29.---E. 1 m. Eastwell Park, the seat of the Earl of Winchelsea and Nottingham—(for which see EASTWELL.)

BOUGHTON-UNDER-BLEAN, KENT, a parish and village in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Boughton, lathe of Scray, union of Faversham: 86 miles from London (coach road 50), 3 from Faversham, 5 from Canterbury.---Sou. East. Rail. to Canterbury, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 218 miles.---Money orders issued at Faversham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---The church contains several ancient monuments; the tower formerly sustained a spire, which fell down towards the close of the 16th century. There are two charity schools for girls and boys, and an almshouse, consisting of two tenements. The skeleton of a human being, by the side of which there was a sword, and a brass Roman coin of the reign of Antoninus Pius, was dug up in the vicinity some years since. There is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel here. Hasted, in speaking of this parish, says—The house at Nash, commonly called Nash Court (which is at present in Chancery, and seemeth fast going to decay), was plundered by the neighbourhood in the year 1715, during the ferment the nation was thrown into on account of the rebellion in Scotland, in consequence of the family of Hawkins, who then held it, being of the Roman Catholic persuasion. Every part of the furniture, family pictures, writings of the estates and family, were burnt, with an excellent library of books; and the family-plate was carried off, and never heard of afterwards. It was rebuilt, however, by the owner, who lived to the great age of 92, and died in the year 1766. Great, however, as his age was, we find, by an inscription upon one of the tombs, that it was excelled by one of his predecessors. He was in the service of King Henry VIII., who made him well to do in his latter days; was to him a gracious prince, and placed him in positions which won him fame; he was of high stature, with body long and strong, excelling all that lived in his time. He died in his 102d year. About 800 acres of land in this parish are cultivated for the growth of hops. Blean forest, from which the village derives its peculiar name, was anciently the resort of wolves, wild boars, and other wild beasts of the chase. Boughton hill, which stands at the distance of about three quarters of a mile, is said to command a more extensive prospect than any other hill in the kingdom.---The living, a vicarage in the diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £9. 4s. 2½d.: pres. net income, £300: patron, Archbishop of Canterbury: pres. incumbent, T. W. Wrighte, 1803: contains 2,390 acres: 261 houses: pop<sup>a</sup> in 1841, 1,373: probable pop<sup>a</sup> in 1849, 1,578: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,295: poor rates in 1837, £696.

BOUGHTON (GREAT), CHESTER, a township in the parish of Aldford, hund<sup>d</sup> of Broxton: 180 miles from London (coach road 182), 1 from Chester, 10 from Overton.---Nor. West. Rail. to Chester, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Burton, Crewe, Chester, &c., 81 miles.---Money orders issued at Chester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---The township is intersected by two highroads, one from Chester and the other from Nantwich, at the junction of which this considerable village has been built, which now unites with one of the streets of Chester. The river Dee adjoins it on the west, and it is also intersected by the Chester and Nantwich Canal. Across the middle of the township, a belt of rich loam stretches, which is let out at high rates for garden ground. The remainder is a clayey soil, occupied by butchers, milkmen, and others, who supply the inhabitants of Chester.---Contains 840 acres: 181 houses: pop<sup>a</sup> in 1841, 1,035: probable pop<sup>a</sup> in 1849, 1,190: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,440: poor rates in 1837, £269.

BOUGHTON-MALHERBE, KENT, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Eyborne, lathe of Aylesford, union of Hollingbourn: 62 miles from London (coach road 43), 5 from Charing, 9 from Maidstone.---Sou. East. Rail. to Headcorn station, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 194 miles.---Money orders issued at Maidstone: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---This place, like most of the others bearing a similar designation, is variously written in ancient deeds as Botton and Boughton, from the circumstance stated above relative to the name. The church is a handsome edifice, with a square western tower; it stands on the summit of a hilly ridge which divides the parish into two parts, termed respectively Boughton Upland and Boughton Weald, the latter being so called from its situation within the Weald of Kent: it contains several rich monuments to members of the family of Wotton, the most remarkable being a splendid marble one, erected to the memory of Sir Thomas Wotton, and a very rich one to the memory of Sir Edward Wotton. The hall was for a considerable period the residence of that family, and the most accomplished member of it, Sir Henry Wotton, was born there. The remains of the mansion, on a panel of which there is the date of 1553, has been converted into a farmhouse. Something more than a hundred acres of land in the parish are under hop cultivation. Sir Henry Wotton, distinguished both as a diplomatist and a political writer, was born in 1568. He was educated at Winchester and Oxford, and after the completion of his academic course became the secretary of the Earl of Essex, whom he accompanied on his expeditions against the Spaniards, and into Ireland. On the fall of that nobleman he went to reside at Florence, after which he was employed by James I. in several important diplomatic missions both to Italy and Germany. He was made provost of Eton College, and died in 1624. His principal works are "The State of Christendom," "Reliquiæ Wottonianæ," and the "Elements of Architecture."—The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Maidstone, and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £13. 15s.: pres. net income, £230: patron, Earl Cornwallis: pres. incumbent, Edward Moore, 1843: contains 2,666 acres: 80 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 466: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,894: poor rates in 1837, £514.—Chilston Park is the residence of James Stoddart Douglas, Esq., formerly M.P. for Rochester.

BOUGHTON-MONCHELSEA, KENT, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Eythorne, lathe of Aylesford, union of Maidstone: 60 miles from London (coach road 38), 4 from Maidstone, 8 from Cranbrook.—Sou. East. Rail. to Maidstone, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 192 miles.—Money orders issued at Maidstone: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.—The name of this parish is written in Doomsday-book, Boltone, and in later records, Bocton, and sometimes West Bocton: its addition of Monchelsea is derived from the name of its ancient possessors, whose principal seat was at Swanscombe, in this county. The church was almost destroyed by fire during the winter of 1832. The schools are numerous. The parish is intersected by a lofty ridge, on the summit of which is the northern boundary of the Weald of Kent; on its southern declivity there are some quarries of ragstone. About 250 acres of the ground in the parish are under hop cultivation.—The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £7. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £395: patron, Dean and Chapter of Rochester: pres. incumbent, J. D. Haslewood, 1823: contains 1,740 acres: 116 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,106: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,272: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,014: poor rates in 1837, £685.

BOULBY. See EASINGTON.

BOULDON, SALOR, a township in the parish of Holdgate, hun<sup>d</sup> of Munslow—(which see for access, &c.): 150 miles from London, 11 from Ludlow, 1 from Holgate.—Money orders issued at Ludlow: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes at noon.—Contains 240 acres: 11 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 56.

BOULGE, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wilford, union of Woodbridge—(which see for access, &c.): 79 miles from London, 3 from Woodbridge, 10 from Ipswich.—Money orders issued at Woodbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.—The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, united with that of Debach, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £3. 12s. 1d., and having jointly a pres. net income of £222: patron, Rev. O. S. Reynolds: pres. incumbent, O. S. Reynolds, 1817: contains 700 acres: 5 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 45: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £988: poor rates in 1837, £15.

BOULMER AND SEATON-HOUSE, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Longhoughton, southern division of Bamrough ward—(which see for access, &c.): 309 miles from London, 4 from Alnwick, 9 from Felton.—Money orders issued at Alnwick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes 7 p.m.—The village is inhabited chiefly by fishermen, whose boats are moored in Boulmer bay, which is a natural basin, eight hundred yards long, and four hundred broad: it is surrounded by rocks, having an entrance with water of twelve feet depth at ebb tide.—Contains 23 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 161: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £474: poor rates in 1837, £44.

BOULSTON (or BULLSTON), PEMBROKE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Dungleddy, union of Haverford-West, South Wales: 254 miles from London (coach road 270), 5 from Haverford, 13 from Newport.—Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Weston-super-Mare, thence across the channel to Penarth by rail to Merthyr Tydvil, thence 80 miles: from Derby, through Bristol to Weston, &c., 267 miles.—Money orders issued at Haverford-West: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.—In the church there are several monuments to the Wogans, a branch of the Wiston family, the ruins of whose mansion stand in the neighbourhood.—The living, a curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of St. David's, is valued at £6. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £25: patron, R. J. Ackland: pres. incumbent, James Phillips, 1841: contains 62 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 319: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 367: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,030: poor rates in 1837, £53.

BOULTHAM, LINCOLN, a parish in the lower division of the wapentake of Boothby-Graffo, parts of Kesteven, union of Lincoln: 170 miles from London (coach road 132), 2 from Lincoln, 11 from Wragby.—Nor. and East. Co<sup>l</sup> Rail. through Cambridge and Peterborough to Lincoln, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham and Newark to Lincoln, &c., 51 miles.—Money orders issued at Lincoln: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.—The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £7. 15s. 2d.: pres. net income, £126: patron, R. Ellison, Esq.: pres. incumbent, H. Newmarch, 1829: contains 1,210 acres: 10 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 72: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,502: poor rates in 1837, £81. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1803.

BOULTON, DERBY, a chapelry in the parish of St. Peter, hun<sup>d</sup> of Morleston and Litchurch—(which see for access, &c.): 135 miles from London, 3 from Derby. Money orders issued at Derby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. The living is a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Lichfield: pres. net income, £120: patron, Proprietors of land: pres. incumbent, Edward Poole, 1838: contains 1,240 acres: 38 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 171: poor rates in 1837, £133.

BOURN (or BURN), CAMBRIDGE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Long-Stow, union of Caxton and Arrington: 67½ miles from London (coach road 47), 2 from Caxton, 10 from Cambridge. Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Cambridge, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, &c., 137 miles. Money orders issued at Caxton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. Bourn was, according to Blomfield, in 870, the lordship of Morcar, who had a numerous and warlike family, but he and most of them were killed in battle by the Danes. It afterwards became the barony of Picott, sheriff of the county and of the Peverells, by one of whose daughters it was conveyed to Sir Gilbert Peche, who, having provided for the children of his second wife, left his remaining possessions to Edward I. Since his time the manor has been successively held by the Beeches, Burnwyses, and Hagars, whose mansion-house stood on a rising ground, in the middle of the ancient works which formerly surrounded the castle erected by Picott. The castle itself was burnt by Ribald de Lisle, in the reign of Henry III., during the contest with the barons. There is a daily school here, endowed by the Countess De la Warr with £20 a year. There was formerly a mineral spring here in high repute, but it has of late years been entirely neglected. The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Ely, is valued at £9. 15s. 10d.: pres. net income, £161: patron, Christ College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, C. Holworthy, 1795: contains 4,073 acres: 152 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 909: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,045: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £7,427: poor rates in 1837, £373. Bourn Hall is a seat of the Earl of De la Warr, whose principal residence is Buckhurst, in the parish of Witheyam in Surrey—which see for the family history.

BOURN. See WRECKLESHAM AND BOURN.

BOURN-MOOR, DURHAM, a township in the parish of Houghton-le-Spring, northern division of Easington ward: 295 miles from London (coach road 267), 8 from Durham, 2 from Houghton. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, to Durham, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through York to Durham, &c., 163 miles. Money orders issued at Durham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. There is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel here, with a Sunday school attached, as is the case with most of their chapels. At New Lambton, in this township, there is a brine well, 97 fathoms deep, where salt works were established in 1815. Contains 450 acres: 194 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,079: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,240: poor rates in 1837, £552.

BOURN, LINCOLN, a parish and market town in the wapentake of Aveland, parts of Kesteven, union of Bourn: it comprises the hamlets of Bourn with Tongue-End, Cawthorpe, and Dyke: 116 miles from London (coach road 97), 35 from Lincoln. Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Cambridge and Peterborough to Helpstone station, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Stamford to Helpstone, &c., 89 miles. Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. Bourn is situated in a flat country on the border of the fens, and close by the town is a spring, which is of sufficient force to discharge water enough to turn three mills near its source. The earliest record we have respecting this place is an assertion of Camden's, made, however, on the authority of Leland. It had become notable from the inauguration of Edmund, king of the East Angles, in the year 838. Mr. Gough disputes this, and says that the Saxon monarch was crowned at a place called Buers, in Suffolk; but he does not give any sufficient data to establish his opinion. Certain it is that the place is of great antiquity, and that an abbey was in very early times founded here; for Ingulphus, after noticing several benefactions to it in his History of Crowland, says—Leofric, lord of the castle of Brunn, a famous and valiant soldier, kinsman to the great Count Rudin, who married King Edward's sister Godo, gave many possessions to this abbey, and, on many occasions, assisted the monks with his counsel and favour. This Leofric had a son, Werward, possessed of the castle and estates of Burn, or Brunn, who dying without issue, they were presented by William Rufus to Walter Fitzgilbert, or Fitzgilebert. The next notice we have of the place is in the statement that Baldwin Lord Wake, in 1279, in the time of King Edward I., obtained a license for a market weekly, on Saturdays, and for one annual fair. But this has been only a life-grant, as the same privilege was bestowed on the place at the request of his grandson, Thomas Lord Wake, in the second year of King Edward II. The abbey appears to have been founded here, about the year 1138, by Baldwin, son of that Baldwin Fitzgilebert, who obtained a grant of the manor from William Rufus, and he placed in it an abbot and canons of the Augustine order, whose revenues, at its dissolution, according to Dugdale, amounted to £167. 14s. 6d. per annum. Scarcely a vestige either of the castle or the abbey now remain, the only evidence there of the existence of the former being some portion of the foundation, now called the Trenches. The church, dedicated to St. Peter, is a handsome structure. It formerly had two large towers at the west end; but one of them has become gradually dilapidated, and is nearly down. The nave is separated from the aisles by plain circular arches, which spring from large columns, and exhibit a striking specimen of the early Norman style. In the centre of the town-hall there was an ancient market-place, commonly reported to have been erected by one of the Wake family; but as the arms of the Cecils were carved upon its front, it has with more justice been assigned to the great statesman who founded that family: it was, however, taken down about thirty years ago. During the seventeenth century, Bourn was nearly twice destroyed by fire. The first conflagration occurred in August, 1605, when that part of the town called Manor-street was entirely burnt down, not a single house being left standing; the next occurred in March, 1637, when the greater part of Eastgate, then called Eugate, was destroyed. The town now consists of four long streets of modern appearance, and well built. Its trade is chiefly in leather and wool stapling, but there are several extensive tanyards in the place. A canal has been formed from here to Boston, by means of which a considerable business is conducted. In a farm-yard within the town there is a medicinal spring, the waters of which are brackish, and have a purgative quality, very similar to that at Astrop, in Northamptonshire, though of far greater strength. The sessions for the parts of Kesteven are held here; and petty sessions are also held for the hundreds of Beltisloe, Ness, and Aveland, in the town-hall, built in 1820. Bourn is one of the polling-places for South Lincolnshire. The Wesleyan Methodists and the Baptists have places of worship here, the congregation of the latter having been formed in 1788, and that of the former in 1811. There is an ordinary day school, endowed with £30 a year; and another, a National school, endowed with £42 a year. The other schools, both daily and Sunday, are numerous. In 1683, an hospital was founded here for six men, by Thomas Trollope, Esq., and, in 1627, an almshouse for six women, by William Fisher, Esq. Robert Harrington, Esq. of Gray's Inn, in the year 1654, left an estate at Laytonstone, Essex, to the poor of this parish, now let at £420 per annum; and there are several smaller charities. Several Roman coins have been dug up in the neighbourhood, and a tessellated pavement was discovered some years ago in the park grounds. One of the greatest distinctions to which Bourn is entitled, arises from its having been the birth-place of Queen Elizabeth's great lord treasurer, allowed, in a critical and trying period, in an age when every country was producing its great men, to be the greatest of the great among the statesmen of his day. William Cecil, Lord Burleigh, whose loyalty, patriotism, and Christian feeling, as the minister of a great country, has never been excelled—who was destined by Providence to aid most effectually in preserving the Protestant establishment, and the civil polity of this country, from becoming the prey of papal superstition and despotism—was born in 1520, at the house of his grandfather here, David Cecil, Esq. In 1535, he entered St. John's College, Cambridge, where, at the early age of fifteen, he read a paper on prophecy, and, at the age of nineteen, delivered a Greek lecture. After leaving college, he applied himself to the study of the law, and with such success, that, in 1547, he was made master of requests. In the following year, he unhappily partook of the disgrace of his patron, the Duke of Somerset, and, along with him, was sent to the Tower. But after suffering three months' imprisonment, he was released, reinstated in his offices, knighted, and made a member of the privy council. In 1553, he was appointed chancellor of the order of the garter, with an annual fee of a hundred marks. On the death of the young and gentle Edward VI., he prudently refused to take part in the ambitious projects of the Duke of Northumberland, and thus avoided sharing in the disgrace and death of Lord Dudley, his lovely and unfortunate wife, Lady Jane Grey, and their selfish father. On the accession of Mary, he was graciously received at court; but having refused to change his religion, he was dismissed from all his appointments, and remained unemployed, though safe, during that reign. On the accession of Elizabeth, speedy and ample recompense was made to him, for, a few days after she came to the throne, he was sworn in as a member of the privy council, was made her chief cabinet councillor, and installed as principal secretary of state. In 1561, he received the appointment of master of the wards, and ten years later was created Baron Lord Burleigh. The year after that, he was honoured with the order of the garter, and raised to the office of lord high treasurer of England, which position he held for seven-and-twenty years—fulfilling its duties with such consummate ability, as to excite the admiration of all men—with such dignity of character, as to secure their esteem—and with such firmness of purpose, as to place his sovereign and his country in the very highest place among the great kingdoms of Europe. He died on the 4th of August, 1598. His remains were removed for burial to Stamford, where a most magnificent monument was erected to his memory.—Another noted individual, who was a native of Bourn, was the celebrated but unhappy Dr. Dodd. He was born in 1729. His father was vicar of the parish, who brought him up to the church, which he lived to honour by his erudition and his eloquence, and to disgrace by his dissipation and gallantry. In order to set himself free from the embarrassment which his extravagance had induced, in an unfortunate moment he committed a forgery on Lord Chesterfield for £4,200. He was arrested, but every opportunity was given him to escape; the forged note was even put into his hand as he stood by a blazing fire; but, although he had so glaringly broken the laws of his country, and departed from the standard of moral rectitude, conscientiousness prevented him availing himself of the opportunity. Like Socrates, who refused to leave his prison when the doors were opened for his escape—though not with the elevation of Socrates, for he was unjustly condemned—Dodd declined the escape, braving the shame, in order that he might retain the essence of the truth, and exhibiting the heroism of the Christian in the bitter trial of earthly degradation. He was tried, convicted, and hung at Newgate.—On the site on which the abbey stood, a modern house was built by Colonel Pochin, the lord of the manor of Bourn Abbots, in the year 1764, which, with lawn, gardens, &c., attached thereto, has by exchange become vicarage property, and is occupied by the Rev. J. Dodsworth, the vicar, and is still called the Abbey.—The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £400: patron, Rev. J. Dodsworth: pres. incumbent, J. Dodsworth, 1842: contains 8,190 acres: 511 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,361: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,865: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £10,139: poor rates in 1837, £750.—Market day, Saturday. Fairs: April 6, May 7, Sept. 30, Oct. 29. BOURNE (EAST). See EASTBOURNE.

BOURNE (St. Mary), HANTS, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Evingar, King's-clere division, Whitchurch union: 68 miles from London (coach road 58), 7 from Andover, 3 from Whitchurch. —Sou. West. Rail. to Andover Road station, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Banbury, Oxford, and Basingstoke, to Andover Road, &c., 155 miles. —Money orders issued at Andover: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —The living is a curacy in the diocese of Winchester, annexed to the vicarage of Hurstbourne-Priors, and having jointly a pres. net income of £202: patron, Bishop of Winchester: pres. incumbent, S. J. J. Lockhart, 1843: contains 6,640 acres: 201 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,152: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,324: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,825: poor rates in 1837, £697.

BOURNE (West), SUSSEX, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Westbourne and Singleton, rape of Chichester, union of Westbourne: 89 miles from London (coach road 65), 7 from Chichester, 15 from Lewes. —Brighton and South Coast Rail. through Chichester to Emsworth station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 211 miles. —Money orders issued at Chichester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. —The Westbourne poor-law union comprehends twelve parishes, spread over an area of 48 square miles, and comprises a population of about 7,000 souls. —The living, a sinecure rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chichester, is valued at £24. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £280: patron, Rector thereof: pres. incumbent, John Baker, 1828: contains 4,230 acres: 409 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,093: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,407: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £8,710: poor rates in 1837, £857.

BOURTON, BEKS, a tithing in the parish and hund<sup>d</sup> of Shrivenham—(which see for access, &c.): 67 miles from London, 7 from Farringdon, 9 from Lambourne. —Money orders issued at Farringdon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. —Contains 60 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 347: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 399: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,318: poor rates in 1837, £148. The great and small tithes of Bourton and Watchfield, the property of the lay impropricators and the vicar, were commuted in 1789.

BOURTON (or BORETON), BUCKINGHAM, a hamlet in the borough and parish of Buckingham—(which see for access, &c.): 58 miles from London, 2 from Buckingham, 5 from Stoney-Stratford. —Money orders issued at Buckingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. —Hutchins, in his history of Dorsetshire, says—The constable is chosen yearly at the court-leet of the lord of the liberty. The tithing-man owes suit and service to the lord's court, which is called there every month, and obliged to pay yearly to the steward 6s. law-day silver. The tithing consists of copyholders. —Contains 1,360 acres: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 65. —(Other returns with the parish.)

BOURTON, DORSET, a chapelry in the parish and liberty of Gillingham, Shaston division: 125 miles from London (coach road 104); 4 from Wincanton, 2 from Gillingham. —Gt. West. Rail. to Westbury, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, Chippenham, &c., 187 miles. —Money orders issued at Wincanton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. —The living, a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Sarum: pres. net income, £90: patron, Trustees: pres. incumbent, F. J. Newall: contains 182 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 901: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,036: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,464: poor rates in 1837, £222.

BOURTON-UPON-DUNSMOOR, WARWICK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Knightlow, division and union of Rugby: 102 miles from London (coach road 82), 4 from Dunchurch, 8 from Coventry. —Nor. West. Rail. to Coventry, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Coventry, &c., 68 miles. —Money orders issued at Dunchurch: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. —The living, a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Coventry, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, now in the diocese of Worcester, is valued at £19. 17s. 3½d.: pres. net income, £350: patron, Mrs. Shuckburgh: pres. incumbent, A. R. Kenney, 1839: contains 2,520 acres: 76 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 390: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 448: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,401: poor rates in 1837, £244.

BOURTON (Great and Little), OXFORD, a hamlet in the parish of Cropredy, hund<sup>d</sup> of Banbury—(which see for access, &c.): 73 miles from London, 3 from Banbury, 8 from Deddington. —Money orders issued at Banbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. —There are two schools here, one endowed with £2. 10s., and the other with £10 per annum. —The living is a curacy annexed to the vicarage of Cropredy: contains 1,380 acres: 115 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 647: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 744: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,468: poor rates in 1837, £337. The great and small tithes of Great and Little Bourton, the property of the Bishop of Oxford, the lay impropricators, and the vicar, were commuted in 1777.

BOURTON-ON-THE-HILL, GLOUCESTER, a parish in the upper division of the hundreds of Tewkesbury and Westminster, union of Shipton-on-Stour: 93 miles from London (coach road 91), 2 from Moreton, 5 from Stour. —Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to St. Moreton-le-Marsh, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Worcester to Moreton, &c., 101 miles. —Money orders issued at Moreton-le-Marsh: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. —The village stands on the side of a hill, whence the prospect is varied and delightful. It is chiefly remarkable as having been the birth-place of Sir Thomas Overbury, who was poisoned through the infernal arts of Frances Howard, Countess of Essex, and afterwards the mistress and wife of Carr, Earl of Somerset, the discarded favourite of James I. Sir Thomas was born in 1581, and after spending three years at Queen's College, Oxford, was removed to the Temple; but not liking the legal profession, he travelled on the continent; and on his return, attached himself to Sir Richard Carr, then Viscount Rochester, through whose interest he was knighted, and his father was made one of the judges of the Marches in Wales. His honesty to his patron proved fatal to him, for, by endeavouring to persuade Carr from marrying the Countess, he made them both his enemies; and being committed to the Tower in April, 1613, he was, after six months' confinement, poisoned, and died there. The horrible practices employed to effect his death were discovered two years afterwards, and some of the inferior agents were executed for the murder; but Carr and his paramour, though convicted on the clearest evidence, were reprieved from time to time, and ultimately pardoned by the king. Sir Thomas was the author of several pieces, both in prose and verse, and was considered one of the most accomplished men of his age. The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, and diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, with the perpetual curacy of Moreton-le-Marsh annexed, is valued at £14, and having jointly a pres. net income of £675: patron, Rev. S. W. Warneford: pres. incumbent, S. W. Warneford, 1810: contains 2,960 acres: 111 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 542: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, £623: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,221: poor rates in 1837, £239. The great and small tithes of Bourton and Moreton-le-Marsh, the property of the clerical rector and the lay impropriator, were commuted in 1821. S., Sepincote Park.

BOURTON-ON-THE-WATER, GLOUCESTER, a parish in the lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Slaughter, union of Stow-on-the-Wold: 90 miles from London (coach road 80), 4 from Stow. Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Stow-on-the-Wold, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Worcester to Stow, &c., 170 miles. Money orders issued at Moreton-in-the-Marsh: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. The village is agreeably situated in a very pleasant vale, and consists of detached houses, arranged on both banks of a pellucid current, raised by the confluence of several small springs, which form the north and north-west: there is a bridge over the stream, built in 1756, to form a connection between the two sides of the street. The ancient fosseway passes to the east of the village; and at a little distance there is a quadrangular camp of about sixty acres in extent, where many Roman remains have been discovered. A paved aqueduct formerly existed here. The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, and diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, with the curacies of Clapton and Low-Slaughter united, is valued at £27. 2s. 8½d. and having jointly a pres. net income of £475: patron, Wadham College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, R. Waller: contains 2,290 acres: 183 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 943: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,084: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,088: poor rates in 1837, £249. Tithes commuted in 1778.

BOUSTEAD-HILL, CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Burgh-on-the-Sands, ward of Cumberland, intersected by the ship canal, communicating with the Solway Frith—(which see for access, &c.): 310 miles from London, 7 from Carlisle, 8 from Wigton. Money orders issued at Carlisle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12½ p.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. Contains 12 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 72.—(Other returns with the parish.)

BOVENY (LOWEA), BUCKINGHAM, a chapelry in the parish and hun<sup>d</sup> of Burnham, on the northern bank of the river Thames—(which see for access, &c.): 23 miles from London, 2 from Eton, 3 from Windsor. Money orders issued at Windsor: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. The living is a curacy annexed to the vicarage of Burnham: contains 590 acres: 38 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 189: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,572: poor rates in 1837, £69.

BOVERIDGE (or BOURIDGE), DORSET, a hamlet in the parish and hun<sup>d</sup> of Cranborne, Shaston division—(which see for access, &c.): 94 miles from London, 1 from Cranborne, 19 from Poole. Money orders issued at Cranborne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. According to Hutchins' History of Dorsetshire—there is here an almshouse, founded and endowed by the Hoopers, for three poor people, nominated by them, and a small stipend for a chaplain. Here is a chapel of ease, served once in three weeks by the vicar of Cranborne. The living is a curacy in the diocese of Sarum, annexed to the vicarage of Cranborne, and having jointly a pres. net income of £151: patron, Marquis of Salisbury: pres. incumbent, J. H. Carnegie, 1842: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 174.—(Other returns with the parish.)

BOVEY (NORTH), DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Teinbridge, union of Newton-Abbot: 220 miles from London (coach road 184), 13 from Exeter, 8 from Chudleigh. Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol and Exeter to Dawlish, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, and Exeter, to Dawlish, &c., 234 miles. Money orders issued at Exeter: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. The lords of this manor formerly exercised the power of inflicting capital punishments. Tin mines to a very considerable extent are worked in the neighbourhood. Antimony has also been discovered here, and has been worked to profit, though to no very great supply. There are also some coal mines. There is a free school here, endowed for the tuition and partial support of twenty boys; its income is about £30 per annum. A Baptist congregation was formed here in 1773; and the Wesleyan Methodists also have a place of worship here. The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Totness, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £22. 10s. 5d.: pres. net income, £263: patron, Earl of Devon: pres. incumbent, F. J. Courtenay, 1831; contains 6,600 acres: 106 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 660: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 759: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,870: poor rates in 1837, 293. Fair, on the first Monday after Midsummer-day, obtained through a grant petitioned for by the lord of the manor in 1250.

BOVEY (SOUTH), or BOVEY-TRACEY, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Teinbridge, union of Newton-Abbot, on the eastern bank of the river Wrey: 221 miles from London (coach road 184), 4 from Chudleigh, 13 from Exeter. Gt. West. Rail. to Newton, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, and Exeter, to Newton, &c., 235 miles. Money orders issued at Chudleigh: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. There are two schools of industry, one of which is wholly supported by the Hon. G. Ryder. The other schools are numerous. The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Totness, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £26. 2s. 1d.: pres. net income, £450: patron, the Crown: pres. incumbent, J. Macaulay, 1840: contains 6,480 acres: 319 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,823: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, £2,096: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £6,714: poor rates in 1837, £720. Fairs: Easter-Monday, Holy Thursday, July 5.

BOVINGDON, HERTFORD, a chapelry in the parish of Hemel-Hempstead, hun<sup>d</sup> of Dacorum—(which see for access, &c.): 24 miles from London:

2 from Hemel-Hempstead, 9 from Watford. There are two schools of industry here, one of which is wholly supported by the Hon. G. Ryder. The living is a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Rochester: patron, Hon. G. D. Ryder: pres. incumbent, A. Brooking, 1842: contains 4,160 acres: 189 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,072: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,232: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,451: poor rates in 1837, £414.

BOW (or NYMET-TRACER), DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of North Tawton with Winkley, union of Crediton: 210 miles from London (coach road 183), 8 from Crediton, 10 from Oakhampton. Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol and Exeter to Crediton, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, and Exeter, to Crediton, &c., 225 miles. Money orders issued at Crediton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.

There are independent and Baptist chapels here, the congregation of the former having been founded in 1821, and of the latter in 1773. The parochial charities produce about £40 a year. The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Barnstaple, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £19. 8s. 9d.: pres. net income, £335: patron, F. Vandermeulen, Esq.: pres. incumbent, F. Vandermeulen, 1841: contains 2,740 acres: 181 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 973: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,118: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,165: poor rates in 1837, £360. Market day, Thursday. Fairs: Holy Thursday, November 22, for cattle.

BOW (or STRATFORD-LE-BOW), MIDDLESEX, a parish in the Tower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Ossulstone, city of London union, 4 miles from London. Bow was originally a chapelry to the parish of Stepney, and was made parochial in 1730. The name of the place is derived from an ancient ford over the river Lea, on the line of a Roman road between London and the Eastern counties. The way was made plain by the erection of a stone bridge of three arches, said to be the oldest bridge in England, built in the early part of the eleventh century, by Matilda, queen of Henry I. A new bridge, however, of one elliptical arch, of 170 feet span, was, in 1839, substituted for the old one; its cost was about £11,000. The church, which is interesting from being an admirable specimen of the mixture of the Norman and English styles, was built in the reign of Henry II. There was formerly a manufactory of porcelain in the neighbourhood, with a large establishment; and a fair was instituted, but, from its vicinity to the metropolis, the celebration of it attracted so many persons of dubious character, that it became a nuisance, and it was suppressed by the authority of the legislature. There was also a flax mill, but the works were of inconsiderable extent. There is a free school here, founded, in 1613, by Sir John Jolles, which is now under the supervision of the Drapers' Company. In 1701, Mrs. Prisca Courborne founded a school for the tuition of fifty boys, which she endowed with land, at that time producing £40 a year, but, in consequence of improvements and the change of times, that £40 has swelled into £500 a year, and the benefits of the school have consequently been very largely extended: it is under the superintendence of the rectors, churchwardens, and overseers of several neighbouring parishes. There are also almshouses, the benefits of which are partly applicable to the residence in this place, although the buildings in reality stand in the parish of Bromley, founded by Sir John Jolles and John Edmansson. The other parochial charities produce about £80 a year. The living is a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Middlesex, diocese of London: pres. net income, £297: patron, Brazenose College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, G. T. Driffield, 1844: contains 630 acres: 603 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,371: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,800: poor rates in 1837, £10,771.

BOWDEN'S-EDGE, DERBY, a township in the parish of Chapel-en-le-Frith, hun<sup>d</sup> of High Peak: 197 miles from London (coach road 167), 1 from Chapel-en-le-Frith, 6 from Buxton. Nor. West. Rail. to Sheffield, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, &c., 75 miles. Money orders issued at Buxton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 1 p.m. Contains 209 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,227: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,411. (Other returns with the parish.)

BOWDEN (GREAT), LEICESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Gartree, union of Market-Harborough, intersected by the Union Canal: this parish includes the chapelry of Market-Harborough: 100 miles from London (coach road 86), 2 from Market-Harborough, 11 from Kettering. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Market-Harborough, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Market-Harborough, &c., 68 miles. Money orders issued at Market-Harborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. There was formerly a flax mill here. The living, a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Leicester, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £31: pres. net income, £86: patron, Christ Church College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, E. Griffin, jun., 1814: contains 3,120 acres: 678 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,698: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 4,253: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £11,501: poor rates in 1837, £720. The great and small tithes, the property of the dean and chapter of Oxford, were commuted in 1776.

BOWDEN (LITTLE), NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Rothwell, union of Market-Harborough, divided from Leicestershire by the river Welland: 85 miles from London, 1 from Market-Harborough. (For access and postal arrangements, see above.) The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £15. 4s. 2d.: pres. net income, £293: patron, Rev. J. Barlow: pres. incumbent, T. W. Barlow, 1843: contains 2,410 acres: 81 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 439: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 505: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,087: poor rates in 1837, £300. The great and small tithes, the property of the liberties of Little Bowden, of the dean and chapter of Oxford, and of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1779.

BOWDON, CHESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bucklow, union of Altrincham, in the vicinity of the Duke of Bridgewater's Canal: it comprises the chapelries of Altrincham and Carrington, and the townships of Agden, Ashley, Baguley, Bollington, Bowdon, Dunham-Massey, Hale, Partington, and Timperley: 193 miles from London, 2 from Altrincham, 9 from Stockport. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Stockport to Altrincham, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Stockport to Altrincham, &c., 93 miles. — Money orders issued at Altrincham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>.

9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The church in old times belonged to Birkenhead priory, and was annexed to the see of Chester by Henry VIII. The rectorial tithes are now leased to the Earl of Stamford by the bishop. There are a great number of schools in the parish, which is intersected by one of the Roman roads. — The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester, is valued at £24: pres. net income, £460: patron, Bishop of Chester: pres. incumbent, W. H. G. Mann, 1821: contains 18,870 acres: 1,505 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 9,373: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 10,778: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £33,836: poor rates in 1837, £2,357.

BOWDON, CHESTER, a township in the above parish — (which see for access, &c.) — Contains 690 acres: 81 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 526: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 605: poor rates in 1837, £131.

BOWER-CHALK, WILTS, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Chalk, union of Wilton: 106 miles from London (coach road 89), 8 from Wilton, 10 from Salisbury. — Sou. West. Rail. to Salisbury, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Banbury, Oxford, and Otterbourne, to Salisbury, &c., 193 miles. — Money orders issued at Salisbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.

— The living, a vicarage in the diocese of Sarum, united to the rectory of Broadchalk, and having jointly a pres. net income of £336: patron, King's College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, S. H. Hawtrey, 1813: contains 3,120 acres: 83 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 447: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 514: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,006: poor rates in 1837, £199.

BOWER-HENTON, SOMERSET, a hamlet in the parish and hund<sup>d</sup> of Martock — (which see for access, &c.) — 127 miles from London, 5 from Ilchester, 6 from Yeovil. — Money orders issued at Ilchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.

BOWERS-GIFFORD, ESSEX, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Barstable, union of Billericay: 32 miles from London (coach road 36), 4 from Rayleigh, 6 from Leigh. — East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Brentwood, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 164 miles. — Money orders issued at Ingatestone: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The living, a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Essex, and diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £25: pres. net income, £564: patron, Mrs. Curtis: pres. incumbent, W. W. Tireman, 1841: contains 2,230 acres: 26 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 249: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,582: poor rates in 1837, £128.

BOWES, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a parish in the western division of the wapentake of Gilling, union of Teesdale: it comprises the townships of Boldron, Bowes, and Gilmonby: 295 miles from London (coach road 250), 4 from Barnard Castle, 10 from Brough. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, to Darlington, thence 30 miles: from Derby, through York to Darlington, &c., 163 miles. — Money orders issued at Darlington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> at noon: post closes

1 p.m. — The village consists principally of one long street, and is situated on the edge of Stanemore, a dreary mountainous tract, on which, soon after the Norman Conquest, Alan, Earl of Richmond, built a castle, the ruins of which yet remain, forming a square, each side of which is fifty-three feet long. Camden states that, in his time, there was a slab here used for a communion-table, on which there was an inscription dedicatory to the Emperor Hadrian, and this is believed to have been the Roman station, called Lavatra by Antoninus in his Itinerary. There was formerly a market and fair held in the town, but they have long since fallen into disuse. A grammar-school was founded here in 1690, by William Hutchinson, Esq. of Clement's Inn, which is free to all the children of the parish, and endowed with land which now produces £258 a year; in addition to this endowment, the Rev. Charles Parken left means for providing a scholarship at Cambridge for one of its pupils. In the vicinity there is a natural bridge of sixteen feet span, which was formed by the waters of the Greta in the limestone rock; it is called God's bridge, and is occasionally used as a carriage-way over the river. It was in this village that the tragical event occurred, on which Mallet founded his affecting ballad of Edwin and Emma. — The living, a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond, and diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £20. 15s.: pres. net income, £90: patron, T. Harrison, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. Lambert, 1822: contains 19,780 acres: 185 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,019: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,172: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £7,948: poor rates in 1837, £359.

BOWES, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish — (which see for access, &c.) — Contains 16,090 acres: 133 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,034: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,189: poor rates in 1837, £298.

BOWLAND-FOREST (HIGH and LOW), WEST RIDING, YORK, a township, partly in the parish of Whalley, and hund<sup>d</sup> of Blackburn, co-palatine of Lancaster, but chiefly in the parish of Slaiburn, western division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Ewcross, in the above county: 227 miles from London (coach road 226), 5 from Clitheroe. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Manchester, to Clitheroe, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Manchester to Clitheroe, &c., 130 miles. — Money orders issued at Clitheroe: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. — The office of forest-master has long been in the possession of the family of Parker of Brownesholme Hall, but the forest is now almost entirely enclosed. — Contains 25,760 acres: 125 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 930: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,069: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £9,514.

BOWLING, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Bradford, wapentake of Morley: 226 miles from London (coach road 196), 2 from Bradford, 10 from Leeds. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Leeds, to Bradford, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, Leeds, &c., 93 miles. — Money orders issued at Bradford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — Many of the inhabitants are employed in quarries and mines. — Contains 1,240 acres: 1,115 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 6,851: probable pop<sup>n</sup>

in 1849, 7,878: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £9,548: poor rates in 1837, £450.—Bowling Hall.

BOWNESS, CUMBERLAND, a parish in the union of Wigton, ward of Cumberland, on the southern bank of the Solway Frith, intersected by the Ship Canal. It comprises the townships of Anthorn, Bowness, Drumburgh, and Fingland: 315 miles from London, 14 from Carlisle, 10 from Wigton.—Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Lancaster to Carlisle, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through Burton, Crewe, &c., to Carlisle, &c., 215 miles.—Money orders issued at Carlisle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 1½ p.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.—There are several daily schools here, four of which have small endowments. A gentleman named Frontbeck left a bequest which now produces £12 a year, the produce of which is distributed among the poor inhabitants. In the vicinity there are two Roman stations, called respectively Tunnocellum and Gabrosentum.—The living (St. Michael), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £21. 3s. 11½d.: pres. net income, £393: patron, Earl of Lonsdale: pres. incumbent, A. Hudleston, 1828: contains 10,830 acres: 225 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,488: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,711: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,951: poor rates in 1837, £227.

BOWNESS, CUMBERLAND, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.)—Contains 72 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 446: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 512: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,438.

BOWNESS, WESTMORELAND, a hamlet to the township of Undermillbeck, parish of Windermere, Kendal ward—(which see for access, &c.): 283 miles from London, 5 from Ambleside, 8 from Kendal.—Money orders issued at Ambleside: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m.—Mr. Gilpin says of Bowness—Bowness is the capital port-town of the lake, if we may adopt a dignified style which the grandeur of the scene suggests. It is the great mart for fish and charcoal; both of which commodities are largely imported here, and carried by land into the country. Its harbour is crowded by vessels of various kinds, some of which are used merely as pleasure boats in navigating the lake. The village is beautifully situated on the eastern shore of Windermere, opposite to Goat Island. The parish church is adorned with some exquisite paintings on glass, which formerly embellished Furness Abbey. A market is now held on Wednesday, and there was once a fair, but it has long since been disused.—(Returns with the township of Undermillbeck. See WINDERMERE.)

BOWOOD, WILTS., a liberty in the parish and hun<sup>d</sup> of Calne—(which see for access, &c.): 92 miles from London, 4 from Chippenham, 6 from Melksham.—Money orders issued at Chippenham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.—There is a daily school here for the benefit of this and the adjacent places of Derryhill, Sandy-lane, and Studley, supported by the Marquis of Lansdowne.—Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 93.—(Other returns with the parish.)—Bowood is the seat of the Marquis of Lansdowne, now President of her Majesty's councils. The domain formerly constituted a part of the royal and ancient forest of Pewisham, which extended almost all the way from Chippenham to Devizes, and from Calne to Lucock, being bounded on the north and west by the river Avon. The whole of its extent was a favourite resort of James I., who frequently amused himself and his courtiers by hunting deer within its precincts; but after his decease it would seem to have been disforested, one half of the land, including Bowood, being granted to Lord Audley's ancestors, and the other to the family of Carey in Devonshire; it was afterwards comprised among the estates seized by parliament as forfeitures after the establishment of the Commonwealth, when it was laid open for the general advantage. During the reign of Charles II., Bowood was granted to Sir Orlando Bridgman of Ridley, son of the Lord Keeper of the same name, one of his favourites, who dying insolvent, it was purchased of the trustees of his property by John Earl of Shelburne and Baron Wycombe, whose grandson, the present Marquis of Lansdowne, is the noble proprietor. The country around the mansion is fine and luxuriant in the extreme. The pleasure grounds and the park are extensive, greatly varied in their natural beauty, and affluent in the woods by which the mansion is surrounded. During the life of the father of the present marquis, the whole estate was noted for its singularly progressive improvement, and although for a while neglected, if not injured by the cutting down of some of the finest trees before the accession of his lordship, the waste has been abundantly supplied by his renovating exertions and refined taste. Within the boundary of the park there are nine valleys, each of which is distinguished by its own peculiar and striking feature, varying from the rugged, the wild, and the furzy shaw, to the gentle placitude of the verdant lawn. Throughout a great portion of its expanse and covering, one of its most pleasing vales, broad and irregular in their outline, the pellucid waters of a lake, with their fairy ripples, wash its gentle banks. Beyond and around, broken into clumps, or gathered in enormous masses of various-coloured foliage, the giant woods of Bowood protect the mansion. The house stands on an elevated piece of ground overlooking the lake, and is backed by a depth of forest in which every species of the oak is to be found glinting in their many-hued greens, as they laugh back the summer sunlight, or throwing about their dark and gnarled arms as they answer to the wintry tempest, in every aspect delightful, magnificent, and impressive. The mansion has been built at different periods, and, in consequence, presents an irregular though not an incongruous mass of architecture, imposing from its extent, and pleasing from the richness of its domestic style. Its principal portion was erected by John Earl of Shelburne, after a design of the Adams's, and wears the aspect of an Italian villa, not altogether in keeping with its size; but it nevertheless has all the air of a British nobleman's residence, and gives the assurance of luxuriant comfort and classical adornment. After the finish of the edifice, the first marquis, with a judgment far superior to that of the architect, added a wing of about three hundred feet in extent, the elevation of which is an imitation of the wing of Diocletian's palace at Spalatro; it forms the southern side of two quadrangular courts, which are surrounded by the domestic offices. The third portion, to the north of the house, consists of a series of domestic apartments, which are separate from what are called the state-rooms. The principal front faces the south, and commands a rich and diversified prospect over a vast extent of country. It is embellished by a large portico of ten columns of the Doric order, which support a pediment, where the family arms are sculptured in very bold relief. The entrance-hall, which is approached by the portico, is paved with tessellated marble, and the other apartments are finished and furnished in a style which evinces the taste, and shows the wealth of their noble proprietor. The principal collection of the marquis's pictures is deposited at Lansdowne House in London, but here the works of art are of rare and costly excellence; among them are specimens of the skill of Gainsborough, Sebastian del Piombo, Rubens, Guercino, Albano, and others of the old masters. The walks around the mansion are fresh and pleasing in the extreme. The lake, as it winds through the grounds, is divided into two parts; here hidden by a rising knoll of bluff land, there spread out in its breadth as a translucent mirror, and again lost among the woods which margin its expanse. At its lower extremity is the feature which gives it its most animating effect; it is a cascade formed by a head of rock, through the fissures of which the waters rush with hasty and turbulent brilliancy in several broken streams, the principal sheet falling, after a few yards of descent, against a projecting rock, and large irregular masses of stone. Under the rocks there are several excavations and subterranean passages, the dark openings of which present a pleasing seclusion, not disagreeably broken by the splashing and burley tumult of the waters, so that the lover of the picturesque can enjoy all that the most active imagination could desire. The only building in the grounds is a mausoleum, which John Earl of Shelburne erected for himself, and which was afterwards consecrated to his memory. It stands upon a rising ground, deeply embosomed in a shady wood, and contains a marble monument, which, from the eminence of the great statesman and accomplished nobleman whose bodily remains lie enshrined in that stilly quietude, so far removed from the busy world, in which, while living, he took so active and influential a part, deserve transcription; it is as follows, and is a remarkable instance of elegant, concise, and respectful, but not fawnish, biography:—

VOL. I.

8 A

"To the memory of JOHN PETTY, Earl of Shelburne, Viscount Fitzmaurice, Baron of Dunkerron, in Ireland, and one of the Lords of the Privy Council, Baron Wycombe of Chipping-Wycombe, in Great Britain. He was the son of Thomas Fitzmaurice, Earl of Kerry, to whom the titles of Kerry and Lixnaw had lineally descended through four-and-twenty generations, and of Anne, the only daughter of Sir William Petty, his lady, Baroness of Shelburne; a man whom eminent faculties of mind never made ambitious; whom abundant affluence of fortune never made dissolute; whom extensive influence of power never made arrogant; who lived with no other endeavour than to advance the happiness of others by kindness and charity, and improve their sentiments by good example; who died with no wish to be remembered but as a man of worth and a Christian of sincerity. He departed this life the 10th day of May, 1761, aged 55 years."

The present marquis has recently erected, on the highest spot on the neighbouring Downs, and at the extremity of the estate, which was purchased by the fortune this eminent man bequeathed to his family, an obelisk, 130 feet in height, which it is proposed to dedicate to his memory. The family of the Marquis of Lansdowne, whose second title is Earl of Kerry, trace their origin, in common with the houses of Fitzgerald, Carew, Mackenzie, and several other ancient and noble families to Walter Fitz-Otho, castellan of Windsor in the 11th century, whose eldest son, Gerald Fitzwalter, obtained a grant from Henry I. of Molesford, in the county of Berks. His eldest son, Maurice Fitzgerald, was ancestor of the ducal house of Leinster; his second son, William, was sent into Ireland by Earl Strongbow, where he assisted in the reduction of that kingdom. His great grandson, Thomas, assumed the surname of Fitzmaurice, and became Lord Kerry of Lixnaw. His son, the second Lord Kerry, attended the parliament at Dublin, on a writ of summons, in 1295, and two years afterwards followed Edward I. into Scotland with horse and arms. From him the title descended to Thomas, 21st Lord Kerry, who, in 1722, was created Viscount Clanmaurice and Earl of Kerry. His lordship had, in 1692, married Anne, only daughter of Sir William Petty, physician-general to the army in 1652, so celebrated for his extraordinary talents and surprising fortune. He was the son of a Mr. Anthony Petty, a clothier, who lived at Rumsay, in Hampshire, where he was born in 1623. At a very early age he evinced a peculiar genius for mechanics, and having acquired the rudiments of education in his native village, was entered at the university of Oxford. He there obtained a comprehensive knowledge of the Latin, Greek, and French languages, as also of those branches of geometry and astronomy most necessary for surveying and dialling. With these accomplishments he obtained an appointment in the Royal Navy, in which he served for some years; but on the breaking out of the civil war, he went upon the continent, and studied medicine at several of the universities there. In 1647, he returned to England, procured a patent for his invention of double writing, and began to practice in his profession at Oxford. In 1649, he was admitted to his physician's degree, and made deputy-professor of anatomy to the university. About the same time he was elected a fellow of Brasenose College, chosen a member of the Royal College of Physicians in London, and appointed lecturer on music in Gresham College. In 1652, he went to Ireland as physician-general of the army; and having been long resident in Dublin, was appointed a member of the Privy Council, and secretary to the Lord Protector. Shortly after that, he entered upon his "Political Survey" of the sister country, on which he was engaged between eleven and twelve years. He was a celebrated member of the only parliament ever called by Richard Cromwell; but on the deposition of that individual, he returned to Ireland, where he remained till the restoration of Charles II., who created him a knight the year after his accession to the throne. In 1666, he had surveyed 2,800,000 acres of the forfeited estates in the sister country; and as he was to have a penny for every acre that he surveyed, he realised, by that business alone, an estate which brought him in £6,000 a year. He was one of the earliest members of the Royal Society, and an original member of the College of Physicians, as embodied under patent in 1667. He died of a gangrene in his foot, in 1687. Thomas, the grandson of the first earl, dying without issue, his honours devolved upon his cousin Henry, the present Marquis of Lansdowne. The Hon. John Fitzmaurice, having inherited the Petty estates on the death of his maternal uncle, the Earl of Shelburne, in 1751, assumed the surname and arms of Petty; and was in that year advanced to the peerage of Ireland, by the titles of Baron Dunkerron and Viscount Fitzmaurice, and was further promoted, in 1753, to the earldom of Shelburne. In 1760, the earl was created a peer of Great Britain, by the title of Baron Wycombe of Chipping-Wycombe. He was succeeded in his honours, in the following year, by the celebrated statesman who occupied so large a portion of public attention towards the close of the last century. Distinguished for his eloquence, tact, and self-possession, he was soon employed in state business; and on the accession of the Marquis of Rockingham to the premiership, was made secretary for foreign affairs; on the demise of that nobleman, he held the place of first lord of the treasury, until the united efforts of Mr. Fox and his friends compelled him to retire from power. In 1784, he was advanced to the dignities of Earl of Wycombe, Viscount Calne and Causton, and Marquis of Lansdowne. His lordship was succeeded, in 1805, by his eldest son, John, the second marquis, who dying without issue four years afterwards, the honours descended to Lord Henry Petty, his brother, the present marquis, who had long been distinguished as a member of the House of Commons, as an able and eloquent debater, a statesman of enlarged views, and a man of the highest education and refinement. His lordship early attained great celebrity as a politician, and has been a consistent and steady supporter of the party to which he attached himself; and is, perhaps, almost more than any other member of it, entitled to the appellation of the classical orator of the House of Lords. His lordship has been Chancellor of the Exchequer, and, beside his present high office in the cabinet, is lord-lieutenant of Wiltshire.

BOWTHORP. See BAWBURGH.

BOX, WILTS. a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Chippenham, union of Chippenham: 101½ miles from London (coach road 100), 8 from Chippenham, 6 from Bath. — Gt. West. Rail. to Box station: from Derby, through Stonehouse and Bristol to Box station, 147 miles. — Money orders issued at Chippenham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — Box is a small village, situated on the confines of the county, and has become a place of some importance, from being a high station on the Great Western Railway, as it formerly was, being placed on a convenient spot on the high road from London to Bath, when coaches and four were the glory of the country. The valley in which it is partly built is highly picturesque; it consists of a fine tract of meadow-land, watered by a sweet little rivulet, which derives its name from the village, bounded by almost parallel lines of undulating, but in some places abrupt hills, the sides of which are diversified by hamlets, villas, and plantations, beautifully disposed. The soil on the higher ranges of land is that which, in the neighbourhood, is commonly called stone-brush, a term which means a sort of loam, mixed lightly with rubble-stones of a compound nature, being partly calcareous and partly silicious. The under stratum is an extensive bed of freestone of oolitic character, and which is commonly known by the name of Bath-stone, from the circumstance of the greater part of the city of Bath having been built from the quarries dug about a mile to the eastward of this place. As in all quarries of the same character, the stone here lies very little inclined from the horizontal; and being, previous to its exposure to the air, very pervious to water, is easily raised in any required shape and size; but after it has been subject for some time to the action of the atmosphere, it acquires immense hardness and durability, and is therefore admirably adapted for building purposes. In addition to its term of Bath-stone, it is also known among builders as ashlar, probably from the hamlet of Ashley, which adjoins Box, and which, by the inhabitants, is constantly termed Ashlar. There is a charity school here, which is endowed with about £65 a year. The village is overlooked by a singular-looking eminence, called Tautney Hill. According to tradition, this was a Roman station or residence; and the opinion is countenanced by the fact, that remains of baths and other Roman relics have constantly been met with in the place and neighbourhood; and above all, in the vicinity, several stone coffins have been discovered in the churchyard, each of which was hewn out of the solid rock. Box Hill, in this parish, is a large tract of elevated ground, lying about midway between Chippenham and Bath, which consists almost entirely of beds of freestone. It presented one of the most formidable obstacles with which the eminent engineer of the Great Western Railway, Mr. Brunel, had to contend; but he at length overcame it, by piercing the rock with one of the longest tunnels in the kingdom. — The living, a vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wilts, diocese of Salisbury, now in the diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £15. 8s. 9d.: pres. net income, £348: patron, Rev. H. D. C. S. Horlock, D.D.: pres. incumbent, H. D. C. S. Horlock, 1831: contains 4,130 acres: 271 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,274: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,615: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £8,345: poor rates in 1837, £538.

BOXFORD cum WESTBROOK, BERKS. a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Faircross, union of Newbury, on the eastern bank of the river Lambourn: 57 miles from London (coach road 60), 4 from Newbury, 4 from Beeton. — Gt. West. Rail. to Newbury, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Banbury, Oxford, and Reading, to Newbury, &c., 144 miles. — Money orders issued at Newbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. — The parish is well off for schools. — The living, a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Berks, diocese of Salisbury, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £20: pres. net income, £761: patron, Rev. Mr. Wells: pres. incumbent, G. Wells, 1843: contains 2,880 acres: 126 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 612: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 704: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,095: poor rates in 1837, £346.

BOXFORD, SUFFOLK. a parish, partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Cosford, and partly in that of Babergh, union of Cosford: it includes the hamlet of Hadleigh: 74 miles from London (coach road 59), 6 from Hadleigh, 16 from Ipswich. — East. Co. Rail. to Hadleigh, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 206 miles. — Money orders issued at Colchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The church is a spacious building, with a spire. The schools are numerous, and one of them was endowed in the reign of Queen Elizabeth by herself. The Independents have a chapel here. The parochial charities produce about £100 per annum. — The living, a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Sudbury, diocese of Norwich, but now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £20: pres. net income, £710: patron, the Crown: pres. incumbent, Hon. A. F. Phipps: contains 2,450 acres: 220 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,121: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,289: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,102: poor rates in 1837, £368. — Fairs: Easter-Monday, and Dec. 21.

BOXGROVE, Sussex, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Box and Stockbridge, rape of Chichester, union of West Hampnett: 83 miles from London (coach road 61), 4 from Chichester, 6 from Arundel. — Brighton and Sou. Coast Rail. to Chichester, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 215 miles. — Money orders issued at Chichester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — The church formerly belonged to the ancient priory, and now contains several altar-tombs, one of which is said to cover the remains of Queen Adeliza. Tanner says of the priory—There was an alien priory here, subordinate to the Abbey de L'Essay in Normandy, to which it was first given by Robert de Heya, in the time of Henry I. From three Benedictine monks, by the benefactions of the St. John family, the number was raised at one time to sixteen, but was reduced to nine not long before the dissolution. It was dedicated to St. Mary and St. Blaise, and was made 'prioratus indigena,' in the 13th year of Edward VI. In the 26th of Henry VIII., its yearly revenues were valued at £185. 19s. 8d. The site was granted in exchange to Henry Earl of Arundel, in the 3d year of Elizabeth. —

The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chichester, is valued at £9. 5s. 5d.: pres. net income, £687: patron, Duke of Richmond: pres. incumbent, W. Turner, 1848: contains 3,410 acres: 153 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 736: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 846: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,423: poor rates in 1837, £477. — N. ¼ m. Halmaker House. — N.W. 1 m. Goodwood Park, the seat of the Duke of Richmond. The mansion is most delightfully situated in a spacious park, and commands some most extensive and beautiful views. The estate formerly belonged to the noble family of Percy, but being purchased by the great-grandfather of the present duke, he pulled down the old Gothic structure, and erected a new house for a hunting seat. To that edifice the late duke made great additions, under the direction of Mr. James Wyatt, until, early in the present century, it assumed all the aspect of a ducal residence. The principal front and the west wing are new. The former, which looks to the south, comprises only one story in its elevation, having at each end a circular tower of two stories, each of which is surmounted by a low dome. The centre is formed of a portico of six Ionic columns, which support an upper tier of Doric pillars of Portland stone, surmounted by a balustrade. Each of the wings forms an obtuse angle with the front, and has a circular tower at its extremity. The old house now forms the west wing; it is a plain edifice of Portland stone, with a pediment in its centre. The drawing-room is a noble apartment, 58 feet long by 36 wide; the dining-room is also very spacious, being about 40 feet in length. The stables and their offices stand to the westward of the house: they are formed in a handsome quadrangular building, and are not inferior, if they are not superior, to any of the kind in the kingdom. The kennel also, which the late duke built for his foxhounds, is believed to exceed in magnificence and convenience, for the creatures housed there, everything of the kind in the kingdom, or perhaps that was ever raised for the housing of such tenants. All the new part of the mansion is built of small flints, which were collected from the South Downs, and have the superiority, not only in hardness, over the Portland stone, but also in the circumstance, that the longer they are exposed to the atmosphere, the whiter they become. The gardens, which are at some distance from the mansion, are very extensive and very beautifully laid out. The park comprises about 2000 acres; and at the upper end of it there is a beautiful pleasure-house, called Cairney Seat, which was built of the materials that formerly composed the tower of Hoove church, an elegant structure of Caen stone, on the fall of which they were removed to this site, and applied to the building of this house. Being built on a considerable elevation, it commands a most magnificent view, comprising the whole of the beautifully undulated plain beneath, the varied outline of the coast from Brighton to Portsmouth, with the English Channel spread out beyond, and on the other side a large tract of the country northward of the Downs. On a hill adjoining the park, the late duke formed an excellent course, the races on which rank among the first in the kingdom; they are now generally held in July, and last three days. Among the curiosities in the vicinity of Goodwood is the lion carved in wood, which formed the figure-head of Commodore Anson's ship, the Centurion, during his circumnavigation of the globe. It is set up next the Duke of Richmond Hill, on a pedestal of stone, with an inscription to the following effect:—

"Stay, traveller, awhile, and view one who has travelled more than you:
Quits round the globe in each degree, Anson and I have ploughed the sea;
Torrid and frigid zones have passed, and safe ashore arrived at last—
In ease and dignity appear; He in the House of Lords—
I here."

The ancestor of his grace the Duke of Richmond was Charles Lennox, a son of Charles II. by Louise Renée de Perrencourt of Querevalle, in France, who was created, by the king, Duchess of Portsmouth, Countess of Farnham, and Baroness of Petersfield; and by Louis XIV., Duchess of Aubigny in France. He was enrolled among the peers of Britain, in 1675, by the titles of Baron Settrington, Earl of March, and Duke of Richmond, in Yorkshire; and in the same year, among the peers of Scotland, by the titles of Baron Methven of Torbolton, Earl of Darnley, and Duke of Lennox, which titles his grace the present Duke of Richmond has inherited. His grace, like his ancestors, have always held high positions in the state. He was postmaster-general in the administration of Earl Grey; is a colonel in the army, and distinguished himself greatly during the Peninsular war. His grace's other residences are Gordon Castle, in Aberdeenshire, and 51 Portland Place. He is lord-lieutenant of the county of Sussex, colonel of the Sussex Militia, and high-steward of Chichester.

BOXLEY, KENT, written in the 'Textus Roffensis': Boxele, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Maidstone, lathe of Aylesford, union of Hollingbourn: 59 miles from London (coach road 37), 3 from Maidstone, 6 from Rochester. —Sou. East. Rail. to Maidstone, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 191 miles. —Money orders issued at Maidstone: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. —The village is situated at the foot of the chalk hills, over which the parish extends to a considerable distance. Here are the extensive paper mills, so celebrated for the manufacture of Whatman's original post. They were, before the decline of the woollen business in the south part of the country, used as fulling mills; but in 1739 were purchased by Mr. Whatman, and have ever since been applied to their present purpose. Within these few years there has still been a woollen mill; but the business done in it, though no doubt remunerative to the proprietor, was of insignificant extent. Bishop Tanner, in his Notitia Monastica, speaking of this place, says—William de Ipre, Earl of Kent, who afterwards became a monk himself at Laon in France, founded here, A.D. 1146, an abbey of Cistercian monks from Claville in Burgundy, which was dedicated to the blessed Virgin; yet, from the famous rood here, it is in some records called Abbatia S. Crucis de Gratiis. It was endowed with £218. 19s. 10d., and granted, in the 32d year of Henry VIII., to Sir Thomas Wyatt, the poet. Henry III. granted a weekly market to the abbey; and, in the reign of Edward I., the abbot was summoned to parliament. The rood or crucifix of this abbey, called, as just stated, the Rood of Grace, appears to have been of singular mechanical construction, very ingeniously put together, and would seem to have been largely used for imposing the fallacies of papal superstition on the ignorant commonalty; for, during the progress of the dissolution of the monasteries, it was publicly exposed at St. Paul's Cross, in London, to an immense multitude of persons, and subsequently destroyed. Some small remains of the conventual buildings may yet be perceived; and at a little distance, in the immediate vicinity, there is still a rabbit warren, which formerly belonged to the abbot and monks of the establishment. About half a mile from the abbey is the famous Penenden or Pickenden Heath, which forms part of the parish, and which has, from time immemorial, been used as the place for the great county meetings. —The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £12. 19s. 2d.: pres. net income, £834: patron, Dean and Chapter of Rochester: pres. incumbent, John Griffith, 1832: contains 5,670 acres: 214 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841,

1,398: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,608: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £8,230: poor rates in 1837, £906. —E., Boxley Abbey, the seat of Lady Maria Finch. S., Park House.

BOXMOOR, HERTFORD, a station on the North Western Railway: 24½ miles from London (coach road 22), 5 from Berkhamstead, 97½ from Birmingham, close by the village of Two Waters. —From Derby, through Leicester and Rugby to station, 108 miles. —Money orders issued at Hemel-Hempstead: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. —A commodious hotel has been erected here for the convenience of the passengers. —The living is a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Rochester: pres. net income, £150: patron, the Vicar: pres. incumbent, Henry Lister, 1845.

BOXTED, ESSEX, a parish in the Colchester division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Lexden, union of Lexden and Winstree, on the southern bank of the river Stour: 57 miles from London (coach road 59), 2 from Neyland, 6 from Colchester. —East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Colchester, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 189 miles. —Money orders issued at Colchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —The parochial charities produce about £7. 10s. per annum. —The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Colchester, and diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £7. 13s. 9d.: pres. net income, £190: patron, Bishop of London: pres. incumbent, Charles Norman: contains 3,120 acres: 133 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 856: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 984: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,895: poor rates in 1837, £343.

BOXTED, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Babergh, union of Sudbury: 109 miles from London (coach road 60), 5 from Clare, 15 from Stowmarket. —East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Bury St. Edmund's, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough to Newmarket, 144, thence 17 miles. —The living, a rectory not in charge, in the diocese of Ely, consolidated with Hartest, and having jointly a pres. net income of £652: patron, the Crown: pres. incumbent, John Maddy, 1819: contains 1,580 acres: 23 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 200: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 230: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,460: poor rates in 1837, £186. —Fair: Whitmonday, for cattle. —Boxted Hall.

BOXWELL WITH LEIGHTERTON, GLOUCESTER, a parish in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Grombold's Ash, union of Tetbury: 122 miles from London (coach road 104), 4 from Wotton, 9 from Malmsbury. —Gt. West. Rail. through Stonehouse to Charfield station, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Stonehouse to Charfield, &c., 122 miles. —Money orders issued at Wotton-under-Edge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. —Leland says—There were nunnes at Boxwell, 2 miles from Wotton-under-Edge, destroyed, as somme say, by the Daines. It longid now to the abbey of Gloucester. —The living, a rectory, with the curacy of Leighterton, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bristol, and diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £23. 4s. 9d.: pres. net income, £350: patron, Rev. R. W. Huntley: pres. incumbent, R. W. Huntley, 1831: contains 2,210 acres: 64 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 334: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 384: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,295: poor rates in 1837, £65.---N., Lasborough Park is the residence of the rector, who is also lord of the manor.---W., Newark Park.

BOXWORTH, CAMBRIDGE, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Papworth, union of St. Ives: 73 miles from London (coach road 58), 4 from Caxton, 7 from Cambridge.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Cambridge to Long Stanton, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough to Long Stanton, 122 miles.---Money orders issued at Caxton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 p.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---The interest of £45, left by various individuals, is distributed every four years among the poor of this parish.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Ely, is valued at £18. 12s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £459: patron, G. Thornhill, Esq.: pres. incumbent, John Thornhill: contains 2,000 acres: 44 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 326: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 375: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,767: poor rates in 1837, £232.

BOYATT. See OTTERBOURNE.

BOYLSTON, DERBY, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Appletree, union of Uttoxeter: 143 miles from London (coach road 124), 7 from Uttoxeter, 11 from Derby.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Leicester, and Burton, to Draycott station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Burton, to Draycott, &c., 22 miles.---Money orders issued at Uttoxeter: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Derby, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £6. 0s. 2d.: pres. net income, £260: patron, Rev. W. Hunt: pres. incumbent, R. Bickerstaff, 1842: contains 1,360 acres: 61 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 343: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 394: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,050: poor rates in 1837, £143. Tithes commuted in 1783.

BOYNTON, EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the wapentake of Dicker, union of Bridlington: 243 miles from London (coach road 206), 2 from Bridlington, 6 from Hunmanby.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough, Grimsby, and Hull, to Bridlington, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, Normanton, Selby, and Hull, &c., 144 miles.---Money orders issued at Bridlington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11½ a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m.---The interest of £100 is distributed amongst the poor as an occasional relief in severe seasons.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of the East Riding and diocese of York, is valued at £7. 14s. 2d.: pres. net income, £141: patron, Sir G. Strickland, Bart.: pres. incumbent, F. Simpson, jun., 1841: contains 2,690 acres: 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 100: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 115: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,479: poor rates in 1837, £44. The impropriate and vicarial tithes, the property of the lay impropriator and the vicar, were commuted in 1777.---Boyn-ton Hall is the seat of Sir G. Strickland, Bart., who represented the West Riding of the county in parliament from 1831 to 1841, and who now sits for Preston. The mansion is situated in a luxuriant vale, which is sheltered by rising grounds on the north and south, and watered by a beautiful rivulet. The house, though not very large, is handsome, and forms a very striking object on the road from Kilham to Bridlington. On the summit of a lofty ridge, the late Sir G. Strickland erected a pavilion. The upper room of that building commands a very varied and extensive prospect both by sea and land, including Bridlington Bay and all the adjoining coast, the level country on the southern edge of the wolds, and the northern side of Holderness. The original stock of this family appears to have been settled before the Conquest at Strickland, or Stirkland, as it is more anciently written, in the county of Westmoreland, and where they continued for many generations, until William de Stirkland married Elizabeth, daughter and heiress of Sir Ralph D'Aincourt of Sizergh, and removed there. From him are descended Charles Strickland, Esq. of Standish, who assumed the name of Standish, and Walter Strickland, Esq. of Sizergh; but the immediate founder of Sir George Strickland's branch of the family was Roger Strickland, Esq. of Maesk, a younger branch of the Sizergh family, whose son, William Strickland, is believed to have accompanied the celebrated navigator, Sebastian Cabot, in his voyages of discovery. After his return, he purchased Boynton and the other estates, still possessed by his descendants. He obtained, in 1550, a grant of the arms now borne by the family, and was repeatedly returned as the representative of Scarborough in the House of Commons, from 1558 to 1585. He married a daughter of Sir William Strickland, Knight, of Sizergh, and his grandson, through her, Sir William Strickland, Knight, was, in 1641, created a baronet. During the protectorate, he became a person of higher consideration, and was summoned to the House of Peers by the title of Lord Strickland. From that gentleman, the present baronet, who succeeded to the title and estates in 1834, is the seventh in succession.---S., Easton Hall.

BOYTHORPE. See FOXHOLES-WITH-BOYTHORP.

BOYTON, CORNWALL, a parish, partly in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Black Torrington, county of Devon, and partly in that of Stratton, in the above county: 286 miles from London (coach road 219), 5 from Launceston, 9 from Newport.---Gt. West. Rail. to Plymouth, thence 30 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Exeter to Plymouth, &c., 294 miles.---The parish is intersected by the Budo Canal.---The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Cornwall, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £18: pres. net income, £120: patron, Rev. G. Prideaux: pres. incumbent, Edward Rudall, 1826: contains 5,120 acres: 82 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 600: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 690: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,477: poor rates in 1837, £84.---Fairs: Monday-fortnight after Lammas-day, and Aug. 18, for cattle.

BOYTQN, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Wilford, union of Woodbridge, on the western bank of the river Butley, near Hollesley Bay: 73 miles from London (coach road 85), 8 from Woodbridge, 16 from Ipswich.---East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Ipswich, thence 16 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 205 miles.---Money orders issued at Woodbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---There are almshouses here for twelve men and twelve women, with a liberal endowment.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Suffolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at

£5. 12s. 1d.: pres. net income, £388. patron, Mrs. Warner's Trustees: pres. incumbent, W. W. Aldrich, 1841: contains 1,890 acres: 45 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 239: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,646: poor rates in 1837, £232.

BOYTON, WILTS., a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Heytesbury, union of Warminster: 113 miles from London (coach road 89), 6 from Warminster, 12 from Amesbury. — Sou. West. Rail. to Salisbury, thence 17 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Westbury, &c., 151, thence 12 miles. — Money orders issued at Warminster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Salisbury, is valued at £27. 17s. 3½d.: pres. net income, £549: patron, Magdalen College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, William Aldrich, 1823: contains 4,580 acres: 40 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 360: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 414: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,071: poor rates in 1837, £154. — Boyton House, occupied by Captain the Hon. G. C. Agar.

BOYTON. See BRIGHTON, NORFOLK.

BOZEAT (or BOZIATE), NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Higham-Ferrers, union of Wellingborough: 81 miles from London (coach road 73), 6 from Wellingborough, 12 from Kettering. — Nor. West. Rail. to Castle-Ashby station, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Weedon to Castle-Ashby, &c., 92 miles. — Money orders issued at Wellingborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, with the rectory of Strixton, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £183: patron, Earl Spencer: pres. incumbent, W. C. Wilson, 1825: contains 2,400 acres: 156 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 845: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 971: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,402: poor rates in 1837, £421. The great and small tithes, the property of the lord of the manor and vicar, were commuted in 1798. — E. 2 m. is Park Hill House.

BRABOURNE, KENT, a parish in the franchise and barony of Bircholt, lathe of Shepway, union of East Ashford: 72 miles from London (coach road 61), 5 from Ashford, 6 from Hythe. — Sou. East. Rail. to Ashford, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 204 miles. — Money orders issued at Ashford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. — There is a Baptist chapel here, the congregation of which was formed in 1818, and another, for which the congregation was collected in 1826. — The living, a vicarage, consolidated in 1776 with Monk's Horton, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £11. 12s. 6d.: pres. net income, £320: patron, Archbishop of Canterbury: pres. incumbent, James Brothers, 1846: contains 3,640 acres: 92 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 889: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,022: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,809: poor rates in 1837, £469. — E. 1 m. is Mersham Hatch, the seat of the Right Hon. Sir Edward Knatchbull, which has been the principal residence of the family for more than three centuries. The mansion is a spacious brick edifice, with wings, placed in an extensive and picturesque park, on the old coach road through Maidstone to Hythe. An ancient house stood upon the ground which it now occupies. It was the residence of Sir Norton Knatchbull, was partly rebuilt by Sir Wyndham, and finished by the late father of the present baronet. The burial-place of the family is in Mersham church, in which the principal monument is to the memory of Sir Norton Knatchbull and Bridget, his second lady, the daughter of John Astley, Esq. The former, who died during the reign of Charles I., in 1636, is commemorated by a full-length figure in white marble, leaning on his right elbow, above which, under a canopy, there is a figure of his lady, in a kneeling posture. She died in November, 1625, at the age of fifty-five, and the epitaph is so exhibitiv<sup>e</sup> of natural feeling, that we cannot forbear from transcribing it: it contains a lesson and a comfort equally likely to be a support to those who have the world's trials to pass through. It runs thus, and is marked, by-the-by, with a simplicity of heart and a correctness of taste, which cannot but be an inducement to persevere:—

"The dust closed up within this marble shrine
Was, when it breathed, a blossom feminine;
Brow'd up in Courte, the ill whereof and good
She quickly found in competition stood;
The good ill Courte who therefore soon forsooke;
And, happy in her choice, a husband took.
Yet though she were with happy Hymen blest,
She found the world could yield no perfect rest;
And, therefore, having three-and-thirty years
Liv'd in true love with him that lov'd her deare,
She left him too, and all that worldly is,
To gain an everlasting crowne of bliss."

And the epitaph is a fair description of the Knatchbull family—gentle, domestic, talented, and kind. The mansion was originally purchased of a Mr. Edwards, in the reign of Henry II., by Richard Knatchbull, Esq., from whom was lineally descended Sir Norton Knatchbull, Knt., who served the office of high sheriff for the county in the fifth of James I., and sat in the House of Commons for the port of Hythe. His nephew, who was eminently distinguished for literary ability, was created a baronet in 1641; and his direct descendant, the late and ninth baronet, who was for a series of years the representative of the county, and filled a high official position in the cabinet, succeeded to the title and estates in 1819. The Right Hon. Sir E. Knatchbull died 24th May, 1849, when the title and estates devolved upon his eldest son (by his first wife), Sir Norton Joseph Knatchbull, the present baronet.

BRACEBOROUGH, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Ness, parts of Kesteven, union of Stamford: 123 miles from London (coach road 95), 6 from Market-Deeping. — East<sup>Co</sup> Rail. through Peterborough to Stamford, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Syston to Stamford, &c., 77 miles. — Money orders issued at Market-Deeping: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £9. 10s.: pres. net income, £125: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, George Rogers, 1844: contains 2,230 acres: 34 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 231: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,682: poor rates in 1837, £47. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1799-1800.

BRACEBRIDGE, LINCOLN, a parish in the liberty of the city, and union of Lincoln: 171 miles from London (coach road 180), 8 from Lincoln, 14 from Newark.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>a</sup>. Rail. to Lincoln, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Newark and Lincoln, &c., 52 miles.---Money orders issued at Lincoln: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £3. 9s. 9<sup>d</sup>.: pres. net income, £203: patron, Mrs. Bromehead: pres. incumbent, W. Bromehead, 1837: contains 26 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 127: poor rates in 1837, £120.

BRACEBY, LINCOLN, a parish in the soke of Grantham, parts of Kesteven, union of Grantham: 135 miles from London (coach road 108), 5 from Folkingham, 6 from Grantham.---East. Co<sup>a</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough to Stamford, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham to Newark, 33, thence 20 miles.---Money orders issued at Folkingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> a.m.: post closes 5<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m.---The living is a vicarage united to South Grantham: contains 970 acres: 21 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 155: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,196: poor rates in 1837, £75.

BRACE-MEOLE, SALOP, a parish within the liberty of the borough of Shrewsbury: 163 miles from London (coach road 156), 2 from Shrewsbury, 11 from Church-Stretton.---Nor. West. Rail. to Stafford, thence 31 miles: from Derby, through Burton to Stafford, &c., 72 miles.---Money orders issued at Shrewsbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---This place includes the house of industry for all the town parishes. There is an efficient parish school.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £5: pres. net income, £361: patron, Rev. E. Bather: pres. incumbent, E. Bather, 1847: contains 230 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,195: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,010: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £6,892: poor rates in 1837, £461.

BRACEWELL, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish and township in the eastern division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Ewerose, union of Skipton, in the vicinity of the Leeds and Liverpool Canal: 232 miles from London (coach road 225), 9 from Skipton, 9 from Clitheroe.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Manchester to Clitheroe, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Manchester, &c., 135 miles.---Money orders issued at Skipton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes 1<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m.---Limestone is found abundantly in the parish.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £2. 9s. 9<sup>d</sup>.: pres. net income, £104: patrons, Robert Hopwood, sen., and Robert Hopwood, jun., Esqrs.: pres. incumbent, Thomas Hayes, 1842: contains 1,920 acres: 36 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 153: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,941: poor rates in 1837, £128.

BRACKEN, EAST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Kilnwick, Bainton-Beacon division of the wapentake of Harthill---(which see for access, &c.): 186 miles from London, 3 from Beverley, 7 from Great Driffeld.---Money orders issued at Beverley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---Contains 460 acres: 3 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 32: poor rates in 1837, £23.

BRACKENBOROUGH, LINCOLN, a chapelry in the parish of Great Grimsby, wapentake of Ludborough, parts of Lindsey, union of Louth---(which see for access, &c.): 150 miles from London, 2 from Louth, 15 from Market-Raisen.---Contains 890 acres: 7 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 50: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £815: poor rates in 1837, £37.

BRACKENFIELD, DERBY, a chapelry in the parish of Moreton, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Scaradale: 150 miles from London (coach road 146), 4 from Alfreton, 6 from Wirksworth.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Derby to Wingfield station, thence 4 miles: from Derby to Wingfield, &c., 18 miles.---Money orders issued at Alfreton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m.---The living is a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Lichfield: pres. net income, £32: patron, Rector of Moreton: pres. incumbent, James Rushton, 1844: contains 69 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 459: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 527: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,598: poor rates in 1837, £128.

BRACKENHILL, CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Arthuret, Eskdale ward: 312 miles from London (coach road 310), 5 from Longtown, 9 from Carlisle.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe, Lancaster, and Carlisle, to Rockliffe station, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Burton, Crewe, Carlisle, &c., 212 miles.---Money orders issued at Longtown: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m.: post closes 6<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m.---Contains 63 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 449: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 516: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,152.

BRACKENHOLME WITH WOODHALL, EAST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Hemingbrough, wapentake of Ouse and Derwent, on the western bank of the river Derwent---(which see for access, &c.): 184 miles from London, 7 from Selby, 19 from Beverley.---Contains 1,050 acres: 11 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 79: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,063: poor rates in 1837, £38.

BRACKENTHWAITE, CUMBERLAND, a township in the parochial chapelry of Lorton, ward of Allerdale above Derwent---(which see for access, &c.): 296 miles from London, 7 from Cockermouth, 8 from Keswick.---Contains 25 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 149: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £894: poor rates in 1837, £64.

BRACKLEY, NORTHAMPTON, a borough, market town, and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of King's Sutton, union of Brackley: 83 miles from London (coach road 63), 21 from Northampton.---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Brackley Road, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Rugby and Banbury, to Brackley Road, &c., 84 miles.---Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m. 3 p.m.: post closes 8.10 a.m. 6.30 p.m.---The name is derived from the Anglo-Saxon word for a fern (bracken), plants of that family having in former times abounded in the neighbourhood; and under the Saxons it was for many years a place of great consideration, but was almost entirely destroyed by the Danes. Brackley was in ancient times one of the places where tournaments were held, and where some of the most magnificent of those chivalrous festivities were celebrated. The site was that of Bayard's Green, subsequently corrupted into Bear's Green, but which most probably derived its denomination from the celebrated Chevalier Bayard, whose armour is now placed in Woolwich arsenal, but whose name is enshrined in the highest lists of honour recorded in the pages of history. The Green is an elevated spot on the southern banks of the Ouse, and the place afterwards became the course of the once celebrated Brackley races. The town stands on a rising ground on the banks of the Ouse, which here divides Northamptonshire from the county of Buckingham. It consists principally of a main street of highly respectable appearance, most of the houses in which are built of stone. There is a handsome town-hall in the middle, supported on arches, under which the town-market is held: it was erected at an expense of £2,000 by the Duke of Bridgewater. Brackley was at one time a great mart for wool, but the inhabitants are now chiefly employed in the manufacture of bobbin-lace and wool, though no manufacture to any extent is carried on here. The town is believed, through tradition, to have been incorporated in the time of Henry III.; but at the time of the inquiry into all these municipal documents in 1835, the corporation had nothing whatever to show to justify that pretence, and the only papers they possessed were abstracts of two charters of James II., published in Baker's History of Northamptonshire, which were transcribed for the Rolls Chapel for that work; and given in 1688 by James, when all real power had departed from him, under the advice of the honourable committee for regulating corporations, and the object of which, there is no doubt, was to pack, as far as possible, the parliament which he then intended to call for re-establishing the popish religion in this country. Yet, though nominally possessing a mayor and other functionaries, the borough has not for many years exercised its municipal rights, or any of the powers of self-government during the existence of the present generation, nor, if we are to take the opinion of the municipal commissioners, is there any likelihood of its ability to pay the expense of a corporation. The town is, therefore, under the jurisdiction of the county magistrates, and is by them divided into New and Old Brackley, the limits of the borough being co-extensive with those of the parish. The elective franchise was first conferred in the reign of Edward VI., and the borough continued to return two members to parliament, through the influence of the corporation, who were only thirty-three in number, until the Reform Bill placed it in schedule A, and annihilated at once the power of the Duke of Sutherland and the Earl of Bridgewater to return, to the Lower House of legislature, those whom they chose to nominate, and the monopoly was thus dissipated. The church is an ancient structure, with a lofty square tower, and contains an old Norman font. Tanner, in speaking of this place, says—Robert Earl of Leicester, about the year 1150, gave one Solomon, a clergyman, one acre of land here to build an hospital on, to the honour of St. John the Evangelist, which was well endowed by his son Robert and other benefactors. It consisted of a master, or prior, and several brethren, and was, in aftertimes, called the hospital of St. John and St. James. Maud, the relict of John, Lord Lovel, being patroness about the eighth year of Henry V., designed to have changed this hospital into a house for thirteen friars preachers, which seems not to have taken effect; but, A.D. 1484, it was united to Magdalen College, Oxford. There was also, without the town, an hospital dedicated to

VOL.

St. Leonard. The Wesleyan Methodists have a place of worship here, the congregation of which was formed in 1800. There is a free grammar-school here, with a small endowment; and almshouses for six aged widows, which were founded and endowed, in 1633, with an income of £24 per annum, to which Bishop Crewe afterwards added £12 a year. On the site of the Castle-hill there is an ancient fortress. But the glory of the town is likely to depart, if we are to judge from the following letter, addressed to the Times newspaper:—

"SIR,—You are the last resource of those who bear a grief they would fain disclose. Unless you interfere now, an old church will fall into ruins, and an old college will have a fit of repentance when it is too late to repent.

"Brackley is a town in Northamptonshire, with a population of 3,000. At the extreme end is the parish church; but most conveniently situated in the centre of the town is a chapel, belonging to an old hospital, founded, between 1144–1167, by Robert (le Bossu) Earl of Leicester—the hospital for the poor "in free alms"—the chapel for the celebration of divine offices for the souls of himself, ancestors, and heirs.

"Now the chapel is all that remains: the hospital fell into ruins after it was united to Magdalen College, Oxford, in 1484, and has vanished. The chapel is gradually following its example, though Magdalen College enjoys more than 800 acres in Brackley, from the bequests of the founders and benefactors of the hospital.

"Now, sir, is not Magdalen College legally and morally bound, for the good of the poor of Brackley, whose trustees they are in fact, to preserve this chapel—this interesting relic of ancient piety? Their excuse will be that, in 1744, the president and fellows, by deed, granted a license to one John Welchman, to apply the church to parish purposes, on condition of keeping it in repair. He did as long as he lived; but John Welchmans don't arise in every age, and there was no legal obligation on any one else to keep up the fabric; but surely there is a strong moral obligation on those who retain the property of the chapel. Surely it was a hard bargain to drive with John Welchman, to get rid of all the responsibilities, and keep all the property.

"Such things as these, sir, only require exposure to be remedied. Magdalen College itself will thank you for awakening it. These are no times for losing a church. The town would doubtless come forward to the assistance of the College.

"May 26, 1849."

"B. A."

The Brackley poor-law union comprises 30 parishes, spread over an area of 87 square miles, and includes a population of about 14,000. A workhouse has been erected here by the poor-law commissioners, at an expense of £6,000, for the accommodation of 250 inmates. — The living (St. Peter), a vicarage, with the curacy of St. James, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £19. 1s. 6d.: pres. net income, £359: patron, Duke of Sutherland: pres. incumbent, C. A. Sage, 1825: contains 2,790 acres: 375 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,121: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,439: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,587: poor rates in 1837, £977. Tithes commuted 10th George IV. — Market day, Wednesday. Fairs: Wednesday after Feb. 25, April 19, Wednesday after June 22, Wednesday after October 11, and December 11, for horses, cows, and sheep.

BRACKNELL (or BRACKENHILL), BERKS, a hamlet in the parish of Easthampstead, hun<sup>d</sup> of Cookham—(which see for access, &c.): 27 miles from London, 4 from Wokingham, 9 from Windsor. — Money orders issued at Wokingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — Bracknell is a polling-place for the county. — Fairs, April 25th, August 22d, and October 1st, for horses, cows, and sheep.

BRACONASH, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Humbleyard, union of Henstead: 121 miles from London (coach road 103), 5 from Wymondham, 6 from Norwich. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>o</sup>. Rail.

8 B

to Wymondham, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough to Wymondham, &c., 167 miles. Money orders issued at Wymondham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £245: patron, Mrs. E. Berney: pres. incumbent, T. P. Slapp, 1827: contains 950 acres: 39 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 293: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,410: poor rates in 1837, £215. Hill House.

BRADBORNE, DERBY, a parish, comprising the chapelry of Atlow in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Appletree, and the chapelries of Ballidon and Brassington, the townships of Aldwark and Bradborne, and the hamlet of Leahall in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wirksworth: 147 miles from London (coach road 144), 5 from Ashborne, 6 from Winster. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Derby to Brassington, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Ambergate to Brassington, &c., 15 miles. Money orders issued at Ashborne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. The parish has an endowed day and Sunday school. The parochial charities produce £21 a year. Limestone is abundant here. The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, with the curacy of Ballidon, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Derby, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £8. 3s. 4d.: pres. net income, £119: patron, Duke of Devonshire: pres. incumbent, G. Buckston, 1827: contains 6,400 acres: 259 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,303: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,498: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £13,010: poor rates in 1837, £696.

BRADBORNE, DERBY, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.)—Contains 37 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 224: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,624: poor rates in 1837, £140.

BRADBURY, DURHAM, a township in the parish of Sedgfield, north-eastern division of Stockton ward—(which see for access, &c.): 254 miles from London, 10 from Durham, 2 from Sedgfield. Money orders issued at Durham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> noon: post closes 7 p.m. There was formerly a chapel here, dedicated to St. Nicholas. Contains 1,970 acres: 25 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 169: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,995: poor rates in 1837, £93.

BRADBY (or BRETRY), DERBY, a chapelry in the parish of Repton, hun<sup>d</sup> of Repton and Gresley: 135 miles from London (coach road 127), 3 from Burton-upon-Trent, 10 from Derby. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Leicester to Burton-upon-Trent, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Burton, &c., 13 miles. Money orders issued at Burton-upon-Trent: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. The living is in the diocese of Lichfield: pres. net income, £80: patron, Earl of Chesterfield: pres. incumbent, J. T. Smith: contains 57 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 298: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,289: poor rates in 1837, £271. Bradley Park.

BRADDEN, NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Greens-Norton, union of Towcester: 69 miles from London (coach road 62), 3 from Towcester, 17 from Banbury. Nor. West. Rail. to Blisworth station, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Leicester to Blisworth, &c., 81 miles. Money orders issued at Towcester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £14. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £227: patron, Rev. C. Ives: pres. incumbent, Cornelius Ives, 1818: contains 1,000 acres: 33 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 171: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,470: poor rates in 1837, £127. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1803.

BRADEL. See CHURCH-KNOWLE.

BRADENHAM, BUCKINGHAM, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Desborough, union of Wycombe: 35 miles from London (coach road 33), 4 from High Wycombe, 10 from Beaconsfield. Gt. West. Rail. through Maidenhead to High Wycombe, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Banbury, and Oxford, to High Wycombe, &c., 140 miles. Money orders issued at High Wycombe: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Buckingham, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £5. 3s. 9d.: pres. net income, £190: patron, Mrs. Hearle: pres. incumbent, Isaac King, 1832: contains 830 acres: 38 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 226: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,385: poor rates in 1837, £86.

BRADENHAM (EAST), NORFOLK, a parish in the southern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Greenhoe, union of Swaffham: 132 miles from London (coach road 118), 5 from East Dereham. Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to East Dereham, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough to East Dereham, &c., 172 miles. Money orders issued at Shipdham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. There is an Independent chapel here. The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £12. 2s. 8d.: pres. net income, £298: patron, T. Ardlington: pres. incumbent, J. Smith: contains 2,120 acres: 68 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 381: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 420: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,828: poor rates in 1837, £505.

BRADENHAM (WEST), NORFOLK, a parish in the southern division of the above hun<sup>d</sup>, in the union of Swaffham. (For access and postal arrangements, see preceding article.) The parochial charities produce about £28 a year. The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £7. 1s. 10½d.: pres. net income, £296: patron, Bishop of Ely: pres. incumbent, R. J. King: contains 1,790 acres: 82 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 370: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 420: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,140: poor rates in 1837, £409.

BRADENSTOKE, WILTS, a hamlet in the parish of Lineham, hun<sup>d</sup> of King's-bridge—(which see for access, &c.): 87 miles from London: 6 from Chippenham, 5 from Wotton Bassett. Tanner, in speaking of this place, says—Here Walter d'Evereux, or de Saresbiria, built, A.D. 1142, and endowed a priory of black canons to the honour of the blessed Virgin, wherein, after his lady's decease, he himself took a religious habit, died, and was buried. This monastery—of which the king, before the dissolution, was accounted patron or founder, in right of the duchy of Lancaster—was valued, in the 6th year of Henry VIII., at £270. 16s. 8d., and was granted in exchange to Richard Pezall, in the 38th year of that monarch's reign.

BRADESTON, NORFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> and union of Blofield: 134 miles from London (coach road 118), 4 from Acle, 8 from Yarmouth. —East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Norwich to Brundall station, thence 2<sup>m</sup> miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough to Norwich, &c., 174 miles. —Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m. —The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the diocese of Norwich, united with that of Strumpshaw, and having jointly a pres. net income of £520: patron, Rev. E. S. Whitbread: pres. incumbent, E. S. Whitbread, 1833: contains 630 acres: 32 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 126: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £559: poor rates in 1837, £122.

BRADFIELD, BERKS, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Theale, union of Bradfield: 44 miles from London (coach road 46), 8 from Reading, 9 from Newbury. —Gt. West. Rail. through Reading to Theale, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Banbury, Oxford, and Reading, to Theale, &c., 130 miles. —Money orders issued at Reading: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. —There is mention made of a monastery here in the charter granted by King Ina at Abingdon. The church is an ancient and impressive structure, of old English architecture; it has a square tower, containing six bells, and a Gothic porch. There are several monuments of members of the family of the Rev. T. Stevens, at whose sole expense a Gothic chapel of flint and brick has been erected in the grounds of the union workhouse, for the benefit of the inmates of that establishment. It has an altar window filled with stained glass. The roof of the edifice is finely ribbed, and at the extremity there is a neat Gothic porch. The old church was thoroughly renovated in 1819, and has since then been enlarged. There is a school of industry in the village, where more than a hundred scholars are instructed in plaiting straw, needlework, and other employments, and are paid for what they do: a part of the day is devoted to reading and religious instruction. The benefits arising from diffusing orderly and diligent habits, and from diminishing the poor rates, have already been found to be very considerable. The union workhouse, erected here by the poor-law commissioners, cost £7,450, and is capable of accommodating 250 persons. The Bradfield poor-law union comprehends 29 parishes, which are spread over an area of 106 square miles, and comprises a population of about 15,000 souls. —The living, a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Berks, and diocese of Salisbury, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £19. 7s. 8½d. pres. net income, £788: patron, Rev. T. Stevens: pres. incumbent, T. Stevens, 1843: contains 4,270 acres: 180 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,042: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,198: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £5,774: poor rates in 1837, £530. —Bradfield House, the seat of the Rev. John Counop; Bradfield Rectory, the residence of the Rev. Thomas Stevens; Bradfield Place, the residence of the Misses Le Mesurier; South End Cottage, the residence of the Rev. J. F. Moor. They are all houses of imposing and handsome appearance, and command fine views of the country.

BRADFIELD, ESSEX, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> and union of Tendring, on the southern bank of the navigable river Stour: 62 miles from London

(coach road 65), 4 from Manningtree, 6 from Colchester. —East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Manningtree, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 194 miles. —Money orders issued at Manningtree: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. —The church contains monuments of the Grimstone family. —The living is a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the diocese of Rochester, united to the rectory of Mistley, and having jointly a pres. net income of £698: patron, Lord Rivers: pres. incumbent, J. E. Carter, 1845: contains 2,270 acres: 198 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 995: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,144: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,290: poor rates in 1837, £555. —Bradfield House. W. 1 m., Mistley Park—(for which see MISTLEY-THORN.)

BRADFIELD, NORFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Tunstead: 144 miles from London (coach road 127), 2 from North Walsham, 7 from Cromer. —East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Norwich, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough to Norwich, &c., 184 miles. —Money orders issued at North Walsham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. —There is an independent church here, formed in 1750. —The living, consisting of one mediety, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, (the other mediety of the living is a donative annexed to Thorpe-Market,) is valued at £3. 15s. 7½d.: pres. net income, £127: patron, Lord Suffield: pres. incumbent, G. L. Fauquier, 1831—(see Thorpe-Market): contains 630 acres: 40 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 195: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £842: poor rates in 1837, £48.

BRADFIELD, WEST RIDING, YORK, a chapelry in the parish of Ecclesfield, northern division of the wapentake of Strafforth and Tickhill: 185 miles from London (coach road 168), 7 from Sheffield, 9 from Rotherham. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Sheffield, to Oughton-bridge station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, &c., 53 miles. —Money orders issued at Sheffield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. —There is a school here, endowed with £45. 15s. a year, and a house and garden, for the tuition of all children born and resident in the chapelry of Bolderstone. There are four others with small endowments. —The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, is valued at £24: pres. net income, £186: patron, Vicar of Ecclesfield: pres. incumbent, John Fletcher, 1819: contains 33,730 acres: 1,008 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 6,318: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 7,266: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £15,710: poor rates in 1837, £1,643. —Fairs: June 17th and 18th; December 9th and 10th, chiefly for swine.

BRADFIELD-COMBUST, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Thedwestry, union of Thingoe: 90 miles from London (coach road 68), 5 from Bury St. Edmund's, 10 from Stowmarket. —East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Stowmarket, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 222 miles. —Money orders issued at Bury St. Edmund's: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. —The church, dedicated to All Saints, is a neat fabric, with a tower and three bells. —The living, a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Sudbury, and diocese of Norwich, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £4. 19s. 7d.: pres. net income, £230: patron,

Rev. H. Hasted: pres. incumbent, H. J. Hasted, 1832: contains 818 acres: 35 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 192: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,106: poor rates in 1837, 135. —Bradfield Hall is the seat of Miss Young, a daughter of Arthur Young, Esq., celebrated for his works on agriculture.

BRADFIELD (St. CLARE), SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Thedwestry, union of Thingoe: 69 miles from London. —(For access and postal arrangements, see above.) —The hall, now occupied as a farm-house, was formerly a retreat of the monks at Bury. —The living, a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Sudbury, and diocese of Norwich, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £7. 4s. 7d.: pres. net income, £275: patron, Rev. R. Davers: pres. incumbent, S. W. Isaacson, 1836: contains 1,190 acres: 28 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 240: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,406: poor rates in 1837, £74.

BRADFIELD (St. GEORGE), SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Thedwestry, union of Thingoe: 72 miles from London. —(For access and postal arrangements, see above.) —The living, a rectory, with that of Rushbrooke annexed, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Sudbury, and diocese of Norwich, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £11. 17s. 3½d.: pres. net income, £550: patron, Marquis of Bristol: pres. incumbent, R. Davers, 1802: contains 2,090 acres: 54 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 479: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 550: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,110: poor rates in 1837, £287.

BRADFORD, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Black Torrington, union of Holsworthy, on the southern bank of the river Torridge: 230 miles from London (coach road 208), 8 from Hatherleigh, 7 from Holsworthy. —Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Crediton, thence 30 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol and Exeter, to Crediton, &c., 243 miles. —Money orders issued at Crediton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> at noon: post closes 1½ p.m. —The parochial charities produce about £44 a year. —The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Totness, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £13. 8s. 4d.: pres. net income, £308: patron, Rector of East Down Bratton, Fleming, Goodleigh: pres. incumbent, J. C. D. Yule, 1843: contains 3,678 acres: 83 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 530: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 610: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,763: poor rates in 1837, £176.

BRADFORD, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Manchester, hun<sup>d</sup> of Salford—(which see for access, &c.): 186 miles from London, 2 from Manchester, 8 from Stockport. —Money orders issued at Manchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. —Contains 260 acres: 27 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 190: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £584: poor rates in 1837, £55.

BRADFORD, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Bamfrough, northern division of Bamfrough ward—(which see for access, &c.): 320 miles from London, 3 from Belford, 11 from Alnwick. —Money orders issued at Belford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. —Contains 6 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 41: poor rates in 1837, £23.

BRADFORD, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Bolam, north-eastern division of Tindale ward—(which see for access, &c.): 288 miles from London: 2 from Morpeth, 16 from Newcastle. —Money orders issued at Morpeth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. —Contains 6 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 37: poor rates in 1837, £32.

BRADFORD, SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Taunton and Taunton-Dean, union of Wellington: 167 miles from London (coach road 145), 4 from Taunton, 3 from Wellington. —Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Taunton, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Taunton, &c., 181 miles. —Money orders issued at Taunton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. —The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Taunton, and diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £10. 17s. 6d.: pres. net income, £120: patron, Rev. W. Burridge: pres. incumbent, W. Burridge, 1819: contains 1,710 acres: 81 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 550: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 632: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,147: poor rates in 1837, £226. —S., Heatherton Park, the seat of Alexander Adair, Esq.—S. E., Amberd House.

BRADFORD, WEST RIDING, YORK, a market town and parish in the wapentake of Morley, honour of Pontefract, union of Bradford, intersected by the Bradford Canal: the parish is 15 miles in length, and, at an average, 4 in breadth, and comprises the market town of the same name, the chapelries of Haworth, Horton, and Thornton, and the townships of Allerton, North Bierley, Bowling, Clayton, Eccleshill, Heaton, Manningham, Shipley, and Wilsden: 214 miles from London (coach road 196), 10 from Leeds. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Leeds, to Bradford station: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 82 miles. —Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m. and 8½ a.m.: post closes 5.10 p.m. and 7½ p.m. —The town of Bradford is pleasantly situated at the confluence of three beautiful and extensive valleys, surrounded by an open, varied, and picturesque country, broken by lofty and graceful hills, and rich in all the affluence of high cultivation, forming altogether many prospects of great beauty, dotted by villas, ornamented by pleasure grounds, and enlivened by a numerous and thriving population. It derives its name from its vicinity to a ford over the river Aire, though the appellation, as Mr. Baines says, is not to be assumed as signifying its usual acceptation, for in Yorkshire it is often applied to rivers and localities, to which it would be then totally inapplicable, as in the case of this river, which is by many persons called the Broad Aire, when, in truth, it is not at all broad. The manor, says Allen, belonged to John of Gaunt, who granted to John Northop and his heirs, in the village of Manningham, three messuages and six bovates of land, to come to Bradford, on the blowing of a horn, on St. Martin's day, in winter, and wait on him and his heirs, in their way from Blackburnshire, with a lance and a hunting dog, for thirty days, and for going with the receiver or bailiff to conduct him safe to the castle of Pontefract. A descendant of Northop afterwards granted land in Horton, to hold the hound while Northop's man blew the horn. And Leland, in speaking of the place during the reign of Henry VIII., says—Bradefourde, a pretty quick market town, dimidio aut eo amplius minus Wackefeld. It hath one parochie church, and a chapel of St. Sitha. It standeth much by clothing. That clothing still continues; and the rapidity with which the population has increased, is the best guarantee that could be given for the prosperity and affluence of the town. In the beginning of the present century the number of inhabitants was little over 7,000, and now they are nearly 130,000. The mother church of the parish, St. Peter's, is an interesting structure, which was erected in the reign of Henry VI.; it is in the diocese of Ripon, valued in the king's books at £20, but bringing a net income of £600: the vicar is the Rev. J. Burnett: the patrons are the trustees of the late Rev. C. Simeon. The perpetual curacies to aid the mother church are numerous, and many of them have glebe-houses attached. Christ church, incumbent, W. Morgan, with a living of £200; St. Jude's, incumbent, J. Cooper, with a living of £70; St. John's, Bowling, J. L. Frost, with £150; Clayton, J. C. Gulvin, with £100 a year; Daisy Hill, J. T. Brien; Eccleshill, F. Randall, with £100; Horton, J. C. Boddington, with £150; Haworth, P. Brontë, with £170; New Leeds, with £100: Shipley with Heaton, W. Kelly, with £100; Thornton, G. Thomas, with £160; Wibsey, J. Fawcett, with £250; Wilsden with Allerton, R. H. Dover, with £150; are all under the patronage of the Vicar of Bradford. St. James's, W. Sherwood, with £200 a year, is under the patronage of J. Wood, Esq.; St. John's, W. Randall, is under the patronage of Mr. Berthron; Bierley, J. Barber, with £130, is under the patronage of Miss Curre; St. Paul, Buttershaw, with £200, J. Bowman, is under the patronage of the Bishop of Ripon; Denholme Gate, P. Eggleston, with £150, is under the patronage of the Crown and the Bishop alternately. Christ church, erected as a chapel of ease to St. Peter's in 1813-14, is a plain building, in the Gothic style, having a low tower, crowned with pinnacles. St. James's, a handsome building, was erected in 1839. The Independents, Baptists, Methodists of different denominations, Society of Friends, Roman Catholics, and Unitarians, all have places of worship here. The Independent church, assembling at Horton Lane chapel, was founded in 1780—that at Salem chapel in 1836; and a new chapel has since been built in High Street, in connection with the Independent college. The first Baptist church was formed in 1753, and the second in 1824; the Unitarian congregation in 1700. The first Wesleyan chapel was built in 1812, and the rest are of later date. The New Wesleyan Association opened a chapel in 1839. There is a free grammar-school here, subject to thirteen resident governors, and subject to the visitation of the Archbishop of York, under a charter of Charles II., dated October 10, 1663. The school was founded by Edward VI., and has a very rich endowment, part of which was given by Charles I. It was incorporated by the patent of 1663; and scholars educated here have the privilege of standing candidates for four scholarships, established in Queen's College, Oxford, by Lady Elizabeth Hastings. A new building for this institution was erected in 1830, in Manningham Lane, which is both spacious and elegant; it contains a good library, and part of it is constructed as an excellent house for the master. There are also a National School, with about 300 scholars; and another, very numerous attended, which is conducted on the British and Foreign School system. Beside these, the schools of all kinds are numerous. Airedale College, not far from the town, is a most admirable institution for the education of young gentlemen intended for the Independent ministry; and the Baptists have one, scarcely less valuable, at Horton. Further, the Wesleyan Methodists have an excellent academy for the instruction of ministers' sons at Woodhouse Grove, not far from the town. Bradford owes much, if not all, of its prosperity, to its situation, being close to an extensive coal-bed, and having some fine mines of ironstone in its immediate neighbourhood. It is, moreover, as nearly as can be, in the centre of the manufacturing districts, standing about equidistant from Leeds, Halifax, Keighley, Wakefield, Huddersfield, and Dewsbury. In addition to these advantages, through a branch of the Liverpool Canal, which is carried into the very centre of the town, it has an excellent water communication with the western seas on one side, and with the German ocean on the other; while, now that the railway is opened, there is scarcely half an hour's transit between Bradford and Leeds, so that, for all commercial purposes, the two places virtually form only one town. The leading manufacture of Bradford is of worsted stuff, principally called merinoes and piece goods. Worsted yarn is also spun here to a great extent, and the place has now become the great wool mart of the country. The piece-hall for the exhibition and sale of stuff goods is a large building of two stories, 144 feet long and 36 feet broad. There is also a good market here, with a spacious enclosed area; and there is an elegant exchange, in which assemblies are occasionally held, part of the building being used for a library and news-room. There is a handsome structure for the Savings Bank, and another for the hall of the Temperance Society, which is said to have been the first ever erected in the kingdom for the use of such associations. The Mechanics' Institute is a flourishing establishment, well supplied with everything for instruction and intellectual enjoyment. There is also a flourishing Philosophical Society, and a Dispensary for the benefit of the poor, conducted on a very liberal scale. The magistrates for the West Riding hold petty sessions here for the eastern division of Morley, and a court of requests for the recovery of debts under £15, is held, under the authority of an act of parliament, passed in 1839. A convenient and handsome court-house, with lock-up cells in the basement, has been built, at an expense of somewhat less than £7,000, partly defrayed out of the county rate, and partly supplied by private subscriptions. Bradford, with the townships of Manningham and Bowling, and the chapelries of Little and Great Horton, was authorised, by the Reform Act, to return two members to parliament. Bradford is a polling-place for West Yorkshire. The parochial charities produce about £350 a year. A septennial festival used to be held here in honour of St. Blase, the titular patron of woolcombers, but it has for some years been discontinued. John Sharp, archbishop of York, in the time of William III., who was distinguished as a theologian, was born here in 1644.

He studied at Christ's College, Cambridge, and rose by gradual preferments to be Dean of Norwich. In the reign of James II. he gave such offence to the court, by preaching against popery, that an order was sent to the bishop to suspend him, which his lordship refused to do as being contrary to law, upon which both the dean and his diocesan were despoiled of their functions by the ecclesiastical commission. The doctor, however, was soon restored, and after the Revolution he was made Dean of Canterbury, from which post he was, in 1691, elevated to the archbishopric of York. He died in 1713. His published works comprise seven volumes of sermons. — Contains 33,710 acres: 14,231 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 105,257: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup>. £135,353: poor rates in 1837, £4,285. — Market day, Thursday. Fairs: March 3d and 4th; June 17th, 18th, and 19th; December 9th, 10th, and 11th, for cattle.

BRADFORD-ABBAS, DORSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Sherborne, Sherborne division of the county: 159 miles from London (coach road 121), 4 from Sherborne, 3 from Yeovil. — Sou. West. Rail. through Southampton to Dorchester, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Bridgewater, 165, thence 25 miles. — Money orders issued at Sherborne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — There are two daily schools here, one of which is endowed with £20 a year for twenty boys, and the other with £10 a year for eighteen girls. There was formerly a flax mill here, in which a considerable number of hands were employed. — The living, a vicarage, to which is united the rectory of Clifton-May-bank, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Dorset, and diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Sarum, is valued at £7. 17s. 11d.: pres. net income, £449: patron, Winchester College: pres. incumbent, R. Grant, 1828: contains 1,810 acres: 123 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 652: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 749: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,695: poor rates in 1837, £131. — W. 1 m. Barwick Hall.

BRADFORD (GREAT), WILTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Bradford, intersected by the river Avon, and the Kennet and Avon Canal, by which means extensive inland and seaward communications are maintained: it comprises the market town of the same name, the chapelries of Atworth, Holt, Winsley with Limpley-Stoke, and South Wraxhall, with the tithings of Leigh-Wooley and Trowle: 109 miles from London (coach road 100), 31 from Salisbury. — Gt. West. Rail. through Chippenham to Trowbridge, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, and Chippenham, to Trowbridge, &c., 150 miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — Bradford is a considerable market town, situated on the banks of the Avon, by which it is divided into two parts—that on the north being called the Old, and that on the south the New Town. The natural features of the country on the site, and in the neighbourhood of the town, are very bold and romantic, for an abrupt hill rises immediately on the north side of the river to a considerable height, and in the various declivities of the ridge most of the buildings are situated. According to Camden, the town derived its name from its position close to a ferry over the broad part of the river here—the word braden in Saxon implying that which we mean by our word broad. Bradford appears to be a place of great antiquity, being founded long anterior even to the Norman Conquest. It was then the site of a monastic institution, which is supposed to have been first destroyed by the Danes, and is remarkable as having been the scene of a bloody contest, in 652, between Cenwalph, king of the West Saxons, with a large number of his revolted subjects, headed by Cuthred, whom he defeated, and lived to enjoy his crown for many years. In a synod held at this town in 954, the celebrated St. Dunstan was elected Bishop of Worcester, and shortly after that time the religious establishment was broken up. Tanner, in speaking of the place, says—Here was an ancient monastery, dedicated to St. Lawrence, founded by St. Aldhelm, who was abbot here at the time of his being made Bishop of Winchester, viz., A.D. 705. King Ethelred gave it to the great nunnery of Shaftesbury, A.D. 1001, and after that time I meet with no account of any religious society here. Bradford continued to be a place of very considerable consequence after the settlement of the Normans in this country, for we see, from the 'Notitia Parliamentaria,' that on one occasion, in the time of Edward I., it sent two representatives to the legislature. That power, however, whether forfeited by neglect, or forcibly abrogated by the crown, was shortly after that time disused. But Bradford is still the principal town of the hundred, and gives its name to it. The houses are chiefly built of stone, the streets are mostly narrow, and they do not appear to have been much altered for centuries. Leland gives the following description of the place at the time he wrote, which must have been towards the close of the reign of Henry VIII., or in the course of that of Edward VI.—*The toune selfe of Bradford stondith on the clining of a rocke, and hath a meetley goode market ons a weeke. The toune is mad al of stone, and stondith as I came to it on farther ripe of Avon. Thir is a chappelle on the highest parte of the toune as I entered. The fair large parochie chirche stondith benethe the bridge on Avon ripe. The vicarage is at the west end of the chirche. The parsonage is L pounds by the yeere, and was impropriate to Shatisbyri Abbey. Halle dwelleth in a pretty stone house in the este ende of the toune in dextra ripa Avonae. Haule, alias de la Sale, a man of an 100 llandes bye the yeere. There is a faire house of the buildinge of one Horton, a rich clothier, at the north-este part of the chirche. This Horton's wife yet lyvith. This Horton builded a goodly large churche house, ex lapide quadrato, at the este end of the chirchyard without it. This Horton made divers faire houses of stone in Thoroughbridge toune. One Lucas, a clothier, now dwelleth in Horton's house in Bradeforde. The toune of Bradeforde stondith by cloth-making. Bradeforde bridge hath nine fair arches of stone. So much for good old Leland; if not plain, the passage at least contains a fac simile of life in his day, and shows, by his reference to Horton, that humanity is semper idem. The bridge of which he speaks yet remains, and is a very picturesque object. On one of the piers there is a small square building, with a pyramidal roof, which is supposed to have been* a chapel, erected for levying contributions towards the support of the hospital which stood at one end of the bridge, and which was, according to Tanner's report, of the King of England's foundation. The chapel spoken of by Leland has been demolished. The bridge is certainly of very ancient date, but the time of its erection is unknown. There is also another bridge of four arches at Bradford, over the Avon, of more recent date. The manufactures spoken of by Leland still remain. The finer cloths, for which the west of England is famed, are made from a mixture of Saxony and Spanish wools, and it is believed that the water of the river is peculiarly favourable for the dyeing of them; scarcely less than 500 hands are now employed in the trade. The Baptists, Methodists, Independents, Society of Friends, Huntingdonians, and the Unitarians, all have places of worship here. The Baptist congregation was formed in 1690, one of the Independent congregations in 1740, and the association of the Methodists in 1760. The schools of course are numerous: one of them is endowed with £40 a year, and another with £10 a year; and to the credit of the place it may be said, that, in a population of not more than 11,000, there are as many as sixteen Sunday schools. There are two almshouses, with small endowments, and the other parochial charities produce about £125 a year. Bradford has never been incorporated, though it sent members to parliament in the 23d of Edward I., and still retains the appellation of a borough. By the Reform Act, the freeholders here are included as voters in the northern district of a county. Certain of the county magistrates exercise judicial functions within the limits of the town; and petty sessions for the district of Bradford, in the division of Trowbridge, are held here. —The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, with the curacies of Westwood, Holt, Winsley, Stoke, Wraxhall, and Atworth-annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wilts, diocese of Sarum, is valued at £10. 1s. 3d.: pres. net income, £596: patron, Dean and Chapter of Bristol: pres. incumbent, H. Harvey, 1834: contains 11,740 acres: 1,990 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 10,571: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 12,156: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £26,847: poor rates in 1837, £4,757. —Market day, Saturday. Fairs: Trinity-Monday, for cattle and millinery goods; and another in the hamlet of Bradford-Leigh, on Aug. 26.

BRADFORD-PEVERELL, DORSET, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of George, Dorchester union and division of the county: 144 miles from London (coach road 125), 3 from Dorchester, 5 from Abbas. —Sou. West. Rail. through Southampton to Dorchester, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, Basingstoke, and Southampton, to Dorchester, &c., 233 miles. —Money orders issued at Dorchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. —The line of a Roman road passes in the neighbourhood, and in several tumuli near here many Roman relics have been found. —The living, a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Dorset, and diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Sarum, is valued at £11. 2s. 11d.: pres. net income, £229: patron, Winchester College: pres. incumbent, G. C. Rashleigh, 1837: contains 2,700 acres: 60 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 355: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 408: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup>

£1,911: poor rates in 1837, £118. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1798.

BRADFORD (West), West Riding, York, a township in the parish of Mitton, western division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Ewcross, union of Clitheroe: 224 miles from London (coach road 214), 2 from Clitheroe, 9 from Broughton. —Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe, Manchester, and Blackburn, to Clitheroe, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Manchester, &c., 125 miles. —Money orders issued at Clitheroe: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3¼ p.m. —Contains 1,700 acres: 101 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 600: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 690: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,964: poor rates in 1837, £178.

BRADGATE, LEICESTER, an extra parochial liberty in the hund<sup>d</sup> of West Goscote: 102 miles from London, 5 from Leicester, 3 from Thurmaston. —At this place there are the ruins of an ancient mansion, at one time noted for its extent and magnificence, which is believed to have been the birth-place, in 1537, of the beautiful and virtuous, but unfortunate, Lady Jane Grey, who was beheaded, by order of Queen Mary, in 1554. Nichols, in his History of Leicestershire, says—The chapel has ceased to be used for public worship since the demolition of the mansion, but contains a handsome monument to Henry Lord Grey of Groby and his lady, and a vault, in which the two first Earls of Stamford were interred.

BRADING, HANTS (in ancient records Bredering or Brerdynge), a parish in the liberty of East Medina, Isle of Wight division of the county: this parish is extensive, and includes the borough of Brading: its former bounds included the present parishes of St. Helen's on the north, Yaverland towards the south, and Shanklin and Bonchurch to the south-west: 105 miles from London (coach road 99), 7 from Newport, 5 from Newtown. —Sou. West. Rail. to Gosport, thence across Spithead to the Isle of Wight by Ryde to Brading: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, Reading, and Bishopstoke, to Gosport, &c., 192 miles. —Money orders issued at Newport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. —Yaverland parish is a small oblong space, hardly a mile long, and not so wide as that, its southern limit trending on the coast a little to the eastward of Sandown fort; but the parish of St. Helen's is of greater extent, taking off a sweep of the coast to the north of more than a mile in breadth. The mother-church of Brading still retains a sovereignty over the two contiguous parishes of Shanklin and Yaverland, the inhabitants of which are compelled to bury their dead at Brading, and to pay its minister 10s. yearly by way of homage, besides being under an obligation to attend on Easter-Sunday, if required, to read the first and second lessons of the day. The inhabitants of Shanklin are further required to take their own minister for the burial of their dead. The town consists of one long and picturesque street. It stands at the upper end of Brading haven, on the margin of which there is a convenient quay, with warehouses for corn and other merchantable commodities. The church is believed to be the most ancient structure of the kind in the island; and its erection is attributed by Sir John Oglander to Wilfrid, bishop of Chichester, or rather of Selsea, in the year 704, who is said to have baptized his first convert on the spot, and whose preaching was so successful, that he converted no less than twelve hundred families, comprising nearly the whole population of the island, from the darkness of paganism to the light of Christianity. The church is built on a rock of fine white sandstone, which appears at the depth of a few feet from the surface. It is in the Gothic style; and though the body of the edifice appears somewhat low without, the interior, especially the middle aisle, is lofty and imposing. Its principal embellishments are two recumbent figures of Sir John Oglander, and his father Sir William, carved in wood, which are placed upon their monuments. At the west end of the building there is a square tower, which contains a peal of four bells; and a spire of more modern date has been erected upon it, which forms a very pleasing object at a distance. In the churchyard there are several very interesting monuments, which are inscribed with epitaphs particularly well written. Among them is the following, with which Dr. Calcott was so much struck, that he set it to some very beautiful music for three voices, which, at the time of its publication, was very popular. The epitaph is to the memory of a lady, Mrs. Anne Berry:—

"Forgive, blest shade, the tributary tear,
That mourns thy absence from a world like this;
Forgive the wish that would have kept thee here,
And staid thy progress to the seats of bliss.

"No more confined to grovelling scenes of night—
No more a tenant pent in mortal clay;
Now should we rather hail thy glorious flight,
And trace thy journey to the realms of day."

The lines have a sweet Gray-like and affectionate rhythm; but the following, which links innocence with heaven, is more to our mind. It is to the memory of "LITTLE JANE," the Dairyman's Daughter, celebrated for her piety, by the Rev. Leigh Richmond:—

"Ye who the power of God delight to trace,
And mark with joy each monument of grace,
Tread lightly o'er this grave, as ye explore
The short and simple annals of the poor."

"A child reposes underneath this sod—
A child to mem'ry dear, and dear to God.
Rejoice! yet shed the sympathetic tear,
Jane, 'THE YOUNG COTTAGER,' lies buried here."

The town is incorporated, but the only original charter in possession of the corporation is a grant made by Edward VI., in the first year of his reign, to the bailiffs, and the king's subjects, inhabitants of the town of Breardinge, of a market to be held every Wednesday, and of two fairs every year; the common seal has an inscription round it of "the kynge's towne of Bradyng." The place was formerly of considerable importance, and sent two representatives to parliament; but the burgesses got themselves excused from what they conceived to be a burdensome privilege, on the plea that it cost them the sum of fourpence daily for the support of their members. There is a small town-hall, which is used partly as a prison, and partly as a market-house. The magisterial jurisdiction of the place is vested in a senior and junior bailiff, a recorder, a town-clerk, and thirteen jurats. The inhabitants are mostly shopkeepers, each of whom has to pay 3s. 4d. to the corporation before commencing business; and every person who carries on trade within the precincts of the place, has to pay an annual acknowledgment to the same body. The highest sum, which is two shillings, is paid by the bakers, and the lowest is fourpence, which is paid by the carpenters and coopers. There is no manufacture, and Brading, unlike many other places in the island, is but little affected by the influx of visitors during the summer season. The Independents have a place of worship here, and there is a National school, beside two Sunday schools. Brading haven is a marshy tract of between eight and nine hundred acres, which communicates with the sea by a narrow gorge, and which at high water is covered by the waves, so that brigs of small burthen can approach the town. There being such a narrow outlet, the lords of the manor have many times endeavoured to dam out the waters and reclaim the land; the chief of these attempts was made during the reign of James I., when the celebrated Sir Hugh Myddleton, who brought the new river to London, was engaged, with Sir Bevis Thelwall and other persons, in an attempt to close the outlet. They had proceeded far with their works, and after having incurred an expense of £7,000, there seemed every prospect of ultimate success; but during a rainy season, the fresh waters from the hills had gathered in unusual quantity, and these, combining with the turbulent waves of a remarkably high tide, dashed down the barrier; the sea resumed its usual resort, and the whole effort became nugatory. Yet it appears that this was once dry ground, for while the waters were excluded, a square well was discovered which was lined with stone. By a singular circumstance, the haven was found to be an admirable deposit of shell-fish. Some time about the year 1782-3, a fishing-vessel was sailing in her accustomed manner over the ground, when, either from chance, or curiosity, or speculation, she dropped her drag overboard, and the motion of the vessel being repelled by some obstacle, the drag was hauled in, and found to contain an enormous number of fine oysters. Happy in finding such a prize, the sailors speedily loaded their vessel, and the master directly carried his valuable cargo to Cowes market. Of course it surprised everybody to see that he had obtained such a store, and in so short a time, but he very prudently kept the secret to himself. Waiting a few days till he could start unobserved, he repeated the trip with the like success. The fishermen soon became clamorous, and determined to watch his steps day and night; and he perceived that against such a combination it would be impossible to keep the treasure to himself. A compromise was therefore effected. The whole of the owners of the entire fleet of oyster smacks, each proposed to give him a tub of oysters, worth about three shillings, on their return to port, if he would show them the source of his success. To this he very wisely acceded, and they, after reaping their golden harvest, very gladly fulfilled the terms of their agreement. The news rapidly spread, and every fishing town, from the Medway to the island, sent its fleet to fish in Brading haven, many of the oysters being removed, to be re-deposited on the Milton and other beds near the Thames, for the supply of the metropolis. It would seem to be scarcely credible, but from three to four hundred vessels have been employed at the same time in this confined space on the lucrative business of dredging for shell-fish. The same wealth might still have been retained, if only ordinary care had been used in retaining the beds in their proper breeding condition; but there has been no sufficient care, although it was a matter of so much importance; the drain has therefore considerably impoverished the oysters, and in a great degree destroyed the breed of them. Great quantities of flounders, mullet, and other fish, are caught in this harbour, but the former are not considered particularly fine. Cockles of excellent quality are also found here in immense numbers, and the gathering of them furnishes employment to many women and children on the ebb of the tide.

—The living, a dioc<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £20: pres. net income, £250: patron, Trinity College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, D. J. Heath, 1846: contains 7,350 acres: 338 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,701: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, £3,106: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £10,908: poor rates in 1837, £1,492. —Market day, Monday. Fairs, May 12, October 2.

BRADLEY, BENNA, a tithing in the parish of Cumner, hun<sup>d</sup> of Horner—(which see for access, &c.): 61 miles from London, 5 from Abingdon, 7 from Oxford. —Money orders issued at Abingdon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 11 p.m. —Contains 1 house: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 7. —(Other returns with the parish.)

BRADLEY, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Malpas, upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Broxton —(which see for access, &c.): 2 miles from Malpas, 14 from Chester. —Contains 940 acres: 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 109: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £791: poor rates in 1837, £56.

BRADLEY, DERBY, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Appletree, union of Burton-upon-Trent: 146 miles from London, 3 from Ashborne. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Derby, thence 14 miles: from Derby, by coach, 14 miles. —Money orders issued at Ashborne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. —The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Derby, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £5. 19s. 9½d.: pres. net income, £259: patron, Bishop of Lichfield: pres. incumbent, W. Skynner, 1805: contains 1,860 acres: 60 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 271: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,848: poor rates in 1837, £188. —Bradley Hall.

BRADLEY, LEICESTER, a hamlet in the chapelry of Holt, parish of Medbourne, hun<sup>d</sup> of Gartree—(which see for access, &c.): 92 miles from London, 3 from Dexton, 9 from Market-Harborough. —Tanner says of this place—Here was a small priory of the order of St. Augustine, founded by Robert Bundy, or Burneby, in the time of King John. It had but two canons at the time of the suppression, whose lands were valued at £20. 15s. 7d. per annum; and were all granted, in the 29th year of Henry VIII., to Thomas Nevell, Esq.

BRADLEY, LINCOLN, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bradley-Haverstoe, parts of Lindsey, union of Caistor: 184 miles from London (coach road 162), 2 from Great Grimsby, 14 from Market-Raisson.

VOL. I.

—Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Leicester to Great Grimsby, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, Lincoln, and Boston, to Grimsby, &c., 131 miles. —Money orders issued at Great Grimsby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. —The children of this parish have a right to attend a free school at Laceby. —The living, a dioc<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £5. 10s. 10d.: pres. net income, £151: patron, Sir J. Nelthorpe, Bart.: pres. incumbent, A. A. Morgan, 1846: contains 1,450 acres: 17 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 106: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,298: poor rates in 1837, £32.

BRADLEY. See STOCK.

BRADLEY-FIELD. See UNDERBARROW.

BRADLEY (MAIDEN). See MAIDEN-BRADLEY.

BRADLEY, HAMPS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Odiham, union of Basingstoke, Kingsclere division of the county: 57 miles from London (coach road 44), 6 from Alton. —Sou. West. Rail. through Guildford to Alton, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 189 miles. —The parochial charities produce about £20 a year. —The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £8. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £175: patron, C. E. Rumbolds, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. Griffin: contains 1,450 acres: 17 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 120: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £756: poor rates in 1837, £79.

BRADLEY, STAFFORD, a parish in the western division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Cattlestone, &c.: it contains the liberties of Billington and Woollaston, part of Apeton, Alston, Brough, and Rule: 140 miles from London, 3½ from Penkridge, 3 from Grand Junction Canal. —Nor. West. Rail. to Penkridge, thence 3½ miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Penkridge, &c., 71 miles. —Money orders issued at Penkridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. —There are a grammar and a preparatory school in the parish, with about £130 per annum. The other parochial charities produce about £130 a year. There is an example of singular spontaneous combustion in the neighbourhood, which seems to exceed everything that has ever been recorded, and is infinitely more interesting than the burning cliff at Weymouth. The earth itself seems to be on fire, and the fire has now continued for nearly seventy years, notwithstanding every attempt to extinguish it. It appears to have proceeded from a stratum of coal about four feet broad, and eight or ten feet in depth, to which the air, through the fissures of the earth, seems to have ready access; and in consequence of the maff coal having been dug from beneath it, many acres of land have been reduced to a mere calx: the calx has proved an admirable road covering. Sulphur is sometimes found in large quantities. —The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Stafford, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £49. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £75: patron, Duke of Sutherland: pres. incumbent, T. Brown: contains 4,690 acres: 143 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 761: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 800: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,565: poor rates in 1837, £360.

BRADLEY (GREAT), SUFFOLK, a parish in the union and hun<sup>d</sup> of Risbridge: 74 miles from London (coach road 55), 8 from Clara. —Nor. and

30

East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. through Chesterford to Newmarket, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough to Newmarket, &c., 152 miles. —The living, a rectory formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Sudbury, and diocese of Norwich, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £17. 1s. 5½d.: pres. net income, £426: patron, Lord Dacre: pres. incumbent, W. S. P. Wilder: contains 2,280 acres: 98 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 603: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 653: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,049: poor rates in 1837, £243.

BRADLEY (LITTLE), SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Risbridge. —(For access, &c., see preceding article.) —The church contains a curious monument in brass to the memory of John Dalry, the printer, who died in 1584, at Walden, in Essex. —The living, a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Sudbury, and diocese of Norwich, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £5. 0s. 10d.: pres. net income, £100: patron, C. and W. Lamprella: contains 890 acres: 4 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 20: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £985: poor rates in 1837, £75.

BRADLEY-IN-THE-MOORS, STAFFORD, a parish in the southern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Totmanslow, union of Cheadle, in the vicinity of the Uttoxeter Canal: 140 miles from London (coach road 142), 4 from Cheadle, 8 from Uttoxeter. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Leicester to Uttoxeter, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Burton to Uttoxeter, &c., 34 miles. —Money orders issued at Cheadle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stafford, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £16. 16s.: pres. net income, £58: patron, Earl of Shrewsbury: pres. incumbent, E. Whieldon, 1825: contains 570 acres: 17 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 72: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,075: poor rates in 1837, £47.

BRADLEY (LOWER and UPPER), WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Kildwick, eastern division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Ewcross, intersected by the Leeds and Liverpool Canal: 228 miles from London (coach road 212), 2 from Skipton, 7 from Otley. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Leeds, to Bradley station: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 196 miles. —Money orders issued at Skipton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. —Contains 1,630 acres: 112 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 706: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 812: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,004: poor rates in 1837, £232.

BRADLEY (NORTH) WILTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Whorwelsdown, union of Westbury and Whorwelsdown: 112 miles from London (coach road 99), 4 from Trowbridge, 3 from Bradford. —Great West. Rail. through Chippenham to Westbury, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Stonehouse, and Bristol, to Westbury, &c., 153 miles. —Money orders issued at Trowbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. —There is a Baptist chapel here, the congregation of which was formed in 1775. There are also a daily and Sunday school, with a small endowment; and besides, there is an asylum, founded, for men and women, by Archdeacon Daubeney. The other parochial charities produce about £30 a year. —The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wilts, and diocese of Sarum, is valued at £11: pres. net income, £398: patron, Winchester College: pres. incumbent, Harry Lee, 1832: contains 3,020 acres: 466 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,427: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,791: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,127: poor rates in 1837, £607.

BRADLEY (WEST), SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Glaston-Twelve-Hides, union of Wells: 135 miles from London (coach road 120), 4 from Glastonbury, 6 from Shepton-Mallet. —Gt. West. Rail. through Chippenham to Westbury, thence 25 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Westbury, &c., 176 miles. —Money orders issued at Glastonbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. —The living is a curacy united with the vicarage of Pennard, in the diocese of Bath and Wells: pres. net income, £190: patron, Bishop of Bath and Wells: pres. incumbent, A. Goldney, 1846: contains 300 acres: 20 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 116: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £964: poor rates in 1837, £64.

BRADMORE, NOTTINGHAM, a parish in the northern division of the wapentake of Rushcliffe, union of Basford: 129 miles from London (coach road 126), 5 from Nottingham, 20 from Newark. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Syston to Long Eaton station, thence 6 miles: from Derby to Eaton station, &c., 116 miles. —Money orders issued at Nottingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. —Contains 1,560 acres: 67 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 416: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 478: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,924: poor rates in 1837, £106.

BRADNINCH (or BRAINES), DEVON, a borough and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Hayridge, union of Tiverton, Honiton division of the county: 187 miles from London (coach road 164), 9 from Exeter, 6 from Tiverton. —Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Hele, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Hele, &c., 200 miles. —The town is pleasantly situated on an eminence, nearly surrounded by hills, and consists chiefly of one long irregular street. The editors of Lyson's Magna Britannia, in speaking of this place, say—This is a barony, and was always a part of the Dukedom of Cornwall, of which the dukes were always entitled Barons of Braines. This town consists of three parts, the fee, the manor, and the borough. The fee consists of freeholders, who are to attend at the lord's court twice a year to make their presentments. The manor consists of such as hold their lands of their lord by fine, which they pay every three weeks, as they can agree: the borough, to whom the lord has granted a charter, by which they challenge a power to choose a mayor yearly, who has the government of the town, who by his place is a justice of the peace, as are likewise his next predecessors. It did anciently send two burgesses to parliament; but upon complaint that it was a burden to them, they were excused upon the payment of five marks. Other privileges they retain, namely, the cognisance of all pleas in all causes within the borough, searches, tumbrel, pillory, view, and redress of bread and free warren, for which the mayor makes an account and payment yearly, at the audit kept of the king's or duke's officers. But the town is now actually governed by a charter of James I., amplified and confirmed by another given by his grandson, Charles II., in 1667. The corporation, however, claim to be a borough corporate by prescription; and had, beside, charters granted by Arthur, son of Henry I., and by King John, in 1208. The inhabitants of Bradninch are chiefly employed in the manufacture of paper, for the making of which there are several mills driven by water power, derived from the river Culm. Woollen cloth was at one time manufactured here to a considerable extent; but the trade, as in the case of all the other towns at one time similarly engaged in the west of England, has greatly declined, though something is still done in it. There was formerly a market and court of piepowder held here—both have long been discontinued; but a court of record is still done in it. Every Monday; and courts leet and baron, for the Duchy of Cornwall, are held annually. The corporation holds a quarterly court of session. The old gaol was burnt down in an extensive fire some years ago, and the new one was completed, in 1835, at the expense of the borough, by a liberty rate, to which the corporation contributed £120, and the Duke of Cornwall £100. The latter sum was intended as a relief to the sufferers by the fire; but, with the consent of the officers of the duchy, and the committee established for their assistance, it was transferred to the fund for building the gaol. The gaol is under the Guildhall, and has two wards—one for each of the sexes—and the gaoler is one of the serjeants-at-mace. The town is well supplied by water, obtained through the payment of a rate, levied under a bye-law made in 1813; the whole income of the corporation amounting to only £64. 10s. per annum. The parochial charities produce about £48 a year. The Baptists have a place of worship here, the congregation of which was formed in 1814. The educational institutions are sufficient for the place. The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £40: pres. net income, £102: patron, Dean and Chapter of Windsor: pres. incumbent, A. R. Webster, 1846: contains 4,320 acres: 310 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,714: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,971: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £7,417: poor rates in 1837, £675. Market day, Thursday. Fairs: May 8, October 2.

BRADNOP, STAFFORD, a township in the parish of Leek, northern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Totmonslow: 175 miles from London (coach road 152), 2 from Leek, 12 from Ashborne. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Leicester to Stoke-upon-Trent, thence 15 miles; from Derby, through Burton to Stoke, &c., 54 miles. Money orders issued at Leek: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. Contains 84 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 536: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 616: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,946: poor rates in 1837, £192. S.W. 1 m. Ashenhurst Hall.

BRADON, SOMERSET, a parish, containing the tithings of North and South Bradon, in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Abdick and Bulstone, union of Langport, Ilminster division of the county: 174 miles from London (coach road 130), 4 from Ilminster, 7 from Ilchester. Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Taunton, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Taunton, &c., 188 miles. Money orders issued at Ilminster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. The church has been desecrated, and the inhabitants attend for divine worship at Puckington. The living, a sinecure rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Taunton, and diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £5. 4s. 4d.: pres. net income, £133: patron, Earl of Egremont: pres. incumbent, Charles Tripp, 1839: contains 530 acres: 6 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, £41: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £745: poor rates in 1837, £10.

BRADPOLE, DORSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Beaminster-Forum and Redhorne, Bridport union and division of the county: 156 miles from London (coach road 133), 1 from Bridport, 5 from Beaminster. Sou. West. Rail. through Southampton to Dorchester, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, and Southampton, to Dorchester, &c., 230 miles. Money orders issued at Bridport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7¼ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. Flax-dressing has to some extent been carried on in the parish. The living (Holy Trinity), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Dorset, and diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Salisbury, is valued at £8. 13s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £285: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, A. Broadley, 1844: contains 990 acres: 201 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,357: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,560: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,299: poor rates in 1837, £249.

BRADSHAW, LANCASTER, a chapelry in the parish of Bolton, hun<sup>d</sup> of Salford: 204 miles from London (coach road 201), 4 from Bolton, 4 from Bury. Nor. West. Rail. through Birmingham, Newton, and St. Helen's, to Bolton, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Burton, Crewe, and Warrington, to Bolton, &c., 103 miles. Money orders issued at Bolton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8¼ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. There are several large bleaching establishments here, in which many of the inhabitants are employed. John Bradshaw, who presided at the trial of Charles I., resided at the Hall here. The living is a perpetual curacy not in charge, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Manchester: pres. net income, £150: patron, Vicar of Bolton: pres. incumbent, P. A. Galindo, 1844: contains 1,380 acres: 124 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 827: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 951: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,166: poor rates in 1837, £310.

BRADSHAW-EDGE, DERBY, a township in the parish of Chapel-in-le-Frith, hun<sup>d</sup> of High Peak: 176 miles from London (coach road 166), 1 from Chapel-in-le-Frith, 6 from Castleton. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Ambergate, to Whaley, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Ambergate, &c., 45 miles. Money orders issued at Buxton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11¼ a.m.: post closes 1 p.m. Contains 337 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,054: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,362.

BRADSOLE (or St. RADEGUND's), KENT, in the parish of Polton, hun<sup>d</sup> of Bewsborough, lathe of St. Augustine. Tanner, in his Notitia Monastica, speaking of this place, says—There was an abbey here of the Premonstratensian order, founded A.D. 1191, by King Richard I., or Jeffery, Earl of Perch, and Maud his wife, the parents of Henry de Wingham, or some other charitable and pious persons, and commended to the patronage of St. Mary and St. Radegund. There seems to have been a design of translating this abbey to the neighbouring church of Ryvere, in the 9th year of King John, but this did not succeed. The revenues of this monastery were returned into the exchequer in the 26th year of Henry VIII. at £98. 9s. 2d. according to Dugdale, and at £142. 8s. 9d. according to Speed; and, after the dissolution, it was granted to the Archbishop of Canterbury and his successors, in exchange for some old estates of the archbishopric.

BRADSTONE, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Lifton, union of Tavistock, on the eastern bank of the river Tamar: 265 miles from London (coach road 213), 4 from Tavistock, 8 from Oakhampton. —Gt. West. Rail. to Plymouth, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Plymouth, &c., 280 miles. —Money orders issued at Tavistock: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. —The living (St. Nun), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Totness, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £6. 7s. 2d.: pres. net income, £204: patron, Bishop of Exeter: pres. incumbent, T. Johns, 1812: contains 1,300 acres: 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 166: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,404: poor rates in 1837, £67.

BRADSTONE, GLOUCESTER, a hamlet in the parish of Berkeley, upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Berkeley—(which see for access, &c.): 112 miles from London, 2 from Berkeley, 6 from Wootton. —Money orders issued at Berkeley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. —Connected with this place, Hamfallow hamlet, and Hinton tithing, there are seven daily schools. —Contains 26 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 139: poor rates in 1837, £110.

BRADWELL, BUCKINGHAM, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Newport, union of Newport Pagnell: 51 miles from London (coach road 48), 3 from Stoney-Stratford, 5 from Penny-Stratford. —Nor. West. Rail. to Bletchley, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Wolverton, 52½, thence 4 miles. —Money orders issued at Stoney-Stratford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. —A school here has a small endowment. The charities connected with this parish produce about £32 a year. —The living (St. Lawrence), a vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Buckingham, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £5. 11s. 3d.: pres. net income, £191: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, Walter Drake, 1833: contains 790 acres: 60 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 381: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 438: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,550: poor rates in 1837, £123.

BRADWELL, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Sandbach, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Northwich—(which see for access, &c.): 164 miles from London, 2 from Sandbach, 4 from Middlewich. —Money orders issued at Sandbach: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m. post closes 7½ p.m. —Contains 1,780 acres: 48 houses: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,716: poor rates in 1837, £237.

BRADWELL, DERBY, a hamlet in the parish of Hope, hun<sup>d</sup>. of High Peak—(which see for access, &c.): 164 miles from London, 7 from Chapel Frith, 10 from Buxton. —Money orders issued at Buxton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 1 p.m.: post closes 11½ a.m. —A school here has a small endowment, and there is a lending library attached to the Sunday school. There are furnaces for smelting lead ore in the district, and traces of a Roman fortification in the neighbourhood. A large natural cavern was discovered in the vicinity, in 1807, called Bagehaw's or the Crystallized Cavern, the stalactites of which are of peculiar beauty: the chambers of the cavern extend for above 400 yards. There is a cotton manufactory in the hamlet, but the inhabitants are chiefly employed in the mines of lead and calamine. —Contains 252 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,325: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,524: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,824: poor rates in 1837, £296.

BRADWELL, ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Witham, union of Braintree, on the southern bank of the Blackwater river: 47 miles from London (coach road 46), 2 from Coggeshall, 9 from Colchester. —East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Braintree, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 179 miles. —Money orders issued at Kelvedon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. —The living (the Holy Trinity), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Colchester, and diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £12: pres. net income, £258: patron, M. P. C. Brunwin, Esq.: pres. incumbent, P. M. Brunwin, 1845: contains 3,210 acres: 58 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 293: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,334: poor rates in 1837, £167.

BRADWELL, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Mutford and Lothingland: 149 miles from London (coach road 118), 3 from Great Yarmouth, 7 from Lowestoft. —East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Norwich to Yarmouth, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, and Norwich, to Yarmouth, &c., 189 miles. —Money orders issued at Great Yarmouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. —The living (St. Nicholas), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Suffolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £28: pres. net income, £597: patron, Lord G. Osborne: pres. incumbent, W. Trivett, 1810: contains 1,540 acres: 51 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 270: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,372: poor rates in 1837, £229.

BRADWELL-ABBEY, BUCKINGHAM, an extra parochial liberty in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Newport—(which see for access, &c.): 50 miles from London, 3 from Stoney-Stratford, 4 from Newport. —Money orders issued at Stoney-Stratford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. —Tanner says of the place—Manefelmus or Meinfelin, baron of Wolverton, founded here, in the time of Stephen, a priory of black monks, which was at first a cell to Luffield. It was dedicated to St. Mary, and was one of the small monasteries mentioned in the bull of Pope Clement VII., to be granted to Cardinal Wolsey, in the 17th year of Henry VIII.; but in the 23d of that monarch, it being valued at £53. 11s. 2d. per annum, came by way of exchange to the monks of Shene, and as parcel of that abbey was granted, in the 34th year of Henry VIII., to Arthur Longfield. —Contains 650 acres: 3 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 20.

BRADWELL-NEAR-THE-SEA, ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Dengy, union of Maldon, bounded on the north by the estuary of the Blackwater river, and on the east by the North Sea: 57 miles from London (coach road 48), 12 from Maldon, 20 from Chelmsford. —East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail.

to Maldon, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through London, &c. 189 miles.---Money orders issued at Maldon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---There is an ancient chapel here, which was formerly dedicated to St. Peter, but which is now used as a barn. There are several daily schools in the parish, one of which is supported by an endowment. In Camden's opinion, this village was the site of the ancient Saxon city of Ithancestre, and of the Roman station of Othona. There is a fine monument to Sir Anthony Moxey and his lady in the church.---The living (St. Thomas the Apostle), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Essex, and diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £48: pres. net income, £1,624: patron, Rev. T. Schreiber: pres. incumbent, T. Schreiber, 1820: contains 3,870 acres: 162 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,034: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,189: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £7,528: poor rates in 1837, £497.---Fair, June 24, for toys.

BRADWORTHY, Devon, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Black Torrington, union of Bideford: 238 miles from London (coach road 221), 6 from Holsworthy, 12 from Torrington.---Gt. West. Rail. through Exeter to Crediton, thence 38 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Crediton, &c., 251 miles.---Money orders issued at Holsworthy: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes 11½ a.m.---The living (St. John the Baptist), a vicarage, with the chapel of St. Pancras-Wyke annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Totness, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £25. 5s. 5d.: pres. net income, £243: patron, the Crown: pres. incumbent, James B. Clyde, 1845: contains 12,220 acres: 170 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,081: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,243: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,205: poor rates in 1837, £319.

BRAFFERTON, DURHAM, a township in the parish of Great Aycklyff, south-eastern division of Darlington ward, union of Darlington: 269 miles from London (coach road 245), 4 from Darlington, 9 from Stockton.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, to Darlington, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Normanton and York to Darlington, &c., 137 miles.---Money orders issued at Darlington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---There is a Methodist chapel here.---Contains 2,080 acres: 52 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 284: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,203: poor rates in 1837, £118.

BRAFFERTON (originally BROADFORD-TOWN), NORTH RIPING, YORK, a parish in the union of Easingwold, comprising the township of Brafferton, in the wapentake of Bulmer, the township of Thornton-Bridge in Hallikeld, and the township of Helperby: it is within the liberty of St. Peter of York, but is locally situated in the wapentake of Bulmer: 235 miles from London (coach road 210), 4 from Boroughbridge, 9 from Thirsk.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, to Raskelth station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Normanton, York, &c., 103 miles.---Money orders issued at Boroughbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---Brafferton and Helperby are apparently the same village, each occupying the opposite side of the same street. The parochial charities produce about £27 a year.---The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cleveland, and diocese of York, is valued at £9. 15s. 6d.: pres. net income, £307: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, William Gray, 1822: contains 4,860 acres: 182 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 875: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,003: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,424: poor rates in 1838, £206. 4s.

BRAFFERTON, YORK, a township in the above parish.---(For access and postal arrangements, see above.)---Contains 1,990 acres: 31 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 174: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,254: poor rates in 1838, £50. 1s.

BRAFFIELD-ON-THE-GREEN, NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wymersley, union of Hardingstone: 73 miles from London, 5 from Northampton.---Nor. West. Rail. to Northampton, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Weedon to Northampton, &c., 68 miles.---Money orders issued at Northampton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.---The living is a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, annexed to Little Houghton, in the diocese of Peterborough, and having jointly a pres. net income of £285: patron, --- Percival, Esq.: pres. incumbent, C. Smyth, 1838: contains 1,980 acres: 84 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 428: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 492: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,177: poor rates in 1837, £304. 6s.

BRAILES, WARWICKSHIRE, a parish and village in the Brailes division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Kington, union of Shipston-upon-Stour: 96 miles from London (coach road 86), 4 from Shipston-upon-Stour, 2 from Cherrington.---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford and Moreton-le-Marsh, to Toddington, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Worcester, to Toddington, &c., 101 miles.---Money orders issued at Shipston-upon-Stour: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---There is a school, founded here in the reign of Elizabeth, with an endowment of £8. 1s. 8d., since increased to £64. 8s. 2d., which is free to all the poor children resident in the parish. There are remarkably fine prospects from the hills in the neighbourhood of the village. There is a Roman Catholic chapel here.---The living (St. George), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £25: pres. net income, £344: patron, J. Bailey, Esq.: pres. incumbent, C. Smalley, 1816: contains 5,220 acres: 255 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,284: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,477: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £11,196: poor rates in 1837, £631. 17s. The great and small tithes, the property of the lay impropriator and the vicar, were commuted in 1784.---Fair, April 2, for horses, cows, and sheep.

BRAILSFORD, DERBY, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Appletree: 139 miles from London (coach road 133), 7 from Derby, 6 from Ashbourne.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Derby, thence 7 miles: from Derby, by coach, 7 miles.---Money orders issued at Derby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---The inhabitants are mostly engaged in agricultural operations.---The living (All Saints), a rectory with that of Osmaston annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Derby, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £9. 19s. 2d.: pres. net income, £673: patron, Earl Ferrers: pres. incumbent, Walter Shirley, 1847: contains

5,200 acres: 143 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 756: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 869: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £6,912: poor rates in 1837, £194. 19s.

BRAINES. See BRADNINCHE.

BRAINTFIELD (or BRAMFIELD), HERTFORD, a parish within the liberty of St. Albans, but locally situated in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Hertford: 29 miles from London (coach road 24), 3 from Hertford, 6 from Ware. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Hertford, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 161 miles. — Money orders issued at Hertford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. — Matthew Paris says that this living (St. Andrew) was the first to which Thomas à Becket was inducted. — The living (St. Andrew), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Huntingdon, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £11. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £267: patron, Abel Smith, Esq.: pres. incumbent, L. Deedes, 1840: contains 1,540 acres: 34 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 201: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,701: poor rates in 1837, £60. — Braintfield Place.

BRAINTREE, Essex, a market town and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Hinckford, union of Braintree: 46 miles from London (coach road 40), 11 from Chelmsford. — East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Braintree: from Derby, through London, &c., 178 miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — Braintree is a long, straggling, but interesting town, the edifices of which are mostly very ancient, and many of them are built of wood. It is situated on a rising ground, and connected on the north with Bocking, or Bocking Street, one of the most considerable villages in Essex. In the account in Doomsday-book, the manor is comprehended with that of Raines, and was then held by the Bishop of London, to whose see it remained attached till the time of Edward VI., by whom it was granted to James Mitchell, whose heirs passed it to John Godfrey, by whom it was sold to Richard, Lord Rich, who settled the rectory, pro tempore, upon the school and almshouses at Felsted, to pay £30. 1s. 8d. in money, and a certain allowance in malt and wheat. In his family it remained till about the year 1763, when, on the death of Charles, Earl of Warwick, it became the property of his sister and co-heiress, Lady Frances, wife of Nicholas, son of Sir Francis Leake, Earl of Scarsdale, whose successor sold the estate to Herman Olmuis, ancestor of the late Lord Waltham. The mansion-house was at one time a palace of the bishops of London, but it has long since been destroyed. Braintree was made a distinct parish about the time of King John, or during the reign of Henry III., the former of whom erected it into a market town at the intercession of William de St. Maria, one of the bishops of London. At that time, however, it was, we suppose in consequence of following the announcement in Doomsday-book, only a hamlet to Raines, and the parish itself went under the denomination of Great Raine; but as houses and population increased, Braintree gradually grew to be far the most considerable place of the two, and gave its own name to the district. It was conveniently situated on the highway from London into Suffolk and Norfolk; and as during the days of papal superstition, pilgrims were continually travelling from the south to the shrines of our Lady of Walsingham and St. Edmund, lodging-houses and inns were built for their accommodation; and so the place grew in population and extent. After the Reformation, this source of advantage ceased; but the town was speedily resuscitated, for not long after Elizabeth had declared England to be the asylum of persecuted protestantism, Braintree became the settlement of a number of Flemings, who had been driven from the Netherlands by the Duke of Alva, and who introduced a species of woollen manufacture, the fabric of which is called bay and say. That business has declined, but another for the manufacture of silk is still to some extent pursued. The church, which is a spacious structure, stands on the ridge of a mound, which is supposed to have been a Saxon or Roman intrenchment, most probably the latter; it is about half a mile from the site of the former church, which stood near the bishop's palace, and of which some remains still exist. The interior consists of a nave, chancel, and side aisle; a lofty spire, which is cased with slate, rising from the west end of the fabric; the body of the church is composed chiefly of flint. It was founded, as appears by the arms of the neighbouring gentry who lived at that time, which decorate it, in the reign of Edward III., and as well also by the will of John Nayland, dated in 1349, who left a black bullock to further the work of the church. It was, however, much enlarged after its original foundation, especially during the reign of Henry VIII., when the roof was elevated and the south aisle built; and it is a singular characteristic of the times, that these alterations were effected chiefly through the aid of three plays performed in the church. The first, which was entitled St. Swithin, was acted in 1523; the second, called St. Andrew, on the Sunday called Relique Sunday, in 1525; and the third, called Placy Dacy, alias St. Ewestacy, in 1534. It is not at all surprising that, after the Reformation, the players' robes were sold; but it is a little remarkable that they brought fifty shillings, and the play-books twenty shillings. In the chancel there is a monument to Dr. Samuel Collins, who was the son of a minister in this parish, and for some years principal physician to Peter the Great of Russia. The Independents, Methodists, Baptists, and the Society of Friends, have all places of worship here. The Independent church is a very fine building, built in 1832, and seats 1,500. The old Baptist congregation was formed in 1680, and the second in 1835. A school here is endowed with £63 per annum; and in the British school, about 200 boys and 60 girls are educated. There is a fund here of £350 per annum, derived from an estate at Tolleshunt D'Arcy, purchased with the sum of £2,800, left by Henry Smith, Esq., Alderman of London in the time of Charles I., for the benefit of the poor of this parish. The other parochial charities produce about £130 a year. Braintree is only divided from Bocking by the turnpike road. It is one of the polling-places for North Essex, and the petty sessions for the southern division are held here. The manufacture of silk is still carried on for the London markets, though to but little extent. The Braintree poor-law union comprises fourteen parishes, spread over an area of 63 square miles, and comprises a population of something more than 15,000 souls—the average expenditure being about £97,000.—The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Middlesex, diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £12. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £212: patron, Rev. J. Lewis: pres. incumbent, B. Scale, 1796: contains 2,500 acres: 708 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,670: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 4,220: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £4,493: poor rates in 1838, £2,518.—Market day, Wednesday. Fairs: May 8, cattle; Oct. 2, cattle and hops.

BRAISEWORTH (or BREISWORTH), SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Hartismere: 96 miles from London (coach road 87), 2 from Eye, 6 from Debenham.—East. Co<sup>o</sup>. Rail. through Stowmarket to Thornham Magna, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, and Norwich, to Thornham Magna, &c., 199 miles.—Money orders issued at Eye: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.—The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Sudbury, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £4. 8s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £149: patron, Sir E. Kerrison, Bart.: pres. incumbent, H. Hasted, 1812: contains 1,400 acres: 27 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 151: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £872: poor rates in 1837, £74.—N.E. 2 m. is Eye Hall —(for which see EYE.)

BRAITHWAITE, CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Crossthwaite, ward of Allerdale above Derwent—(which see for access, &c.): 293 miles from London, 3 from Keswick, 10 from Cockermouth.—Money orders issued at Keswick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 1 p.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.—Contains 50 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 281.

BRAITHWELL, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the southern division of the wapentake of Strathforth and Tickhill, union of Doncaster: it contains the townships of Braithwell and Bramley: 168 miles from London (coach road 161), 6 from Rotherham, 7 from Doncaster.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Derby to Rotherham, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Rotherham, &c., 46 miles.—Money orders issued at Rotherham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.—One of the schools here has a small endowment. Some Roman relics have been found in the neighbourhood.—The living (St. James), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of York, is valued at £7. 7s. 6d.: pres. net income, £330: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, R. C. Wolfe, 1842: contains 2,990 acres: 163 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 800: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 920: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £4,061: poor rates in 1837, £246. The vicarial tithes, the property of the lay impropriator and the vicar, were commuted in 1765.

BRAITHWELL, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish—(which see for access and postal arrangements.)—Contains 2,010 acres: 97 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 523: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 601: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,432: poor rates in 1837, £157.

BRAMBER, SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Steyning, rape of Bramber, intersected by the river Adur: 62 miles from London (coach road 50), 2 from Steyning, 5 from North Shoreham.

—Brighton and South Coast Rail. to Shoreham, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 194 miles.—Money orders issued at Steyning: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 p.m.: post closes 8 p.m.—This place, which now consists of only a few cottages, was at one time of much greater importance. It was a borough by prescription, and returned two members to parliament in the time of Edward I., and continued to do so regularly from the reign of Edward IV. till 1832, when it was disfranchised by the Reform Bill. The right of election was vested in the occupiers of ancient houses, or rather in the occupiers of houses of ancient foundations, paying scot and lot; and as all of these were the property of the Duke of Rutland or Lord Calthorpe, each of them, of course, returned a member. The church, which is a very ancient structure, and presents some good points of Norman architecture, is supposed to have belonged to a priory here; and there are some ruins of a Saxon castle, mentioned in Doomsday-book, which appears to have been of great extent.—The living (St. Nicholas), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory, united with Butulph, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Chichester, is valued at £10. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £160: patron, Magdalen College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, T. Grantham, 1830: contains 870 acres: 21 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 138: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £519: poor rates in 1837, £24.—Magdalen House, the residence of Richard Ledbitter, Esq.

BRAMCOTE, NOTTINGHAM, a parish in the southern division of the wapentake of Broxtow, union of Shardlow: 129 miles from London (coach road 122), 4 from Nottingham, 2 from Beeston.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Leicester, and Kegworth, to Beeston station, thence 2 miles: from Derby to Beeston station, &c., 12 miles.—Money orders issued at Nottingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.—The parochial charities produce £24 a year.—The living is a curacy annexed to the vicarage of Attenborough: contains 1,000 acres: 114 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 732: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 842: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,444: poor rates in 1837, £265.—N.E. 2 m. is Wollaton Hall, the seat of Lord Middleton —(for which see WOLLATON.)—S., Chelwell Hall; E., Lenton Abbey and Lenton Hall.

BRAMCOTT, WARWICK, a hamlet in the parish of Bulkington, Kirby division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Knightlow—(which see for access, &c.): 100 miles from London, 4 from Nuneaton, 5 from Hinckley.—Money orders issued at Nuneaton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.—In the vicinity is the Ashby-de-la-Zouch Canal.—Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 30: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same.

BRAMDEAN, HANTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Bishop's Sutton, union of Alresford, Alton division of the county: 76 miles from London (coach road 53), 4 from Alresford, 9 from Winchester.—Sou. West. Rail. to Winchester, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Rugby and Oxford to Winchester, &c., 163 miles.—Money orders issued at New Alresford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.—The living (St. Simon and St. Jude), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £8. 13s. 9½d.: pres. net income, £201: patron, Bishop of Winchester: pres. incumbent, H. Towzel, 1845: contains 1,360 acres: 39 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 225: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,232: poor rates in 1837, £179.

BRAMERTON, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Henstead: 136 miles from London (coach road 108), 5 from Norwich, 11 from Bungay. —Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Norwich to Buckenham, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, and Norwich, to Buckenham, &c., 176 miles. —Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. —The parochial charities produce about £9 a year. —The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £6: patron, R. Fellowes, Esq.: pres. incumbent, E. Blake, 1838: contains 1,000 acres: 24 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 229: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £852: poor rates in 1837, £143.

BRAMFIELD, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Blything: 109 miles from London (coach road 96), 2 from Halesworth, 7 from Saxmundham. —East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Haughley Road station, thence 25 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 241 miles. —Money orders issued at Halesworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —There is a school here which has a small endowment, and there are almshouses, founded by Thomas Neale, Esq., for four poor persons, who have each a room and a rood of land. There is an independent chapel here. The church is an ancient and singular structure, having a round tower, containing five bells, detached at a distance of 30 feet. —The living (St. Andrew), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £6. 7s. 6d.: pres. net income, £172: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, Nicholas Simons, 1846: contains 2,050 acres: 141 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 746: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 857: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,300: poor rates in 1837, £412. —Bramfield Hall, the residence of the Rev. Reginald Rabbett. —Brook Hall, the seat of Captain Page.

BRAMFORD, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Bosmere and Claydon: 71 miles from London (coach road 72), 3 from Ipswich, 9 from Stowmarket. —East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Bramford station: from Derby, through London, &c., 203 miles. —Money orders issued at Ipswich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. —Bramford is remarkable for an uncommon tenure attached to its manor. The tenants hold of the lord by a lease of twenty-one years, which is renewed with a fine from time to time, and in the event of the death or alienation of a tenant, a new one is admitted to the remainder of the term, so that the lord has a double chance of profit from one term. There are almshouses here for six poor widows. —The living (the Virgin Mary), a vicarage, with that of Burstall annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £13. 3s. 9d.: pres. net income, £79: patron, Dean and Chapter of Canterbury: pres. incumbent, George Naylor, 1807: contains 1,940 acres: 180 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 881: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,013: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,096: poor rates in 1837, £498. —The Hall, formerly the seat of the Acton family, is the property of Sir P. Broke, and is now occupied by the Dowager Lady Middleton: it is a handsome brick mansion, in a modern style of architecture, and has a good prospect of the surrounding country. —The Grove is occupied by Robert William Mumford, Esq. —Whitton White House is the seat of the Rev. Ambrose Steward. —Love-tofts Hall stands on the site of the ancient mansion of the Tibetota.

BRAMHALL, CHESTER, a township in the parish and union of Stockport, hun<sup>d</sup> of Macclesfield: 185 miles from London (coach road 176), 2 from Stockport, 9 from Macclesfield. —Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Stockport, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Uttoxeter and Crewe to Stockport, &c., 83 miles. —Money orders issued at Stockport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. —Contains 3,250 acres: 231 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,611: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,853: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,486: poor rates in 1837, £404.

BRAMHAM, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish, partly within the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the upper division of the wapentake of Barkstone-Ash: it comprises the townships of Bramham and Clifford: 216 miles from London (coach road 190), 3 from Tadcaster, 4 from Wetherby. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Normanton, to Tadcaster, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, Normanton, &c., 84 miles. —Money orders issued at Tadcaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. —There is an endowment here of £11 a year, arising from various private benefactions, which is appropriated to the education of six poor children—four from the township of Bramham, and two from that of Clifford. In 1838 there was a flax mill here, in which 53 hands were employed. In 1408, Sir Thomas Rokeby, sheriff of Yorkshire, met and defeated the Earl of Northumberland here; and through that victory secured the crown of England for Henry IV. On Bramham moor are the remains of the ancient Roman road, called Watling Street. The moor is an open and elevated tract; and the following quaint observations respecting it were made in 1781 by Mr. Watson of Malton:—Upon the middle of this moor a man may see ten miles around him; within those ten miles there is as much freestone as would build ten cities, each as large as York; there is as much limestone and coals to burn it into lime as the building of those ten cities would require; there is also as much clay and sand and coals to burn them into bricks and tiles as would build those ten cities; within those ten miles there are two iron forges sufficient to furnish iron for the building of those ten cities, and ten thousand tons to spare; within those ten miles there is lead sufficient for the ten cities, and ten thousand faddens to spare; within those ten miles there is a good coal seam sufficient to furnish those ten cities with fuel for 10,000 years; within those ten miles there are three navigable rivers, from any of which a man may take shipping and sail to any part of the world; within those ten miles there are seventy gentlemen's houses, all keeping coaches, and the least of them an esquire, and ten parks and forests well stocked with deer; within those ten miles there are ten market towns, one of which may be supposed to return £10,000 a week. On the edge of the moor is Berwick-in-Elmet, said to have been the residence of the Northumbrian kings; and extensive foundations of a palace have been traced there.---The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, is valued at £6. 7s. 6d.: pres. net income, £159: patron, Christ Church College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, J. Radcliffe, 1823: contains 5,260 acres: 489 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,760: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,174: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,433: poor rates in 1837, £454.---Bramham Park is the seat of George Lane Fox, Esq. The house, which is a stately mansion, was erected by Robert, Lord Bingley, who greatly enlarged the park, and laid out the grounds in an elegant manner, at least according to the taste of the day, and since then they have in a variety of ways been much improved. The present proprietor, the head of one of the most influential families in the north of England, is descended from William Fox, Esq., who lived in the time of Edward IV., and acquired, by marriage with Sibyl, daughter of John de Grete of Grete, in the county of Worcester, the extensive estates to which she was heiress. From that gentleman was descended George Fox, Esq., M.P. for the city of York, who inherited, by will, the large estates of Lord Lanesborough, and who, in compliance with the wishes of that nobleman, assumed the name and arms of Lane. He married Harriet, daughter and sole heiress of Lord Bingley; and on the extinction of the title of his father-in-law, in 1762, was invested with that honour. Having survived his only child, who died without issue, he devised his estates, both in England and Ireland, to his nephew, James Fox Lane, Esq. of Bramham Park, at that time member for Horsham; and of that gentleman, the present proprietor of Bramham was the heir.

BRAMHAM, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish---(which see for access, &c.)---Contains 3,760 acres: 270 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,117: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,285: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,817: poor rates in 1837, £229. The great and small tithes, the property of the lay impropriator, were commuted in 1805.

BRAMHOPE, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in that part of the parish of Otley which is in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Skyrack: 212 miles from London (coach road 199), 4 from Otley, 6 from Leeds.---Nor. West. Rail. through Leeds to Bramhope: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 80 miles.---Money orders issued at Otley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.---The living, a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £43. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £48: patron, Trustees: pres. incumbent, J. W. Ridsdale: contains 1,250 acres: 72 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 350: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 402: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,202: poor rates in 1837, £68. Tithes commuted in 1805.

BRAMLEY, HAMTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Basingstoke, Basingstoke division of the county: 52 miles from London (coach road 49), 4 from Basingstoke, 5 from Old Basing.---Sou. West. Rail. to Basingstoke, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Banbury and Oxford to Basingstoke, &c., 139 miles.---Money orders issued at Basingstoke: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---The church contains a hand- some monument to the memory of Bernard Brocas, and also another to the memory of Dr. Shaw, the celebrated Eastern traveller; beside some fine brasses.---The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester; is valued at £7. 3s. 6½d.: pres. net income, £385: patron, Queen's College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, William Airey, 1845: contains 2,350 acres: 83 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 428: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 492: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,749: poor rates in 1837, £372.---S. ½ m. Beaufaire House; S. 1 m. The Vine.

BRAMLEY, SURREY, a parish in the first division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Blackheath, union of Hambledon, intersected by the Arun and Wey Canal: 39 miles from London (coach road 33), 3 from Guildford, 3 from Godalming.---Sou. West. Rail. through Guildford to Godalming, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 171 miles.---Money orders issued at Guildford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---The parochial charities produce about £14 a year.---The living (the Holy Trinity) is a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Winchester: pres. net income, £160: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, H. B. Power, 1847: contains 4,420 acres: 156 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 971: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,116: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,926: poor rates in 1837, £448.---E., Womersley Park.

BRAMLEY, WEST RIDING, YORK, a chapelry in the parish of St. Peter, within the liberty of the town of Leeds: 209 miles from London (coach road 199), 4 from Leeds, 5 from Bradford.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Leeds, to Armley, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 77 miles.---Money orders issued at Leeds: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---There is a Baptist and a Wesleyan Methodist chapel here; the congregation of the former was founded in 1776, and of the latter in 1811. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in the manufacture of woollen cloths. Excellent stone and slate are found in the neighbourhood.---The living, a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £30. 1s.: pres. net income, £239: patron, Vicar of Leeds: pres. incumbent, T. Furbank, 1830: contains 2,490 acres: 1,378 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 8,875: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 10,206: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £7,096: poor rates in 1837, £1,104.

BRAMLEY AND GRANGE, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Braithwell, southern division of the wapentake of Strafforth and Tickhill: 176 miles from London (coach road 154), 4 from Rotherham, 8 from Sheffield.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Derby to Rotherham, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Chesterfield to Rotherham, &c., 44 miles.---Money orders issued at Rotherham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---Contains 980 acres: 66 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 333: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 383: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,629: poor rates in 1837, £89.

BRAMPFORD-SPEKES, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wonford, Crockernwell, division and union of St. Thomas: 198 miles from London (coach road 169), 4 from Exeter, 6 from Crediton. — Gt. West. Rail. to Exeter, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Exeter, &c., 211 miles. — Money orders issued at Exeter: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — The living (St. Peter), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £216: patron, Lord Chancellor: contains 670 acres: 67 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 393: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 452: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,371: poor rates in 1837, £23.

BRAMPTON, CUMBERLAND, a parish in the ward of Eskdale, union of Brampton: it comprehends the townships of Easeby and Naworth-castle: 310 miles from London (coach road 311), 2 from Cattlesteads, 10 from Carlisle. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe, Lancaster, and Carlisle, to Brampton: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 210 miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 2½ p.m.: post closes 11.25 a.m. — The town of Brampton is seated in a narrow vale, at the junction of the Irthing and the Gelt, surrounded by bold eminences of considerable elevation. It is believed by Camden to have been the Roman Bremetunacum, where the Cuneus Armaturarum were garrisoned at the decline of the empire, and, from the general appearance of the place, it seems to have been of much greater consequence than it is now. At the east end there is a vast conical mount, called the Moat or Castle Hill, the acclivity of which is very steep, and about 360 feet in height; the crown of the hill has been formed into a platform, a few feet below which there is a trench and rampart entirely surrounding the summit. Except towards the south, where, at the distance of six miles, the view is confined by mountains of great height, the prospect is most extensive and magnificent. On the west, the eye commands all the undulated plains from Carlisle to Solway Frith; to the north, the barren tract and the distant peaks of Scotland may be seen; and towards the east, the expanse is only restricted by the Cheviot hills, and the lofty mountains above the river Reed in Northumberland. In Holland's additions to Camden, in the edition of 1695, the Doctor has given the following inscription, found on a votive altar erected in this neighbourhood to the goddess, Nymph of the Brigantes, for the health of the Empress Plantilla, wife of Antoninus Severus, and the whole imperial family, by Cocceius Nigrinus, a treasurer to the Emperor:—

DEÆ NYMPHÆ BRIG
QUOD VOVERAT PRO
SALVTE PLANTILLÆ CO. INVICTÆ
DOM NOSTRI INVICTI
IMP. M. AURELII SEVERI
ANTONINI PII FEL. CÆS
AVS TOTIVSQUE DO
MVS DIVINÆ EIVS
M. COCCEIVS NIGRINVS
Q. AVG. N. DEVOTVS
LIBENS SUSCEPTVM S
LÆTO II. . . . .

Which the Doctor thus renders:—

Deæ Nymphæ Brigantum
quod voverat pro
Salutē Plantillæ conjugiſ invictæ domini nostri invicti

Imperatoris Marci Aurelii Severi
Antonini pii fellicis Caesaris Augusti totiusque do mus divinæ ejus
Marcus Cocceius Nigrinus
quæ Augusti humini devotus libens ausceptum solvit
Læto II. . . . .

The town consists of one irregularly-built street, with some few modern houses, and depends for its support chiefly on the large weekly market held for the benefit of the district of which it is the centre; but there are some manufactures of gingham and checks here, and two large breweries. There is a neat octagonal town-hall, the lower part of which is formed into piazzas, where the country people assemble on market days. Coal is brought from the mines in Tinedal Fell, the property of the Earl of Carlisle, by means of a railway, constructed some few years ago at the expense of his lordship's father. The church, which stood at about half a mile from the town, has been abandoned, and a large parochial chapel has been built in the town for the purposes of Divine worship, and the old edifice is now only used for the performance of the funeral service, when one of the long-standing inhabitants departs, who has wished that his bones may mingle with those of his forefathers. Petty sessions are held here for the division of Eskdale, and courts-leet and baron, and view of frank-pledge, for the whole barony of Gilsland, are held at the town-hall, at Easter and Michaelmas. The Wesleyan and Primitive Methodists, Independents, and Presbyterians, all have places of worship here. There is an hospital here for six aged men and six aged women, founded, in 1688, by Edward Earl of Carlisle. Brampton is one of the polling-places for East Cumberland. — The living (St. Martin), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £466: patron, Earl of Carlisle: pres. incumbent, Christ. Benson, 1841: contains 16,970 acres: 581 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,304: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,800: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £8,564: poor rates in 1837, £620. — Market day, Wednesday. Fairs: April 22, second Wednesday after Whitsunday, second Wednesday in September, October 23, for sheep, horses, and cattle. — N.E. is Nayworth Castle, one of the houses of the Earl of Carlisle, and one of the most extraordinary exemplifications of the state of society during the time of Elizabeth, when the border warfare prevailed in all its strength. It was built, or at least adapted, for its evident purposes of security and defence, by Lord William Howard, who was appointed by the Queen lord-warden of the northern marches, for the repression and punishment of the fierce bodies of men from the southern counties of Scotland, who levied blackmail and harried the whole district. The castle is built on a pleasant eminence at the head of the vale of Llanercoſt, or St. Mary's Holme. It consists principally of two large towers, united by other buildings, which enclose a quadrangular court. The earliest mention that we find of it is in the reign of Edward III., when Ranulphus Dacre, who had married the heir of the Multons, obtained leave to convert his mansion into a castle. Though the whole castle is much altered, the principle on which it was constructed remains the same. The arms over the entrance are those of the Howards and the Dacres, quartered together, with their motto, 'Fort in Loialtie.' The whole house, Mr. Pennant says, is a true specimen of ancient inconvenience, of magnificence and littleness, the rooms numerous, accessible by SIXTEEN staircases, with frequent ascents and descents into the bargain, beside a long gallery. The idea of making it a comfortable dwelling seems never to have been entertained, for the whole contrivance appears to show that the object was to keep an enemy out, or, if he did effect an entrance, to prevent his penetrating no further than could possibly be hindered: it is full of hiding-places, many of which are believed never to have been discovered. It was originally the baronial residence of the lords of Gilsland, an extensive district in this part of Cumberland, but went to the Norfolk family through marriage of the duke with the heiress of the last Lord Dacre, who met with a singular and tragical end. Stowe says that, on the 16th May, 1559, George, last heir male of the Dacre family, was by a great mischance slain at Thetford, in the house of Sir Richard Fulmerstone, Knt., by means of a vaulting horse of wood, standing within the same house; upon which horse, as he meant to have vaulted, and the pins of the feet not being made sure, the horse fell upon him, and bruised the brains out of his head. The Lord William Howard, who is spoken of above, was the third son of the Duke of Norfolk. He founded the race of the present Earl of Carlisle, whose family history will be found in the account of Castle-Howard, his principal seat. He was a man of great literary taste, and collected around him one of the very best libraries of the day, several of the works of which are still to be found at Nayworth. He was much of a recluse, but a man of prudence. After garrisoning his fortresses with 140 soldiers, he made his own apartments as safe as possible. A winding staircase, long, dark, and narrow, permitting only one person to ascend at a time, guarded by a succession of strong doors plated with iron, which, when turning on their massive hinges, 'grated harsh thunder,' and which when shut defied all human strength to open them, led to the rooms which he occupied,—a library, a chapel, and a bedchamber. In these rooms he spent most of his time, and during his hours of seclusion it was dangerous to disturb him, the consequences of doing so having in one instance proved fatal. He was one day reading in the library, when a soldier rudely broke in upon him with a muskrooper in his grasp, whom he had just taken prisoner. On the soldier asking what he should do with the captive, his lordship petulantly replied, "Oh! hang the fellow;" which being understood as a command, the unfortunate freebooter soon swung by the neck on the high gallows which stood before the castle, and when, some hours afterwards his lordship sent to have the prisoner brought before him, he found to his horror that he had been literally obeyed, and that the man was hanged. The means employed to repress the lawless proceedings of the borderers was of the harshest kind, as may be perceived by the anecdote just related; but they were efficient, and a great degree of security was introduced into the district, where before there had been nothing but almost unchecked violence.

BRAMPTON, CUMBERLAND, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.)—Contains 488 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,268: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,758.

BRAMPTON WITH CUTTHORPE, DERBY, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Scarsdale: 159 miles from London (coach road 153), 3 from Chesterfield, 8 from Dronfield.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Derby to Chesterfield, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Chesterfield, &c., 27 miles.—Money orders issued at Chesterfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.—A new church, in the Gothic style, with a tower, was erected here in 1832, at an expense of about £3,000, by the parliamentary commissioners; it contains 724 sittings. The Independents, and the Wesleyan and Primitive Methodists, have places of worship here. One of the schools here is endowed with £8. 10s. per annum. The parochial charities produce about £90 a year. There are extensive bleaching grounds in the parish, and pottery to a considerable extent is made here. Coal and ironstone are found in the vicinity.—The living (St. Peter), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Derby, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry: pres. net income, £143: patron, Bishop of Lichfield: pres. incumbent, William Peach, 1826: contains 3,820 acres: 700 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,937: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 4,528: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,180: poor rates in 1837, £667.—S.E. is Brampton House, and Brampton Hall.

BRAMPTON, HUNTINGDON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Leightonstone, union of Huntingdon: 78 miles from London (coach road 64), 1 from Huntingdon, 8 from St. Neot's.—Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Huntingdon, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, and March, to Huntingdon, &c., 124 miles.—Money orders issued at Huntingdon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.—There is a free school here, supported by Lady Olivia Sparrow. The parochial charities produce about £28 a year. Brampton was the birth-place of Samuel Pepys, Esq., secretary to the Admiralty in the times of Charles II. and James II., and who was, in 1684, elected to the presidency of the Royal Society, which office he held for ten years. He was in high favour with both monarchs, and introduced many important reforms into the navy; but, on the accession of William and Mary, he resigned his political appointment. His name has of late years obtained great celebrity by the publication of his very amusing diary, which, beside giving a striking evidence of his own prudential character, at the same time presents a lifelike illustration of the times in which he lived.—The living (Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Huntingdon, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £8. 1s. 4d.: pres. net income, £160: patron, the Prebendary thereof: pres. incumbent, T. J. Maokes, 1844: contains 3,640 acres: 238 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,164: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,338: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,163: poor rates in 1837, £750. The prebendal and vicarial tithes, the property of the prebend of Brampton and the vicar, were commuted in 1772.—S. is Brampton Park; N., Hinchingsbroke House.

BRAMPTON, LINCOLN, a township or chapelry in the parish of Torksey, wapentake of Well, and parts of Lindsey—(which see for access, &c.): 145 miles from London, 2 from Marten, 7 from Gainsborough. Money orders issued at Gainsborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> at noon: post closes 1½ p.m. There is a ferry here over the river Trent. Contains 790 acres: 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 118: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,228: poor rates in 1837, £111. The great and small tithes, the property of the prebend of Stowe, were commuted in 1777.

BRAMPTON, NORFOLK, a parish in the southern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Erpingham, union of Aylsham, intersected by the river Bure: 136 miles from London (coach road 116), 2 from Aylsham, 10 from Norwich. Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Norwich, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough to Norwich, &c., 176 miles. Money orders issued at Aylsham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. The church has a singular tower. Some Roman antiquities have been found in the neighbourhood. The living (St. Peter), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £5: pres. net income, £160: patron, R. Marsham, Esq.: pres. incumbent, H. P. Marsham, 1843: contains 530 acres: 41 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 263: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £547: poor rates in 1837, £68.

BRAMPTON, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Blything: 119 miles from London (coach road 105), 4½ from Halesworth, 13 from Lowestoft. East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Shrimping, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, and Norwich, to Shrimping, &c., 197 miles. Money orders issued at Halesworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. The parochial charities produce about £56 a year. The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £20: pres. net income, £434: patron, Rev. G. O. Leman: pres. incumbent, T. O. Leman, 1837: contains 1,800 acres: 45 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 322: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 370: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,992: poor rates in 1837, £351. N.E., Shadingfield Hall—(for which see SHADINGFIELD.)

BRAMPTON, NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Corby, union of Market-Harborough: 104 miles from London (coach road 79), 4 from Market-Harborough, 4 from Rockingham. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Market-Harborough, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Market-Harborough, &c., 72 miles. Money orders issued at Market-Harborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. The living (St. Botolph), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £21. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £400: patron, Earl Spencer: pres. incumbent, S. L. Smith, 1844: contains 2,290 acres: 21 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 104: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,928: poor rates in 1837, £36.

BRAMPTON (ABBOT'S), HEREFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Greytree, union of Ross, on the eastern bank of the river Wye: 132 miles from London, 2 from Ross. Gt. West. Rail. to Gloucester, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Gloucester, &c., 92 miles. Money orders issued at Knighton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>

10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. The parochial charities produce about £7 a year. Annual court-leet and baron are held here. The living is a rectory in the diocese of Hereford: pres. net income, £245: patron, Bishop of Hereford: pres. incumbent, Robert Strong, 1799: contains 1,600 acres: 31 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 197: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 200: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,491: poor rates in 1837, £189. S., Rudhall.

BRAMPTON-BRYAN, HEREFORD, a parish, partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Knighton, county of Radnor, South Wales, and partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wigmore, in the above county: the former consists of the lordship of Stanage, and the latter comprises the townships of Brampton-Bryan, Boresford, and Pedwardine—(which see): 168 miles from London (coach road 150), 5 from Knighton, 9 from Ludlow. Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Kidderminster, thence 35 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Kidderminster, &c., 106 miles. Money orders issued at Presteign: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes 11 a.m. The village is of very considerable antiquity, having been first established by Bryan de Brampton, relics of whose castle still remain here. During the great civil war, the fortress was twice besieged, and at length was taken and destroyed by the adherents of the king. There is a school here, endowed with £18 a year. The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £5. 11s. ½d.: pres. net income, £300: patron, Earl of Oxford: pres. incumbent, D. R. Murray, 1826: contains 3,190 acres: 66 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 419: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 482: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,506: poor rates in 1837, £251. Fair, June 22, for horned cattle, horses, and wool. Brampton Bryan Park; W. 1 m. Stanage Park.

BRAMPTON-BRYAN, HEREFORD, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.) Contains 23 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 161: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,347: poor rates in 1837, £114.

BRAMPTON-CHAPEL, NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Nobottle-Grove, union of Brixworth: 72 miles from London, 4½ from Northampton. Nor. West. Rail. through Roads to Northampton, thence 4½ miles: from Derby, through Weedon to Northampton, &c., 77 miles. Money orders issued at Northampton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. The chapel of this place has long since been destroyed. Contains 1,330 acres: 39 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 228: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,238: poor rates in 1837, £122. S.W. 1 m. Althorpe House, the seat of Earl Spencer—(for which see BRINGTON.)

BRAMPTON-CHURCH (or BRAMPTON MAGNA), NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Nobottle-Grove, union of Brixworth: 72 miles from London, 4 from Northampton. (For access and postal arrangements, see above.) The parochial charities produce about £25 a year. The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £25. 19s. 7d.: pres. net income, £346: patron, Corpus Christi College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, Thomas Lockton, 1807: contains 1,100 acres: 34 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 398: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 458:

ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,338: poor rates in 1837, £123.
—W. 1 m. Harlestone Park.

BRAMPTON (LITTLE), HEREFORD, a joint township with Rod and Nash, parish of Presteign, hun<sup>d</sup> of Wigmore—(which see for access, &c.): 138 miles from London, 4 from Kington. —Money orders issued at Kington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. —Contains 25 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 180: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,954: poor rates in 1837, £132.

BRAMPTON-EN-LE-MORTHEM, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Freeton, southern division of the wapentake of Stratford and Tickhill: 172 miles from London (coach road 161), 4 from Rotherham, 8 from Sheffield. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Derby to Woodhouse Mill station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Woodhouse Mill, &c., 40 miles. —Money orders issued at Rotherham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. —Contains 1,090 acres: 31 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 163: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,192: poor rates in 1837, £104. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1771.

BRAMSHALL, STAFFORD, a parish in the southern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Totmonslow, union of Uttoxeter: 138 miles from London (coach road 137), 2 from Uttoxeter, 6 from Bromley. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Leicester, and Burton-upon-Trent, to Uttoxeter, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Burton, &c., 25 miles. —Money orders issued at Uttoxeter: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —The parochial charities produce about £15 a year. —The living, (St. Lawrence), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Stafford, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £4. 3s. 9d.: pres. net income, £200: patron, Lord W. de Broke: pres. incumbent, C. J. Pinfold: contains 1,310 acres: 31 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 170: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,964: poor rates in 1837, £110.

BRAMSHAW, WILTS, a parish, union of New Forest, partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Cawden and Cadworth, in the above county, and partly in the northern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of New Forest, Romsey division of the county of Southampton: 87 miles from London, 6 from Lyndhurst, 10 from Salisbury. —Sou. West. Rail. through Bishopstoke to Romsey, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Banbury, Oxford, Reading, and Basingstoke, to Romsey, &c., 94 miles. —Money orders issued at Lyndhurst: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. —The windows of the church are mantled with ivy. There is a small Wesleyan chapel here. The living (St. Peter) is a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Sarum: pres. net income, £153: patron, Dean and Chapter of Salisbury: pres. incumbent, Mark Cooper, 1840: contains 2,760 acres: 133 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 793: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 912: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,347: poor rates in 1837, £251. —E., Paul-ton's Park.

BRAMSHILL (GREAT), HANTS, a tithing in the parish of Eversley, hun<sup>d</sup> of Holdshott, Basingstoke division of the county—(which see for access, &c.): 35 miles from London, 2 from Hartfordbridge, 10 from Basingstoke. —Money orders issued at Hartfordbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.:

post closes 8 p.m. —Contains 32 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 179: poor rates in 1837, £167. —The mansion of Bramshill, which stands in a spacious park in the neighbourhood, was built by Lord Zouche, as is believed, for Prince Henry, the son of James I.

BRAMSHILL (LITTLE), HANTS, a tithing in the parish of Eversley, out hun<sup>d</sup> of Odiham, Basingstoke division of the county: 38 miles from London, 3 from Hartfordbridge, 7 from Basingstoke. —(For access and postal arrangements, see above.) —Contains 2 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 12.

BRAMSHOT, HANTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Alton north, or Alton division of the county: this parish includes the hamlet of Liphook: 44 miles from London, 4 from Haslemere, 8 from Petersfield. —Sou. West. Rail. to Guildford, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 176 miles. —Money orders issued at Haslemere: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £18. 19s. 2d.: pres. net income, £613: patron, Queen's College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, Lancel. Bellas, 1832: contains 6,190 acres: 187 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,311: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,508: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,714: poor rates in 1837, £336. —There are several gentlemen's seats in the parish. Dowland House is the residence of Thomas Butler, Esq.; Hewshott Hill, of the Rev. Frederick Ford; Foley House, of Thomas Platt Pell, Esq.; Woolmer Lodge, of William Scott, Esq.; and Bramshot Place, of John Sparrow, Esq.

BRAMWITH (KIRK), WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the upper division of the wapentake of Osgoldcross, union of Doncaster: 191 miles from London (coach road 168), 5 from Hatfield, 7 from Doncaster. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Leicester, Nottingham, and Newark, to Doncaster, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham and Newark, &c., 77 miles. —Money orders issued at Doncaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. —The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of York, is valued at £12. 18s. 4d.: pres. net income, £517: patron, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster: pres. incumbent, H. W. B. Daubeney, 1845: contains 1,200 acres: 44 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 253: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,738: poor rates in 1837, £138.

BRAMWITH (SAND), WEST RIDING, YORK, a hamlet in the parishes of Barmby-upon-Don and Hatfield, lower division of the wapentake of Stratford and Tickhill. See BARMBY-UPON-DON.

BRAMWRA. See THOMAS CLOSE.

BRANAR AND MARCHELED, DENBIGH, a chapelry in the parish of Llangerniew, hun<sup>d</sup> of Isdulas—(which see for access, &c.): 223 miles from London, 7 from Llanwrst, 10 from Denbigh. —Money orders issued at Conway: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 3½ p.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. —Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 249.

BRANCASTER (OR BRANCHESTER), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Smithdon, union of Docking: 140 miles from London (coach road 121), 4 from Burnham. —Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Cambridge to Lynn, thence 24 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough to Lynn, &c.,

146 miles. — One of the schools here has a small endowment, and there are two almshouses for four poor widows. The other parochial charities produce about £15 a year. — The living (the Blessed Virgin), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £24: pres. net income, £979: patron, Rev. O. Sadler: pres. incumbent, O. Sadler, 1840: contains 3,340 acres: 194 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 913: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,050: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,978: poor rates in 1837, £514.

BRANCEPETH, DURHAM, a parish in the north-western division of the ward of Darlington, and union of Durham: it contains the townships of Brancepeth, Brandon with Byshottles, Crook with Billy-row, Hedley-hope, Hemlington-row, Stockley, and Willington: 292 miles from London (coach road 254), 3 from Durham, 10 from Walsingham. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, by Durham, to Brancepeth, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Normanton, York, &c., 160 miles. — Money orders issued at Durham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. — The church is a handsome cruciform structure, and contains several monuments of the family of Nevill, Earls of Westmoreland. The parochial charities produce about £35 a year. — The living (St. Brandon), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Durham, is valued at £60. 10s. 5d.: pres. net income, £811: patron, R. E. D. Shafto, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. D. Shafto, 1840: contains 21,850 acres: 273 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,151: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,473: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £19,498: poor rates in 1837, £939. — In the vicinity is the noble mansion of Brancepeth Castle, the residence of William Russell, Esq., and once the stronghold of the Nevills.

BRANCEPETH, DURHAM, a township in the above parish. — (For access and postal arrangements, see above.) — Contains 23 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 161: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,347: poor rates in 1837, £114.

BRANCHESTER. See BRANCASTER.

BRANDESTON, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Eynesford, union of St. Faith: 138 miles from London (coach road 112), 2 from Reepham, 10 from Norwich. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Norwich, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough to East Dereham, 146, thence 12 miles. — Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. — About 20½ acres of ground were bequeathed, in the 9th of Elizabeth, by William Gurney, for the benefit of the poor of the parish; and about £24 is annually distributed, on the second Tuesday in January, to poor aged persons. — The living (St. Nicholas), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £7. 12s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £180: patron, Magdalen College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, E. K. Barney, 1848: contains 580 acres: 14 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 137: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £807: poor rates in 1837, £163. — S., Haveringland Hall — (for which see HAVERINGLAND.)

BRANDESTON, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Loes, union of Plomesgate, intersected by the river Deben: 95 miles from London (coach road 80), 4 from Framlingham, 10 from Woodbridge.

— East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Stowmarket, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 227 miles. — Money orders issued at Woodbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The living (All Saints), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £8. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £100: patron, Rev. John Smyth: pres. incumbent, T. Broadhurst, 1815: contains 1,060 acres: 64 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 555: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 638: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,873: poor rates in 1837, £380.

BRANDLING RAILWAY. See GATESHEAD.

BRANDON WITH BYSHOTTLES, DURHAM, a township in the parish of Brancepeth, north-western division of the ward of Darlington: 292 miles from London (coach road 262), 3 from Durham, 13 from Sedgefield. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, by Durham, to Newburgh, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Normanton and York, &c., 160 miles. — Money orders issued at Durham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. — There is a paper manufactory here. — Contains 3,460 acres: 90 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 549: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 631: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,515: poor rates in 1837, £282. — Newburgh Hall.

BRANDON, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Eglington, northern division of Coquetdale ward — (which see for access, &c.): 312 miles from London, 8 from Wooler, 4 from Whittingham. — Money orders issued at Belford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 4 p.m.: post closes 9 p.m. — Contains 21 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 184: poor rates in 1837, £44.

BRANDON, SUFFOLK, a parish and market town in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Lackford, union of Thetford: 88 miles from London (coach road 78), 7 from Thetford. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Cambridge and Ely to Brandon station: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, and Ely, to Brandon, 128 miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 10 p.m. — The town is well built, and the church especially is interesting. There is a bridge here over the Little Ouse, which is navigable from Lynn to Thetford. The Wesleyan Methodists have a place of worship here. There are several schools in the parish, and one of them has been endowed by Mr. Wright of Downham Hall, for the purpose of teaching Latin and Greek; but by an arrangement made by the trustees, forty poor boys, sons of the poor, working mechanics, or small tradesmen, in Brandon, Downham, Wangford, and Weeting, are allowed to participate in the benefits of the endowment, so far as to be instructed in the usual branches of an English education. There is an almshouse here for seven poor widows. The other parochial charities produce about £117 a year. There is a very considerable trade in corn, malt, coal, bricks, iron, and timber, carried on at Brandon. The Dukes of Suffolk formerly took their titles from this place; and afterwards Charles Gerard, for his zeal in the service of Charles I., was created by that monarch Lord Gerard of Brandon, and was afterwards advanced by the second Charles to the dignity of Earl of Macclesfield. On the extinction of that family, Queen Anne created the Duke of Hamilton a peer of England, by the titles of Baron Dutton and Duke of Brandon, titles which his grace the present duke now enjoys. About the most celebrated of the natives of Brandon is Simon Eyre, who was Lord Mayor of London in 1445, and who, at his own expense, erected Leadenhall for a granary for the metropolis, with a handsome chapel on each side of the square, over which he piously and correctly placed this inscription, Dextra Domini exaltavit me—'The right hand of the Lord hath exalted me.' He left, moreover, 5,000 marks, at that time a very large sum, to be laid out in charitable purposes. He died in 1459, and was buried in the church of St. Mary Woolnoth, Lombard Street. In the neighbourhood there is a large rabbit warren, from which immense supplies, during the season, are sent to the London markets, as many as forty thousand having, it is said, been sent in one year. Near to the town there is a celebrated manufacture of gun-flints, the largest, it is said to be, in the world. A writer in 'Jameson's Edinburgh Journal,' who speaks from a personal inspection, says of it—Brandon is the only place in England in which gun-flints are now made to any considerable extent. During the war, and before the invention of percussion caps, when the demand for gun-flints was much greater than it is at present, some were made at Levensham, Maidstone, Purfleet, Greenhithe, and Northfleet; but none are made there at present, although the largest flint merchant in the world resides at the last-mentioned place. The gunmakers at Brandon say that they have an advantage over every other place in England, in consequence of the materials which they obtain in the pits below their heath being better than is to be had anywhere else. They say that the flints which they are enabled thereby to make will last longer than other flints, and are more certain in their fire. This, from information elsewhere obtained, I consider to be true. At Brandon they said that the French no longer made gun-flints, and that they themselves were now the only makers in the whole world; and yet the seventy or eighty men now employed could barely make a living by their trade, the cessation of war, and the invention of percussion-caps, having so greatly diminished their business. The masses of flint from which the gun-flints are made at Brandon, are obtained from a common about a mile south-east of the town. The chalk is within six feet of the surface. The men sink a shaft down about six feet from the surface, then proceed about three feet horizontally, and sink another shaft lower down into the chalk, about the same depth of six feet, and sometimes they fall in with a floor of flint within this depth. They proceed again about three feet horizontally, and sink another shaft six feet; and so they proceed, going sometimes to the depth of thirty feet. By making their shafts only about six feet in depth, they are able to descend, and haul up the stone from one step to another, without the aid of any machinery; and although a windlass, rope, and bucket might save labour, they would require capital, which the poor men who follow this occupation cannot command. They pay a rent of five shillings to the parish for every cart-load, which is as much as three horses can draw, and of this they grievously complain. In the descent of about thirty feet, they generally find three floors of flint, and sometimes as many as four. At every floor of flint which they find, they excavate horizontally for several yards, even as far as twenty yards below the chalk. The flint is in large blocks, much like the septaria stones. The men break the blocks into moderately-sized pieces, so as to be enabled to haul them up from stage to stage. When engaged in doing this, a man places himself about half-way up between two stages, so as to receive the stone from below, and haul it up to the stage above him. They sometimes sink shafts, and do not fall in with flint to repay their labour. That the flint of the best quality, and most adapted to the manufacture of gun-flints, is comparatively rare, is shown by the experience of France as well as England.—The living (St. Peter), a rectory, consolidated with Wangford, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Sudbury, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £20. 18s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £500: patron, T. E. Cartwright, Esq.: pres. incumbent, C. J. Cartwright, 1845: contains 5,570 acres: 387 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,002: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,302: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,523: poor rates 'in 1837, £702. —Market day, Friday. Fairs: February 11, June 11, November 11, for cattle, toys, &c. —S. is Brandon Park, the seat of Henry Bliss, Esq., nephew of the late proprietor, Edward Bliss, Esq., who was lord of the manor of Brandon, and high sheriff of the county in 1836. Mr. Bliss, a gentleman of great opulence, purchased a large sterile tract of land, of six thousand acres; and by the judicious outlay of capital, gave employment to all the poor of the neighbourhood, converted a common into productive farms and home-steads; enriched with fine plantations, which have added as much to the beauty as the value of the estate: it is said that he caused upwards of eight millions of young forest trees to be planted here. Dying without issue, he left the bulk of his property to his nephew, Henry Aldridge, Esq., the present possessor, who assumed his name by sign-manual.—W., Brandon Hall, the seat of Edward M. Rogers, Esq.—S.W., North Court Lodge, the residence of Thomas Kenyon, Esq.

BRANDON AND BRETSFORD, WARWICK, a hamlet in the parish of Wolston, Kirby division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Knightlow: 80 miles from London (coach road 88), 5 from Rugby, 6 from Coventry. —Nor. West. Rail. to Wolstan, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Rugby to Wolstan, &c., 58 miles. —Money orders issued at Rugby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. —There are some remains of an ancient castle here. Tanner, in his Notitia, says of this place—Here was, for some little time, during the reign of King Henry II., a small cell of two or three black nuns, founded by Jeffery de Clinton, son of Jeffery, founder of Kenilworth; but they seem to have soon separated, and their lands, by the consent of the founder, were annexed to Kenilworth priory. Here was a kind of hospital or chapel of St. Edmund, founded perhaps by the Turvilles, lords of Wolston, who were the patrons of it, in the 34th year of Edward III. —Contains 940 acres: 80 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 677: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 778: poor rates in 1837, £218.

BRANDON (LITTLE), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Forehoe: 121 miles from London (coach road 106), 5 from Wymondham, 11 from Norwich. —Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Cambridge to Wymondham, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, and Dereham, to Wymondham, &c., 163 miles. Money orders issued at Wymondham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. The parochial charities produce about £37 a year. The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £8. 3s. 9d.: pres. net income, £281: patron, F. R. Reynolds, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Charles Reynolds, 1829: contains 1,010 acres: 25 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 222: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,464: poor rates in 1837, £196.

BRANDBURTON (or BRANDESBURTON), EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the northern division of the wapentake of Holderness, union of Skirlaugh, in the neighbourhood of the Leaven Canal: it comprises the townships of Brandsburton and Moor-town: 227 miles from London (coach road 189), 8 from Beverley, 6 from Hornsey. Nor. and East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. through Peterborough, Hull, and Beverley, to Lockington station, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, Normanton, and Hull, to Lockington, &c., 131 miles. Money orders issued at Beverley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. The church is interesting from its antiquity. The Independents have a chapel here. The manor was bequeathed by Lady Dacres, in 1601, for the benefit of twenty aged spinsters and bachelors in Emanuel Hospital, Westminster, under the trusteeship of the lord mayor and aldermen of London. The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of the east riding and diocese of York, is valued at £24. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £895: patron, St. John's College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, Charles Blick, 1847: contains 3,140 acres: 121 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 718: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 825: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,273: poor rates in 1837, £273. Fairs: May 15; and on every alternate Wednesday is a sort of cattle market.

BRANDBURTON (or BRANDESBURTON), EAST RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.) Contains 2,680 acres: 117 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 673: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 773: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,854: poor rates in 1837, £246.

BRANDSFEE, BUCKINGHAM, a liberty, the limits of which are not distinct, partly in the parish of Hitchenden, and partly in those of Great and Little Missenden, in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Desborough and Aylesbury: it was anciently called Tilleberie: 3½ miles from Wycombe. (Pop<sup>n</sup> returned with the parish.)

BRANKSTON. See BRANXTON.

BRANSBY (or BRAMBLEY), LINCOLN, a township in the parish of Stow, wapentake of Well, parts of Lindsey—(which see for access, &c.): 141 miles from London, 8 from Lincoln, 7 from Gainsborough. Money orders issued at Lincoln: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. Contains 290 acres: 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 101: poor rates in 1837, £171.

BRANSBY WITH STEARSBY, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a parish in the wapentake of Bulmer, union of Easingwold: 231 miles from London (coach road 210), 11 from York, 6 from Easingwold. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, to Tollerton, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 109 miles. Money orders issued at York: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. The Roman Catholics have a chapel here. The parochial charities produce about £7 a year. The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cleveland, diocese of York, is valued at £9. 8s. 11½d.: pres. net income, £628: patron, F. Cholmeley, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Robert Swann, 1823: contains 2,700 acres: 47 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 304: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 350: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,131: poor rates in 1837, £87.

BRANSCOMBE, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Colyton, division and union of Honiton: this parish contains the hamlets of Dean and Westen: 214 miles from London (coach road 152), 4 from Sidmouth, 9 from Lyme Regis. Gt. West. Rail. to Exeter, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Exeter, &c., 227 miles. Money orders issued at Sidmouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. Freestone is found abundantly in the neighbourhood of the village. The living (St. Winifred), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £18. 15s. 10d.: pres. net income, £190: patron, Dean and Chapter of Exeter: pres. incumbent, Syd. H. Peppin, 1837: contains 1,750 acres: 169 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 956: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,099: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,629: poor rates in 1837, £453.

BRANSFORD, WORCESTER, a hamlet and chapelry, partly in the parish of Powick, and partly in that of Leigh, lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Pershore—(which see for access, &c.): 110 miles from London, 4 from Worcester, 1 from Leigh. Money orders issued at Worcester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. The living is a curacy not in charge, annexed to the rectory of Leigh: contains 74 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 388: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 446: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,747: poor rates in 1837, £162.

BRANSTON, (BRANSTON, or BRANTESTON), STAFFORD, a township in the parish of Burton-upon-Trent, northern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Offlow: 134 miles from London (coach road 121), 2 from Burton, 11 from Lichfield. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Leicester to Burton, thence 2 miles: from Derby to Burton, &c., 12 miles. Money orders issued at Burton-on-Trent: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. The Grand Trunk Canal runs in the vicinity of the village. Contains 1,490 acres: 80 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 439: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 505: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,606: poor rates in 1837, £148.

BRANSTON, LINCOLN, a parish in the liberty of the city of Lincoln, parts of Lindsey, and union of Lincoln: 171 miles from London (coach road 129), 4 from Lincoln, 13 from Sleaford. Nor. and East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. to Lincoln, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham to Lincoln, &c., 53 miles. Money orders issued at Lincoln: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. There is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel here. The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £18. 17s. 11d.: pres. net income, £677: patron, Rev. A. Curtois: pres. incumbent, A. Curtois, 1847: contains 170 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,122: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,290: poor rates in 1837, £368. All tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1765.

BRANSTON (or BRAUNSTON), LEICESTER, a parish in the hund. of Framland, union of Melton-Mowbray: 126 miles from London (coach road 113), 8 from Melton-Mowbray, 6 from Thorpe. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Syston to Melton, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Syston to Melton, &c., 42 miles. —Money orders issued at Melton-Mowbray: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. —The living (St. Guthlake), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Leicester, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £15. 10s. 5d.: pres. net income, £350: patron, Duke of Rutland: pres. incumbent, G. S. Stanley, 1846: contains 960 acres: 56 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 333: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 383: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,388: poor rates in 1837, £137. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1766. —S. 1 m. Croxton Park, a hunting-seat of the Duke of Rutland—(for which see CROXTON KERRAL.)

BRANTHAM, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hund. of Sampford, on the northern bank of the navigable river Stour: 62 miles from London (coach road 65), 7 from Ipswich, 4 from Stratford-bridge. —East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Mannington, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 194 miles. —Money orders issued at Ipswich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. —The living (St. Michael), a rectory, with the chapelry of East Bergholt annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £25. 10s.: pres. net income, £1,117: patron, Emanuel College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, Joshua Rowley, 1819: contains 1,940 acres: 42 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 404: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 465: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,368: poor rates in 1837, £148.

BRANTHWAITE (or BRAND'S PLAIN), CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Dean, ward of Allerdale above Derwent: 338 miles from London (coach road 306), 6 from Cockermouth, 7 from Whitehaven. —Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Lancaster, by Carlisle, to Workington, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 238 miles. —Money orders issued at Cockermouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. —Contains 62 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 364: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 418.

BRANTINGHAM, EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish, partly in the wapentake of Howdenshire, and partly in the Hunsley-Beacon division of the wapentake of Harthill, union of Beverley: it contains the townships of Thorpe-Brantingham and Ellerker: 222 miles from London (coach road 188), 10 from Hull, 1 from Cave. —Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Peterborough, by Hull, to Brough station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield and Normanton to Brough, &c., 104 miles. —The manor belongs to the see of Durham. —The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, with the curacy of Ellerker annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of the east riding and diocese of York, is valued at £12. 9s. 2d.: pres. net income, £176: patron, Dean and Chapter of Durham: pres. incumbent, G. F. Townsend, 1842: contains 3,040 acres: 97 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 635: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 730:

ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,587: poor rates in 1837, £224. The great and small tithes of the lands and grounds in the townships of Brantingham and Thorpe-Brantingham, the property of the dean and chapter of Durham, were commuted in 1765.

BRANTINGTHORPE. See BRUNTINGTHORPE.

BRANTON, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Eglington, northern division of the ward of Coquetdale—(which see for access, &c.): 315 miles from London, 8 from Alnwick, 4 from Ingram. —Money orders issued at Alnwick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 2 p.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —There is a Dissenters' chapel here. —Contains 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 126: poor rates in 1837, £56.

BRANTON-GREEN. See DUNFORTH (UPPER).

BRANXTON, NORTHUMBERLAND, a small parish in the western division of the ward of Glendale, union of Glendale: 373 miles from London (coach road 329), 9 from Wooler, 4 from Coldstream. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, York, and Newcastle, to Beal station, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through York and Newcastle, &c., 241 miles. —Money orders issued at Belford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 4½ p.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —There is a monumental column here to commemorate the victory of the Earl of Surrey over King James IV. of Scotland, on the 19th of September, 1513. Branxtton was the birth-place of the ingenious Percival Stockdale, whose father was vicar of the parish. —The living, a vicarage, with the curacy of Cornhill annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northumberland, and diocese of Durham, is valued at £3. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £332: patron, Dean and Chapter of Durham: pres. incumbent, Robert Jones, 1834: contains 1,120 acres: 54 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 261: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,395: poor rates in 1837, £73.

BRASSINGTON, DERBY, a parochial chapelry and township in the parish of Bradborne, hund. of Wirksworth: 155 miles from London (coach road 144), 4 from Wirksworth, 7 from Ashbourn. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Belper, to Brassington, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Belper, &c., 23 miles. —Money orders issued at Wirksworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. —A school here is endowed with a piece of land, given in 1742 by Mr. Thurston Dale, for the instruction of twelve children. —The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Derby, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £50: patron, J. B. Story, Esq.: pres. incumbent, G. Buckston, 1824: contains 153 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 776: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 892: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,401: poor rates in 1837, £389. The great and small tithes, the property of the lay impropriator, were commuted in 1803.

BRASTEAD, KENT, a parish, partly in the hund. of Westerham, and partly in that of Codsheath, lathe of Sutton at Hone: 38 miles from London (coach road 23), 4 from Seven Oaks, 2 from Westerham. —Sou. East. Rail. to Edinbridge, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 170 miles. —Money orders issued at Seven Oaks: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. —The parochial charities produce about £50 a year. The parish is crossed by the rivers Eden and Darent. Hasted, in his History of Kent, speaking of this place, says—Adjoining to Sundrish, westward, lies the parish of Bradsted, which has in it a district called Bradsted ville, which is a jurisdiction separate from any hundred, and has a constable of its own. The church stands within the ville.—The living (St. Martin), a rectory in the diocese of Canterbury, and in the exempt deanery of Shoreham, is valued at £22. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £673: patron, Archbishop of Canterbury: pres. incumbent, W. H. Mill, 1843: contains 4,630 acres: 173 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,130: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,299: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,769: poor rates in 1837, £486.—N., Chevening Park—(for which see CHEVENING.)—E., Coombe Bank.

BRATTLEBY, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Lawres, parts of Lindsey, union of Lindsey: 173 miles from London (coach road 150), 7 from Lincoln, 13 from Gainsborough.—Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Peterborough to Lincoln, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham to Lincoln, &c., 56 miles.—Money orders issued at Lincoln: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—The living (St. Cuthbert), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stow, and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £7. 10s.: pres. net income, £260: patron, Balliol College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, John Carr, 1837: contains 1,220 acres: 28 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 168: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,414: poor rates in 1837, £44. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1779.

BRATTON, WILTS, a chapelry in the parish and hun<sup>d</sup> of Westbury: this chapelry includes Howbridge and Heywood: 112 miles from London (coach road 96), 2 from Westbury, 4 from Trowbridge.—Gt. West. Rail. through Chippenham to Westbury, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Westbury, &c., 153 miles.—Money orders issued at Westbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.—On the ascent of a hill here, there are traces of a Danish intrenchment, called Bratton Castle, the ditch of which encloses an area of about twenty-three acres.—The living (St. James) is a curacy not in charge, annexed to the vicarage of Westbury: patron, Vicar of Westbury: contains 284 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 729: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 838.

BRATTON-CLOVELLY, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and division of Lifton, union of Oakhampton: 224 miles from London (coach road 203), 9 from Oakhampton, 9 from Launceston.—Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol and Exeter to Crediton, thence 23 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Crediton, &c., 237 miles.—Money orders issued at Oakhampton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.—The village was the birth-place of Henry de Bracton, a very eminent lawyer in the reign of Edward I. Henry III. made him one of his itinerant judges. He wrote a treatise on the laws and customs of England, which, however, was not given to the world till the year 1569. In the neighbourhood there are the traces of an ancient fortification, called Broadbury Castle.—The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Totness, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £21. 5s. 2½d.: pres. net income, £412: patron, Bishop of Exeter: pres. incumbent, Edward Budge, 1846: contains 8,200 acres: 127 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 870: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,000: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,133: poor rates in 1837, £297.

BRATTON-FLEMING, DEVON, a parish in the union and hun<sup>d</sup> of Braunton, union of Barnstaple: 212 miles from London (coach road 192), 6 from Barnstaple, 2 from Loxon.—Gt. West. Rail. to Tiverton, thence 28 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Tiverton, &c., 225 miles.—Money orders issued at Barnstaple: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.—At a small distance from the village, at a place called Nightacott, there are six upright stones, which have all the appearance of having been at one time part of a druidical temple.—The living (St. Peter), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Barnstaple, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £29. 15s. 5d.: pres. net income, £551: patron, Caius College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, H. S. Pinder: contains 4,370 acres: 89 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 708: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 814: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,377: poor rates in 1837, £249.

BRATTON-SEYMOUR (or St. MAUR), SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Norton-Ferris, union of Wincanton: 110 miles from London, 2 from Wincanton, 2 from Castle-Carey.—Money orders issued at Wincanton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.—The living (the Holy Trinity), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, and diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £5. 4s. 7d.: pres. net income, £161: patrons, Sir R. Lopes and J. Hodges, Esq., alternately: pres. incumbent, R. Messiter, 1829: contains 1,170 acres: 14 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 103: poor rates in 1837, £22.—N., Bedlynch Park; S., Holebrook House.

BRAUGHIN, HERTFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Braughin, union of Bishop-Stortford: 39 miles from London (coach road 29), 1 from Puckridge, 4 from Standon.—Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Bishop-Stortford, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 171 miles.—Money orders issued at Ware: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.—There are two almshouses here for aged widows, and several other minor charities. There is an ancient encampment, supposed to be Roman, in the neighbourhood of the village. The Independents have a chapel here.—The living (St. Peter), a vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Middlesex, and diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £19. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £192: patron, Rev. W. Tower: pres. incumbent, W. Tower: contains 4,300 acres: 227 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,358: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,561: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,104: poor rates in 1837, £730. The great and small tithes, the moduses, &c., the property of the lay impropiator and the vicar, were commuted in 1812.—Fair, Whit-Monday.

BRAUNCEWELL AND DUNSBY, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Flaxwell, parts of Kesteven, union of Sleaford: 160 miles from London (coach road 118), 4 from Sleaford, 11 from Grantham.—Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Peterborough and Boston to Tattershall, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham and Lincoln to Tattershall, &c., 81 miles. — Money orders issued at Sleaford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, with Dunsby, united in 1718 to the vicarage of Alnwick, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £9. 18s. 11½d.: pres. net income, £715: patron, Marquis of Bristol: pres. incumbent, F. Latham, 1847: contains 3,470 acres: 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 125: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,879: poor rates in 1837, £103.

BRAUNSTON (or BRANDSTONE), NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Fawsley, union of Daventry, intersected by the Oxford Canal, which joins the Grand Junction in this parish, and passes through a tunnel one mile and a half in length: 73 miles from London (coach road 75), 3 from Daventry, 19 from Banbury. — Nor. West. Rail. to Crick, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Leicester to Crick, 62 miles. — Money orders issued at Daventry: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — There is a school here, with an endowment of £30 a year, arising from land within the parish, given in 1733 by William Makepeace. The parochial charities produce about £296 a year. — The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £31. 2s. 11½d.: pres. net income, £837: patron, Jesus College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, A. B. Clough, 1838: contains 3,930 acres: 287 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,469: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, £1,689: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,624: poor rates in 1837, £658. — N. 1 m. Ashby Lodge; N. 1½ m. Ashby Hall.

BRAUNSTON, RUTLAND, a parish and township in the soke and union of Oakham: 131 miles from London (coach road 93), 2 from Oakham, 2 from Leighton. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Leicester to Oakham, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Syston to Oakham, &c., 58 miles. — Money orders issued at Oakham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — There is a Baptist chapel here, and a school with an endowment of £5 a year. The ordinary parochial charities produce £54 a year. — The living (All Saints), a perpetual curacy, annexed to the vicarage of Hambledon, in the diocese of Peterborough, and having jointly a pres. net income of £180: patron, Dean and Chapter of Lincoln: pres. incumbent, Henry Green, 1845: contains 3,250 acres: 87 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 443: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 509: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,215: poor rates in 1837, £262. All the tithes, the property of the dean and chapter of Lincoln and the vicar, were commuted in 1801.

BRAUNSTONE, LEICESTER, a parochial chapel and township in the parish of Glenfield, hun<sup>d</sup> of Sparkenhoe: 105 miles from London (coach road 96), 2 from Leicester, 8 from Hinckley. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Leicester, thence 2 miles: from Derby to Leicester, &c., 31 miles. — Money orders issued at Leicester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. — The living is a curacy not in charge, subordinate to the rectory of Glenfield: contains 1,610 acres: 40 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 188: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,055: poor rates in 1837, £150.

BRAUNSTONE-FRITH, LEICESTER, a liberty

in the above parish. — (For access and postal arrangements, see above.) — Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 7: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £388. — (Other returns with the parish.)

BRAUNTON, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of the same name, union of Barnstaple: 212 miles from London (coach road 208), 5 from Barnstaple, 10 from Bideford. — Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Tiverton, thence 38 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Tiverton, &c., 225 miles. — Money orders issued at Barnstaple: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. — There is an Independent chapel here. One of the schools of the parish is endowed with £60 a year; the other parochial charities produce about £17 per annum. — The living (St. Branock), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Barnstaple, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £16. 12s. 6½d.: pres. net income, £450: patron, Dean of Exeter: pres. incumbent, J. W. R. Landon, 1826: contains 7,010 acres: 389 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,274: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,615: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £7,455: poor rates in 1837, £787.

BRAWBY, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Salton — (which see for access, &c.) — within the liberty of St. Peter of York, locally situated in the wapentake of Ryedale, on the western bank of the river Rye: 223 miles from London, 2 from Middleton, 16 from Whitby. — Money orders issued at Middleton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. — Contains 1,080 acres: 31 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 218: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,425. — Fair, first Monday after July 11, for cattle and earthenware.

BRAWDY, PEMBROKE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Dewisland, union of Haverford-West, South Wales: 253 miles from London (coach road 254), 8 from St. David's, 8 from Haverford-West. — Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 150 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Stonehouse, &c., 253 miles. — Money orders issued at Haverford-West: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of St. David's, is valued at £3. 18s. 9d.: pres. net income, £115: patron, Bishop of St. David's: pres. incumbent, Thomas Davies, 1839: contains 146 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 767: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 882: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,002: poor rates in 1837, £290.

BRAWITH. See KNATTON.

BRAXTED (GREAT), ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Witham: 41 miles from London (coach road 39), 2 from Witham, 10 from Chelmsford. — East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Witham, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 173 miles. — Money orders issued at Witham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. — The parochial charities produce about £19 a year. The parishes of Great and Little Braxted adjoin and stand on the right bank of the Blackwater. They are mentioned in the Domesday survey. — The living (All Saints), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Colchester, diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £19: pres. net income, £544: patron, Corpus Christi College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, H. Calthrop: contains 1,240 acres: 90 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 410: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 471: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup>

£3,248: poor rates in 1837, £156.---E., Great Braxted Lodge, is the residence of Captain Charles Duncan, R.N., who is a magistrate of the county.

BRAXTED (LITTLE), ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Witham: 38 miles from London.---(For access and postal arrangements, see above.)---The parochial charities produce about £7 a year.---The living (St. Nicholas), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Colchester, diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £3. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £118: patron, Mrs. E. D. Clarke: pres. incumbent, C. T. Pettingal: contains 1,680 acres: 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 126: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £727: poor rates in 1837, £67.

BRAY, BERKS, a parish, in itself a hun<sup>d</sup>, union of Cookham, on the southern bank of the river Thames, and intersected by the Great Western Railway: it comprises the divisions of Bray, Touchen, Water-Oakley, and part of Maidenhead: 25 miles from London (coach road 26), 2 from Maidenhead, 6 from Windsor.---Gt. West. Rail. to Maidenhead, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 157 miles.---Money orders issued at Maidenhead: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.---By Camden, this place is believed to have been inhabited by the Bibroci, who submitted to Cæsar, obtained his protection, and with it safe possession of one of the most pleasing parts of the island. Philippa, Queen of Edward III., had rents assigned to her from this and the adjacent manor of Cookham, and it is now considered a part of the royal demesnes, forming part of the liberties of Windsor Castle; the inhabitants enjoy the royal privilege of being free from tolls in some of the neighbouring market towns. The church is an ancient structure composed of various materials, and exhibits almost every grade of Gothic architecture. One of its vicars has attained a not very enviable notoriety, from his desire to retain the possession of his cure, so that a reference to him has become a proverbial expression, indicative of a want of principle. He held the benefice during the reigns of Henry VIII., Edward VI., Queen Mary, and Queen Elizabeth. He was twice a protestant, and twice a papist; and when reproached for the inconsistency of his conduct, in thus veering about with every change of administration, he defended himself by saying, that he was perfectly consistent, and quite lived up to his principle, which was, 'to live and die vicar of Bray.' His name appears to have been Symon Symonds, and he died in the 41st year of Elizabeth. The principal charitable institution in the village is an hospital, called Jesus' Hospital, founded in 1627 by William Goddard, Esq., for forty poor persons, who, in addition to their apartments, received eight shillings a month: there is a statue of the founder over the door. The institution is under the trusteeship of the Fishmongers' Company, and six of its inmates must be free of that guild. The building is a handsome uniform square, with a well-cultivated garden in the centre. Besides this, there are eighteen free tenements given for the use of the poor by Sir John Norris; and one poor person of this parish is entitled to a place in Lucas's Hospital. A school here has an endowment of £21 a year. The other parochial charities produce about £250 a year. A late act of parliament has invested in the magistrates, instead of the lord of the manor, the power to appoint chief and petty constables, and tithing-men. In the principal manor in the hundred, the unusual custom prevails of the inheritance, falling male heirs, going to the eldest female in the next degree of kindred.---The living, a vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Berks, and diocese of Salisbury, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £25. 4s. 4½d.: pres. net income, £500: patron, Bishop of Oxford: pres. incumbent, Walter Levett, 1826: contains 8,900 acres: 703 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,722: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 4,280: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £17,950: poor rates in 1837, £1,102. The vicarial tithes of Bray, the property of the vicar, were commuted in 1814.---Bray Wick Lodge, the seat of John Hilbert, Esq., is a neat edifice, standing on a gentle eminence, and commands some extensive and most pleasing views over a highly-cultivated district, watered by the silver current of the Thames as far as the town of Windsor, with all the magnificent array of its castellated towers and picturesque forest scenery; while, on the other side, the prospect is diversified by the town of Maidenhead and the village of Tapton, backed by the majestic woods of Cliefden and Hedsor.---Bray Wick Grove is the seat of John Jeanes Coney, Esq., and Common Hill is the residence of Mrs. Law. Ferrar, in his tour from Dublin to London, states that, about fifty years ago, a petrified tortoise, which weighed forty-nine pounds, was dug up in this neighbourhood. About three quarters of a mile from Bray, there is a small island, called Monkey Island, from a building erected, and fancifully decorated in the inside with a number of figures of monkeys engaged in all sorts of pursuits. It was built by the Duke of Marlborough for an angling resort. S. W. 1½ m. Heywood Lodge.

BRAYBROOKE, NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Rothwell, union of Market-Harborough: 101 miles from London (coach road 83), 3 from Market-Harborough, 5 from Rothwell.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Market-Harborough, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Rugby, to Market-Harborough, &c., 69 miles.---Money orders issued at Market-Harborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---The church contains a curious monument to Sir Nicholas Griffin, who died in 1509. The Baptists have a chapel here, the congregation of which was formed in 1793. The family of Neville-Griffin has taken the title of Braybrooke from this place since 1788. In this village was born Robert de Braybrooke, who was advanced to the see of London, and who was for six months Lord Chancellor of England. He died in 1404.---The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £23. 6s. 10½d.: pres. net income, £600: patron, Rev. J. Field: pres. incumbent, J. Field, 1829: contains 3,060 acres: 83 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 420: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 483: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,122: poor rates in 1837, £248. The tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1788.

BRAYDON, WILTS, a hamlet in the parish of Purton, hun<sup>d</sup> of Highwerth, Cricklade, and Steeple:

89 miles from London, 4 from Cricklade, 7 from Malmesbury.---Money orders issued at Cricklade: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.---Contains 13 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 60: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £857: poor rates in 1837, £68.

BRAYFIELD (COLD), BUCKINGHAM, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Newport, union of Newport-Pagnell, on the banks of the river Ouse: 66 miles from London (coach road 59), 3 from Olney, 8 from Newport-Pagnell.---Nor. West. Rail: to Roade station, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through Rugby and Roade, &c., 92 miles.---Money orders issued at Newport-Pagnell: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---The living (the Virgin Mary), a curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Buckingham, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Oxford, annexed to the vicarage of Lavendon, and having jointly a pres. net income of £194: patron, Earl of Gainsborough: pres. incumbent, William Tomkins, 1838: contains 580 acres: 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 83: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £983: poor rates in 1837, £42.---E. 1 m. Turvey House, the residence of Thomas Chas. Higgins, Esq.

BRAYFORD, DEVON, a township in the parish of Charles---(which see for access, &c.)---There is a Baptist chapel here.

BRAYTOFT (or BRATOFF), LINCOLN, a parish in the Wold division of the wapentake of Candleshoe, parts of Lindsey, union of Spilsby: 154 miles from London (coach road 130), 5 from Spilsby, 3 from Wainfleet.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail: through Peterborough and Boston to Braytoft station: from Derby, through Lincoln, Boston, &c., 99 miles.---Money orders issued at Spilsby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---The living (St. Peter and St. Paul), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £18. 3s. 6d.: pres. net income, £255: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, W. Worsley, 1842: contains 1,220 acres: 32 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 235: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,807: poor rates in 1837, £170.

BRAYTON, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the lower division of the wapentake of Barkstone-Ash, union of Selby, intersected by the Leeds and Selby Railway, and the Selby Canal, which connects the rivers Ouse and Aire: it comprises the township and chapelry of Barlow, and the townships of Brayton, Burn, Gateforth, Hambleton, and Thorpe-Willoughby: 241 miles from London (coach road 186), 2 from Selby, 5 from Snaith.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail: through Peterborough to Hull, thence by rail to Selby, and thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield and Normanton to Selby, &c., 82 miles.---Money orders issued at Selby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---Two schools here have small endowments.---The living (St. Wilfrid), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, in the peculiar jurisdiction of the Dean and Chapter of York, is valued at £7. 14s. 4½d.: pres. net income, £268: patron, Hon. E. R. Petre, and Prebendary of Westow: pres. incumbent, R. Paver, 1819: contains 10,690 acres: 300 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,894: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,176: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £12,228: poor rates in 1837, £589. The great and small tithes, the property of the Archbishop of York, the lord of the manor, and the vicar, were commuted in 1799.

BRAYTON, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish.---(For access and postal arrangements, see above.)---Contains 1,790 acres: 54 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 319: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 367: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,040: poor rates in 1837, £74.

BREADSALL, DERBY, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Appletree, though locally situated in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Morleston and Litchurch, union of Sharnlow: 135 miles from London (coach road 129), 3 from Derby, 3 from Stanley.---Nor. West. Rail: through Rugby to Derby, thence 3 miles: from Derby to Breadsall, 3 miles.---Money orders issued at Derby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.---The church contains a monument to Dr. Darwin, author of the 'Zoonomia,' the 'Botanic Garden,' and some other works of celebrity in their day. He was born at Elson, near Newark, in 1721; was educated at Cambridge, took his degree of M.D. at Edinburgh, and settled at Lichfield, where he resided till 1781, when he removed to Derby, where he died in 1802. His 'Botanic Garden' has always been admired for the beautiful finish of its verses, but it was too mechanical. He wrote also 'Physiologia, or the Philosophy of Gardening and Agriculture,' and contributed several papers to the Philosophical Transactions. There is a school here, with an endowment of £8. 10s. a year; the other parochial charities produce about £45 a year. Tanner, in speaking of this place, says---Here was an house of friars' heremites in the reign of Henry III. It afterward, till the dissolution, continued a small priory of the Austin order, dedicated to the Holy Trinity, valued only at £13. 0s. 8d. per annum. It was granted, in the sixth of Edward VI., to Henry, Duke of Suffolk. In the priory quarries here, a fine building-stone is procured.---The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Derby, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £28. 2s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £580: patron, Sir G. Crewe, Bart.: pres. incumbent, H. R. Crewe, 1830: contains 2,410 acres: 110 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 620: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 713: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,122: poor rates in 1837, £188. The tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1815.

BREAGE (Str.), CORNWALL, a parish in the western division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Kerrier, union of Helstone: 329 miles from London (coach road 276), 3 from Helstone, 7 from Marazion.---Gt. West. Rail: to Plymouth, thence 85 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Plymouth, &c., 337 miles.---Money orders issued at Helstone: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 6 p.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---The inhabitants are, to a great extent, employed in mining. The celebrated tin mine, Wheal-Vor, is in this parish.---The living, a vicarage, to which are annexed the curacies of Cury, St. Germoe, and Gunwallow, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cornwall, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £33: pres. net income, £760: patron, the Crown: pres. incumbent, R. G. Grylls, 1809: contains 7,390 acres: 938 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 6,166: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 7,090: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £8,673: poor rates in 1837, £789.

BREAMORE (or BROWERE), HANTS, a parish and liberty in the New Forest division, union of Fordingbridge: 104 miles from London (coach road 89), 7 from Sarum, 8 from Fordingbridge. — Son. West. Rail. through Bishopstoke to Salisbury, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, Reading, and Bishopstoke, to Salisbury, &c., 191 miles. — Money orders issued at Sarum: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — The village is situated on the left bank of the river Avon. There are schools for boys and girls, supported by the rector and Sir Charles Halse, who is lord of the manor. Tanner says that—a priory of black canons was founded here by Baldwin de Redvers, or Riverius, and Hugh his uncle, about the latter end of the reign of Henry I. St. Michael was the patron saint of this monastery, which, about the time of the suppression, consisted of a prior and nine canons, and was endowed with £200. 5s. 1d. The site and a great part of its possessions were granted, in the 28th year of Henry VIII., to Henry Marquis of Exeter. — The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £250: pres. net income £540: patron, Rev. J. N. Palmer: pres. incumbent, J. N. Palmer, 1838: contains 3,440 acres: 111 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 647: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 744: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,126: poor rates in 1837, £524. — N. is Breamore House; S., Brookshank House.

BREANE, SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bempstone, but situated within the hun<sup>d</sup> of Brent with Wrington, union of Axbridge: 142 miles from London (coach road 138), 8 from Axbridge, 2 from Bledon. — Gt. West. Rail. to Weston-super-Mare, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, &c., 155 miles. — Money orders issued at Wells, Somerset: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — Samphire is found in great abundance here. — The living (St. Bridget), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, and diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £7. 0s. 5d.: pres. net income, £216: patron, W. Willies, Esq.: contains 1,330 acres: 21 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 126: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,986: poor rates in 1837, £71.

BREARTON (or BRIERTON, DURHAM), a township in the parish of Stranton—(which see for access, &c.)—north-eastern division of the ward of Stockton: 249 miles from London, 8 from Stockton, 4 from Hartlepool. — Money orders issued at Stockton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12½ p.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — Contains 70 acres: 4 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 25: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £368: poor rates in 1837, £15.

BREARTON, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Knaresborough, lower division of the wapentake of Claro: 224 miles from London (coach road 205), 3 from Knaresborough, 6 from Aldborough. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Leeds, to Ripley, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 92 miles. — Money orders issued at Knaresborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Ripon: patron, Vicar of Knaresborough: pres. incumbent, A. Manby: contains 1,560 acres: 44 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 201: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,647: poor rates in 1837, £88.

BREASON (or BREASTON), DERBY, a township in the parish of Sawley, hun<sup>d</sup> of Morleston and Litchurch: 127 miles from London (coach road 118), 9 from Derby, 13 from Ashby. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Leicester to Sawley, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Sawley, &c., 11 miles. — Money orders issued at Derby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The inhabitants have the privilege of sending their children to the free school at Risley. — The living is a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Lichfield: pres. net income, £119: patron, Earl of Stamford and Warrington: pres. incumbent, H. B. Hall: contains 130 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 712: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 819: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,442: poor rates in 1837, £268.

BRECH-FFA (or BRECHVA), CARMARTHEN, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Cethiniog or Cathinog, union of Llandilo Fawr, South Wales: 193 miles from London (coach road 210), 10 from Carmarthen, 5 from Abergorlech. — Gt. West. Rail. through Swindon to Stonehouse, thence 90 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Stonehouse, &c., 193 miles. — Money orders issued at Carmarthen: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 5 p.m.: post closes 9 p.m. — The village stands on the new turnpike road, which unites the counties of Cardigan, Carmarthen, and Glamorgan. — The living, a rectory not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Carmarthen, and diocese of St. David's, is valued at £8. 5s.: pres. net income, £72: patron, Families of Tregib and Aberothy, alternately: contains 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 109: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £302: poor rates in 1837, £26.

BRECKENBOROUGH. See NEWSHAM.

BRECKLES (or BRECKLES-MAGNA), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Wayland: 110 miles from London (coach road 85), 6 from Thetford. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Cambridge and Ely, to Harling Road station, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough to Harling Road, &c., 153 miles. — Money orders issued at Thetford. — The living (St. Margaret), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £7. 17s. 11d.: pres. net income, £45: patron, Sir E. Kerrison, Bart.: pres. incumbent, A. B. Hemsworth, 1846: contains 1,860 acres: 17 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 160: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,774: poor rates in 1837, £86.

BRECON (BRECKNOCK, or ABER-HONDDY), BRECKNOCK, a market town and borough, having separate jurisdiction, but locally situated partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Merthyr, and partly in that of Devynnock, union of Brecknock: 163 miles from London (coach road 171), 21 from Abergavenny. — Gt. West. Rail. through Swindon to Stonehouse, thence 60 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Stonehouse, &c., 163 miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — Brecknock stands on an eminence at the confluence of the rivers Usk and Honddu, over the former of which stream there is one bridge, and over the latter, three. The upper Honddu bridge, which leads to the priory, is very old and inconvenient; the one below it, which consists of two arches, with a remarkably thick pier in the centre, formerly led to the castle, and had a drawbridge attached to it. The town consists of three principal streets, which have in them several well-built houses. It appears to have been founded, shortly after the Conquest, by Bernard de Newmarch, a great Norman leader, who, after the overthrow of the last British Regulus, removed the metropolis of the district from Caerbarmean, which had previously been the capital, to this place, where he built a castle out of the materials of the old town, which he demolished, and a priory, which he made a cell to the great abbey at Battle. Round the castle, or rather at the foot of the height on which it was erected, the new town gradually gathered. It seems to have been originally a parallelogram of about a hundred yards in length, by eighty in breadth, having a tower at each angle. Speed conjectures that the principal entrance was on the western side, and that it was approached by a bridge of the most, to supply which with the waters of the Honddu, a trench was cut to that river. The entrance or postern which was nearest to the town, and which was reached by the bridge spoken of above, was on the eastern side. Within the building there stood a chapel dedicated to St. Nicholas, which was served by monks of the neighbouring priory of St. John's. On the revenues for remunerating these monks for their services, it appears that William de Brezas, one of the marauding chieftains of the day, had laid his unholy hands, a circumstance not at all likely to escape the observation of the archdeacon Giraldus, who gravely relates the following story, which has been translated by Sir R. Hoare—A chaplain of the name of Huga, being engaged to officiate at the chapel of St. Nicholas, in the castle of Aberhodni, [it should be observed that the old word Aber implies the confluence of two streams, or the meeting of a river with the sea.] saw in a dream a venerable man standing near him, and saying—tell thy lord, William de Brezas, who has the audacity to retain the property granted to the chapel of St. Nicholas for charitable uses, these words:—The public treasury takes away that Christ does not receive, and thou wilt then give to an impious soldier that thou wilt not give to a priest. The archdeacon immediately knew them to be the words of Augustine, and showing to him that part of his writings where they were to be found, explained to him the case to which they applied. He reproaches persons who held back tithes and other ecclesiastical dues, and what he there threatens, shortly afterwards certainly befel the withholder of them, for in our time we have duly and undoubtedly seen that princes who have usurped ecclesiastical benefices, and particularly King Henry II., who laboured under this vice more than others, have profusely squandered the treasures of the church, and given away to hired soldiers what in justice should only have been given to priests. Judging, however, from this extract, it would seem that the priests were pretty well able to take care of themselves. The castle afterwards passed from the Braoses or Brensas, to the Bohuns, and afterwards to the Duke of Buckingham, a nobleman who was successively the friend, the favourite, the foe, and the victim of Richard III. In this fortress it was that Moreton, Bishop of Ely, was sent to be confined by Richard, under, as he thought, the trusty guardianship of Buckingham. But Buckingham had been annoyed and disgusted at being refused the rewards which had been promised him for having helped Richard to the throne, and having sounded the bishop, an able man and a known partisan of the Lancaster party, they here digested the plan of Richmond's descent, the prosperous termination of which reduced the crafty Gloucester to his six feet of earth, and in the course of which, one of the primary agents was consigned to the block. The bishop took a more judicious course. He awaited the tide of events. He escaped from the castle, kept quiet, lived to become, in the ensuing reign, a privy councillor, and finally attained the metropolitan see of Canterbury. The building of the castle having fallen to the crown, went to decay, and part of it was at one time used as a prison for the county; and when the civil war broke out between Charles and his parliament, the inhabitants of the town levelled it nearly with the ground, lest it should be made a standing-place for either of the contending forces. Some of the walls, however, and a portion of the tower in which the bishop was confined, now called the Ely Tower, still remain. Vestiges of the priory also remain, but its place is now occupied by the parish church of St. John, the structure of which does not seem older than about the time of Henry V. It is believed to have been originally strictly cruciform, but the formation of guild chapels, and the construction of private oratories, combined with many repairs, effected at different times in very heterogeneous styles, have destroyed everything like regularity in its appearance. The living is a rectory, with the perpetual curacy of St. Mary attached, in the diocese of St. David; its present incumbent is the Rev. R. Davis, 1804; patron, the Archdeacon of Brecknock; value, £160 per annum. The church or chapel of St. Mary stands nearly in the centre of the town, and is ascribed by Mr. Jones, in his History of Brecknock, on the authority of Curtis' MSS. in the Bodleian library, to the end of the twelfth, or the beginning of the thirteenth century, but the greater part of the edifice is no doubt of later date. The interior consists of two aisles, with a guild chapel at one end, and which once pertained to the worshipful company of shoemakers; but the most remarkable part of the structure is the steeple, which is more ancient than the body of the church; it is about ninety feet in height, and has a peal of eight musical bells. The consistory court for the archdeaconry of Brecknock, is held within this church. Christ Church College, or St. David's, as it is sometimes called, stands on the banks of the Usk, at a short distance from the bridge. The precincts, which are extra parochial, comprise the church, a dwelling-house, which has been the residence of two or three bishops of St. David's, a barn and out-houses, a school-room with room above, with cottages and other appurtenances, which might make up a small village. The living is, like the other, in the patronage of the Archdeacon of Brecknock, and the present incumbent is the Rev. Rees Price. The history of the original foundation is not exactly known, but Tanner ascertained that it was a monastery of black friars, with a church appurtenant to St. Nicholas. At the dissolution, it was surrendered to the king by Richard David, its last superior. Whatever may have been the nature and object of the original endowment, the existing institution is traced to a project of Thomas Beck, Bishop of St. David's, in 1283, who purposed to erect a collegiate church for twenty-one canons, under the presentation of the bishop; but his death having frustrated his design, it was carried out in 1331 by Bishop Gower, who established the institution at Abergwili, near the episcopal palace. The prebends and other dignities were attached to certain churches, the incumbents of which, however, were not withdrawn from their cures of souls. It there remained till 1531, when Henry VIII., at the instance of the then bishop, removed it to Brecknock. The establishment consists of a dean, who is always the bishop of the diocese, a precentor, treasurer, chancellor, and nineteen other prebendaries. The present church comprises only the chancel and choir of the old church, which appears to have covered the whole site of the churchyard. During the civil war, the institution fell a prey to the republican soldiers, who seized the revenues and all the movable property, and demolished a great part of the edifice. The portion now remaining was, after the Restoration, repaired at the expense of the prebendaries, under the direction of Dr. Leacy, who was bishop at the time. There are some interesting monuments here, and a beautiful stone cross. There is a town-hall, a shire-hall, the county gaol, and house of correction, and a fine arsenal, which usually contains 1,500 swords and 15,000 muskets, arranged in fanciful forms, as in the Tower of London. The Independents, Baptists, Calvinistic and Wesleyan Methodists, all have chapels here, as well as the Roman Catholics. There is a collegiate school, endowed with a rent-charge of £21. 9s. 4d. per annum, on Moddve parish, and another school endowed with £21 a year. There is also an academy here for young men intended for the Independent ministry in Wales. There are twelve almshouses for decayed females, built by the family of Games of Newton; and a general infirmary for the town and county was instituted in 1834. The town charity consists of seven small rent-charges, amounting together to £16. 10s. a year, out of which six poor widows receive 10s. a year each, and the rest is distributed among the poor inhabitants on St. Thomas's day. Lands bequeathed in 1686, by Rice Powell, produce about £180 a year, £24 of which is paid to the principal of Jesus' College, Oxford, to be divided between two scholars, natives of the town of Brecon, £21 to a school here, and the remainder is expended in apprenticing children. The other charities of the borough produce about £172 a year. The town is lighted with gas, and under a local act, passed in 1776, it is supplied with water; but there is no provision for night watchmen, nor are any in fact employed. Charters were granted to Brecon by Queen Mary, and confirmed by Elizabeth and James I. The charter upon which the peculiar privileges are obtained is that of Mary; and under it the corporation have exclusive jurisdiction, both criminal and civil, in the borough, the county magistrates being forbidden to intermeddle unless "for the defect" of the borough authorities. The quarter sessions are held before the bailiff, aldermen, and recorder, and have cognizance of all offences arising within the borough which do not affect life. Petty sessions are held once a week, or oftener if necessary, and a court of record is held every Monday and Thursday, which has jurisdiction of all manner of actions which originate within the borough, without limitation as to amount. By the Municipal Reform Act, the town is governed by a bailiff, four aldermen, and twelve councillors; the income of the corporation is about £300 a year. There is a court-leet every year within a month after Michaelmas, at which the steward, who is appointed by the bailiff as lord of the manor, presides. Brecon has returned one member to parliament since the time of Henry VIII., the franchise belonging only to twenty-one free burgesses. Under the Reform Act, the privilege of returning a representative has been retained, but the boundaries of the borough have been extended, and now comprise the old borough of Brecon and the extra parochial district of the Castle, and Christ's College. The returning officer is the bailiff, and the number of the registered electors is about 240. There are some good shops; but as there is no manufacture of importance, no expectation is entertained of any great increase in the population; but it is a considerable thoroughfare, and a railway, which passes by a tunnel of 1,430 yards in length through Briny-Glacial mountain, connects it with Merthyr-Tydvil. By a canal, also, which runs through the centre of the mineral and manufacturing districts, it has a communication with the Bristol Channel. The district of Brecknock, which is in about the centre of the county, extends from east to west about three miles and a half, and from north to south about two miles; and the scenery, both in the town and neighbourhood, is exceedingly beautiful. The parvaire, or ambulatory, where the monks were wont to meditate, to the east of the church, is called the Priory-walks. They have long been appropriated for the benefit of the inhabitants, and are singularly pleasing and romantic. Shaded by noble woods, and rendered musical by the brawling Honddu, whose waters are occasionally seen glancing upwards from the tangled undergrowth, they form a most delightful promenade. Within the parish of St. John there are two groves which, if possible, surpass the pathways by the Honddu in loveliness. Few places, indeed, in the kingdom can surpass Brecknock in the picturesque of its varied aspects. The mills and bridges on the Usk and Honddu, the ivy-mantled walls and towers of the old castle, the massive embattled turret and gateway of the old priory, with its long luxuriant groves, backed up by the bold and magnificent clustering of the mountain ridges around, constitute together scenes of inexpressible beauty. The mansion called the Priory, is now the property of the Marquis of Camden, who makes it his occasional residence. His lordship's grandfather obtained it through marriage with Elizabeth, daughter of Sir John Jefferys, who had purchased it from a branch of the family of Price, to whom it came from Sir John Price, who took it at the general dissolution, when, according to Dugdale, its revenues were £112. 14s. 2d., or £134. 11s. 4d., according to Speed. Sir John Price was a native of Brecknockshire, and having been sent to Oxford, through the patronage of the Earl of Pembroke, he graduated at Broadgate's Hall, which, in 1534, stood on the site of the present Pembroke College. He subsequently attained to the degree of Doctor of Laws. He then proceeded to the bar, and shortly afterwards he was introduced to Henry VIII., who made him one of his council of the marches, a position which, from his local knowledge, he was in all probability well fitted; and, when the union of Wales and England was projected, he acted a prominent part, contributing greatly to bring the arrangement to a happy termination. By this the king was so well pleased, that when the dissolution of the monasteries was resolved upon, he appointed Sir John his sole commissioner for that object in Brecknockshire, with authority to dispose of the revenues as he thought proper. Of course, Sir John took especial care to secure his own interest, and, among other acquisitions of property, obtained Brecon priory. He died in 1572. Several distinguished individuals have been born at Brecknock, the most eminent of whom was Dr. Price, who was the son of a butcher here. He received his education at Oseney Abbey, in Oxfordshire; in 1525, became a doctor of civil law, and was made a prebendary of Rochester. Having observed a difficulty to which natives of the Principality were subjected in getting admitted to endowed institutions, at a late period of life, he, in 1571, obtained a charter to obviate the evil, and founded Jesus College for that purpose: a memorial of him stands on the gate of the college. — Contains 1,071 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 5,354: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 6,157: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,899: poor rates in 1837, £1,915. — Market days, Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday. Fairs: 1st Wednesday in March, May 4, July 5, Sept. 9 and 30, and Nov. 17, for leather, hops, and cattle.

BREDBURY, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Stockport, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Macclesfield, in the vicinity of the Peak Forest Canal: 183 miles from London (coach road 176), 1 from Stockport, 8 from Altringham. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Stockport, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Crewe to Stockport, &c., 82 miles. — Money orders issued at Stockport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Chester: pres. net income, £130: patron, the Crown and Bishop, alternately: pres. incumbent, J. Whittaker, 1846: contains 2,730 acres: 379 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,301: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,796: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,985: poor rates in 1837, £636.

BREDE, SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Gostrow, rape of Hastings, union of Rye: 81 miles from London (coach road 60), 5 from Battle, 3 from Winchelsea. — Brighton and South Coast Rail. through Lewes to Hastings, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 212 miles. — Money orders issued at Staplehurst: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — In the Burrell MSS. there is a notice of this place to the following effect:—The court of this manor is a branch of that of Battle, and hath the same privileges and process. The lands of this place, though at some distance from Kent, descend according to the custom of gavel-kind used in that county. Here is a court, kept every three weeks, to try actions between man and man, and the officers of it are exempted from attendance at the assizes and quarter sessions. — The living (St. George), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Lewes, and diocese of Chichester, is valued at £12. 10s. 5d.: pres. net income, £702: patron,

T. Frewen, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. Wm. Maher, 1841: contains 5,700 acres: 128 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,151: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,323: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,416: poor rates in 1837, £866. — Fairs, Easter-Tuesday, for cattle and pedlery.

BREDENBURY (or BRIDENBURY), HEREFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Broxash, union of Bromyard: 137 miles from London (coach road 128), 3 from Bromyard, 8 from Leominster. — Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 19 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 90 miles. — Money orders issued at Bromyard: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £2. 1s. 10½d.: pres. net income, £55: patron, C. Dutton, Esq.: pres. incumbent, John Gwillim, 1810: contains 540 acres: 11 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 46: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £616: poor rates in 1837, £35.

BREDFIELD, SUFFOLK, a parish, partly in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Loes, and partly in that of Wilford, union of Woodbridge: 83 miles from London (coach road 80), 3 from Woodbridge. — East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Chelmsford, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 215 miles. — Money orders issued at Woodbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — The living (St. Andrew), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £4. 4s. 2d.: pres. net income, £249: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, G. Crabbe, 1835: contains 1,630 acres: 91 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 468: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 538: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,078: poor rates in 1837, £316. — Bredfield House is the seat of Edmund Jenney, Esq., who is the lord of the manor, and the descendant of a very ancient family in this part of the country. Sir William Jenney, Knt. of Knodishall, in the county of Suffolk, one of the justices of the King's Bench in 1477, had four sons, of whom the eldest, Edmund, succeeded him, and was also knighted. The second son of that learned judge, Sir Christopher of Cressingham, was also knighted, and became a justice of the Court of Common Pleas. The fifth lineal descendant of Sir Edmund, Sir Arthur Jenney, Knt. of Knodishall, was sheriff of Suffolk in 1645, and of Norfolk in 1654. The son of that gentleman was also knighted, and from him the present proprietor is the fifth in descent.

BREDGAR, KENT, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Milton, lathe of Scray: 51 miles from London (coach road 41), 3 from Sittingbourne, 10 from Chatham. — Sou. East. Rail. to Rochester, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 183 miles. — Money orders issued at Sittingbourne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. — The church has some points of Norman architecture. One of the schools here has an endowment of £5 a year. According to Tanner—A small college of one secular priest, master, and two scholars, or fellows, being clerks, was founded in the parish church here, to the honour of the Holy Trinity, in the 16th year of Richard II. It was granted in the 29th year of Henry VIII. to the Archbishop of Canterbury. — The living (St. John the Baptist), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £9: pres. net income, £180: patron, Sir E. Deering, Bart.: pres. incumbent, Charles Cage, 1801: contains 1,810 acres: 94 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 540: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 621: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,812: poor rates in 1837, £338.

BREDHURST, KENT, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Eyborne, lathe of Aylesford, union of Hollingbourn: 45 miles from London (coach road 36), 4 from Chatham, 6 from Maidstone. —Sou. East. Rail. to Rochester, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 177 miles. —Money orders issued at Chatham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. —Near to the church, there is a small chapel now in ruins, which was formerly the burial-place of the Kemsley family. —The living (St. Peter), a perpetual curacy not in charge, in the diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £37. 17s. 6d.: pres. net income, £101: patron, Rector of Hollingbourn: pres. incumbent, T. Andrews, 1829: contains 400 acres: 23 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 131: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £576: poor rates in 1837, £75.

BREDICOT, WORCESTER, a parish in the lower division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Oswaldslow, union of Pershore: 121 miles from London (coach road 108), 3 from Worcester, 7 from Droitwich. —Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 74 miles. —Money orders issued at Worcester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. —The living (St. James), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £3. 18s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £120: patron, Dean and Chapter of Worcester: pres. incumbent, W. Godfrey, 1841: contains 430 acres: 7 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 53: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £667: poor rates in 1837, £34.

BREDON, WORCESTER, a parish in the middle and upper divisions of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Oswaldslow, union of Tewkesbury, on the eastern bank of the river Avon, and intersected by the Birmingham and Gloucester Railway: it comprises the chapelries of Norton, Mitton, and Cutsdean, and the hamlets of Bredon, Hardwick, Kinsham, and Westmancote: 128 miles from London (coach road 104), 4 from Tewkesbury, 10 from Evcsaham. —Gt. West. Rail. through Swindon and Stonehouse to Bredon station: from Derby, through Birmingham to Bredon station, 78 miles. —Money orders issued at Tewkesbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. —Tanner, in his Notitia Monastica, says—Ethelbald, king of Mercia, before the year 1716, gave this town to his kinsman Enaulf, who was grandfather to king Offa, with intent that he should found a monastery here, which he seems to have done, and dedicated it to St. Peter. It subsisted under an abbot of its own till after the year 841. But before the Conquest it became part of the possessions of the bishopric of Worcester. The church contains a monument to Dr. Prideaux, Bishop of Worcester in the time of Charles I. Most of the inhabitants of the village are engaged by the stocking manufacturers at Tewkesbury. There is an endowed blue-coat school here, twelve of the scholars in which are clothed from its funds, and there is an almshouse for eight females. The other parochial charities produce about £47 a year. Bredon hill, which commands an extensive view on both sides of the country, separates the vales of Evcsaham and Cotswold. —The living (St. Giles), a rectory, with the curacies of Norton and Cutsdean annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, exempt from visitation, and in the peculiar jurisdiction of the rector, is valued at £8. 11s. ½d.: pres. net income, £1,498: patron, Rev. T. A. Strickland: pres. incumbent, T. A. Strickland, 1837: contains 6,180 acres: 310 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,467: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,687: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £10,405: poor rates in 1837, £624. The tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1808.

BREDWARDINE, HEREFORD, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Webtree, union of Hay, intersected by the river Wye: 158 miles from London (coach road 147), 12 from Hereford, 8 from Hay. —Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Hereford, thence 40 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 111 miles. —Money orders issued at Hereford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. —There is a school here, supported by what is called 'Jarvis's charity,' through the instrumentality of which, books and clothing are provided. At a little distance on the banks of the Wye, are the ruins of Bredwardine Castle. From what remains, it appears to have been a strong and massive fortress. The ruins furnished a great part of the materials used in erecting the ancient family mansion of the Cornwalls at Moccas. This village gave its name to the celebrated Thomas Bredwardine, archbishop of Canterbury in 1349, and who, from his great learning, was called the "Profound Doctor." —The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £7. 8s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £200: patron, Rev. N. D. H. Newton: pres. incumbent, N. D. H. Newton, 1829: contains 3,890 acres: 80 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 409: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 440: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,085: poor rates in 1837, £123.

BREDY (LITTLE), DORSET, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Uggscombe, Dorchester division and union: it comprises the extra-parochial hamlet of Kingston-Russell: 148 miles from London, 7 from Dorchester. —Sou. West. Rail. through Southampton to Dorchester, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, and Southampton, to Dorchester, &c., 237 miles. —Money orders issued at Dorchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. —Contains 1,800 acres: 48 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 256: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,303: poor rates in 1837, £56. —Bridehead, the seat of Robert Williams, Esq. Kingston-Russell estate is the oldest property of the Duke of Bedford, and that from which his Grace derives his earliest title —Baron Russell.

BREDY (LONG), DORSET, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Eggerton, union of Dorchester, Bridport division of the county: 8 miles from Dorchester. —(For access and postal arrangements see above.) —The parochial endowments produce £7. 10s. per annum. —The living, a rectory, with the chapelry of Little Bredy united, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Dorset, formerly in the diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Sarum, is valued at £19. 12s. 1d.: pres. net income, £625: patron, R. Williams, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Lundy Foot, Rural Dean, 1829: contains 2,117 acres: 65 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 340:

probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 391: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,669: poor rates in 1837, £163. — Kingston-Russell, the property of Lieut.-Colonel Michel, is now occupied by Moreton Grove Mansel, Esq.

BREEDON-ON-THE-HILL, LEICESTER, a parish in the western division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Goscote: it comprises the chapelry of Worthington, the liberty of Newbold, the townships of Breedon and Staunton-Harold, and the hamlets of Tonge and Wilson: 128 miles from London (coach road 120), 5 from Ashby: 5 from Kegworth. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Leicester to Kegworth, thence 8 miles: from Derby, to Kegworth, &c., 20 miles. — Money orders issued at Ashby-de-la-Zouch: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. — Tanner says of this place—The church of St. Mary and St. Hardulph here, with some lands, being given by Robert Ferrers, Earl of Nottingham, about A.D. 1144, to the priory of St. Oswald at Nostell in Yorkshire, here was soon fixed a cell of black canons subordinate to that monastery. This was a small house, consisting of a prior and five religious, and, about the time of the dissolution, here were only two canons, when all the lands and tithes belonging to them were rated at £25. 6s. 1d.; and, as parcel of St. Oswald's, it was granted to Lord Gray in the 7th year of Edward VI. There are two day and Sunday schools here, endowed by Mrs. Elizabeth Commins, in 1745. The other parochial charities produce about £23 a year. — The living (St. Mary and St. Hardulph), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Leicester, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £6. 2s. 8d.: pres. net income, £205: patron, Earl of Stamford and Warrington: pres. incumbent, Robert Martin: contains 6,410 acres: 556 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,625: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,019: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £9,479: poor rates in 1837, £1,166. The impropriate and vicarial tithes of Breedon manor, and common fields of Breedon, Tonge, and Wilson, the property of the lay impropriator, clerical rector, and vicar, were commuted in 1759. The impropriate and vicarial tithes of the manor of Breedon-on-the-Hill and Worthington, and township of Newbold, the property of the trustees of Rustat's charities, impropriator and vicar, were commuted in 1802. — E. 1 m. Langley Priory.

BREEDON-ON-THE-HILL, LEICESTER, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.) — Contains 3,010 acres: 243 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 766: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 880: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,735: poor rates in 1837, £608.

BREEM (or BREAM), GLOUCESTER, a chapelry in the parish of Newland, hun<sup>d</sup>. of St. Briavell's—(which see for access, &c.): 119 miles from London: 4 from Coleford, 4 from Blakeney. — The chapel was much enlarged about 24 years since, and now contains 150 free sittings. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Gloucester, diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £19. 10s.: pres. net income, £48: patron, Vicar of Newland, pres. incumbent, Henry Poole, 1819: contains 80 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 441: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 543.

BREIGHTMET, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Bolton, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Salford: 202 miles from London (coach road 198), 3 from Bury, 2 from Great Bolton. — Nor. West. Rail. to Bolton, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Crewe to Bolton, &c., 102 miles. — Money orders issued at Bury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The schoolhouse was erected in 1750, on land given for the purpose by Mr. William Hulton, in 1729, though it does not clearly appear why the parishioners were, for more than twenty years, deprived of the benefit of his bequest. — Contains 970 acres: 189 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,309: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,505: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,307: poor rates in 1837, £157.

BREIGHTON, EAST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Bubwith—(which see for access, &c.), Holme-Beacon division of the wapentake of Harthill: 186 miles from London, 5 from Howden, 8 from Market-Weighton. — Money orders issued at Howden: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — Contains 2,030 acres: 28 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 220: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,253: poor rates in 1837, £93.

BREINTON, HEREFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Grimsworth, union of Hereford, on the northern bank of the river Wye: 143 miles from London (coach road 137), 2 from Hereford, 11 from Wooby, — Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 25 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 96 miles. — Money orders issued at Hereford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m. post closes 4½ p.m. — There are two endowed schools here, and the other parochial charities produce about £9 a year. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Hereford, is valued at £1. 10s.: pres. net income, £109: patron, Dean of Hereford: pres. incumbent, W. M'Guire, 1847: contains 1,490 acres: 53 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 362: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 416: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,365: poor rates in 1837, £271.

BREMILLE (or BREMBLE), WILTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Chippenham, union of Calne: 98 miles from London (coach road 89): 4 from Chippenham, 2 from Calne. — Gt. West. Rail. to Chippenham, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Chippenham, &c., 161 miles. — Money orders issued at Chippenham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. — The village, as the name imports, is placed on the summit of an eminence, from which extensive and delightful views of the surrounding country are commanded. The church is an interesting structure, and contains a very old font. There is a cross in the churchyard, and another at the entrance of the town; a lofty ornamental pillar has also been erected at Wickhill in this parish. The late Rev. W. L. Bowles, author of the "Discovery," and celebrated for the simple piety of his beautiful devotional poetry, the fourth volume of which was composed at this place, was for some time incumbent of Bremhill. — The living (St. Martin), a vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Wilts, diocese of Sarum, is valued at £15. 15s.: pres. net income, £406: patron, Bishop of Sarum: pres. incumbent, Henry Drury, 1845: contains 5,920 acres: 285 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,550: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,782: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £10,770: poor rates in 1837, £1,182. Tithes commuted in 1775.

BREMILHAM (or COWITCH), WILTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Malmesbury: 91 miles from London (coach road 98), 2 from Malmesbury,

5 from Tetbury. — Gt. West. Rail. through Swindon to Minety, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Stonehouse to Minety, &c., 127 miles. — Money orders issued at Malmesbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wilts, diocese of Salisbury, now in the diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £4. 1s. 8d.: pres. net income, £141: patron, Captain Rushout: pres. incumbent, A. Evans, 1840: contains 300 acres: 6 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 47: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £760: poor rates in 1837, £28.

BRENCHLEY, KENT, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Brenchley and Horsemonden, lathe of Aylesford, union of Tonbridge: 50 miles from London (coach road 37), 4 from Lamberhurst, 6 from Tunbridge Wells. — Sou. East. Rail. to Paddock Wood station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 182 miles. — The church is an ancient cruciform structure. There is a Baptist chapel here, the congregation of which was formed in 1801. The parochial charities produce about £17 a year. Here are some mineral waters, which in their qualities resemble those of Tunbridge. — The living (All Saints), a vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Rochester, now in the diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £12. 8s. 9d.: pres. net income, £749: patron, G. C. Courthope, Esq.: pres. incumbent, R. Davies, 1848: contains 8,590 acres: 420 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,472: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,842: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,582: poor rates in 1837, £1,331.

BRENDON, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Sherwill, Braunton division, union of Barnstaple: 201 miles from London (coach road 208), 15 from Ilfracombe, 16 from Barnstaple. — Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Taunton, thence 38 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Taunton, &c., 215 miles. — Money orders issued at Ilfracombe: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 3 p.m.: post closes 10½ p.m. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Barnstaple, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £9. 4s.: pres. net income, £131: patron, John Knight, Esq.: pres. incumbent, T. Roo, 1831: contains 9,470 acres: 50 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 271: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £717: poor rates in 1837, £787.

BRENKLEY, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Ponteland—(which see for access, &c.): 280 miles from London, 8 from Newcastle, 8 from Morpeth. — Money orders issued at Newcastle-upon-Tyne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — Contains 8 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 56: poor rates in 1837, £44.

BRENT (EAST), SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Brent with Wrington, union of Axbridge: it comprises the hamlets of Edingworth, Book's-bridge and North Yeo: 149 miles from London (coach road 135), 4 from Axbridge, 2 from Bid-disham. — Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to High Bridge station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, &c., 162 miles. — Money orders issued at Wells, Somerset: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — It has been supposed by some persons that the parish received its name of Brent or Burnt, in consequence of having suffered much from the flames during the invasions of the Danes; but such would not appear to have been the case, as we find the same appellation applied to it in the annals of Glastonbury, long before these incursions occurred. The term may, however, have been derived from some such circumstance, as extensive military operations evidently took place in the neighbourhood, there being, at the present time, the vestiges of a large double-entrenched camp on the summit of Brent Knoll in the neighbourhood, a place not only admirably fitted for defence, but also, from its elevation, for an alarm post, and in which many Roman coins and weapons have been found. The West Saxons seem to have used it as a fortress; and in one case, King Alfred made a successful defence there against the Danes. The Knoll is a curious conical eminence, which rises to the height of more than a thousand feet above the level of the sea. It is commonly used as a sea-mark by vessels in the Bristol Channel; and from its top some of the most extensive prospects in England are commanded. On one side, the eye sweeps over the wide expanse of Wed-Moor, Mark-Moor, and Godney-Moor, the Netherlands of West England; and the view is only terminated by the pointed hill and lofty Tor of Glastonbury, while, on the other side, the broad bosom of the Bristol Channel gleams in the bright sunlight, backed by the distant hills of Glamorganshire. The village stands on the old high road from Bristol to Bridge-water, and close by the railroad. The church is a handsome building, beautifully situated on a gentle eminence: it has a fine tower, surmounted by a spire, which rises to the height of 140 feet. Several of the windows exhibit pleasing specimens of painting on glass. There was formerly a cell here to the abbey of Glastonbury. — The living (the Virgin Mary), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, and diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £30. 11s. 3d.: pres. net income, £902: patron, Bishop of Bath and Wells: pres. incumbent, G. A. Denison, 1845: contains 3,180 acres: 126 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 849: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 976: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £11,508: poor rates in 1837, £431.

BRENT-ELEIGH (or ELY), SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Babergh, union of Cosford: 76 miles from London, 7 from Sudbury, 7 from Hadleigh. — East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Hadleigh, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 208 miles. — Money orders issued at Sudbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — In the church there is an excellent library of 1,500 volumes, given, in 1700, by Dr. Colman of Trinity College, Cambridge. A market was formerly held here, under a grant of Henry VIII., but it has fallen into disuse. Here are almshouses for twelve poor widows and widowers, endowed, in 1736, with £72 a year, by Edward Colman, Esq. The estate is now let for £140 a year. — The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Sudbury, and diocese of Norwich, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £369: patron, T. Brown, Esq., M.D.: pres. incumbent, R. Snape, 1808: contains 1,650 acres: 49 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 289: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,200: poor rates in 1837, £135. — Brent-Eleigh Hall, formerly the seat of W. Gcate, Esq., is now unoccupied.

BRENT (South), Devon, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Stanborough, union of Totness, intersected by the river Avon: 230 miles from London (coach road 189), 8 from Ashburton, 8 from Modbury. —Gt. West Rail. through Bristol and Exeter, to South Brent station: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, and Exeter, to Brent, 244 miles. —Money orders issued at Ashburton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. —The village stands on the road from Totness to Plymouth, and has always been a great thoroughfare; it is now, as just stated, a station on the South Devon Railway. The only curiosity of South Brent, says Warner, is its little church, which has many vestiges of antiquity both within and without. Its seating is particularly curious, being certainly anterior to the Reformation. Instead of pews, it has—like the Russian churches—a regular series of plain oaken benches, with a back to each, running from either side to the middle of the church, at right angles with the wall. The flat boards, which form the terminations of these seats, are curiously and variously carved with subjects most grotesque and ludicrous,—such as a fox or an ass in a mitre—a pig roasting, and a monkey acting the part of turnip—a party of geese hanging a pig—a monkey at prayers—a pig preaching, &c. These caricature carvings I should consider as instances of practical satire by the parochial clergy against the mendicant orders; for it is well known that the most inveterate antipathy subsisted between the parish priests and the friars, in consequence of that considerable influence which the latter had obtained by their absurd vows and itinerant preaching. There is an Independent chapel here, and a school endowed with £8 a year. The parish lands produce annually about £113 per annum, a great part of which is laid out in purchasing clothes and blankets for the poor. —The living (St. Patrick), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Totness, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £29. 15s. 4½d.: pres. net income, £822: patron, Rev. N. Cole: pres. incumbent, Nath. Cole, 1845: contains 10,180 acres: 226 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,237: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,422: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £8,261: poor rates in 1837, £608. —Market day, Saturday. Fairs: May 12, and Oct. 10, for horned cattle.

BRENT (South), Somerset, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Brent with Wrington, union of Axbridge: 147 miles from London (coach road 137), 6 from Axbridge, 2 from Burnham. —Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to High Bridge station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to High Bridge, &c., 160 miles. —Money orders issued at Wells, Somerset: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. —The court for the hundred is held here. There is a Methodist chapel in the village. The parochial charities produce about £7 a year. —The living (St. Michael), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Wells, and diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £25. 17s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £548: patron, Archdeacon of Wells: pres. incumbent, J. Ditcher, 1841: contains 3,210 acres: 148 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,074: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,235: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £10,858: poor rates in 1837, £380.

BRENT-TOR, Devon, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Tavistock: 265 miles from London (coach road 210), 4 from Tavistock, 11 from Oakhampton.

—Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Plymouth, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Plymouth, &c., 280 miles. —Money orders issued at Tavistock. London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. —The parish is intersected by the little river Lid, and contains a sheet of water called Stowford Lake. The church and village stand nearly on the top of a lofty and rugged cliff, at a great elevation, the top of which is frequently enveloped in clouds; but on a clear day, the prospect from it is delightful, comprising a range of all the southern coast of Devonshire, and it frequently forms a sea-mark to ships in the British Channel. The origin of the foundation of the church is curious and interesting. A merchant, returning from his last voyage in a vessel laden with treasure, had, for several days, been much tossed about by wild and tempestuous weather, and was in great danger of shipwreck; in his alarm he uttered a fervent prayer, and vowed, if God would spare him, that he would erect a church to his honour on the first land he saw; that was Brent-Tor: he was saved, and hence the church. There are some mines of manganese here. —The living (St. Michael) is a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Totness, and diocese of Exeter: pres. net income, £60: patron, Duke of Bedford: pres. incumbent, E. A. Bray, 1811: contains 2,810 acres: 21 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 169: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £887: poor rates in 1837, £59.

BRENTFORD, MIDDLESEX, a market town and parish, partly in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Ossulstone, and partly in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Elthorne, union of Brentford: 7 miles from London. —Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. within the range of the London district post. —Brentford, which is placed on the line of the Great Western Road, formerly derived much advantage from its position on the chief communication between London and the western counties; but the establishment of the railway system has destroyed much of the character which at that time belonged to it. The name is evidently derived from its being situated on the banks of the river Brent, which rises in Hertfordshire; and, after making a tortuous progress through the centre of Middlesex, here falls into the Thames. The appellation in ancient records was written indifferently, Braynesford or Brainford, with the term West or Great frequently prefixed. Brentford is first noticed in history as having been the scene where Edmund Ironside overthrew the Danes in a severe conflict, in 1016; and the 'Saxon Chronicle' relates, that when he had compelled them to raise the siege of London, he followed them to Brentford, where he and his army destroyed great numbers. After the battle, he forded the Thames, in which, at this place, in the time of Bishop Gibson, there was not at low ebb more than three feet of water, and again obtained considerable advantages over them in Kent. The town after this greatly advanced, and, according to Tanner—In a chapel at the west end was founded, in the 25th year of Henry VI., by John Somerset, chancellor of the exchequer, and the king's chaplain, a friary, hospital, or fraternity of the nine orders of angels, consisting of a master and several brethren, which was able to dispense £40 per annum, according to MSS. Stow, and granted, in the first year of Edward

VI., to Edward Duke of Somerset. In 1445, a celebrated chapter of the order of the Garter was held here at the Lion Inn; but what will not the history of the world disclose at the last great day—surely few greater contrasts than has been witnessed by Brentford. Within a few yards of the spot where the magnificent pageantry of human greatness had gratified the honest ambition, or the dishonourable pride, of those by whom it was attended, on the 14th of July, in 1558, six martyrs sealed the record of their faith with their blood at the stake, and—“Sowed the seed by which the Church hath grown.”

Brentford had its full share of the calamities which arose out of the civil war between Charles I. and his parliament. On the 12th of November, 1642, one of those daring excursions which were continually prompted by the enterprising spirit of Prince Rupert, was made by the king's adherents to Hounslow, which, though not in itself intrinsically important, was significant of that great contest—hot-headed, inconsiderate courage on the one side—cool, determined, and prudent intrepidity on the other. The king gained the day, but lost the advantage; and as the account of an eye-witness of, and partaker in, the fray, cannot but be interesting, we transcribe it. It is copied from a MS. letter in the Ashmolean Museum at Oxford; it is as follows:—

“On Saturday, very early, we marched from Ashford; and at Hounslow Heath all the king's foot met, expecting a battle, but none offered. On still we went to Hounslow town, thence to Brainesford, where, unexpectedly, we were encountered by two or three regiments of theirs, who had made some small barricades at the end of the first town, called New Brainesford. The van of our army being about 1,000 musketers, answered their shot so bitterly, that, within an hour or less, they forsake their work in that place, and fled up to another which they had raised betwixt the two towns, from whence, and from a brick house by, with two small ordnance, they gave us a hot and long shower of bullets. My colonel's (Sir Edward Fitton's) regiment was the sixth that was brought to assault, after five others had all discharged, whose happy honour it was (assisted by God, and a new piece of cannon newly come up) to drive them from that work too, where it was a heartbreaking object to hear and see the miserable deaths of many goodly men. We slew a lieutenant-colonel, two serjeant-majors, some captains, and other officers and soldiers there, about thirty or forty of them, and took 400 prisoners. But what was most pitiful was to see how many poor men ended and lost their lives striving to save them, for they run into the Thames; and about 200 of them, as we might judge, were then drowned by themselves, and so were guilty of their own deaths, for, had they stayed and yielded up themselves, the king's mercy is so gracious that he had spared them all. We took there six or eight colours, alsoe their two pieces of ordnance, and all this with a very small loss, God be praised, for, believe me, I cannot understand that we lost sixteen men. Then we, thinking all had been done for that night, two of our regiments passed up through the old town to make good the entrance, but they were again encountered by a fresh onset, which, scattered like the rest, after a short conflict, fled away towards Hammer-smith, and we were left masters of the town. That night most lay in the cold fields. Next morning we were startled early at the loud music of some cannon, which proved to be but some fourteen barges of theirs, who, with 13 ordnance and 600 men, attempted very indiscreetly to pass up the river from Kingston-on-Thames, by the town where we lay, for London; but being discovered, what from the banks and from Lion House (the Earl of Northumberland's), where we had placed some four musketeers within two or three howers' space, we sunk four or five of their vessels, with the cannons in them, took the rest, and eight pieces in them, for our breakfast; after which, within two hours, we could descry a great army marching down upon us from London, who came up within musket-shot of us; but the king, finding his men wearie, and being satisfied with what he had done before for that tyme, and having no convenient place for his horse (which is the greatest pillar of his army) to fight, very wisely drew off by degrees; and, unperceived by them, left the town naked, some of his horse dragoons keeping them deceived till the foot were all gone, and then they galloped in the rear, after which, the enemy perceiving, played on their back with their cannon, but with no harm or success at all.”

So ended the battle of Brentford. The extract is long, but it is well worth reading for its life-like description of the manners of the period. In ecclesiastical affairs, Brentford has, from time immemorial, been held conjointly with the neighbouring parish of Hanwell. The chapel, a neat brick structure, was rebuilt about eighty years ago. In the chancel was buried William Noy, attorney-general to Charles I., by whose advice, it is said—though upon somewhat dubious authority—and through whose aid, the execrable measure for levying ship-money was carried into effect, a measure which ended in the dethronement and death of the king. He resided for some time in the parish of New Brentford. Among the persons interred in the adjoining cemetery is Luke Sparks, the celebrated comedian, who died in 1769; and Henry Gifford, who was manager of Goodman's Fields Theatre when Garrick first appeared upon the stage. Among the distinguished men connected with Brentford, was the celebrated John Horne Tooke, who was appointed curate in 1760, and continued for eleven years to fill the living; he was the author of ‘The Diversions of Purley,’ one of the best philological works in any language. Most of his time was spent in political disquisitions, and in visits to France, but he never neglected the state of his parishioners. His sermons were clear, perspicuous, and forcible; and, without pretending to any great theological depth, were eminently useful. He was determined to administer all possible consolation to the poor; and in order to be of the utmost service to them, he studied the science of medicine, and thus administered a double portion of comfort—comfort to the soul and body too. He was born in Westminster in 1736, was educated at Westminster and Eton schools, and matriculated at St. John's, Cambridge. The clerical profession proving unsuited to his character and habits, in 1773 he resigned his church preferments, retired to a cottage in the vicinity of his previous residence in Windmill Lane, and resumed the study of the law, which had been one of his early pursuits, alternating the dry technicalities of legal niceties with the more interesting disquisitions of philological points. He there composed his best passport to posterity in the composition of the work just spoken of, and which, strange to say, arose only out of a political squabble. He was a warm opponent of the American war, and suffered fine and imprisonment for a year for an alleged libel upon the king's troops in America. He defended himself with characteristic acuteness and activity, and wrote a letter to the celebrated lawyer, Mr. Dunning, afterwards Lord Ashburton. In 1790 and 1796 he stood for Westminster, but was defeated; and having been implicated in a charge of high treason, for communicating with the corresponding societies of France, he was committed to the Tower, and prosecuted at the Old Bailey, with Hardy and Thelwall, for high treason. The evidence was not sufficient to sustain the indictment, and they were consequently acquitted; but after that, he appears to have been much more cautious respecting the character of his companions, and stood for Old Sarum, where he was elected; but he only sat for one session, a bill being passed to prevent clerical persons from being representatives in parliament. After this he retired into private life, and died, in 1812, at the age of 76, in easy circumstances. The town consists of one long street, paved, and lighted with gas; and by a private act of parliament, the road all the way to London is also lighted with gas. There is a bridge here over the Thames to Kew, the beautiful gardens of which lie just opposite to the town. There is another bridge also, built on the site of a very ancient one over the Brent. There is also an iron-foundry, and a large distillery here. The market is good, and plentifully supplied with provisions. Brentford is within the jurisdiction of the county magistrates, and its internal affairs are regulated by constables appointed at the annual court-leet of the lord of the manor. Petty sessions are held here for the division of New Brentford and the hundred of Isleworth every week. The county elections used formerly to be, and are still, conducted here, although there is no town-hall, but a town-hall is now being erected. The living of Old Brentford is a curacy not in charge, the living being a chapel-of-ease to Ealing. The Independents, Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians, all have chapels here. There is a charity school for boys here, with an income of £14. 7s. 6d., founded in 1703; and a charity school for girls, with an income of £144. 18s. 4d. Indeed, the whole annual income of the New Brentford charity schools for boys, girls, and infants, for which there are separate school-rooms and residences, from endowments and voluntary contributions, is about £230 per annum. There are some handsome villas in the neighbourhood. A workhouse, capable of accommodating 400 persons, has been erected here, at an expence of £9,000, by the poor-law commissioners. The union comprises ten parishes, spread over 29 square miles, in which there is a population of about 33,000 souls. Early on the morning of Sunday, the 17th of January, in 1841, a frightful inundation occurred here, owing to the sudden influx of waters in the Brent from the rapid thaw after a long frost. Boats were rowed up and down the street, and many lives, beside property worth £100,000, were lost. In 1813, some curious organic remains were dug up in the neighbourhood of Old Brentford, consisting chiefly of the bones and teeth of the hippopotamus, the elephant, and some species of deer. The living (St. Lawrence) is a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Middlesex, and diocese of London: pres. net income, £283: patron, Rector of Hanwell: pres. incumbent, G. Harrison, 1843: contains 230 acres: 375 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,174: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> in 1828, £7,418: poor rates in 1837, £1,146.—Market day, Tuesday. Fairs: May 17, 18, and 19; September 12, 13, 14, for horses, cattle, hogs, &c. Boston House is the residence of General Clitherow.

BRENTINGBY. See WYFORDBY WITH BRENTINGBY.

BRENTWOOD, Essex, a chapelry, formerly a market town, in the parish of South Weald, hund<sup>d</sup> of Chafford: 18 miles from London, 11 from Chelmsford.—East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Brentwood station: from Derby, through London, &c., 150 miles.—Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7 a.m. and 12 noon: post closes 11.50 a.m. and 10 p.m.—This place was formerly of much greater importance than it is now, the assizes having been held here. There are, of course, a prison and town-hall, but the necessity for these having passed away, the buildings are now occupied by persons put into possession, who live rent free, on the condition that the structures shall be put into proper repair whenever the assizes are again removed to the town. A market was formerly held here, but has long been discontinued. The church is a very ancient building, founded originally in 1221, through the intervention of David, prior of St. Osyth, for the use of the tenants of a manor belonging to that monastery. There is a free grammar-school here for the boys of Brentwood and the neighbourhood, which was founded in 1537 by Sir Anthony Browne; it has an income of £1,452. 17s. per annum, of which £50 is annually given to the inmates of five almshouses, and the remainder, after defraying the expenses of keeping the school-house and the almshouses in repair, is paid to the master. The school, along with Chelmsford and Maldon, has a claim to an exhibition of £6 a year in Caius and Gonville College, Cambridge, which was founded by Dr. Plume. The Independents and Roman Catholics have places of worship here. The petty sessions for Barstable and Chafford are held here and at Billericay.—The living (St. Thomas a Becket), a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Essex, and diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £2. 10s.: pres. net income, £124: patron, C. T. Tower, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Frederick Boyd, 1847: contains 730 acres: 305 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,362: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,716: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £3,000: poor rates in 1837, £565.—Fairs, July 18, October 15 and 16, for cattle.

BRENZETT (or BRENSETT), Kent, a parish, partly within the liberty of Romney-Marsh, and partly in the lower division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Alocs-bridge, lathe of Shepway, union of Romney-Marsh: 77 miles from London (coach road 67), 4 from Romney, 7 from Rye.—Sou. East. Rail. to Ashford, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 209 miles.—Money orders issued at Romney: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.—The church anciently belonged to the abbey of Guisnes in Artois.—The living (St. Eanswith), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £7. 18s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £94: patron, Rev. T. Brockman: pres. incumbent, E. R. Nares, 1847: contains 1,740 acres: 43 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 228: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £3,603.

BREOCK (St.) CORNWALL, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Pyder, union of St. Columb-Major: 285 miles from London (coach road 232), 1 from Wade-bridge, 8 from Bodmin.—Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol and Exeter to Plymouth, thence 38 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, &c., 299 miles.—Money orders issued at Bodmin: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 2½ p.m.: post closes 9 p.m.—The Camel is navigable from Padstow to Wade-bridge.—The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cornwall, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £41.

10s. 10d.: pres. net income, £859: patron, Sir W. Molesworth: pres. incumbent, W. Molesworth, 1816: contains 7,860 acres: 274 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,733: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,993: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £6,910: poor rates in 1837, £488.

BREREHURST, STAFFORD, a hamlet in the parish of Wolstanton, northern division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Pirehill: 167 miles from London, 2 from Newcastle. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Leicester, by Stoke, to Newcastle, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Burton, Stoke, &c., 46 miles. —Money orders issued at Newcastle-under-Lyne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. —Contains 170 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,518: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,746.

BRERETON WITH SMETHWICK, CHESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Northwich, union of Congleton: 174 miles from London (coach road 165), 3 from Sandbach, 6 from Congleton. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Leicester to Congleton Road station, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Uttoxeter to Congleton Road, &c., 57 miles. —Money orders issued at Sandbach: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. —The parochial charities produce about £23 a year. Petty sessions are held at Brereton-Green, and at Meddewich and Sandbach alternately, for the hundred of Northwich. —The living (St. Oswald), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup>. and diocese of Chester, is valued at £7. 0s. 5d.: pres. net income, £800: patron, Mrs. Edward Royds: pres. incumbent, Edward Royds, 1845: contains 4,240 acres: 105 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 667: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 700: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,584: poor rates in 1837, £466. —N.W., Brereton Park is the seat of J. Howard, Esq.; N.E., Somerford Park—(for which see SOMERFORD.)

BRESSINGHAM (or BRISSINGHAM), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Diss, union of Guiltcross: 101 miles from London (coach road 88), 2 from Diss, 11 from Harleston. —East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. through Haughley Road to Diss, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, and Norwich, to Diss, &c., 191 miles. —Money orders issued at Diss: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. —Here are the remains of a large conduit constructed by Sir Roger de Boyland. —The living (St. John the Baptist), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £15: pres. net income, £455: patron, Duke of Norfolk: pres. incumbent, G. H. C. Bidwell, 1840: contains 2,300 acres: 91 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 647: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 650: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,525: poor rates in 1837, £510.

BRETRY. See BRADBY.

BRETRY. See BRIBBY, YORKSHIRE.

BRETFORTON, WORCESTER, a parish in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Blackenhurst, union of Evesham: 104 miles from London (coach road 96), 4 from Evesham, 10 from Moreton. —Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford and Moreton-le-Marsh to Much Houghton, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Newton to Much Houghton, &c., 91 miles. —Money orders issued at Evesham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. —The living (St. Leonard), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup>. and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £6. 5s.: pres. net income, £182:

patron, Admiral Morris: pres. incumbent, G. S. Morris, 1845: contains 1,530 acres: 95 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 511: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 588: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,574: poor rates in 1837, £65. The impropriate and vicarial tithes, the property of the lay impropriator and the vicar, were commuted in 1765.

BRETHERTON, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Croston, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Leyland: 211 miles from London, 8 from Chorley, 8 from Preston. —Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Warrington to Bretherton, 216 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 116 miles. —A school here, founded in 1654 by James Fletcher, has an income of £112 per annum. —The living is a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Manchester: pres. net income, £150: patron, Rector of Croston: pres. incumbent, R. W. King, 1842: contains 2,360 acres: 136 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 833: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 958: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,851: poor rates in 1837, £255.

BRETENHAM, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Shropham, union of Thetford: 98 miles from London (coach road 84), 3 from Thetford, 9 from Watton. —Nor. and East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. to Thetford, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, and Ely, to Thetford, &c., 129 miles. —Money orders issued at Thetford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. —The living (St. Andrew), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £5. 12s. 6d.: pres. net income, £200: patron, Bishop of Ely: pres. incumbent, F. D. Panter, 1848: contains 2,001 acres: 9 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 62: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,104: poor rates in 1837, £15. —S.W., Schadwell Park.

BRETENHAM, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Cosford: 86 miles from London (coach road 67), 4 from Bildeston: 6 from Stowmarket. —East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. to Stowmarket, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, &c. 218 miles. —Money orders issued at Hadleigh: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. —There are some vestiges of a Roman camp here. —The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory, formery in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Sudbury, and diocese of Norwich, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £11. 3s. 11½d.: pres. net income, £377: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, Samuel Cole, 1798: contains 1,550 acres: 79 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 367: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 422: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,666: poor rates in 1837, £209.

BRETTON, FLINT, a township in the parish of Hawarden, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Mold, North Wales: 189 miles from London, 3 from Chester: 13 from Wrexham. —Money orders issued at Chester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. —Contains 52 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 224. —(Other returns with the parish.)

BRETTON (MONK OF LUNDA), WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Royston, wapentake of Staincross: 188 miles from London (coach road 173), 2 from Barnsley, 12 from Wakefield. —Nor. West. Rail. to Barnsley, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield and Durfield to Barnsley, &c., 56 miles. —Money orders issued at Barnsley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. —Tanner, in speaking of this place, says—Here Adam Fitz-Swain, pretty early in the reign of Henry II., founded a monastery of the Cluniac order, to the honour of St. Mary Magdalene. It was first made subordinate to the priory of St. John of Pontefract, which had, till the dissolution, from this house a small yearly acknowledgment in money. The revenues belonging to the priory and monks of Bretton, amounted, in the 26th of Henry VIII., to £323. 8s. 2d. The site was granted, in the 32d year of Henry VIII., to William Blythman.—The living is a curacy, annexed to the vicarage of Royston, in the diocese of York: pres. net income, £150: patron, Vicar of Royston: pres. incumbent, Alfred Lambert, 1842: contains 2,050 acres: 256 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1719: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,977: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,576: poor rates in 1837, £275.—S., Bretton Park; N., Woolley House.

BRETTON (WEST), WEST RIDING, YORK, a chapelry, partly in the parish of Great Sandall, lower division of the wapentake of Agbrigg, and partly in the parish of Silkstone, wapentake of Staincross: 191 miles from London (coach road 177), 6 from Barnsley, 6 from Wakefield.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Derby, to Barnsley, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield to Barnsley, &c., 69 miles.—Money orders issued at Barnsley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.—The living is a curacy, annexed to Silkstone: contains 2,520 acres: 111 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 564: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 648: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,188: poor rates in 1837, £217.—S., Bretton Park.

BREWARD, ST., (or SIMONWARD), CORNWALL, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Trigg, union of Camelford: 274 miles from London, 7 from Bodmin.—Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol and Exeter to Plymouth, thence 30 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, &c., 289 miles.—Money orders issued at Bodmin: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 1½ p.m.: post closes 11 a.m.—The church is an ancient structure, partly in the Norman, and partly in the later style of English architecture. The land in the parish is very boldly varied, and the summits of Rough Tor and Brown Willey, are considered to be the highest ground in the country. On the head of the former there is a Logan stone, and the remains of an ancient building, supposed to have been a chapel. On the plateau of the latter, which is elevated 1,368 feet above the level of the sea, there is a splendid view of the English and Bristol Channels, and the surrounding country.—The living is a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Cornwall, diocese of Exeter: patron, Dean and Chapter of Exeter: pres. incumbent, T. J. Landon, 1815: contains 9,180 acres: 116 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 724: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 833: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,561: poor rates in 1837, £205.

BREWHAM (NORTH), SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Bruton, union of Wincanton: 125 miles from London (coach road 107), 4 from Bruton, 7 from Frome.—Gt. West. Rail. to Westbury, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Westbury, &c., 184 miles.—Money orders issued at Bath: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.—A chapel formerly stood here, the remains of which have been converted into a barn.—The living is now

annexed to South Brewham: contains 2,310 acres: 75 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 392: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 451: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,833: poor rates in 1837, £372.

BREWHAM (SOUTH), SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Bruton, union of Wincanton: 109 miles from London.—(For access and postal arrangements, see above.)—The church has recently been enlarged. The river Brewe runs through the parish, and gives its name to the village.—The living (St. John the Baptist), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Wells, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £21: pres. net income, £102: patron, Sir H. R. Hoare, Bart.: pres. incumbent, D. Mead, 1841: contains 3,590 acres: 121 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 513: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 590: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,862: poor rates in 1837, £458.

BREWHOUSE-YARD, NOTTINGHAM, an extra-parochial liberty in the southern division of the wapentake of Broxtow, contiguous to Nottingham, —(which see for access, &c.): 125 miles from London, 1 from Nottingham, 13 from Mansfield.—Money orders issued at Nottingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.—Contains 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 110: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,862: poor rates in 1837, £26.

BREWOD, STAFFORD, a parish in the eastern division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Cuttlestone, union of Penkridge: it comprises the township, formerly the market town, of Brewod, the liberties of Coven, Chillington, and Somerford, and the townships of Bishop's Wood, Hide with Wooley, Kiddermore-Green, and Park-Lane: the parish extends a short way into the Shiffall division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Brumtree, Salop: 135 miles from London (coach road 128), 7 from Wolverhampton, 4 from Penkridge.—Nor. West. Rail. through Birmingham to Four Ashes station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 64 miles.—Money orders issued at Wolverhampton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.—The town is neatly built, and delightfully situated on the banks of the river Peak. There is an excellent free school here, founded, it is believed, by Dr. Knightley, though at what particular period does not clearly appear: it had certain funds, which were augmented in 1800, by a bequest of Bishop Hurd, the prelate of Worcester, who, with other distinguished persons, was educated here. Its revenues were further enriched in 1827, by R. Hurd, Esq., of Worcester, who left to it £1,000 in the 4 per cents., one-half of which was to be applied in augmenting the master's stipend, and the other in repairs. The system of education pursued here is strictly classical, but there is an English school in connection with it, and the children of the town are admitted to it unlimitedly. Tanner says of Brewod, that—Here was a priory of white or Cistercian nuns, situate in that part of the parish which is in the county of Salop, dedicated to St. Leonard, as old as the time of Richard I. or John. About the time of the general dissolution, it consisted of six religious, and was valued at £31. 1s. 4d. per annum. The site was granted to William Whorwood, in the 31st year of Henry VIII., and is still called White Ladies, the same that is mentioned in the account of the famous escape of King Charles II. from Worcester fight, being near Boscobel and the royal oak. There was also a small Benedictine

10s. 10d.: pres. net income, £859: patron, Sir W. Molesworth: pres. incumbent, W. Molesworth, 1816: contains 7,860 acres: 274 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,733: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,993: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £6,910: poor rates in 1837, £488.

BREHERHURST, STAFFORD, a hamlet in the parish of Wolstanton, northern division of the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Firehill: 167 miles from London, 2 from Newcastle. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Leicester, by Stoke, to Newcastle, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Burton, Stoke, &c., 46 miles. — Money orders issued at Newcastle-under-Lyne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — Contains 170 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,518: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,746.

BRERETON WITH SMETHWICK, CHESTER, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Northwich, union of Congleton: 174 miles from London (coach road 165), 3 from Sandbach, 6 from Congleton. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Leicester to Congleton Road station, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Uttoxeter to Congleton Road, &c., 57 miles. — Money orders issued at Sandbach: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The parochial charities produce about £23 a year. Petty sessions are held at Brereton-Green, and at Middlewich and Sandbach alternately, for the hundred of Northwich. — The living (St. Oswald), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester, is valued at £7. 0s. 5d.: pres. net income, £800: patron, Mrs. Edward Royds: pres. incumbent, Edward Royds, 1845: contains 4,240 acres: 105 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 667: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 700: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £5,584: poor rates in 1837, £466. — N.W., Brereton Park is the seat of J. Howard, Esq.; N.E., Bomerford Park — (for which see SOMERFORD.)

BRESSINGHAM (or BRISSINGHAM), NORFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Diss, union of Guiltcross: 101 miles from London (coach road 88), 2 from Diss, 11 from Harleston. — East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Haughley Road to Diss, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, and Norwich, to Diss, &c., 191 miles. — Money orders issued at Diss: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — Here are the remains of a large conduit constructed by Sir Roger de Boyland. — The living (St. John the Baptist), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £15: pres. net income, £455: patron, Duke of Norfolk: pres. incumbent, G. H. C. Bidwell, 1840: contains 2,300 acres: 91 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 647: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 650: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £3,525: poor rates in 1837, £510.

BRETRY. See BRADBY.

BRETRY. See BIRKBY, YORKSHIRE.

BRETFORTON, WORCESTER, a parish in the upper division of the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Blackenhurst, union of Evesham: 104 miles from London (coach road 96), 4 from Evesham, 10 from Moreton. — Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford and Moreton-le-Marsh to Much Houghton, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Newton to Much Houghton, &c., 91 miles. — Money orders issued at Evesham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — The living (St. Leonard), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £6. 5s.: pres. net income, £182:

patron, Admiral Morris: pres. incumbent, G. S. Morris, 1845: contains 1,530 acres: 95 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 511: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 588: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £2,574: poor rates in 1837, £65. The impropriate and vicarial tithes, the property of the lay impropriator and the vicar, were commuted in 1765.

BRETHERTON, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Croston, hund<sup>d</sup>. of Leyland: 211 miles from London, 8 from Chorley, 8 from Preston. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Warrington to Bretherton, 216 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 116 miles. — A school here, founded in 1654 by James Fletcher, has an income of £112 per annum. — The living is a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Manchester: pres. net income, £150: patron, Rector of Croston: pres. incumbent, R. W. King, 1842: contains 2,360 acres: 136 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 833: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 958: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £4,851: poor rates in 1837, £255.

BRETENHAM, NORFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Shropham, union of Thetford: 98 miles from London (coach road 84), 3 from Thetford, 9 from Watton. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Thetford, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, and Ely, to Thetford, &c., 129 miles. — Money orders issued at Thetford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. — The living (St. Andrew), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £5. 12s. 6d.: pres. net income, £200: patron, Bishop of Ely: pres. incumbent, F. D. Panter, 1848: contains 2,001 acres: 9 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 62: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £1,104: poor rates in 1837, £15. — S.W., Schadwell Park.

BRETENHAM, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. and union of Cosford: 86 miles from London (coach road 67), 4 from Bildeston: 6 from Stowmarket. — East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Stowmarket, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, &c. 218 miles. — Money orders issued at Hadleigh: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. — There are some vestiges of a Roman camp here. — The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Sudbury, and diocese of Norwich, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £11. 3s. 11½d.: pres. net income, £377: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, Samuel Cole, 1798: contains 1,550 acres: 79 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 367: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 422: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £1,666: poor rates in 1837, £209.

BRETTON, FLINT, a township in the parish of Hawarden, hund<sup>d</sup>. of Mold, North Wales: 189 miles from London, 3 from Chester: 13 from Wrexham. — Money orders issued at Chester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — Contains 52 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 224. — (Other returns with the parish.)

BRETTON (MONK OF LUNDA), WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Royston, wapentake of Staincross: 188 miles from London (coach road 173), 2 from Barnsley, 12 from Wakefield. — Nor. West. Rail. to Barnsley, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield and Dursfield to Barnsley, &c., 56 miles. — Money orders issued at Barnsley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — Tanner, in speaking of this place, says—Here Adam Fitz-Swain, pretty early in the reign of Henry II., founded a monastery of the Cluniac order, to the honour of St. Mary Magdalene. It was first made subordinate to the priory of St. John of Pontefract, which had, till the dissolution, from this house a small yearly acknowledgment in money. The revenues belonging to the priory and monks of Bretton, amounted, in the 26th of Henry VIII., to £323. 8s. 2d. The site was granted, in the 32d year of Henry VIII., to William Blythman.—The living is a curacy, annexed to the vicarage of Royston, in the diocese of York: pres. net income, £150: patron, Vicar of Royston: pres. incumbent, Alfred Lambert, 1842: contains 2,050 acres: 256 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1719: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,977: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,576: poor rates in 1837, £275.—S., Bretton Park; N., Woolley House.

BRETTON (WEST), WEST RIDING, YORK, a chapelry, partly in the parish of Great Sandall, lower division of the wapentake of Agbrigg, and partly in the parish of Silkstone, wapentake of Staincross: 191 miles from London (coach road 177), 6 from Barnsley, 6 from Wakefield.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Derby, to Barnsley, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield to Barnsley, &c., 69 miles.—Money orders issued at Barnsley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.—The living is a curacy, annexed to Silkstone: contains 2,520 acres: 111 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 564: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 648: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,188: poor rates in 1837, £217.—S., Bretton Park.

BREWARD, ST., (or SIMONWARD), CORNWALL, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Trigg, union of Camel-ford: 274 miles from London, 7 from Bodmin.—Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol and Exeter to Plymouth, thence 30 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, &c., 289 miles.—Money orders issued at Bodmin: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1½ p.m.: post closes 11 a.m.—The church is an ancient structure, partly in the Norman and partly in the later style of English architecture. The land in the parish is very boldly varied, and the summits of Rough Tor and Brown Willey, are considered to be the highest ground in the country. On the head of the former there is a Logan stone, and the remains of an ancient building, supposed to have been a chapel. On the plateau of the latter, which is elevated 1,368 feet above the level of the sea, there is a splendid view of the English and Bristol Channels, and the surrounding country.—The living is a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Cornwall, diocese of Exeter: patron, Dean and Chapter of Exeter: pres. incumbent, T. J. Landon, 1815: contains 9,180 acres: 116 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 724: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 833: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,561: poor rates in 1837, £206.

BREWHAM (NORTH), SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bruton, union of Wincanton: 125 miles from London (coach road 107), 4 from Bruton, 7 from Frome.—Gt. West. Rail. to Westbury, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Westbury, &c., 184 miles.—Money orders issued at Bath: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.—A chapel formerly stood here, the remains of which have been converted into a barn.—The living is now

annexed to South Brewham: contains 2,310 acres: 75 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 392: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 451: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,833: poor rates in 1837, £372.

BREWHAM (SOUTH), SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bruton, union of Wincanton: 109 miles from London.—(For access and postal arrangements, see above.)—The church has recently been enlarged. The river Brewe runs through the parish, and gives its name to the village.—The living (St. John the Baptist), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Wells, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £21: pres. net income, £102: patron, Sir H. R. Hoare, Bart.: pres. incumbent, D. Mead, 1841: contains 3,590 acres: 121 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 513: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 590: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,862: poor rates in 1837, £458.

BREWHOUSE-YARD, NOTTINGHAM, an extra-parochial liberty in the southern division of the wapentake of Broxtow, contiguous to Nottingham, —(which see for access, &c.): 125 miles from London, 1 from Nottingham, 13 from Mansfield.—Money orders issued at Nottingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.—Contains 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 110: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,862: poor rates in 1837, £26.

BREWOD, STAFFORD, a parish in the eastern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Cuttlestone, union of Penkridge: it comprises the township, formerly the market town, of Brewod, the liberties of Coven, Chillington, and Somerford, and the townships of Bishop's Wood, Hide with Wooley, Kiddermore-Green, and Park-Lane: the parish extends a short way into the Shiffnall division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bruns-tree, Salop: 135 miles from London (coach road 128), 7 from Wolverhampton, 4 from Penkridge.—Nor. West. Rail. through Birmingham to Four Ashes station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 64 miles.—Money orders issued at Wolverhampton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.—The town is neatly built, and delightfully situated on the banks of the river Peak. There is an excellent free school here, founded, it is believed, by Dr. Knightley, though at what particular period does not clearly appear: it had certain funds, which were augmented in 1800, by a bequest of Bishop Hurd, the prelate of Worcester, who, with other distinguished persons, was educated here. Its revenues were further enriched in 1827, by R. Hurd, Esq., of Worcester, who left to it £1,000 in the 4 per cents., one-half of which was to be applied in augmenting the master's stipend, and the other in repairs. The system of education pursued here is strictly classical, but there is an English school in connection with it, and the children of the town are admitted to it unlimitedly. Tanner says of Brewod, that—Here was a priory of white or Cistercian nuns, situate in that part of the parish which is in the county of Salop, dedicated to St. Leonard, as old as the time of Richard I. or John. About the time of the general dissolution, it consisted of six religious, and was valued at £31. 1s. 4d. per annum. The site was granted to William Whorwood, in the 31st year of Henry VIII., and is still called White Ladies, the same that is mentioned in the account of the famous escape of King Charles II. from Worcester fight, being near Bosobel and the royal oak. There was also a small Benedictine nunnery, situate in that part of the parish which is in the county of Stafford, in being in the time of Richard I., and perhaps before, dedicated to the blessed Virgin Mary, valued at but £11. 4s. 6d. clear, yet there were five nuns. It was granted, in the 30th year of Henry VIII., to Thomas Gifford. This was called the Black Ladies of Brewood. The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stafford, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £6. 17s. 8d.: pres. net income, £607: patron, Dean of Lichfield: pres. incumbent, A. B. Haden, 1830: contains 11,950 acres: 699 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,641: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 4,187: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £16,428: poor rates in 1837, £968. Market day, Friday. Fairs: May 9, and September 19, for horses and cattle.

BRIAN'S-PUDDLE. See AFF-PUDDLE.

BRIAVELL'S (St.), GLOUCESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of St. Briavell's, on the eastern bank of the river Wye: 123 miles from London (coach road 128), 7 from Chepstowe, 8 from Blakeney. Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Stonehouse, &c., 123 miles. Money orders issued at Chepstow: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. The church is a small cruciform edifice, founded certainly in the Norman, if not in Saxon times. Edward II. granted a charter for a weekly market here, and also the privilege to the inhabitants of passing toll free all over the kingdom, a right which has now become obsolete; the market also has long since ceased. A castle was erected here in the reign of Henry I. as a frontier defence against the Welsh, but only a small portion of the structure remains, and that is used for holding the courts of the hundred, another part being appropriated as a prison for debtors and delinquents in the forest. The moat still remains, and also some vestiges of Offa's dyke. The Duke of Beaufort, as lord of the manor, is constable, or governor, of St. Briavell's Castle. A court is held here every third Monday, except during the vacations, for regulating all manner of disputes between the miners in the neighbouring coal-works; the suits cognizable being actions for debt or injury, in the shape of ordinary plaints. The living is a curacy annexed to the vicarage of Lydney: contains 4,710 acres: 224 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,287: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,480: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,894: poor rates in 1837, £267.

BRICETT (or BRISSETT), (GREAT), SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Bosmere and Claydon: 79 miles from London (coach road 66), 4 from Bildeston, 5 from Needham. East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Colchester to Claydon station, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 211 miles. Money orders issued at Hadleigh: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. Tanner says of this village—About A.D. 1110, Ralph Fitz-Brien erected a priory here for canons of the order of St. Austin, to the honour of St. Leonard. It was subordinate to the monastery of Nobiliac, in the diocese of Limoges, and duchy of Berry. After the suppression of these alien priories, this, with all its lands, was given by King Henry VI. to King's College, Cambridge. The living (St. Mary and St. Lawrence) is a perpetual curacy not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, and diocese of Norwich:

pres. net income, £50: patrons, Fellows of King's College, Cambridge, and Rector: pres. incumbent, Robt. W. Bacon, 1846: contains 914 acres: 33 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 214: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,162. 17s. 6d.: poor rates in 1837, £239. Fair: July 15, for butter, sheep, and toys.

BRICKENDON, HERTFORD, a parish in the liberty of All Saints, Hertford, and hun<sup>d</sup> of Hertford: 29 miles from London (coach road 20), 3 from Hertford, 3 from Hoddesden. Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Hertford, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 161 miles. Money orders issued at Hertford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. In their principal report, the poor-law commissioners say of this place, that the parish, having a population of 765 in 1831, and being at that time overgrown with pauperism, determined on a struggle to emancipate itself, some time before the labours of the commissioners of inquiry had drawn public attention toward the peculiar means for effecting such an object. They built a workhouse capable of holding seventy inmates, divided, both as to building and yard, into two compartments, and began their new system in 1833. At that time the amount of relief given to persons on the pension-list, for one quarter short of a week, was £67, the number of individuals relieved being forty-five and upwards. In 1835, and taking the corresponding quarter of the year, the quarterly pension amounted to £17. 11s., and the number of recipients of out-door relief was only twelve. With regard to the able-bodied, as much as £107 appears to have been spent in one year in finding employment for men out of work; in 1834, the expense incurred on this account was not more than £28. In a printed abstract of Easter accounts up to 1835, the saving is stated as follows:—Average expenditure during the preceding four years, £665. 15s. 8½d.; expenditure for the past year, £380. 6s. 4½d.; saving during the past year, £275. 9s. 4d. Contains 1,690 acres: 147 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 757: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 870: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,106: poor rates in 1837, £318.

BRICKHILL (Bow), BUCKINGHAM, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Newport, union of Newport-Pagnell: 50 miles from London (coach road 44), 2 from Fenny-Stratford, 3 from Woburn. Nor. West. Rail. to Bletchley, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Bletchley, &c., 86 miles. Money orders issued at Fenny-Stratford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. There is an endowment here for the instruction of children, and for the benefit of the poor, left, in 1633, by Mr. Charles Purrett. The other parochial charities produce about £16 a year. The living (All Saints), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Buckingham, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £15. 0s. 2½d.: pres. net income, £370: patron, Queen's College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, J. M. Jackson, 1840: contains 1,380 acres: 112 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 566: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 651: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,415: poor rates in 1837, £183. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1790.

BRICKHILL (GREAT), BUCKINGHAM, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Newport, union of Newport-Pagnell: 42 miles from London. (For access and postal arrangements, see above.) The Baptists have a chapel here. The parochial charities produce £54 a year.---The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Buckingham, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £18. 2s. 11d.: pres. net income, £425: patron, P. D. P. Duncombe: pres. incumbent, Sir H. Foulis, Bart., 1834: contains 1,800 acres: 150 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 721: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 829: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,633: poor rates in 1837, £317. Certain great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1771.

BRICKHILL (LITTLE), BUCKINGHAM, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Newport, union of Newport-Pagnell: 41 miles from London.---(For access and postal arrangements, see above.)---There is a school here, which has an endowment of £5 a year. The other parochial charities produce about £26 a year. This was formerly a place of much greater importance than it is now; and so late as the reign of Elizabeth, there was a market, and the assizes were held here.---The living (the Virgin Mary), a perpetual curacy, is valued at £29. 10s.: pres. net income, £119: patron, Archbishop of Canterbury: pres. incumbent, Edward Jones, 1814: contains 1,360 acres: 104 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 563: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 647: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,132: poor rates in 1837, £266. The great and small tithes, the property of the Archbishop of Canterbury and the vicar, were commuted in 1796.---Fairs: May 12, and Oct. 29, for cattle.

BRICKLEHAMPTON, WORCESTER, a chapelry in the parish of St. Andrew, Pershore, upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Pershore---(which see for access, &c.): 108 miles from London, 3 from Pershore, 7 from Tewkesbury.---Money orders issued at Pershore: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.---The living is a curacy annexed to the vicarage of St. Andrew, Pershore: contains 810 acres: 35 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 173: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,477: poor rates in 1837, £63. The great and small tithes, the property of the lay impropriator and the vicar, were commuted in 1774.

BRIDE (St., MAJOR), GLAMORGAN, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Ogmore, union of Bridgend and Cowbridge, South Wales: it comprises the hamlets of St. Bride, Lapha, Southerndown, and Ynysawdre: 169 miles from London (coach road 184), 3 from Bridgend, 7 from Cowbridge.---Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Weston-super-Mare, thence across the Bristol Channel to Penarth, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, &c., 184 miles.---Money orders issued at Bridgend: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. at noon: post closes 12½ p.m.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, with the curacy of Wick annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Llandaff, is valued at £9. 15s. 5½d.: pres. net income, £176: patron, R. Tuberville; pres. incumbent, C. R. Knight, 1843: contains 194 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 914: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,051: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £4,023: poor rates in 1837, £407.

BRIDE (St., MINOR), GLAMORGAN, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Newcastle, union of Bridgend and Cowbridge: 180 miles from London, 2 from Bridgend.---(For access and postal arrangements, see above.)---There is a coal mine in the parish.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the

archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Llandaff, is valued at £5. 3s. 6½d.: pres. net income, £176: patron, Earl of Dunraven: pres. incumbent, Edward Roberts, 1844: contains 75 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 472: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 542: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £911: poor rates in 1837, £86.

BRIDE (St., WENTLOOG), MONMOUTH, a parish in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wentloog, union of Newport, on the shore of the Bristol Channel: 146 miles from London (coach road 153), 4 from Newport, 7 from Cardiff.---Gt. West. Rail. to Bristol, thence across the Bristol Channel, 28 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Bristol, &c., 161 miles.---Money orders issued at Newport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.---There is an Independent chapel, the congregation of which was formed in 1826.---The living, a vicarage, with the curacy of Coedkernew annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Llandaff, is valued at £4. 18s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £120: patron, Bishop of Llandaff: pres. incumbent, M. Powell, 1833: contains 2,180 acres: 39 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 247: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,593: poor rates in 1837, £141.

BRIDE (St., NETHERWENT), MONMOUTH, a parish in the lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Caldicott, union of Chepstow: it includes the hamlet of Landevenny: 149 miles from London (coach road 140), 6 from Caerleon, 7 from Newport.---Gt. West. Rail. to Bristol, thence across the Channel, 30 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Bristol, &c., 164 miles.---Money orders issued at Newport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Llandaff, is valued at £6. 13s. 3d.: pres. net income, £178: patron, T. and J. Perry, Esqrs.: pres. incumbent, C. Jesson, 1829: contains 1,190 acres: 35 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 179: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £644: poor rates in 1837, £42.

BRIDE'S (St.), PEMBROKE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Roose, union of Haverfordwest, South Wales, on the southern side of the dangerous bay of St. Bride, in St. George's Channel: 259 miles from London (coach road 275), 9 from Haverfordwest, 3 from Hasgard.---Gt. West. Rail. to Bristol, thence across the Bristol Channel, 140 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Bristol, &c., 174 miles.---Money orders issued at Haverfordwest: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of St. David's, is valued at £15. 12s.: pres. net income, £183: patrons, Sir W. P. W. Phillips, and Mary B. Allen, alternately: pres. incumbent, William Allen, 1825: contains 25 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 178: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,390: poor rates in 1837, £146.

BRIDE'S (St., SUPER ELY), GLAMORGAN, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Dinas Powis, union of Cardiff, on the river Ely: 156 miles from London (coach road 167), 7 from Cardiff, 5 from Llandaff.---Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Weston-super-Mare, thence across the Bristol Channel to Cardiff, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Weston, &c., 171 miles.---Money orders issued at Cardiff: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 1 p.m.---The living is a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, united to that of Michaelston-

super-Ely: pres. net income, £87: patron, L. Traherne, Esq.: pres. incumbent, L. A. Nichols, 1837: contains 28 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 129: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £828: poor rates in 1837, £36.

BRIDEKIRK, CUMBERLAND, a parish in the ward of Allerdale below Derwent: it comprises the townships of Bridekirk, Great and Little Broughton, Dovenby, Papcastle with Gost, Ribton, and Tallentire: 342 miles from London (coach road 306), 2 from Cockermouth, 6 from Maryport.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Carlisle, thence by rail to Cockermouth, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 242 miles.---Money orders issued at Cockermouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---The church is a very ancient edifice, and contains a curious carved font, believed by Camden to have been brought from the Roman station at Papcastle. There is an inscription upon it in Saxon and Runic characters, the purport of which has been translated by Bishop Nicholson to the following effect:—Here was Er kard converted, and to this man's example were the Danes brought. One of the schools here has a small endowment, and there are also ten endowed almshouses. The other parochial charities produce about £8 a year. Freestone is abundantly found in the parish, and there are also several quarries of limestone. Flax-dressing, to some considerable extent, has been carried on in the parish. Sir Joseph Williamson, the secretary of state to Charles I., and Thomas Tickell, the poet, were both natives of Bridekirk. The latter was born in 1686, and, after his scholastic and academic education, became a fellow of Queen's College, Cambridge. Through the friendship of Addison, he was made under-secretary of state, and afterwards appointed secretary to the lords justices of Ireland. Several of his papers were inserted in the Spectator, besides which, he was the author of 'The Prospect of Peace,' 'The Royal Progress,' and other poems. He died in 1740.---The living (St. Bridget), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £10. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £220: patron, Mrs. Dykes: pres. incumbent, Joseph B. Steele, 1848: contains 9,270 acres: 405 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,112: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,429: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £10,232: poor rates in 1837, £472.

BRIDEKIRK, CUMBERLAND, a township in the above parish.---(For access and postal arrangements, see above.)---Contains 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 128: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £963: poor rates in 1837, £30.

BRIDELL, PEMBROKE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Kilgerran, union of Cardigan, South Wales: 233 miles from London (coach road 242), 3 from Cardigan, 3 from Whitchurch.---Gt. West. Rail. through Swindon to Stonehouse, thence 130 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Stonehouse, &c., 233 miles.---Money orders issued at Cardigan: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cardigan, and diocese of St. David's, is valued at £9: pres. net income, £110: patron, Freeholders of the Parish: pres. incumbent, J. P. George, 1833: contains 83 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 404: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 465: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,070: poor rates in 1837, £106.

BRIDESTOWE, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Liffon, union of Oakhampton: 224 miles from London (coach road 201), 6 from Oakhampton, 12 from Launceston.---Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Exeter, thence 30 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Exeter, &c., 239 miles.---Money orders issued at Oakhampton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---A Baptist congregation was formed here in 1832.---The living (St. Bridget), a rectory, with the curacy of Sourton annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Totness, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £32. 17s. 11d.: pres. net income, £424: patron, Bishop of Exeter: pres. incumbent, Hinds Howell, 1846: contains 5,170 acres: 156 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,128: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,297: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,804: poor rates in 1837, £335.

BRIDFORD (or BRIDGEFORD), DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wonford, union of St. Thomas: 204 miles from London (coach road 173), 5 from Chudleigh, 3 from Moreton.---Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Exeter, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Exeter, &c., 219 miles.---Money orders issued at Chudleigh: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3¼ p.m.---The living (St. Thomas à Becket), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £13. 15s.: pres. net income, £305: patron, Sir L. V. Palk, Bart.: pres. incumbent, Henry Palk, 1846: contains 4,090 acres: 79 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 560: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 644: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,193: poor rates in 1837, £291.

BRIDGE (in old deeds, BRIDGE), KENT, a parish in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bridge and Petham, lathe of St. Augustine, union of Bridge: 84 miles from London (coach road 58), 3 from Canterbury, 12 from Dover.---Sou. East. Rail. to Canterbury, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 216 miles.---Money orders issued at Canterbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---A workhouse has been built here by the poor-law commissioners, capable of accommodating 500 persons, at an expense of £5,000. The Bridge poor-law union comprehends twenty-two parishes, embracing an area of 62 square miles, and comprising a population of about 11,000 souls.---The living (St. Peter), a vicarage, not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, consolidated with the vicarage of Patricbourne, and having jointly a pres. net income of £350: patron, Marquis of Conyngham: pres. incumbent, J. Stevenson, 1846: contains 1,280 acres: 97 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 817: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 939: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,667: poor rates in 1837, £218.---S., Bourn Place is the seat of Matthew Bell, Esq.

BRIDGEFORD (EAST), (or BRIDGEFORD-ON-THE-HILL), NOTTINGHAM, a parish in the northern division of the wapentake of Bingham, union of Bingham: 138 miles from London (coach road 127), 8 from Nottingham, 10 from Newark.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Leicester to Nottingham, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, &c., 24 miles.---Money orders issued at Nottingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.---The parochial charities produce about £10. 14s. per annum. The south-east border of the parish is crossed by the Roman fosseroad, which leads from Lincoln to Leicester.---The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Nottingham, and diocese of York, now in the diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £19. 6s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £752: patron, Magdalen College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, R. W. Hutchins, 1828: contains 1,910 acres: 179 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,110: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,277: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,252: poor rates in 1837, £286. The great and small tithes, &c., the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1796.

BRIDGEFORD (WEST), NOTTINGHAM, a parish, partly in the southern division of the wapentake of Bingham, and partly in the northern division of the wapentake of Rushcliff, union of Basford: 131 miles from London (coach road 123), 1 from Nottingham, 7 from Bingham.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Leicester to Nottingham, thence 1 mile: from Derby- to Nottingham, &c., 17 miles.---Money orders issued at Nottingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---There is a daily school here, with an endowment of £15 a year. The parish is intersected by the Nottingham and Grantham Canal.---The living (St. Giles), a rectory, comprising the hamlet of Gameton, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Nottingham, and diocese of York, now in the diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £16. 14s. 2d.: pres. net income, £588: patron, J. Musters, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. Musters: contains 1,720 acres: 59 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 332: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 382: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,452: poor rates in 1837, £183.

BRIDGEFORD. See BRIDFORD.

BRIDGEHAM, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Shropham, union of Guiltcross: 101 miles from London (coach road 86), 3 from East Harling, 6 from Thetford.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Cambridge to Thetford, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough to Thetford, &c., 142 miles.---Money orders issued at Thetford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The parochial charities produce about £16 a year.---The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £11. 1s. ¾d.: pres. net income, £388: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, Thomas Currie, 1839: contains 2,330 acres: 37 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 328: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 377: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,870: poor rates in 1837, £124.

BRIDGEHAMPTON, SOMERSET, a tithing in the parish of Yeovilton, hun<sup>d</sup> of Somerton---(which see for access, &c.): 119 miles from London, 2 from Ilchester, 6 from Yeovil.---Money orders issued at Ilchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---Contains 16 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 87.

BRIDGEMERE, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Wybunbury, hun<sup>d</sup> of Nantwich---(which see for access, &c.): 165 miles from London, 4 from Nantwich, 14 from Tarporley.---Money orders issued at Nantwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---Contains 850 acres: 41 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 219: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,065: poor rates in 1837, £102.

BRIDGEN. See BEXLEY.

BRIDGEND, LINCOLN, a hamlet in the parish of Horbling, wapentake of Aveland, parts of Kesteven.---Tanner says of Bridgend---Here was a Gilbertine priory, founded, in the time of King John, by Godwyn, a rich citizen of London, to the honour of our blessed Saviour. It was valued at £5. 1s. 11d. per annum, and, as part of Sempringham, was granted to Edward Lord Clinton, in the 32d year of Henry VIII.

BRIDGEND, GLAMORGAN, a town in the parish of Coyty, and hun<sup>d</sup> of Newcastle, South Wales: 181 miles from London, 8 from Cowbridge, 17 from Neath.---Money orders issued at Cowbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12½ p.m.: post closes 11½ a.m.---Bridgend is a straggling place, on the banks of the river Ogmore, over which there is a stone bridge; it is divided into three parts, called Oldcastle, Newcastle, and Bridgend. The county member was sometimes elected in the town-hall here, in which petty sessions for the hundreds of Newcastle and Ogmore are now held, and it is still one of the polling-places for the county elections. There are extensive woollen manufactories here. The Independents have a chapel, the congregation of which was formed in 1808. A work-house has been erected here by the poor-law commissioners, capable of containing 200 persons, at an expense of £4,400, for the accommodation of the districts of Bridgend and Cowbridge, the union of which comprehends fifty-two parishes, with a population of about 18,000 souls. There is a railway here from Bridgend to the Duffryn-Llynvi line, near Cefn Gribbwr, in the parish of Laleston, the length of which is about four miles and a half, with a rise of 150 feet.---(Pop<sup>n</sup> and other returns included in the parish.)---Market day, Saturday. Fairs: November 17, and Holy Thursday, for cattle, sheep, hogs.

BRIDGENORTH, SALOP, a borough and market town, situated in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Stottesden, union of Bridgenorth, but possessing separate jurisdiction: 141 miles from London (coach road 139), 22 from Shrewsbury.---Nor. West. Rail. to Wolverhampton, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 57 miles.---Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---Bridgenorth stands in a delightful situation on the river Severn, by which it is divided into two parts, called the upper and lower towns, which communicate by means of a bridge of three arches. The upper town, which comprises the chief portions of the place, is built on a steep rocky acclivity, which rises almost perpendicularly on the spot where the remains of the castle stands, to the height of 180 feet above the bosom of the river. Its name has been variously spelt, and by some antiquaries is supposed to have been only Bridge, or Brugg, the appendage of "north" being afterwards added. In speaking of this circumstance, Leland says---The name of Bridgenorth is but of late times usurped, for in all antient records it is called Bridge; and Speed, in a marginal note in his history, says that it was in old times called Bruge. Bishop Gibson supposes it to be the "Ghat-bridge" of the Saxon chronicle, where the Danes built a castle in 896; and some historians, who probably entertained the same idea, called it Brugge, which was most likely its original name, and that the addition of "north" was added when other bridges came to be built over the Severn, towards the south. As regards its origin, however, there appears to be little doubt, all the best authorities ascribing its foundation to Ethelfleda, daughter of the Great Alfred, and sister of King Edward the Elder, and widow of Ethelbert, Earl of Mercia, who, if we are to rely upon the testimony of Henry of Huntingdon in these verses, must in those troublous times have been the worthy daughter of a noble sire. He says—

"Oh Ethleda potens! O terror virgo virorum!
Victrix natura, nomine digna viri!
Te quo splendidior fores, natura puellam,
Te prohibuit scilicet nomen habere viri.
Te mutare decet sed solum nomina sexus,
Tu regina potens, rex que trophæa parans,
Tum nec Casare! tantum meruere triumphum,
Casare splendidior vorge, virago, vale!"

The castle, which must have been built shortly after her time, fell into a state of decay, and was rebuilt by Sir Robert de Belesme, Earl of Shrewsbury, in the reign of Henry I. It was, during subsequent ages, frequently the scene of conflict, either in behalf of the tumultuary barons against their sovereign, or in consequence of the conflicts among the great feudatories of the period. During the great civil war between Charles and his parliament, Bridgenorth was held, and bravely too, for the king, sustaining, in 1646, a severe siege for three weeks; and when at last the republican forces obtained possession of the town, the governor retired to the castle, after setting fire to the buildings, by which a third of them, including one of the churches, was burnt to the ground. He was, however, at length compelled to surrender, but obtained honourable conditions for himself and the garrison. The castle was then dismantled; but such was the solidity and strength of the masonry, that one portion of it, which seems likely to last for an indefinite period, is as much as eighteen feet out of the perpendicular, and yet shows no considerable fissure. Camden says—During a siege in the time of Henry I., Sir Ralph de Pitchford, one of the king's commanders, behaved so gallantly that Henry gave him an estate called the Little Brugge, now the low town, on condition of finding dry wood for the king's great chamber in the castle, as often as he should come there; and also of finding a horseman with his furniture (harbergerum) in Wales, to be paid by the king; which, it was held at the assizes in 1291, the lord of the manor might perform, the dry wood being supplied by the tenants. A signal instance of loyal devotion was shown here during the siege of the castle by Henry II. in 1156-7: Hubert de St. Clair, governor of Colchester, seeing an archer aiming at his sovereign, stepped before him and received the arrow in his own breast, through which he immediately died. There was a monastery here, founded by Robert or Roger de Belesme, of which Bishop Tanner says—Roger of Montgomery or Belesme, Earl of Shrewsbury, in the time of William Rufus, built at Quatford, in this county, a church, or chapel, dedicated to St. Mary Magdalene, and endowed it with great possessions, at the desire of Adelaïsa, his second wife, who made a vow thereof in a tempest at sea, on her first coming to England. But this foundation was soon removed or annexed to Bridgenorth, where, in the castle, the said Earl Roger began, and his son

Robert de Bellesme finished, a collegiate church, of a dean and six prebendaries, to the honour also of St. Mary Magdalene. This continued, and was accounted as a royal free chapel, till the general dissolution. It was granted, in the 21st year of Queen Elizabeth, to Sir Christopher Hatton. The aspect of Bridgenorth, although the town is not large, is somewhat imposing, and its position so good, that Charles I. was wont to say that it was the most delightful place in his dominions. Crowning the summit of the rock at the southern end of the town, there are the remains of the tower of the old castle spoken of above, and near to them the church of St. Mary Magdalen, the residue, or rather successor of the conventual institution, the particulars of which Tanner details; and at the northern extremity of the height, the venerable church of St. Leonard stands out conspicuously from the surrounding objects, with its embattled tower and lofty pinnacles. About midway between the churches, and constituting a very striking object in the scene, is the reservoir, a capacious tank, supported by pillars, which at a distance give it the appearance of a noble portico. On the side of the rock rising from the river, there are several tiers of handsome modern houses, placed upon terraces, one above another, so that the foundations of one row are above the chimneys of another, until they reach the summit. These are intermixed with caverns, natural and artificial, in the solid rock, many of which have been converted into rude dwellings, and are interspersed with shrubberies, gardens, and lofty forest trees. The means of intercourse between the higher regions of the upper town, and the bridge for foot passengers, is by several almost perpendicular flights of steps, formed of pebbles and secured by iron-work, which lead directly into the heart of the town; but a more gentle descent winds round the declivity of the rock, which is the access for carriages, and a wide road for carts to the several quays has been constructed on the north side of the bridge. There is a walk round the top of the hill, made secure by iron railings, which commands a most extensive and beautiful prospect of the surrounding country, rich in all the scenery of an affluent cultivation, well-watered meadows, wood-crowned eminences, and picturesque rocks. Both in the upper and lower town, the streets contain many handsome modern houses of the highest respectability; and in the latter especially, is an antique structure in the Elizabethian style, called Canhall, where Prince Rupert resided in 1642, and whence he addressed a letter to the jury empannelled to choose the town officers, entreating them to select such men as were well affected to his majesty's service. The town is for the most part paved, and its inhabitants are supplied with water partly raised from the river by machinery, and poured into the reservoir, from which, through pipes, it is conveyed into the several rooms of the houses, and partly from springs at Oldbury, at the southern end of the place, whence it is conveyed to several conduits in different parts of the town. The corporation hold the Severn works in trust for a thousand years, for the benefit of the inhabitants, and the means for keeping them in repair are obtained by a general rate. The borough is divided into the two parishes of St. Mary Magdalen and St. Leonard, the livings of which are perpetual curacies, not in charge, exempt from visitation, and are now under the patronage of Thomas Whitmore, Esq. That of St. Mary's is rated in the parliamentary returns at £115. 19s., but the gross income is £268. The present church is a handsome edifice in the Grecian style, erected in 1792; it was originally exempted from ecclesiastical jurisdiction by King John, but was made parochial in the fourth year of Edward III. Its incumbent is the Rev. W. R. Marshall, who was inducted in 1834. St. Leonard's is a Gothic structure, now much defaced; it was formerly collegiate, and was erected in 1448, on the site of a still more ancient church; it is rated in the parliamentary returns at £83, but the living is really worth £308 per annum; the present incumbent is the Rev. G. Bellett, who was inducted in 1835. The public library in the upper town, founded by Mr. Stackhouse, is a handsome building, and now contains upwards of 4,000 volumes, which the inhabitants can use on the payment of a small annual contribution. There is a free grammar-school here for the sons of the burgesses, founded in 1503 by the incorporation, which is supported partly by endowments, and partly by contributions; its income is about £160 a year. In 1689, a gentleman named Canswell established eighteen exhibitions at Christ Church College, Oxford, by the gift of an estate which now produces £1,500 a year. They are all appropriated to the Shropshire grammar-schools—Shrewsbury has four of them; Bridgenorth, three; Shiffnall, three; Wem, two; and Donnington, in Wrexeter, two. There are almshouses here for the widows of twelve burgesses, which are endowed with £158 per annum, under the direction of the corporation. There is also an almshouse in the churchyard of St. Leonard's, which was founded in 1687 by the Rev. Francis Palmer of Sandley, in Bedfordshire, for the relief of ten poor widows, each of whom receives £10 a year. The other parochial charities produce about £196 a year upon an average. The Independents and Baptists each have chapels here; the congregation of the former was formed in 1711, and of the latter in 1704. Bridgenorth is a place of very considerable trade, upwards of three-fourths of the inhabitants being returned as engaged in trade, and the manufacture of iron tools, stockings, and cloth. There was, a few years since, a worsted establishment, in which more than a hundred hands were employed; but the town derives its chief importance from its position on the Severn, and it may now be called a thriving inland port. A large portion of the labouring population are occupied on the river, but the inhabitants obtain their principal profit from the market, and the retail trade carried on with the population of the surrounding villages. Vessels are built here, and a large quantity of goods are imported for the consumption of the district, while heavy cargoes are exported for transhipment at places down the stream. Bridgenorth is a borough of prescription, the several charters of the town being granted by King John, Henry III., and Henry VI., in all of which separate grants were made:—first, of exemption from toll; secondly, of the mill at Pendlestone, without the town, for a fee-farm rent of £10, for ever; and, thirdly, of several minor privileges, which at one time were of much value. The old corporation under these charters consisted of 2 bailiffs, a recorder, and a deputy-recorder, 24 aldermen, 48 common councilmen, 2 chamberlains, and 2 bridgemasters, with a town-clerk, sergeants-at-mace, and other officers. The bailiffs were justices of the peace, and justices of the court of record, the senior acting as the borough coroner. The recorder held his office for life; and his deputy, whom he always appointed, and who was obliged to be a barrister, was the recognised legal adviser of the corporation. The general income of the body corporate is about £1,114 per annum. By the municipal act, the corporation now consists of a bailiff, 4 aldermen, and 12 common councillors. There is a general session of the peace held before the bailiff and deputy-recorder; but no felonies are tried at it, as persons guilty of that degree of criminality are committed for trial at the county assizes. In addition to this court, the town has had a commission of the peace for a quarter sessions, and a recorder granted to it. The prison is in the rear of the workhouse, there being, very improperly, but one entrance to both establishments. The former has lately been reconstructed, so as to render it fit to adopt the silent system. The borough has returned two members to parliament ever since the time of Edward I., and all burgesses, whether resident or not, had the right of voting. Under the old regime the number of voters was 986, all of whom were, to a considerable extent, under the influence of the Whitmore family; but under the effect of the Reform Act, the constituency has fallen to about 620, although the boundaries have been extended to Oldbury, Tasley, Astley-Abbots, and Quatford. Bridgenorth is one of the polling-places for the county, and the petty sessions for the hundred of Stottesden are held here. The inhabitants do not contribute to the county rates.---Contains 3,500 acres: 1,113 houses: pop<sup>a</sup> in 1841, 6,308: probable pop<sup>a</sup> in 1849, 7,254: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £11,739: poor rates in 1837, £1,207.---Market day, Saturday. Fairs: third Tuesday in Feb., third Tuesday in March, May-day, third Tuesday in June, for wool; first Tuesday in Aug., third Tuesday in Sept., Oct. 29, for butter and cheese; and first Tuesday after Shrewsbury December fair.---Bankers: Cooper and Purton—draw on Williams & Co.; Pritchard, Pritchard, and Boycott—draw on Barnett & Co.---Inns: Crown, the Castle, and Cross Keys.

BRIDGERULE, DEVONSHIRE, a parish, partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Stratton, Cornwall, and partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Black Torrington, union of Holsworthy, intersected by the Bude and Launceston Canal: 240 miles from London (coach road 218), 4 from Holsworthy, 17 from Hatherleigh.---Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol and Exeter to Crediton, thence 40 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, &c., 225 miles.---Money orders issued at Holsworthy: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 12½ p.m.: post closes at noon.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Totness, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £14: pres. net income, £150: patron, Rev. T. H. Kingdon: pres. incumbent, S. N. Kingdon, 1844: contains 4,010 acres: 84 houses: pop<sup>a</sup> in 1841, 497: probable pop<sup>a</sup> in 1849, 572: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £719: poor rates in 1837, £205.

BRIDGE-SOLLERS, HEREFORD, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Grimsworth, union of Weobly, on the banks of the river Wye, over which there is a ferry here: 153 miles from London, (coach road 141), 6 from Hereford, 7 from Weobly. — Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 35 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 107 miles. — Money orders issued at Hereford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 3¼ p.m. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, now united to Kerchester, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £3. 10s.: pres. net income, £100: patron, the Crown: pres. incumbent, J. Johnson, 1820: contains 740 acres: 8 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 65: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,159: poor rates in 1837, £104.

BRIDGEWATER, SOMERSETSHIRE, a seaport, borough, market town, and parish, locally situated in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of North-Petherton, division and union of Bridgewater: 151 miles from London (coach road 139), 11 from Taunton. — Gt. West. Rail. to Bridgewater station: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Bridgewater, 165 miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 9¼ p.m. — The derivation of the name of the place is uncertain; but those best informed believe it to be a corruption of Bruggia, Brugg, or Burgh-Walter, as it was in ancient times called, an opinion which is most likely correct, as we know that the appellation of Burg was, during the times of the Saxons, frequently applied to towns and villages. Some persons have supposed it to have been founded on the ruins of a Roman colony, planted at the west of the Polden Hills, where, at various periods, a number of Roman coins have been found; but such is not likely to have been the case, because, not only have no specific notice been taken of it in the Roman writers, but its situation in a flat country, without any considerable elevation near, would alone prevent it from being made a place of any note by that people. In the reign of Edward the Confessor, it was the private property of a Saxon lord, named Merlesuain. The Conqueror, after he was well seated on the throne, gave it to Walter de Douai, from whom it is supposed to have derived its special designation. His grand-daughter married a person named Paganel; and her son, Fulke Paganel, with a view of ingratiating himself with Henry II., whose favour he had lost, made it over to William de Briwere, to be held of him by a knight's fee. The family of Briwere greatly improved their property, built the castle, and laid the foundation of the future prosperity of the town. The second William de Briwere dying without issue, the manor of Bridgewater fell to his eldest sister Gracia, wife of William de Braose, lord of Brecknock, Radnor, and Abergavenny, one of the greatest barons of his age. From the Braoses it passed again by marriage to the Mortimers, earls of March, with whom it continued through several successions, until an heir female married Richard Duke of York, father of Edward IV., through whom the manor became annexed to the crown. The borough fell to the share of Eve, second daughter of de Braose, wife of William de Cantilupe, whose eldest daughter, Millicent, conveyed it again by marriage to Endo Lord Zouch, whose descendant, John Lord Zouch and Seymour, having been attainted, it was given to Lord d'Aubeney, who was created Earl of Bridgewater by Henry VIII. At his death the title became extinct, but was revived by James I. in the person of John Egerton, Baron of Ellesmere and Viscount Brackley, whose descendant was elevated by George I. to the rank of Duke of Bridgewater; but at the death of the late duke, the title became extinct. The manor, with the castle, and the out manor of Haygrove, with very valuable immunities, were given by Charles II. to Sir W. Whitmore, and it was afterwards purchased by the family of Hervey. Bridgewater was formerly of much greater extent than it is at present; but it has repeatedly suffered from fire and other casualties; and Leland, who visited it in 1538, informs us, that within the memory of people still living, upwards of two hundred houses had fallen to decay. During the great civil war, the town declared for the king; and being attacked by General Fairfax, the governor, Colonel Wyndham, was driven into the castle, and two-thirds of the buildings were burnt to the ground. The castle, which stands on the west side of the quay, and of which only a few ruins now remain, was a large and noble structure, with walls of immense thickness, mounted with forty pieces of ordnance, and surrounded by a wide and deep moat, which at every tide was filled to its banks by the sea. Indeed, such were its advantages from nature and art, that the governor deemed it impregnable; and, in that belief, induced the country people to deposit their treasures within it. When attacked in 1645, he defended it with great bravery for a considerable time; but the damage sustained by the town, even by his own shot, was so considerable, that he was at length induced to surrender, and the parliamentary soldiers consequently obtained an immense booty. The hospital, dedicated to St. John, was founded, in the reign of Henry III., by William de Briwere, for a priory of St. Augustine, the monks of which were obliged, by their deed of gift, to support fourteen poor persons, beside the religious persons to whom they gave occasional relief. In the following century it was greatly enriched by possessions in Bridgewater, North-Petherton, Cheddar, and other parishes, and was for some time under the patronage of the queens of England. At the dissolution, the site and buildings were granted to Humphrey Rolles. It was situated near the east gate, but only a small portion of the ruins now remain. The parish church is a large and handsome structure, surmounted by a tower and spire, 174 feet in height. The church is the burial-place of several ancient families; but no monuments worthy of notice remain. It contains, however, a fine altarpiece, which was taken from a French privateer, and afterwards presented by the Hon. Ann Poulet. At a short distance from the church there is an excellent free school, built of stone, which was founded in 1651, and endowed with £16. 13s. 4d., for which two boys are taught Greek and Latin. The town-hall is a fine and large building, with a cistern, from which the inhabitants are supplied with water. The streets are well paved, lighted with oil (although there is an act for the use of gas, but it has never been enforced), and kept remarkably clean. Having a water communication through the Parret—over which there is an iron bridge, erected on the site of a very ancient one of stone—direct with the sea, competent to bear vessels of very considerable burden, the inhabitants have a free opportunity of trading with all the world; but commerce is somewhat impeded by the excessive strength of the tide, which will sometimes come in with a depth of six feet at one swell; nevertheless, business is, upon the whole and generally, tolerably active. More than 200 vessels frequent the port, and the average amount of custom duties is upwards of £7,000 per annum. There is a considerable foreign and colonial trade with the United States, Canada, and the West Indies, in hemp, tallow, timber, and wine; but by far the greater number of vessels are engaged coastwise, large quantities of coal being brought from Wales, and sent inland by canal to Taunton. Bridgewater was constituted a free borough by King John; and, until the late municipal act passed, was governed by a charter granted by that monarch, but subsequently modified and enlarged by several succeeding sovereigns. Its ancient corporation consisted of a mayor, recorder, two aldermen, two bailiffs or sheriffs, and other officers. By the municipal act the town has been divided into two wards, each of which elects nine councillors, who, with six aldermen and a mayor, now compose the governing body. The quarter sessions for the county are held here during summer, and the assizes for the county once in two years. There is a court of record held every Monday before the mayor, recorder, or some one of the aldermen, the jurisdiction of which extends to all persons, actions, and to any amount. Petty sessions are also generally held here every Monday, and the town has, of late years, had a commission of the peace and a court of quarter sessions granted to it: its public income is about £1,775 a year. The municipal limits of the borough are co-extensive with those of the parish, and, by the boundary act, nearly the same range has been prescribed for political elections. Bridgewater has returned two members to parliament since the 23d year of Edward I., the right of election being vested in a small number of voters paying scot and lot in a small portion of the town called the borough, but, as just stated, that right has now been extended to all the inhabitants. The electors were formerly about 460 in number, but they now amount to 500. The mayor is the returning officer. Bridgewater is also a polling-place for the county. A new church in the Gothic style has lately been built here by the parliamentary commissioners, containing 1,093 sittings, at an expense of £3,254. The Independents, Wesleyan Methodists, Baptists, and Unitarians, all have places of worship here. There is a free school for thirty boys here, founded, in 1793, by Mr. John Morgan, in which the system of Dr. Bell is pursued; and in 1781 a school was founded by Mr. Edward Fackrell, which has a revenue of about £174 a year, to which, under a decree of the Court of Chancery, none but his own relatives, who are about thirty in number, are admitted. The other educational institutions are numerous. In 1731, Mr. John Gilbert bequeathed certain lands, which now produce about £56 a year, which is expended in purchasing bread and clothing for the poor. There is an eye dispensary, erected, in 1834, by Mr. Toogood, surgeon, which is supported entirely at that gentleman's expense. The other parochial charities produce about £86 a year. The Bridgewater poor-law union comprises forty parishes, containing about 29,000 souls, spread over an area of 133 square miles. The celebrated Admiral Blake was a native of this place. He was born in 1599, and, after spending the usual time at the grammar-school, removed to St. Alban's Hall, in the university of Oxford, from which he migrated to Wadham College. Previous to leaving college, he wrote an elegy on the death of Camden. As he advanced in life, he evinced a decided predilection for republican principles, and when the civil war broke out, he adopted the side of the parliament. The first opportunity he had of distinguishing himself, was in the defence of Bristol, and when Colonel Fienner was obliged to surrender the place to Prince Rupert, Blake, who was placed in command of a little fort on the line, refused to comply with the terms of the capitulation, which so exasperated the prince, that he threatened to hang him, and would have done so, had not his friends strongly pleaded his ignorance of military usages. His next exploit was the defence of Taunton, of which he was appointed governor in 1644, a fact which shows the great confidence felt in his conduct and courage, as that was the only place in the west of England entirely under the control of the republican government. He did not disappoint their hopes, for he succeeded in maintaining the town against all the forces sent against it; and even when Goring got possession of part of the place, he retained his hold upon the rest and the castle, which he kept until relieved by the advance of the parliamentary forces, for which service the parliament voted him £500. It was not until 1649, when Blake was in his fiftieth year, that he first went to sea, where his skill and daring soon became even more conspicuous than they had been on land, and were only excelled by his patriotism and disinterested love of justice. When Cromwell assumed the protectorate, it was expected that he would have thrown up the command of the fleet; but when his officers inquired his sentiments on the subject, he only replied, "it is not for us to mind state affairs, but to keep foreigners from fooling us." He proudly sustained the honour of his country, and greatly enhanced her naval reputation. His principal achievements were the four great victories he gained over Admiral Van Tromp, at that time the terror of the world, by which he not only obtained a decided superiority over the mightiest of our opponents by sea, but infused that spirit of enterprise and intrepidity that has ever since so eminently distinguished the British navy. He died in 1668, as the fleet was entering Plymouth harbour; his body was removed to Westminster, and buried with great pomp in Henry VII.'s chapel, but was soon afterwards removed and interred in St. Margaret's churchyard. — The living (the Virgin Mary), a vicarage, with the rectory of Chilton annexed, in the archdeaconry of Taunton, and diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £11. 7s. 6d.: pres. net income, £342: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, T. G. James, 1848 : contains 3,580 acres : 1,400 houses : pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 10,449 : probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 12,016 : ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £29,235 : poor rates in 1837, £2,094. — Market days, Thursday and Saturday. Fairs : second Thursday in Lent, June 24, October 2 and 3, and December 28. — Bankers : Stuckey's Banking Company—draw on Roberts, Curtis, & Co. ; John and John Lovel Sealy—draw on Williams, Deacon, & Co. ; Branch of West of England and South Wales Banking Company—draw on Glynn & Co.

VOL. I.

S X

BRIDLINGTON (or BURLINGTON, formerly Bærlington), EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the wapentake of Dickering, union of Bridlington : it includes the towns of Bridlington and Bridlington Quay, the chapelry of Grindall, the townships of Buckton, Hilderthorp, and Sewerby with Martin, and the hamlets of Easton and Spection : 240 miles from London (coach road 207), 11 from Driffield. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough and Hull to Bridlington : from Derby, through Normanton and Selby to Bridlington, 129 miles. — Money orders issued here. : London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m. : post closes 2½ p.m. — Bridlington is a considerable market town, consisting chiefly of one long street, which extends along the southern side of an elevation, which rises towards the north for more than a mile, by a gentle ascent. Towards the south the ground gradually slopes into a beautiful valley, which is watered by a considerable rivulet. At the west end of the town there are fertile meadows and pasture grounds ; and on the east is a small plain, which extends to the sea, all the features combining to render the place both pleasant and salubrious. The principal object in the place is the priory church, dedicated to St. Mary, of which the nave only remains, and which, when perfect, rivalled the noble minster of Beverley in its dimensions, and the beauty of its architecture ; and though what is left forms a heterogeneous, and somewhat unsightly, parish church, yet there are evident and numerous traces of great magnificence of design and richness in detail. The building is entirely in the pointed style, the greater part of the nave appearing to be built between the reigns of the first and third Edward ; and over the doorway there is preserved, in a conspicuous spot, a stone, with the date of 1106, which very probably marks the time of its foundation. The large west window, with the doorway below it, and the remains of the tower, are the work of the sixteenth century, executed in the richest style of the Tudor architecture. Of the walls and fortifications that once enclosed the priory nothing remains, except an arched gateway, at the distance of about 120 yards from the west end of the church. Above the arch there is a large room, which is now used as a town-hall ; and in the lower part there are some gloomy cells, which are places of confinement for persons guilty of petty offences. The priory itself was founded early in the reign of Henry I., by Walter de Gaunt, for the monks of the order of St. Augustine. This priory, says Burton, was pleasantly situated, being defended on the north and north-west by the Wolds—having a pleasant prospect toward the sea on the east and south-east. But although the canons reaped many advantages from such a situation, they, *nevertheless, were sometimes plundered by the enemies' ships that entered this harbour. Wherefore, upon a proper representation thereof, King Richard II., in A.D. 1388, granted them his license to enclose this priory with walls and houses, built of stone and lime, and the same to fortify for the time to come. Great privileges and immunities were granted to the prior and canons, by several popes ; and when under the pontificate of Innocent III., who reigned from 1198 to 1216, they complained that the archdeacon of Richmond, going to one of their churches, had travelled with ninety-seven horses, twenty-one dogs, and three hawks, whereby he consumed more of their provisions in one short hour than would have maintained that house for a long time ; the pope forbade that he should travel with any more attendance than was allowed by the statutes of the Council of Lateran. By the twentieth canon of that council, it was decreed that, in a visitation, an archbishop should have no more than fifty horses in his retinue, a bishop not more than thirty, a legate only twenty-five, and an archdeacon not more than seven. However, this ex post facto law did not improve the larder or the corn-chest of the poor monks. The revenues of the monastery, at its dissolution, according to Dugdale, amounted to £547. 6s. 1d. ; but they really were £682. 18s. 9d., if we are to take the estimate of Speed. The last prior, William de Wolde, or Wode, was hanged in London for treason ; and the estates belonging to the priory were consequently bestowed to the crown. The Wesleyan Methodists, Baptists, and Society of Friends, all have places of worship here. The congregations of the Baptists and Independents have been formed here ever since 1698. There is a grammar-school here for twenty boys, founded and endowed with £40 a year, in 1637, by Mr. William Hustler ; and a knitting-school for girls, which is endowed with a rent-charge of £40 per annum, arising from an estate at Birdsall. There is also another school, which has an endowment of £2 a year ; and Mr. William Cowton has bequeathed lands for the benefit of the poor of Bridlington, which now yield £170 a year. The other parochial charities produce £147. 18s. 6d. per annum. About a mile south-east of the town, on the shore of the beautiful bay which Bridlington overlooks, stands what is called the Quay, but which is, in fact, a town of itself, grown out of the cluster of cottages inhabited by the seamen engaged in commerce or fishing. It is well built, and the principal street, which opens to the harbour, is of great breadth. Altogether, the town has a handsome and lively appearance ; and in consequence of the agreeability of its situation, and the salubrity of its climate, is much visited in the summer season. The harbour is formed by two piers, which extend a considerable way into the sea, the most northern of which, having a good platform, is a very pleasing promenade, which commands delightful views of Flamborough Head and the bay, the number of coasting vessels occasionally detained there by contrary winds, at such times giving peculiar animation to the scene. The port, though small, is clean and secure, and a considerable stream of fresh water keeps it clear of mud. It is sheltered on every side by the coast, the town, and the piers. The depth of water at* spring-tides varies from fifteen to eighteen feet, but the harbour is dry at low water; its chief defect is the narrowness of the entrance, which at intervals renders the access difficult. It is defended by two batteries, one on the north and the other on the south side, which can defend the port by a cross fire. Bridlington Bay is the most commodious anchoring place between the Tyne and the Humber: it is sheltered on the north by the lofty promontory of Flamborough Head; and on the east, Smittrick Sand, which has seldom more than twelve to twenty feet of water, stays, and acts as a breakwater to the waves, extending to within about a mile of the coast of the promontory southwards of the lighthouse. William of Newburgh, a celebrated monkish historian, was a native of Bridlington. In the churchyard there is a tablet to the memory of Thomas Newman, who died at the advanced age of 153. About half a mile to the north-west of Bridlington Quay there is a chalybeate spring, the waters of which, in their properties, resemble those of Cheltenham and Scarborough. Petty sessions for the division of Dicker are held here; and Bridlington is a polling-place for East Yorkshire. Several fossil remains have been discovered in the vicinity. The Bridlington poor-law union comprises thirty-two parishes, spread over an area of 95 square miles, with a population of about 12,000 persons. The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of the east riding and diocese of York, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £140: patron, Trustees of the late Rev. C. Simeon: pres. incumbent, George Smith, 1809: contains 12,410 acres: 1,186 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 6,070: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 6,980: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £17,434: poor rates in 1837, £855. Market day, Saturday. Fairs: Monday before Whit-Sunday, October 21, for horses and cattle. Inns: Black Lion, the Star, the Britannia, and New Inn.

BRIDLINGTON, EAST RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish, including likewise Bridlington Quay. (For access and postal arrangements, see above.) Contains 3,060 acres: 1,035 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 5,511: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 6,338: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £8,248: poor rates in 1837, £523.

BRIDPORT, DORSET, a port, borough, parish, and market town, in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Whitechurch-Canonicorum, union of Bridport, Bridport division of the county, but having separate jurisdiction: 156 miles from London (coach road 134), 15 from Dorchester. Sou. West. Rail. through Southampton to Dorchester, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Banbury, Oxford, and Southampton, to Dorchester, &c., 245 miles. Money orders paid here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. Bridport is situated in a miry soil, in a vale surrounded by hills, about a mile north of the sea, between two rivulets, one of which, the Brit, runs under the east, the other, the river Asker, under the west bridge. It is seated on the river Brit, which here falls into the sea, and forms a harbour, from which the place derives its name. The town seems to have been one of great consideration even before the Conquest, for we find the following entry concerning it in Doomsday book:—In Edward the Confessor's time, here were 120 houses, and paying geld for five hides, viz., to the king's domestics (Huscarles) half a mark of silver, except the customs pertaining to the farm of one night, for one night's lodging. Here was one mint-master, who paid to the king one mark of silver, and twenty shillings on the charge of coinage. Now there are but 100 houses, and the remaining twenty are ruined, that the inhabitants are unable to pay the tax. In Bridport, the Bishop of Sarreburie has half an acre, yielding 6d. The church of St. Wandresin holds the church of Bridetone, Bridport, and Wiltcece, and to these belong four hides, yielding 6d. The manor anciently belonged to the Crown, and was held in fee-farm by the burgesses, to whom it now belongs. The first charter of incorporation was given by Henry III., who granted to the men of Bridport that the village should be a free borough; and that they and their heirs should hold it, with all liberties, &c., paying yearly to the exchequer, at Michaelmas, the farm which they usually paid, and forty shillings for the increase of the village; also, that they may choose one or two bailiffs, who shall answer at the exchequer for the farm and increase of the borough. From this clause, and others of a similar kind in various charters, we find the true origin of the office of bailiffs, who grew by degrees to be the receivers of corporation rents, and produce of other public properties, and, at last, chief magistrates of towns. Several succeeding monarchs confirmed this charter, James I. limiting its power, so that it was ordered that the bailiffs should be chosen annually, and that the corporation should consist of fifteen burgesses, the bailiffs being two of that body, with power to elect a recorder. By the municipal act the town has been divided into two wards, north and south, each of which elects nine councillors, who, with six aldermen and the two bailiffs, now compose the governing body. During the civil war, in the time of Charles I., the town was garrisoned by the parliament; but not being a place of much strength, it was alternately in the hands of the adherents of the king and the republicans. In 1685 it was surprised by a party of the followers of the Duke of Monmouth, under Lord Grey; but they were soon defeated by the king's troops, and twelve of the insurgents were executed here. The town consists of three spacious and airy streets, which contain many handsome houses, well supplied with water; and they have, within these few years, been lighted with gas. There were formerly several religious foundations here, but no relics of them remain, and even their names are forgotten. The church is an ancient cruciform structure, with an embattled pinnacled tower in the centre; it contains a fine altar-tomb to the memory of William, son of Sir Eustace Dabrigecourt of Hainault, a relation of Queen Philippa. A handsome market-house and town-hall were erected in 1785, on the site of an old chapel, dedicated to St. Andrew, under a private act, for carrying out the purposes of which, there are sixteen trustees. Two branches of manufacture, which employ many hundreds of the labouring classes, have been carried on here for many years. The first is of twine lines and fishing nets, for the use of the home and Nova Scotia grounds. In the reign of Henry VIII. all the cordage for the English navy was ordered to be made at Bridport, or within five miles of it. This is considered the staple trade of the place; and though it cannot be expected that any great extension of it is likely to occur, yet the business has by no means declined, and is now in a flourishing condition. The second consists of sail-canvas and shoe-thread, which is not only at present very active, but, by the introduction of steam machinery, is likely to be very much improved. There are two flax-mills here, and about 200 looms employed in the weaving of sailcloth, in which an able-bodied weaver will earn from 12s. to 13s. a week. Besides these means of employment, many smacks are built here, especially for the trading companies of Scotland, which are highly esteemed for their durability, beauty, and fast sailing. The harbour is situated at the bottom of the bay, which is formed by the headlands near Portland on the east, and Torbay on the west. It was in contemplation to cut a ship canal up to the town, but the plan was abandoned, as being likely to prove too expensive; and the communication with the harbour now is by an excellent road, which is kept in good repair. An act for restoring the harbour, and rebuilding the piers, was obtained in the 8th of Geo. I.; its preamble recites, that "by reason of great sickness, that had swept away the greatest part of the wealthy inhabitants, and other accidents, the haven became neglected, and was choked with sand, and the piers had fallen into ruins." The work was begun in 1802; and through the expenditure of a large amount of money, great improvement was effected. A further act was obtained in 1823, under the authority of which, upwards of £19,000 was raised in shares; and that sum has been laid out in enlarging the basin, and filling the piers with masonry, so that the harbour is now quite commodious and safe. The number of vessels belonging to the port is about thirty, of from 80 to 150 tons burthen each. The number of vessels entering inwards and clearing outwards, is about 550 annually, with an aggregate tonnage of about 45,000 tons. The harbour and pier dues yield about £1,700 per annum; and the average gross amount of customs duties is about £6,000 a year. The principal foreign trade of the port is in the importation of hemp, flax, and timber, from Russia and the Baltic; and timber also from Norway and America. A considerable coasting trade is also carried on, through which the whole of the adjacent district is supplied with coal from the northern counties; coal and culm from Wales, and general produce from other places. The right of representatives in parliament was first conferred in the 23d year of Edward I., since which time, two has been regularly sent by the borough. The right of voting was formerly vested in the inhabitants paying scot and lot, who were in number about 250; but by the Reform Act the political boundary of the place has been increased nearly twofold, the right of voting being limited to £10 householders, and the number of electors is now about 430. The corporation hold a court of session once a year, and a court of record every third Monday, under a charter of Charles II., for the recovery of debts under £20, at which the bailiffs and recorder preside. There is also an annual court-leet. These courts are held in the town-hall, which, as stated above, was erected in 1786; it is a handsome brick building, faced with stone, containing, in the upper story, a court for the borough sessions, a room for the grand jury, and a council chamber. There is also a prison for the confinement of debtors. The Independents, Wesleyan Methodists, Society of Friends, and the Unitarians, each have chapels here. The free school was founded and endowed by Mr. Daniel Taylor, one of the Society of Friends, in 1708, and the management of it is vested in trustees, appointed by the members of that body resident in Bridport and the neighbourhood. The same gentleman also founded an almshouse in 1696. In 1730, the interest of £200 was left by Mr. Robert Bull, £4 of which is given annually for the instruction of twelve poor children; and the remainder to twelve poor men. A portion of the rent of eight acres and a half of land, purchased by the corporation, vested in them for that purpose, is applied to the support of a school for the poor. Turtle stone and other petrifications are found in quarries in the neighbourhood; and copperas stones are met with on the beach. Bridport gives the titles of baron and viscount to Lord Hood.---The living (the Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Dorset, and diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Salisbury, is valued at £10. 12s. 3d.: pres. net income, £166: patron, Earl of Ilchester: pres. incumbent, R. Broadley, 1829: contains 250 acres: 625 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,787: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 5,505: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £7,001: poor rates in 1837, £1,310.---Market days, Wednesday and Saturday. Fairs: April 6, cattle; Holy Thursday, October 11.---Bankers: R. & H. Williams---draw on Williams, Deacon, & Co.

BRIDSTOW, HEREFORD, a parish in the lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wormelow, union of Ross, on the western bank of the river Wye: 133 miles from London (coach road 125), 1 from Ross, 13 from Hereford.---Gt. West. Rail. through Stonehouse to Gloucester, thence 19 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Gloucester, &c., 111 miles.---Money orders issued at Ross: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---In the vicinity is Wilton Castle, now a venerable ruin mantled with ivy, but at one time the baronial residence of the Lords Gray de Wilton, who derived their first title from it, and who became owners in the time of Edward I. It was demolished by order of the royalist governor of Hereford during the civil war, in the absence of its then owner, Sir J. Brydges.---The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £9. 3s. 11d.: pres. net income, £276: patron, Bishop of Hereford: pres. incumbent, T. T. Lewis, 1841: contains 1,870 acres: 116 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 625: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 719: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,141: poor rates in 1837, £326.

BRIERCLIFFE WITH EXTWISTLE, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Whalley, hun<sup>d</sup> of Blackburn: 221 miles from London (coach road 214), 3 from Burnley, 4 from Colne.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Manchester to Burnley, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, Manchester, &c., 121 miles.---Money orders issued at Burnley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---The living is a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Manchester: pres.

net income, £150: patron, Hulme's Trustees: pres. incumbent, J. Mac Lindon, 1842: contains 4,180 acres: 292 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,498: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,933: poor rates in 1837, £453.

BRIERDEAN (or BURRADON), NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Earsdon, eastern division of Castle ward: 309 miles from London (coach road 268), 6 from Newcastle, 10 from Morpeth. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, to Newcastle, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 177 miles. —Money orders issued at Newcastle-on-Tyne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. —Contains 13 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 97: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £640: poor rates in 1837, £45.

BRIERLEY, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Felkirk, wapentake of Staincross: 192 miles from London (coach road 177), 6 from Barnsley, 1 from Hemsworth. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Derby to Barnsley, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield to Barnsley, &c., 60 miles. —Money orders issued at Barnsley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. —There are many collieries and extensive iron-works here. —Contains 2,610 acres: 97 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 491: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 565: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,614: poor rates in 1837, £322.

BRIERLEY HILL, STAFFORD, a chapelry in the parish of Kingswinford, northern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Seisdon—(which see for access, &c.): 122 miles from London, 2 from Stourbridge, 3 from Dudley. —Money orders issued at Stourbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. —The living is a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Stafford, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, not in charge: pres. net income, £300: patron, Rector of Kingswinford: pres. incumbent, Robert Harris, 1833.—(Pop<sup>n</sup> returned with the parish.)

BRIERTON, DURHAM, a township in the parish of Stranton, north-east division of Stockton ward: 287 miles from London (coach road 249), 4 from Hartlepool, 8 from Stockton. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, York, and Darlington, to Seaton Carew station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Sheffield, York, &c., 155 miles. —Money orders issued at Hartlepool: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 1 p.m.: post closes 1 p.m. —Contains 700 acres: 4 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 27: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £368.

BRIGG. See GLANDFORD BRIDGE.

BRIGHAM, CUMBERLAND, a parish in the ward of Allerdale above Derwent, on an eminence on the southern bank of the river Derwent: it comprises the borough and market town of Cockermouth, the chapelries of Buttermere, Embleton, Mosser, and Setmurthey, and the townships of Blindborthel, Brigham, Eaglesfield, Graysouthen, and Whinfell: 342 miles from London (coach road 307), 2 from Cockermouth, 6 from Workington. —Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe, Lancaster, and Carlisle, to Cockermouth, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 242 miles. —Money orders issued at Cockermouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. —The church is an ancient and interesting edifice. Four schools in this parish have small endowments. There is a considerable business done here in flax-dressings and woollen manufacture. The parochial charities produce about £59 a year. The parish is within the honour of Cockermouth, over which the Earl of Egremont is lord-paramount. Limestone, freestone, and coal are found here. The parish is situated among the lakes of Buttermere, Crummock, Loweswater, and Bassenthwaite, which, with the rivers Maron and Derwent, form its boundaries; it is intersected by the Cocker, which falls into the Derwent at Cockermouth. The ground is very hilly, but since the enclosure act was passed, most of the eminences have been brought into cultivation. The village, which contains many respectable dwelling-houses, stands on a height above the Derwent, and commands some rich and highly diversified views. —The living (St. Bridget), a vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Richmond, and diocese of Chester, is valued at £20. 16s. 4d.: pres. net income, £190: patron, Earl of Lonsdale: pres. incumbent, J. Wordsworth, 1832: contains 22,580 acres: 1,465 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 7,397: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 8,506: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £18,116: poor rates in 1837, £1,414. All tithes, moduses, &c., of the township, the property of the lay impropiator, were commuted in 1813. —The gentlemen's residences are those of Joseph Harris, Esq. of Gray Southend, and John Simpson, Esq. of the Fitz.

BRIGHAM, CUMBERLAND, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.) —Contains 105 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 578: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 664: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,311: poor rates in 1837, £1,414.

BRIGHAM, EAST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Foston-upon-Wolds, wapentake of Dickerling—(which see for access, &c.): 192 miles from London, 4 from Driffield, 5 from Bainton. —Money orders issued at Driffield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m. —Contains 1,470 acres: 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 147: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,016: poor rates in 1837, £47. Tithes commuted in 1766.

BRIGHOUSE. See HIPPERHOLME WITH BRIGHOUSE.

BRIGHTHAMPTON, OXFORD, a hamlet, partly in the parish of Bampton, and partly in that of Standlake, hun<sup>d</sup> of Bampton—(which see for access, &c.): 68 miles from London, 3 from Witney. —Money orders issued at Witney: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. —Contains 410 acres: 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 282: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £646: poor rates in 1837, £45.

BRIGHTLING, SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Netherfield, rape of Hastings, union of Battle: 86 miles from London (coach road 50), 4 from Robertsbridge, 8 from Battle. —Brighton and South Coast Rail. to St. Leonard's, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 218 miles. —Money orders issued at Robertsbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. —There is a school here, endowed with the interest of £200 by Mrs. Herbert. —The living (St. Thomas à Becket), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Lewes, and diocese of Chichester, is valued at £11: pres. net income, £563: patron, Rev. J. B. Hayley: pres. incumbent, J. B. Hayley, 1805: contains 3,390 acres: 105 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 692: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 796: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,256: poor rates in 1837, £441. — Fairs, first Monday after Thomas à Becket's day, and July 7.

BRIGHTLINGSEA, Essex, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Tendring, union of Lexden and Winstree: bounded on the west by the Colne river, and on south by Brightlingsea Creek, forming a kind of peninsula: 62 miles from London (coach road 51), 10 from Colchester, 5 from Aberton. — East. Co. Rail. to Colchester, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 194 miles. — Money orders issued at Colchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8¼ p.m. — The Swedenborgians have a place of worship here, the congregation of which was formed in 1813. Brightlingsea is a member of the Cinque port of Sandwich. — The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Colchester, and diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £17. Os. 5d.: pres. net income, £213: patron, Bishop of London: pres. incumbent, William Latten, 1836: contains 2,890 acres: 310 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 2,055: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 2,363: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £4,056: poor rates in 1837, £682. — Fairs: first Thursday in June, and 15th October, for horses.

BRIGHTON, Sussex, a seaport, market town, and parish, in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Whalesbone, rape of Lewes: 51 miles from London (coach road 52), 8 from Lewes. — Brighton and Sou. Coast Rail. to Brighton station: from Derby, through London, &c., 183 miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7¼ a.m., 2 p.m., and 7 p.m.: post closes 10½ a.m., 3 p.m., and 9¼ p.m. — This town, called in the Saxon language Brighthelmstun; in Domesday-book, Bristelmestune; and now by contraction, Brighton, is pleasantly situated at the bottom or land centre of a bay in the English Channel, which stretches from Selsea Bill to Beechey Head. It is sheltered from the north and north-east by a semicircular range of the South Downs, which are attained by an easy acclivity, and which command very extensive views of the well-wooded weald of Sussex and the Isle of Wight. The climate of the town and its vicinity is mild and genial, from its southern aspect, and the shelter which it enjoys from the northerly and easterly winds; but it is by no means debilitating, as it almost constantly enjoys a bracing and refreshing breeze from the sea. The town occupies a very extensive piece of ground, and possesses a sea frontage of nearly three miles in length; and consists of numerous and spacious streets, well paved and lighted with gas, which, for the most part, intersect each other at right angles; the whole being divided into two nearly equal parts by an open space of from fifty to a hundred yards in breadth, which extends from the London road to the sea-beach. It is generally supposed to have derived its appellation from the Saxon bishop, Brighthelme, who for some years lived in the neighbourhood. Brighton was once a fortified town, and was anciently, as at present, of very considerable importance; and is, by some antiquaries, supposed to have been the place where Cæsar landed when he invaded Britain. This opinion is ascertained to have been erroneous; but it is very much countenanced by the circumstance of a large quantity of Roman coins having been found in the town and neighbourhood, and of there being plain indications of a Roman intrenchment in the immediate vicinity of the town. The great probability is, that whilst they held Britain, that people had a watch station on the heights above the town, and that this was the site of the main body appointed to protect this part of the southern coast. Several parts of skeletons of unusual size have been found at different periods along the beach. For some ages, however, the sea here had been gradually encroaching on the cliffs, and, from a considerable town, Brighton dwindled to an insignificant village, and, about the time of the Norman Conquest, was only inhabited by a few fishermen. Its exposed situation rendered it open to easy attack from abroad; and the French, who were its most constant enemies, in the reign of Henry VIII., plundered and burnt it to the ground. Fortifications were, after that, erected for its defence, which were subsequently repaired and strengthened by order of Queen Elizabeth, who had a wall built, with four gates of freestone, for its better security; but all these were gradually undermined, and at last destroyed by the sea. After the battle of Worcester, Charles II. succeeded in making his escape to Brighton, and here embarked for France. In 1665, the town was much injured; and, in 1699, the sea rose upon it in immense power, swept away as many as 130 houses, and destroyed property worth £40,000; in consequence of which an act of parliament was passed for the construction of groynes and jetties for the retention of the stones and other matter thrown up by the waves, so as to form a sort of breakwater for the coast; but again, in 1703, 1705, and 1706, the place was visited by similar calamities, which almost threatened its annihilation. It was not until the reign of George II. that Brighton began again to rise into consideration; and then it was occasioned by the writings of Dr. Russell, a resident physician, by whom the sea-water here was recommended as containing a greater quantity of salt in proportion than that of other places, and therefore more efficacious for scrofulous and glandular complaints. It soon afterwards became a favourite bathing-place, and its progress was much promoted by the discovery of a chalybeate spring, in 1760, which, being happily administered as a tonic to debilitated persons, made it the resort of invalids from all parts of the country. It ultimately obtained the very high rank which it now enjoys, as a place of agreeable sojourn, a fashionable watering-place, and the partial residence of the nobility and gentry, under the auspices of George IV., who, when Prince of Wales, erected a magnificent palace here, in which he gave some of his most recherché entertainments, and passed some of his happier hours. It was afterwards the residence of his successor, William IV., and her Majesty Queen Adelaide, at present Queen Dowager; but her present Majesty, Queen Victoria, has preferred the quieter seclusion of Osborne in the Isle of Wight, and the palace has been dismantled. It, with the grounds around it, was ordered by the lords commissioners of the woods and forests to be sold; but it is said a treaty has been opened by the inhabitants of Brighton to purchase it for £53,000, the sum placed upon it by the commissioners. The Pavilion, as the palace is called, was one of King George IV.'s favourite places, and he was continually adding to it some new feature of architectural adornment, and some new refinement of taste. It was begun in 1784, and not finished until 1827; it is in the oriental style of architecture, and built after the model of the Kremlin at Moscow. Toward the sea it has a handsome stone front, two hundred feet in length, with a circular building in the centre, surmounted by a lofty dome supported on pillars; and connected with it, towards the west, is the royal chapel, which is capable of containing a thousand persons. The royal stables are behind the Pavilion; they are in a circular edifice, appropriately designed in the Arabian style, and are surmounted by a dome of glass. These, with the other buildings, form a quadrangle; on the east side there is a racquet-court, and on the west a riding-house. The portions of the town are divided by the open space alluded to, called the Steyne, from the circumstance of its forming a part of the old Steyne Street, or Roman road from Arundel to Dorking; the older part of the town is on the east of the Steyne, and the principal portion of the new town is towards the west of it. The houses in the older part of Brighton are various and irregular, though many of them are of the highest respectability; but those in the new town have all been constructed with the advantages of the most modern improvements, uniform and elegant in their appearance. They are chiefly placed upon the eastern cliff, and command extensive views over the British Channel. They comprise the Royal Crescent, the buildings on the New Steyne, the Marine Parade, extending from the New to the Old Steyne, the Pavilion Parade, and the houses on the Old Steyne, including two splendid hotels and a handsome library. On the western cliff there are Cannon Place, including a magnificent hotel called the Bedford, Bedford Square, Regency Square, and Brunswick Square and terrace, in the front of which there is a fine esplanade which has become a fashionable promenade. On the road from Lewes, there are Hanover Crescent, the area of which is laid out after the mode of the newer squares in London, Richmond Terrace, the buildings on the North Steyne; and towards the east, Dorset Gardens, with an ornamental ground in front, in which there are two octagonal temples. On the London road there are some neat cottage residences, and two handsome rows of houses with circular fronts, called respectively St. George's and York Place. Kemp Town, nearly at the eastern extremity of the town, was built by Thomas Read Kemp, Esq. It forms three sides of a quadrangle, of noble mansions of superb appearance, to the two extremities of which a row of houses of similar character has been added. The area, which is extensive, is very tastefully disposed, and there is an easy access to the beach from it, by a gentle descent through an archway. In a place expressly devoted to the enjoyment of the wealthy, the noble, and the refined, it may naturally be expected that the appliances provided for the satisfaction of the fastidious, and the luxurious leisure of the affluent, should be numerous, various, and sufficient; and so it is—the hotels, inns, and lodging-houses, are in every gradation of style, from the most sumptuous magnificence to the simple accommodations of plain respectability, adapted to the habits and expenditure of visitors of every rank. The various shops are richly stored with all the articles that a metropolitan population could desire. The libraries are numerous, elegantly fitted up, replete with choice works, and supplied with every new publication in the belles lettres soon as it appears. Assemblies are held in the principal hotels, in which there are rooms furnished in the costly style required for the most recherché reunions. The theatre is a handsome building, erected in 1807; and during the recess of the London patent theatres, is constantly supplied with the best performers in the country. The royal gardens on the north of the town, including a spacious cricket ground attached, are appropriated to various amusements. The races, which continue for four or five days, are usually held the first week in August, and the South Downs afford open, breezy, and cheering rides. The Old Steyne, which is adorned with a statue of George IV. by Chantrey, comprises the north and south parades, with several other pleasant walks, where a military band is at intervals in attendance. Baths of every description, including hot and cold, sea-water, shower, and vapour baths, are constructed with every comfort, for the relief and promoting the health of the invalids who use them. Those at the New Steyne hotel are supplied by water, raised from the sea to the height of six hundred feet, and conveyed through a tunnel out in the solid rock. The chalybeate spring, spoken of above, is enclosed within a neat building; the water, in which there is an ocherous infusion, is very beneficial for the restoration of strength to infirm habits, and is held in high repute, while from the spa almost every variety of mineral water may be artificially prepared. One of the most favourite promenades of Brighton is the Suspension Chain Pier, which was constructed in 1821, under the superintendence of Capt. Brown, R.N., at an expense of £30,000, to facilitate the landing and embarkation of passengers. It is 1,200 feet in length, and 14 feet in breadth; at the pier-head, there is a transverse portion, 60 feet long and 20 broad, on which there are seats placed for the visitors or inhabitants, protected from the rain and shaded from the sun by awnings, which, with the waves dashing around them, may be enjoyed for a trifling remuneration. The foundation of this fine and ingenious structure consists of massive piers, composed of clusters of piles driven ten feet into the rock, over which there are carried strong chains of iron, which are securely fastened at one end to the shore, and to the other at the pier-head, having a dip of 18 feet in the swing. From these chains perpendicular rods descend, which are firmly bolted in the platform suspended beneath, and are connected by cross bars. Below the pier-head there are tiers of galleries, to facilitate the landing and embarking of passengers at different states of the tide. This pier sustained considerable injury during a violent storm on the 15th of October, 1833, but has since been effectually repaired, under the superintendence of Captain Brown, through a subscription raised by the inhabitants. The esplanade, 1,200 feet long and 40 feet wide, connects the chain-pier with the Steyne. Within late years a carriage road has been formed over the beach, by which the cliff road and the Marine Parade have been brought into easy connection; and by the construction of a road across the Old Steyne, a communication has also been formed between Castle Square on the west, and St. James's Street on the east. There are barracks for infantry in the town, and for cavalry at the distance of about a mile on the road to Lewes. The artillery barracks are on the western cliff, where there is a battery of heavy ordnance for the protection of the beach; but the buildings themselves are now used as dwelling-houses. A wall has been raised on the eastern side of the town, to protect it from the injuries of the waves. Brighton derives its principal source of emolument from its visitors; and, now that the railroad is completed, from its passengers to and from France, steam vessels sailing several times during the week, in the more genial months, to Havre and Dieppe, whence the distance in the route to Paris is not only ninety miles shorter than it is by Calais, but it also traverses a much finer line of country than that from the more northern port. Some few vessels discharge their cargoes of coal and light goods on the beach; but the indigenous trade of the place arises from its fishery, in which about a hundred boats are employed. The mackerel season commences in April, and the herring season in October, and turbot, skate, soles, and other flat fish are taken in large quantities, and sent to the London markets. Some employment is afforded to a portion of the inhabitants in making and mending tackle for the fishermen, the materials of which are brought from Bridport. In the intercourse between Brighton and London formerly, a considerable number of four-horse coaches were engaged, and none in the kingdom were more celebrated for the rapidity of their travelling, the handsomeness of their turn-out, and the crackness of their teams; but the railway has annihilated distance, and changed a day's journey into a two hours' trip. The Brighton coaches are, therefore, only now to be found in the museum. The principal market is on Thursday, as stated; but there are daily markets also for the convenience of the inhabitants, and a new and convenient market-house was built in 1829 on the site of the old work-house. By the Reform Act, Brighton, with Hove, is constituted a borough to return two members to parliament, the right of voting being vested in the £10 householders, of whom 1,649 were registered for the first election after the passing of the act, and of these 1,434 polled. The returning officer is annually appointed by the sheriff, and his expenses at that election were £426. 4s. 3d. The town is, however, under the jurisdiction of the county magistrates, who sit every Monday and Thursday; but the direction of its internal affairs is vested in a body of 112 commissioners, under an act of parliament, who are elected by the inhabitants paying scot and lot, and who retire from office septennially by rotation. They appoint a town-clerk, surveyor of tolls, police-officers, and criers. There is a court-leet held here annually, at which a constable, 8 headboroughs, and other officers, for the regulation of the town, are chosen. The parish church is a spacious and ancient structure, partly in the decorated and partly in the later English style of architecture. It stands on the top of the hill, 150 feet above the level of the sea, and having a square tower, it serves as a landmark to mariners at sea. It contains a fine screen of oak, richly carved, and a font, which was brought from Normandy in the time of William the Conqueror, which is sculptured with representations of the Last Supper and of our Lord's miracles. Attached to the vicarage are several perpetual curacies. St. Peter's, under the patronage of the Vicar, has an income attached of £289; incumbent, Rev. T. Cooke, 1828. All Souls, also under the patronage of the Vicar, has an income of £100; incumbent, Rev. R. S. Smith, 1846. Christ Church, under the patronage of the Vicar, has an income of £420; incumbent, Rev. J. Vaughan, 1828. St. John Evan, under the patronage of the Vicar, an income of £90; incumbent, Rev. R. S. Drummond, 1843. The Chapel-Royal, also under the patronage of the Vicar, has an income of £95; incumbent, the Rev. Thomas Trocke, 1834. Beside these there are St. James's Chapel, under the patronage of the trustees of the late N. Kemp, Esq., with an income of £180, of which the Rev. C. D. Maitland is incumbent, having been inducted in 1828; St. Mary's Chapel, with an income of £100, of which the Rev. H. Venn Elliot is incumbent, who is himself also the patron; St. George's Chapel, with an income of £150, Rev. J. S. M. Anderson, incumbent—patrons, L. Peel, Esq., and himself; Trinity Chapel, F. W. Robertson, incumbent, with an income of £150—patrons, trustees of the late J. Anderson; and St. Margaret's Chapel, of which the Rev. F. Reade is incumbent, with an income of £150, of which he is himself the patron. A free church was erected in the eastern part of the town, near the end of the reign of William IV., towards the endowment and building of which his majesty contributed £100, and his royal consort £50. There is hardly a section of the Dissenters which has not a place of worship here, and some of them two or three. There are several free schools for the instruction of poor children, the chief of which is the school in Gardner Street, for clothing and educating girls, which was founded and endowed, in 1811, with £7,100 by Swan Downer, Esq.; the Blue-coat school, in Ship Street, to which £1,932. 10s. 10d. was bequeathed, in 1768, by William Grismet, Esq.; the school near Russell Street, for the children of fishermen; beside several others with funds of various amounts; and the union charity school, in Middle Street, which is supported by the several congregations of Dissenters. On an eminence, near the East Downs, stands the county hospital, a large and commodious edifice, which is liberally supported by voluntary contributions, the establishment serving as a bathing-place for the poor. A dispensary has been established, which is supported by annual subscriptions and donations. There are here also six almshouses for poor widows. On White Hawke Hill, on which a signal station has been erected, and on Hollingsbury Hill, a second station for signals, about two miles from the town, there are the remains of strong Roman encampments. In the latter there are several tumuli; and in 1750, an urn, containing 1,000 denarii of the emperor Antonius Pius, downwards, was discovered. In the immediate vicinity are the remains of several altars and some druidical monuments.---The living (St. Nicholas), a vicarage, consolidated with the rectory of Bletchington, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Lewes, and diocese of Chichester, is valued at £20. 2s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £900: patron, Bishop of Chichester: pres. incumbent, H. M. Wagner, 1824: contains 1,980 acres: 7,798 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 46,661: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 53,561: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £71,515: poor rates in 1840, £16,723.---Market days, Thursday and Saturday. Fairs: Holy Thursday, and Sept. 4.---Bankers: Hall, West, and Borrer---draw on Jones, Lloyd, and Co.; Branch of London and Commercial Joint Stock---draw on Head Office, London.

BRIGHTON VIADUCT ON THE HASTINGS BRANCH
Drawn & Engraved for the British Gazetteer
By J. H. STUBBS, F.R.S.E., F.R.A.S., F.R.I.B.A., F.R.I.C.

BRIGHTSIDE-BIERLOW (or BIERLEY), WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in that part of the parish of Sheffield, which is in the northern division of the wapentake of Strathforth and Tickhill: 180 miles from London (coach road 161), 3 from Sheffield, 3 from Rotherham.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Sheffield, to Brightside station: from Derby, through Sheffield, &c., 48 miles.---Money orders issued at Sheffield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.---The inhabitants are chiefly artisans, who are engaged in the cutlery manufactory of the parish. The parish is a subdivision of the chapelry of Attercliffe, which, when undivided, contained about 16,000 of a population; divided under Sir Robert Peel's act into five parishes---Attercliffe, Darnel, Wicker, Pittamoor, and Brightside. The Brightside parish includes a portion of the suburbs of Sheffield, the Railway station, &c., and extends three miles from Sheffield: the population is about 3,000. There is a school here, endowed with £5. 10s. per annum.---The living is a perpetual curacy, in the diocese of York: pres. net income, £130: patron, the Crown and the Archbishop, alternately: pres. incumbent, T. Kerns, 1848.

BRIGHT-WALTHAM. See WALTHAM-BRIGHT.

BRIGHTWELL, BERKS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Moreton, union of Wallingford: 56 miles from London (coach road 48), 3 from Wallingford, 3 from Didcot.---Gt. West. Rail. to Didcot, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Banbury, and Oxford, to Didcot, &c., 142 miles.---Money orders issued at Wallingford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.---There was formerly a castle here, which was given up by King Stephen to Henry II., then Duke of Normandy, in 1153, shortly after the conclusion of the treaty with the Empress Matilda at Wallingford. It was in all probability soon afterwards destroyed, for not a trace of its site can now be discerned, but it is conjectured that it stood within the moat where the farm manor-house now stands. Dr. Thomas Godwyn, the learned author of a treatise on Jewish antiquities, died rector of this parish in 1642, and a monument to his memory stands in the church. There is a dissenting chapel here, and a school with a small endowment. The other parochial charities produce about £28 a year.---The living, a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Berks, diocese of Salisbury, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £44. 17s. 11d.: pres. net income, £674: patron, Bishop of Winchester: pres. incumbent, M. Thomson, 1831: contains 1,680 acres: 120 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 611: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 703: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,329: poor rates in 1837, £477.

BRIGHTWELL, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Carleford, union of Woodbridge: 63 miles from London (coach road 74), 5 from Ipswich, 4 from Woodbridge.---East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Ipswich, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 195 miles.---Money orders issued at Ipswich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.---The living (St. John the Baptist) is a perpetual curacy, with that of Foxhall annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich, not in charge: pres. net income, £54: patron, Sir J. K. Shaw, Bart.: pres. incumbent, Wm. Ewing, 1847: contains 510 acres: 10 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 81: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £486: poor rates in 1837, £132.

BRIGHTWELL-BALDWIN, OXFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Ewelme, union of Henley: it contains the tithing of Cadwell: 56 miles from London (coach road 46), 5 from Tetworth, 5 from Wallingford.---Gt. West. Rail. to Wallingford Road station, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Banbury, and Oxford, to Wallingford Road, &c., 118 miles.---Money orders issued at Tetworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---The parochial charities produce about £10 a year.---The living (St. Bartholomew), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £18. 16s. 6½d.: pres. net income, £494: patron, W. F. L. Stone, Esq.: pres. incumbent, G. Day, 1841: contains 1,660 acres: 53 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 312: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 359: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,148. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1802.

BRIGHTWELL (PRIOR'S), OXFORD, a chapelry in the parish of Newington, hun<sup>d</sup> of Ewelme---(which see for access, &c.): 47 miles from London.---A number of the nuns of St. Clare took refuge here after the first French revolution.---The living is a curacy not in charge, annexed to the rectory of Newington, in the peculiar jurisdiction of the Archbishop of Canterbury: contains 8 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 52: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £665: poor rates in 1837, £53.

BRIGNALL, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a parish in the western division of the wapentake of Gilling, union of Teesdale: 280 miles from London (coach road 243), 1 from Greta Bridge, 4 from Bernard Castle.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, to Darlington, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 148 miles.---Money orders issued at Darlington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---The living (Virgin Mary), a vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond, diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £8. 12s. 6d.: pres. net income, £300: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, Orfeur Wm. Kilvington, 1816: contains 1,910 acres: 34 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 190: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,084: poor rates in 1837, £75.---N. 1 m. Rokeby Park.

BRIGSLEY, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Bradley-Haverstoe, parts of Lindsey, union of Caistor: 179 miles from London (coach road 162), 6 from Grimsby, 11 from Caistor.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Peterborough and Louth to Holton-le-Clay station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, Lincoln, Boston, and Louth, &c., 124 miles. Money orders issued at Grimsby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. The living (St. Helen), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £7. 4s. 4d.: pres. net income, £55: patron, Collegiate Church, Southwell: pres. incumbent, C. B. Marshall, 1835: contains 860 acres: 20 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 125: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £953: poor rates in 1837, £132.

BRIGSTOCK, NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Corby, union of Thrapston: 80 miles from London, 8 from Kettering. Nor. West. Rail. through Blisworth and Northampton to Thrapston, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Weedon, and Northampton, &c., 108 miles. Money orders issued at Kettering: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. There is a small endowed school here. The other parochial charities produce £51. 18s. a year. The Independents have a chapel here, the congregation of which was formed in 1778. The church is an ancient structure, in three different styles of architecture, with a peculiar round tower and steeple. The place formerly belonged to the Dukes of Montague, whose ancient manor-house still remains. There is a curious custom in this manor, that if a man die possessed of copyhold lands or tenements; which descended to him in fee, his youngest son inherits, while, if they were purchased by him, his eldest son takes the property. The living (St. Andrew), a vicarage, with the perpetual curacy of Stanyon annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Northampton, diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £11. 7s. 3½d.: pres. net income, £236: patron, Duke of Cleveland: pres. incumbent, Thomas Cooke, 1824: contains 5,900 acres: 253 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 1,262: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 1,451: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £6,385: poor rates in 1837, £897. The great and small tithes, the property of the lay impropriators and the vicar, were commuted in 1795. N. E. 2 m. is Farming Woods, the seat of the Right Hon. Robert Vernon Smith, son of Robert Smith, Esq., and nephew of the celebrated Rev. Sydney Smith, canon of St. Paul's. Mr. Smith graduated at Oxford, where he was a second classman in classics. Having joined the liberal party, he went into parliament, in 1829, as member for Tralee, for which place he sat till 1831, when he was chosen for Northampton. His abilities were soon perceived, and he was made a lord of the treasury in 1830, in Earl Grey's administration, which office he held till its conclusion in 1834. When the Whigs resumed power in 1835, he was made secretary to the board of control, which he retained till 1839, when he was instituted under-secretary for the colonies. Mr. V. Smith is well known as a frequent and judicious participant in the debates of the House of Commons. About two miles distant is Lieveden, an exquisite cruciform structure, and a great attraction to strangers, where the gunpowder plot is supposed to have been concocted and matured.

BRILL (anciently BREHULL), BUCKINGHAM, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Ashenden, union of Thame: 75 miles from London (coach road 49), 7 from Thame, 10 from Bicester. Gt. West. Rail. to Oxford, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Rugby and Banbury to Oxford, &c., 107 miles.

Money orders issued at Thame: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. Brill is a place of great antiquity, there having been a palace here of the kings of Mercia, which was a favourite resort of Edward the Confessor, who came hither to enjoy the pleasures of the chase in Bernwode forest, during the hunting season; and Henry II. kept his court here from 1160 to 1162, attended by his chancellor-archbishop, Thomas à Becket, as did also Henry III. in 1224. King John also appears to have made it his occasional residence, as there are still some remains of a structure, called King John's Palace, which have been converted into four cottages. In 1642, the place was held for King Charles, when it was attacked by Hampden with a considerable force, the parliamentarians being repulsed with much loss; but on the capture of Reading, in the following year, the royalists evacuated the place. A charter for a fair here was granted in 1346 to Sir John Molyns, which has within these few years been revived; and there is also a charter for a fair on St. Thomas' eve, but it has long since ceased to be held, as has also the market. The manor was anciently held on the tenure of furnishing a hundred capons for the king's table, when he chose to reside in his palace at Brill. The church is a small and ancient edifice, partly in the Norman style, with a low tower and dwarf spire; in the interior there is a cavity for books, or a ciborium for the eucharist. The Wesleyan Methodists have a place of worship here. There is a National school here, endowed, in 1815, by Sir John Aubrey, with £70 a year, and lately a new and commodious school-room has been built on the green, near the road leading to Dorton Spa. Pym's charity school, for the education of 23 boys, was founded and endowed, in 1637, with £23 a year, by John Pym. The pasture grounds of the parish yield £120 annually, which are distributed among the poor. There is an almshouse for widows. The other charities are numerous and valuable. There is a good deal of lace-making here, and a manufactory of earthenware. The land in the parish is of good quality, and in Brill Hill a yellow ochre is found in large quantities, much of which is sent to distant parts of the country. There are also several stone quarries within its boundaries, the products from which, however, are chiefly used for mending roads; but a portion called the "greys," and a species of iron sandstone, are well adapted for building. On the north side of Muswell Hill stood the hermitage of St. Werburgh, a cell to the priory of Chelwood, but only the vestiges are now visible in a little hollow, and on the summit of the hill are the remains of an ancient encampment, around the mound of which there are rows of ancient sycamore trees. The living (All Saints), a perpetual curacy with Boarstall, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Buckingham, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £101: patron, Sir T. D. Aubrey, Bart.: pres. incumbent, J. S. Baron, 1814: contains 2,600 acres: 325 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 1,449: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 1,666: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £5,124: poor rates in 1837, £857. Fairs, first Wednesday in May, and first Wednesday after Michaelmas, O. S., for cattle. N. 1 m. Wootton House.

BRILLEY, HEREFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Huntingdon: 158 miles from London (coach road 155), 5 from Hay, 7 from Kington. — Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 40 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 111 miles. — Money orders issued at Hay: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 12 noon. — The living is a perpetual curacy, annexed to the vicarage of Kington: contains 4,250 acres: 101 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 587: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 675: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,657: poor rates in 1837, £476.

BRIMFIELD, HEREFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Wolphy, union of Tenbury: 150 miles from London (coach road 136), 6 from Ludlow, 5 from Tenbury. — Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford and Worcester to Kidderminster, thence 22 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Kidderminster, &c., 93 miles. — Money orders issued at Ludlow: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11½ a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £17: pres. net income, £98: patron, Bishop of Hereford: pres. incumbent, G. Pinhorn, 1832: contains 1,880 acres: 122 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 591: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 680: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,099: poor rates in 1837, £206.

BRIMHAM. See HARTWITH WITH WINSLEY.

BRIMINGTON, DERBY, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Scarsdale, on the high road from Chesterfield to Worksop: 159 miles from London (coach road 152), 2 from Chesterfield. — Midland Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. from Derby to Chesterfield, 27 miles, thence 2 miles. — A branch post-office to that at Chesterfield, which is the post-town, and where money orders are issued: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 6 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The church, dedicated to St. Michael, was rebuilt in 1847, in the decorated style of the thirteenth century. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Derby, diocese of Lichfield, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £102: patron, Vicar of Chesterfield: pres. incumbent, J. K. Marsh, M.A., 1836: contains 211 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 780: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,200: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,433: poor rates in 1848, £244. — Brimington Hall, the property of E. T. Coke, Esq. — S. ¼ m. Tapton Grove, the residence of John Meynell, Esq. — S. 1 m. Tapton House, the seat of R. Stephenson, Esq., the celebrated engineer.

BRIMPSFIELD, GLOUCESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Rapsgate, union of Cirencester: 113 miles from London (coach road 97), 5 from Painswick, 8 from Gloucester. — Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Stonehouse, &c., 113 miles. — Money orders issued at Gloucester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — Tanner says of this place—There was an alien priory of Benedictine monks here, a cell to the abbey of St. Stephen of Fontenay, in Normandy. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory, with that of Cranham annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Gloucester, and diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £9. 12s. 1d.: pres. net income, £410: patron, W. Goodrich, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. Moore, 1829: contains 2,240 acres: 79 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 417: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 479: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,825:

poor rates in 1837, £243. — S. W. 2. m. Ebworth Park.

BRIMPTON, BERKS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Faircross, union of Newbury: 52 miles from London (coach road 50), 6 from Newbury, 12 from Reading. — Gt. West. Rail. through Reading to Woolhampton station, thence 1½ miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Banbury, Oxford, and Reading, to Woolhampton, &c., 135 miles. — Money orders issued at Newbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — There was formerly a house of the knights-hospitallers here. The chapel still remains, although much dilapidated, and turned into a wood-house; there are, however, sufficient remains of its ecclesiastical character left to make it interesting, such as its windows, piscina, and doorway, surmounted by the cross of the order. The parochial charities produce (including cottages and lands left by an unknown donor for the repairs of the parish church) about £20 per annum. The church is an ancient building, to which a tower was added one hundred years ago; it has been lately (1848) thoroughly repaired, and re-seated with open benches. The whole of the timber for the repairs was given by the Earl of Falmouth, lord of the manor. There are some good arches, and a piscina in the church. The Earl of Falmouth likewise (1842) gave a plot of ground, on which a parochial school and school-house were built by the present vicar by subscription. There were two churches in this parish at the time of the Norman survey. — The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Berks, formerly in the diocese of Salisbury, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £7: patron, Rev. G. B. Caffin: pres. incumbent, G. B. Caffin, 1840: contains 1,692 acres: 84 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 412: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 474: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,507: poor rates in 1837, £248. Tithes commuted in 1840. — At the hamlet in the parish of Hyde End, is situated the seat of Charles Hyde, Esq., near Crookham End House, occupied by G. C. Fowler, Esq., Lieut. R.N. — Stone House, the seat of Edward Goddard, Esq.

BRIMPTON, SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Stone, division and union of Yeovil: 187 miles from London (coach road 123), 2 from Yeovil, 7 from Sherborne. — Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Taunton, thence 24 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, to Taunton, &c., 201 miles. — Money orders issued at Yeovil: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The inhabitants have the privilege of sending their children to an endowed school at Yeovil. There is a splendid old mansion in the parish, formerly one of the seats of the ancient family of the Sydenhams, but now the property of the Westmoreland family. The Lady Georgianna Fane resides there some few months in each year. — The living (St. Andrew), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Wells, and diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £7. 7s.: pres. net income, £170: patron, Mrs. Elizabeth Morris: pres. incumbent, T. Williams, 1786: contains 860 acres: 20 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 123: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,703: poor rates in 1837, £61.

BRIMSLADE, WILTS, an extra-parochial liberty in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Kinwardstone, intersected by the

Kennet and Avon Canal—(for access, &c., see MARLBOROUGH): 72 miles from London, 2 from Marlborough, 6 from Great Bedwin. Money orders issued at Marlborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. Contains 590 acres: 30 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 187.

BRIMSTAGE, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Bromborough, hun<sup>d</sup> of Wirral—(which see for access, &c.): 193 miles from London, 4 from Neston, 10 from Chester. Money orders issued at Chester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. Contains 1,050 acres: 27 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 161: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £976: poor rates in 1837, £35.

BRINGTON. See BLYMILL WITH BRINGTON.

BRIND. See NEWHAM WITH BRIND.

BRINDLE, LANCASTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Leyland, union of Chorley, intersected by the Leeds and Liverpool Canal: 216 miles from London (coach road 218), 5 from Chorley, 6 from Preston. Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Preston, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 116 miles. Money orders issued at Chorley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. There is a pauper lunatic asylum for this and several of the surrounding parishes. The parochial charities produce about £13. 13s. a year. The living (St. James), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Manchester, is valued at £12. 8s. 4d.: pres. net income, £515: patron, Duke of Devonshire: pres. incumbent, C. E. Kendall, 1822: contains 2,940 acres: 255 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,401: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,611: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,567: poor rates in 1837, £435.

BRINDLEY, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Acton, hun<sup>d</sup> of Nantwich—(which see for access, &c.): 174 miles from London, 4 from Nantwich, 6 from Tarporley. Money orders issued at Nantwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. Contains 950 acres: 34 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 184: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,515: poor rates in 1837, £151.

BRINGHURST, LEICESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Gartree, union of Uppingham: it comprises the chapelry of Great Easton, and townships of Bringhurst and Drayton: 28 miles from London (coach road 83), 2 from Rockingham, 3 from Caldecot. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Great Easton, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, &c., 78 miles. Money orders issued at Rockingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. A school here has an endowment of £3 a year. The living (St. Nicholas), a vicarage with the curacy of Great Easton, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Leicester, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £11. 15s.: pres. net income, £241: patron, Dean and Chapter of Peterborough: pres. incumbent, W. Cape, 1833: contains 490 acres: 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 840: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 966: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,893: poor rates in 1837, £77. The great and small tithes, moduses, &c., of the townships of Bringhurst, Great Easton, and Drayton, the property of the dean and chapter of Peterborough, and the vicar, were commuted in 1804.

BRINGTON, HUNTINGDON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>.

of Leightonstone, union of Thrapston: 95 miles from London (coach road 69), 6 from Thrapston, 5 from Kimbolton. Nor. West. Rail. through Blisworth to Thrapston, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Weedon and Northampton, to Thrapston, &c., 107 miles. Money orders issued at Thrapston: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. The living (All Saints), a rectory with the chapels of Bythorn and Old Weston, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Huntingdon, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £34. 3s. 6d.: pres. net income, £492: patron, Clare Hall, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, F. W. Lodington, 1839: contains 1,190 acres: 35 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 129: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,451: poor rates in 1837, £114. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1804.

BRINGTON (GREAT), NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Nobottle-Grove, union of Brixworth: 68 miles from London (coach road 72), 8 from Northampton, 1 from Whetton. Nor. West. Rail. to Weedon, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Weedon, &c., 74 miles. Money orders issued at Northampton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. The church contains several fine monuments to various members of the Spencer family, among which there is one to the memory of Henry Spencer, Earl of Sunderland, who was killed at the battle of Newbury, 1644. There is a chapel here of the Particular Baptists. The charity estates, which were settled in the time of Henry VI., produce about £225 a year. The living (the Blessed Virgin), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £40: pres. net income, £434: patron, Earl Spencer: pres. incumbent, H. Rose, 1830: contains 4,180 acres: 163 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 795: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 914: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £5,549: poor rates in 1837, £448. S. E., Althorpe House, the seat of Earl Spencer. The house is of pleasing elevation, and the park is distinguished by its peculiarly fine masses of foliage. His lordship is of distinguished descent, deriving his title from the Hon. John Spencer, third Earl of Sunderland, by Anne, daughter and co-heiress of John Churchill, the celebrated Duke of Marlborough, who represented Woodstock, and the county of Bedford, in parliament, till the time of his death. The son of that gentleman was, in 1761, created Baron Spencer of Althorpe, and Viscount Spencer. In 1765, he was advanced to the viscounty of Althorpe, and earldom of Spencer. His lordship was a knight of the garter, high steward of St. Albans, a governor of the Charterhouse, besides being in the possession of scientific distinctions. The son of that nobleman, John Charles, previous to his accession to the peerage, was a distinguished member of the House of Commons, and Chancellor of the Exchequer in Earl Grey's administration. So highly was his rectitude of purpose esteemed, that he was commonly termed the "honest Lord Althorpe." His lordship died in 1845, and was succeeded by his brother, the present peer, who is a captain in the navy, a C. B. and Knight of the orders of St. Louis and St. Anne of Russia.

BRININGHAM, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>.

of Holt, union of Walsingham: 146 miles from London (coach road 116), 7 from Fakenham, 4 from Holt. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Peterborough and Dereham to Fakenham, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, Dereham, &c., 166 miles. — Money orders issued at Fakenham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living (St. Maurice), a curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich: patron, Rev. S. Brereton: contains 1,450 acres: 36 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 243: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,336: poor rates in 1837, £257.

BRINKBURN (HIGH WARD), NORTHUMBRELAND, a township, formerly extra-parochial, but now in the parish of Long Framlington, eastern division of the ward of Coquetdale — (which see for access, &c.): 297 miles from London, 9 from Morpeth, 5 from Rothbury. — Money orders issued at Morpeth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1½ p.m.: post closes at noon. — The village stands at a spot where the western branch of the river Crequet crosses the eastern branch of the Roman Watling Street, and below it there are the evident remains of a bridge. John of Hexham, under the year 1164, calls this place Brinaburch, an orthography which has induced the conjecture that this was the true Brunanburch, where, in 958, King Athelstan fought the Irish Welsh, and Northumbrian Danes, with so much success. Tanner, in speaking of it, says—Here was a priory of black canons, founded in the time of Henry I. by Osbertus Colutarius, upon a piece of ground which was given him by William Bertram. This house was under the patronage of St. Peter, and about the time of the dissolution consisted of ten religious, who had the yearly income of £77. It was granted in the fourth year of Edward VI. to John, Earl of Warwick. The ruins of this monastery yet remain in a most beautiful situation, of which Hutchinson says that it is the most melancholy and deep solitude chosen for a religious edifice that he had ever visited; the ruins consist of the tower of the church, the dormitory, and the spire. — Contains 41 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 153: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,396: poor rates in 1837, £121.

BRINKBURN (SOUTH SIDE), NORTHUMBRELAND, a township in the parish of Felton, western division of the ward of Morpeth: 296 miles from London. — (For access and postal arrangements, see above.) — Contains 800 acres: 8 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 55: poor rates in 1837, £64.

BRINKHILL, LINCOLN, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Hill, parts of Lindsey, union of Spilsby: 161 miles from London (coach road 140), 5 from Spilsby, 8 from Louth. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Peterborough and Boston to Alford, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Lincoln and Boston to Alford, &c., 106 miles. — Money orders issued at Spilsby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living (St. Philip), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £137: patron, R. Cracroft, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. T. Maine: contains 780 acres: 25 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 168: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,109: poor rates in 1837, £71. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1773.

BRINKLEY, CAMBRIDGE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Radfield, union of Newmarket: 70 miles from London (coach road 60), 4 from Newmarket, 10 from Cambridge. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Chesterfield to Newmarket, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, and Cambridge, to Newmarket, &c., 146 miles. — Money orders issued at Newmarket: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. — A school here has a small endowment of lands in the parish of Oakington. — The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Ely, is valued at £13. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £241: patron, St. John's College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, G. F. Holcombe, 1817: contains 1,500 acres: 37 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 366: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 420: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,850: poor rates in 1837, £218. The great and small tithes, moduses, &c., the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1811.

BRINKLOW, WARWICK, a parish in the Kirby division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Knightlow: 87 miles from London (coach road 89), 8 from Coventry, 5 from Rugby. — Nor. West. Rail. to Rugby, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Leicester to Stretton station, 87½, thence 4 miles. — Money orders issued at Coventry: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — A school here is endowed with £20 a year. The other parochial charities produce £24 a year. The Independents have a chapel here. There was formerly a castle here belonging to the Mowbrays. The petty sessions for the Kirby division of the hundred of Knightlow are held here. — The living (St. John the Baptist), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Coventry, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, now in the diocese of Worcester, is valued at £17. 10s.: pres. net income, £228: patron, the Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, J. S. Hodgson, 1840: contains 1,410 acres: 198 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 797: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 917: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,897: poor rates in 1837, £300.

BRINKWORTH, WILTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Malmesbury: this parish includes the tithing of Grittenham: 87 miles from London (coach road 92), 5 from Malmesbury, 8 from Chippenham. — Gt. West. Rail. through Reading to Wootton-Basset, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Wootton-Basset, &c., 172 miles. — Money orders issued at Malmesbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The parochial charities produce £21 a year. — The living (St. Michael), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wilts, and diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £23. 9s. 2d.: pres. net income, £808: patron, Pembroke College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, C. Wightwick, 1841: contains 6,470 acres: 265 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,694: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,948: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £9,799: poor rates in 1837, £989.

BRINNINGTON, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Stockport, hun<sup>d</sup> of Macclesfield — (which see for access, &c.): 179 miles from London, 1 from Stockport, 7 from Ashton. — Money orders issued at Stockport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. — Contains 810 acres: 791 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 5,331: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 6,131: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,576: poor rates in 1837, £810.

BRINSCOMBE. See WEARE.

BRINSOP, HEREFORD, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Grimsworth, union of Weobley: 147 miles from London (coach road 141), 6 from Hereford, 5 from Wellington.---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 29 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 90 miles.---Money orders issued at Hereford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £4: pres. net income, £268: patron, Bishop of Hereford: pres. incumbent, H. Headley, 1840: contains 1,470 acres: 17 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 116: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup>: £2,218: poor rates in 1837, £75.

BRINSWORTH, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Rotherham: 181 miles from London (coach road 161), 2 from Rotherham, 3 from Sheffield.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Derby to Sheffield, thence 3 miles: from Derby, to Sheffield, &c., 48 miles.---Money orders issued at Rotherham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---Contains 1,050 acres: 48 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 241: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup>: £3,077: poor rates in 1837, £175. The small tithes, the property of the lay impropriator, were commuted in 1812.

BRINTON, NORFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Holt: 147 miles from London (coach road 119), 4 from Holt, 5 from Walsingham.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough and Dereham to Fakenham, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, and Dereham, &c., 167 miles.---Money orders issued at Holt: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---The living (St. Andrew), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory annexed to that of Thornage, in the diocese of Norwich, and having jointly a pres. net income of £467: patron, Lord Hastings: pres. incumbent, A. Dashwood, 1826: contains 650 acres: 50 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 193.

BRISCO (or BIRKCEUGH), CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of St. Cuthbert, liberties of the city of Carlisle: 297 miles from London (coach road 299), 4 from Carlisle, 14 from Penrith.---Nor. West. Rail. to Brisco station: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 197 miles.---Money orders issued at Carlisle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---Contains 55 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 303: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 348.---Brisco Hall.

BRISSET MAGNA. See BRICETT (GREAT).

BRISLEY, NORFOLK, a parish in Launditch hund<sup>d</sup>, union of Mitford and Launditch: 134 miles from London (coach road 105), 6 from East Dereham, 6 from Fakenham.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough, Ely, and Dereham, to Elmham station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, and Dereham, &c., 154 miles.---Money orders issued at East Dereham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---The living (St. Bartholomew), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory with the vicarage of Gately, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £8. 7s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £436: patron, Christ College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, E. J. Ash, 1838: contains 1,230 acres: 82 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 388: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup>: £1,301: poor rates in 1837, £198.---N. E. 1 m. Elmham Hall, the seat of Lord Sondes---(for which see ELMHAM.)

BRISLINGTON, SOMERSET, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> and union of Keynsham: 121 miles from London (coach road 111), 3 from Bristol, 10 from Bath.---Gt. West. Rail. to Bristol, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Bristol, &c., 134 miles.---Money orders issued at Bristol: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---The church, within these few years, has been enlarged. There is a large and well-arranged lunatic asylum here. The parochial charities produce £11. 13s. a year.---The living (St. Luke), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bath, and diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £25: pres. net income, £170: patron, E. W. L. Popham: pres. incumbent, E. H. Langford: contains 2,960 acres: 189 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,474: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,695: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup>: £6,825: poor rates in 1837, £511.

BRISTOL, GLOUCESTER, a city and county in itself, situated on the southern side of the Bristol Channel, and surrounded by the counties of Gloucester and Somerset: 118 miles from London (coach road 120), 34 from Gloucester.---Gt. West. Rail. to Bristol station: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., to station, 131 miles.---Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m. and 3½ p.m.: post closes 7.10 a.m. and 9½ p.m.---Locally, it is situated principally in Gloucestershire, but partly also in Somersetshire. Its own peculiar county includes the course of the Avon from Hanham Mills, about four miles above the city, to the mouth of that river; and takes in so much of the Bristol Channel as is included in a line running along the boundary of Somersetshire, as far as the How Rocks, just below Clevedon, about twelve miles below Bristol---thence proceeding in a direct course to the islands called the Steep Holmes and the Flat Holmes, more than twenty miles below the mouth of the Avon, whence it proceeds about mid-channel to an island called the Denny, and from thence to the Avon road, on the north side of the river; and a perambulation, by land and by water, in order to secure and record the boundaries, is made every seven years. The principal recognition of this ancient district is found in the act of 1 William IV. c. 4, by which the corporation of the poor were empowered to purchase an asylum for pauper lunatics; and the act specifies that the site, while so employed, shall become part of the city and county of Bristol. By the Reform Act, and for the purposes of parliamentary representation, there were added to the ancient precincts of the city, the whole of the parish of Clifton, the district of the united parishes of St. James and St. Paul, some parts of the parishes of Bodminster and Westbury, and that part of the parishes of St. Philip and St. Jacob which had before been included within the limits of the city. The foundation of Bristol is very ancient. By the Britons the place was called Caer Oder, 'the city of Oder,' or, perhaps, 'the city of the Chasm;' and by some antiquarians it is supposed to have been the Abona of Antoninus. It is spoken of as a fortified city by the old historian Gildas in the fifth century, and by Nennius in the seventh, showing that even in those rude ages it was a place of considerable strength; but its only authentic history can be traced no higher than the time of Athelstane.

BRISTOL TERMINUS, GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

Drawn & Engraved for the British Architect.

London: Published by J. P. Russell, 1847.

By the Saxons it was called Brito-stow, or Bright-stowe, which means 'the pleasant city.' In the Latin deeds it is termed Bristowa and Bristolia; and Florence of Worcester states that, in 1063, Harold set sail from Bristowa, on his incursion into Wales; and soon after the Norman Conquest, his sons, attempting to surprise the city, were defeated by the inhabitants. At that time, Bristol was the mart for an extensive traffic in English slaves, a business which William abolished at the request of Archbishop Lanfranc, an able prelate, formerly Abbot of Bec, in Normandy, who boldly denounced the popish corruption of transubstantiation, which had just then been proclaimed; and, with a manly independence, refused to obey a citation of the pope as his superior. In 1089, Geoffrey, at that time Bishop of Coutance, in France, who took part with Robert, eldest son of William the Norman, in his endeavour to supersede William Rufus in his possession of the English throne, assembled a considerable body of forces here, and fortified the town walls, portions of which even still remain. Bristol was again the scene of important operations during the struggle between Stephen and the Empress Matilda. The Earl of Gloucester, who sided with the latter, took possession of the city in the name of the empress, and rebuilt the castle, into which she retired for safety after her escape from Arundel, which Stephen was at that time besieging. Stephen having been taken prisoner, he was thrown into a dungeon here, and, by Matilda's orders, loaded with chains, which he wore in his dreary confinement for the space of nine years, when he was released, and exchanged for the earl, who had, in his turn, been taken by Stephen's adherents. Henry, afterwards Henry II., having been brought from Normandy in 1142, was placed here under the protection of the Earl of Gloucester, with whom he remained for four years, and received a part of his instruction under his direction. In 1285, the festival of Christmas was celebrated here by Edward I., who also called a council during his sojourn; and during the war between the king, Edward II., and the barons, in 1322, Harry de Mumford, and Henry de Willington, who had been taken prisoners, were both executed here. About the year 1353, Edward III. removed the staple of wool from several of the towns in Flanders and Brabant to England; and among the places which enjoyed the advantage of that proceeding, was Bristol, which thereafter grew quickly into commercial importance. In 1399, Henry, Duke of Lancaster, afterwards Henry IV., besieged the town; and after its surrender, sentenced Scroop, Earl of Wiltshire (the governor), Sir John Bushey, and Sir Henry Green, to be beheaded. In the same year, he, by an act of parliament, exempted the city, by land and water, from the jurisdiction of the lord high admiral of England. In 1471, the plan was concerted between the Duke of Somerset, the Earl of Devonshire, and several other nobles in the interest of the house of Lancaster, for the purpose of driving Edward IV. from the throne, which led to the fatal battle, which resulted in the entire discomfiture of the party, the assassination of the gallant young Prince Edward, son of Henry VI., and the imprisonment and ruin of the heroic Queen Margaret, who was carried in triumph to London. In 1485, Henry VII. visited Bristol, when the citizens, in order to evince their great respect for the king, all appeared in their best apparel, a circumstance of which Henry took very characteristic notice, for he remarked, that their wives were far too finely dressed for their station in life; and, to cure the vanity, imposed a fine of twenty shillings on every one of the citizens that was worth £20 in property. During the great contest between Charles I. and the parliament, the importance of the position of Bristol was soon perceived, and it was strongly garrisoned for the latter, who appointed Colonel Fiennes, a skilful and determined officer, their governor. The king, sensible of the value of the place, endeavoured to gain possession of it, by means of some of those resident in the town who were favourable to his cause; but the plan was discovered, and Mr. Bouchier and Alderman Yeomans were hanged for the attempt. Prince Rupert then closely invested the city with a considerable force; and notwithstanding the intrepidity of the governor, backed as he was by Blake and other officers, he was obliged to surrender at the end of three days. The king arrived soon afterwards, and attended divine service at the cathedral on the following Sunday. Bristol continued in the possession of the royalists for nearly two years, when, after a most vigorous defence, it capitulated to Fairfax and Cromwell, who destroyed the castle. From that time it knew nothing of warfare or disturbance, but went on quietly, increasing in wealth and commercial importance, till the autumn of 1831, when it was the scene of one of the most serious riots that ever occurred in this country, in the progress of which, when, through the apparent want of energy or unity between the civil and military authorities, some hundreds of persons were killed or wounded, and an immense amount of property was destroyed. It arose out of the strong excitement which then prevailed in the country respecting the Reform Bill, for the passing of which the great majority of the lower classes were anxious. As Sir Charles Wetherell, the recorder, who was known to entertain very strong opinions in opposition to the bill, was proceeding on Saturday, the 29th of September, to hold the quarter sessions, his carriage was assailed by a few rude fellows; and there being no sufficient force at hand to repress the assault, the mob increased till it became a large crowd, which proceeded to the utmost extremities of lawless violence, retaining possession of the town until the following Monday. The gaols were broken open and burnt; the Episcopal palace, the mansion-house, and the custom-house were destroyed; and a great number of the private houses in Queen Square were rifled, the furniture broken to pieces, the cellars entered, the wine and spirits seized, and the edifices set fire to, many of the rioters perishing, in a state of beastly intoxication, in the flames which their own hands had kindled. The disorder was at length suppressed by a strong military force. The officer in command of the troops, Col. Brereton, an excellent and approved soldier, was ordered to be tried by a court-martial, but shot himself before the trial came on; and the civil officers were arraigned in the Court of Queen's Bench, for a negligence of their magisterial duties, by order of the government; but the mayor was honourably acquitted, and the proceedings against the other prisoners were respite. Bristol is very agreeably situated in a vale, near the confluence of the Avon and the Frome, the houses rising up the acclivities of the hills on either side, in a somewhat circular form, which has led to the remark that it very much resembles Rome. The old town, which forms the centre of the city, is highly picturesque in its appearance, many of the houses being old, the walls formed of wood and plaster, and the several stories projecting one beyond another over the streetway; but in the more modern parts of the town, the streets are frequently broad and well built, and there are several very handsome squares. The town is well paved and lighted with gas, and the inhabitants enjoy an abundant supply of excellent water, drawn from springs through conduits formed by the monks in the olden times, and which are placed in very convenient situations. A handsome stone bridge, with three wide arches, over the Avon, connects the northern with the southern portion of the town; and there is a swing bridge over the Frome, which moves so as to admit the passage of ships. There are some interesting antiquities here, of which part of the ancient foundations of the walls and a gateway, under St. John's church, are most worthy of notice. There were formerly two nunneries here, dedicated to St. Mary Magdalene and St. Sepulchre; also two priories, dedicated to St. Philip and St. Catherine; and several hospitals, all dissolved by Henry VIII. But of course, the crowning glory of Bristol, in an architectural and antiquarian view, is the cathedral. Tanner, in speaking of it, says—Robert Fitz-Harding, A.D. 1148, mayor of Bristol, founded, on a rising ground in the north-west part of the city, a priory of black canons, of which house, as well as of the order, St. Augustine was patron saint. This was, in the latter end of the reign of King Henry II., changed into an abbey, which had, before its dissolution, yearly revenues worth £767. 15s. 3d. King Henry VIII., A.D. 1542, changed it into a cathedral, by the name of the cathedral of the Holy Trinity, and founded therein a bishop, dean, six secular canons or prebendaries, one archdeacon, six minor canons or priests' vicars, a deacon and subdeacon, six lay-clerks, six choristers, two grammar schoolmasters, four almshouses, &c., who were endowed with the site, church, and greatest part of the lands of the old monastery. The church is a beautiful cruciform structure, presenting great varieties of English architecture. The whole length is 175 feet, the length of the transept, breadth of the nave and aisles, 73 feet, and the height of the tower 140 feet. The tower, which rises from the centre, is embattled, strengthened with buttresses, and crowned with pinnacles. The interior of the edifice is richly embellished in the purest taste. The nave was destroyed during the great civil war. The roofs of the choir and transepts, finely groined, are supported by clustered columns richly moulded, showing, by the striking elegance of their contour, the remarkable beauty of the whole edifice when entire. At the entrance of the choir there is an empanelled screen, ornamented with carved figures of the minor prophets; and in the chapels, of which there are several of great beauty, there are many monuments well worthy of observation: among which may be noticed, one of Robert Fitz-Harding, the founder, of Mrs. Draper, the original of Sterne's Eliza, of Lady Henketh, who was celebrated by Cowper, and of the wife of the Rev. W. Mason, the poet, with a beautiful epitaph written by her husband. The chapter-house, a spacious edifice highly enriched in the later style of Norman architecture, with a part of the cloisters in the later English style, still remains. The former has recently been renovated; and the entrance gateway, the lower part exhibiting the old Norman style, and the upper part the later English style, is in an excellent state of preservation. Bristol contains nineteen parishes, and an extra-parochial district, called the Castle precincts, which is exempt from the payment of ecclesiastical assessments. The living of All Saints is a discharged vicarage, valued at £4. 3s. 4d.; gross income, £160; patron, the Dean and Chapter of Gloucester; incumbent, Henry Rogers, inducted in 1841. It is a peculiar of the bishop. The church is a fine old edifice in the early English style, the spire of which was added in 1716, and contains a remarkably fine monument to the memory of Edward Colstone, Esq., which was sculptured by Rysbrach. St. Augustine's is a discharged vicarage, valued at £6; gross income, £320; in the patronage of the Dean and Chapter of Gloucester and Bristol; pres. incumbent, Rev. W. Milner, 1832. The church is ancient, in the mixed style of English architecture. Christ Church, with St. Ewen, is a discharged rectory, valued at £11. 10s.; gross income, £390; formerly in the patronage of the Corporation, and exempt from visitation, now in the patronage of the Rev. J. Strickland; incumbent, J. Strickland, 1842. The church is a modern building after one of the Greek styles, and has an elegant tower and spire. St. James's is a perpetual curacy, not in charge, in the peculiar jurisdiction of the bishop; gross income, £551; formerly in the patronage of the Corporation, now of T. S. Harford, Esq., and of trustees; incumbent, J. H. Woodward, 1838. The church was at one time collegiate, and was attached to a priory dedicated to St. James. It is an imposing edifice in the Norman style of architecture, and is supposed to contain the remains of the Robert, Earl of Gloucester, spoken of above, and of Eleonora, niece of King John. In speaking of the ancient priory, Tanner says—In the north-east suburb of this city, Robert, base-born son to King Henry I., and Earl of Gloucester, built a priory of Benedictine monks to the honour of St. James, in the latter end of his father's, or the beginning of King Stephen's, reign. This he made a cell to the abbey of Tewkesbury, and, as parcel of the possessions of that great house, was granted, in the 35th year of Henry VIII., to Henry Brayne. The church was made parochial in 1347. St. John the Baptist's, with St. Lawrence, is a discharged rectory, valued at £7. 4s. 4d.; gross income, £160; formerly in the patronage of the Corporation, and exempt from visitation, now in that of J. A. Cooke, Esq., and trustees; pres. incumbent, G. N. Barrow, 1834. The church is a fair specimen of the later style of English architecture. St. Nicholas, with St. Leonard's annexed, is a discharged rectory, the first valued at £21. 1s. 1d., the other at £12; gross income, £257; in the patronage of the Dean and

Chapter of Gloucester and Bristol, and in the peculiar jurisdiction of the bishop; present incumbent, also G. N. Barrow, 1840. St. Mark's or Gaunt's is a perpetual curacy, not in charge. It was at one time collegiate, but is now the chapel of the mayor, whose chaplain officiates every Sabbath. The church is a remarkably fine specimen of English architecture, and has a pleasing tower. St. Mary le Port's is a discharged rectory, valued at £7; gross income, £150; patron, Isaac Cooke, Esq.; present incumbent, John Packer, 1847. This is a peculiar of the bishop: the church is very old, and built in the early style of English architecture. St. Mary Redcliffe's, with St. Thomas's annexed, now united to Bedminster, is a perpetual curacy, valued at £12. 6s. 3d.; gross income, £366; present incumbent, M. R. Whish, 1806. This is a peculiar of the bishop, and in the patronage of the Prebendary of Bedminster: the church is one of the most elegant ecclesiastical edifices in the country. It is, Camden says, on all accounts the first parish church in England—an expression which must be taken cum grano salis; however, it is a very fine thing no doubt, and well worthy of observation. It was founded in 1249 by Simon de Burton, mayor of Bristol, and completed in 1376. Having sustained very great injury from a violent storm in 1445, it was repaired by the mayor, William Cannynge, who is consequently esteemed as the second founder, and to whose memory two admirable monumental statues have been placed in the church. The style presents every date of English architecture, and all beautiful, the ornaments being of the most delicate and elaborate description. There are some fine paintings by Hogarth in the interior of the church, some of which have been so unfortunately placed as to block up the east window. The whole building is cruciform, having the nave, which is lighted by a series of lofty cathedral windows, raised above the aisles. Sir William Penn, father of the just and benevolent founder of Pennsylvania, was buried within the walls. St. Michael's is a discharged rectory, valued at £6; gross income, £372; formerly in the patronage of the Corporation, now of G. Bengough, Esq., and trustees; incumbent, J. Knight, 1816. This is also a peculiar of the Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol: the church was rebuilt some years ago in a plain style of architecture. St. Matthew's is a perpetual curacy, under the patronage of trustees; incumbent, J. B. Clifford, 1837. St. Paul's is a perpetual curacy, not in charge; gross income, £513; formerly in the patronage of the Corporation, now of Isaac Cooke, Esq., and trustees; present incumbent, C. P. Bullock, 1823: this is also a peculiar of the bishop. St. Peter's is a discharged rectory, valued at £6. 7s. 6d.; gross income, £240; in the patronage of J. A. Cooke, Esq., and trustees; incumbent, H. C. Brice, 1829. The churchyard is a very ancient and interesting structure, and beneath its walls are deposited the remains of the unfortunate poet Savage. St. Philip and St. Jacob's is a discharged rectory, valued at £15; gross income, £440; formerly in the patronage of the Corporation, now of J. A. Cooke, Esq., and trustees; incumbent, S. E. D—, 1832: the church is built in the early English style, and is very ancient. St. Stephen's is a discharged rectory, valued at £16; gross income, £292; in the patronage of the Lord Chancellor, and a peculiar of the bishop; incumbent, Charles Buck, 1830: the church, which was built about 1470, is a fine specimen of the later English style. The Temple, or Holy Cross, is a discharged vicarage, valued at £3. 4s. 2d.; gross income, £387; formerly in the patronage of the Corporation, now of G. Cooke, Esq., and trustees; incumbent, F. Elwin, 1816. The church originally belonged to the order of the knights-templars, and presents a mixture of the Norman and early English styles. Its steeple leans considerably, and, when the bells are rung, is felt to shake very much. St. Werburgh's is a discharged rectory, valued at £10; gross income, £70; in the patronage of the Lord Chancellor; incumbent, John Hall, 1832: the church was founded in 1190, and is in the early English style of architecture. Besides the churches, there are several Episcopal chapels, viz., St. James's, a perpetual curacy, under the patronage of J. S. Harford, Esq., and trustees; income, £551; incumbent, J. H. Woodward, 1838. St. Barnabas, income, £150; under the patronage of the perpetual Curate of St. Paul's. St. Luke's, patron, Vicar of St. Philip and St. Jacob. Trinity Chapel, a perpetual curacy; income, £400; patron, J. S. Harford, Esq., and trustees; incumbent, A. Rogers, 1841. St. Simon's, a perpetual curacy; income, £150; patron, Crown and Bishop alternately; incumbent, J. T. Barclay, 1844. St. Jude's, a perpetual curacy; income, £150; patron, same as last; incumbent, W. Battersby, 1845. Coal-pit Heath Chapel, a perpetual curacy; income, £150; patron, the Bishop; incumbent, J. R. Woodford, 1845. St. Andrew's, Montpellier, a perpetual curacy; income, £150; patron, the Bishop. St. George's, Brandon Hill, is a vicarage under the patronage of the Dean and Chapter; income, £285; present incumbent, R. L. Hopper, 1844. The dissenters of all denominations have numerous chapels in Bristol; all the structures are neat, and some of them of very handsome elevation. A general cemetery has been formed in the neighbourhood of the city, under an act passed in 1837. Besides the cathedral, the churches, and the chapels, the public buildings are numerous and important. Among the first is the Exchange, in Corn Street, which was erected in 1760, by the corporation, at an expense of £50,000 and upwards. It is a large and handsome edifice of the Corinthian order of architecture, 110 feet in length, and 148 in depth: the space intended for the merchants is a peristyle, 90 feet by 80, and capable of containing 1,440 persons; but the commercial gentlemen of Bristol never took to it, but continued to transact their business in the open street, until the commercial rooms were built in 1811, when they cost about £17,000. The Exchange is now chiefly used as a corn market. The commercial rooms building contains several apartments of very fine proportions, one of which is used as a library and news-room. The council-house was built in 1827, at an expense of about £14,000. The assembly rooms, as the building is called, in Princes Street, is a fine structure of the Corinthian order. The Victoria rooms, at the top of Park Street, is used for assemblies of all kinds, has a very striking façade, and contains some apartments of very noble dimensions; the grand hall or saloon is 117 feet by 55, and 48 in height. The theatre was erected in 1766 by Mr. Powell, and is opened during the winter for performances; Mr. Garrick pronounced it, for its dimensions, the most complete in Europe. The inhabitants of Bristol have not been behind-hand with the rest of the world in participating in the set of intellectual progress; and the institutions in the city for the promotion of mental enjoyment, and the diffusion of information, are numerous and well conducted. The chief are the Literary and Philosophical Society, and the Mechanics' Institution, each well adapted for the class in society for which it is intended. Connected with both there are libraries, reading rooms, museums, lecture rooms, chemical laboratories, and scientific apparatus. The city possesses one very valuable acquisition in a library, founded in 1615 by Mr. Robert Redwood, who devised a house in King Street to the corporation, on condition of its being converted into a public library. The building on the site is now a very handsome one. The stock of books was afterwards increased by several valuable donations, and the library now contains more than 15,000 volumes. About the year 1773, a society was formed, called the Bristol Library Society, to which the corporation apportioned a certain part of the structure which had been used for the city library. To that building, some years afterwards, a wing was added by the Library Society, that contained a library-room, from which, subsequently, a communication was made with the city library. The members of the society have the use of the books which belong to the corporation, and the mayor, sheriffs, and chamberlain, for the time being, have equal access to the library of the society without being subscribers; but the city library is not open to any of the other citizens, except such as subscribe to the society. There was a medical library formed in 1831, which now contains about 2,000 volumes; its members, about sixty in number, pay two guineas a year towards its support. The educational institutions in Bristol, as might be supposed, are numerous and valuable, from a report of their statistics, read to the British Association in 1841; and since then, they have become both more numerous and more excellent. It appears that there were, in that year, 598 schools of all classes in Bristol, with 21,864 pupils, of whom about 53 per cent. attended the regular day and evening schools, and 11 per cent. the infant schools. The first of these educational institutions is the Bristol College, which was opened in 1831, and belongs to a body of proprietary. The curriculum of the senior department is, in principle, precisely the same as that of either Oxford or Cambridge, without, however, the exclusive mathematical tendency of the one, or the peculiarly exclusive classical bias of the other: it comprehends all the branches of classical and scientific erudition. The junior department of the college is strictly adapted for gradation in the higher branch of the institution; but the whole object of its founders was to provide an ample and sufficient commercial, as well as a literary education. It is now one of the colleges of the University of London. The grammar-school is the next in importance. It was founded in 1531 by Robert Thorne, whose monument has been placed in the church of St. Werburgh, who endowed it with £1,000, which were laid out in purchasing lands belonging to the hospital of St. Bartholomew. These estates were afterwards granted out in fee-farm by the corporation, who reserved a rent of £41. 6s. 8d. for the charity. The corporation subsequently repurchased the property, which they claimed as civic property, subject only to the fee-farm rent which they themselves fixed; but a suit has been instituted for the recovery of the principal, and there is no doubt that the whole of it will be recovered for the school. A certain portion of the income of the school is expended in the support of several university exhibitions, and two small fellowships in St. John's College, Oxford. The sons of resident freemen have the right of being educated here. There is a grammar-school attached to the cathedral for the instruction of the choristers. There is also an hospital here, founded by John Carr in 1586, called Queen Elizabeth's Hospital, at which one hundred boys are clothed, educated, and maintained; the endowment now produces upwards of £5,000 a year, and is placed under the direction of the trustees of the municipal charities of the city. There are three schools founded here by Edward Colston, in the beginning of the last century; in that in Temple parish, thirty boys are clothed and instructed; in that in the parish of St. Augustine, one hundred boys are clothed, educated, and maintained; and in the third, forty boys of the parishes of St. Thomas and St. Mary Redcliffe are educated. In addition to the above, there is a school in Temple parish for the clothing and instruction of forty girls. The Red Maid's school, in St. Augustine's parish, is endowed for the clothing, maintenance, and education of forty-four girls. The trustees of this school began to build a new hospital for this charity in 1835, in the ancient collegiate style, but the progress of the works was interrupted by law proceedings, and eventually the buildings and site were sold to the trustees of Queen Elizabeth's Hospital, for the sum of £9,250. The charitable institutions of Bristol are as numerous and as well supported as those for education. The Infirmary; the General Hospital, founded in 1832; the Asylum for the Blind; the Bristol Institution for the Diseases of the Eye, established in 1810; the Eye Dispensary, established in 1812; the Dispensaries instituted in 1776; the Penitentiary; the Refuge Society; the Humane Society, and all the other institutions, are conducted on the most liberal scale. The number of patients admitted for diseases of the eye, during the first twenty-five years of its existence, was 13,546; cataracts cured, 139; while the annual disbursement was only £160 upon an average. The number of patients admitted to the Eye Dispensary, from 1812 to 1837, was 24,294; the number in that year alone being nearly 2,000, and all this benefit conferred through an expenditure of £70 a year. But the greatest relief to the suffering poor is derived from the Infirmary; and to its honour be it said, Bristol was the first place to provide an asylum for the sick or wounded poor, by the establishment of an infirmary supported by voluntary contributions. The institution was founded in 1736; its trustees annually expend between £5,000 and £6,000 a year in their ordinary disbursements; and the institution receives, on an average, 1,500 in, and relieves 6,000 out-patients annually. The building contains baths, a lecturing theatre, an operation room, which is well attended by students, a valuable library, and the valuable and extensive museum of Mr. Richard Smith. The whole is admirably managed; the wards are open and well ventilated, and kept in a state of the most perfect cleanliness, while the most admirable order is perceptible in every department. There is a large garden, with an agreeable promenade for the convalescent patients, and neither consideration nor cost has been spared to provide for the comfort and welfare of its inmates. The institution is governed by four quarterly boards, and the weekly details are managed by a committee of thirty subscribers, assisted by a treasury, one of the physicians, and one of the surgeons, who are pro tempore ex officio members of their body. Two house-visitors inspect the whole establishment in every department, who enter their report in a book, which is weekly laid before the committee. The charity is chiefly supported by annual subscriptions of two and five guineas; the gift of thirty guineas constitutes a life member, and legacies are frequently left for its advantage. The other hospitals and minor charities of Bristol are very numerous, and some of them most amply supported, their united revenues amounting to as much as £17,000 per annum; but to enumerate them would, of course, here be impossible. The relief of the poor of the city and its precincts is administered under a local act, 7th and 8th William III. c. 42, under the direction of 'the corporation of the poor,' the sums appropriated to this purpose being, collectively, about £20,000 a year. This corporation, in many instances, act with the authority of magistrates. They have a power, which is not unfrequently exercised, of compelling any vagrant to inhabit the workhouse, and of detaining him there, until, in their opinion, he is enabled to maintain himself; and a power of imprisonment for misbehaviour, or even for insolence to the officials of the establishment, often brings the impudent, and sometimes the unfortunate but irritable, inmates into durance vile. The number relieved in the workhouse is generally between 500 and 600, and of the out-door poor about 5,000. The charters under which so important and ancient a city as Bristol has been governed, may well be expected to be numerous, and so they are; the principal of them were collected into a volume in 1812, by the late Rev. S. Seyer, whose qualities admirably adapted him for such a work. According to his authority—and the assertion seems to be well-founded—the earliest charter is that granted by Henry II. in or about 1164. The next is a very remarkable one, being a grant, in 1172–3, of the city of Dublin to his men of Bristol to dwell in, with all the liberties and free customs which the men of Bristol have at Bristol; it was given, in all probability, to the members of a colony which about that time settled in Dublin; and is chiefly noticeable—for it could be of little practical use—for the spirit of dominion which Henry had evinced over Ireland, and for the enlightened views of colonization entertained in an age which we are pleased to consider as semi-barbarous, but which were so much more useful than the majority of our own. Other charities were subsequently granted by John, Earl of Morton—afterwards king—by Edward I., Edward II., Edward III., all of which, however, have undergone various modifications, and are now in effect obsolete by the repetition and alteration of their terms. The latest charter of avail for the city is that granted on the 24th of July, 1710, by Queen Anne. As in all other places, the municipal act has altered all the usages of the corporation, and it now consists of a mayor, sixteen aldermen, and forty-eight common councillors. Under the old charters, the corporation consisted of a mayor, recorder, high steward, two sheriffs, twelve aldermen, twenty-eight common councilmen, with a town-clerk, a chamberlain, two coroners, and inferior officers. The mayor was elected every year by the council, and allowed £1,000 to support the dignity of his office. The high sheriff was generally a nobleman, the recorder a barrister of five years' standing, and the clerk one of three years. The sheriffs were bailiffs of the ancient hundreds, and chosen out of their own body by the common council. The vacancies among the aldermen were filled up by those who had passed through the mayoralty. The mayor, recorder, and aldermen, were justices of the peace for the city and county. The freedom of the city might be obtained by birth, servitude, purchase, gift, or by marriage with the daughter of a freeman. A court, called the Tolzey Court, from its being held in the place where the king's taxes were collected, was held by the sheriffs for the trial and adjudication of all civil actions, for the recovery of debts, or otherwise; and a court of pie-powder was also held in the open street for fourteen days; it was nominally opened twice in the day, during every day of the fortnight, but the only days really for sitting were the first and last during that term. In addition to these, there is a court of requests for Bristol and its neighbourhood, held under the act 56 Geo. III. c. 76, which sits every Tuesday, and is held before five commissioners, one of whom, at least, must be a member of the town-council. The court has the power of trying actions from 40s. to £20; and a court of conscience for the recovery of debts under 40s. was established here, under an act passed in the first year of William and Mary, the registrar of which is appointed by the common council. Some time since the mayor and recorder held assizes twice in the year, for the trial of persons who committed offences within the city jurisdiction; but that court was abolished by the municipal corporation act, and the recorder now regularly presides at a court of quarter sessions; and one of the judges on the western circuit generally attends at the spring assizes for the trial of civil causes. A lord-lieutenant is appointed for the county, but he has nothing to do with the civic corporation. A large and well-planned gaol was erected in 1820, which was partly destroyed in the riots of 1831, when the gaoler's lodge, which was separated from the main building, was entirely burnt, and all the prisoners were released. The prison comprises ten wards, ten airing-yards, twenty-nine day-rooms, and six cells, beside infirmaries and work-rooms. The system of separation and silence is now observed within the precincts; and when hard labour is imposed, it consists in working the tread-mill, picking hemp, and breaking stones, the authorities being apparently desirous of rendering the imprisonment as expensive, and the labour of the prisoners as useless, as possible to the public. This prison is calculated to hold about 240 inmates. The new city bridewell, which was opened in 1836, is a strong and neat structure; it cost about £6,300, and contains 48 cells, six airing-yards, and twelve day-rooms. Before the introduction of the new police system, twelve street-keepers, or constables, proceeded through the several beats during the day, and until ten o'clock at night, when the night-watch was set; but the municipal commissioners unanimously agreed to report that the constabulary and the watchmen were altogether incompetent to secure the peace of the town and protect the inhabitants, and that the establishment of a properly-organised body of policemen was absolutely necessary for the general safety: in 1836 this recommendation was complied with. The force now consists of a superintendent, five inspectors, twenty-four sergeants, and 198 men, beside four retained for exclusive service at the council-house. The fourth of the men attend on their respective beats during the day, and the remainder throughout the night, all their motions being regulated on the principle adopted for the metropolitan police. The property of the corporation is entirely managed by the common council, but of its nature and extent the public were totally ignorant till the year 1832. During that and the preceding year, great excitement prevailed in the city respecting the mystery in which it was veiled, and a committee of gentlemen was permitted to examine all the documents and receipts in the possession of the corporation, acquired during several preceding years. They published their report in March, 1832, with the consent of the common council. This was the foundation of the paper furnished for the use of the municipal commissioners in 1833, by which it appeared that the average income of the corporation was £18,773, and the average expenditure £16,409. The bond debt of the city in 1833, amounted to £86,204. 10s. 1d., a great part of which consists of money accepted by the corporation, on the condition of paying a permanent interest for it to several charitable institutions, and which, therefore, they have no power to liquidate. Two representatives have been returned to parliament by Bristol since the 23d of Edward I., the right of election formerly belonging to all freemen, however they might have acquired the franchise. They were nearly six thousand in number; but by the Reform Act, and the extension of the boundaries, the number of voters has been increased to nearly ten thousand. The sheriff is the returning officer. Bristol has always been a city of great commercial importance, and was, until within these few years, considered the third port in the kingdom; and although the construction of railways, combined with other circumstances, has tended to greatly advance other places on the coast, it still stands in the first rank of mercantile entrepôts. Its principal exports consist of the manufactures of the neighbourhood; its imports are chiefly the produce of the West Indies, North and South America, Russia, France, and Germany, consisting of sugar, rum, tobacco, coffee, wine, wool, hemp, timber, and turpentine. Ten years ago, the customs duties received at this port amounted to £1,169,524, and now they average about £1,220,000. The number of vessels frequenting the port is about 350, with an aggregate burden of about 70,000 tons, of which about one-seventh are foreign. The quays are spacious and extensive, extending along the banks of the Avon and the Frome for more than a mile in length. Several vessels having sustained considerable damage, in consequence of lying in the river at low water, it was determined to construct a floating harbour, which was completed in 1803. It was formed by turning the course of the Avon, and damming up the old course, which now forms the harbour, and communicates with the river, and is accessible in all states of the tide, affording sufficient depth for vessels of 2,000 tons burden. This work, with the elegant iron bridges over the Avon, cost upwards of £600,000, and was more than six years in course of completion. The swivel-bridge across the floating harbour was originally a drawbridge, but was altered to its present form, at a cost of £1,930, in 1827. The new channel of the river extends from Rowenham ferry to Totterdown. Shipbuilding is carried on here to a very considerable extent, the yards being situated on the sides of the floating harbour. The harbour was much choked with mud in 1835, and, by an act of parliament, water of 21 feet in depth is required in a sufficient number of berths; the deepest water was at that time only 16½ feet, and that only in two berths, while above the swivel-bridge, which might be passed by vessels of 100 tons, there was only 10½ feet, shoaling to 8. Large vessels cannot even now move safely in the harbour without raising the water to a higher level than is allowed by the act, and they must therefore discharge their cargoes, or part of them, before they can reach the quay, the expense of which falls on the shipowner; and in default of this precaution, vessels of 350 and 400 tons often ground in attempting to make their way up. Soon after the first formation of the harbour, a dredging-machine was employed, which removed 120 tons of mud daily, but this was discontinued after it had been four years in operation. Works, however, have since been undertaken, by which it is hoped that the evil will be permanently remedied. An act was obtained in 1837 for the further regulation of the wharfs and the shipping in the river. The most important manufactures of the city and the neighbourhood are of copper, brass, zinc, pins, and china, but there is also a considerable investment of capital in the making of lead, patent shot, soap, leather, and floor-cloth; and there are, besides, several sugar refineries, distilleries, iron-foundries, and breweries. Coal is found in abundance within a short distance of the city, and the importation of it has been greatly facilitated by the construction of a railway from Cuckold's pill, on the east side of Bristol and Coal-pit heath, about nine miles off, in the parish of Westerleigh. Bristol has been the birth-place of many men of eminence, among whom may be mentioned Sebastian Cabot, the navigator; and Hugh Elliott, William Grocyn, a professor of Greek at Oxford; Sir William Draper, the opponent of Junius; the unhappy Chatterton the poet, and the heroic Bowditch, the African traveller.—Cabot was born in 1477, the son of a celebrated Venetian pilot, who resided at Bristol, to whom Henry VIII. granted, in combination with his three sons, letters patent, to discover and conquer new lands. They, on one occasion, discovered Newfoundland, and are believed to have also seen the mainland of America, being the first Europeans who had perceived the new world. Sebastian went many voyages after his father left off the sea, and was the first to notice the variations of the needle. His great reputation in maritime affairs induced Edward VI. to instal him grand pilot of England, which office he enjoyed with a considerable pension, and he was always consulted in all important matters connected with trade and navigation. He died in 1577.—Thomas Chatterton was born in 1752, the son of the sexton of St. Mary Redcliffe, and at an early age evinced an unusual amount of genius. Being of a studious disposition, he often visited the old archives of the parish, in the receptacle of which, it is supposed, he wrote a number of compositions, which he palmed upon the world as the MSS. of Rowley, a priest of Bristol, of the 15th century; and so admirably were they executed, that a great contest was excited in the literary world respecting their genuineness. They were at length discovered to be forgeries, and their author was consigned to neglect. He endeavoured then to make his standing in life as a party writer; but success did not attend him, and the unhappy youth, for he was only eighteen years of age, put an end to his earthly existence by poison, at his lodgings in Holborn. He died in 1770.—Thomas Edward Bowditch was born in 1793. When at a proper age he obtained an appointment as a writer in the service of the English African Company, and was subsequently selected to conduct a mission to the King of Ashantee, of which he published a very interesting account. He afterwards set out to explore the interior of Africa, and had already reached the shores of the Gambia, when a fever, brought on chiefly by anxiety, terminated his life. He was an excellent linguist; and, beside the work already mentioned, he favoured the world with a translation of Mollah's 'Travels to the Sources of the Senegal and the Gambia', and other works. His last days of existence were marked by a signal degree of fortitude and manly courage. He died in 1824.—Contains 9,870 acres: 9,263 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 140,158: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £322,249.—Market days, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. Fairs: March 1, and Sept. 1.—Bankers, National Provident Bank of England—draw on Barnett, Hoares, & Co.; West of England and South Wales District Bank—draw on Glyn, Halifax, & Co.; Branch of the Bank of England—draw on Bank of England.

BRISTON (or BURSTON), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Holt, union of Erpingham, on the river Bure, from which its name is derived: 141 miles from London (coach road 114), 15 from Dereham, 4 from Holt.—Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Ely to Dereham, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Syston and Peterborough, to Dereham,

&c., 161 miles.—Money orders issued at Dereham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.—The parochial charities produce about £8 a year.—The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £4. 9s. 9<sup>d</sup>.: pres. net income, £317: patron, Lord Hastings: pres. incumbent, J. W. Bird, 1847: contains 2,450 acres: 244 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 963: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,107: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £2,319: poor rates in 1837, £551.—Fairs: May 26, and Oct. 11.

BRITFORD, WILTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Cawden and Cadworth, union of Alderbury, intersected by the Salisbury and Southampton Canal: it includes the hamlets of East Harnham and Langford: 97 miles from London (coach road 80), 1 from Salisbury, 3 from Old Sarum.—Sou. West. Rail. through Bishopstoke to Salisbury, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, Reading, and Bishopstoke, to Salisbury, &c., 184 miles.—Money orders issued at Salisbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.—The living (St. Peter), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Salisbury, is valued at £13: pres. net income, £281: patron, Dean and Chapter of Sarum: pres. incumbent, J. H. Buxton, 1842: contains 3,350 acres: 153 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 878: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,009: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £5,274: poor rates in 1837, £596.—Fair, Aug. 12.—S. 1 m. Longford Castle.

BRITH-DIR, GLAMORGAN, a hamlet and chapelry in the parish of Gelli-gaer, hun<sup>d</sup> of Caerphilly, South Wales—(which see for access, &c.): 170 miles from London, 10 from Caerphilly, 2 from Bedwelty.—Money orders issued at Cardiff: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 1 p.m.: post closes 11 a.m.—Contains 150 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,835: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,110.

BRITON-FERRY, GLAMORGAN, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Neath, South Wales, on the north-eastern part of the bay of Swansea: 209 miles from London (coach road 206), 2 from Neath, 7 from Swansea.—Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Weston-super-Mare, thence across the channel to Penarth, whence by rail. to Merthyr Tydvil, thence 25 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Weston, &c., 223 miles.—Money orders issued at Neath: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 2 p.m.: post closes 10<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> a.m.—The scenery is of more than usual beauty, which nature and art have combined to embellish. From a hill in the vicinity, a prospect of great beauty over the neighbouring coast and the Bristol Channel is commanded.—The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Llandaff, not in charge, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £124: patron, Earl of Jersey: pres. incumbent, Evan Thomas, 1838: contains 76 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 718: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 826: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £605: poor rates in 1837, £167.

BRITWELL-SALOME, OXFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Lewknor, union of Henley: 57 miles from London (coach road 54), 2 from Watlington, 5 from Tetworth.—Gt. West. Rail. to Wallingford Road station, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Banbury, and Oxford, to Wallingford Road, &c., 119 miles.—Money orders issued at Tetworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post

closes 4 p.m.—The living (St. Nicholas), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £6. 19s. 2d.: pres. net income, £175: patron, Earl of Carrington: pres. incumbent, Andrew Price, 1782: contains 730 acres: 40 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 233: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,099: poor rates in 1837, £86.

BRIXHAM, Devon, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Haytor, Paignton division, union of Totness, on the shore of the English Channel, near the southern extremity of Torbay: it consists chiefly of the market town and seaport of the same name: 210 miles from London (coach road 200), 25 from Exeter.—Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol and Exeter to Torquay, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Torquay, &c., 223 miles.—Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8.20 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.—It was at this town that Prince William, afterwards William III., landed in 1688. It is pleasantly situated at the southern extremity, on the west side of Torbay. Although, like all places in a similar position, irregularly built, it contains many good houses, several of which stand on the cliffs which project over the harbour. The climate is remarkably salubrious, the neighbourhood is very pleasingly diversified, and its vicinity to the delightful and well-frequented watering place, Torquay, renders it a very agreeable place of residence. During the late war, Brixham was a place of considerable importance, being one of the most prominent frontier headlands on the southern coast. Barracks were erected within the lines of two fortresses, which were capable of containing several regiments. The barracks have been dismantled; but the fortresses, with the ditches and drawbridges, remain in complete repair. During the war, Torbay was a constant resort of the Royal Navy, and that contributed greatly to the prosperity of the town. The harbour, which consists of two basins, communicating with each other, is safe and commodious. The outer basin was formed by the erection of a second pier, which was begun in 1803, and completed in 1809, by subscription among the inhabitants, and by a loan of £6,000, which the lords of the manor were authorized to raise on security of the tolls, under an act of parliament. On the liquidation of the debt, which is now nearly accomplished, it is intended to erect another pier on the eastern side of the harbour, towards Bury Head; and when that is finished, the harbour of Brixham will be shielded from easterly winds, and safe both for homeward and outward-bound vessels. During the spring tides, the water rises to the height of about 24 feet at the pier-head. There are upwards of a hundred vessels, from 40 to 45 tons burden, and between 60 and 70 smaller vessels, engaged in the fishery off the coast. The fish caught are chiefly soles for the London, Bath, and Exeter markets. The parish is divided into Higher and Lower Brixham. The church in the former is an ancient structure, and contains some interesting monuments, among which is that of the late Judge Buller. The church in Lower Brixham, made a district church by an act of 58th George III., was erected by public subscription, assisted by a grant of £1,200 from the parliamentary commissioners. It is a neat building in the English style, and contains 300 sittings. A school, which had two small endowments, has been incorporated in the general national school. The master has a house and garden, with a salary of £60 a year. School-rooms have been built near his residence, towards the erection of which the society in London gave £270. The other parochial charities produce about £90 a year. Petty sessions are held here, at Walton Court, and Torquay, for the hundred of Paignton. At High Brixham there is a well, in which the water ebbs and flows at irregular periods, sometimes as often as nine times in an hour. Bury Head is supposed to have been the site of a Roman fortress. Several Roman coins, in 1830, were found there. There are some extensive quarries of marble in the vicinity of Brixham.—The living (the Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, with the curacy of Churston Ferrers, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Totness, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £25. 15s.: pres. net income, £494: patron, the Crown: pres. incumbent, R. Holdsworth, 1809: contains 5,210 acres: 969 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 5,684: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 6,537: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £16,113: poor rates in 1837, £2,086.—Market days, Thursday and Saturday. Fair, Whit-Tuesday.—Bankers: Green and Vittery—draw on Hanburys, Taylor, & Co.

BRIXTON, Devon, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Plympton, division of Ermington and Plympton, union of Plympton St. Mary: 246 miles from London (coach road 215), 2 from Plympton, 7 from Modbury.—Gt. West. Rail. to Plympton, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, and Exeter, to Plympton, &c., 261 miles.—Money orders issued at Plympton-Earl: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—The inhabitants have a right of sending their children to be educated at a school at Plympton-Earl, which is endowed with £200 a year, but it has seldom been exercised. The parochial charities produce about £42 per annum. Petty sessions are held here and at Redgeway, for the hundreds of Ermington and Plympton. The river Yealm is navigable on the south of this parish. Several elm plants were put down here, in 1677, by Edward Fortescue, Esq., in order that, when arrived at maturity, the trees might be cut down for the benefit of the poor, and their places be supplied with fresh plants.—The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Totness, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £35. 15s.: pres. net income, £107: patron, Dean and Canons of Windsor: pres. incumbent, R. Lane, 1802: contains 3,060 acres: 142 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 823: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 947: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £5,635: poor rates in 1837, £420.—S.E., Offleet Hall; Kirkham Hall.

BRIXTON (or BRIGHTSTONE), HANTS, a parish in the south-west division of Medina liberty, Isle of Wight: 106 miles from London (coach road 95), 6 from Newport, 6 from Yarmouth.—Sou. West. Rail. to Gosport, thence 16 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, Reading, and Bishopstoke, to Gosport, &c., 193 miles.—Money orders issued at Newport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.—There is a school here, endowed by the Rev. Noel Digby with £20 a year.—The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory in the diocese of Winchester, is valued at £32. 3s. 4d.: pres. net income, £515: patron, Bishop of Winchester: pres. incumbent, E. M'All, 1840: contains 2,700 acres: 115 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 710: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 817: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,889: poor rates in 1837, £400.

BRIXTON, SURREY, a village in the parish of Lambeth, hun<sup>d</sup> of Brixton, in the suburbs of London: 5 miles from Croydon. (Arrangements for post within the London district.) This is one of the most pleasing of the metropolitan suburban districts. It is divided into North-East and West Brixton, Tulse Hill (Upper and Lower), and Brixton Hill, and consists principally of two lines of road, nearly two miles in length, on which, on either side, there are numerous rows of houses of the highest respectability; many other dwellings of handsome elevation stand detached, surrounded by shrubberies and garden-grounds. A church, dedicated to St. Matthew, was erected in 1824. It is a handsome building, with a tower at the east end, and four Doric-fluted columns at the west end of the edifice: it was built at an expense of £21,749. 6s. 10d., and contains 1,926 sittings, of which some are free. The parsonage-house is situated at Lower Tulse Hill. Attached to the church there is a spacious burial-ground, and extensive vaults, private and public. There are four places of worship here for Independents, one for Wesleyan Methodists, and one for Unitarians. Not far from the church there is a National school, in which about 200 boys and 120 girls are instructed. It was built in 1826, at an expense of £1,200; and enlarged in 1829, at a cost of something short of £400. On the borders of the district is the handsome building of the St. Anne's Society's schools. The society was established in 1709; and, for many years, had only an ordinary day school, for the children of the parish of St. Anne, at the corner of the general post-office, its object being the instruction and maintenance of thirty children of both sexes. The design was afterwards extended to the whole of the kingdom; and an asylum was established in 1794, at Lavenham in Suffolk, where twenty boys were admitted on the foundation. That establishment was afterwards removed to Peckham, in Surrey, where the number of boys admitted was increased to sixty-eight. But the efforts of the committee were blessed: it was found necessary to enlarge the asylum, and the present fine structure was raised in 1834, at an expense of £8,000 and upwards. It is of brick, having a basement of stone channelled in horizontal lines; and has a central piazza, from which rises a portico of four Ionic columns, supporting a pediment with cornice and frieze, which run round the building, with antæ at the corners. The grounds, which are freehold, range about two acres. The internal arrangements of the asylum are admirable; the whole institution being under the direction of a body of governors, annually chosen from among the subscribers. The funds have been materially assisted by the contribution of £3,000 by Mrs. Partis of Bath, in consequence of which, one of the trustees of the college which she founded near that city, has the right of keeping two boys and two girls constantly on the foundation. The children are wholly maintained and educated; the boys being kept in the institution till they are fourteen, and the girls till they are fifteen years of age, when they are placed in situations or apprenticed. Thirty boys and thirty girls are still clothed and instructed in the school in London, of whom ten boys and five girls are every year admitted on the foundation at Brixton, according to seniority and merit; the remainder are elected by the subscribers generally. Trinity Asylum, in Acre Lane, for aged females, was founded and endowed in 1824 by Thomas Bailey, Esq. The building comprises twelve tenements, each inmate of which is entitled to £10 a year, and twelve sacks of coals. All candidates must be possessed of £20 per annum, and not less than fifty-seven years old; and it is indispensable that they should hold the doctrine of the Trinity. The widow of the founder, Mrs. Mary Bailey, has invested the sum of £2,000 towards founding an asylum in connection with the above, for the maintenance and education of the orphans of gospel ministers and others. The Reform almshouses, containing 31 houses, and occupied by 60 tenants, are near the church, built in commemoration of passing the Reform Act, and under the control of the corporation of London. The living (St. Matthew) is a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Winchester: pres. net income, £700: patron, Archbishop of Canterbury: pres. incumbent, John Vaughan, D.C.L., 1841.—Pop<sup>n</sup> 10,175.

BRIXTON-DEVERILL, WILTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Heytesbury, union of Warminster: 119 miles from London (coach road 101), 4 from Warminster, 10 from Wincanton. Gt. West. Rail. to Westbury, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, Westbury, &c., 160 miles. Money orders issued at Warminster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. This parish consists of the manor of Brixton-Deverill, and a part of the distinct manor and tithing of Whitecliff. The manor of Brixton-Deverill was once part and parcel of Ogbourn Priory, in the county of Wilts, and was given to the Abbey of Bec, in Normandy, by Maud de Wallingford, queen-consort to William the Conqueror. Henry V., when marching through France with his army, demanded hospitality from that convent, which being refused, he seized all their estates in England, amongst which was this parish. But Henry VI., in 1442, granted, by patent, the manor to King's College, Cambridge, by which college it is now held in several estates, on fines renewable every seven years. This parish, says Sir Richard Cobb Hoare, Bart., is undoubtedly the Petra Egbryta mentioned by Asser the historian, as the place where our illustrious King Alfred halted his army for one night, when on his march to meet the Danes, whom he attacked and defeated at Eddington, A.D. 878. The manor and tithing of Whitecliff once formed part of Glastonbury. The living (St. Michael), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Sarum, is valued at £19. 1s. 4d.: pres. net income, £480: patron, Bishop of Salisbury: pres. incumbent, W. Barnes, 1838: contains 2,690 acres: 33 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 197: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,647: poor rates in 1837, £72.—N. W. 3½ m. Long Leat Park, the seat of the Marquis of Bath—(for which see HORNINGSHAM.)

BRIXTON-HILL, SURREY, a village in the parish of Streatham.

BRIXWORTH, NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Orlingbury, union of Brixworth: 74 miles from London (coach road 75), 6 from Northampton, 10 from Wellingborough. — Nor. West. Rail. to Northampton, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Weedon to Northampton, &c., 85 miles. — Money orders issued at Northampton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — The church, which is of large dimensions, is a remarkable edifice, and perhaps one of the oldest, if not the very oldest masonry remaining in Britain. It is partly of Anglo-Roman architecture, and partly Norman, with minor insertions of English architecture of various styles. It appears to have originally consisted of a spacious nave with narrow aisles, a large chancel with a western tower, and a clerestory to the nave, from which the chancel is separated by an arch. The nave, and the lower part of the square tower, are of Anglo-Roman architecture of the third century, exhibiting, since the removal of the plaster, the Roman bricks in an admirable state of preservation; the upper part of the tower, and the steeple, the top of which is 140 feet from the ground, have recently been rebuilt. Attached to the western side of the square tower there is a round Norman tower, which contains a flight of winding stone steps, by which the upper portion of the former is reached. The original aisles have been destroyed, and a Norman aisle and porch have been erected on the south side; the foundations of the north aisle have been clearly traced. The present chancel, which is an addition eastward of the original one, is of Norman architecture, with some interpolations of the early decorated and later English styles. There is a Wesleyan chapel here, but which is used as a place of worship by all the other dissenters in the parish. The females of the parish are chiefly employed in lace-making, and the men in the stone quarries and clay pits in the vicinity. The stone is of three different qualities, each varying in hardness, according to its stratum: one kind is a small rubbly and kali kind, used for mending roads; the next is a flakey kind of sandstone, also used for mending roads, and for draining land; and the third is of the lower oolitic formation, impregnated with iron, and is used for building purposes. A free school here was endowed with twenty-two acres of land in 1665, by Thomas Rowe, Esq., of Scaldwell, which now let for about £45 a year; the master's salary is £20. The other parochial charities produce about £50 a year. There is an unopened tumulus here, and a tradition exists that a monastery once stood here, of which no authentic record remains. Ammonites, belemnites, and terebratulæ, are found in the parish. — The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £14. 15s. 10d.: pres. net income, £300: patron, Chancellor of Salisbury Cathedral: pres. incumbent, C. F. Watkins, 1832: contains 3,410 acres: 227 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,202: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,382: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,844: poor rates in 1837, £550. Tithes commuted in 1780. — Fair, Whit-Monday, for cloth, hardware, and toys. — Brixworth Hall is the seat of Lord Clifden, whose chief residence is Gowran Castle, in Kilkenny. The house is screened by plantations, and surrounded by the village. His lordship derives his descent from Charles Agar, Esq., of Yorkshire, who settled at Gowran, and died there in 1696. The great-grandson of that gentleman having sat for many years representative for the county of Kilkenny, and having served in some very high offices in parliament, was, in 1776, created Baron Clifden, and raised to a viscounty in 1781. Henry Welbore Agar, the second viscount, in 1802, inherited the barony of Mendip, and assumed the additional name of Ellis. He married Lady Caroline Spencer, daughter of the Duke of Marlborough, by whom he had, with other children, George James Welbore, F.R.S. and F.S.A., who was created Baron Dover, but, dying in his father's lifetime, that, with the other English titles, devolved to Henry, the present peer, on the death of his father, and to the Irish honours on the death of his grandfather. — S.E., Brixworth Lodge. — N.E. 1 m. Lauport House.

BROAD-CHALK, WILTS, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Chalk, union of Wilton: 104 miles from London (coach road 85), 8 from Wilton, 8 from Salisbury. — Sou. West. Rail. through Bishopstoke to Salisbury, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Banbury, Oxford, Reading, Bishopstoke, to Salisbury, &c., 191 miles. — Money orders issued at Salisbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — There is an Independent chapel here, the congregation of which was formed in 1801. There is an extensive encampment here, which is attributed to the Romans: and also an extensive barrow, called Gaven's barrow. — The living (All Saints), a vicarage, with the curacies of Bower Chalk and Alverdiston, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Sarum, is valued at £27. 14s.: pres. net income, £336: patron, King's College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, S. H. Hawtrey, 1813: contains 8,380 acres: 125 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 775: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 891: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,918: poor rates in 1837, £413.

BROADCLIST, DEVON, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Clifton, union of St. Thomas: 187 miles from London (coach road 167), 6 from Exeter, 6 from Collumpton. — Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Collumpton, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Collumpton, &c., 201 miles. — Money orders issued at Exeter: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — There is an almshouse here for twelve poor persons, endowed with £23. 11s. a year. The other parochial charities produce £27. 10s. per annum. Clist House, in this parish, was the palace of the Bishops of Exeter, previous to the Reformation. — The living (St. John the Baptist), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £26: pres. net income, £407: patron, Sir. T. D. Acland: pres. incumbent, P. L. D. Acland, 1844: contains 10,270 acres: 382 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,407: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,768: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £14,746: poor rates in 1837, £1,205. — Fair, May 3, for cattle.

BROADFIELD (or BRADFIELD), HERTFORD, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Odsey, union of Buntingford — (for access, &c., see BUNTINGFORD): 30 miles from London, 3 from Buntingford, 7 from Royston.

—Money orders issued at Buntingford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.—Contains 620 acres: 2 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 6: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £443: poor rates in 1837, £34.

BROADGATE, LEICESTER, an extra-parochial liberty in the western division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Gos-cote.—Contains 1,120 acres: 1 house: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 7.

BROADHEMBURY, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Hayridge, union of Honiton: 187 miles from London (coach road 167), 5 from Honiton, 5 from Collumpton.—Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Collumpton, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Collumpton, &c., 201 miles.—Money orders issued at Honiton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—There is a school here with a small endowment. The other parochial charities produce about £40 a year. The Abbot of Dunkeswell was anciently the lord of the manor. A cell or priory, subordinate to the priory of Montacute, once existed in the village of Carswell. There is an intrenchment here attributed to the Romans; it is called Hembury Fort. The Rev. Augustus Toplady, the celebrated defender of Calvinistic principles, especially in his great contest with Wesley, was for some time vicar of this parish. He was born at Farnham, in Surrey, in 1740, was educated at Westminster, and matriculated at Trinity College, Dublin. He died in London, still vicar of Broadhembury; and after his death his works were collected into six volumes.—The living (St. Andrew), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup>. and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £16. 17s.: pres. net income, £269: patron, Dean and Chapter of Exeter: pres. incumbent, W. Heberden, 1829: contains 4,703 acres: 170 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 851: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, same: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £5,273: poor rates in 1837, £476.—Fair, Dec. 11, for cattle.—E., Wolford Lodge, the seat of Mrs. Simcoe—(for which see DUNKESWELL); S., The Grange, the seat of E. S. Drewe, Esq.; W., Dulford House, the seat of B. Walrond, Esq.; S. E., Hembury Fort House, the seat of W. Porter, Esq.—(for which see BUCKERELL.)

BROADHEMPSTON, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Haytor, union of Newton-Abbot: 228 miles from London (coach road 195) 3 from Ashburton, 5 from Totness.—Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol and Exeter to Totness, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, and Exeter, to Totness, &c., 241 miles.—Money orders issued at Ashburton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.—The living is a vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Totness, and diocese of Exeter, valued at £25. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £311: patron, the Crown: pres. incumbent, John Pitman, 1807: contains 2,140 acres: 159 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 747: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 859: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,544: poor rates in 1837, £268.

BROAD-HINTON, WILTS, a liberty in the parish of Hurst, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Amesbury, in the above county, but locally situated in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Sonning, county of Berks: 88 miles from London (coach road 81), 6 from Swindon, 4 from Workingham.—Gt. West. Rail. to Wootton Bassett, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Stonehouse, and Wootton Bassett, &c., 137 miles.—

vol. I.

Money orders issued at Swindon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.—Contains 1,710 acres: 79 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 524: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 603: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,603: poor rates in 1837, £234.

BROAD-HINTON, WILTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Selkley, union of Marlborough: 81 miles from London.—(For access and postal arrangements, see above.)—The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Wilts and diocese of Sarum, is valued at £14. 18s. 11½d.: pres. net income, £302: patron, Master of St. Nicholas' Hospital, Sarum: pres. incumbent, W. Cookson, 1835: contains 4,670 acres: 138 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 670: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 770: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,547: poor rates in 1837, £411.

BROADHOLME, NOTTINGHAM, a hamlet in the parish of Thorney, northern division of the wapentake of Newark—(which see for access, &c.): 11 miles from Tuxford.—Money orders issued at Tuxford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.—Tanner, in his Notitia, speaking of this place, says—Agnes de Camville, wife to Peter Gousla (the founder of the Newhouse for Premonstratensian canons), placed here a priores and nuns of the same order, about the latter part of the reign of King Stephen. This small monastery, situated on the borders of this county, next Lincolnshire, was dedicated to the blessed Virgin Mary, and had possessions, in the 26th year of Henry VIII., rated, according to Leland, at only £18. It was granted, in the 6th year of Queen Elizabeth, to John Coniers and William Haber.—Contains 550 acres: 12 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 90: poor rates in 1837, £84.

BROADLANE, FLINT, a township in the parish of Hawarden, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Mold—(which see for access, &c.): 5 miles from Mold.—Money orders issued at Mold: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.—Contains 7 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 51.

BROADMAYNE, DORSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of St. George, but locally situated in that of Colli-ford-Tree, union of Dorchester, Dorchester division of the county: 145 miles from London (coach road 120), 4 from Dorchester, 13 from Wareham.—Sou. West. Rail. through Southampton to Dorchester, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, and Southampton, to Dorchester, &c., 234 miles.—Money orders issued at Dorchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.—In the church are some handsome monuments of the Urquhart family. An elegant and commodious school (day and Sunday) has lately been erected. The village is celebrated for its bricks, the clay being of a very superior quality.—The living (St. Martin) is a rectory annexed to West Knighton, in the diocese of Sarum, and having jointly a pres. net income of £332: patron, Rev. F. Urquhart: pres. incumbent, F. Urquhart, 1829: contains 2,540 acres: 70 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 490: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 500: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,237: poor rates in 1837, £65. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1805.—Charlesmount, the seat of Charles Balston, Esq.

BROADOAK, CORNWALL, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of West, union of Liskeard: 272 miles from London (coach road 229), 5 from Liskeard, 6 from Lothewithiel.—Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol and Exeter to Plymouth, thence 25 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Plymouth, &c., 287 miles.---Money orders issued at Liskeard: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> at noon: post closes at noon.---The living was consolidated, in 1742, with the rectory of Boconnoc.---Contains 3,240 acres: 49 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 303: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 348: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,035: poor rates in 1837, £88.

8 L

BROADOAK, KENT, a hamlet in the parish of Breda.

BROADSTAIRS, KENT, a hamlet or villa in the parish of St. Peter, Isle of Thanet, or hun<sup>d</sup> of Ringsole, lathe of St. Augustine: 99 miles from London (coach road 70), 2 from Ramsgate, 4 from Margate.---Sou. East. Rail. to Ramsgate, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 231 miles.---Money orders issued at Ramsgate: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.---It is a member of the town and port of Dover, and was formerly a place of much importance, known by the name of Bradstow; but it greatly declined, until it became merely a village, inhabited by a few fishermen. Of late years it has again risen; several handsome houses have been built, and it has become a favourite place of resort for sea-bathing, and has all the appliances for warm and cold baths, bathing machines, and every means for healthful renovation or quiet enjoyment. There are two public libraries, an assembly-room, and an excellent hotel. The view seaward is open and extensive, varied coastwise by the bold cliffs which sweep outwards on either side of the town, while behind it the country is pleasingly undulated and dotted with villas. A chapel was erected here in 1828, the incumbency of which is a curacy in the diocese of Canterbury, of the yearly value of £160, and in the patronage of the Vicar of St. Peter's, a village about two miles distant. Near the gateway leading down to the beach there was formerly a chapel, part of which may still be seen in a dwelling-house: it was dedicated to the Virgin Mary, whose image was once held in such reverence that vessels in passing lowered their topsails. The church just spoken of is a portal, which once had a portcullis and a drawbridge, and was erected to protect the inhabitants from the incursions of privateers. Over it there is an inscription to the following effect:—York Gate, built by George Culmer, A.D. 1540; repaired by Sir John Heniker, Bart., 1795. Between Broadstairs and King's Gate there is a lighthouse, erected, in 1683, on the North Foreland, the most easterly point in England, in latitude 51° 22' N., and longitude 1° 27' E. In 1790, patent lamps were introduced, with magnifying lenses, instead of coal fires. The light is a fixed white light, visible at the distance of twenty-two miles in clear weather. A desperate battle is said to have been fought by the Saxons and Danes near this place in 853, the site of which is marked by two tumuli.---Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,459: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,677.---(Other returns with the parish.)---Fairs: April 8, and July 10.---About two miles off, Lord Holland has a seat at King's Gate.---(which see for description.)

BROADWARD, HEREFORD, a township in the parish of Leominster, hun<sup>d</sup> of Wolphy: it includes the hamlets of Brierly, Eaton, Honnor, Shotford, and Wharton: 136 miles from London, 2 from Leominster, 1 from Stoke Prior.---(For access, &c., see LEOMINSTER.)---Money orders issued at Leominster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m.---Contains 64 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 399: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 459.---(Other returns with the parish.)---N.W. 1 m. Ryelanda.

BROADWAS, WORCESTER, a parish in the lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Oswaldslow, but locally in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Doddingtree, union of Martley, on the northern bank of the river Teme: 124 miles from London (coach road 117), 6 from Worcester, 2 from Leigh.---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 77 miles.---Money orders issued at Worcester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The parochial charities produce £7 per annum.---The living (St. Mary Magdalen), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £10. 9s. 2½d.: pres. net income, £253: patron, Dean and Chapter of Worcester: pres. incumbent, R. Sanders, 1838: contains 1,000 acres: 60 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 326: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 375: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,642: poor rates in 1837, £108.

BROADWATER, SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Brightford, rape of Bramber: it includes the town of Worthing: 62 miles from London (coach road 54), 1 from Worthing, 4 from Steyning.---Brighton and South Coast Rail. to Worthing, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through London, &c., 194 miles.---Money orders issued at Worthing: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.---The church is a cruciform structure, with a tower rising from the centre; it contains in the side chapels some curious monuments. The capitals of the pillars which support the arch from which the tower rises, are surmounted with branches of palm, an ornament which was introduced by the crusaders. Instead of the usual stalls on the south side of the chancel, there is a stone bench, overshadowed by a Norman arch, which is a singular, if not an unique instance of ancient architecture. On the south side of the church, there is a cross in the wall in flint-work, peculiar to the churches of this county, but which does not occur in any other church in western Sussex. In 1661, Dr. Chester bequeathed ten acres of land, which now produce £25 a year, for the benefit of the poor of this parish.---The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chichester, is valued at £36: pres. net income, £602: patron, Rev. P. Wood: pres. incumbent, Peter Wood: contains 2,240 acres: 824 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 5,345: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 6,146: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £9,561: poor rates in 1837, £1,016.---Fairs, June 22, and October 30.---N.E. ½ m. Offington Hall.

BROADWAY, DORSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Colliford-Tree, union of Weymouth, Dorchester division of the county: 147 miles from London (coach road 125), 6 from Dorchester, 2 from Melcombe Regis.---Sou. West. Rail. through Southampton to Dorchester, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, Reading, and Southampton, to Dorchester, &c., 236 miles.---Money orders issued at Dorchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---The living (St.

Nicholas) is a rectory, annexed to that of Bincombe: contains 1,000 acres: 67 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 498: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 573: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,188: poor rates in 1837, £185.

BROADWAY, SOMERSET, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Abdick and Bulstone, union of Chard, in the vicinity of the Chard Canal: it includes part of the tithing of Capland: 173 miles from London (coach road 133), 2 from Ilminster, 6 from Chard.---Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Taunton, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Taunton, &c., 186 miles.---Money orders issued at Ilminster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The church is ancient and interesting. There is an Independent chapel here; and an almshouse for poor men, endowed with £21 a year.---The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Taunton, and diocese of Bath, is valued at £30: pres. net income, £167: patron, Rev. Dr. W. Palmer: pres. incumbent, H. Palmer, 1823: contains 1,830 acres: 72 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 570: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 655: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,415: poor rates in 1837, £198.---Fair, September 14, for cattle and pedlery.---E. ¼ m. Jordans.

BROADWAY, WORCESTER, a parish in the upper division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Pershore, union of Evesham: 104 miles from London (coach road 95), 5 from Evesham, 13 from Tewkesbury.---Gt. West. Rail. to Oxford, coach from Oxford to Broadway: from Derby, through Birmingham and Worcester to Chipping-Camden, &c., 93 miles.---Money orders issued at Broadway: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8¼ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---A new church has lately been built here. The Independents have a chapel here, as also have the Roman Catholics. There is a school here, endowed with land by the late Mr. Hodges. Land left for the repair of the church produces £27 per annum.---The living (St. Edburgh), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £10. 17s. 6d.: pres. net income, £240: patron, Trustees: pres. incumbent, S. Franklin, 1849: contains 4,800 acres: 320 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,687: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,940: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £8,200: poor rates in 1837, £550. The great and small tithes of Broadway manor, the property of the lay impropiator and the vicar, were commuted in 1771.---S.E. 1 m. Middle Hill House is the seat of Sir Thomas Phillips, Bart, F.R.S., and F.S.A., whose extensive antiquarian researches have placed him among the most celebrated and scientific men of the day. Sir Thomas was created a baronet in 1821.---Spring Hill is the residence of the Hon. General E. B. Lygon.

BROADWELL, GLOUCESTER, a parish in the upper division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Slaughter, union of Stow-on-the-Wold: 86 miles from London (coach road 87), 2 from Stow-on-the-Wold, 6 from Leamington.---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Stow-on-the-Wold station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Worcester to Stow-on-the-Wold, &c., 107 miles.---Money orders issued at Moreton-in-Marsh: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The parish is crossed by the Roman fosse-way.---The living, a rectory, with the curacy of Adlestrop, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, and diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £23. 11s. 10½d.: pres.

net income, £643: patron, Lord Leigh: pres. incumbent, Lord Saye and Sele, 1834: contains 1,600 acres: 79 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 345: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 396: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,158: poor rates in 1837, £145. All the tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1792.

BROADWELL (or BRADWELL), OXFORD, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Bampton, union of Witney: 78 miles from London (coach road 69), 4 from Lechlade, 8 from Witney.---Gt. West. Rail. to Oxford, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Rugby and Banbury to Oxford, &c., 110 miles.---Money orders issued at Lechlade: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---Filkins, a large hamlet of this parish, is situated on the turnpike road between Burford and Lechlade.---The living (St. Peter and St. Paul), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, with the curacies of Holwell and Kelmescott, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £8. 14s. 4½d.: pres. net income, £300: patron, Rev. T. W. Goodlake: pres. incumbent, T. W. Goodlake, 1845: contains 5,990 acres: 198 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,051: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,208: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,062: poor rates in 1837, £153. The great tithes, the property of Trinity College, Oxford, and the small tithes, the property of the vicar, were commuted in 1775.---About 2 m. from Burford is Bradwell Grove, the seat of William Hervey, Esq.---Filkins Hall, late the seat of the Colston family, now the property of Mrs. Hervey.

BROAD-WINDSOR, DORSET, a parish and liberty in the union of Beaminster, Bridport division of the county: this parish contains the manor and tithings of Childhay, Drimpton, Debberford, and Little Windsor: 161 miles from London (coach road 135), 3 from Beaminster, 8 from Axminster.---Sou. West. Rail. through Southampton to Dorchester, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, Reading, and Southampton, to Dorchester, &c., 250 miles.---Money orders issued at Beaminster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8¼ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---There is a school here, endowed with £13 a year. The other parochial charities produce about £17 per annum.---The living (St. John the Baptist), a vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Dorset, and diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Sarum, is valued at £15. 8s. 9d.: pres. net income, £558: patron, Bishop of Salisbury: pres. incumbent, S. C. Malan, 1845: contains 7,110 acres: 283 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,661: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,910: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £10,586: poor rates in 1837, £538.---Fair, Trinity Monday.

BROADWOOD-KELLY, DEVON, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Black Torrington, union of Oakhampton: 216 miles from London (coach road 198), 5 from Hatherleigh, 8 from Oakhampton.---Gt. West. Rail. to Crediton, thence 16 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Crediton, &c., 219 miles.---Money orders issued at Crediton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Totness, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £19. 7s. 6d.: pres. net income, £238: patron, Rev. J. Hole: pres. incumbent, N. J. B. Hole, 1837: contains 2,190 acres: 73 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 471: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 541: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,707: poor rates in 1837, £86.

BROADWOODWIDGER, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Lifton, union of Holsworthy: 229 miles from London (coach road 207), 6 from Launceston, 12 from Oakhampton.---Gt. West. Rail. to Exeter, thence 35 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Exeter, &c., 243 miles.---Money orders issued at Launceston: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m.---The living, a perpetual curacy, with Week St. German's annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Totness, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £8. 3s. 4d.: pres. net income, £148: patron, Dean and Chapter of Bristol: pres. incumbent, Ponsford Cann, 1842: contains 7,350 acres: 145 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 923: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,061: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,639: poor rates in 1837, £347.

BROBURY, HEREFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Grimsworth, union of Weobley, on the northern bank of the river Wye: 153 miles from London (coach road 146), 11 from Hereford, 1 from Brewhapine.---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 35 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 106 miles.---Money orders issued at Hereford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.---Brobury Scar, in the neighbourhood of the village, is a fine object, and contrasts beautifully, in its bold outline, with the scenery on the banks of the Wye.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £4: pres. net income, £180: patron, Rev. N. D. H. Newton: pres. incumbent, N. D. H. Newton, 1829: contains 440 acres: 16 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 71: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £646: poor rates in 1837, £17.---S., Moccas Park---(for which see Moccas.)

BROCKDISH, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Earsham, union of Depwade, on the northern bank of the river Waveney: 102 miles from London (coach road 95), 4 from Harleston, 6 from Diss.---East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Haughley Road station to Diss, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, and Norwich, to Frenze, &c., 188 miles.---Money orders issued at Harleston: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The living (St. Peter and St. Paul), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £327: patron, Wm. France, Esq.: pres. incumbent, G. France, 1842: contains 1,080 acres: 81 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 466: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 535: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,760: poor rates in 1837, £350.---Brockdish Place is the residence of the Rev. Wm. French, D.D., Master of Jesus College, Cambridge.

BROCKENHURST, HANTS, a parish in the eastern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of New Forest, union of Lymington, New Forest division of the county: 96 miles from London (coach road 80), 4 from Lymington, 4 from Lyndhurst.---Sou. West. Rail. through Southampton to Brockenhurst station: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, Reading, and Southampton, to Brockenhurst, 185 miles.---Money orders issued at Lymington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---The village is of Saxon origin; and the church, which is recorded in Domesday-book by the name of Broceste, still exhibits portions of Saxon masonry. It is placed on an artificial mound, four or five feet high, and about sixty round, in order to render it a conspicuous object to the surrounding country. On Sway Common, in the neighbourhood, there are several large tumuli.---The living is a curacy, not in charge, annexed to the vicarage of Boldre: contains 2,980 acres: 161 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 928: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,067: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,119: poor rates in 1837, £363.---Brockenhurst House, the residence of John Morant, Esq., is of handsome elevation, and stands in a very agreeable park, from which there are many fine views of the scenery in the New Forest. It was for some time the residence of Mr. Howard, the philanthropist.---Hinchilsea Lodge is the residence of Mrs. Hippeley Coxo.

BROCKFORD AND WITHERINGSETT, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Hartismere: 93 miles from London (coach road 87), 3 from Eye, 12 from Ixworth.---East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Haughley Road to Thorpham Magna, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 225 miles.---Money orders issued at Eye: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---Contains 3,980 acres: 124 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,065: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,224: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,696: poor rates in 1837, £658.

BROCKHALL, NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Nobottle-grove, union of Daventry: 67 miles from London (coach road 74), 5 from Daventry, 8 from Northampton.---Nor. West. Rail. to Weedon station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Weedon, &c., 73 miles.---Money orders issued at Weedon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---There are some delightful views from the village over an undulating and highly-cultivated country.---The living (St. Peter), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £13: pres. net income, £238: patron, T. R. Thornton: pres. incumbent, P. Thornton, 1806: contains 720 acres: 9 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 59: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,300.---W., Brockhall House, the seat of Thomas Reeve Thornton, Esq., is a fine old mansion, built by the Eytons in the time of James I., but much improved and enlarged by the family of the present proprietor, who have been lords of the manor for several generations. The Thorntons were originally seated at Newnham House, in this county, but, on the acquisition of Brockhall, removed here. Mr. Thornton derives his immediate descent from John Thornton of Newnham, who married Lettice, sister and heiress of Thomas Newnham, whose grandfather, John Newnham, was living in 1469. The grandson of the John Thornton named above, Thomas Thornton, Esq., a barrister, purchased, in 1625, the estate at Brockhall of the Eyton family, by whom it had been bought of the Tyrwhitts of Kettleby, forty-three years before. On the death of the grandson of that gentleman, the estate went to his nephew, Thomas Thornton, Esq., who was high sheriff of Northamptonshire in 1699; and from that gentleman, the present proprietor, who was high sheriff in 1798, and who is a deputy-lieutenant and a magistrate of the county, is the fourth in descent.---S.E., Freeman's House.

BROCKHAM GREEN, SURREY, a hamlet in the above county. (For access, &c., see REIGATE.) Money orders issued at Reigate: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. The living is a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Winchester: pres. net income, £50: patron, Right Hon. H. Goulburn: pres. incumbent, John Miller, 1847.

BROCKHAMPTON AND KNOWLE, DORSET, a hamlet in the parish and hun<sup>d</sup> of Buckland-Newton, Cerne subdivision of the county—(which see for access, &c.): 107 miles from London, 5 from Beer-Regis, 12 from Dorchester. Money orders issued at Blandford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. Contains 30 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 65.—(Other returns with the parish.)

BROCKHAMPTON. See SOUTHAM AND BROCKHAMPTON.

BROCKHAMPTON, HEREFORD, a chapelry in the parish of Bromyard, hun<sup>d</sup> of Broxash—(which see for access, &c.): 2 miles from Bromyard. Money orders issued at Bromyard: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. Contains 1,410 acres: 20 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 88.

BROCKHAMPTON, HEREFORD, a parish in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Graytree, union of Ross, on the eastern bank of the Wye: 129 miles from London (coach road 130), 6 from Ross, 9 from Hereford. Gt. West. Rail. through Stonehouse to Gloucester, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Gloucester, &c., 107 miles. Money orders issued at Ross: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. There is the site of a Roman encampment near the village. The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £10. 8s.: pres. net income, £74: patron, Dean and Chapter of Hereford: pres. incumbent, J. M. Lewis, 1848: contains 620 acres: 33 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 132: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £768: poor rates in 1837, £72.

BROCKHAMPTON. See NEWINGTON.

BROCKHOLES. See GRIMSARH WITH BROCKHOLES.

BROCKLEBANK AND STONERAISE, CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Westward, ward of Allerdale below Derwent: it is situated in a hilly and woody district, bounded by Catland and War-nell fells: 315 miles from London (coach road 301), 5 from Wigton, 2 from Bolton. Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe, Lancaster, and Carlisle, to Wigton, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 215 miles. Money orders issued at Wigton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 1 p.m. Contains 105 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 617: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 709.—(Other returns with the parish.)

BROCKLESBY. See LIMSEY (LITTLE) WITH BROCKLESBY.

BROCKLEY, KENT, a hamlet, partly in the parish of St. Paul, Deptford, and partly in that of Lewisham, hun<sup>d</sup> of Blackheath, lathe of Sutton-at-Hone: 5 miles from London, 3 from Beckenham, 4 from Bromley. Tanner says of this place—Here was a monastery of the Premonstratensian order, founded about the latter end of King Henry II.'s reign, or beginning of the reign of Richard I., by Julian, Countess of —, to the honour of the blessed Virgin Mary; but the religious were, in King John's time, removed with the canons of Ottenham to the abbey of Beigham.

BROCKLEY, SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Chewton, union of Bedminster: 132 miles from London (coach road 121), 8 from Bristol, 8 from Axbridge. Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Yatton station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Yatton, &c., 145 miles. Money orders issued at Bristol: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. This parish, with that of Kingston-Seymour, forms a detached portion of the hundred, being locally situated in that of Hartcliffe with Bedminster. The living (St. Nicholas), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bath, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £9. 18s. 4d.: pres. net income, £128: patron, Trustees of the late Rev. W. Pigott: pres. incumbent, Henry Barry, 1834: contains 910 acres: 16 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 171: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,162: poor rates in 1837, £24. Brockley Hall is the seat of John Hugh Smyth Pigott, Esq., F.A.S. Mr. Pigott, whose other seat, which is also in Somersetshire, is called the Grove, served the office of high sheriff of the county, of which he is a magistrate and deputy-lieutenant.

BROCKLEY, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Thingoe: 79 miles from London (coach road 64), 13 from Bury, 7 from Clare. Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Chesterford to Newmarket, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, and Cambridge, to Newmarket, &c., 155 miles. Money orders issued at Bury St. Edmund's: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. A school here was endowed, in 1721, by Thomas Sparke, with a rent-charge of £6. The other parochial charities produce about £43 a year. The living (St. Andrew), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Sudbury, diocese of Norwich, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £10. 4s. 2d.: pres. net income, £330: patron, Rev. William Sprigge: pres. incumbent, William Sprigge, 1846: contains 1,080 acres: 44 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 380: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 437: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,450: poor rates in 1837, £229.

BROCKSFIELD, NORTHUMBRELAND, a township in the parish of Embleton, southern division of Bambrough ward—(which see for access, &c.): 3 miles from Alnwick. Money orders issued at Alnwick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes 12½ p.m. Contains 6 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 24: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £350: poor rates in 1837, £7.

BROCKTHROP (or BROOKTHROP), GLOUCESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Dudstone and King's-Barton, union of Wheatenhurst: 118 miles from London (coach road 109), 4 from Gloucester, 6 from Cheltenham. Gt. West. Rail. to Gloucester, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Gloucester, &c., 96 miles. Money orders issued at Gloucester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £7. 17s. 6d.: pres. net income, £186: patron, Dean and Chapter of Gloucester two turns, and J. Pitt one turn: pres. incumbent, F. T. J. Bayly, 1839: contains 1,100 acres: 29

houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 169: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,978 poor rates in 1837, £91.

BROCKTON, STAFFORD, a township in the parish of Baswick, eastern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Cuttlestone: 135 miles from London, 4 from Stafford, 4 from Penkridge.---Nor. West. Rail. to Penkridge, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Rugby to Stafford, 38, thence 4 miles.---Money orders issued at Stafford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---Contains 1,990 acres: 49 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 238: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,093: poor rates in 1837, £31.---Brook-ton Hall.

BROCKWORTH, GLOUCESTER, a parish in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Dudstone and King's-Barton: 118 miles from London (coach road 100), 4 from Gloucester, 5 from Cheltenham.---Gt. West. Rail. to Gloucester, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Gloucester, &c., 96 miles.---Money orders issued at Gloucester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---The parish, is traversed by the Roman highway, called the Ermine Street. The parochial charities produce about £4 per annum, or according to the rental of the estate from which it is paid.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Gloucester, diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £6. 3s. 4d.: pres. net income, £150: patron and incumbent, Rev. George Watts, 1847: contains 1,847 acres: 87 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 409: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 470: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,062: poor rates in 1848, £323. 2s. 6d. Amount of tithes, £152. 13s.

BRODSWORTH, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the northern division of the wapentake of Strathforth and Tickhill, union of Doncaster: 212 miles from London (coach road 165), 5 from Doncaster, 10 from Barnsley.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Peterborough and Lincoln to Doncaster, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Chesterfield, Woodhouse-Mill, and Retford, to Doncaster, &c., 42 miles.---Money orders issued at Doncaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The Brodsworth estate is charged with the payment of £10 a year to a school, founded in 1696, by D'Arcy Wentworth, Esq., for ten boys. Here are the large estate and mansion, formerly the property of Dr. Drummond, Archbishop of York, whose son, the Earl of Kinpont, sold to the late Peter Thelluson, Esq., whose singular will, directing his own immense fortune to accumulate till a certain period, has excited much comment. He has vested the property in trustees, to be made over at a certain period, by which time the accumulations will have amounted to several millions of money. If a male heir be at that time living, he is to take the whole, and will, in that event, be the richest man in the world. If there be no male heir, the property is to be applied towards the paying off the national debt.---The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the peculiar jurisdiction of the Dean and Chapter of York, is valued at £6. 6s. 10<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>d.: pres. net income, £367: patron, Archbishop of York: pres. incumbent, John Sharpe, 1827: contains 3,170 acres: 78 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 467: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 537: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,784: poor rates in 1837, £230. The great and small tithes of Brod-worth, the property of the dean and chapter of York, and the vicar, were commuted in 1815.

BROGDEN (or BROCKDEN), WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Barnoldswick, eastern division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Eweross---(which see for access, &c.): 223 miles from London, 6 from Clitheroe, 9 from Skipton.---Money orders issued at Clitheroe: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 2<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m.---Contains 1,670 acres: 38 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 219: poor rates in 1837, £124.

BROKENBOROUGH, WILTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Malmesbury: 92 miles from London (coach road 97), 2 from Malmesbury, 3 from Tetbury.---Gt. West. Rail. through Swindon to Minety, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Stonehouse, &c., 128 miles.---Money orders issued at Malmesbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---There is a school here endowed with £2 a year. The parish is included for election purposes within the borough of Malmesbury.---The living is a curacy annexed to the vicarage of Westport: contains 2,590 acres: 58 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 429: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 493: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,786: poor rates in 1837, £155.---E. 2 m. Charlton Park, the seat of the Earl of Suffolk and Berkshire---(for which see CHARLTON.)

BROKENHEUGH, NORTHUMBERLAND, a hamlet in the parish of Warden, ward of Tindale---(which see for access, &c.): 287 miles from London, 5 from Hexham: 10 from Corbridge.---Money orders issued at Hexham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> a.m.: post closes 4<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m.---Contains 80 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 185.---(Other returns with the parish.)

BROMBLOW. See WORTHEN.

BROMBOROUGH, CHESTER, a parish and township in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Wirral: it comprises the townships of Bromborough or Brom-borrow, and Brimstange, the former in the higher, the latter in the lower division of the hundred: 187 miles from London (coach road 194), 5 from Neston, 11 from Chester.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Chester to Bromborough station: from Derby, through Crewe and Chester, &c., 87 miles.---Money orders issued at Chester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The living (St. Barnabas), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Chester, is valued at £5. 11s. 8d.: pres. net income, £51: patron, Dean and Chapter of Chester: pres. incumbent, J. Mainwaring, 1827: contains 1,525 acres: 81 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 402: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 630: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,345: poor rates in 1837, £82.---Bromborough Hall, the residence of the Rev. James Mainwaring. S., Poulton Hall---(for which see POULTON.)

BROMBY, LINCOLN, a township in the parish of Frodingham, eastern division of the wapentake of Manley, parts of Lindsey---(which see for access, &c.): 10 miles from Brigg.---Money orders issued at Brigg: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> at noon: post closes 1<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m.---Contains 25 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 160: poor rates in 1837, £89.

BROME, SURREY, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Hartismere: 96 miles from London (coach road 83), 2 from Scole, 2 from Eye.---East. Co<sup>r</sup>

Rail. through Haughley Road to Throudeston, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, and Norwich, to Throudeston, &c., 188 miles. Money orders issued at Scole: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. This is a small but very picturesque village. The church contains some handsome monuments of the Cornwallis family, one of which, erected to the memory of Sir John Cornwallis and Lady Mary, his wife, is especially worthy of notice. Sir John is represented in full armour, and the lady is lying with a greyhound at her feet. The parochial charities produce about £18 a year. The living (Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, consolidated with Oakley, Great and Little, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Sudbury, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £10. Os. 2½d.: pres. net income, £561: patron, Sir E. Kerrison: pres. incumbent, G. J. M. Paterson, 1847: contains 1,650 acres: 41 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 328: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 367: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,743: poor rates in 1837, £164. Brome Hall, the ancient mansion of the family of Cornwallis, is a fine old piece of English architecture. The principal hall is a noble specimen of ancient workmanship; it is very lofty, and open to the roof. In the chapel there is some admirable oak-carving. The grounds are extensive and well wooded. The mansion is approached by an avenue of oaks. It is now occupied by Sir Edward Kerrison, Bart., G.C.H., K.C.B., whose father, Matthias Kerrison, Esq., bought it of the Marquis of Cornwallis. Sir Edward, after having served with eminent distinction in the army in Spain, France, and Holland, and last of all at Waterloo, attained the rank of lieutenant-general, and was created a baronet in 1821. He is also colonel of the 14th Light Dragoons, an inspector of army clothing, and an East India proprietor. Sir Edward is recorder of Eye, and has sat in parliament for the last thirty years. He is father-in-law to Lord Henniker and Viscount Mahon, M.P.

BROMEOLME, NORFOLK, a hamlet in the parish of Bacton, hun<sup>d</sup> of Tunstead: 124 miles from London, 5 from North Walsham, 7 from Worsted. Money orders issued at North Walsham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. Tanner says of this place—William de Glanville built here, in 1113, a priory of Cluniac monks from Castle Acre, to which this house was for some time subordinate. It was dedicated to St. Andrew, consisted of seven or eight monks, and was endowed, in the 26th of Henry VIII., with £144. 19s. The site was granted, in the 37th of Henry VIII., to Thomas Wodehouse. The monks had a grant for a market and weekly fair from Henry III.

BROMESWELL, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wilford, union of Woodbridge, on the river Deben: 70 miles from London (coach road 78), 2 from Woodbridge, 12 from Ipswich. East. Co<sup>y</sup> Rail. to Ipswich, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 202 miles. Money orders issued at Woodbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. The living (St. Edmund), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £4. 15s. 7½d.: pres. net income, £270: patron, Marquis of Bristol: pres. incumbent, R. H. King, 1843: contains 1,800 acres: 46 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 200: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £887: poor rates in 1837, £158.

BROMFIELD (BROOMFIELD, or BRUNSFIELD), CUMBERLAND, a parish, partly in the ward of Cumberland, and partly in that of Allerdale below Derwent, union of Wigton: the former portion comprehends the townships of Blencogo and Dundraw, and the latter the chapelry of Allonby, and the townships of Bromfield with Crookdale and Scales, Langrigg with Mealrigg, and West Newton: 318 miles from London (coach road 309), 6 from Wigton, 6 from Bolton. Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe, Lancaster, and Carlisle, to Leegate station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 218 miles. Money orders issued at Wigton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 1 p.m. There is a grammar-school here, free for the children of all persons resident in the parish. It was founded in 1612, by Richard Osmotherly, a mercer of London, who endowed it with £10 a year; but the endowment has been since materially increased by donations, chiefly from the family of Thomlison, and it now amounts to £40 a year. There is another school here with an endowment. The living (St. Kentigern), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £22: pres. net income, £270: patron, Bishop of Carlisle: pres. incumbent, C. H. Wybergh, 1826: contains 12,850 acres: 456 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,312: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,659: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £17,203: poor rates in 1837, £745.

BROMFIELD, CUMBERLAND, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.) Contains 61 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 466: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 536: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,686: poor rates in 1837, £160.

BROMFIELD, SALOP, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Munslow, union of Ludlow: it comprises the chapelry of Halford, and the townships of Bromfield and Dinehope: 159 miles from London (coach road 144), 3 from Ludlow, 10 from Knighton. Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford and Worcester to Kidderminster, thence 25 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Kidderminster, &c., 96 miles. Money orders issued at Ludlow: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. There is a school here, endowed with £100 in the three per cent. consols. The church was part of the old monastery, of which Tanner says—Here was, in the time of Henry I., a little college of prebendaries, or secondary canons, who, in the year 1159, turned Benedictine monks, and yielded up their church and all their lands to the abbey of St. Peter at Gloucester, whereupon were placed a prior and monks here, who continued till the dissolution. It was dedicated to the Virgin Mary, and valued, in one place, at £45. 11s. 8d. per annum, and in my MS., Valor and Stevens; vol. i., p. 82, at £78. 19s. 4d. It was granted to Charles Fox, in the 4th year of Philip and Mary. The living (St. Mary), a vicarage, with the curacy of Halford annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £6: pres. net income, £334: patron, Hon. R. H. Clive: pres. incumbent, T. J. Longworth, 1841: contains 9,330 acres: 132 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 655: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 758: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,035: poor rates in 1837, £625. S., Oakley Park.

BROMFIELD, SALOP, a township in the above

parish—(which see for access, &c.)—Contains 107 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 594: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 683: poor rates in 1837, £594.

BROMFLEET, EAST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of South Cave, partly within the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the Hunsley-Beacon division of the wapentake of Harthill: 178 miles from London, 3 from Cave, 7 from Howden.—(For access, &c., see CAVE.)—Money orders issued at Howden: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m.—The Hull and Selby Railway crosses the Market-Weighton Canal here, by an iron bridge of 70 feet span.—Contains 1,220 acres: 37 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 206: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,277: poor rates in 1837, £85.

BROMHALL (or BROMEHAL), BERKS, a hamlet in the parish of Sunninghill, hun<sup>d</sup> of Cookham.—In speaking of Bromhall, Bishop Tanner, in his Notitia Monastica, says—Here was a small Benedictine nunnery, dedicated to St. Margaret, founded before the first year of King John; but by inquisition, taken in the 13th year of Henry VIII., it was found that Joan Rawlins, late prioress, having resigned the only two nuns belonging to this house, had abandoned it in 1522, upon which the priory, with the lands belonging thereunto, were judged to be escheated to the crown, from whence it was granted, in the next year, by the interest and procurement of Bishop Fisher, to St. John's College in Cambridge, which yet enjoys the same.

BROMHALL, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Wrenbury, hun<sup>d</sup> of Nantwich, co-palatine of Chester, in the vicinity of the Birmingham and Grand Junction Canal—(for access, &c., see NANTWICH): 166 miles from London, 3 from Nantwich, 7 from Whitechurch.—Money orders issued at Nantwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.—Contains 1,130 acres: 28 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 157: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,233: poor rates in 1837, £180.

BROMHAM, BEDFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Willey, union of Bedford, bounded by the river Ouse, over which there is a bridge here: 66 miles from London (coach road 54), 3 from Bedford, 1 from Oakley.—Nor. West. Rail. through Bletchley to Bedford, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Rugby and Bletchley to Bedford, &c., 106 miles.—Money orders issued at Bedford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.—The church contains monuments of the families of Trevor and Dyve.—The living (St. Owen), a vicarage, with that of Oakley annexed, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bedford, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £336: patron, Eton College: pres. incumbent, J. J. Goodall, 1827: contains 1,910 acres: 61 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 314: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 361: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,996: poor rates in 1837, £190.—Bromham Hall is the seat of the Hon. G. Rice Rice Trevor. It is situated on the banks of the Ouse, surrounded by tasteful shrubberies, gardens, fish-ponds, and is screened by noble forest trees, the whole forming a most beautiful and fertile domain.

BROMHAM, WILTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Potterne and Cannings, union of Devizes, in the neighbourhood of the Kennet and Avon Canal:

109 miles from London (coach road 94), 4 from Devizes, 4 from Calne.—Gt. West. Rail. through Chippenham to Melksham, thence 3 miles; from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, and Chippenham, to Melksham, &c., 162 miles.—Money orders issued at Devizes: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.—The church contains several memorials of the Bayntun family, who have possessed the manor since the time of Henry VI. The Baptists have a chapel here.—The living (St. Nicholas), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wilts, and diocese of Salisbury, is valued at £12. 16s.: pres. net income, £698: patron, Mrs. Starkey: pres. incumbent, H. Bayntun, 1793: contains 3,300 acres: 303 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,558: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,791: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,549: poor rates in 1837, £956.—N. 2 m. Bowood House, the seat of the Marquis of Lansdowne—(for which see Bowood.) N. 1 m. Spy Park.—Bromham Hall is the residence of John Bayntun Starkey, Esq. In his treatise on government, Sidney asserts that, in the antiquity of possession and name, few of the nobility exceed the family of Bayntun. It appears, from a very curious pedigree preserved in the Museum, that in the time of Henry II. the principal members of the family were knights of St. John, and Sir Henry Bayntun was knight-marshal to the monarch, an office at that time of great dignity. His second son, Henry, was a knight of St. John, and was slain in Bretagne in 1201. Another Sir Henry Bayntun, taking part with the Earl of Northumberland in the time of Henry IV., was made prisoner, and beheaded at Berwick; and, in 1471, Sir Robert Bayntun, having fought against the king at Tewkesbury, was taken and attainted. After that period, the family were for a long time settled at Falstone, in Wiltshire; but on the death of Richard Beauchamp, Lord St. Anaud, John Bayntun, Esq., son of the Sir Robert just spoken of, removed to Bromham, which was anciently the seat of the Roches. He was restored in blood by Henry VII. He died in 1516, and was buried in Bromham church. The son of that gentleman, Sir Edward Bayntun, rose high in the favour of Henry VIII., and was vice-chamberlain to three of his queens. He was employed by the king to bring over Cardinal Pole, his cousin, to Henry's views; but in this all his endeavours failed. Sir Edward attended his royal master in his expeditions to France, where he is supposed to have died. The sixth in descent from Sir Edward, John Bayntun, Esq., dying without issue, the property devolved to his sister Anne, who through marriage conveyed it to Edward Rolt, Esq., M.P., of Sacomb Park, Herts, whose son, Edward Rolt, Esq., was groom of the bedchamber to Frederic Prince of Wales, father of George III. Mr. Rolt, who was also in parliament, assumed the name of Bayntun, and was created a baronet in 1762. The son of that gentleman, Sir Andrew Bayntun Rolt, Bart., of Spy Park, dying without male issue, the baronetcy became extinct, and the property devolved on his daughter and heiress, Maria Barbara, who married the Rev. John Starkey, D.D., one of an ancient family in Lancashire and Cheshire, whose grandson, the present proprietor, in 1843, succeeded to the estates.

BROMLEY, KENT, a market town and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bromley and Beckenham, lathe of Sutton-at-Hone, union of Bromley: 10 miles from London, 5 from Greenwich. — Croydon Rail. to Forest Hill, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 142 miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters—five deliveries each way daily. — The town stands on the north side of the river Ravensbourne, and consists chiefly of a long street of well-built houses. The bishops of Rochester long had their palace in the immediate vicinity; but the present structure, which is a plain brick building, was only erected in 1777. In the grounds there is a well, the waters of which are similar in quality to those of Tunbridge. The town is regulated by headboroughs and constables, chosen at the court-leet of the lord of the manor; and the petty sessions for the Bromley division are held here, and at Farnborough and Footscray. Bromley is a polling-place for West Kent. The church is a large Gothic structure, with an embattled tower; it contains several monuments of the bishops of Rochester. The Methodists and Independents have chapels here. A school here is endowed with the interest of £1,400, for clothing and educating thirty children; but the principal ornament of the place is a college, an institution founded for the residence and maintenance of the widows of clergymen of the Established Church: it is under the direction of the Archbishop of Canterbury, and thirteen other trustees. The college is a handsome building, and contains apartments for forty widows, each of whom receives £38 yearly, together with an allowance of coals and candles. The institution was originally founded, in 1666, by John Warner, Bishop of Rochester, for twenty widows, but it has been enriched, and its benefits extended, by subsequent benefactions. The Bromley poor-law union comprehends sixteen parishes, spread over an area of 62 square miles, and comprises a population of about 15,000 persons. — The living (St. Peter and St. Paul), a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Rochester, now in the diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £39. 12s.: pres. net income, £160: patron, Bishop of Rochester: pres. incumbent, J. E. Newell, 1827: contains 4,630 acres: 669 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,325: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 4,974: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £14,798: poor rates in 1837, £652. — Market day, Thursday. Fairs: Feb. 14, and Aug. 5, for live stock.

BROMLEY, STAFFORD, a township in the parish of Eccleshall, northern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Pirehill—(which see for access, &c.): 148 miles from London, 1 from Eccleshall, 8 from Stafford. — Money orders issued at Eccleshall: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. — Contains 1,080 acres: 4 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 33.

BROMLEY, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Bywell, St. Peter's, eastern division of the ward of Tindale—(which see for access, &c.): 278 miles from London, 7 from Hexham, 4 from Corbridge. — Money orders issued at Hexham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — Contains 56 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 314. — (Other returns with the parish.)

BROMLEY-ABBOTS, STAFFORD, a parish, formerly a market town, in the southern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Pirehill, union of Uttoxeter: it contains the liberty of Bagot's-Bromley, and the township of Bromley-Hurst: 133 miles from London (coach road 130), 10 from Stafford, 6 from Uttoxeter. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Tamworth to Colwich station, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Lichfield to Colwich, &c., 39 miles. — Money orders issued at Stafford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — The town consists chiefly of one long street, on the road from Uttoxeter to Lichfield, and is placed on the banks of a rivulet which falls into the Blyth. The appendix to the first name was derived from the circumstance of its having belonged to an abbey at Blythbury, founded, for Benedictine monks, by Hugh Malveysin, in the reign of Henry I., or Stephen. On the dissolution of the monasteries, this was granted to the Bagot family. The church is an ancient edifice, presenting many styles of architecture. The Independents have a chapel here. There is a free grammar-school here for the instruction of twelve boys, endowed, in 1606, by Richard Clarke, with £400, which was laid out in the purchase of 150 acres of land, shortly after the foundation; the land was subsequently leased for 999 years. There is an hospital here for six aged men and a matron, each of whom receive £10 annually: it was endowed by Lombard and Charles Bagot. The other parochial charities produce about £108 a year. The courts-leet of the lord of the manor are held here annually; and Bromley is a polling-place for North Staffordshire. — The living (St. Nicholas), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stafford, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £5. 1s. 8d.: pres. net income, £187: patron, Marquis of Anglesey: pres. incumbent, John Lowe, 1844: contains 8,360 acres: 332 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,508: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,734: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £9,634: poor rates in 1837, £436. — Fairs: March 5, May 22, and Sept. 4, for horses, &c. — W., Newton Warren House.—N., Bagot Park.

BROMLEY (BAGOT'S), STAFFORD, a liberty in the above parish of Bromley-Abbots. — (For access and postal arrangements, see above.)

BROMLEY (GREAT), ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Tendring: 57 miles from London (coach road 56), 4 from Manningtree, 6 from Colchester. — East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Colchester, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 189 miles. — Money orders issued at Manningtree: London letters issued 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — This parish sends four scholars as candidates for two exhibitions in St. John's College, Cambridge. The church is a fine building, and has a peculiarly fine wrought roof. — The living (St. George), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Colchester, and diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £16. 16s. 0½d.; pres. net income, £698: patron, — Graham, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. H. Graham, 1837: contains 3,050 acres: 94 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 738: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 848: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,685: poor rates in 1837, £294. — S., Bromley Lodge, the residence of Mrs. Bateman.

BROMLEY-HURST. See BROMLEY-ABBOTS.

BROMLEY (KING'S), STAFFORD, a parish in the northern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Offlow, union of Lichfield: 124 miles from London (coach road 126), 4 from Lichfield, 8 from Burton. — Nor.

West. Rail. through Rugby and Lichfield to Armitage, thence 4 miles; from Derby, through Burton and Lichfield to Armitage, &c., 31 miles. Money orders issued at Lichfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. There is an endowed almshouse here for seven poor widows. The other parochial charities produce £60 a year. The living (All Saints), a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Lichfield, and in the peculiar jurisdiction of the Dean and Chapter, is valued at £35: pres. net income, £72: patron, Prebendary of Alrewas and Weeford: pres. incumbent, John Hinckley, 1829: contains 3,370 acres: 130 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 718: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 825: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £5,356: poor rates in 1837, £309. E., Wichnor Park—(for which see WICHNOR.)

BROMLEY (St. LEONARD'S), MIDDLESEX, a parish in the Tower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Ossulstone, union of Poplar: 4 miles from London, 2 from Poplar. Money orders issued at Stratford: London letters—five deliveries each way daily. Its name, according to Tanner, is derived from a Benedictine nunnery, dedicated to St. Leonard, and founded by William, Bishop of London, in the time of William the Conqueror. Herein were a prioress and nine nuns, whose revenues were rated, in the 26th year of Henry VIII., at £121. 16s. The site was granted, in the 30th of Henry VIII., to John Meotas; and in the 32d year of Henry VIII. to Sir Ralph Sadler. The chapel of the nunnery is still used as the parish church. There is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel here. Seventeen children of this parish receive gratuitous instruction at Stratford-le-Bow school, which was founded in 1616 by Sir John Jolles, who also founded here eight almshouses, and placed the whole under the direction of the Drapers' Company. The other parochial charities produce about £94 a year. The living is a perpetual curacy and donative in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Middlesex, and diocese of London, not in charge: pres. net income, £190: patron, John Walter, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Peter Fraser, 1824: contains 620 acres: 888 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 6,154: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 7,077: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £17,886: poor rates in 1837, £2,337.

BROMLEY (LITTLE), ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Tendring: 59 miles from London (coach road 57), 3 from Manningtree, 7 from Colchester. East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Colchester to Ardleigh station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 191 miles. Money orders issued at Manningtree: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 10 p.m. The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Colchester, formerly in the diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £493: patron, Wadham College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, H. B. Newman, 1838: contains 2,260 acres: 98 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 426: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 490: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £2,719: poor rates in 1837, £159.

BROMPTON, KENT, a hamlet in the parish of Gillingham, hun<sup>d</sup> of Chatham and Gillingham, lathe of Aylesford: 44 miles from London (coach road 33), 1 from Chatham, 3 from Rochester. North Kent Rail. to Rochester, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 176 miles. Money orders issued at Chatham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. It stands on the brow of a hill, and is chiefly inhabited by persons engaged in the neighbouring dock-yards. There is a Roman Catholic chapel here, with a day school attached, in which more than 100 children receive their tuition. There are extensive barracks here belonging to the East India Company, and a fine naval hospital, included within the fortifications called the Lines. The living is a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Rochester: pres. net income, £130: patrons, Rev. W. Conway and Miss Conway: pres. incumbent, Daniel Cooke, 1847—(pop<sup>n</sup> returned with the parish.) Fair, May 29.

BROMPTON, MIDDLESEX, a hamlet in the parish of Kensington, Kensington division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Ossulstone, in the suburbs of London: 2 miles from London. Money orders issued here: London letters—five deliveries each way daily. A new district church was erected here in 1808. Brompton forming now, in fact, from the continuation of the streets, a part of the metropolis, there is ample provision for the religious observances and the scholastic instruction of the several sections of dissenters. The living (the Holy Trinity) is a perpetual curacy in the diocese of London: pres. net income, £639: patron, Bishop of London: pres. incumbent, W. J. Irons, 1840: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 9,515: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 10,942.—(Other returns with the parish.)

BROMPTON WITH RISTON, SALOP, a township in the parish of Church-Stoke, hun<sup>d</sup> of Chirbury—(which see for access, &c.): 166 miles from London, 3 from Montgomery, 3 from Keny. Money orders issued at Welshpool: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12½ p.m.: post closes at noon. Contains 1,560 acres: 34 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 190: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £1,771: poor rates in 1837, £128.

BROMPTON, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a chapelry in the parish of Northallerton, wapentake of Allertonshire—(which see for access, &c.): 226 miles from London, 2 from Northallerton, 11 from Thirsk. Money orders issued at Northallerton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. Two schools here have an endowment of £10. There is a Wesleyan and a Primitive Methodist chapel here. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in the manufacture of linen trowsers and fancy goods. Here is Standard Hill, memorable from the battle of the Standard, fought here in the year 1138, in which the Scots were defeated. The living is a perpetual curacy, a peculiarity of Durham: pres. net income, £120: patron, Dean and Chapter of Durham: pres. incumbent, W. J. Middleton, 1844: contains 3,490 acres: 301 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,535: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same, or under: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £4,993: poor rates in 1837, £635.

BROMPTON, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a parish in the wapentake of Pickering, union of Scarborough: it comprises the townships of Brompton, Sawdon, Snainton, and Troutdale: 255 miles from London (coach road 226), 8 from Scarborough. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, to Sherburn station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 123 miles. Money orders issued at Scarborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12½

p.m.: post closes 1½ p.m.—The church is of very pleasing elevation, and a beautiful object to the surrounding country. Brompton is supposed to have been the site of an ancient palace of the Northumbrian kings, and it is also believed to have been the birth-place of John de Brompton, who compiled a chronicle of the early annals of England, which extended from the arrival of St. Augustine in 558, to the death of Richard I. It is chiefly valuable for giving the Saxon laws at large; it was published among the Decem Scriptores. There are the remains of an ancient fortress in the neighbourhood, on an eminence termed Castlehill. —The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage with the curacy of Snainton, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cleveland, and diocese of York, is valued at £12: pres. net income, £108: patron, Sir G. Cayley, Bart.: pres. incumbent, Joseph Irvin, 1829: contains 10,180 acres: 267 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,534: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,764: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £8,815: poor rates in 1837, £419. All the tithes of Brompton, Ebberston, and Snainton townships, the property of the clerical rector and the curates, were commuted in 1708. —E., Wykeham Abbey—(for which see WYKEHAM.)—High Hall is the seat of Sir George Cayley, Bart. This estate, together with Ayton and some others, came into the Clifford family by the marriage of John Lord Clifford with Margaret, daughter and heiress of Henry de Bromfielde, and, after some changes, passed to the ancient and honourable family, to the head of which it now belongs. No family in England can claim a more ancient and illustrious descent than that of Cayley; for, by the records, it appears that for several generations before the descent of William I. upon England, they had held baronial rank in Normandy; and if Guilleaume de Cailli, stated in Doomsday-book to be lord of several manors in Berkshire, be, as has been supposed, William Fitz-osborne, cousin of the Conqueror, and that monarch's viceroy during his absence abroad, they of course trace their rise from Rollo himself. But that William died without issue, and the line was continued by his brother Humphrey de Cailli, whose posterity, in their several generations, occupied high positions in the land, and at length settled in Norfolk, where, as early as the time of Edward I., Henry de Cayley was a person of high consideration, and they have now, for about two centuries and a half, been settled at Brompton. William, the then head of the house, was, in 1661, created a baronet for his services to Charles I., his son having been knighted early in the outbreak of the civil war. Sir William, the second baronet, was nominated one of the aldermen of Scarborough in the charter granted by Charles II., in the thirty-sixth of his reign, to that town, and filled the office of mayor in 1686. The grandson of that gentleman, Sir George Cayley, acted most usefully as an active and influential magistrate for a long series of years. He died at an advanced age in 1792, when he was succeeded in the title and estates by the present baronet, who is a Fellow of the Royal Society, and for several years sat in the House of Commons as the representative of Scarborough.

BROMPTON, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.) —Contains 106 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 570:

probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 655: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,994: poor rates in 1837, £126.

BROMPTON-BIERLOW (or BIERLEY), WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Wath-upon-Dearne, upper division of the wapentake of Strafforth and Tickhill: 182 miles from London, 6 from Rotherham.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Derby to Wath station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Chesterfield and Rotherham to Wath, &c., 50 miles.—Money orders issued at Rotherham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.—There is a school here, endowed with bequests of an estate by George Ellis in 1711, and of £300 by John Higson in 1814.—Contains 3,150 acres: 271 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,704: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,960: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,559: poor rates in 1837, £599.

BROMPTON-PATRICK, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a parish, partly in the eastern, and partly in the western division of the wapentake of Hang, union of Leyburn: it contains the townships of Brompton-Patrick, Newton-le-Willews, part of Arrowthorne, and part of Hunton: 161 miles from London (coach road 226), 3 from Bedale, 8 from Northallerton.—Nor. East. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, York, and Northallerton, to Bedale, thence 3 miles.—Money orders issued at Bedale: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.—There is a school here, endowed with £21. 10s. 6d. per annum.—The living (St. Patrick), a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond, and diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £22: pres. net income, £100: patron, Bishop of Chester: pres. incumbent, Hugh Rigg, 1811: contains 5,560 acres: 230 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,130: prob. pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,299: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £8,689: poor rates in 1837, £296.

BROMPTON-PATRICK, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.)—Contains 1,280 acres: 42 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 216: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 254: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,901: poor rates in 1837, £24.

BROMPTON (PORTER'S). See GANTON WITH BROMPTON.

BROMPTON-RALPH, SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Williton Freemanors, union of Williton: 172 miles from London (coach road 155), 3 from Wiveliscombe, 8 from Watchet.—Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Taunton, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Taunton, &c., 185 miles.—Money orders issued at Wiveliscombe: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.—There are traces of a Danish encampment on Brendon Hill.—The living (St. Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Taunton, and diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £17. 10s. 5d.: pres. net income about £347: patrons, Mrs. Blommart, and Mrs. S. Escott: pres. incumbent, W. S. Escott, 1842: contains 2,487 acres: 76 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 492: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 500: gross yearly value, £3,572. 10s. 3d.: rateable value, £2,736. 10s. 11d.: poor rates about £400.

BROMPTON-REGIS, SOMERSET, a parish, formerly constituting a hun<sup>d</sup> of itself, but now included in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Williton Freemanors, union of Dulverton, on the eastern bank of the river Exe: 182 miles from London (coach road 161), 3 from Dulverton, 8 from Wiveliscombe. — Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Taunton, thence 19 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, to Taunton, &c., 195 miles. — Money orders issued at Bampton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — The church contains a curiously-carved oak, which separates the nave and chancel. The village has a right of holding a weekly market and two annual fairs. In the neighbourhood there are the remains of Barlinch priory. — The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Taunton, and diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £12. 5s. 7½d.: pres. net income, £400: patron, Emanuel College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, Alexander Tate, 1847: contains 8,810 acres: 149 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 875: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 1,006: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £5,379: poor rates in 1837, £566.

BROMPTON-UPON-SWALE, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Easby, eastern division of the wapentake of Gilling: 267 miles from London (coach road 195), 2 from Catterick, 2 from Huntingdon. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, York, and Dalton, to Catterick, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 135 miles. — Money orders issued at Catterick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — Contains 1,710 acres: 99 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 399: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 460: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,645: poor rates in 1837, £111.

BROMSBERROW, GLOUCESTER, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Botloe, union of Newent: 132 miles from London, 4 from Ledbury, 11 from Tewkesbury. — Gt. West. Rail. through Stonehouse to Tewkesbury, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Tewkesbury, &c., 94 miles. — Money orders issued at Ledbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The parochial charities produce £6. 16s. per annum. — The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Gloucester, and diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £7. 15s.: pres. net income, £339: patron, Earl Beauchamp: pres. incumbent, Charles Hill: contains 1,760 acres: 54 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 283: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 256: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,599: poor rates in 1837, £255. — Bromsberrow Place, the seat of Osman Ricardo, Esq., M.P.

BROMSGROVE (or BROOMSGROVE), WORCESTER, a market town and parish in the upper division of the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Halfshire, division of Droitwich, union of Bromsgrove: 133 miles from London (coach road 116), 12 from Worcester. — Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford and Worcester to Bromsgrove: from Derby, through Birmingham to Bromsgrove, 56 miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7 a.m. and 3.10 p.m.: post closes 9½ p.m. — In the reign of Henry III. this was a royal demesne; and in the time of Edward I. returned two members to parliament, a privilege, however, which was shortly afterwards relinquished. The town consists chiefly of one street, about a mile in length, on the western bank of the river Salwarp; and Leland's description of it is still applicable—All in a manner of one street, very large, standing in a plain ground. The towns standeth somethings by clothinge. The heart of the towne is meetly well paved. It contains some good houses, with many ancient ones. The principal business is nail-making. Bromsgrove was formerly incorporated, but is now under the jurisdiction of the county magistrates, who hold petty sessions for the division of Droitwich in the town-hall here, a neat structure, under which there is a public market. The church is a fine edifice, with a tower 189 feet high. The Independents, Baptists, and Wesleyan Methodists, each have chapels here. The grammar-school was founded by Edward VI., the endowment being originally only £7 a year; but Sir Thomas Cooke, the founder of Worcester College, in Oxford, added £50 per annum to it, and founded, for the benefit of the scholars of this and four other schools in the county, four scholarships of £50 a year each; and four fellowships of £150 a year, in his own College at Oxford. The number of boys on the foundation is twelve, who are clothed and educated, and on leaving the school are apprenticed out of a fund established for that purpose. The interest of £200, left by Mrs. Wattell in 1828, is given away in medals for good conduct, which are struck from an appropriate die. There is a school here, in which nearly 1,200 children are instructed; and a school-house, at the cost of £1,000, has lately been erected for their accommodation. The parochial charities produce something more than £200 a year. In the vicinity of the town is a district called Bromsgrove-Lickey—formerly a barren range of hills, but which are now enclosed—is the source of several streams, some of which descend into the Severn, while others fall into the Trent. Bromsgrove poor-law union comprehends thirteen parishes, spread over 71 square miles, with a population of about 20,000 persons. — The living (St. John the Baptist), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £41. 8s. 1½d.: pres. income, £1,205: patron, Dean and Chapter of Worcester: pres. incumbent, W. Villers, 1846: contains 11,230 acres: 1,756 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 9,671: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, the same: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £26,661: poor rates in 1837, £1,961. — Market day, Tuesday. Fairs: June 24, Oct. 1, cattle, &c.; Sept. 24, statute, last Tuesday in February, March, April, May, and August. — Bankers: Rufford, Biggs, & Co.—draw on Glyn, Halifax, & Co.: Branch of Stourbridge and Kidderminster Banking Company (on market days)—draw on Smith, Payne, & Co.—Inns: Royal Hotel, and Star and Garter. — The principal mansion here is the seat of the Rev. Thomas H. P. Furse Lowe, D.D., Dean of Exeter, who is also a magistrate of Shropshire. Dr. Lowe's family is of very ancient extraction, being derived from one of the commanders of William the Conqueror, whom he accompanied in his descent upon England, as appears by an observation of Abingdon, the antiquary, and has preserved a male descent to the present day. Mr. Abingdon says—I must not forget, in speaking of the abbot and convent of Worcester, to mention their benefactors. Their weare in thys lordshyppe two auncient inhabitants, one Lowe (wrytten formerly and still pronounced here Lane), whose aunccestor was one of the captaynes who fought under Duke Wylliam of Normandy in the conquest of Englande, as appeareth in a rowle most exactly drawn and carefully kept in Flanders, the copy whereof was sent me by a gentleman in this family, to give me light in the obscurity of antiquities. The family continued for a long series of years resident at the Lowe, and among the eminent members of it in ancient times, we may select John Lowe, an Augustine monk, consecrated Bishop of St. Asaph in 1433; Humphrey, high sheriff of Shropshire in 1439; and Richard, who, with his followers, was retained to serve in France in the time of Edward IV. The head of the family, towards the close of the sixteenth century, was Thomas Lowe, Esq. of the Lowe, in the parish of Langridge, Worcestershire, and from him the present venerable proprietor is the fifth lineal descendant.

BROMWICH-CASTLE, WARWICK, a chapelry in the parish of Aston, Birmingham division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Hemlingford—(which see for access, &c.): 107 miles from London, 4 from Coleshill, 5 from Birmingham.—Dugdale supposed this place to have derived its name from a castle which once stood here; and there is still a mound called Castle Hill. There are the vestiges of a Roman intrenchment in the neighbourhood.—The living is a perpetual curacy, not in charge, a donative, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Coventry, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, now in the diocese of Worcester: pres. net income, £315: patron, Earl of Bradford: pres. incumbent, E. Kempson, 1834.—(Pop<sup>n</sup> returned with that of the parish.)

BROMWICH (LITTLE). See ASTON, WARWICK.

BROMWICH (WEST), STAFFORD, a parish in the southern division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Offlow, union of West Bromwich: 118 miles from London (coach road 122), 6 from Birmingham.—Nor. West. Rail. to Birmingham, thence 6 miles; from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 48 miles.—Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m. and 3½ p.m.: post closes 9 p.m.—The Independents have a very handsome chapel here, built in the Doric style, which contains 1,000 sittings. The Wesleyan Methodists and the Roman Catholics also have chapels here. Coal and ironstone are found here. The West Bromwich poor-law union comprehends six parishes, spread over 27 square miles, with a population of about 35,000 persons.—The living (St. Clement), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stafford, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £22: pres. net income, £566: patron, Earl of Dartmouth: pres. incumbent, James Spry, 1837: contains 5,390 acres: 2,860 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 26,121: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 30,021: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £13,245: poor rates in 1837, £2,483. The tithes were commuted in 1801.—Bank: Branch of the Dudley and West Bromwich Bank.

BROMYARD, HEREFORD, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Broxash, union of Bromyard: 134 miles from London (coach road 125), 13 from Hereford.—Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 16 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, 87 miles.—Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—The town is situated on the river Frome, and the parish comprises Linton, Norton, and Winslow, and the chapelry of Brookhampton. The village is old and irregularly built, and consists chiefly of old wooden houses. The church is an ancient and interesting edifice, and contains a monument of the Rev. Phineas Jackson, who died rector of the parish in 1681, leaving several small bequests to the parish. Tanner, in speaking of it, says—Three canons, prebendaries, or portionists, in the church here, occur as anciently as the 53d year of Henry III., in the gift of the Bishops of Hereford. Hence it was frequently styled a collegiate church or college; and as such, was granted, in the 14th year of Elizabeth, to one William Jeames. The rectory is now divided into three portions, the first of which is valued at £5, and the others at £6; gross income of the first portion, £603; of the second portion, £70; and of the third portion, £7—all of which are in the patronage of the Bishop of Hereford. A workhouse has been built here for the union of Bromyard, at a cost of £3,000, which is capable of accommodating 120 inmates. The union comprehends thirty-three parishes, spread over an area of 96 square miles, with a population of about 12,000 persons.—The living, a sinecure rectory and a vicarage, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £9. 10s. 7½d.: pres. net income, £600: pres. incumbent, William Cooke, 1834: contains 9,310 acres: 596 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,927: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,366: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £12,161: poor rates in 1837, £1,020.—Market day, Monday. Fairs: last Monday in January, Thursday before Lady-day, May 3, Monday in Whit-week, Thursday before July 25, October 22, for cattle.—Bankers: Sub-Branch of National Provident Bank of England—draw on Spooner & Co.—Inns: Falcon, and Hop Pole.

BRONCASTELLAN, CARDIGAN, a township in the parish of Llanbadarn Fawr, hund<sup>d</sup> of Gneurglynn, South Wales, on the river Reidel—(which see for access, &c.): 210 miles from London, 2 from Aberystwith, 3 from Capel.—Money orders issued at Aberystwith: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 4½ p.m.: post closes 9 p.m.—Contains 32 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 147: poor rates in 1837, £25.

BRONGWYN, CARDIGAN, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Troedyr, union of Newcastle in Emlyn, South Wales: 248 miles from London, 7 from Cardigan.—Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 130 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 202 miles.—Money orders issued at Cardigan: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.—Contains 79 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 377: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 433: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> 938: poor rates in 1837, £102.

BRON-LLYS. See BRYN-LLYS.

BRON-Y-GATH. See WESTON-RHYN, with BRON-Y-GATH.

BROOK (or GASPER), SOMERSET, a hamlet in the parish of Stourton, division of Wincanton, hund<sup>d</sup> of Norton-Ferris—(which see for access, &c.): 125 miles from London, 6 from Wells, 2 from Mere.—Money orders issued at Wells: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—Contains 1,340 acres: 57 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 288: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,160.

BROOK, HANTS, a parish in the liberty of West Medina, Isle of Wight division of the county: 110 miles from London (coach road 97), 4 from Yarmouth, 8 from Newport.—Sou. West. Rail. to Portsmouth, thence across the Solent, through Newport to Brook.—Money orders issued at Yarmouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.—The living (the Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £1. 18s. 9d.: pres. net income, £250: patron, Rev. C. F. Fenwick: pres. incumbent, C. F. Fenwick, 1836: contains 750 acres: 21 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 150: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £872: poor rates in 1837, £130.

BROOKE (St. Mary), KENT, a parish, partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wye, and partly in that of Chart and Longbridge, lathe of Scray, union of East Ashford: 71 miles from London (coach road 57), 4 from Ashford, 12 from Canterbury.—Sou. East. Rail. to Ashford, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 203 miles.—Money orders issued at Ashford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.—The living (the Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £7. 7s. 3d.: pres. net income, £171: patron, Dean and Chapter of Canterbury: pres. incumbent, W. Y. Draper, 1833: contains 540 acres: 29 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 150: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £773: poor rates in 1837, £110.

BROOKE, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Clavering, but locally in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Henstead, union of Loddon and Clavering: 134 miles from London (coach road 117), 6½ from Norwich, 7¼ from Bungay.—Nor. and East. Rail. to Norwich, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough to Norwich, &c., 174 miles.—Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—There is a Baptist chapel here. There are also several cottages in the parish, belonging to the vicar, and about five acres of glebe. The church, which is an ancient and beautiful structure, has been recently re-arranged, and put in thorough repair, by which 76 additional sittings have been obtained. There is a parish property producing about £180 a year; from the proceeds of which, necessary church expenses are defrayed, the remainder is applied to reduce the poor rates, to the support of the parish schools, &c. There is a good vicarage-house. The celebrated Sir Astley Cooper was born here. There are three parish schools: one for boys, one for girls, and one for infants; average attendance, 180 children.—The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £5: pres. net income, £216: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, W. Beal, LL.D., 1847: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 756: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 800: contains 2,150 acres: 132 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,279. 7s.: poor rates in 1848, £423. 11s. 11d. Tithes commuted at £240. 10s.—The village is beautifully situated in the midst of, and surrounded by, the parks connected with Brooke Hall and Brooke House. The former of these is occupied by the Rev. J. Holmes, the present impropiator, and lord of the manor.—Brooke House is the seat of G. S. Kett, Esq., the representative of one of, and connected with, the most ancient families of the county, of which he has filled the office of high sheriff.

BROOKE, RUTLAND, a parish in the soke and union of Oakham: 129 miles from London (coach road 91), 2 from Oakham, 2 from Braunston.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Syston to Oakham, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Syston to Oakham, &c., 48 miles.—Money orders issued at Oakham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.—Tanner, in speaking of this place, says—A small priory of three or four canons regular of the order of St. Austin was founded here by Hugh Ferrers, in the time of Richard I. It was subordinate to the monastery of Kenilworth in Warwickshire, dedicated to the blessed Virgin, and valued, in the 26th year of Henry VIII., at £43. 13s. 4d. The site was granted, in the 28th year of Henry VIII., to Anthony Coope.—The living is a curacy annexed to the vicarage of Oakham: contains 1,560 acres: 23 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 113: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,256: poor rates in 1837, £52.

BROOK-END, BUCKINGHAM, a hamlet in the parish of Shenley, hun<sup>d</sup> of Cottesloe—(which see for access, &c.): 47 miles from London, 2 from Biggleswade, 5 from Potton.—Money orders issued at Biggleswade: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.—Contains 1,620 acres: 52 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 264: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,817: poor rates in 1837, £141.

BROOKESBY, LEICESTER, a parish in the eastern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Goscoat, union of Melton-Mowbray: 114 miles from London (coach road 106), 6 from Melton-Mowbray, 5 from Thurmaston.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Syston to Brookesby station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Syston to Brookesby, &c., 31 miles.—Money orders issued at Melton-Mowbray: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.—There was formerly a mansion here, in which Villiers, the first Duke of Buckingham, was born.—The living (St. Michael), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Leicester, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £5. 12s. 6d.: pres. net income, £250: patron, Countess of Listowell: pres. incumbent, C. A. Campbell, 1835: contains 640 acres: 2 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 20: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,663: poor rates in 1837, £61.

BROOK-GREEN, MIDDLESEX, a hamlet in the parish of Fulham, Kensington division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Ossulstone: 3 miles from London, 4 from Brentford.—Money orders issued at Hammersmith—five posts each way daily.—There is a Roman Catholic chapel here.—(Returns with the parish.)

BROOKHAMPTON, SALOP, a township in the parish of Holdgate, hun<sup>d</sup> of Munslow—(which see for access, &c.): 55 miles from London, 6 from Wallingford, 7 from Abingdon.—Money orders issued at Wallingford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.—Contains 16 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 109.

BROOKHAMPTON. See NEWINGTON, OXFORD.

BROOKHAMPTON. See OMBESLEY.

BROOKLAND, KENT, a parish, partly in the liberty of Romney-Marsh, and partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Alesbridge, lathe of Shepway, union of Romney-Marsh, in the vicinity of the Royal Military Canal: 79 miles from London (coach road 67), 5 from New Romney, 6 from Rye.—Sou. East. Rail. to Ashford, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 211 miles.—Money orders issued at New Romney: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.—The living (St. Augustine), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £17. 12s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £93: patron, Dean and Chapter of Canterbury: pres. incumbent, D. Boys, 1809: contains 1,500 acres: 77 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 462: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 531: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,385: poor rates in 1837, £302. — Fair, Aug. 1, for pedlery.

BROOKTHROP. See BROCKTHROP.

BROOK-STREET, ESSEX, a hamlet in the parish of South-Weald, hun<sup>d</sup> of Chafford: 19 miles from London, 1 from Brentwood. — Money orders issued at Brentwood: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. — Tanner says of this place—A free chapel, and an hospital of a master or warden, and divers poor people, lepers, dedicated to St. John the Baptist, was established here before the 20th year of Edward I. This spittle, with all the lands thereunto belonging, were granted, in the 7th year of Edward VI., to Sir Anthony Brown and Richard Weston. — (Pop<sup>n</sup> returned with the parish.)

BROOKS-WEIR (or BROCKWARE), GLOUCESTER, a village in the parishes of St. Briavell's, Huelsfield, and Wollastone, hun<sup>d</sup> of St. Briavell's, on the eastern bank of the Wye—(which see for access, &c.): 137 miles from London, 4 from Chepstow, 4 from Trellock. — Money orders issued at Chepstow: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The tide rarely flows beyond this village, except at spring-tides.

BROOM, BEDFORD, a hamlet in the parish of Southill, hun<sup>d</sup> of Wixamtree — (which see for access, &c.): 44 miles from London, 2 from Biggleswade, 3 from Shefford. — Money orders issued at Biggleswade: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — Contains 56 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 365: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 419. — (Other returns with the parish.)

BROOM, DURHAM, a township in the parish of St. Oswald, middle division of Chester ward: 289 miles from London (coach road 261), 2 from Durham, 12 from Sedgefield. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, to Durham, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 157 miles. — Money orders issued at Durham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. — Contains 1,450 acres: 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 108: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,340: poor rates in 1837, £71.

BROOM, STAFFORD, a parish to the southern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Seisdon, union of Kidderminster, but detached and situated in the lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Halfshire, county of Worcester, to which county it has recently been annexed by the new boundary act: 139 miles from London (coach road 129), 4 from Stourbridge, 5 from Kidderminster. — Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Kidderminster, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Kidderminster, &c., 76 miles. — Money orders issued at Stourbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The living (St. Peter), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £5. 3s. 4d.: pres. net income, £224: patron, Sir E. D. Scott, Bart.: pres. incumbent, E. Dudley, 1810: contains 713 acres: 20 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 129: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,016: poor rates in 1837, £61. Tithes commuted in 1779. — Broom House is the residence of Mrs. Addenbrooke.

BROOME (or BROME), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Loddon, union of Loddon and Clavering: 146 miles from London (coach road 108), 2 from Bungay, 6 from Beccles. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Reedham, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough to Reedham, &c., 186 miles. — Money orders issued at Bungay: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The parochial charities produce about £68 a year. — The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £6. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £214: patron, Sir W. F. F. Middleton: pres. incumbent, W. Colville, 1828: contains 1,470 acres: 102 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 610: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 701: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,110: poor rates in 1837, £146.

BROOMFIELD, ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Chelmsford: 31 miles from London, 2 from Chelmsford, 11 from Dunmow. — East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Chelmsford, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 164 miles. — Money orders issued at Chelmsford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — The church is commodious, and has an ancient round tower. — The living (the Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Essex, formerly in the diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester: pres. net income, £220: patron, Bishop of London: pres. incumbent, H. Eley, 1843: contains 2,215 acres: 180 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 820: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 943: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,064: poor rates in 1837, £404.

BROOMFIELD, KENT, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Eythorne, lathe of Aylesford, union of Hollingbourn: 61 miles from London (coach road 40), 5 from Maidstone, 5 from Lenham. — Sou. East. Rail. to Maidstone, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 193 miles. — Money orders issued at Maidstone: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — The living (St. Margaret), a perpetual curacy, annexed to that of Leeds, in the diocese of Canterbury, and having jointly a pres. net income of £163: patron, Archbishop of Canterbury: pres. incumbent, William Burkitt, 1843: contains 1,000 acres: 25 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 146: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,652: poor rates in 1837, £69. — Fair, Whit-Monday. — N. 1 m. Leeds Castle, the seat of C. W. Martin, Esq., M.P.—(for which see LEEDS.)

BROOMFIELD, SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Andersfield, division and union of Bridgewater: 168 miles from London (coach road 142), 5 from Taunton, 6 from Bridgewater. — Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Taunton, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Taunton, &c., 182 miles. — Money orders issued at Taunton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Taunton, and diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £25: pres. net income, £78: patron, Colonel Hamilton: pres. incumbent, Robert Crosse, 1843: contains 4,050 acres: 91 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 497: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 572: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,025: poor rates in 1837, £377. — Fair, November 13, for cattle, hats, and pewter goods. — Finecourt House, the seat of Andrew Crosse, Esq.

BROOMHAUGH, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township

in the parish of Bywell-St.-Andrew, eastern division of the ward of Tindale—(which see for access, &c.): 274 miles from London, 8 from Hexham, 13 from Newcastle.—Money orders issued at Hexham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.—Contains 24 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 100.—(Other returns with the parish.)

BROOMHILL, KENT, a parish in the liberty of New Romney, lathe of Shepway, union of Rye: it is now a member of the town and port of New Romney: 84 miles from London, 4 from Rye.—Sou. East. Rail. to Ashford, thence 17 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 216 miles.—Money orders issued at Rye: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.—Contains 3,580 acres: 7 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 121: poor rates in 1837, £56.

BROOMHOPE WITH BUTELAND. See BIRLEY, NORTHUMBERLAND.

BROOMPARK, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Edlingham: 6 miles from Alnwick.—Money orders issued at Alnwick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ p.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.—Contains 12 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 63: poor rates in 1837, £29.

BROOMRIDGE, NORTHUMBERLAND, a hamlet in the parish of Ford: 326 miles from London, 6 from Wooler, 5 from Coldstream.—Money orders issued at Belford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 3½ p.m.: post closes 9 p.m.—This is supposed by Camden to have been the ancient Brunanburch, where Athelstane encountered the combined forces of Scotland and Denmark in 928. About half a mile to the south, Earl Bothwell defeated Sir Henry Percy in 1558.

BROSELEY, SALOP, a parish and market town in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Wenlock, union of Madeley: 146 miles from London (coach road 145), 6 from Bridgenorth.—Nor. West. Rail. through Birmingham to Wolverhampton, thence 19 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 75 miles.—Money orders issued at Ironbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.—Broseley is inhabited chiefly by miners: it extends in one long irregular street, intersected by cross lanes, to the distance of upwards of two miles from the bank of the Severn. There are some extensive furnaces and iron-foundries here, and the place is celebrated for its tobacco-pipes, tiles, and fire-bricks. The first of these trades gives employment to about forty hands, who annually make up upwards of forty-five tons of white clay, procured from the neighbourhood of Barnstaple and Cornwall. There is a court of requests here, which has jurisdiction over several of the neighbouring parishes. The Wesleyan Methodists, Baptists, and Independents, each have places of worship here. A spring of petroleum was discovered in the neighbourhood in 1711.—The living (St. Leonard), a rectory with that of Linley, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, diocese of Hereford, is valued at £7. 18s. 6d.: pres. net income, £432: patron, Lord Forester: pres. incumbent, Hon. O. W. W. Forester, 1842: contains 1,550 acres: 1,012 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,829: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 5,553: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £7,285: poor rates in 1837, £681.—Market day, Friday. Fairs, Jan. 26, May 29, and Oct. 12.—Bankers, Pritchard, Pritchard, and Boycott—draw on Barnett, Hoares, & Co.—Lion Inn: Pheasant Inn.

BROTHERICK. See WARKWORTH.

BROTHERTOFT, LINCOLN, a chapelry in the parish and wapentake of Kirkton, parts of Holland: 141 miles from London (coach road 121), 5 from Boston, 8 from Tattershall.—Nor. and East. Rail. through Peterborough to Boston, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Lincoln to Boston, &c., 86 miles.—Money orders issued at Boston: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.—The living is a curacy annexed to the vicarage of Kirkton: contains 900 acres: 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 122: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,836: poor rates in 1837, £78.

BROTHERTON, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish, partly within the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the lower division of the wapentake of Barkstone-Ash: the parish contains the townships of Brotherton, Byram with Poole and Sutton: 203 miles from London (coach road 179), 1 from Ferrybridge, 3 from Pontefract.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Normanton, to Burton Salmon, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Normanton, &c., 71 miles.—Money orders issued at Ferrybridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—Near the church is a house which is supposed to be the house in which Margaret, second wife of Edward I., was delivered of her son, Thomas de Brotherton, in the year 1300. The parochial charities produce £10. 8s. per annum.—The living (St. Edward), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, and to which peculiar jurisdiction it belongs, is valued at £5. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £192: patron, Dean and Chapter of York: pres. incumbent, G. E. Larden, 1843: contains 2,120 acres: 348 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,744: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,005: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £6,136: poor rates in 1837, £606. All the tithes, the property of the dean and chapter of York, and the vicar, were commuted in 1793.

BROTHERTON, WEST RIDING, YORK.—(For access and postal arrangements, see above.)—Contains 790 acres: 326 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,704: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,960: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,817: poor rates in 1837, £469.

BROTON, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a parish in the eastern division of the liberty of Langbaurgh: 295 miles from London (coach road 256), 6 from Guisborough, 3 from Easington.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, York, and Darlington, to Redcar, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 163 miles.—Money orders issued at Guisborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 1½ p.m.: post closes 11 a.m.—The living is a curacy annexed to the perpetual curacy of Skelton, in the diocese of York, and having jointly a pres. net income of £137: patron, Archbishop of York: pres. incumbent, William Close, 1816: contains 3,560 acres: 111 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 468: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 538: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £4,396: poor rates in 1837, £330.

BROUGH AND SHATTON, DERBY, a hamlet in the parish of Hope, hund<sup>d</sup> of High Peake—(which see for access, &c.): 165 miles from London, 5 from Tideswell.—Money orders issued at Bakewell:

London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11½ a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m.—Some antiquaries have supposed this place to be the site of the Roman station Crococolana, while others ascribe it to Ancaster in Lincolnshire.—Contains 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 80: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,101: poor rates in 1837, £53.

BROUGH-UNDER-STAINMORE, WESTMORELAND, a parish in East ward, union of East ward: it comprises the market town of Brough, the chapelry of Stainmore, the townships of Brough-Sowerby, and Hilbeck, and part of that of Kaber: 276 miles from London (coach road 261), 8 from Appleby.—Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Lancaster to Tebay station, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 176 miles.—Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m. and 2.35 p.m.: post closes 10.10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

—Brough was very early a place of importance: it occupies the site of a Roman fortress called Verteræ, or Verteres, where, towards the decline of the Roman power in Britain, a prefect, with a band, was placed for the defence of the surrounding country. It is distinguished from other places of the same name from its situation, adjoining to a rocky ridge of mountains, which here separates this county from Yorkshire. Before the Conquest, also, it was a place of considerable note. At what time the castle was erected is not known; but in 1174 it was nearly demolished by William, King of Scotland, who in one of his frays laid waste the town. It was subsequently restored, but in 1521 was nearly destroyed by fire, after a Christmas festival, given by Lord Clifford, and remained dismantled till about 1660, when it was restored by Lady Anne Clifford, afterwards Countess of Pembroke. The ruins of it have gradually decreased, but until within these few years they were very considerable. The castle is the property of the Earl of Thanet. The town consists principally of one long street, in which there are many substantial and highly respectable houses; it stands on the Swindale beck, which flows into the Eden, and is very pleasantly situated. It is divided into the Church-Brough and the Market-Brough, which are separated from each other by the Helle beck, which also runs through the Market-Brough. The church is an ancient structure. Tanner, in speaking of this place, says—In the beginning of the 16th century, John Brunekill founded here, on a piece of ground called Gibgarth, a chapel and hospital, with two beds for travellers and other poor people. The chapel was dedicated to the blessed Virgin and St. Gabriel; it had two chaplains, one to celebrate divine service, and the other to instruct the children of the place in grammar and singing. It was under the government of the abbot of Shap for the time being. At the dissolution, a pension of £7. 4s. 4d., out of its revenues, was granted for the continuance of the grammar-school. The Baptists, Independents, and Methodists, all have places of worship here. There are two schools here, with small endowments; and the other parochial charities produce about £18. 10s. per annum. There is a chalybeate spring in the neighbourhood, for the visiting of which the rector in ancient times received oblations, under a diploma from the pope; and lead and coal are wrought here to a considerable extent. Several Roman antiquities have been found in the neighbourhood. In the forest of Stainmore there was anciently a cross, erected by William the Conqueror, and King Malcolm, to mark the boundaries of England and Scotland. On the eve of the epiphany, there is a custom here of carrying 'the holying, or holy tree,' in procession, a usage which is not known in any other part of England.—The living (St. Michael), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £8. 18s. 9d.: pres. net income, £492: patron, Queen's College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, L. Jefferson, 1828: contains 22,650 acres: 333 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,694: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,948: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup>. £10,056: poor rates in 1837, £813.—Market day, Wednesday. Fairs: second Thursday in March, second Thursday in April, and Thursday before Whitsuntide.—Castle Inn, and Swan Inn.

VOL. I.

BROUGH-UNDER-STAINMORE, WESTMORELAND, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.)—Contains 181 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,145: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,316: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,590: poor rates in 1837, £409.

BROUGH, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Catterick, hund<sup>d</sup> of East Hang—(which see for access, &c.): 206 miles from London, 2 from Catterick, 7 from York.—Money orders issued at Catterick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.—Contains 1,050 acres: 14 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 88: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,867: poor rates in 1837, £54.—Brough Hall is the seat of Sir William Lawson, Bart., whose original name was Wright, but who, by royal license, changed it to Lawson, on inheriting the estates of his uncle, Sir Henry Lawson, Bart., in 1834. The family from whom Sir William derives his descent, were for several generations seated at Burwell, and afterwards at Alindell, in Northumberland. The first authentic intelligence we have of its members is of William Lawson, Esq. of Cramlington, in that county, who was father of James Lawson, Esq., an eminent merchant at Newcastle-upon-Tyne, in the time of Henry VIII. His grandson, Sir Ralph Lawson, who was knighted by King James I., married Elizabeth, daughter and sole heir of Roger Brough, Esq. of Brough Hall, near Catterick. The third son of Sir Ralph, John Lawson, Esq., was a captain of horse in the service of Charles I., for his attachment to whose cause his estates were sequestered by the parliament, and he himself was banished. For these sufferings, having it would appear been restored to his property, Charles II., in 1665, created him a baronet. Sir John married Catherine, sister of Charles, first Earl of Carlisle, and of them the present baronet is a lineal descendant.

BROUGH. See ELLOUGHTON WITH BROUGH.

BROUGH-SOWERBY, WESTMORELAND, a township in the parish of Brough, East ward—(which see for access, &c.): 262 miles from London, 1 from Brough, 4 from Warcop.—Money orders issued at Brough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11½ a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m.—Contains 31 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 142: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,551: poor rates in 1837, £57.

BROUGHALL. See WHITCHURCH (or BLAKE-MISTER), SALOP.

BROUGHAM, WESTMORELAND, a parish in West ward, union of West ward, watered by the

3 2

Eamont on the north, the Eden on the east, and the Lowther on the west: 284 miles from London (coach road 283), 2 from Penrith, 14 from Appleby. —Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Lancaster to Penrith, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 184 miles. —Money orders issued at Penrith: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3¼ p.m. —There was formerly a village here, but no traces of it can now be perceived. The name is derived from two Saxon words, burg-ham, the castle-town, this having been the Brovinciacum of the Romans, which seems to have comprised a space of 140 paces in length, by 120 in breadth, and some marks of the vallum and outworks are still perceptible. The precise date of the foundation of the castle is not known, but that it was of very remote antiquity is evident, not only from the coins and other Roman remains which have been dug up in the neighbourhood, but also from several Roman inscriptions which have been found in different parts; but that it is itself, or any part of it, a Roman erection, as Grose has endeavoured to make out, appears improbable, for the records of an Inquisition, now in existence, show that the prior of Carlisle had suffered it to go to decay during the minority of John de Veteripont, from the want of necessary care in repairing the gutters. The greater part of the structure, the ruins of which now stand, was built by Roger Clifford, son of Isabella de Veteripont, who, in order to secure his claims to the distinction, placed over the inner door, the inscription of

"Etis mæd: Regi."

The eastern parts of the castle were built by his grandson Robert, and it was subsequently put into thorough repair by the Lady Anne Clifford, Dowager-Countess of Pembroke, who added fourteen rooms to it in the court of the old Roman tower, and King James I. was magnificently entertained here on his last journey out of Scotland. After the death of the countess it was suffered to go gradually to decay, and at length went to its present state of ruin. The side next the river is divided by three square towers, from which, on either hand, a little wing falls back, one leading to the gateway, the other is connected with the outworks, which extend to a considerable distance along a grassy plain of pasture-ground terminated by a turret, one of the outposts of the castle. The centre of the building is a lofty square tower, the shattered turrets and the hanging galleries of which are overgrown with shrubs. The outward gateway is machicolated, and has the arms of Vaux on its tower. The estate of Brougham belonged to the Brougham family before the Conquest, as is proved by the fact, that it was in their possession at that period, and was retained afterwards by the tenure of drengage, a military tenure, though not exactly that of a knight's fee, the former term having existed in this country before the arrival of William the Norman, and was continued as an in capite holding to those who submitted to his dominion. This is proved by Spelman, who says—Sunt igitur drenges vasalli quidam militares vel ut nostri forenses loquuntur terentes per sevitium militare. . . . . .
Ex dictis autem notandum est eos omnes eorumque

antecessores qui e drengorum classe erant vel per drengagium tenere sua incoluisse patrimonialia ante adventum Normannorum. Hence we find the name of Gilbert de Broham among the drengi of Westmoreland, who made fine with King John that they might not go with him into Normandy; and it is singular, that of the seventeen drengi who were excused on that occasion, this Gilbert de Broham is the only one who has a male representative at the present day. Walter de Burgham was lord of this manor in the time of Edward the Confessor, and he it was who retained possession after the Conquest. From him descended Sir Udard de Brougham, who, in the time of Henry II., had the custody of Appleby Castle, and was fined twenty marks for giving it up to the Scots. A grandson of his had a daughter, who, in 1303, married John de Carleton, the ancestor of the Barons Dorchester. In 1351, John de Burgham was sheriff of Westmoreland, and a great-grandson of his, in 1394–6, represented Carlisle in parliament. In 1436, Thomas de Burgham was one of the knights of the shire for Cumberland, and one of the king's justices for the northern counties, and so, through a long line of posterity, which for several ages held similarly distinguished positions, the family was continued to Henry Brougham, Esq., who married Eleanor, only child of the Rev. J. Syme, by Mary, sister of Robertson the historian, whose eldest son, the great statesman and super-eminent lawyer, Henry, Lord Brougham and Vaux, is the present possessor of this ancient domain. Brougham Hall, as the family seat is now called, stands upon a woody height on the eastern bank of the Lowther, and which, from the magnificence and variety of the prospects from its fine terraces, is frequently styled the Windsor of the North. The hall is lofty, and lighted by five Gothic windows, each of which is completely filled with stained glass; some of this glass is very ancient, and the tout ensemble produces an admirable effect. Nearly adjoining the hall is the chapel of Brougham, in which the rector of the parish celebrates divine service when the family are resident there. Henry, Lord Brougham, was born in the year 1779, and, even in his school-boy days, exhibited the rapidly-developing germs of that genius, and the radix of that vast mental and physical capacity, which was in after years to clear for him, among his compeers, the distinguished position through which he has become one of the most eminent men in the history of his country. He received his academic education in Edinburgh; and the years of childhood had hardly passed before he became a member of the society of the remarkable literary men whose singular abilities at that time adorned the modern Athens, and long before he attained manhood, was well and widely known. He chose the law for his profession, and soon got into excellent practice at the bar. Shortly afterwards he entered parliament, where his commanding powers found a fitting sphere for their full development and useful exertion. He joined the Whigs, and through his nervous, manly, and mighty oratory, soon assumed the place of leader of his party in the lower house. For twenty years he remained without place or profit, day by day giving the assistance of his forcible energy towards promoting the intellectual and political progress of his country, being truly allowed to be the Demosthenes of modern times. On the accession of Earl Grey and his friends to power in 1830, Mr. Brougham was a man whose claims upon public attention were too manifest and urgent to be lightly looked upon, and at once he stepped from the status of a private advocate to the highest forensic position in the land. He was installed lord high chancellor of England, and elevated to the peerage by the title of Baron Brougham and Vaux. His lordship continued to hold that lofty standing till the breaking up of the Grey administration in 1834, giving to it all his great experience, acute perception, and wonderful energy. The Court of Chancery in his time lost its proverbial reputation; and once again, since the days of Sir Thomas More, when a new cause was called for hearing, the response was made that there was not one upon the roster;—and, it should be observed, that no chancellor has had so few of his decisions reversed. Since his retirement, his lordship has continued to feel a strong interest in the political questions of the day; and no great debate can be cited, in which he will not be found to have taken a leading part. His lordship has also employed his time in the production of several great literary works; but to enumerate the facts of his long career of usefulness, much less to dilate upon them here, would be impossible—to attempt to define them, presumption.---The living (St. Wilfrid), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £16. 10s. 7½d.: pres. net income, £290: patron, Earl of Thanet: pres. incumbent, T. Edwardes, 1846: contains 6,580 acres: 24 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 249: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,225: poor rates in 1837, £85. Tithes commuted in 1776.

BROUGHTON. See BLERTON WITH BROUGHTON.

BROUGHTON, BUCKINGHAM, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Newport, union of Newport-Pagnell: 51 miles from London (coach road 47), 3 from Newport, 6 from Woburn.---Nor. West. Rail. to Bletchley, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Bletchley, &c., 89 miles.---Money orders issued at Newport-Pagnell: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---The living (St. Lawrence), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Buckingham, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £10. 9s. 7d.: pres. net income, £97: patron, James Fraed, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. Smith, Jun., 1818: contains 1,020 acres: 34 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 168: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,988: poor rates in 1837, £107.

BROUGHTON, DERNIGH, a township in the parish of Wrexham, hun<sup>d</sup> of Bromfield, North Wales: 191 miles from London, 1 from Wrexham, 6 from Holt.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Chester to Wrexham, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 91 miles.---Money orders issued at Wrexham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.---Contains 252 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,449: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,666: poor rates in 1837, £187.

BROUGHTON, FLINT, a township in the parish of Hawarden, hun<sup>d</sup> of Mold—(which see for access, &c.): 187 miles from London, 2 from Hawarden, 5 from Flint.---Money orders issued at Chester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---Here is an ancient mansion of the Richardsons, entirely constructed of wood.---Contains 65 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 405: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 466.---(Other returns with the parish.)---Broughton Hall is the seat of John Whitehall Dod, Esq., whose principal residence is in Cloverley, Shropshire—(which see for family history.)

BROUGHTON, HUNTINGDON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Hurstingstone, union of St. Ives: 66 miles from London, 5 from Huntingdon, 7 from Ramsey.---Gt. Nor. Rail. through Huntingdon to Alconbury, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Bedford to Alconbury, &c., 101 miles.---Money orders issued at Huntingdon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---The living (All Saints), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Huntingdon, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £21. 13s. 9d.: pres. net income, £283: patron, Rev. T. Johnston: pres. incumbent, George Johnston, 1839: contains 2,950 acres: 55 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 363: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 417: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,497: poor rates in 1837, £92. All the tithes, moduses, &c., the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1794.

BROUGHTON, LANCASTER, a chapelry in the parish of Preston, hun<sup>d</sup> of Amounderness: 213 miles from London (coach road 220), 4 from Preston, 13 from Blackburn.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Preston, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 113 miles.---Money orders issued at Preston: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The living, a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond, and diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Manchester, is valued at £34. 8s.: pres. net income, £106: patron, Hulme's Trustees: pres. incumbent, William Dixon, 1817: contains 2,570 acres: 96 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 695: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 799: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,526: poor rates in 1837, £202.---N., Burton Lodge; E., Newsham Hall.

BROUGHTON, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Manchester, hun<sup>d</sup> of Salford: 191 miles from London (coach road 184), 2 from Manchester, 6 from Bolton.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Manchester, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 91 miles.---Money orders issued at Manchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.---Contains 960 acres: 263 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,794: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 4,363: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,082.

BROUGHTON, LINCOLN, a parish in the eastern division of the wapentake of Manley, parts of Lindsey, union of Glandford-Brigg: 205 miles from London (coach road 159), 3 from Glandford-Brigg, 6 from Kilton.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>l</sup> Rail. through Peterborough and Grimsby to Glandford-Brigg, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Chesterfield, Woodhouse, and Retford, to Glandford-Brigg, &c., 110 miles.---Money orders issued at Glandford-Brigg: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---This is supposed to have been the site of a Roman station. In a farmhouse here there is a doorway, the only relic of a nunnery, in which, at the dissolution, there was a prioress and six nuns, who had revenues which amounted to £20.---The living (St. Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stow, and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £21: pres. net income, £824: patron, E. A. Stephens: pres. incumbent, J. B. Wright, 1843: contains 7,880 acres: 187 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 913: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,050: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,409: poor rates in 1837, £427.

BROUGHTON, NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Orlingbury, union of Kettering: 77 miles from London (coach road 73), 3 from Kettering, 3 from Rothwell.---Nor. West. Rail. through Blisworth to Northampton, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Weedon, &c., 88 miles.---Money orders issued at Kettering: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---The living (St. Andrew), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £21. 9s. 7d.: pres. net income, £394: patron, Duke of Buccleuch: pres. incumbent, Hon. J. Douglas, 1826: contains 2,560 acres: 110 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 593: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 682: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,291: poor rates in 1837, £260. Tithes commuted in 1786.

BROUGHTON, OXFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bloxham, union of Banbury: it contains the hamlet of North Newington: 89 miles from London (coach road 75), 3 from Banbury, 4 from Drayton.---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Banbury, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Banbury, &c., 81 miles.---Money orders issued at Banbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---The parochial charities produce about £82 a year. There are the remains of an ancient castle here, which formerly belonged to the Twistletons. The church is large and interesting, and contains the remains of several of the Twistleton family, who succeeded to the female barony of Saye and Sele, by an intermarriage with the family of Fiennes; and in the chancel there are the remains of a superb monument, which was deprived of its ornaments during the fanaticism of the 17th century.---The living (St. Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £18. 16s. ½d.: pres. net income, £539: patron, Rev. C. F. Wyatt: pres. incumbent, C. F. Wyatt, 1819: contains 1,950 acres: 131 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 629: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 723: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,858: poor rates in 1837, £317. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1803.---Broughton Castle is the seat of Lord Saye and Sele. The manor of Broughton formerly belonged to the family of De Broughton, who most probably took their surname from the place, and who obtained a charter of free warren here about the time of Edward I. It was afterwards vested in the Wykhams; and Margaret, a daughter and heiress of Sir William Wykham, by marriage, transferred the property to Sir William Fiennes, Lord Saye and Sele, whose descendant, the present noble lord, is its proprietor. The castle is surrounded by a broad and deep moat, over which there is a stone bridge of two arches. An ancient tower forms the entrance to the courts; the outer gate is still perfect, and from the staples there appear to have been two other gates, though there is no evidence of a portcullis having ever existed. The eastern side of the castle, which was most probably built in the time of one of the early Edwards, was raised by the Broughtons; the north front was principally built by the family of Fiennes, in 1544. The hall is of large dimensions, and the fine old dining-room is entered beneath a canopy, which is surmounted by the family arms. The passages and corridors are curiously arched, and the present dining-room has an arched roof of stone. On the second floor there is a large drawing-room, and the ceiling is emblazoned with armorial bearings, while the windows of the chapel and of the long gallery are replete with similar ornaments in painted glass. Frederic Twistleton, D.C.L., in holy orders, Treasurer of Hereford Cathedral, and Canon Residentiary of Hereford, Baron Saye and Sele, derives his honours through females from the ancient house of Saye and Fiennes, the founder of which was William de Saye, one of the companions in arms of William the Conqueror, who married Agnes, daughter of the celebrated Hugh de Grantismail, and granddaughter of Ivo Count of Bellemonte. Their descendant, Godfrey de Saye, was one of the barons who took arms against King John. The great-grandson of that nobleman, Sir Geoffrey de Saye, was summoned to parliament in 1342, and again in 1353, was admiral of the fleet, and a knight-baneret. He married Maud, daughter of Guy de Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, by whom he had William de Saye, who was also summoned to parliament; but his male line ceasing with his son John, the barony devolved upon his granddaughter Elizabeth de Saye, at whose decease, in 1399, it fell into abeyance, and still continues so, between the descendants of her ladyship's aunts, Idonea and Joan, Lady Clinton and Lady Fiennes. The youngest daughter of Sir Geoffrey de Saye married Sir William Fiennes, whose son, Sir William, was in 1447 created a peer of the realm. His lordship had previously obtained the office of Constable of the Tower, and a grant of Wardenship of the Cinque Ports, for himself and his heirs for ever, and was also, in 1449, constituted Lord Treasurer of England. But he was a striking instance of the instability of human greatness. For some offence, real or supposed, he was committed to the Tower, and being a prisoner there at the time that Jack Cade's mob entered the city, they broke open the fortress, drew the unfortunate peer through the streets, and beheaded him at the standard on Cornhill, on the 4th of July, 1451. The son of that nobleman was made Constable of Porchester and Pevensy Castles, and Vice-Admiral of England. He was a close adherent of Edward IV., and was slain in the battle of Barnet in 1471. He had married Margaret, daughter and heir of William Wickham, collateral relative of William of Wickham, the celebrated Bishop of Winchester, who founded New College, Oxford, and through her obtained the Broughton property. The two next peers were never summoned to parliament; and the great-grandson of the nobleman just spoken of, Edward Fiennes, refused to take up the title, because his mother had married Richard West, Esq., and retained the principal portion of the estates. His grandson, however, Sir Richard Fiennes, Knight, attained a recognition of his right to the peerage from James I. in 1603, and took his seat among the lords of parliament. His successor was advanced to the dignity of a viscount in 1624, but his son James, the second viscount, dying without heirs male, the title lapsed until it was claimed by Thomas Twistleton, Esq., a great-grandson of his only daughter Elizabeth, who derived his descent from John Twistleton, an eminent citizen and goldsmith of the city of London in 1525. Mr. Twistleton's claim to the barony was allowed, and after the title had been more than a hundred years disused, the Lord Saye and Sele once more took his place among the peers of the realm. The present noble lord was cousin to that nobleman, and, as thirteenth baron, in 1847 succeeded to the titles and estates.

BROUGHTON, SALOP, a parish within the liberties of the town of Shrewsbury, union of Wem: 166 miles from London (coach road 168), 8 from Shrewsbury, 4 from Wem.---Nor. West. Rail. through Birmingham to Penkridge, thence 29 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 66 miles.---Money orders issued at Shrewsbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.---The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £4: pres. net income, £70: patron, Sir R. Hill, Bart.: pres. incumbent, F. B. Parkes, 1840: contains 1,120 acres: 30 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 188: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,557: poor rates in 1837, £114.

BROUGHTON, HANTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Thorngate, union of Stockbridge, southern division of the county: it contains the tithings of Frenchmoor and Pitleworth: the area of Frenchmoor tithing is included in West Tytherly, that of Pitleworth, in Bossington: 97 miles from London (coach road 70), 4 from Stockbridge, 10 from Andover.---Sou. West. Rail. through Bishopstoke to Dunbridge station, thence 4½ miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, Reading, and Bishopstoke, to Dean station, &c., 182 miles.---Money orders issued at Stockbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.---The Wesleyans and Baptists have chapels here. The parochial charities produce about £28 a year. This is supposed to be the site of the Roman station Brige, mentioned by Antoninus in his Itinerary.---The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory, with the curacy of Bossington, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £37. 10s.: patron, C. B. Wall, Esq., M.P.: pres. incumbent, Stanlake Lee, 1842: contains 4,500 acres: 186 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,009: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,160: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,660: poor rates in 1837, £378. Tithes of Broughton and Bossington commuted at £910.---Fair, first Monday in July, for toys.---Broughton House, the residence of J. M. Elmes, Esq., is a mansion rebuilt by the present owner in the Tudor style.

BROUGHTON, STAFFORD, a chapelry in the parish of Eccleshall, northern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Firehill---(which see for access, &c.): 152 miles from London, 5 from Eccleshall, 6 from Drayton.---Money orders issued at Eccleshall: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stafford, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £4 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £129: patron, Sir. H.

D. Broughton, Bart.: pres. incumbent, Sir H. D. Broughton, Bart., 1803: contains 590 acres: 2 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 17.---(Other returns with the parish.)---Broughton is the seat of the Rev. Sir H. D. Broughton, Bart. The mansion is an ancient picturesque structure, surrounded with plantations, clumps, and fine old spreading trees, particularly sycamores, and on the opposite side of the road there is a fine coppice of oaks:---
*"A scene that speaks of English verdure, and of life refined,
 A resting-place for thought—a harbour for the mind."*

The Rev. Baronet derives his descent maternally from the family of Delves, who were seated at Delves Hall, in Staffordshire, at the time of the Conquest, and paternally from Richard de Vernon, fourth son of Hugo, Baron of Shipbroke, at the same period. From him lineally sprang John, Lord of Broughton and Charlton, in the county of Stafford, in the time of Henry VI. A descendant of his, Thomas Broughton, Esq., was fined £3,200 by the parliamentary sequestrators, for his loyalty to Charles I.; and his son, Sir Thomas Broughton, Knight, was created a baronet in 1660-1. Sir Brian Broughton, the fourth baronet, assumed the name of Delves, upon inheriting the property of Sir Thomas Delves, in Staffordshire, and from him the present, the eighth baronet, is the third in descent.

BROUGHTON, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Appleton-le-Street, wapentake of Ryedale---(which see for access, &c.): 219 miles from London, 2 from New Malton, 4 from Pickering.---Money orders issued at Malton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---Here was an hospital, Tanner says, dedicated to St. Mary Magdalen, erected by Eustace St. John, the founder of the monasteries of Malton and Aburich, who died in the first year of Henry II.---Contains 800 acres: 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 111: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,087: poor rates in 1837, £53.

BROUGHTON-IN-AREDALE, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the eastern division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Ewecross, union of Skipton, in the vicinity of the Leeds and Liverpool Canal: it contains the township of Broughton-with-Elsack: 233 miles from London (coach road 222), 4 from Skipton, 19 from Clitheroe.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, Leeds, and Skipton, to Broughton station: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 101 miles.---Money orders issued at Skipton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 12 noon: post closes 2½ p.m.---The church contains several monuments of the Tempest family. The village was plundered by the forces of the Pretender in the last century.---The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, is valued at £5. 16s. 4d.: pres. net income, £190: patron, Christ Church College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, Edward Hay, 1830: contains 3,950 acres: 74 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 407: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 468: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,984: poor rates in 1837, £294.---Broughton Hall is the seat of Sir Charles R. Tempest, Bart., who derives his lineage from John Tempest, lord of Bracewell and Waddington, a descendant of Roger Tempest, who was a man of property and influence in the time of Henry I., during whose reign he subscribed his name to several charters. This John Tempest was one of the confederacy which, under Thomas Plantagenet, Earl of Lancaster, subverted the power of Gaveston, the favourite of Edward II. Sir John Tempest, his son, married Mary, the daughter of Sir Robert Roland, in the time of Edward III.; and their grandson, Sir Piers, was one of the heroes of Agincourt, and ancestor of the Tempests of Bracewell and Tonge, the family of the latter being represented by Colonel Plumbe Tempest of Tonge—(for whose genealogy see that parish.) The younger brother of Sir Piers Tempest Roger was high sheriff of Yorkshire in 1434. From him was descended the late Stephen Tempest, Esq. of Broughton, whose son, the present proprietor of the family estates, was created a baronet in 1841.

BROUGHTON-ASTLEY, LEICESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Guthlaxton, union of Lutterworth: it includes the townships of Broughton-Astley, Prime-Thorp, and Sutton-in-the-Elms: 93 miles from London (coach road 94), 5 from Lutterworth, 9 from Leicester. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Broughton-Astley station: from Derby, through Leicester to Broughton-Astley, 39 miles. — Money orders issued at Lutterworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The living (St. Mary), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Leicester, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £26. 10s. 5d.: pres. net income, £674: patron, Rev. J. Raven: pres. incumbent, J. Liptrott: contains 1,930 acres: 149 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 728: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 837: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £4,761: poor rates in 1837, £334.

BROUGHTON-BRANT, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Loveden, parts of Kesteven, union of Newark, on the river Brant: 155 miles from London (coach road 125), 8 from Newark, 11 from Lincoln. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Nottingham to Newark, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Newark, &c., 41 miles. — Money orders issued at Newark: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The living (St. Helen), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Stow, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £35. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £560: patron, Sir R. Sutton, Bart.: pres. incumbent, H. Houson, 1820: contains 4,490 acres: 123 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 650: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 747: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £4,973: poor rates in 1837, £211.

BROUGHTON CHURCH AND SAPPERTON, DERBY, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Appletree, union of Burton-upon-Trent: 144 miles from London, 10 from Derby. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Leicester, and Barton, to Draycote station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Barton to Draycott, &c., 22 miles. — Money orders issued at Derby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — There is a school here, endowed with £30 a year. The parochial charities produce about £15 a year. — The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Derby, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £6. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £228: patron, J. Broadhurst, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. W. Jones, 1820: contains 2,380 acres: 121 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 652: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 749: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,558: poor rates in 1837, £248.

BROUGHTON (EAST), LANCASTER, a chapelry

in the parish of Cartmel, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Lonsdale, north of the Sands—(which see for access, &c.): 265 miles from London, 7 from Ulverstone, 10 from Burton. — Money orders issued at Ulverstone: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 12 noon. — The living (St. Peter) is a perpetual curacy not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Richmond, diocese of Chester: pres. net income, £267: patron, Earl of Burlington: pres. incumbent, Wm. Wilson, 1829: contains 2,830 acres: 82 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 458: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 526: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,604: poor rates in 1837, £266.

BROUGHTON-IN-FURNESS, LANCASTER, a market town and chapelry in the parish of Kirkby-Ireth, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Lonsdale, north of the Sands: 276 miles from London (coach road 273), 9 from Ulverstone, 3 from Tower. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Preston to Fleetwood, thence across Morecambe Bay, and by rail to Broughton: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 176 miles. — Money orders issued at Ulverstone: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 11½ p.m. — Broughton was formerly celebrated for the manufacture of woollen yarn, but since the introduction of machinery the trade has declined. Considerable quantities of iron and copper are found in the neighbouring mountains, beside large masses of roofing slate, which are exported by the river Duddon, which is navigable for vessels of 30 tons burden, to within a mile of the town. There are two endowed schools here. — The living (St. Mary Magdalen), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Richmond, and diocese of Chester, is valued at £7. 10s. 11d.: pres. net income, £133: patron, John Sawrey, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. Robinson, 1845: contains 7,040 acres: 279 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,250: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,437: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £5,175: poor rates in 1837, £479. All the tithes, moduses, &c., the property of the dean and chapter of York, were commuted in 1829. — Market day, Wednesday. Fairs: April 27, August 1, first Friday in October, for cattle. — Broughton Tower, on the north side of the town, is the property of John Sawrey, Esq., a magistrate of the county, who succeeded to the estate of his maternal uncle, John Cookson Gilpin Sawrey, Esq., in 1820. Mr. Sawrey derives his descent from Roger Sawrey, Esq., who purchased the manor and lands of Broughton, and who, as shown by a deed dated 1650, was then governor of the town of Ayr, in Scotland. The tower now forms part of the family mansion. The domain was for several centuries the seat of the family of Broughton, and was forfeited by Sir Thomas Broughton, who joined Lambert Simnel, and fell in the battle of Stoke, in 1487.

BROUGHTON-GIFFORD, WILTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Bradford, on the western bank of the river Avon, and in the neighbourhood of the Kennet and Avon Canal: 102 miles from London (coach road 97), 2 from Melksham, 4 from Trowbridge. — Gt. West. Rail. through Chippenham to Melksham, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, to Melksham, &c., 156 miles. — Money orders issued at Melksham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — The Baptists have a place of worship here, the congregation of which was formed in 1690. There is a school here, endowed with £20 per annum. The other parochial charities produce about £12 a year. — The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wilts, and diocese of Sarum, is valued at £19. 3s. 11<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>d.: pres. net income, £355: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, J. Wilkinson, 1848: contains 1,640 acres: 149 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 741: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 852: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,174: poor rates in 1837, £463. — The Hall is the residence of Moses William Staples, Esq., whose family is of very considerable antiquity, and has been supposed to be of Norman descent; but the greater probability is, that it is of British origin, and derived its designation from a locality in the west of England, where, at the time of the Domesday survey, the Earl of Moreton held a staple, which, in King Edward's time, was taxed for ten hides of land; there is also the hundred of Staple in Wiltshire, described in the Exon Domesday. The name was originally spelt Staple, Stapul, and Stapelle, and may be traced through many ancient documents in those countries to a distant period: but it was not until the sixteenth century that the final letter was added. The Staples very anciently held offices of trust and importance; as, for instance, Thomas de Staple was serjeant-at-arms to Edward III., and held a grant of the bailiwick of the hundred of Rochford, in Essex. He married Margaret, daughter of Robert De la Ward, by his wife Ida, daughter of Robert Lord Fitzwalter. In 1377, Adam Staple, who was that year lord mayor of London, was removed from his office through the influence of the Duke of Lancaster, who had been insulted by the citizens for having taken part with Wickliffe, and who threatened the Bishop of London at the Synod held at St. Paul's, to which Wickliffe had been cited on a charge of heresy. From him was descended Alexander Staples, Esq. of Yate Court, in the county of Gloucester, who died in 1590, seized of divers manors and lands in Wiltshire, at Boreham Westbury, Westburyleigh, Penleigh, Highwood, Southwick, Wanborough, Stock, Stockley Calme, Durrington, and Millston. From William, the brother of that gentleman, was descended Charles Staples, Esq., of London, who married Mary, daughter and heiress of Baron Butz, a German noble, and died in 1779, leaving a son, Moses William of Norwood, and a banker in London, the father of the present proprietor of Broughton-Gifford, and by whom, in 1802, he was succeeded in the property.

BROUGHTON (GREAT), CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Bridekirk, ward of Allerdale below Derwent, on the northern bank of the river Derwent—(which see for access, &c.): 309 miles from London, 4 from Cockermouth, 3 from Maryport. — Money orders issued at Cockermouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — There is an almshouse and a school here, founded by Mr. Joseph Ashley; the inmates of the former are four poor women, who have an endowment of £8 a year; the endowment of the latter is £20. 10s. per annum. — Contains 128 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 562: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 646: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,101: poor rates in 1837, £129. Tithes commuted in 1819.

BROUGHTON (GREAT AND LITTLE), NORTH

RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Kirkby in Cleveland, western division of the liberty of Langbaugh: 267 miles from London (coach road 233), 5 from Stokesley, 11 from Helmsley. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, to Northallerton, thence 17 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 135 miles. — Money orders issued at Stokesley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> a.m.: post closes 1<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m. — There was formerly a chapel here, which has been demolished. On the summit of a mountain, close by the village, there is a rude heap of stones, which is supposed to have been the monument of a Danish chief. — Contains 2,780 acres: 111 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 511: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 588: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,257: poor rates in 1837, £156. The great and small tithes, moduses, &c., the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1807.

BROUGHTON-HACKETT, WORCESTER, a parish in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Pershore, union of Pershore: 124 miles from London (coach road 112), 6 from Worcester, 6 from Droitwich. — Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 77 miles. — Money orders issued at Worcester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m. — The living (St. Leonard), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £8. 1s. 10<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>d.: pres. net income, £73: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, H. M. Sherwood, 1843: contains 390 acres: 31 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 154: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £655: poor rates in 1837, £33. — N. <sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> m. Crowle House.

BROUGHTON (LITTLE), CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Bridekirk, ward of Allerdale below Derwent—(which see for access, &c.): 308 miles from London, 4 from Cockermouth, 6 from Workington. — Money orders issued at Cockermouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The Baptists have a chapel here, the congregation of which was formed in 1662. The Society of Friends have also a meeting-house here. — Contains 63 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 344: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 395: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,006: poor rates in 1837, £74.

BROUGHTON (NETHER), LEICESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Framland, union of Melton-Mowbray: 127 miles from London (coach road 110), 6 from Melton-Mowbray, 10 from Bottesford. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Syston to Melton-Mowbray, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Syston to Melton-Mowbray, &c., 41 miles. — Money orders issued at Melton-Mowbray: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m. — The living (St. Mary), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Leicester, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £11. 5s. 7<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>d.: pres. net income, £397: patrons, Hon. P. P. Bouverie, and Sir H. Sawyer: pres. incumbent, John Noble, 1847: contains 2,110 acres: 72 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 412: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 474: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,274: poor rates in 1837, £201. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1764.

BROUGHTON-POGGS, OXFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bampton, union of Witney: 91 miles from London (coach road 67), 5 from Burford, 9 from Witney.---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Ascott, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Banbury, and Oxford, &c., 123 miles.---Money orders issued at Burford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.---The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £7. 7s. 11d.: patron, Rev. W. R. Holmes: pres. incumbent, J. J. Goodenough, 1845: contains 360 acres: 29 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 151: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,469: poor rates in 1837, £154.

BROUGHTON-SULNEY, NOTTINGHAM, a parish in the southern division of the wapentake of Bingham, union of Melton-Mowbray: 129 miles from London (coach road 112), 12 from Nottingham, 2 from Hickling.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Syston to Melton-Mowbray, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Syston to Melton-Mowbray, &c., 47 miles.---Money orders issued at Nottingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---The village is delightfully situated. There is an ancient cross in the open space of the village. The General Baptists have a chapel here.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Nottingham, diocese of York, is valued at £11. 9s. 4½d.: pres. net income, £388: patron, Sir J. Radcliffe: pres. incumbent, J. Burrell, 1810: contains 1,600 acres: 59 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 371: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 426: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,261: poor rates in 1837, £116. The great and small tithes of Broughton-Sulney-Fields were commuted in 1760.

BROWNSEA (or BRANKSEA ISLAND), DORSET, a small island in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Cogdean, Shaston division of the county: 108 miles from London, 3 from Poole, 6 from Corfe Castle.---Money orders issued at Poole: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.---Its length is about a mile and a half, and the greatest breadth about three-quarters of a mile. The whole island being overrun by heath, furze, and fern, there is scarcely any cultivation, yet a small barley crop has been raised in the north part of it. It lies high, and contains about 800 acres; but at present there are only two tenements upon it, one rented by the commissioners of customs for £10, and the other a small public-house. The castle stands opposite the entrance of Poole harbour, for the defence of which it was erected by Queen Elizabeth: it is now a residence of the Sturt family, to whom the island belongs.---Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 70.

BROWNSIDE. See CHINLEY-BUSEWORTH and BROWNSIDE.

BROWNSOVER, WARWICK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Rugby: 84 miles from London (coach road 85), 2 from Rugby, 5 from Dunchurch.---Nor. West. Rail. to Rugby, thence 2 miles: from Derby to Rugby, &c., 52 miles.---Money orders issued at Rugby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---The name of the village was anciently written Guara: the place is situated on an elevated spot, near the confluence of the Avon and the Swift: the Oxford Canal traverses the parish, which was the birth-place of Lawrence Sheriff, the founder of Rugby school.---The living is a curacy annexed to the vicarage of Clifton: contains 1,130 acres: 17 houses:

pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 90: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,808: poor rates in 1837, £126.---Brownsover Hall is the seat of John Ward Boughton Leigh, Esq., son of the late William Lucas Ward, Esq. of Guilsborough Park, in Northamptonshire, who assumed in 1831, by sign-manual, the additional surnames of Boughton and Leigh. He is a magistrate and deputy-lieutenant of Warwickshire, and also a magistrate for Northamptonshire---(for the family genealogy, see GUILSBOROUGH.)

BROXA, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Hackness, liberty of Whitby-Strand---(which see for access, &c.): 224 miles from London, 7 from Scarborough, 8 from Whitby.---Money orders issued at Scarborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12½ p.m.: post closes 1½ p.m.---Contains 450 acres: 9 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 65: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £469: poor rates in 1837, £33.

BROXBURN (BROXBORNE or BROOKSBORNE), HERTFORD, a parish in the union of Ware, and hun<sup>d</sup> of Hertford: it includes part of the hamlet of Hoddesdon: 19 miles from London (coach road 16), 1 from Hoddesdon, 4 from Hertford.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Broxbourne station: from Derby, through London, &c., 151 miles.---Money orders issued at Hoddesdon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.---The church, which is in the early decorated style, is a spacious and handsome edifice, and contains several side aisles, as also some fine monuments. There is a school here, endowed with £20 a year, and an almshouse for six poor widows, endowed in 1727 by the Hon. Letitia Monson. The other parochial charities produce about £42 a year. The manor was, in ancient times, the property of the order of the knights of St. John.---The living (St. Augustine), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Middlesex, diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £12. 6s. 5½d.: pres. net income, £361: patron, Bishop of London: pres. incumbent, T. Pickthall, 1821: contains 4,580 acres: 404 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,386: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,744: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £8,399: poor rates in 1837, £801.---Broxbourne Bury is the residence of George Jacob Bosanquet, Esq.

BROXHOLME, LINCOLN, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Lawress, parts of Lindsey, and union of Lincoln: 174 miles from London (coach road 139), 6 from Lincoln, 7 from Spittal.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Peterborough to Lincoln, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham and Lincoln, &c., 54 miles.---Money orders issued at Lincoln: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stow, diocese of Lincoln: is valued at £9. 10s.: pres. net income, £273: patron, F. Robinson, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. Burnside, 1847: contains 1,230 acres: 24 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 145: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,226: poor rates in 1837, £51.---Broxholme Hall is the seat of R. A. Christopher, Esq.

BROXTED (or CHAWRETH), ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Dunmow: 42 miles from London (coach road 35), 6 from Dunmow, 3 from Thaxted.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Elsenham station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 176 miles.---Money orders issued at Dunmow: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — In Morant's account of Essex, we find the remark—Tradition will have it, that Brocted was only a hamlet to Chavreth or Chavre, but we find it twice in Domesday-book, and Chavre not at all. — The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Middlesex, diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £7: pres. net income, £150: patron, R. B. De Beauvoir: pres. incumbent, A. Mason, 1846: contains 3,110 acres: 131 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 737: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 848: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,917: poor rates in 1837, £555.

BROXTON, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Malpas, higher division of the above hun<sup>d</sup>.: 194 miles from London (coach road 172), 11 from Chester, 6 from Holt. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Chester to Gresford station, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Burton, Crewe, &c., 94 miles. — Money orders issued at Chester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — Contains 2,270 acres: 65 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 464: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 538: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,278: poor rates in 1837, £130. — S., Broxton Hall.

BROXTOW, NOTTINGHAM, a chapelry in the parish of Bilborough, southern division of the wapentake of Broxtow—(which see for access, &c.): 125 miles from London, 3 from Nottingham, 12 from Mansfield. — Money orders issued at Nottingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — Thoroton, in his history of Nottinghamshire, says—It is probable that this place in ancient time was made use of for the people of the hundred to meet in, because it gives name to the wapentake. By an inquisition held at Nottingham, on the Saturday after the feast of St. Michael, in the 7th year of Henry VI., before Thomas Mapurley and his brother commissioners, it appears that the jury (of which John Broctowe was one) found that, in the parish of Broctowe, there were not ten inhabitants who were householders. — (Pop<sup>n</sup>. returned with the parish.)

BRUEN-STAPLEFORD, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Tarvin, second division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Eddisbury: 182 miles from London (coach road 185), 4 from Chester, 8 from Overton. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Chester, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Burton, Crewe, &c., 82 miles. — Money orders issued at Chester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — Contains 980 acres: 25 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 165: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,672: poor rates in 1837, £148.

BRUERNE, OXFORD, an extra-parochial liberty in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Chadlington—(which see for access, &c.): 77 miles from London, 6 from Chipping Norton, 7 from Witney. — Money orders issued at Chipping Norton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — Tanner, in speaking of this place, says—An abbey for Oisterian monks was founded here by Nicholas Basset, A.D. 1147, to the honour of the blessed Virgin. Its yearly revenues at the dissolution amounted to £124. 10s. 10d., and the site was granted to Sir Anthony Cope in the 8th year of James I. — Contains 3,510 acres: 5 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 46: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,973: poor rates in 1837, £50.

BRUISYARD, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>.
VOL. I.

and union of Plomesgate: 101 miles from London (coach road 84), 5 from Saxmundham, 3 from Framlingham. — East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Haughley Road station, thence 17 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 233 miles. — Money orders issued at Saxmundham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — Tanner says of Bruisyard—The college founded at Ashe, by Maud, Countess of Ulster, was removed to the manor-place of Bokehall in Bruisyard, where was also built a chapel of the annunciation, and the proper offices for the warden and priests, A.D. 1354; but, upon some complaints, and at the instance of Lionel, Duke of Clarence, with the consent of the king, &c., this college or chantry, with all the lands belonging thereto, was surrendered on the 4th of October, in the 40th year of Edward III., to the use of an abbess and sisters, nuns, minoresses, of the order of St. Clare, who remained here till the general suppression, when their yearly revenues were estimated at £56. 2s. 1d. The site and endowment of this abbey were granted to Nicholas Hare, in the 30th year of Henry VIII. — The living (St. Peter), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Suffolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £6. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £60: patron, Earl of Stradbroke: pres. incumbent, G. F. Pooley, 1846: contains 1,330 acres: 34 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 296: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,266: poor rates in 1837, £167.

BRUMBY. See BROMBY.

BRUMHILL. See WEETING WITH BRUMHILL.

BRUMSTEAD (or BRUNSTEAD), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Happing: 141 miles from London (coach road 124), 6 from North Walsham, 15 from Norwich. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Norwich, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Syston and Peterborough, to Norwich, &c., 181 miles. — Money orders issued at North Walsham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £6. 5s. 7½d.: pres. net income, £170: patron, Earl of Abergavenny: pres. incumbent, H. N. W. Comyn, 1841: contains 930 acres: 17 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 116: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £779: poor rates in 1837, £49.

BRUNDALL, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Blofield: 132 miles from London (coach road 113), 6 from Norwich, 12 from Yarmouth. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Norwich to Brundall station: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, and Norwich, 172 miles. — Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — The living (St. Lawrence), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory, annexed to the rectories of Little Plumstead and Wotton: contains 490 acres: 14 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 52: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £507: poor rates in 1837, £25.

BRUNDISH, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Hoxne: 101 miles from London (coach road 90), 4 from Framlingham, 10 from Halesworth. — East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Haughley Road station, thence 17 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 233 miles. — Money orders issued at Woodbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — Brundish was formerly of note for a charity founded by Sir John Payshall, 30

rector of Caston, one of the executors of Robert de Ufford, Earl of Suffolk, in the 7th year of Richard II., for six chaplains to pray for the soul of that nobleman and all his benefactors. At the general dissolution, its revenues were estimated at £13. 0s. 7½d., and was granted in 1545 to Richard Fulmerstone. The living (St. Lawrence), a curacy annexed to the vicarage of Tannington, in the diocese of Norwich, and having jointly a pres. net income of £196: patron, Bishop of Rochester: pres. incumbent, H. Miller, 1837: contains 1,380 acres: 54 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 525: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 604: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,593: poor rates in 1837, £346. Brundish Hall is the seat of Sir Frederick Adair Roe, Bart., whose family was anciently settled in Kent. The earliest ancestor of whom there is any authentic account, was Everard de Roe of Kuckinge, now spelt Ruckinge, near Romney, who lived in the time of Henry III., from a younger branch of whose family, the late William Roe, Esq., father of the present baronet, was descended. Mr. Roe was, in 1783, appointed a commissioner for auditing the public accounts, and in 1788 a commissioner of the customs, of which board he became chairman in 1805, an office which he held for fourteen years. He was created a baronet for his public services, and died in 1826.

BRUNDON, ESSEX, formerly a distinct parish, but now part of the parish of Ballingdon, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Hinckford: 48 miles from London, 7 from Sudbury, 5 from Castle Headingham. Morant, in his account of Essex, says—This parish belonged, in Edward the Confessor's reign, to one free man; and, at the time of the general survey, to Ralph de Limesei. The church of Brundon was small, of one pace with the chancel, but now lies in ruins. The remains of it are in a little enclosure, about a mile on the left hand of Ballingdon Street, directly opposite to Boreley church. This rectory was appendant to the manor. (Pop<sup>n</sup> returned with BALLINGDON.)

BRUNSTOCK, CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Crosby-upon-Eden, ward of Eskdale—(which see for access, &c.): 307 miles from London, 3 from Carlisle, 7 from Brampton. Money orders issued at Carlisle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. Contains 16 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 75. (Other returns with the parish.)

BRUNTINGTHORPE (or BRENTINGTHORPE), LEICESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Gathlaxton, union of Lutterworth: 96 miles from London (coach road 94), 5 from Lutterworth, 10 from Leicester. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Illesthorne, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Leicester to Illesthorne, &c., 48 miles. Money orders issued at Lutterworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. Framework-knitting is carried on here, and there is a chalybeate spring in the parish. The living (St. Mary), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Leicester, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £10. 7s. 6d.: pres. net income, £380: patron, Rev. T. Freeman: pres. incumbent, G. Freeman, 1834: contains 1,320 acres: 86 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 423: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 480: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,005: poor rates in 1837, £125. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1776. S., Knapton Hall.

BRUNTON (EAST), NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Gosforth, western division of Castle ward: 308 miles from London (coach road 279), 5 from Newcastle, 11 from Morpeth. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, to Newcastle, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 176 miles. Money orders issued at Newcastle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11½ a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m. Coal of a superior quality is found here, and the inhabitants are chiefly miners. Contains 45 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 268: poor rates in 1837, £39. N., Woolston House.

BRUNTON (WEST), NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the above parish: 278 miles from London. (For access and postal arrangements, see above.) Contains 20 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 109: poor rates in 1837, £105.

BRUSHFIELD, DERBY, a township in the parish of Bakewell, hun<sup>d</sup>. of High Peake—(which see for access, &c.): 153 miles from London, 1 from Bakewell, 7 from Newhaven. Money orders issued at Bakewell: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. Contains 8 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 53: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £396: poor rates in 1837, £32.

BRUSHFIELD. See MITCHELMERSH.

BRUSHFORD, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of North Tawton with Winkley, union of Crediton: 225 miles from London (coach road 197), 5 from Chumleigh, 6 from Hatherleigh. Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Crediton, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Crediton, &c., 239 miles. Money orders issued at Chumleigh: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m. The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Barnstaple, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £51: patron, G. Luxton, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. S. Townshend, 1845: contains 1,220 acres: 26 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 144: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £585: poor rates in 1837, £68.

BRUSHFORD, SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Williton and Freemanors, union of Dulverton: 187 miles from London (coach road 166) 1½ from Dulverton, 11 from Wiveliscombe. Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Wellington, thence 17 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Wellington, &c., 201 miles. Money orders issued at Hampton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. The living (St. Michael), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Taunton, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £15. 1s. 6½d.: pres. net income, £384: patrons, Earl of Carnarvon and J. Sydenham, Esq., alternately: pres. incumbent, J. Sydenham, 1835.

BRUTES-MORTON. See BIRTS-MORTON.

BRUTON (HIGH AND LOW), NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Embleton, ward of Bambrough—(which see for access, &c.): 8 from Alnwick. Money orders issued at Alnwick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 2 p.m.: post closes 6 p.m. Contains 14 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 59: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £900: poor rates in 1837, £88.

BRUTON, SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Bruton, union of Wincanton: this parish comprises the market town of Bruton, the chapelry of Weeke-Champflower, and the tithings of Discove and Redlynch: 127 miles from London (coach road 109), 5 from Castle Cary. — Gt. West. Rail. through Chippenham to Westbury, thence 17 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Westbury, &c., 168 miles. — Money orders issued at Bath: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — Bruton is a small but well-built town, situated on the river Brue, from which it derives its name. The market is considerable, and at one time the manufacture of stockings was carried on to some extent here, and is still partially continued, as is also the weaving of coarse woollen cloths. The town was formerly the seat of Sir Maurice Berkeley, father of John Berkeley, who, during the civil wars, evinced such a zealous adherence to the royal cause, that he, for his services, was created by Charles II. Lord Berkeley of Stratton and Rathdowne, and Viscount Fitzhardinge in Ireland, which titles became extinct at the death of his son Charles, in 1672. The inheritors of that nobleman sold the manor to Sir Richard Hoare, whose son pulled down the mansion-house, leaving only a few fragments to show where it stood. There was formerly a monastery here, of which Tanner says—About the year 1005, Algar, or rather Ailmer or Aethelmar, Earl of Cornwall, is said to have built a religious house for monks, who were changed into black canons by William Moyné or Mohun, Earl of Somerset, in the reign of Stephen. This priory was turned into an abbey about the beginning of the reign of Henry VIII., by the procurement of the then prior, William Gilbert or Giles, Bishop of Megara, and suffragan to the Bishop of Bath and Wells, who was a great benefactor to the building of this monastery, which was dedicated to the blessed Virgin, and rated, in the 26th year of Henry VIII., at £480. 17s. 2d. It was granted, in the 37th year of Henry VIII., to Sir Maurice Berkeley. The church is a large and interesting building, the western tower of which is highly decorated, and surmounted by elaborately carved pinnacles. The grammar-school is endowed with £350 a year, through the munificence of Richard Fitz-James, bishop of London, Sir John Fitz-James, chief justice of England, and Dr. John Edmonds: it was founded in the time of Edward VI.; and four exhibitions of £5 a year are paid out of the funds to scholars at either of the universities of Oxford or Cambridge. In 1618, Hugh de Saxey, who had risen from the humble station of a waiter at an inn here, to the position of auditor to the respective households of Queen Elizabeth and James I., founded an hospital at Brundish, and endowed it with lands which now produce something short of £1,400 a year, which is applied to the support of 28 aged persons of both sexes, each of whom receives six shillings and a bushel of coals weekly; and to the support and education of 16 boys, for the apprenticing of whom there is a fund, out of which £22 is paid for each boy. A chaplain, a schoolmaster, a treasurer, and a surgeon, are attached to the institution, the structure of which is a handsome quadrangle in the Elizabethan style. The Independents have a chapel here. Bruton was the birth-place of the celebrated navigator, Dampier. He was born in 1652, and early entered upon the practice of his profession. During his life, he several times visited the South Seas, and published a work in four volumes, entitled, "Voyages Round the World," in which his own experience is embodied, and which exhibits the possession of great nautical skill. He died, it is believed, in 1712. — The living (St. Mary), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £40: pres. net income, £168: patron, Sir H. R. Hoare, Bart.: pres. incumbent, James White, 1841: contains 3,520 acres: 451 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,074: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,385: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup>, £4,110: poor rates in 1837, £1,046. — Market day, Saturday. Fairs, April 23, and September 17, for cattle. — Bankers, Stuckey's Banking Company—draw on Roberts, Curtis, & Co. — Blue Ball Hotel, and Wellington Hotel.

BRYANSTON (or BLANDFORD-BRYAN), DORSET, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Pimperne, union of Blandford, North Blandford division of the county: 126 miles from London (coach road 104), 1 from Blandford-Forum, 11 from Shaftesbury. — Sou. West. Rail. through Southampton to Wimborne, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Banbury, Oxford, Reading, and Southampton, &c., 204 miles. — Money orders issued at Blandford-Forum: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — In 1731, the whole of the village was nearly destroyed by fire, only one house escaping the flames. — The living (St. Martin), a rectory consolidated with that of Durweston, at which place the children of this parish attend a charity school: contains 1,870 acres: 29 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 144: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup>, £1,260: poor rates in 1837, £28. — Bryanston House is the seat of Lord Portman. The manor of Bryanston came into the Portman family by purchase from the last heir of the Rogerses, by Sir William Portman, in the reign of Charles II. Sir William married three wives, but died without issue; and the estate was devised to Henry, fifth son of Sir Edward Seymour. That gentleman married two wives, but also died without issue, when the estate devolved, through a further limitation of Sir William's will, to William Berkeley, Esq. of Pylle, in the county of Somerset, who assumed the name and arms of Portman. The mansion is stately and extensive, commanding rich and varied views. Rising from the grounds, a cliff stretches in a semicircular direction as far as Blandford bridge, a river flowing in front of it; and this, with the walks and plantations, the woody cliff, with the luxuriant meadows and the gentle current at its foot, with the town in the distance, leaves nothing in the way of landscape to be desired. The interior of the mansion, which was almost entirely rebuilt under the directions of Mr. Wyatt, presents several fine apartments, richly furnished with all the appliances of a nobleman's residence. The family of Portman was one of distinction as early as the reign of Edward I., at which time Thomas Portman, their immediate ancestor, was living. From him descended Sir William Portman, Knt., lord chief-justice of England, who died in 1555. John Portman, the grandson of the judge, was created a baronet in 1612, and from him descended the Sir William Portman spoken of above; William Berkeley, Esq. of Pylle, who inherited the estates, was a grandson of Sir John, the first baronet; and from him the present proprietor of Bryanston, who, after having represented Dorsetshire and Marylebone in parliament for a number of years, was raised to the peerage by the title of Baron Portman in 1837. His lordship is lord-lieutenant of Somersetshire.

BRYMBO, DENBESHIRE, a township in the parish of Wrexham: 195 miles from London, 5 from Wrexham, 6 from Mold.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Chester to Wrexham, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Crewe, &c., 95 miles.---Money orders issued at Wrexham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---A church has recently been built here by the parliamentary commissioners. The Calvinistic Methodists have a chapel here. The iron ore in the neighbouring hills is exceedingly rich, and, by an intermixture of the Lancashire ore, excellent iron is smelted. Offa's dyke passes by the village.---The living is a perpetual curacy in the diocese of St. Asaph: pres. net income, £90: patron, Vicar of Wrexham: pres. incumbent, W. G. Davies, 1846: contains 226 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,217: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,399: poor rates in 1837, £231.---Brymbo Hall.

BRYNCHIL AND TALAFOG, MONTGOMERY, a township in the parish of Cemmaes, hun<sup>d</sup> of Machynlleth, North Wales: 208 miles from London, 7 from Machynlleth, 20 from Llanidloes.---Money orders issued at Machynlleth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 5 p.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---Contains 96 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 420: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 483.

BRYN-CROES, CARNARVON, a parish, partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Commitmaen, and partly in that of Gufflogien, union of Pwllheli, North Wales: it is situated on the promontory of Llyn, and on the Soihan river: 275 miles from London (coach road 253), 10 from Pwllheli, 5 from Aberdaron.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Chester to Wrexham, thence 85 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Crewe, &c., 175 miles.---Money orders issued at Pwllheli: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes 12 noon.---The Calvinistic Methodists have a place of worship here, and there is a school with a small endowment.---The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bangor, diocese of St. Asaph and Bangor, is valued at £4. 4s.: pres. net income, £107: patron, C. W. G. Wynne: pres. incumbent, Griffith Roberts: contains 203 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 948: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,090: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,590: poor rates in 1837, £312.

BRYN-EGLWYS, DENBIGH, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Yale, union of Corwen, North Wales: 205 miles from London (coach road 200), 7 from Ruthin.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Chester to Rhuanon, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Crewe, &c., 105 miles.---Money orders issued at Cardigan: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.---There is a school here, endowed with £6 a year. The Calvinistic Methodists have a chapel here.---The living is a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of St. Asaph's, diocese of St. Asaph and Bangor: pres. net income, £90: patron, Sir W. W. Wynne: pres.

incumbent, E. Williams, 1831: contains 83 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 449: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 516: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,831: poor rates in 1837, £325.

BRYNGWYN, RADNOR, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Pain's Castle, union of Hay, South Wales: 168 miles from London (coach road 156), 8 from King-ton, 5 from Hay.---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 50 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 121 miles.---Money orders issued at King-ton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m.---The parochial charities produce about £9 a year.---The living (St. Michael), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Brecon, diocese of St. David's, is valued at £11. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £294: patron, Bishop of St. David's: pres. incumbent, S. Davies, 1825: contains 66 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 281: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,194: poor rates in 1837, £231.

BRYNGWYN, MONMOUTH, a parish in the lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Ragland, union of Abergavenny: 133 miles from London (coach road 138), 2 from Ragland, 6 from Abergavenny.---Gt. West. Rail. through Swindon to Stonehouse, thence 30 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Stonehouse, &c., 133 miles.---Money orders issued at Monmouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---The parochial charities produce about £10. 15s. a year.---The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Llandaff, is valued at £4. 8s. 9d.: pres. net income, £200: patron, Earl of Abergavenny: pres. incumbent, W. Crawley: contains 1,660 acres: 62 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 306: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,090: poor rates in 1837, £85.

BRYNING WITH KELLASNERGH, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Kirkham, hun<sup>d</sup> of Amounderness---(which see for access, &c.): 225 miles from London, 9 from Preston, 2 from Kirkham.---Money orders issued at Preston: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12 noon: post closes 4½ p.m.---Contains 1,040 acres: 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 152: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,402: poor rates in 1837, £120.

BRYN-LLYS (or BROU-LLIS), BRECON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Talgarth, union of Hay, South Wales: it is situated on the river Llyffin, which falls into the Wye: 173 miles from London (coach road 164), 6 from Hay, 8 from Brecknock.---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 55 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 126 miles.---Money orders issued at Hay: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m.---There is an ancient castle here, variously attributed to Harold and William the Conqueror. In King's 'Observations on Ancient Castles,' there is an opinion expressed, that Breconshire formed part of the country of the Silures, and that this castle is of Syrian architecture. It has passed through the families of the Clifford, Gifford, De Bohun, and Stafford, from the last of whom it was escheated to the Crown, on the attainder of the Duke of Buckingham. The castle and lands subsequently passed into the hands of Edward Williams, Esq., who died in 1752, from whom they ultimately vested in William Davies, Esq.---The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Brecon, diocese of St. David's, is valued at £4. 16s. 0½d.: pres. net income, £174: patron, W. D.

Wilkins: pres. incumbent, J. Morgan: contains 66 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 338: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,970.

BRYN-Y-BEIRDD, CARMARTHEN, a hamlet in the parish of Llandillo-Fawr, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Iskennen, South Wales—(which see for access, &c.): 204 miles from London, 1 from Llandillo, 16 from Carmarthen. Money orders issued at Llandillo: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 1 p.m.: post closes 10½ a.m. Contains 78 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 386: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 444.—(Other returns with the parish.)

BUBBENHALL (or BOBENHULL), WARWICK, a parish in the Kenilworth division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Knightlow, union of Warwick, on the river Avon, over which there is a bridge here: 99 miles from London (coach road 85), 5 from Coventry, 3 from Wappenbury. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Coventry, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Rugby and Coventry, &c., 67 miles. Money orders issued at Coventry: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. There is a school here, endowed with £4 a year. The living (St. Giles), a perpetual curacy, formerly in the diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, now in the diocese of Worcester, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £70: patron, Bishop of Worcester: pres. incumbent, C. J. Penny, 1841: contains 1,290 acres: 56 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 262: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,731: poor rates in 1837, £49.—E. 1 m. is Stoneleigh Park, the seat of Lord Leigh. S.E. 1½ m. Stoneleigh Abbey, the seat of Chandos Leigh, Esq.—(for which see STONELEIGH.)

BUBNELL, DREBY, a township in the parish of Bakewell, hun<sup>d</sup>. of High Peak—(which see for access, &c.): 157 miles from London, 7 from Chesterfield, 4 from Bampton. Money orders issued at Chesterfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. Contains 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 123.—(Other returns with the parish.)

BUBWITH, EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the Holme Beacon division of the wapentake of Hart-hill, union of Howden, and partly within the liberty of St. Peter of York: it comprises the townships of Breighton, Bubwith, Foggathorpe, Gribthorpe with Willtoft, Harlethorpe, and Spaldington: 219 miles from London (coach road 186), 6 from Selby, 11 from York. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Normanton, to Selby, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Normanton, &c., 87 miles. Money orders issued at Selby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. The church is a fine structure, beautifully placed on the banks of the river Derwent: it is well-proportioned, with a cathedral arrangement; and has a square embattled tower, with crocketed pinnacles; it was repaired and beautified in 1792, at considerable expense. There are several schools, and a Wesleyan Methodist chapel in the parish. The endowments produce about £21 a year. The living is a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, which is held in moieties: the first of these is valued at £7. 2s. 6d.; in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of the East Riding, and diocese of York; patron, the Lord Chancellor: the other is a peculiar in the patronage of the Dean and Chapter of York, valued at £8. 0s. 5d.; gross income, £102: contains 10,460 acres: 234 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,370: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,575: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>.

£12,289: poor rates in 1837, £745. The great and small tithes, moduses, &c., of Bubwith and Harlethorpe, the property of the Dean of St. Peter, York, the lay impropiator, and the vicar, were commuted in 1832.

BUBWITH, EAST RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.)—This place is celebrated as being the birth-place of Nicholas de Bubwith, Bishop of Bath and Wells, who attended the Council of Constance, when John Huss and Jerome of Prague were condemned to the flames. The church stands almost close to the river Derwent, which here, in spring and autumn, frequently overflows its banks, and inundates the surrounding district. Within these comparatively few years a bridge has been built here over the stream, which is a great convenience to the neighbouring country. Contains 1,420 acres: 80 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 530: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 609: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,009: poor rates in 1837, £293.

BUCKBY (LONG), NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Guilsborough, union of Daventry: this parish contains the hamlet of Murecott: 79 miles from London (coach road 73), 5 from Daventry, 3 from Crick. Nor. West. Rail. to Crick station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Crick, &c., 57 miles. Money orders issued at Daventry: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. There is a school here, endowed with £20 a year by the Rev. Langton Freeman. The other parochial charities produce about £28 a year. The Independents and Baptists have chapels here. The living (St. Lawrence), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £150: patron, Bishop of Lichfield: pres. incumbent, J. Smith, 1834: contains 3,900 acres: 453 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,145: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,466: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £6,388: poor rates in 1837, £1,199. The great and small tithes, exclusive of Murecott, the property of the Bishop of Lichfield, the lay impropiator, and vicar, were commuted in 1765.

BUCKDEN, HUNTINGDON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Toseland, union of St. Neott's, on the western bank of the river Ouse: 81 miles from London (coach road 62), 4 from Huntingdon, 6 from Kimbolton. Nor. and East Rail. through Cambridge to Huntingdon, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, Peterborough, St. Ives, to Huntingdon, &c., 114 miles. Money orders issued at Huntingdon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. In the church were interred several of the bishops of Lincoln, on whom the manor was bestowed as early as the reign of Henry I. In Bacon's Liber Regis, there is this notice of Buckden—The prebend of Bugden, in the cathedral church of Lincoln, was annexed to the see of Lincoln, and the reserved rent was settled as an augmentation of the vicar of Bugden, by an act of Parliament, 4th and 5th of Queen Anne. The palace is a venerable brick edifice, surrounded by a moat. It consisted of two quadrangular courts and a gate-house, in the upper part of which was the library. An order in council in 1838, authorised the bishop to pull down the old building, and to apply the proceeds of the sale of the materials towards the building of the new palace which now occupies its site. There is a school here, which has an endowment of £19. 10s.; the other parochial charities produce about £120 a year.

—The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Huntingdon, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £171: patron, Bishop of Lincoln: pres. incumbent, H. F. Sidebottom: contains 3,590 acres: 218 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,209: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,309: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £7,642: poor rates in 1837, £645. The great and small tithes, the property of the prebendary of Buckden and the vicar, were commuted in 1813.

—Buckden Palace is the residence of the Bishop of Lincoln.

BUCKDEN, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Arncliffe, eastern division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Ewcross—(which see for access, &c.): 231 miles from London, 9 from Middleham, 13 from Settle. —Money orders issued at Middleham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes at noon. —Contains 15,790 acres: 70 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 387: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 445: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,031: poor rates in 1837, £240.

BUCKENHAM (or BOKENHAM FERRY), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Blodfield, on the river Yare, over which there is a ferry here: 135 miles from London (coach road 118), 4 from Acle, 9 from Norwich. —Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Norwich, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Leicester and Peterborough to Norwich, &c., 175 miles. —Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m. —It is believed that there was a Roman station in the neighbourhood. —The living (St. Nicholas), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, consolidated with that of Hasingham, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £6: pres. net income, £230: patron, Sir W. B. Proctor: pres. incumbent, T. W. Beauchamp, 1817: contains 1,020 acres: 8 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 60: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £607: poor rates in 1837, £63.

BUCKENHAM (LITTLE), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wayland, union of Swaffham: 103 miles from London (coach road 88), 6 from Watton, 8 from Thetford. —Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Thetford, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, &c., 153 miles. —Money orders issued at Thetford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. —The church has been pulled down. —The living (St. Andrew), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £3: patron, Rev. T. Newman: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 77.

BUCKENHAM (NEW), NORFOLK, a market town and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Shropham, union of Guiltcross: 115 miles from London (coach road 93), 14 from Norwich, 5 from Attleborough. —Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Attleborough, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Syston and Peterborough to Attleborough, &c., 155 miles. —The church was rebuilt in 1479: it contains some interesting monuments, and has a richly-carved screen. There is an almshouse here for four aged persons, endowed with £28 per annum by W. Barber, Esq., and a school here has an endowment of £6. 6s. a year. There is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel here. The village arose out of the decay of Old Buckenham, for William de Albin, called "of the Strong Hand," from a tradition of his having slain a lion, disliking the site of the old castle, had the buildings taken down, and having procured the grant of a piece of ground from the Bishop of Norwich more to the eastward, erected a castle there, and called it New Buckenham. The building was pleasantly situated on a hill, had a keep, two circular towers, a grand entrance tower, a barbican and embattled walls, and was surrounded by a moat, which was filled with water. Nothing, however, now remains of it, but a few ruins of the gateway and the keep, all traces of the intrenchment having been obliterated by the plough. William de Albin obtained a license for his new town, to be considered a burgh, with the privileges of frankpledge, assize of bread and ale, a gallows, a weekly market on Saturdays, and the liberty to hold a mercate court. —The living (St. Martin), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £25: pres. net income, £115: patrons, the Inhabitants: pres. incumbent, T. W. Thompson, 1847: contains 250 acres: 163 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 716: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 823: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,525: poor rates in 1837, £326. —Market day, Saturday. Fair, Nov. 22.

BUCKENHAM (OLD), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Shropham, union of Guiltcross: 113 miles from London (coach road 95), 3 from Attleborough, 2 from New Buckenham. —Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Peterborough to Attleborough, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, &c., 163 miles. —Money orders issued at Attleborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. —At this place there was a castle in the time of the Conquest, the site of which includes an area of about three acres; it was a square intrenchment surrounded by a moat, the ramparts of which are still entire. But the structure was taken down, and the material used in erecting the priory, of which Tanner says — William d'Albin, Earl of Chichester or Arundel, in the time of Stephen, built a priory for black canons here, and commended it to the patronage of St. James the Apostle. About the time of the dissolution, there were a prior and eight canons here, who held revenues to the amount of £131. 11s. The site of the abbey was granted, in the second year of Queen Mary, to Sir Thomas Lovell. Few of the ruins remain, but the form of the conventual church can still be traced. Its inmates were no doubt as good as most of those in similar institutions, though their holy calling was, it would seem, tinctured with some of the carnal doings which scandal is rather apt to ascribe to it, for at the end of the yearly outgoings of the monastery for the year 1487, are the following lines, which, it appears, could not exactly be placed before the lay auditor, who, in all probability, knew very little of Latin—

"Omnibus omnia mea somnia dicere possum,
Si vis esse sanus, scepse lavare manus
Dum sumus in mundo, vivamus corde jucundo
Omnibus est notum, quod aliquis diligit potum."

At a little distance from the castle, there was a chapel to the Virgin Mary. The church here belonged to the monastery, and after the dissolution it was for many years used as a barn. The living (All Saints), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £17: pres. net income, £102: patrons, the inhabitants: pres. incumbent, T. P. Slapp, 1815: contains 1,520 acres: 242 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,255: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,443: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £9,738: poor rates in 1837, £811. Buckenham House is one of the residences of Lord Petre. The mansion is not large, but the park is a very ancient enclosure, for the founder of the priory, among other donations, granted to the monks the privilege of cutting wood in his park of Buckenham; and in the year 1242, King Henry III. issued a writ to those who had custody of the lands of Hugh de Albany, Earl of Arundel, that they should deliver two bucks for the use of the king out of the said Hugh's park. William Francis Henry Petre, F.R.S., Lord Petre of Writtle, and coheir to the baronies of Howard, Greystock, &c., through his grandmother Anne, one of the nieces of Edward, ninth Duke of Norfolk, derives his descent from Sir William Petre, Knt., LL.D., a gentleman of great learning, and one of the principal secretaries of state, in the reigns of Henry VIII., Edward VI., Queens Mary and Elizabeth, who married, for his second wife, Anne, daughter of Sir William Browne, who died lord mayor of London in 1514. Sir William acquired great wealth through the spoils of the monasteries. He was succeeded by his son, Sir John Petre, who was elevated to the peerage in 1603, and from him his lordship, who is the eleventh baron, is a lineal descendant. His lordship's other seats are Thordun Hall in Essex, and Dunket Hall in Lancashire.

BUCKENHILL. See WOLHOPE.

BUCKERELL, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Hemyock, division and union of Honiton: 207 miles from London (coach road 154), 2 from Honiton, 13 from Exeter. Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Exeter, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Exeter, &c., 221 miles. Money orders issued at Honiton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ p.m.: post closes 6 p.m. The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £10. 0s. 2½d.: pres. net income, £120: patron, Dean and Chapter of Exeter: pres. incumbent, E. C. Coleridge, 1829: contains 2,120 acres: 56 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 360: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 414: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,876: poor rates in 1837, £180. E., Deer-Park; N.E., Oakfield Lodge.

BUCKFASTLEIGH, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Stanborough, division of Stanborough and Coleridge, union of Totness: 229 miles from London (coach road 194), 2 from Ashburton, 10 from Chudleigh. Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol and Exeter to Totness, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, and Exeter, &c., 243 miles. Money orders issued at Ashburton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. This place was formerly a market town, and the market-house still remains. The church is an ancient and interesting structure, built after the manner of a cathedral, with nave, chancel side aisles, and a tower. Woollen manufactures have, to a very considerable extent, been carried on within the parish. Many of the inhabitants are now employed in the working of marble and limestone, both of which are found plentifully in the neighbourhood. In Tanner's Notitia Monastica it is stated, that—An abbey of the Cistercian order was founded here, in 1137, by Ethelwerd, son of William Pomerei, to the honour of St. Mary. The yearly revenues of this house was £466. 11s., and it was granted, in the 31st year of Henry VIII., to Sir Thomas Denny. The parochial charities produce about £12 a year. The living (Holy Trinity), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Totness, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £19. 1s. ¾d.: pres. net income, £155: patron, Rev. M. Lowndes: pres. incumbent, M. Lowndes, 1824: contains 6,270 acres: 452 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,576: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,962: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,802: poor rates in 1837, £843. Fairs: June 29, for sheep; and Aug. 24, for horned cattle.

BUCKHORN-WESTON, DORSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Redlane, union of Wincanton, Sturminster division of the county: 131 miles from London (coach road 138), 8 from Wincanton, 6 from Shaftesbury. Gt. West. Rail. through Chippenham to Westbury, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, and Chippenham, &c., 171 miles. Money orders issued at Wincanton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3¼ p.m. The living, a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Dorset, and diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Salisbury, is valued at £10. 1s. 3d.: pres. net income, £360: patron, Lady Stapleton: pres. incumbent, S. Marindin, 1837: contains 2,080 acres: 71 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 460: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 528: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,950: poor rates in 1837, £193.

BUCKHOW-BANK, CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Dalston, ward of Cumberland: 304 miles from London (coach road 308), 4 from Carlisle, 8 from Wigton. Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Lancaster to Carlisle, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 204 miles. Money orders issued at Carlisle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. Contains 104 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 636: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 731. (Other returns with the parish.)

BUCKINGHAM, BEDS., a parish and borough in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Buckingham: for civil and ecclesiastical purposes, the parish and town of Buckingham are co-extensive, and consist of the borough and market town of Buckingham, the chapelry of Gawcott, the hamlets of Bourton, Bourton-Hold, and Lenborough, with the precinct of Prebend-End: 61 miles from London (coach road 56), 7 from Aylesbury. Nor. West. Rail. to Bletchley, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Bletchley, &c., 97 miles. Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m. and 1½ p.m.: post closes 9½ a.m. and 8 p.m. The name of the town, which is of very ancient origin, is supposed to be derived from bocca or bucca, a stag, ing, a village, and ham, "a meadow," implying, as such was the case, a town situated in an undulating country, consisting of glades and forest-ground well stocked with deer. Buckingham is agreeably placed on the river Ouse, which, with a winding course, nearly surrounds three sides of the town, and over which there are three handsome stone bridges. In 915, both sides of the river here were fortified by Edward the Elder, with high ramparts of earth, in order to protect the inhabitants from the incursions of the Danes, and the remains of these ancient lines are still visible; but in 945, the piratical invaders committed great ravages in the neighbourhood, and in 1010 made Buckingham their place of refuge. Some time during the reign of Edward III., Buckingham, which was at that time a staple for wool, sent three of its inhabitants as trade representatives to a conference at Westminster; but, shortly after that period, the staple being removed to Calais, the old importance of the place declined, and the town was enumerated among the decayed places for which relief was decreed by parliament in the year 1535. About that time, the assizes, which had usually been held here, were removed to Aylesbury; but, in 1758, the restoration of the summer session was obtained for the town through the interest of Lord Cobham. In 1644, Charles I. made Buckingham his head-quarters; and Sir William Waller, after the battle of Cropred Bridge, and General Fairfax, after his defeat at Boarstall House, also took up their stations here. In 1724, the town suffered severely from an accidental fire, which destroyed many of the streets, some of which have never been rebuilt. Buckingham is divided into three districts, called respectively the Borough, Bourton-Hold, and the Prebend-End, the first of which contains the principal streets. In general, the houses are built of brick, and the streets are paved and lighted with gas, but are not flagged. The old church having for many years been in a very dilapidated condition, in March 26, 1776, fell down, and the present structure was raised in its stead, not on the old site, but at some little distance, on that of an ancient castle, supposed to have been erected by one of the earls of Buckingham shortly after the Conquest. It is a handsome structure, with a square-embattled tower, from which a tapering spire rises to the height of 150 feet. The interior is handsomely fitted up in the Grecian style, then so generally prevalent; and the altar is adorned with an excellent copy of Raphael's transfiguration, presented to the town by the Marquis of Buckingham. At the west end there is a fine-toned organ, said to be the best in the county. The burial-yard is about a couple of furlongs distant, where a small edifice has been erected for performing the service of the dead; no funerals, consequently, take place at the church, which is encompassed by a pleasant walk planted with trees, from which there are fine views of the country on three sides of the town. The free grammar-school was founded by Edward VI., who endowed it with the revenues of a dissolved chantry. The school-room was the chapel of a chantry, founded, in 1268, by Matthew Stratton, archdeacon of Buckingham, and dedicated to St. John the Baptist and Thomas à Becket. A Norman-arched door, which was the entrance of the chapel, still remains; and there are also some remains of the seats put up in the old church in the time of Edward VI., which are very curiously carved. But the object of the institution has been altered, the corporation, as trustees, having changed it into a common school of the ordinary character, in which only the children of the poor are now taught. The Green-coat school for twenty-five boys, was founded and endowed in 1760 by Mr. Gabriel Newton, an alderman of Leicester; and there is a large National school for both sexes, which is supported by subscription: the school-house is a handsome stone building. There are two almshouses here, each containing accommodation for six poor women, and called, respectively, Barton's Hospital and Christ's Hospital. The Independents, the Society of Friends, and the Wesleyan Methodists, all have places of worship here. The town-hall is a neat brick building in the centre of the town, having rooms for holding the courts. The gaol is a substantial stone edifice, built in 1755, at the cost of about £7,000, by Lord Cobham. The trade of the town consists chiefly in the sorting of wool and the tanning of leather, and, to some extent still, in lace-making, of which, at one time, Buckingham was the centre. This last business gave employment to almost every industrious working female in the town, and also to those throughout the entire country; but since the introduction of the lace machinery at Nottingham, that town has absorbed the bulk of the business. There are three corn-mills on the river Ouse, and limestone to a considerable extent is wrought in the neighbourhood. Formerly, there were four incorporated fraternities in the town, viz., the Mercers, Tanners, Merchant Tailors, and Butchers, to some one of which it was necessary a freeman should belong, but the freedom of the place is become obsolete. The governing charter of the borough was granted in the first year of Queen Mary (1554), in consequence of the services rendered by the inhabitants in putting down the Duke of Northumberland's rebellion, on the accession of the queen to the throne. This charter was surrendered, and a new one granted in 1684 by Charles II., on which the corporation acted for several years; but in consequence of a dispute with James II., during which the king successively removed three several mayors in the course of three months, quo warrantis were issued, and the charter was surrendered. The corporation, however, afterwards availed themselves of a general proclamation for restoring surrendered charters, and resumed that of Mary, by which the town was governed till the passing of the late general municipal corporation act. The corporate authority was then held by a bailiff, high-steward, a recorder, and twelve burgesses, with a town-clerk and other officers; it is now vested in a bailiff, four aldermen, and twelve councillors. The income of the borough amounts to about £600 a year. A court of quarter sessions was held at Easter and Michaelmas, under a commission from the Lord Chancellor; and there was formerly a court for the recovery of small debts, but during the last thirty years it has fallen into disuse; but a commission of the peace, and a court of quarter sessions, have recently been granted to the borough. Buckingham was constituted a borough by Henry VIII., and has returned two members to parliament since the 33d year of that monarch. Under the old system, the right of voting was vested in some members of the corporation, thirteen only in number, who were all under the control of the Duke of Buckingham; but under the Reform Act, the franchise has been extended to the inhabitants of the parishes of Buckingham, Maids-morton, Thornborough, Padbury, Hillesdon, Preston-Bisset, Tingewick, and Radclive-cum-Chackmore. Under the municipal act the number of electors registered was 286, of whom 131 were entitled to vote for members of parliament. The bailiff is the returning officer. The living (St. Peter and St. Paul), a discharged vicarage, a peculiar, formerly in the diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £22: pres. net income, £230: patron, Duke of Buckingham: pres. incumbent, H. Crowe, 1809: contains 5,330 acres: 710 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,816: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,088: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £10,660: poor rates in 1837, £1,668. Market days, Monday and Saturday. Fairs: Jan. 12, last Monday in Jan., March 7, second Monday in April, May 6, Whit-Thursday, July 10, Sept. 4, Oct. 2, Saturday after Old Michaelmas-day, Nov. 8, and Dec. 13. Bankers: Bartlett, Parrott, & Co.—draw on Praeds & Co.; Branch of London and County Joint-Stock Banking Company—draw on the Head-office, 21 Lombard Street. Inns: Cobham Arms, White Hart, and Swan and Castle.

BUCKLAND-WITH-CARSWELL, BERKS, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Ganfield, union of Farringdon: 67 miles from London (coach road 69), 4 from Farringdon, 8 from Wantage. Gt. West. Rail. to Wantage Road station, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, and Didcot, to Wantage Road, &c., 119 miles. Money orders issued at Farringdon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. A school here has a small endowment. The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Berks, and diocese of Salisbury, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £18. 4s. 7d.: pres. net income, £310: patron, Bishop of Bristol: pres. incumbent, Joseph Moore, 1842: contains 4,420 acres: 167 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 946: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,087: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,951: poor rates in 1837, £456. Tithes commuted in 1802. W., Buckland Park, the seat of Sir Robert Throckmorton, Bart. The mansion is of handsome elevation, in the Italian style, having a centre and two wings, terminated by octagonal buildings. There is an extensive park in front of it, which is well wooded and tastefully arranged. From the house, and several parts of the grounds, glimpses are caught of the surrounding country, which is of a highly picturesque character. Sir John Throckmorton, Knight, derived his descent from John de Throckmorton, who, according to Sir William Dugdale, was lord of the manor of Throckmorton soon after the Conquest. He was a very eminent person during the reigns of Henry V. and Henry VI., being, during the latter, deputy-treasurer of England. He died in 1445, and was succeeded by his son, Thomas Throckmorton, Esq., who was high sheriff of Warwick and Leicester in the 5th year of King Edward VI., and whose eldest son was one of the privy council of Henry VII. He was remarkable for his piety, and went on a pilgrimage to the holy land at an advanced period of life, but died on the road. From him was descended Thomas Throckmorton, Esq., son of Sir Robert Throckmorton, whose whole life was one series of difficulties and trials, owing to his religious opinions, his estate being frequently sequestrated, and himself imprisoned. On one occasion he was deprived of the manor of Ravenstone, which he held at a quit-rent of the Crown, on a mean allegation that he had neglected to pay his dues, though it was clearly proved that it was through the dishonesty of a servant that the money was not received into the exchequer on the appointed day. Mr. Throckmorton married Margaret, daughter and heiress of William Whorwood, Esq., attorney-general to Henry VIII.; and his grandson, through her, was created a baronet in 1642: from him the present baronet is the eighth in descent. Carswell House, the seat of Thomas Hayward Southby, Esq., is a neat modern mansion, with some admirably arranged grounds attached. Mr. Southby, whose original name was Perfect, but who assumed the name and arms of Southby in 1822, on inheriting the estates of his maternal grandfather, is a Fellow of the Antiquarian Society. He derives his lineage from Richard Southby, Esq., who was a gentleman of consideration in the time of Queen Elizabeth, and whose descendants have held an excellent position in the country since his time. Newton Villa, the property of William Wheeler Wintle, Esq., is very pleasantly situated. S.E., Pusey House—for which see PUSEY.)

BUCKLAND, BUCKINGHAM, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> and union of Aylesbury: 31 miles from London (coach road 34), 6 from Aylesbury, 3 from Tring. Nor. West. Rail. to Tring station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Tring, &c., 107 miles. Money orders issued at Aylesbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. The living (All Saints) is a curacy annexed to the vicarage of Bierton. Contains 1,290 acres: 100 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 537: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 618: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,464: poor rates in 1837, £297.

BUCKLAND WITH LAVERTON, a parish in the lower division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Kiftsgate, union of Winchcomb: 96 miles from London (coach road 95), 6 from Evesham. Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Chipping Camden, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Worcester to Chipping Camden, &c., 99 miles. Money orders issued at Broadway: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. Buckland was given to the Abbey of Gloucester by Kynred, king of the Mercians; but in 1536 it was changed for lands in Yorkshire by Sir Richard Gresham, lord mayor of London; and from his family it was conveyed to Sir John Thynne, through his marriage with the daughter and coheiress of Sir Thomas Gresham, founder of the Royal Exchange. It is now the property of Sir Thomas Phillips, Bart., by whom it was purchased of the Marquis of Bath. The church is of the 15th century, and has some grotesque sculptures of flying dragons for water-spouts at the angles of the tower. In the east window there are three beautiful compartments of painted glass, of such intense and glowing colouring as to show that they were formed when the art was at its highest pitch of excellence. They represent three of the sacraments of the Romish Church—baptism, matrimony, and extreme unction—and are ascribed by Lyson to the time of Edward IV. There is a school here, endowed by James Thynne, Esq. in 1710, with property which produces £30 a year. —The living (St. Michael), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Gloucester, and diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £29. 6s. 8d.; pres. net income, £222: patron, Sir T. Phillips, Bart.: pres. incumbent, W. Phillips, 1848: contains 2,270 acres: 67 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 377: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 433: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,933: poor rates in 1837, £72. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector and the lord of the manor, were commuted in 1779.

BUCKLAND, HERTFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Edwinstree, union of Buntingford: 53 miles from London (coach road 34), 3 from Buntingford, 4 from Royston. —Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Newport station, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 185 miles. —Money orders issued at Buntingford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. —The living (St. Andrew), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Middlesex, and diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £20: pres. net income, £300: patron, King's College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, W. W. Harvey, 1844: contains 1,590 acres: 80 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 435: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 500: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,871: poor rates in 1837, £173.

BUCKLAND, KENT, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Bewsborough, lathe of St. Augustine, union of River: 90 miles from London (coach road 69), 2 from Dover, 7 from Folkestone. —Sou. East. Rail. to Dover, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 222 miles. —Money orders issued at Dover: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. —Paper is made here to a large extent. —The living (St. Andrew), a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Canterbury, and a peculiar of the Archbishop, is valued at £26: pres. net income, £139: patron, Archbishop of Canterbury: pres. incumbent, J. B. Roberts, 1837: contains 850 acres: 157 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,472: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,692: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,993: poor rates in 1837, £472.

BUCKLAND, KENT, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Faversham, lathe of Scray: 49 miles from London (coach road 44), 3 from Faversham, 4 from Milton. —Gravesend Rail. to Rochester, thence 17 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 181 miles. —The church is in ruins. —The living (St. Nicholas), a sinecure rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £5. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £167: patron, Sir J. T. Tyrell, Bart.: pres. incumbent, C. T. J. Tyrell, 1833: contains 1,340 acres: 3 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 19: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £639: poor rates in 1837, £14.

BUCKLAND, SURREY, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Reigate: 23 miles from London (coach road 24), 2 from Reigate, 4 from Dorking. —Brighton and Sou. Coast Rail. to Reigate, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 135 miles. —Money orders issued at Reigate: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. —The living (St. Peter), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Surrey, and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £11. 12s. 11d.: pres. net income, £337: patron, All Soul's College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, T. Hulse: contains 2,040 acres: 54 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 364: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 414: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,336: poor rates in 1837, £334.

BUCKLAND-BREWER, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Shebbear, Great Torrington division, union of Bideford: 219 miles from London (coach road 214), 6 from Bideford, 13 from Barnstaple. —Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Tiverton, thence 35 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, &c., 233 miles. —Money orders issued at Bideford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. noon: post closes 1 p.m. —There was formerly a market here, which was discontinued on the dissolution of the Abbey of Dunkeswell, to which part of the manor had been given by Lord Brewer. Petty sessions are held here, and by adjournment at Torrington, for the division of Great Torrington. —The living (St. Mary and St. Benedict), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, to which are annexed the curacies of Bulkworthy and East Putford, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Barnstaple, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £25. 17s. 3½d.: pres. net income, £244: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, T. A. Colling, 1836: contains 3,970 acres: 200 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,103: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,268: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,944: poor rates in 1837, £398. —Fairs, Whit-Tuesday, and November 2, for cattle.

BUCKLAND-DENHAM, SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and division of Kilmersden, union of Frome: 118 miles from London (coach road 104), 2 from Frome, 10 from Bruton. —Gt. West. Rail. through Chippenham to Westbury, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Westbury, &c., 159 miles. —Money orders issued at Frome: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —The parochial charities produce about £11 a year. Teasel is grown largely in the neighbourhood. —The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £6. 9s. 7d.: pres. net income, £163: patron, Bishop of Bath and Wells: pres. incumbent, H. Clutterbuck, 1846: contains 1,400 acres: 107 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 516: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 593: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,156: poor rates in 1837, £171.

BUCKLAND (EAST), DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>, union, and division of South Molton, but belonging to that of Braunton: 208 miles from London (coach road 183), 4 from South Molton, 8 from Barnstaple. —Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Tiverton, thence 24 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Tiverton, &c., 222 miles. —Money orders issued at South Molton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. —The living (St. Michael), a rectory, consolidated with Buckland-Filleigh, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Barnstaple, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £9. 1s. 8d.: pres. net income, £286: patron, Earl Fortescue: pres. incumbent, H. Hutton, 1833: contains 2,340 acres: 25 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 167: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,118: poor rates in 1837, £80.

BUCKLAND-EGG. See Egg-BUCKLAND.

BUCKLAND-FILLEIGH, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Shebbear, division of Black Torrington: 219 miles from London, (coach road 207), 6 from Hatherleigh, 11 from Bideford. —Gt. West.

Rail. through Bristol and Exeter, to Crediton, thence 25 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol, &c., 233 miles.---Money orders issued at Crediton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.---The living (St. Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Barnstaple, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £11. 16s. 4d.: pres. net income, £286: patron, Earl Fortescue; pres. incumbent, H. Hutton, 1833: contains 4,550 acres: 53 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 275: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,359: poor rates in 1837, £87.---W., Buckland House, the seat of John Dicker Inglett Fortescue, Esq., who derives his descent from William Fortescue, Esq., of this place, a younger son of John Fortescue, Esq., ancestor of the Earls Fortescue, from whom this property descended through several generations to John Fortescue, whose only child, Rebecca, married Caleb Inglett, Esq., son of Caleb Inglett, Esq., by his first wife, the heiress of the Crewys of Ashburton, whose son, Richard Inglett, Esq., assumed the name and arms of Fortescue, and of that gentleman the present proprietor is a grandson. Mr. Fortescue is a magistrate and deputy-lieutenant of Devon and Cornwall, and was lately major of the North Devon Yeomanry Cavalry.—N.E., Hampton Park.

BUCKLAND-HOLLOW, DERBY, a village in the parish of Derbyshire.

BUCKLAND (ST. MARY), SOMERSET, a parish, partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Abdick and Bulstone, partly in that of Petherton, and partly in that of Martock, division of Ilminster, union of Chard: 182 miles from London (coach road 144), 6 from Ilminster, 5 from Chard.---Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Wellington, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Wellington, &c., 196 miles.---Money orders issued at Ilminster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---There is a Baptist chapel here. In the neighbourhood there are the remains of a Roman fort, called Neroche Castle. The district was the scene of many conflicts between the Saxons and the Danes, many relics of whom have been found here.---The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Taunton, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £12. 19s. 9d.: pres. net income, £343: patron, General Popham: pres. incumbent, J. E. Lance, 1832: contains 3,120 acres: 118 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 696: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 800: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,810: poor rates in 1837, £280.---Fairs, September 21 and 22, for horses the first day, bullocks the second.

BUCKLAND-MINCHIN (or SORORUM), SOMERSET, in the parish of Durston, hun<sup>d</sup> of North Petherton. Tanner says of this district—In the reign of King Henry II., William de Erlegh founded here a house of regular canons, who, having killed his steward, and done other unjustifiable acts, were suppressed and removed to other houses. But that king granted all their lands to the knights-hospitallers, A.D. 1180, upon condition that they should place here all the sisters of their order, which before lived in their preceptories. This seems to have been complied with, and the nuns here had at first great dependence upon the knights, but afterwards they disengaged themselves, and became a distinct priory or hospital of nuns of the order of St. Augustine. This was dedicated to St. John the Baptist, and endowed with £223. 17s.

4d. per annum, and the site was granted, in the 36th year of Henry VIII., to William, Earl of Essex, &c. There was also at this place a preceptory of knights of St. John of Jerusalem, whose house was granted, in the 36th year of Henry VIII., to Alexander Popham and William Halley.

BUCKLAND-MONACHORUM, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Roborough, Midland Roborough division, union of Tavistock: 254 miles from London (coach road 210), 10 from Plymouth, 4 from Tavistock.---Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol and Exeter to Plymouth, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, and Plymouth, &c., 268 miles.---Money orders issued at Plymouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---The village, at which there was formerly a market held, contains some curious old houses, and the remains of an ancient stone cross. It derives its name from a Cistercian abbey, founded about 1278 by Amicia, Countess Dowager of Devonshire, the revenues of which were valued, in the 26th year of Henry VIII., at £341, and the site was granted to Richard Greyfield. The church is a handsome cruciform structure, with a tower, turrets, and pinnacles, and contains a particularly fine monument, sculptured by Bacon, to the celebrated Lord Heathfield, who defended Gibraltar; and as the inscription upon it, in reality, contains a biography of that able commander, as well as some account of his family, we will transcribe it entire, merely premising that he was a son of Sir Gilbert Elliott of Stubbs, in Roxburghshire, and born about the year 1718. The whole monument is a truly classical production. The following is the epitaph:

"Sacred to the Memory of GEORGE AUGUSTUS ELLIOTT, BARON HEATHFIELD of Gibraltar, Knight of the Bath, General of his Majesty's Forces, and Governor of Gibraltar. He was the seventh Son of Sir Gilbert Elliott, Bart., of Stobs, in the county of Roxburgh, in Scotland.

"The University of Leyden enriched his mind with science, and formed his taste for literature and the fine arts. The bias of his genius soon inclined him to the Profession of Arms, in which he rose, by regular gradation, to the highest eminence, and at length closed a Brilliant Career with Immortal Glory. Germany beheld him, in the War of Seven Years, discharging all the Duties of a Gallant Officer. The British Cavalry owed to him a System of Discipline that made him the pride of their country. The Havannah, the metropolis of the Island of Cuba, saw him among the officers who levelled her boasted fortifications, and conquered by their valour. Gibraltar was reserved to crown him with unfading laurels. Though closely pressed, during a siege that lasted three years without intermission, he remained invincible. The spectacle which he there exhibited to the eyes of France and Spain, and to the amphitheatre of Princes, who beheld the glorious scene, will be an eternal memorial of British courage and British humanity.

"General Elliott derived no hereditary honours from his ancestors. His titles were earned by services to his country. He married Anne Pollixen Drake, daughter of Sir Francis Drake, Bart., who lies interred near this spot, and by her left a Daughter, who was married to John Trayton Fuller, Esq., and an only Son, now Lord Heathfield, who has erected this Monument to the virtue which he admired. History will tell the rest. He died July 6th, 1790, aged 73 years."

---The living (Holy Trinity), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Totness, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £19. 8s. 9d.: pres. net income, £430: patron, Rev. W. L. Nichols: pres. incumbent, W. L. Nichols, 1846: contains 6,910 acres: 225 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,411: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,623: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £7,138: poor rates in 1837, £552.---S. ½ m. Buckland Abbey, the seat of Sir Thomas Trayton Fuller Elliott Drake, Bart., whose family was founded by the celebrated Sir Francis. Some parts of the building still preserve the monastic features of the abbey, but modern

innovation has done a good deal to mar its unique appearance. In the house there is an original portrait of Sir Francis Drake, painted in 1594, when he was fifty-three years of age; and a framed copy of his patent of arms from Queen Elizabeth, dated in 1581. There is also a full-length portrait of him with his sword, and an old drum, which he took with him round the world. He was born at Tavistock, in 1545, and first served in the royal navy, under his relative Sir John Hawkins, distinguishing himself greatly by his valour in the unfortunate expedition against the Spaniards in the harbour of Vera Cruz. In 1570, he went to the West Indies in another cruise against the Spaniards, which he soon repeated with success. In 1572, having received the command of two vessels for the purpose of attacking the ports of Spanish South America, he executed his commission with so much energy, that he took possession of two of their cities, and returned laden with booty. On his return, he equipped three frigates at his own expense, and served under the Earl of Essex in Ireland, with such earnest intrepidity, that Sir Christopher Hatton introduced him to Queen Elizabeth. Upon his own suggestion, he was afterwards furnished with five ships, with which he ravaged the whole of the Spanish settlements in the New World, and coasted the North American shore as far as 48° North, calling the countries which he visited New Albion. He then went to the West Indies, and having doubled the Cape of Good Hope, returned to Plymouth in 1580; shortly after which time the queen dined on board his ship, and knighted him. After several other valuable services, he was intrusted with the command of thirty sail, with which he entered the harbour of Cadiz, and destroyed the shipping. In the following year, he was vice-admiral under Lord Howard, and took his share in the destruction of the Spanish armada. He died off the Nombre de Dios, in 1596. For some years he represented Plymouth in parliament, and to him the town is indebted for an excellent supply of water, brought from springs at a distance. His nephew, Francis Drake, Esq., was, in 1662, created a baronet, and from him the title descended to Francis Augustus Elliott, second Lord Heathfield, who dying without issue in 1813, the barony became extinct, and the estates went to Thomas Trayton Fuller, Esq., who assumed the names and arms of Elliott and Drake, was created a baronet, and is the present proprietor of the abbey. Sir Thomas is an officer in the army, and went through the greater part of the peninsular war.

BUCKLAND-IN-THE-MOOR, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Haytor, division of Teignbridge, union of Newton-Abbot: 224 miles from London (coach road 190), 3 from Ashburton, 9 from Chudleigh. — Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol and Exeter to Newton-Abbot, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, &c., 238 miles. — Money orders issued at Ashburton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living, a curacy annexed to the vicarage of Ashburton: contains 1,500 acres: 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 114: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £861: poor rates in 1837, £49. — S. is Holme Chase, the seat of the Rev. B. W. Saville.

BUCKLAND-NEWTON (or ABBAS), DORSET, a parish in the above hun<sup>d</sup>, union of Cerne, Cerne subdivision of the county: it is divided into the tithings of Brockhampton and Knowle, Buckland, Newton, Duntish, Mintern-Parva, and Plush: 151 miles from London (coach road 114), 10 from Dorchester, 10 from Blandford. — Sou. West. Rail. through Southampton to Dorchester, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Banbury, Oxford, and Southampton, to Dorchester, &c., 241 miles. — Money orders issued at Dorchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The parochial charities produce about £25 a year. — The living (the Holy Rood), a vicarage, with the curacy of Plush, formerly in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Dorset, and diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Sarum, is valued at £16. 19s. 9½d.: pres. net income, £496: patron, Dean and Chapter of Wells: pres. incumbent, J. Venables, 1805: contains 6,770 acres: 139 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 914: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,051: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £6,617: poor rates in 1837, £623.

BUCKLAND-RIPERS, DORSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Colliford-Tree, union of Weymouth, Dorchester division of the county: 147 miles from London (coach road 124), 4 from Market-Regis, 6 from Dorchester. — Sou. West. Rail. through Southampton to Dorchester, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, Reading, and Southampton, to Dorchester, &c., 236 miles. — Money orders issued at Weymouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Dorset, and diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Sarum, is valued at £5. 9s. 2d.: pres. net income, £176: patron, Q. H. Stroud, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. S. Litchfield, 1841: contains 1,410 acres: 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 118: poor rates in 1837, £71.

BUCKLAND-TOUTSAINTS, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Coleridge, Stanborough and Coleridge division, union of Kingsbridge: 233 miles from London (coach road 206), 2 from Kingsbridge, 7 from Dartmouth. — Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol and Exeter to Totness, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, and Exeter, to Totness, &c., 247 miles. — Money orders issued at Kingsbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — The living is a curacy annexed to the vicarage of Loddiswell: contains 1,000 acres: 8 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 56: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £848: poor rates in 1837, £52. — Buckland Hall is the seat of William John Clark, Esq., whose father, William Clark, Esq., was high sheriff of Devonshire in 1795. Mr. Clark is a deputy-lieutenant and a magistrate of the county.

BUCKLAND (W<sup>est</sup>), DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Braunton, division and union of South Molton, but locally situated in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of South Molton: 209 miles from London (coach road 186), 5 from South Molton, 5 from Barnstaple. — Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Tiverton, thence 25 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Tiverton, &c., 223 miles. — Money orders issued at South Molton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living (St. Peter), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Barnstaple, diocese of Exeter, is valued at £13. 3s. 4d.: pres. net income, £194: patron, Baroness Basset: pres. incumbent, W. Lee, 1831: contains 2,290 acres: 54 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 275: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,222: poor rates in 1837, £97.

BUCKLAND (WEST), SOMERSET, a parish in the western division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Kingsbury, union and division of Wellington: 168 miles from London (coach road 146), 2 from Wellington, 5 from Taunton. — Gt. West. Rail. to Taunton, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Taunton, &c., 182 miles. — Money orders issued at Wellington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — The living (St. Mary) is a perpetual curacy annexed to the vicarage of Wellington, in the diocese of Bath and Wells, and having jointly a pres. net income of £894: patron, Rev. W. P. Thomas: pres. incumbent, W. P. Thomas, 1843: contains 3,500 acres: 178 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 887: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,020: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,016: poor rates in 1837, £330. — N.E., Amberd House.

BUCKLEBURY, BERKS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Reading, union of Bradfield: 52 miles from London (coach road 50), 6 from Newbury, 11 from Reading. — Gt. West. Rail. through Reading to Thatcham, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, and Reading, &c., 135 miles. — Money orders issued at Newbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. — The church presents some specimens of Norman architecture. There is a school here, which has a small endowment. — The living, a vicarage with the curacy of Marlston, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Berks, diocese of Salisbury, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £17: pres. net income, £453: patron, W. H. H. Hartley, Esq.: pres. incumbent, T. E. Williams, 1832: contains 6,790 acres: 261 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,277: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,468: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,681: poor rates in 1837, £679.

BUCKLESHAM, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Colneis, union of Woodbridge: 73 miles from London (coach road 74), 5 from Ipswich, 5 from Woodbridge. — East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Ipswich, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 205 miles. — Money orders issued at Ipswich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. — Many singular petrifications have been found in the parish. — The living (the Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £9. 1s. 8d.: pres. net income, £566: patron, Rev. E. Walford: pres. incumbent, E. Walford, 1833: contains 2,310 acres: 38 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 255: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,713: poor rates in 1837, £307.

BUCKLEY (or BULKLEY), CHESTER, a township in the parish of Malpas, high division of Broxton hun<sup>d</sup> — (which see for access, &c.): 171 miles from London, 5 from Tarporley, 12 from Chester. — Money orders issued at Tarporley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — Contains 800 acres: 36 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 190: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,132: poor rates in 1837, £72.

BUCKMINSTER, LEICESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Framland, union of Melton-Mowbray: it contains the townships of Buckminster, and the chapelry of Sewstern: 114 miles from London (coach road 112), 6 from Colsterworth, 9 from Melton-Mowbray. — Nor. West. Rail. through

Rugby and Syston to Melton-Mowbray, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Syston to Melton, &c., 52 miles. — Money orders issued at Stamford. — In a close called 'the Grange,' to the south of the village, there are the remains of a religious house, which was subject to the priory of Kirby Bellars. The sum of £25 a year is received by the poor of this parish from Mr. William Chester's charity. The church is an ancient building, surmounted by a massive tower. — The living (St. John the Baptist), a rectory with that of Sewstern, in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £8. 7s. 3½d.: pres. net income, £161: patron, Earl of Dysart: pres. incumbent, J. Lawson, 1834: contains 2,080 acres: 148 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 697: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 801: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,797: poor rates in 1837, £190. — Buckminster Park is the seat of the Earl of Dysart. The mansion, which is a large and handsome structure, is in the Grecian style, and was erected by the late Lord Huntingtower in 1798. His lordship, who succeeded to the title on the death of his grandmother in 1840, is a descendant of the very ancient family of Tollemache, which claims Saxon descent, the name being supposed to be a corruption of the Saxon word 'Tollemacke,' which signifies the tolling of a bell; the Tollemaches having flourished with the greatest honour in the county of Suffolk, from the first arrival of the Saxons in this country, a period of thirteen centuries. Tollemache, Lord of Bentley in Suffolk, and of Stoke Tollemache in the county of Oxford, lived in the sixth century; and the following inscription may still be seen on the old manor-house at Bentley:—

"Before the Normans into England came, Bentley was my seat, and Tollemache my name."

Hugh de Tollemache subscribed a charter, about the reign of Stephen, with the first Abbess of Godstowe, in Oxfordshire, which was made to her by John de St. John. This Hugh, in his old age, assumed the cowl at Gloucester, and bestowed upon that monastery half of the town of Hampton, a grant which his son Peter confirmed in the time of Prior Hamblin. A descendant of this Peter de Tollemache, Lionel de Tollemache, was sheriff of Norfolk and Suffolk in 1512. In 1561, Queen Elizabeth visited Helmingham, the then residence of the family, and was most sumptuously entertained there from the 14th to the 18th of August. During her visit she stood sponsor to the child of Sir Lionel; and on her departure, presented him with her lute, which is still preserved in the family. Through several generations, the property came to Sir Lionel, who married Lady Elizabeth Murray, daughter of the first Earl of Dysart and Lord Huntingtower, at whose death she became Countess of Dysart; in 1670, she obtained from Charles II. a confirmation of her honours, and a charter, which allowed her to nominate any of her children as her heirs. After the death of Sir Lionel, she married John, Duke of Lauderdale, one of the royal commissioners for Scotland. At her death her honours devolved upon her eldest son, Lord Huntingtower, who sat as member of parliament for Oxford in 1678 and 1685. His lordship represented the county of Suffolk from 1698 till he ceased to be an English commoner, by the passing of the act of union with Scotland. Wilbraham, the fifth earl, dying without issue, the title devolved upon his sister Louisa, who married John Manners, Esq., of Grantham Grange, by whom she had a numerous issue. William, the eldest son, assumed the name of Manners only, and was created a baronet in 1793. By this title only he chose to be and was known, until late in life, when he took up the title of Lord Huntingtower. Dying before his mother, who expired in the year 1840, the title descended to his son Lionel, the present Earl of Dysart. In consideration of the countess being the representative of the ancient house of Tollemache, her ladyship, her daughter Lady Laura, and two of her sons, were permitted to assume the name and arms of that family, instead of those of her late husband.

BUCKNALL, LINCOLN, a parish in the southern division of the wapentake of Gartree, parts of Lindsey, union of Horncastle: 163 miles from London (coach road 137), 4 from Horncastle, 13 from Wragby. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>l</sup> Rail. through Peterborough to Bardney, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham and Lincoln to Bardney, &c., 63 miles. — Money orders issued at Horncastle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — The living (St. Margaret), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £9.11s.10<sup>d</sup>.: pres. net income, £231: patron, Lord Monson: pres. incumbent, J. Fendall, 1834: contains 2,490 acres: 41 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 303: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 348: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,429: poor rates in 1837, £193.

BUCKNALL, STAFFORD, a township in the parish of Stoke-upon-Trent, northern division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Pirehill: 166 miles from London (coach road 152), 4 from Newcastle, 9 from Leek. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Leicester, and Burton, to Stoke-upon-Trent, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Burton, &c., 44 miles. — Money orders issued at Newcastle-under-Lyne. — There is a school here, endowed with £10 a year. — The living, a rectory with that of Bagnall, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stafford, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £200: patron, Rev. E. Powys: pres. incumbent, E. Powys, 1818: contains 150 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 638: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 734. — (Other returns with the parish.)

BUCKNELL, OXFORD, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Ploughley, union of Bicester: 80 miles from London (coach road 57), 3 from Bicester, 8 from Deddington. — Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Bonshall, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Rugby and Banbury to Bonshall, &c., 86 miles. — Money orders issued at Bicester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8<sup>h</sup> a.m.: post closes 6<sup>h</sup> p.m. — The parochial charities produce about £11 a year. — The living (St. Peter), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £13.6s.3<sup>d</sup>.: patron, New College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, W. Master, 1833: contains 1,670 acres: 52 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 287: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,390: poor rates in 1837, £130. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1779.

BUCKNILL, HEREFORD, a parish, partly in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Wigmore, county of Hereford, and partly in that of Purslow, union of Knighton, on the river

Teme: it contains the township of Buxton and Coxhall: 156 miles from London (coach road 134), 3 from Knighton, 9 from Bewdley. — Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Kidderminster, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Kidderminster, &c., 89 miles. — Money orders issued at Presteign: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12<sup>h</sup> p.m.: post closes 11<sup>h</sup> a.m. — The parochial charities produce about £12.12s. a year. — The living (St. Peter), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £5.6s.8<sup>d</sup>.: pres. net income, £332: patron, Grocers' Company, London: pres. incumbent, J. R. Coope, 1836: contains 4,160 acres: 86 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 532: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 612: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,808: poor rates in 1837, £214. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1818.

BUCKTON, EAST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Bridlington, wapentake of Dicking — (which see for access, &c.): 210 miles from London, 3 from Bridlington, 5 from Rudstone. — Money orders issued at Bridlington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> at noon: post closes 1 p.m. — Contains 1,840 acres: 28 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,185: poor rates in 1837, £52.

BUCKWORTH, HUNTINGDON, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Leightonstone, union of Huntingdon: 99 miles from London (coach road 66), 6 from Huntingdon, 3 from Spaldwick. — Nor. West. Rail. through Northampton to Thrapstowe, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Weedon and Northampton, &c., 101 miles. — Money orders issued at Huntingdon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9<sup>h</sup> a.m.: post closes 7<sup>h</sup> p.m. — The living (All Saints), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Huntingdon, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £21.5s.2<sup>d</sup>.: pres. net income, £330: patron, R. E. D. Shafto: pres. incumbent, A. D. Shafto, 1848: contains 2,290 acres: 28 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 160: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,475: poor rates in 1837, £77.

BUDBROOKE, WARWICK, a parish in the Snitterfield division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Barlichway, union of Warwick: 106 miles from London (coach road 91), 1 from Warwick, 6 from Kennilworth. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Coventry to Leamington, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Rugby and Coventry to Leicester, &c., 74 miles. — Money orders issued at Warwick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £354: patron, Rev. H. White: pres. incumbent, William Cardall, 1848: contains 3,050 acres: 99 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 508: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 584: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,257: poor rates in 1837, £447. — Grove Park is the seat of Lord Dormer. His lordship, who was born at Gran, in Hungary, and who was formerly an officer of rank in the Austrian service, succeeded to the title on the death of his cousin, John Evelyn Pierrepont, in 1826. His lordship derives his descent from Geoffrey Dormer of West Wiccombe, in the county of Buckingham, whose great-grandson, Sir Michael, was sheriff of London in 1529, and lord mayor in 1541. The great-nephew of this latter gentleman, Sir Robert Dormer, was three times high sheriff of Bedfordshire and Buckinghamshire, in the reign of Henry VIII.; on the dissolution of the monasteries, he obtained for himself a large share of the abbatial property of St. Albans. Sir Robert Dormer, his grandson, was created a baronet in 1615, and in the same year elevated to the peerage; and in 1628, his son was created Viscount Ascott, and Earl of Carnarvon. His lordship attached himself to the cause of Charles I., and was killed at the battle of Newbury, in 1643. Charles, the second earl, dying without male issue, the earldom and viscounty expired; but the barony devolved to Rowland, a descendant of the Hon. Anthony Dormer of Grove Park, of Budbrooke, second son of the first lord. This nobleman dying unmarried, the title vested in Charles, the fifth baron, a descendant of the Hon. Robert Dormer, third son of the first baron, and from him, with two collateral changes, the title descended to the late Lord Dormer.—Hampton Lodge is the residence of Charles Ferrers, Esq.; Lower Norton, of Captain Heath; and Stank Hill, of Dr. Lloyd.

BUDBY, NOTTINGHAM, a township in the parish of Edwinstow, Hatfield division of the wapentake of Bassetlaw—(which see for access, &c.): 139 miles from London, 2 from Ollerton, 7 from Worksop.—Money orders issued at Ollerton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.—There is a day and Sunday school here for 18 girls, which was founded by the late Dowager Countess of Mansvers, and which is supported by the present countess. The children are fed and clothed; and each child, on leaving the school, has £10 paid for its benefit into the Retford Savings Bank.—Contains 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 127: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £863: poor rates in 1837, £41.

BUDE, CORNWALL, a small village and seaport in the parish and hun<sup>d</sup>. of Stratton.—It is on the course of the Bristol Channel, and is much resorted to for bathing. The trade of the place has been much increased by the construction of the Bude and Launceston Canal.

BUDEAUX (or BUDOCK), (St.) DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and division of Roborough, union of Plymouth: 248 miles from London (coach road 228), 4 from Plymouth, 4 from Saltash.—Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Plymouth, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Plymouth, &c., 262 miles.—Money orders issued at Plymouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—The village is delightfully situated on a height, which commands most beautiful views over the river Tamar, and the surrounding country.—The living (St. Mary), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Totness, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £36. 18s. 10d.: pres. net income, £114: patron, Vicar of St. Andrew's, Plymouth: pres. incumbent, B. W. S. Vallack, 1832: contains 2,500 acres: 118 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 544: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, the same: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £5,653: poor rates in 1837, £690.

BUDLE, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish and ward of Bamborough, on the southern shore of Warren Bay—(which see for access, &c.): 325 miles from London, 3 from Belford, 12 from Wooler.—Money orders issued at Belford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.—Contains 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 102: poor rates in 1837, £61.

BUDLEIGH (EAST), DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Budleigh, union of St. Thomas: 211 miles from London (coach road 162), 5 from Sidmouth, 12 from Chudleigh.—Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol and Exeter to Starcross, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, Exeter, &c., 224 miles.—Money orders issued at Sidmouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.—There is an Independent chapel here; and at Budleigh-Satterton, which is used as a bathing-place, there are a chapel-of-ease and a Wesleyan meeting-house. A market was formerly held here.—The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, with the curacy of Wythcombe Rawleigh, in the archd<sup>r</sup>. and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £30: pres. net income, £318: patron, Heirs of Lord Rolle: pres. incumbent, A. Stapleton, 1794: contains 2,490 acres: 412 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,319: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,667: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £5,067: poor rates in 1837, £525.

BUDOCK (St.), CORNWALL, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Kerrier, union of Falmouth: 282 miles from London (coach road 268), 2 from Falmouth, 2 from Penryn.—Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Plymouth, thence 58 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Plymouth, &c., 295 miles.—Money orders issued at Falmouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.—There is a school here, endowed with £6 a year. Petty sessions of the east division of the hundred of Kerrier, are held at Gellie's Hotel, Greenbank, in this parish.—The living is a vicarage annexed to that of St. Glavias: contains 3,320 acres: 314 houses: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £8,618: poor rates in 1837, £458.

BUDOCK (St.) See BUDEAUX, DEVON.

BUDON. See BERDON.

BUDWORTH (GREAT), CHESTER, a parish in the union of Altrincham, Northwich, and Runcorn: it contains the townships of Castle-Northwich, Hertford, and Winnington, in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Eddisbury; the chapelries of Nether-Peover, and Witton with Twambrook, and six townships in the hundred of Northwich; and the chapelries Aston by Budworth, and Little Leigh, with twenty-one townships in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Bucklow: 176 miles from London, 3 from Northwich, 9 from Warrington.—Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Acton station, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Burton, Crewe, &c., 76 miles.—Money orders issued at Northwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.—The parochial charities produce about £120 a year.—The living (St. Mary and All Saints), a vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup>. and diocese of Chester, is valued at £6. 9s. 4d.: pres. net income, £171: patron, Christ Church College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, G. H. Webber, 1826: contains 36,450 acres: 2,070 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 17,103: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 19,668: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £68,204: poor rates in 1837, £7,931.

BUDWORTH (GREAT), CHESTER, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.)—Contains 840 acres: 125 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 677: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 778: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,893: poor rates in 1837, £195.—Fairs:

Feb. 13, April 5, and Oct. 2, for cows, horses, swine, hats, and podlery.

BUDWORTH (LITTLE), CHESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Eddisbury, union of Northwich: 174 miles from London (coach road 180), 4 from Tarporley, 7 from Northwich. — Nor. West Rail. through Crewe to Beeston station, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Burton, Crewe, &c., 74 miles. — Money orders issued at Tarporley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — There are endowed almshouses here for twenty inmates. The other parochial charities produce about £52 a year. — The living (St. Peter), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Chester, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £85: patron, Bishop of Chester: pres. incumbent, C. S. Burslem, 1816: contains 2,630 acres: 103 houses: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,627: poor rates in 1837, £251. — S. W. 1 m. Oulton Park, the seat of Sir Philip de Malpas Grey Egerton, Bart. Sir Philip derives his descent from William de Belward, whose son, David le Clerk, was sheriff of Cheshire in the 36th of Henry III. He was a man of great influence, and married Margaret, daughter and heir of Ralph ap Enyon, a descendant of the Earl of Chester, and thus became possessed of the whole barony of Malpas, a moiety by his wife, and a moiety by his own heirship. His son, surnamed Gough, or "the Red," having obtained the manor of Egerton Malpas, assumed, according to the custom of the age, the surname of Egerton. From him was descended Sir Rowland Egerton, Knight, who, in 1617, was created a baronet. The sixth in descent from Sir Rowland, Sir Thomas Egerton, was, in 1784, elevated to the peerage by the title of Baron Grey de Wilton; and was further created, in 1801, Viscount Grey de Wilton, and Earl of Wilton, with reversion, in default of male issue, to the second son of his daughter Eleanor, consort of the Hon. Thomas, afterwards Earl Grosvenor, and to all her ladyships younger sons by the earl successively, in the event of default of male issue of the descendants of the elder. His lordship died in 1814, when the Barony of Grey de Wilton expired, and the viscounty and earldom reverted according to patent, and the baronetcy to his kinsman, John Egerton, Esq. of Oulton, a descendant of Dr. Philip Egerton, second son of the first baronet. He dying without issue, the title devolved upon his brother, the Rev. Philip Egerton, rector of Tarporley, and the higher mediety of Malpas. The Rev. Sir Philip, in 1825, assumed, by sign-manual, the surname of Grey. He died in 1829, when he was succeeded in the title and estates by his son, the present baronet.

BUERTON, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Aldford, lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Broxton — (which see for access, &c.): 182 miles from London, 5 from Chester, 2 from Tarvin. — Money orders issued at Chester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — Contains 790 acres: 9 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 81: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £964.

BUERTON, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Audlem, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Nantwich — (which see for access, &c.): 164 miles from London, 7 from Nantwich, 4 from Audlem. — Money orders issued at Nantwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — Contains 2,980 acres: 88 houses:

pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 512: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 589: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,295: poor rates in 1837, £184.

BUGBROOK, NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Nobottle-Grove, union of Northampton: 65 miles from London (coach road 72), 6 from Northampton, 7 from Daventry. — Nor. West Rail. to Blisworth, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Weedon, 69, thence 4 miles. — Money orders issued at Northampton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. — Each inhabitant pays fourpence annually to the duchy-court of Lancaster, held at West Haddon. There are Wesleyan, Baptist, and Quaker chapels here. A new National school was built here in 1844, at an expense of £500, of which the society for the promotion of education contributed £100, the rest being raised by voluntary contributions. — The living (St. Michael), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Northampton, diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £34: pres. net income, £741: patron, Rev. Dr. H. J. Harrison: pres. incumbent, H. J. Harrison, 1813: contains 2,420 acres: 183 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 953: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 1,095: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,794: poor rates in 1837, £231. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1779.

BUG-LAWTON (or LAWTON YATE), CHESTER, a township in the parish of Astbury, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Northwich: 173 miles from London (coach road 165), 3 from Congleton, 7 from Macclesfield. — Nor. West Rail. through Burton and Stoke-upon-Trent to Congleton, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Burton, &c., 73 miles. — Money orders issued at Congleton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The living is a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Chester: pres. net income, £150: patron, Rector of Astbury: pres. incumbent, Edward Wilson, 1842: contains 2,960 acres: 331 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 1,864: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 2,143: poor rates in 1837, £508.

BUGTHORPE, EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the union of Pocklington, partly in the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the wapentake of Buckrose: 235 miles from London (coach road 190), 6 from Pocklington, 12 from New Malton. — Nor. West Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, to Stamford Bridge, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 102 miles. — Money orders issued at Pocklington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. — The living (St. Andrew), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, a peculiar of the Dean and Chapter of York, is valued at £20: pres. net income, £111: patron, Archbishop of York: pres. incumbent, T. Richardson, 1843: contains 1,990 acres: 52 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 296: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,805: poor rates in 1837, £113. The great and small tithes, the property of the prebend of Bugthorpe and the curate, were commuted in 1777.

BUILDWAS, SALOP, a parish in the Welling-ton division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of South Bradford, union of Madeley: 147 miles from London (coach road 149), 4 from Much-Wenlock, 6 from Shifnal. — Nor. West Rail. to Wolverhampton, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Wolverhampton, &c., 76 miles. — Money orders issued at Much-Wenlock: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — The highly interesting and picturesque village of Buildwas stands not far from the foot of the Wrekin, on the banks of the river Severn, over which there is here an elegant iron bridge of 130 feet span, built at the expense of the county, by the Coalbrooke Dale Iron Company, at a cost of £6,034, on the site of the ancient conventual bridge, which was, in 1795, carried away by a sudden rise of the waters. In speaking of this place, Tanner says—Roger Bishop of Chester built here, in 1135, an abbey for monks of the order of Savigny, to the honour of St. Mary and St. Chad. Herein were twelve monks about the time of the suppression, who were endowed with £129. 6s. 10d. per annum. The site and all the lands belonging to this monastery were granted, in the 29th year of Henry VIII., to Henry Lord Powis. Nearly all the walls of the abbey are entire, and, being much covered with ivy, form a most beautiful object. It is singular that this abbey had no western entrance: the ancient crypt is now used as the beer-cellar of a very good house, which has been formed out of the abbot's lodge. The living (the Holy Trinity), a donative curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, not in charge: pres. net income, £20; patron, W. Moseley, Esq.: pres. incumbent, John Bartlett, 1822: contains 2,950 acres: 50 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 273: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,769: poor rates in 1837, £312.

BUILTH (or BUALTH, sometimes called LLANFAIR), BRECON, a parish and market town in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Builth, South Wales: 186 miles from London (coach road 173), 15 from Brecon. Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 68 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 139 miles. Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 2 p.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. The name of this place is correctly derived from the surrounding district, and is composed of the words bu, an ox, and allt, a wooded height. It stands on a very picturesque spot, in an open part of the valley, on the banks of the Wye, surrounded by towering hills of great height, which are still used as an extensive pasturage for cattle. It was, in all probability, the Roman station called Bullaum, and the present town is supposed to have arisen around the castle raised by Robert Newmarch, which he no doubt built to secure his conquest, after his reduction of Cadwgan ap Elystan Glodrydd, the ancient prince of the soil, and the last of the Principality who yielded to the Norman invaders. The town consists chiefly of two parallel streets, connected by lanes; the lower one narrow and dirty, but the principal thoroughfare of the place; the upper one wider and better built. The church is at the west end of the town, and, with the exception of the steeple, is of modern erection. The remains of the castle are small, but sufficient to show that the walls were of immense thickness. The edifice was accidentally destroyed by fire in 1690, together with a considerable part of the town, when a loss to the amount of £12,000 was sustained. There are several dissenting chapels in the town. About a mile to the north of the town there are some mineral springs, called the Park Wells, which give three kinds of water—saline, sulphureous, and chalybeate; and pump-rooms have been erected close by them. The living is a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Brecon, and diocese of St. David's: pres. net income, £106: patrons, R. B. Price and V. Pocock, Esq.: pres. incumbent, R. H. Harrison, 1845: contains 225 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,203: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,383: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,430: poor rates in 1837, £324. Market day, Monday. Fairs: third Monday in February, June 27, October 2, and December 6, for sheep, cattle, and horses. Lion Hotel, and Barley-Mow Inn.

VOL. I.

BULBRIDGE. See WILTON.

BULBY. See IRNHAM.

BULCOTE, NOTTINGHAM, a hamlet in the parish of Burton-Joyce, wapentake of Thurgarton, on the northern bank of the river Trent—(which see for access, &c.): 129 miles from London, 6 from Nottingham, 11 from Newark. Money orders issued at Nottingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. The living is a curacy, annexed to the vicarage of Burton-Joyce: contains 970 acres: 28 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 154: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,020: poor rates in 1837, £59.

BULFORD, WILTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Amesbury, on the river Avon: 107 miles from London (coach road 78), 2 from Amesbury, 9 from Wilton. Sou. West. Rail. to Salisbury, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, Reading, and Bishopstoke, to Salisbury, &c., 194 miles. Money orders issued at Amesbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. There is a school here with a small endowment, and there is also an Independent chapel. The living (St. John), a donative curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Sarum, is valued at £40: pres. net income, £75: patron, Dr. Southby: contains 4,160 acres: 58 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 367: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 422: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,403: poor rates in 1837, £177.

BULK, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Lancaster, hun<sup>d</sup> of Lonsdale, south of the Sands—(which see for access, &c.): 242 miles from London, 2 from Lancaster, 7 from Hornby. Money orders issued at Lancaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. Contains 1,200 acres: 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 113: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,841: poor rates in 1837, £218.

BULKINGTON, WARWICK, a parish in the Kirby division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Knightlow, union of Nuneaton: it includes the hamlets of Barnacle, Bramcote, Mearston-Jabbett, Ryton, and Weston: 92 miles from London (coach road 98), 4 from Nuneaton, 7 from Coventry. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Bulkington station: from Derby, through Tamworth to Bulkington, 40 miles. Money orders issued at Nuneaton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. There is an Independent chapel here, the congregation of which was formed in 1812. The parochial charities produce £68 a year. The inhabitants of Bulkington are partly employed in ribbon-weaving. The living (St. James), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Coventry, and diocese of Lichfield, is valued at £6. 10s. 7d.: pres. net income, £253: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, W. G. Parker, 1840: contains 4,600 acres: 382 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,831: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,106: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £6,751: poor rates in 1837, £904.

3 q

The inappropriate and vicarial tithes, the property of Johnstone's free grammar-school, the hospitals of Oakham and Uppingham, and the vicar, were commuted in 1770.

BULKINGTON, WILTS., a tithing in the parish of Keevil, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Melksham—(which see for access, &c.): 83 miles from London, 6 from Amesbury, 15 from Melksham.—Money orders issued at Amesbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—Contains 760 acres: 42 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 268: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,147: poor rates in 1837, £110.

BULKWORTHY, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Shebbear, division of Great Torrington, union of Bideford: 222 miles from London (coach road 217), 12 from Bideford, 7 from Torrington.—Gt. West. Rail. to Tiverton, thence 38 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Tiverton, &c., 235 miles.—Money orders issued at Bideford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 12½ a.m.: post closes 12½ p.m.—The living is a curacy annexed to the vicarage of Buckland-Brewer: contains 6,050 acres: 36 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 196: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £521: poor rates in 1837, £65.

BULLER'S GREEN, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish and ward of Morpeth, adjacent to Morpeth, and included by the new boundaries act within that borough—(which see for access, &c.): 289 miles from London, 1 from Morpeth, 14 from Newcastle.—Money orders issued at Morpeth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.—Contains 52 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 169: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £351: poor rates in 1837, £65.

BULLEY, GLOUCESTER, a parish in the division of the duchy of Lancaster: 117 miles from London (coach road 112), 4 from Newent, 5 from Gloucester.—Gt. West. Rail. through Stonehouse to Gloucester, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 108 miles.—Money orders issued at Gloucester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.—The living is a curacy annexed to Churcham vicarage: contains 780 acres: 43 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 229: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £828: poor rates in 1837, £122.

BULLINGHAM (UPPER and LOWER), HEREFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Webtree, union of Hereford: 148 miles from London (coach road 133), 2 from Hereford, 12 from Ross.—Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 28 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 99 miles.—Money orders issued at Hereford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.—The living is a perpetual curacy, a peculiar of the Dean of Hereford: pres. net income, £109: patron, Bishop of Hereford: pres. incumbent, James Johnson, 1828: contains 1,700 acres: 75 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 412: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 474: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,382: poor rates in 1837, £196.

BULLINGTON, LINCOLN, a parish in the western division of the wapentake of Wraggöe, parts of Lindsey, union of Lincoln: 179 miles from London (coach road 144), 2 from Wragby, 11 from Horncastle.—Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup>. through Peterborough and Lincoln to Langworth station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham and Lincoln to Langworth, &c., 60 miles.—Money orders issued at Horncastle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>.

9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.—In Tanner's Notitia it is stated, that—Simon Fitzwilliam, or de Kyma, in the time of Stephen, built, in his park here, a religious house for a prior and convent of both sexes, under the rule of St. Gilbert of Sempringham, to the honour of the blessed Virgin Mary, which, before the dissolution, was endowed with £187. 7s. 9d., and was granted to Charles, Duke of Suffolk, in the 37th year of Henry VIII.—The living is a curacy not in charge, annexed to that of Goltho: contains 760 acres: 10 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 52: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £952: poor rates in 1837, £30.—Bullington Hall.

BULKINGTON, HANTS., a chapelry in the parish and hun<sup>d</sup>. of Wherwell, Andover division of the county—(which see for access, &c.): 58 miles from London, 4 from Whitechurch, 6 from Andover.—Money orders issued at Whitechurch: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.—Several Roman relics have been discovered here.—The living is a curacy annexed to the vicarage of Wherwell: contains 1,760 acres: 23 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 187: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,532: poor rates in 1837, £44.

BULLOCK'S HALL, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Warkworth, eastern division of Morpeth ward—(which see for access, &c.): 300 miles from London, 7 from Alnwick, 11 from Morpeth.—Money orders issued at Alnwick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 2 p.m.: post closes 11½ a.m.—Contains 4 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 19.—(Other returns with the parish.)

BULLSTON. See BOULSTON.

BULMER, ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Hinckford, union of Sudbury: 70 miles from London (coach road 53), 2 from Sudbury, 7 from Clare.—East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Ardleigh station, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 202 miles.—Money orders issued at Sudbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.—The living (St. Andrew), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, consolidated with that of Belchampt-Walter, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Middlesex, and diocese of London, now in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £445: patron, S. M. Raymond: pres. incumbent, O. Raymond, 1826: contains 2,880 acres: 128 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 775: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 891: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,761: poor rates in 1837, £390.—Fair, Tuesday before Holy Thursday, for cattle and hops.—E., Bulmer House.

BULMER, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a parish in the above wapentake, union of Malton: it contains the townships of Bulmer and Welburn, with the chapelry of Henderskelf: 238 miles from London (coach road 211), 6 from New Malton, 12 from York.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, to Kirkham station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 106 miles.—Money orders issued at Malton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.—The living (St. Martin), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Cleveland, and diocese of York, is valued at £11: pres. net income, £395: patron, Earl Fitzwilliam: pres. incumbent, Wm. Preston, 1806: contains 3,800 acres: 179 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 980: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 1,127: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £5,139: poor rates in 1837, £232. Tithes commuted in 1777.

BULMER, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish. (For access and postal arrangements, see above.) Contains 1,430 acres: 72 houses: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,239: poor rates in 1837, £78.

BULPHAM (or BULFAM), ESSEX, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Barstable, union of Orsett: 24 miles from London (coach road 22), 3 from Horndon, 8 from Gravesend. East. Co<sup>d</sup>. Rail. to Brentwood, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 156 miles. Money orders issued at Romford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. three times each way daily. The living (St. Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Essex, and diocese of Rochester, is valued at £23: pres. net income, £342: patron, J. S. Hand, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Thomas Mills, 1847: contains 2,020 acres: 29 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 254: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,110: poor rates in 1837, £186.

BULVERHITHE, SUSSEX, a manor and member of the town and port of Hastings, located in the hund<sup>d</sup>. and parish of Bexhill, rape of Hastings (for access, &c., see HASTINGS.)

BULWELL, NOTTINGHAM, a parish in the north division of the wapentake of Broxtow, union of Basford: 129 miles from London (coach road 125), 4 from Nottingham, 2 from Beeston. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Leicester, and Kegworth, to Beeston station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, to Beeston station, &c., 15 miles. Money orders issued at Nottingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. There is a school here which has a small endowment. Cotton manufacture, to a considerable extent, has been carried on in the parish. The living (the Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Nottingham, and diocese of York, now in the diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £5. 5s. 10d.: pres. net income, £328: patron, Rev. A. Padley: pres. incumbent, J. W. Armitage, 1817: contains 1,210 acres: 502 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 3,157: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 3,630: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,116: poor rates in 1837, £428.

BULWICK (or BULWICH), NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Corby, union of Oundle: 140 miles from London (coach road 84), 6 from Rockingham, 7 from Oundle. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Uppingham, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Uppingham, &c., 88 miles. Money orders issued at Rockingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. The parochial charities produce about £35 a year. The living (St. Nicholas), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £18. 7s. 1d.: pres. net income, £366: patron, Rev. T. Tryon: pres. incumbent, J. T. Tryon, 1812: contains 1,910 acres: 80 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 487: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 560: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,546: poor rates in 1837, £220. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1778. W., Bulwick Hall is the residence of Thomas Tryon, Esq., the lord of the manor; W., Mereham Lodge.

BUMPSTEAD-HELION, ESSEX, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Freshwell, union of Risbridge: 58 miles from London (coach road 46), 4 from Haverhill, 9 from Saffron Walden. Nor. and East. Co<sup>d</sup>. Rail. to Chesterford, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, and Cambridge, to Chesterford, &c., 146 miles. Money orders issued at Haverhill: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. The living (St. Andrew), a vicarage in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £13: pres. net income, £174: patron, Trinity College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, John Hodgson, 1833: contains 2,790 acres: 158 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 906: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 1,042: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,296: poor rates in 1837, £510.

BUMPSTED-STEEPLE, ESSEX, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Hinckford, union of Risbridge: 47 miles from London. (For access and postal arrangements, see above.) There is an independent chapel here. The living (the Holy Virgin), a vicarage in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £15. 2s. 1d.: pres. net income, £229: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, Jon. Townley, 1834: contains 3,460 acres: 206 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 1,212: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 1,394: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,405: poor rates in 1837, £616.

BUNBURY, CHESTER, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Eddisbury: it comprises the townships of Alpraham, Beeston, Bunbury, Calveley, Houghton, Peckforton, Ridley, Spurstow, Tiverton, Tilston-Fernall, and Wardle, with the chapelry of Burwardsley: 169 miles from London (coach road 174), 3 from Tarporley, 7 from Nantwich. Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Calveley, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Crewe, &c., 69 miles. Money orders issued at Tarporley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. Tanner, in speaking of this place, says—In the parish church here, Sir Hugh Calveley, Knight, about 1386, founded a college for a master and six secular chaplains, to the honour of St. Boniface. Its reputed yearly revenues were said to be one hundred marks; but in the 26th year of Henry VIII. its clear yearly value was fixed at £48. 2s. 8d., when the foundation consisted of a dean, five vicars, and two choristers. It was purchased from the Crown, in the 18th year of Elizabeth, by Thomas Aldersey of London, merchant tailor, who bestowed the income in charitable uses. The church is built of red freestone, and contains some fine monuments, the chief of which is that of Sir Hugh Calveley. It is a magnificent tomb, with a white marble recumbent figure upon it of this 'Arthur of Cheshyre, the glory of the country.' He is armed, according to the custom of the age in which he lived; and, in accordance with the popular traditions of his vast prowess, strength, and size, is represented by the sculptor as having been seven feet and a half high. His head rests on a helmet, with a calf's head as a crest, in consequence of the vulgar rumour that he could eat a calf at a meal. His intrepidity, which was amazing and proverbial, induced him to assume the command of the Grand Compagnies, or Malandrins, bands of free lances formed out of the disbanded soldiery of the different nations of Europe, and amounting to more than forty thousand veteran troops, who lived upon plunder, and were ready to join any party against France. Sir Hugh served with a considerable body of them under Lord Chandos, at the battle of Auray, where the brave Du Guesclin was taken prisoner. In 1366, after having joined Lord Chandos and other leaders in dethroning Peter the Cruel of Spain, he assisted Edward the Black Prince, at the command of the king, in again reinstating him on the throne. In the last year of Edward III. he took the governorship of Calais, but soon resigned that post to take the command of the fleet. His tomb is always kept clean, through the effect of a bequest made for that purpose, in 1705, by Mrs. Mary Lea. There is also a monument here of Sir George Beeston, one of the admirals who, in 1588, assisted in the destruction of the Spanish armada. Bunbury Heath, believed to be the place celebrated in the poem of the 'Ancient English Wake of Jer-ningham,' is annually the scene of rustic festivity on the Sunday preceding the festival of St. Boniface. There is a Wesleyan chapel here. The parochial charities of Bunbury produce about £60 a year. — The living (St. Boniface) is a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester: pres. net income, £117: patron, Haberdashers' Company: pres. incumbent, John Martin, 1814: contains 17,600 acres: 754 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,678: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 5,379: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £18,959: poor rates in 1837, £2,556.

BUNBURY, CHESTER, a township in the above parish. — (For access and postal arrangements, see above.) — Contains 1,000 acres: 147 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 959: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,102: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,610: poor rates in 1837, £358.

BUNCTON. See ASHINGTON, SUSSEX.

BUNDLEY (or BUNDLEIGH), DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of North Tawton with Winkley: 214 miles from London (coach road 200), 8 from Hatherleigh, 7 from Chumleigh. — Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol and Exeter to Crediton, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, and Exeter, to Crediton, &c., 228 miles. — Money orders issued at Crediton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — The living (St. James), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Barnstaple, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £10. 17s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £232: patron, Earl of Egremont: pres. incumbent, G. Stone, 1842: contains 2,410 acres: 62 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 342: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 393: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,185: poor rates in 1837, £131.

BUNGAY, SUFFOLK, a market town, containing two parishes, in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Wangford: 121 miles from London (coach road 109), 6 from Beccles. — East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Stowmarket to Tivetshall, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, and Norwich, to Tivetshall, &c., 196 miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — Tanner, in speaking of this place, says—Roger de Glanvil and the Countess Gundreda, his lady, in the time of Henry II., founded here a Benedictine nunnery to the honour of the blessed Virgin Mary and of the Holy Cross. Here was, in the time of Edward I., a prioress and fifteen sisters religious, but at the dissolution not above seven nuns, who had a yearly income rated at £62. 2s. 4d. This house was granted, in the 29th year of Henry VIII., to Thomas, Duke of Norfolk. The town is neatly built, and stands pleasantly on the Wavoney, which here forms the boundary of Norfolk and Suffolk, and which is navigable for small barges; the principal trade of the place being carried on in corn, malt, flour, coal, and lime. There are two livings here, that of the Holy Trinity, and the perpetual curacy of St. Mary. Holy Trinity is a vicarage, valued at £8: gross income, £305: patron, the Bishop of Ely: pres. incumbent, Rev. Thomas Collyer, 1834. St. Mary's is valued at £15: gross income, £115: patron, the Duke of Norfolk: present incumbent, Rev. G. Glover, 1830. Both are in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, and diocese of Norwich. The church of the Holy Trinity is a small ancient structure, with a round tower; that of St. Mary is spacious and handsome. There are Wesleyan, Independent, and Roman Catholic chapels here. The free grammar-school, which is of ancient and uncertain foundation, has the privilege of sending four scholars to Emanuel College, Cambridge: it is endowed with a farm, and the vicarage of Illketshall, which, together, produce £145 per annum. In Holy Trinity parish there are almshouses for aged persons; and in 1828 a dispensary was established, which is well supported. The other parochial charities produce about £90 a year. The town is under the jurisdiction of the county magistrates, who hold petty sessions for the division here. — Contains 2,090 acres: 789 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,109: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 4,725: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £7,517: poor rates in 1837, £1,207. — Market day, Thursday. Fairs: May 14, and Sept. 25. — Bankers: Harvey and Hudson's Crown Bank—draw on Hankeys and Co.; East of England Bank—draw on London and Westminster; Gurney and Co.'s (agency of Halesworth office)—draw on Barclay and Co. — Inns: Three Tuns, and King's Head.

BUNNY (or BONEY), NOTTINGHAM, a parish in the northern division of the wapentake of Rushcliffe, union of Basford: 136 miles from London (coach road 117), 6 from Nottingham, 10 from Bingham. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Leicester to Nottingham, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, &c., 22 miles. — Money orders issued at Nottingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — There is an almshouse here for poor widows, and a school endowed with £48. 15s. a year, arising from an estate left for charitable purposes, and which is free to the inhabitants of Bradmore. — The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Nottingham, and diocese of York, now in the diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £6. 14s.: pres. net income, £425: patron, Rev. J. R. W. Boyer: pres. incumbent, J. T. Betham, 1823: contains 2,000 acres: 70 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 860: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 414: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,554: poor rates in 1837, £141. Tithes commuted in 1797. — Bunny Park is the seat of Lord Ranelagh. The mansion is a large and imposing structure, with a lofty brick tower, which is very ancient. The park and plantations are extensive and well wooded, and arranged so as to produce many fine effects. His lordship, who is a member of the peerage of Ireland, and a baronet of England, derived his descent from Richard Parkyns, Esq., a barrister and recorder of Leicester and Nottingham, who, towards the end of the sixteenth century, purchased the manor of Bunny. A grandson of his, Isham Parkyns, Esq., was a colonel in the royal army, and very bravely sustained a siege at Ashby-de-la-Zouch, during the civil war in the 17th century. His son, Thomas Parkyns, Esq., was, in 1681, created a baronet; and his grandson, Thomas Boothby Parkyns, Esq., was elevated to the peerage of Ireland, in which he was, in 1800, succeeded by the present peer.

BUNTINGFORD, HERTFORD, a market town and chapelry, situate in the four several parishes of Layston, Aspeden, Throcking, and Wyddiall, in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Edwinstree, union of Buntingford: 44 miles from London (coach road 31), 13 from Hertford. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>a</sup>. Rail. to Bishop Stortford, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 176 miles. — Money orders issued at Buntingford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7 a.m.: post closes 9½ p.m. — The town derives its name from a ford in the river Rib, where a blacksmith of the name of Bunt, or Bunting, had a forge. It is pleasantly situated on an agreeable rise between two hills, and consists chiefly of one street, nearly half a mile in length; the houses are well built, and are well supplied with water. The trade is principally in leather and malt, but the market which was formerly held here has been discontinued. The magistrates hold petty sessions here for the division, and there is a septennial court-leet here for the hundred. By the Reform Act, Buntingford is made a polling-place for the county. The chapel is a spacious and imposing brick structure, erected in 1626 by voluntary contributions, which were mostly obtained through the exertions of the Rev. Alexander Strange, vicar of Layston, who lies buried within its walls; and from its convenient situation, it is resorted to by the inhabitants of that parish for public worship, their own church only being resorted to for the purpose of solemnising marriages. The Independents and Quakers have chapels here. The free grammar-school was also founded through Mr. Strange's exertions, and was endowed, in 1630, by Mrs. Elizabeth Freeman, with lands which produce £10. 10s. a year. The endowment was further increased by the produce of the moiety of some lands left by Seth Ward, Bishop of Salisbury—who was a native of this town—to Christ's College, Cambridge; the other moiety being appropriated to the support of four scholarships of £12 per annum each, for boys on this foundation, or, in default of such, for the most deserving in the university, reserving one for Hitchen. There is a charity school for forty girls, supported by subscription; and also an almshouse for four aged men and four aged women, but it is now occupied by parish paupers. Bishop Ward also gave £600 to purchase lands, the rentals of which are applied to the apprenticing of children. The benevolent prelate just spoken of was educated as well as born here, his birth having taken place in 1617. On leaving school, he removed to Sidney College, Cambridge, of which he was afterwards chosen a fellow. During the civil wars, he was imprisoned for his opposition to the parliamentary party, but after the Restoration he was promoted to the see of Exeter. He was made chancellor of the order of the garter, and by his influence that office was annexed to the see of Salisbury, to which he was translated in 1667. He died in 1688, and was buried in his own cathedral. — The living (St. Peter) is a perpetual curacy, annexed to the vicarage of Layston, and having jointly a pres. net income of £149: patron, Wm. Butt, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. Cowlard, 1844. — (Returns with the several parishes.) — Market day, Monday. Fairs: June 29, St. Andrew's day, and Nov. 30, pedlars' ware. — Bell Inn, and George Inn.

BUNWELL, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Depwade: 116 miles from London (coach road 95), 5 from Stratton, 6 from Attleborough. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>a</sup>. Rail. to Attleborough, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, and Dereham, to Attleborough, &c., 150 miles. — Money orders issued at Long Stratton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The living (St. Michael), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £17: pres. net income, £644: patron, Sir R. J. Buxton, Bart.: pres. incumbent, H. Dawson, 1821: contains 2,280 acres: 182 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 1,001: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 1,151: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,679: poor rates in 1837, £429.

BURASTON-WITH-WHETMORE, SALOP, a township in the parish of Burford, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Overs— (for access, &c., see BURFORD): 134 miles from London, 2 from Tenbury, 12 from Bewdley. — Money orders issued at Tenbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. — Pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 223: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,587: poor rates in 1837, £98.

BURBAGE, WILTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Kinwardstone, union of Pewsey, intersected by the Kennet and Avon Canal: 69 miles from London (coach road 73), 6 from Marlborough, 7 from Luggershall. — Gt. West. Rail. to Hungerford, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, and Reading, to Hungerford, &c., 159 miles. — Money orders issued at Marlborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — There is a school here, endowed with £10 per annum. The other parochial charities produce about £100 a year. — The living (All Saints), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Wilts, diocese of Sarum, is valued at £7. 3s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £257: patron, Bishop of Sarum: pres. incumbent, J. S. Gale, 1841: contains 3,530 acres: 254 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 1,455: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 1,673: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £5,922: poor rates in 1837, £498. — N.E. 2 m. Tottenham Park, the seat of the Marquis of Aylesbury—(for which see GREAT BEDWYK.)

BURBAGE (or BURBACK), LEICESTER, a chapelry in the parish of Aston-Flamville, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Sparkenhoe: 99 miles from London (coach road 90), 1 from Hinckley, 9 from Lutterworth. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Burton Astley station, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Leicester to Burton Astley, &c., 45 miles. — Money orders issued at Hinckley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — There is an Independent chapel here. — The living is a curacy annexed to the rectory of Aston-Flamville: contains 3,170 acres: 326 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 1,780: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 2,047: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £6,924: poor rates in 1837, £590.

BURCOMBE (SOURA), WILTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Cawden and Cadworth, union of Wilton, 101 miles from London (coach road 86), 5 from Salisbury, 2 from Wilton. — Sou. West. Rail. to Salisbury, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, Reading, and Bishopstoke, to Salisbury,

&c., 188 miles. Money orders issued at Salisbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. The living is a perpetual curacy with St. John's, near Wilton, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Salisbury: pres. net income, £52: patron, Master of St. John's Hospital, Wilton: pres. incumbent, C. W. Hughes, 1848: contains 3,090 acres: 83 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 402: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 462: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £1,172: poor rates in 1837, £149.

BURCOT (or WOOD-BURCOT). See TOWCHESTER.

BURCOTT, OXFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Dorchester, union of Abingdon: 58 miles from London (coach road 50), 5 from Abingdon, 8 from Oxford. Gt. West. Rail. to Didcot station, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Rugby and Oxford, to Didcot, &c., 110 miles. Money orders issued at Abingdon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. Contains 1,550 acres: 33 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 183: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £786: poor rates in 1837, £85. The great and small tithes, the property of the lay impropiator, were commuted in 1775.

BURDON, DURHAM, a township in the parish of Bishop-Wearmouth, north division of Easington ward—(which see for access, &c.): 243 miles from London, 3 from Darlington, 7 from Stockton.

Money orders issued at Darlington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. Contains 1,000 acres: 29 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 114: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £931: poor rates in 1837, £54.

BURDON (GREAT), DURHAM, a township in the parish of Haughton-le-Skerne, south-east division of Darlington ward: 244 miles from London. (For access and postal arrangements, see above.) Contains 510 acres: 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 117: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £1,151: poor rates in 1837, £90. Burdon Hall is the residence of John Gregson, Esq., a barrister-at-law, and M.A., who derives his descent from John Gregson, Esq., who was living in 1537, and bought the estate of Murton from Lord Lumley.

BURDOSWALD, CUMBERLAND, in the parish of Lanercost, is supposed by some antiquaries to have been the Amboglanna of the Romans: 316 miles from London, 3 from Carlisle, 6 from Brampton.

BURE. See CHRIST-CHURCH.

BURES (St. Mary), SUFFOLK, a parish, partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Hinckford, county of Essex, but chiefly in that of Babergh, union of Sudbury, in the above county: 54 miles from London (coach road 58), 4 from Neyland, 6 from Sudbury. East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Mark's Tey station, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 186 miles. Money orders issued at Colchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. There is a Baptist chapel here. The parochial charities produce about £11 a year. The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Sudbury, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £12. 16s. ½d.: pres. net income, £273: patron, O. Hanbury, Esq.: pres. incumbent, A. Hanbury, 1828: contains 4,220 acres: 210 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,596: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,835: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £5,184: poor rates in 1837, £779. Fair, Holy Thursday, for toys.

BURES-MOUNT (or LITTLE BURES), ESSEX, a parish in the Colchester division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Lexden, union of Lexden and Winstree: 52 miles from London (coach road 57), 6 from Halstead.

East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Mark's Tey station, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 184 miles. Money orders issued at Colchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. The place is named from a mount near the church, which is now 80 feet, and is believed to have formerly been 100 feet high. The living (St. John), a rectory in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £13. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £400: patron, Rev. John Brett: pres. incumbent, John Brett, 1818: contains 1,430 acres: 49 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 282: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £1,910: poor rates in 1837, £259. S., Colne Park.

BURFIELD. See BURGHFIELD.

BURFORD, OXFORD, a market town and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bampton, union of Witney: 82 miles from London (coach road 71), 18 from Oxford. Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Ascot, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Worcester to Ascot, &c., 111 miles. Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 5.9 p.m. Burford is a place, the antiquity of which cannot be certainly traced. About the close of the seventh century, kings Berthwald and Ethelred held a synod here, at which Adhelm, then Bishop of Sherburn, was desired to write against the errors of the British churches concerning Easter, on which a very warm ecclesiastical controversy at that time existed; and here it was that Cuthred, King of the West Saxons, unable longer to bear the tyrannous impost of Ethelbald, King of the Mercians, rebelled against him, defeated him in battle, and took his standard. Tanner says of this place, in his Notitia Monastica—There was a small priory or hospital here, dedicated to St. John the Evangelist. It was valued at £13. 6s. 6d. per annum, by Dugdale and Speed, and granted, in the 35th year of Henry VIII., to Edmund Herman. By that gentleman it is probable that the present handsome mansion, called the Priory, which, with the church, forms the chief ornament of the town, was built. The estate afterwards became the property of Sir Lawrence Tanfield, chief baron of the exchequer, whose only daughter married the amiable and gallant Lord Falkland, who, to the regret of the whole country, was killed at the battle of Newbury. Shortly after that nobleman's death, it was purchased by the celebrated Republican Speaker of the House of Commons, during the protectorate, who made Burford his residence, and transported many of the pictures from Charles I.'s collection at Hampton Court to his own house, and in his family it remained till within these few years. Burford is pleasantly situated on the Windrush, at the extremity of the county, on the borders of Gloucestershire. The church is large and handsome, having in the centre a Norman tower, from which rises a lofty spire. There are some Saxon ornaments on the body of the building, which is entered by a florid Gothic porch; it contains several fine monuments, one of which, that of Sir Lawrence Tanfield, Lord Chief Baron, and his wife, who died in 1625, is especially worthy of notice. The free grammar-school was founded in 1671, by Simon Wisdom, who also renovated, if he did not endow, the almshouses at the entrance of the churchyard. There are several dissenting chapels here. The minor charities are numerous. The principal trade of the town consists in duffles, rugs, and the making of saddlery. Burford was, in the year 1600, the birth-place of Dr. Peter Heylin, an author of considerable distinction. He was educated at the free school of his native town, and afterwards graduated at Oxford. He was a warm defender of Archbishop Laud's conduct, and was in consequence appointed one of the chaplains of King Charles I. He subsequently was made a prebendary of Westminster, and obtained other valuable ecclesiastical preferments; but, upon the parliament obtaining the ascendancy, he was deprived of all his livings, his estate was sequestered, and himself and family were reduced to the most urgent necessity. On the restoration of the monarchy he was reinstated, and made subdean of Westminster. His works are numerous, and his historical tracts are especially valuable. Burford was also the birth-place of the late celebrated painter, Sir W. Beechey, R.A., who received his education at the grammar-school. About a mile from the town there are some excellent stone quarries, called St. Christopher's or St. Kitt's. A battle was fought in the neighbourhood of Burford in 1649, between the parliamentarians, under Fairfax, and the royalists, in which the former were victorious. Some few years since, as some workmen were digging a road from Burford to Barrington, they discovered a large stone-coffin, which weighed as much as three tons. When opened, it was found to contain the skeleton of a person of the middle size, with some oxidized nails, and the remains of what appeared to be the hide of an animal, which were believed to be the relics of the shield of a warrior, who was here interred after the engagement between Cuthred and Ethelbald. Formerly, the inhabitants of Burford had the right of hunting in Whichwood, an extensive range of country, which comprises nearly 7000 acres, subject to a right of common for horses and sheep; and they used to go, according to the custom of the old pastimes, on a certain day to the forest, and choose a lord and lady, who were generally a boy and girl belonging to the town, who headed the sport. The right has now been commuted for a present of venison in August, of which a town feast is made in the town-hall. It was in this forest that Edward IV. was hunting when he first met with Elizabeth, the widow of Sir John Grey, with whose beauty he was so much fascinated, that he broke off his intended match with a daughter of the Duke of Savoy, and raised Lady Grey to the throne, in May, 1464. The Duke of St. Albans derives his second title of the Earl of Burford from this place. The living (St. John the Baptist), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, with the chapelry of Fulbrook, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £31. 13s.: pres. net income, £294: patron, Bishop of Oxford: pres. incumbent, E. P. Cooper, 1836: contains 2,170 acres: 355 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,862: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,141: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,007: poor rates in 1837, 742. Tithes commuted in 1794. Market day, Saturday. Fairs: last Saturday in April, July 5, and Sept. 25. Bankers: County of Gloucester Bank—draw on Roberts, Curtis, & Co.—Inns: Bull, and Bird-in-Hand.

BURFORD, SALOP, a township and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Overs, union of Tenbury, on the river Teme, comprising the townships of Buraston with Whetmore, Nash, Tilsop and Weston, and Whitton: 151 miles from London (coach road 135), 2 from Tenbury, 6 from Ludlow. Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford and Worcester to Kidderminster, thence 18 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Kidderminster, &c., 89 miles. Money orders issued at Tenbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. Tanner, in speaking of this place, says—In this parish church were three prebendaries or portionists, in the beginning of the reign of King Edward I., and in the 13th year of Elizabeth, the college, or collegiate church here, was granted, with all that belonged to it, to William Jeames and John Grey. The parochial charities produce about £10 a year. The living of the township is divided into three portions: the first, valued at £9. 13s. 4d.; gross income, £392; patron, G. B. Rushout, Esq.; incumbent, H. M'Longlen: the second, to which the curacy of Whitton is annexed, is valued at £8; gross income, £300; patron, G. B. Rushout, Esq.; incumbent, C. Whiteford, 1843; and the third, to which the curacies of Buraston and Nash are annexed, is valued at £8. 13s. 4d.; gross income, £350: patron, also G. B. Rushout, Esq.; incumbent, J. W. Joyce, 1842: contains 8,370 acres: 212 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,031: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,186: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £7,526: poor rates in 1837, £405.

BURFORD, SALOP, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.)—Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 482: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,663: poor rates in 1837, £173.

BURGATE, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Hartismere: 94 miles from London (coach road 83), 6 from Eye, 3 from Botteshall. East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Haughley Road to Botteshall Road station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 226 miles. Money orders issued at Eye: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. The parochial charities produce about £28 a year. The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Sudbury, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £13. 10s. 10d.: pres. net income, £560: patron, Bishop of Ely: pres. incumbent, C. R. Ashfield, 1834: contains 1,830 acres: 40 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 369: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 424: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,524: poor rates in 1837, £468.

BURGH, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Carlford, union of Woodbridge: 81 miles from London (coach road 79), 3 from Woodbridge, 8 from Ipswich. East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Ipswich to Claydon station, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 213 miles. Money orders issued at Woodbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. The living (St. Botolph), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £8. 3s. 4d.: pres. net income, £247: patron, M. Barne, Esq.: pres. incumbent, G. F. Barlow, 1814: contains 780 acres: 54 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 266: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,182: poor rates in 1837, £207.

BURGH-APTON, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Clavering, but located in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Henstead, union of Loddon and Clavering, on a branch of the river Yare: 134 miles from London (coach road 108), 8 from Norwich, 8 from Buntingford. — Nor. and East. Co. Rail. to Norwich, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, Norwich, &c., 174 miles. — Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — The living (St. Martin), a rectory with a mediety of Holveston, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £13. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £573: patron, Earl of Abergavenny: pres. incumbent, Hon. J. T. Pelham, 1837: contains 1,620 acres: 77 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 564: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 648: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,274: poor rates in 1837, £230. — E. 2 m. Langley Park — (for which see LANGLEY.)

BURGH-NEXT-AYLSHAM, NORFOLK, a parish in the south division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Erpingham: 135 miles from London (coach road 116), 2 from Aylsham, 9 from Norwich. — Nor. and East. Co. Rail. to Norwich, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, Norwich, &c., 175 miles. — Money orders issued at Aylsham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — Contains 540 acres: 33 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 284: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,131: poor rates in 1837, £127. Tithes commuted in 1840.

BURGH-CASTLE, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Mutford and Lothingland: 146 miles from London (coach road 123), 4 from Yarmouth, 9 from Lowestoft. — Nor. and East. Co. Rail. through Norwich to Wichampton station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, Norwich, &c., 186 miles. — Money orders issued at Yarmouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. — The church, which is a neat ancient edifice, with an embattled tower near the west end, is supposed, together with the neighbouring church of Clopton, to have been built out of the ruins of a Roman fort, named Garianonum, founded by Publius Ostorius Scapula, and garrisoned, under a præpositus, by a troop of cavalry, called the Strabesian horse. The area included upwards of five acres and a half, and numerous Roman relics have been found in the adjoining fields. Whatever doubt remains upon the point, arises from the circumstance of Burgh now standing three miles inland from the sea; but it is known that the land, which now is dry between the rivers Yare and Waveney, was at one time the bed of an estuary, of which Breydon water is the remains. Tanner, in speaking of this place, says—Upon the first preaching of Christianity to the East Angles, A.D. 630, King Sigebert gave to Fursicus (a holy man who came out of Ireland), a place near the castle or city whereon to found a monastery, which was augmented both by buildings and revenues by King Anna. — The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £6. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £400: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, Charles Green, 1829: contains 1,210 acres: 52 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 327: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 376: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,264: poor rates in 1837, £512.

BURGH-WITH-GRISBY (or BURGH-UPON-BANE), LINCOLN, a parish in the east division of the wapentake of Wraggoe, parts of Lindsey, union of Louth, on the river Bane: 179 miles from London (coach road 150), 7 from Louth, 9 from Wrag-by. — Nor. and East. Co. Rail. through Peterborough to Louth, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, Lincoln, and Boston, to Louth, &c., 124 miles. — Money orders issued at Louth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — The living (St. Helen), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £7. 10s. 10d.: pres. net income, £133: patron, George Lister, Esq.: pres. incumbent, S. H. Wynn, 1825: contains 1,870 acres: 27 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 155: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,729: poor rates in 1837, £190. — Burgh Hall is the seat of Peter Bainbrigge Le Hunt, Esq., who assumed the surname of Le Hunt in 1832, by royal license, on succeeding to the estates of his relative, Mrs. Florence Matilda Falloves, widow of William Falloves of Heywood Hall, Alderley. Mr. Le Hunt is a magistrate of Derbyshire. — (For pedigree, see LOCKINGTON.)

BURGH-PARVA. See MELTON-CONSTABLE WITH BURGH.

BURGH-MATTISHALL (or MATTISHALL-BURGH), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Mitford, union of Mitford and Launditch, on a branch of the river Wensum: 127 miles from London (coach road 100), 2 from East Dereham, 12 from Norwich. — Nor. and East. Co. Rail. to Yaxham station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, and Dereham, to Yaxham, &c., 151 miles. — Money orders issued at East Dereham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The parochial charities produce £21. 12s. per year. — The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, united to that of Hockering, in the diocese of Norwich, is valued at £3. 15s. 10d., and having jointly a pres. net income of £569: patron, T. T. Berney, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Thomas Berney, 1840: contains 690 acres: 43 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 230: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £847: poor rates in 1837, £105.

BURGH (St. MARGARET), NORFOLK, a parish in the western division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Flegg, in the vicinity of the river Bure: 145 miles from London (coach road 122), 4 from Acle, 14 from Norwich. — Nor. and East. Co. Rail. through Norwich to Reedham station, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, Norwich, &c., 185 miles. — Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m. — The parochial charities produce £21 a year. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, with that of Burgh St. Mary, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £8. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £424: patron, Rev. W. Lucas: pres. incumbent, William Lucas, 1816: contains 2,160 acres: 68 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 506: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 582: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,555: poor rates in 1837, £180.

BURGH-ST.-PETER (or WHEATCRE-BURGH), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Clavering, union of Loddon and Clavering: 138 miles from London (coach road 116), 2 from Aylsham, 12 from Norwich. — Nor. and East. Co. Rail. to Norwich, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Syston and Peterborough to Norwich, &c., 178 miles. — Money orders issued at Aylsham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £7. 6s. 8d.:

patron, J. H. Holley, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Edward Holley: contains 1,970 acres: 61 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 312: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 359: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,575: poor rates in 1837, £91. — The Hall is the seat of Sir George Hector Leith, Bart., who derives his descent from a North British family of great antiquity, springing, with other eminent houses, from William Leith, who was lord provost of Edinburgh in 1350, and whose direct lineal descendant was John Leith, Esq. of Leith Hall. The eldest son of that gentleman, James, was founder of the Leith family, which is now represented by Sir Andrew Leith Hay, Bart.; the younger son, Alexander, was the ancestor of the present baronet. A descendant of Alexander Leith, of the same name, was provost of Aberdeen, and killed, while in command of the artillery, at the battle of Havannah; and his son, Alexander Charles George Leith, Esq., lieutenant-colonel of the 88th Foot, was created a baronet in 1775, and from him the present baronet is the fourth in descent.

BURGH-SOUTH, NORFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Mitford, union of Mitford and Launditch, near the Blackwater river: 122 miles from London (coach road 94), 6 from Watton, 6 from East Dereham. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough and Thetford to Hardingham station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Syton, Peterborough, and Dereham, to Hardingham, &c., 156 miles. — Money orders issued at Thetford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. — The living (St. Andrew), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £5. 13s. 6½d.: pres. net income, £249: patron, T. T. Gurdon, Esq.: pres. incumbent, P. Gurdon, 1828: contains 1,260 acres: 50 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 307: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 353: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,555: poor rates in 1837, £151.

BURGH-IN-THE-MARSH, LINCOLN, a market town and parish in the Marsh division of the wapentake of Candleshoe, parts of Lindsey, union of Spilsby: 154 miles from London (coach road 133), 6 from Spilsby, 4 from Wainfleet. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough and Boston to Burgh station: from Derby, through Nottingham, Lincoln, and Boston, to Burgh, 98 miles. — Money orders issued at Spilsby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — According to Dr. Stukely—The name of this place affords undoubted evidence of its Roman origin, and here was once a Roman castrum to guard the sea-coast, probably against the Saxon rovers. It is a piece of very high ground, partly natural, partly raised by Roman labour, overlooking the wide-extended marshes, perhaps in those times covered with salt water, at least in spring-tides. There are two artificial tumuli, one very high, called Cockhill. In St. Mary's churchyard, now demolished, Roman coins have been found. This town formerly possessed two churches, St. Mary's and St. Peter's; but the first-named edifice has been long since demolished. The burying-ground belonging to it was afterwards used by the general Baptists as a place of sepulture, but it has since been converted into a garden. St. Peter's church is built on the plan adopted in most of the Marsh ecclesiastical edifices, consisting of a nave, north and south aisles, chancel, and a fine embattled tower at the west end; the battle- ments not pierced, but ornamented with quatrefoils, a turret at each corner, and three others on each side. The angles of the tower are supported by double buttresses. The nave is surrounded by an embattled parapet, and supported by five light pointed arches, over which is a range of handsome clerestory windows. The beauty of the church has been much impaired by the removal of the tracery-work from the windows of both aisles, to give more light. Two chapels, one at the east end of each aisle, are separated from the nave by Gothic fret-work. The pulpit is made of dark oak, and is very richly carved; it is inscribed '1023, John Houlden.' The font and pedestal are octangular; in each compartment round the bowl is a blank shield, the cover is carved and surmounted by a spire raised on eight duplicated pillars; on the summit of the spire is an eagle gilt, with extended wings, and holding in its mouth a baton and a bottle. There are Wesleyan Methodist and Baptist chapels here.

— The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, annexed in 1729 to the vicarage of Winthorpe, in the archd<sup>r</sup>. and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £13. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £97: patron, Bishop of Lincoln: pres. incumbent, C. D. Holland, 1846: contains 4,240 acres: 205 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 1,095: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 1,259: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £7,149: poor rates in 1837, £584. — Market day, Thursday. Fairs: May 12, for horses and sheep, and October 2, for cattle.

BURGH-UPON-THE-SANDS, CUMBERLAND, a parish in Cumberland ward, union of Carlisle, on the north side of the ship canal: this parish comprises the townships of Boustead Hill, Burgh-by-Sands, or Burgh-Head, Longburgh, Moorhouse, and Westend: 305 miles from London (coach road 308), 5 from Carlisle, 8 from Longtown. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Lancaster to Carlisle, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, Lancaster, &c., 205 miles. — Money orders issued at Carlisle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. — Almost contiguous to the village, on the northern side, is the site of the Roman station Axelodunum, upon which afterwards the old castle was built. It was the sixteenth on the wall of Severus, and the spot where the vallum of Adrian terminated. The lines of the ramparts are still very evident, and many urns, altars, and other Roman relics, have been dug out of the neighbourhood. The castle, of which there are now no remains, was erected soon after the Conquest, but is stated to have been seized by William King of Scotland, in 1174. Several engagements have occurred in this parish between the English and Scotch, the most bloody of which were those in 1216 and 1520. It was especially continually the scene of contest during Edward I.'s expedition against Robert Bruce; and in speaking of it, the editors of Lyson say—In the very place where this brave and valiant king expired (the memory whereof had been always preserved by some great stones rolled upon it), is now erected a very fair square pillar, nine yards and a half in height, with these inscriptions in large Roman letters on three sides, viz.: On the west side, 'Memoriae eternae Edwardi I. Angliae, longe clarissimi, qui in belli apparatu contra Scotos occupatus hic in castris, obiit 7 Julii, A.D. 1307.' On the north side, 'Nobilissimus Princeps Henricus Howard, Dux Norfolkiae, Comes Mareschall, Angliae, Comes Arund., &c. . . . Ab Edwardo I. Anglie oriundus, P. A.D. 1685.' On the other side, 'Johannes Aglionby, J. C. F. C.; i.e. Juris consultis fieri causavit.' Beneath, 'Tho. Langstone fecit, 1685.' The inhabitants say that, under this burgh, in the very estuary, there was first a sea-fight between the Scotch and English, and, when the tide was out, a second fight began between the horses of both sides, as strange as that which Pliny relates in Caramania, and makes a great wonder of it. Into this estuary the Huna or river Eden, having passed through part of Westmoreland, and quite cross the north-east parts of the county, falls with a vast body of waters, which, in the year 1216, seemed to be the greatest enemy that the Scots had; for when they had plundered the English without resistance, and were returning with loads of spoil, they came upon them with a full torrent, and swallowed up quick the whole plundering crew. Burgh gives the title of baron to the Earl of Lonsdale, who holds a customary court here, and is the head of a barony, including this and several other parishes, of which the earl is the chief proprietor. The village extends into the township of Westend, and consists almost entirely of one street, nearly three quarters of a mile in length. The manufactures formerly carried on here have been removed to Carlisle. The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £5. 1s. 10<sup>d</sup>.: pres. net income, £120: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, John Lowry, 1838: contains 6,380 acres: 170 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,003: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,153: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,878: poor rates in 1837, £271.

BURGWALLIS, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish and township in the upper division of the wapentake of Osgoldcross, in the vicinity of Dutch river: 216 miles from London (coach road 169), 7 from Doncaster, 10 from Thorne. Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Peterborough, Lincoln, Retford, and Doncaster, to Askern, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Masborough, Woodhouse Mill, Chesterfield, &c., 60 miles. Money orders issued at Doncaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. The living (St. Helen), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, is valued at £14. 6s. 10<sup>d</sup>.: pres. net income, £275: patron, M. Tasburgh, Esq.: pres. incumbent, George Wyatt, 1823: contains 1,700 acres: 41 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 245: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,490: poor rates in 1837, £219. All the tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1813. Burgwallis House is the residence of Michael Tasburgh, Esq.

BURGHCLERE, HANTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Evingar, union of Kingsclere, Kingsclere division of the county: it includes Earlston tithing, in Kingsclere hundred: 62 miles from London (coach road 58), 9 from Newbury, 11 from Andover. Gt. West. Rail. to Newbury, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, and Reading, to Newbury, &c., 148 miles. Money orders issued at Newbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. A school here is endowed with £8 a year. The living (All Saints), a rectory, with the curacy of Newtown, in the diocese of Winchester, is valued at £30: pres. net income, £829: patron, Earl of Carnarvon: pres. incumbent, W. B. Barter, 1825: contains 3,560 acres: 151 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 845: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 971: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,844: poor rates in 1837, £580. N., Highclere Park, the seat of the Earl of Carnarvon—for which see ABERMASSWORTH.)

BURGHERSH. See BURWASH.

BURGHFIELD (or BURFIELD), BERKS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Theale, union of Bradfield: 41 miles from London (coach road 42), 5 from Reading, 5 from Aldermaston. Gt. West. Rail. to Reading, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Rugby and Oxford to Reading, &c., 128 miles. Money orders issued at Reading: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> a.m.: post closes 8<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m. The church, which is a very handsome fabric, was rebuilt in 1844. The Wesleyan and Primitive Methodists have chapels here, and there are some parochial charities. The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Berks, and formerly in the diocese of Salisbury, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £14. 19s. 2d.: pres. net income, £750: patron, Earl of Shrewsbury: pres. incumbent, H. C. Cherrie, 1827: contains 4,700 acres: 176 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,115: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,323: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £6,189: poor rates in 1837, £428. Culverlands, a delightful residence, is the seat of Horatio Bland, Esq.

BURGHILL, HEREFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Grimsworth, union of Hereford: it includes the township of Tillington: 146 miles from London (coach road 139), 4 from Hereford, 8 from Weobly. Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 28 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 99 miles. Money orders issued at Hereford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 5<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m. The parochial charities produce about £30 per annum for the church repairs, and £8. 8s. the endowment of the parish school. The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £6. 18s. 2d.: pres. net income, £96: patron, R. M. Biddulph, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. A. Hanson, 1835: contains 3,674 acres: 181 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 863: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 950: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,500: poor rates in 1837, £520. Burghill House, the residence of R. M. Biddulph, Esq.—Tillington Court, the residence of the late Mrs. Eckley.—The Lodge, the residence of T. Martin, Esq.

BURGHLEY-HOUSE, NORTHAMPTON, in the liberty of Peterborough, parish of St. Martin, south of the river Welland: 116 miles from London (coach road 89), 1 from Stamford. Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Peterborough to Stamford, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Syston to Stamford, &c., 71 miles. On the old great high road from London to Edinburgh, within almost a stone-cast of the good old town of Stamford, stands the imposing entrance to the lordly residence of the Marquis of Exeter, the descendant of the great lord treasurer of Queen Elizabeth, by whom Burleigh House was built. Surrounded by an extensive and varied park, here broken into open glades or wide-spread deer meads—there darkened, yet enriched, by the umbrage of massive woods, and anon adorned with graceful clumps of the loftiest forest trees, swinging their wide arms in a noble gracefulness—Burleigh has few compeers for its magnificence of aspect among the broad castellated domains of merry England. The mansion and the principal part of the demesne are within the parish of Stamford St. Martin, in the church of which there are several elaborate monuments to members of his lordship's family. The park was formed, and the house was mostly built, during the reign of Elizabeth, by the great statesman who was the chief instrument of consolidating her power, elevating the character and influence of his country, and of promoting the establishment of that reformed faith which has been equally the instrument of our national greatness, and of civil and religious liberty. The house itself appears to have been built upon the foundations of an old family mansion, for we find, in one of the great treasurer's letters, dated in 1585, that he says—My house of Burleigh is of my mother's inheritance, who liveth, and is the owner thereof, and I but a farmer, and for the building there I have set my walls on the old foundations. Indeed, I have made the rough stone walls to be square, and yet one side remaineth as my father left it me; and an inscription, in a central court over one of the entrances, records the time of the conclusion of the work: it is—

"W. DOX DE BURGHLEY, 1577."

But since that period, Burghley has been wonderfully altered. Almost every subsequent possessor has contributed large stores to its abundance of costliness, luxury, and art. Nothing, indeed, which wealth, influence, taste, and energy could procure, is wanting to render this princely seat worthy of the residence of a first-rate noble, and the mansion, with all its adjuncts of wood, and lake, and dale, is truly worthy of the British aristocracy, and of England's greatness. The mansion surrounds a square court, toward the east of which is the great hall, the kitchens, and other domestic offices, with ample stable-room accommodation for a large stud of carriages and horses. The south front commands a view of a gentle slope, at the foot of which a fine lake-like water reflects its verdancy, as well as others of the varied features of the park. On the west, stretches out the distant landscape scenery of Rutland and Lincoln, with the clustering spires of the neighbouring town; while, on the north, the view is extensive over a varied country, watered by the river Welland. To review the several works of art would here be impossible, and we must therefore commend the reader, for further details, to a guide-book published at Stamford some few years since. Brownlow Cecil, Marquis and Earl of Exeter, and Baron of Burghley, in the county of Northampton, K.G., joint hereditary almoner to the queen, lord-lieutenant of the counties of Rutland and Northampton, succeeded to the title and estates in 1804. The first noble who derived dignity from the city of Exeter was John de Holland, Earl of Huntingdon, third son of Thomas de Holland, Earl of Kent, by the great heiress, Joane Plantagenet, the fair maid of Kent, who, in 1397, was advanced to the dukedom of Exeter; but having joined in a conspiracy with the Earl of Kent, he was taken and beheaded in 1400, and his honours were attainted. But the title having been immediately borne by Sir Thomas Beaufort, Earl of Dorset, one of the sons of John of Gaunt, was, in 1443, revived in favour of John de Holland, eldest surviving son of the first duke, who was a knight of the garter, lord high admiral of England, Ireland, and Aquitaine, and constable of the Tower of London. Henry, who succeeded him, was a staunch Lancastrian, and accordingly shared the triumphs and depressions of his party, and ultimately was, in 1461, attainted, so that his honours expired. He was at length reduced to such distress, that Comines states that he ran bare-legged after the Duke of Burgundy's train, begging his bread for God's sake. He was for the moment relieved, but soon as the identity of the unhappy nobleman was discovered, the duke granted him a small pension. The title of Marquis of Exeter was subsequently borne by members of the Courtenay family, but again became extinct at the beheading of Edward Courtenay, in 1540, who had been one of the judges on the trial of Anne Boleyn, and was said to be convicted of high treason. It was, however, revived, on the accession of Queen Mary to the throne, in favour of his son, who had long been a prisoner in the Tower. But he died unmarried in 1566, and the title remained unused until the title of Earl of Exeter was bestowed upon the remarkable statesman spoken of above, and the name of whose family was at various times spelt Sitsilt, Sicell, Seycell, and Cyssel. William Cecil was born at Bourne, in Lincolnshire, on the 18th of September, 1520. He was the son of Richard Cyssel, an officer of the court in attendance upon Henry VIII., at his celebrated meeting with Francis I. on the Field of the Cloth of Gold, where his son attracted the attention of the monarch, whose favour he subsequently attained by a successful disputation with two cholerick chaplains of O'Neal the Irish chieftain, who intemperately maintained the inordinate authority of the pope. As an instance of his patronage, the king bestowed upon him the office of custos brevium, and he thenceforward determined to pursue a political, instead of the forensic course upon which he had entered, having, in 1541, become a member of Gray's Inn. During the reign of Edward VI. Mr. Cecil was knighted, and appointed secretary of state, being at the same time sworn of the privy council. Hitherto he had been a zealous reformer, but upon the accession of Queen Mary, he donned the Romanist garb, took a Romanist chaplaincy, humbled himself at the confessional, and worshipped the piece of bread called the real presence. Such duplicity was not without its worldly reward. He gained rather than lost his court favour, and was actually appointed one of the commissioners, with Lord Paget and Sir Edward Hastings, to conduct the pope's legate, Cardinal Pole, to the capital. During the reign of Mary, he represented the county of Lincoln in parliament; but soon as her sister Elizabeth ascended the throne, with that facility of conscience which is the surest evidence of an indurated spirit, Sir William Cecil once more became an energetic denouncer of Romish errors, and an open asserter of the simplicity of truth. Cecil was just the man to accomplish a work which needed tact, ability, experience, energy, and caution. Elizabeth wanted instruments. Here was one formed and polished to her hand. Cecil was made the queen's confidant. His interest and that of the country happily ran together. He was again made secretary of state, and, in 1571, was elevated to the peerage by the title of Baron Burghley. Shortly after this a conspiracy against his life was discovered, and two of the intending assassins, Burney and Malter, having declared that they were instigated to the murder by the Spanish ambassador, his excellency was ordered to quit the kingdom. As a consolation for this danger, he was honoured with the order of the garter, and shortly afterwards, on the death of the Marquis of Winchester, was made lord treasurer of England. One of the last of his ministerial acts was an attempt to bring about a peace with Spain, in which he was violently opposed by the Earl of Essex, then in the upspring of his youth; and the young soldier becoming heated in the discussion, the aged politician pulled out a prayer-book, and pointed out the passage, "Men of blood shall not live out half their days;" a denunciation which was too fatally fulfilled in the case of Essex. His mode of living was as sumptuous as his fortune was great, for he supported an extraordinary degree of splendour in his house, his gardens, and everything that belonged to him. He had four places of residence—his house at the palace, another in the Strand, his mansion at Burghley, and his favourite seat at Theobalds. At this last place he had thirty persons in his family, and, besides a constant allowance in charity, he appointed £10 a week to be paid to keep the poor at work in his gardens and grounds. He kept a table constantly for gentlemen, and two others for people in a lower condition, which were directed to be served as well when he was out of town as when he was at home. Twelve times he entertained his sovereign, each time at the expense of several thousand pounds, and, at his death, left a large property, both real and personal. His lordship died in 1598, when he was succeeded by his eldest son, Thomas, who was, in 1605, created Earl of Exeter. William, the second earl, who, in right of his mother, a daughter of Edward Earl of Rutland, inherited the title of Lord Roose, left only three daughters, each of whom married earls, and his honours devolved upon his nephew, David, son of Sir Richard Cecil of Walkerley, whose descendant, Brownlow, the tenth earl, was, in 1801, elevated to the marquissate.

BURHAM, KENT, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Larkfield, lathe of Aylesford, union of Malling: 36 miles from London (coach road 30), 6 from Rochester, 6 from Maidstone. — Gravesend Rail. to Rochester, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 170 miles. — Money orders issued at Maidstone: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The living (the Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Rochester, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £191: patron, C. Milner, Esq.: pres. incumbent, L. B. Barking, 1837: contains 1,630 acres: 53 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 380: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 437: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,833: poor rates in 1837, £170.

BURINGTON. See BERRINGTON.

BURITON, HANTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Finch-Dean, union of Petersfield, South Alton division of the county, including the tithings of Nurstead and Weston: 96 miles from London (coach road 56), 2 from Petersfield, 7 from Hambledon. — Brighton and South Coast Rail. to Havant, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 228 miles. — Money orders issued at Petersfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — There is a school here, endowed with £24 per annum. This parish, for some time, had for its rector the venerable and learned Dr. William Lowth, prebendary of Winchester, who was born in 1661, was educated at Oxford, and became distinguished for his attainments in Hebrew. — The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory, with the curacy of Petersfield, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £32. 16s. 10½d.: pres. net income, £1,194: patron, Bishop of Winchester: pres. incumbent, J. M. Summer, 1845: contains 6,840 acres: 141 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 993: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,142: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £8,229: poor rates in 1837, £550.

BURLAND, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Acton, hun<sup>d</sup> of Nantwich, crossed by a branch of the Chester Canal: 169 miles from London (coach road 171), 8 from Nantwich, 8 from Malpas. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Calverley station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Burton to Crewe, &c., 69 miles. — Money orders issued at Nantwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — Contains 1,450 acres: 105 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 639: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 735: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,759: poor rates in 1837, £215.

BURLESCOMBE, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bampton and Halberton, union of Wellington: 9 miles from Tiverton, 8 from Collumpton. — Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Tiverton Junction, thence 4½ miles: from London, through Bristol, 175 miles. — Money orders issued at Wellington, Somerset, or Tiverton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> at 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The church is a venerable structure in the later English style, with a tower of four stages, embattled and crowned with a turret. The interior has been lately renovated; the screen is richly ornamented with crockets, finials, and roses; there are several monuments of the Ayshford family, the former possessors of the parish, one of whose memorials—that of Nicholas Ayshford, who died in 1563—is a rich altar-tomb, erected within the communion rails. An Augustine priory was founded at Leigh in this parish, thence called Canonsleigh, in the time of Henry II., by William de Claville, who inherited the manors of Burlescombe, South Appledore, and Leigh, from Walter de Claville, to whom they were granted by William the Conqueror. This convent was originally dedicated, in 1247, to the Virgin Mary and St. John the Evangelist, but, in 1284, it was surrendered to Maud, Countess of Gloucester and Hereford, who converted it into a nunnery, and dedicated it afresh to St. Etheldreda, from which circumstance it is in some records called Mynchynleya. It flourished until the general dissolution, when its revenues were estimated at £202. 15s. 3d. The remains consist principally of the porter's lodge, which is yet entire, and a fine Tudor arch, which is highly ornamented. Some portions of the eastern wing of the abbey also remain. The other ecclesiastical remains are numerous in the neighbourhood. There were two chapels within the precincts of the abbey, dedicated respectively to St. Thomas and All Saints.

There was a church also here dedicated to St. Theobald, which was long since razed to the ground. Three ancient mansions of the Ayshfords have been converted into farm-houses. There are large mountains of primitive limestone in the district. The Grand Western Canal passes through the parish. — The living (the Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £11. 15s. 10d.: pres. net income, £255: patron, Sandford family: pres. incumbent, Thomas Tanner, A.M., 1819: contains 3,768 acres: 196 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 958: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,878: poor rates in 1849, about £800. Tithes commuted.

BURLESTONE, DORSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Piddletown, union of Dorchester, Dorchester division of the county, on the river Trent: 148 miles from London (coach road 112), 7 from Dorchester, 11 from Wareham. — Sou. West. Rail. through Southampton to Dorchester, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, Reading, and Southampton, to Dorchester, &c., 237 miles. — Money orders issued at Dorchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — The living is a rectory annexed to that of Athelhamstone or Admiston: contains 750 acres: 13 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 65: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £605: poor rates in 1837, £12.

BURLEY, RUTLAND, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Alstoe, union of Oakham, in the vicinity of the Melton-Mowbray and Oakham Canal: 131 miles from London (coach road 96), 2 from Oakham, 3 from Cottesmere. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Peterborough and Stamford to Oakham, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Syston to Oakham, &c., 58 miles. — Money orders issued at Oakham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — Burley is a small but very pleasing village, with some very respectable mansions in it. The poor receive £10 a year from a bequest of Lady Anne Harrington. At the time of the Conquest, this manor was in the possession of a chieftain named Ulf, who held it from the Crown, under the name of Burgelai, but after the Norman Conquest it was granted to Gilbert de Gant, one of William's favourites. During that and the subsequent ages it frequently changed hands, until it was bought by Villiers, first Duke of Buckingham. The account given of the mansion in Lyson's Magna Britannia is so graphic, that we cannot do better than extract it entire. *After this great duke had gotten this lordship, he made it one of the finest seats of England, improving the house to that advantage, that it looked like a second Belvoir, and in some respects was superior to that famous seat of the (then earls, but now) dukes of Rutland, situated on an hill, having a princely park and woods adjoining, and overlooking the little but rich vale of Catmus, and divers other manors belonging to his estate. Here it was that that duke entertained King James I. and all his court, in a manner worthy of the gratitude of so great a favourite; and while they remained here, the famous Bishop Andrews, the most celebrated court-preacher of his time, preached several sermons before the king and court, which are still extant in the large volumes of his sermons. Here it was also that the king, Prince Charles, and the court, were first presented with Ben Jonson's Mask of the Gypsies, acted by the nobility only, which was* *an entertainment so pleasing to the king, that he caused it to be acted again and again in his progress, first at Beaver, and afterwards at Windsor. Lastly, here it was that Jeffrey Hudson, the dwarf (of whom we have already spoken at Oakham), being then about seven years old, and but 18 inches high, was presented, as a rarity in nature, to the duchess of Buckingham, then residing at Burley House. It happened that the court came to Burley not long after, King Charles I. being then on the throne, and attended with his Queen, Henrietta Maria of France. In treating the court, Jeffrey was served up to the table in a pye, to divert the royal guests, and the queen being presented with him by the duchess, took him into her service, and made use of him in many important matters, viz., sent him for her midwife into France, and employed him in many other affairs, of which I have spoken in Oakham. This stately and noble fabric, in the late rebellion, was entered upon by the parliamentary party, and made a garrison in 1645; but the parliament army being in these parts, there were placed in it no more soldiers than were sufficient, as was thought, to guard the committee from any attempts of the loyal party, and harass the country, where it was supposed they were disaffected; but the parliament army removing from these parts, and the garrison being surrounded with the royalists in arms, against whom they found themselves not able to defend it, the soldiers set fire to the house and rich furniture in it, and departed; but the stables, being at some distance from the house, escaped the burning, and remain to this day one of the noblest buildings of the kind in England, if not the finest. The house, after the Restoration, lay in its ruins many years, the last Duke of Buckingham, though he lived some years after, not minding to rebuild it, but dying very much in debt, this lordship, with several others adjoining, were sold a little after to the right honourable Daniel, Earl of Nottingham, who, in the place of the old house, had erected a most beautiful noble edifice, adorned with all such embellishments as are suitable to so magnificent a building, which is rendered more admirable, as well as delightful, by its situation on an hill, in the midst of a walled park of five or six miles in compass, and therein no less pleasant than large and spacious woods, rich pastures, and store of game, which together have made this seat of so extraordinary and singular regard, that there are not many seats in England that can equal it, and few or none surpass Burley-on-the-Hill, the great grace of this little county of Rutland. This was the third edition of this seat, which, being first erected by John Lord Harrington, was much improved, if not new built, by the Duke of Buckingham, and is now restored, by the Earl of Nottingham, to a more superlative degree of beauty and exquisiteness of structure and contrivance, as well as convenience. In the opinion of the best antiquaries, and among them Sir William Dugdale and Leland, the family of the present noble proprietor of Burley had its origin, in common with the Herberts, Earls of Pembroke, from Henry Fitzherbert, chamberlain to Henry I.; and Leland, in particular, in showing the reason of the change of name, says—*The Finches that be now, say that their proper name is Herbert, and that, with marriage with Finch's heir, they took Finch's name. One Vincent Finch, in Henry IV.'s days, recovered, by a suit, the manor of — by Winchelsea. This was written in the time of Henry VIII., and in an old inscription in Brabone church, the name is written Herbert alias Finch. The immediate founder of the family, William Finch, Esq. of Netherfield, lineally descended from Vincent Herbert, who lived at that place towards the close of the reign of Edward II., was sheriff of Surrey and Sussex in the 8th year of Henry VI. From him was descended Thomas Finch, Esq., who, for his services against Sir Thomas Wyatt, and on other important occasions, was made a knight of the carpet in 1553, the day after the coronation of Queen Mary, before her majesty, in her chamber of presence, under the cloth of state, by the Earl of Arundel, who was commissioned to confer the honour. In the 6th year of Elizabeth, Sir Thomas was appointed knight-marshal of the forces at Newhaven, which was at that time besieged by the French, but he, with a numerous suite, perished by shipwreck, on his way to take the command. By his marriage with Catherine, daughter and co-heiress of Sir Thomas Moyle, he obtained the estate of Eastwell, in Kent, his father having previously received a grant of Burmarsh, for his services in the French wars, during the time of Henry VIII. Sir Thomas had two sons, Sir Moyle, his successor, and Henry, who was knighted, became chief-justice of the Common Pleas, lord-keeper of the Great Seal, and was created Lord Finch, a title which expired at his death, as he left no male issue. Sir Moyle had three sons, the eldest of whom, Theophilus, succeeded him; the second, Sir Heneage Finch, a serjeant-at-law, became recorder of the city of London, and speaker of the House of Commons. He died in 1631, leaving a son, Heneage Finch, Esq., who also went to the bar, entered parliament, and was a distinguished supporter of the royal authority. He was one of the members most influentially instrumental in promoting the restoration of Charles II., whose solicitor-general he became in 1663, when he was knighted, and shortly afterwards was created a baronet. He was made reader of the Temple, and his lectures were so much esteemed, that they were attended not only by all the heads of the legal profession, but by the court, and lastly by the king himself. In 1670, Sir Heneage became attorney-general, and was made lord-keeper of the Great Seal, when he was elevated to the peerage by the title of Lord Finch of Daventry. In 1675, his lordship was declared lord high chancellor of England, and raised to the dignity of Earl of Nottingham; in which title he was, in 1682, succeeded by his son Daniel, the purchaser of Burley, who afterwards became sixth Earl of Winchelsea. Sir Moyle Finch died in 1614, and shortly after his death, his lady was raised to the peerage by the title of Viscountess of Maidstone, and Countess of Winchelsea, with remainder to her heirs male. Her grandson, Heneage, the second earl, for the services he had rendered to Charles II., and as a special mark of that monarch's favour, and in consideration of his descent from the Herberts, the ancient possessors of Eastwell, was created Lord Fitzherbert of Eastwell; but John, the fifth Earl of Lincolnshire, dying without issue, that barony expired, and the earldom, with the other honours, reverted to Daniel, second Earl of Nottingham, who was principal secretary of state for some years to William III., and held a high place in the estimation of Queen Anne and King George I. He was succeeded in 1730 by his son Daniel, the seventh earl, who filled the several offices of comptroller of the household, lord of the Admiralty, and president of the council. That nobleman and his successor dying without issue, the honours, in 1826, devolved upon the present peer, a grandson of Daniel, the second Earl of Nottingham, who has always been distinguished for his energetic and high-minded support of those protestant principles on which our constitution is based, and from the prevalence of which, the happiness and prosperity of the country have been derived.---The living (the Holy Cross), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £10. 13s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £350: patron, G. Finch, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. Jones, 1819: contains 3,390 acres: 40 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 252: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,822: poor rates in 1837, £186. The tithes of Burley were commuted in 1789.---Burley House is the seat of the Earl of Winchelsea and Nottingham.

BURLEY, HANTS, a villa in the New Forest, east division: its proper name is the Villa of Bisterne Closes; but the village is called Burley, and contains some portions of Ringwood intermixed with the villa: 102 miles from London (coach road 88), 5 from Ringwood, 6 from Lyndhurst.---Sou. West. Rail. through Southampton to Christchurch Road, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, Reading, and Southampton, to Christchurch Road, &c., 191 miles.---Money orders issued at Ringwood: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---The living (St. John the Baptist) is a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Winchester: pres. net income, £92 without parsonage-house: patron, Bishop of Winchester: pres. incumbent, J. K. Craig: contains 95 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 464: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 635: poor rates in 1837, £94.

BURLEY, WEST RIDING, YORK, a chapelry in the liberty of Cawood, Wiston, and Otley, in that part of the parish of Otley which is in the upper division of the wapentake of Skyrack, on the north bank of the river Warfe: 226 miles from London (coach road 207), 2 from Otley, 11 from Skipton.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Leeds, to Bingley, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Chesterfield, Leeds, &c., 94 miles.---Money orders issued at Otley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---Cotton manufacture is carried on to a considerable extent in the parish. The Independents have a chapel here.---The living, a perpetual curacy annexed to the vicarage of the parish, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £25. 3s. 8d.: pres. net income, £89: patron, T. Horsfall, Esq.: pres. incumbent, F. Langhorne, 1848: contains 3,190 acres: 218 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,736: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,996: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,569: poor rates in 1837, £445.

BURLEY. See HEADINGLEY WITH BURLEY.

BURLEY-LODGE, HANTS, an extra-parochial liberty in the parish of Ringwood, New Forest, east division---(which see for access, &c.): 86 miles from London, 5 from Ringwood, 9 from Lymington.---Money orders issued at Ringwood: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.---Contains 9 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 21.---(Other returns with the parish.)

BURLINGHAM-ST.-ANDREW, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Blofield: 136 miles from London (coach road 116), 2 from Acle, 8 from Norwich.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough and Norwich to Brundall, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, Norwich, &c., 176 miles.---Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory, with that of Burlingham-St.-Edmund, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £12: pres. net income, £550: patron, Mrs. C. Burroughes: pres. incumbent, J. Burroughes, 1819: contains 730 acres: 24 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 214: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,203: poor rates in 1837, £146.---Lingwood House is the residence of the Rev. Jeremiah Burroughes, the rector.

BURLINGHAM-ST.-EDMUND, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Blofield.---(For access and postal arrangements, see above.)---The living, consolidated with that of Burlingham-St.-Andrew, contains 480 acres: 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 98: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £602: poor rates in 1837, £85.

BURLINGHAM-ST.-PETER, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Blofield: 115 miles from London.---(For access and postal arrangements, see above.)---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £5: pres. net income, £145: patron, H. N. Burroughes: pres. incumbent, J. Burroughes, 1830: contains 690 acres: 20 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 91: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,062: poor rates in 1837, £68.

BURLINGTON. See BRIDLINGTON.

BURMARSH, KENT, a parish within the liberty and union of Romney-Marsh, lathe of Shepway: 81 miles from London (coach road 69), 3 from Hythe, 8 from Folkstone.---Sou. East. Rail. to Westernhanger station, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 213 miles.---Money orders issued at Hythe: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---The royal military canal runs by the village.---The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £20. 10s. 10d.: pres. net income, £220: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, Robert Cobb, 1825: contains 1,690 acres: 21 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 130: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,675: poor rates in 1837, £120.

BURMINGTON, WARWICK, a parish in Brailles division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Kington, union of Shipston-upon-Stour: 100 miles from London (coach road 84), 2 from Shipston, 2 from Sutton.---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Moreton-le-Marsh, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Worcester to Moreton, &c., 106 miles.---Money orders issued at Shipston-on-Stour: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.---The church was rebuilt in 1693.---The living (St. Nicholas), a curacy annexed to the vicarage of Wolford, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Worcester, and having jointly a pres. net income of £328: patron, Martin College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, G. D. Wheeler, 1843: contains 720 acres: 37 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 188: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,672: poor rates in 1837, £139.

BURN, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Brayton, lower division of the wapentake of Barkston-Ash, on the north bank of the Selby Canal, and in the vicinity of the river Aire---(which see for access, &c.): 179 miles from London, 3 from Selby, 8 from Howden.---Money orders issued at Selby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---Contains 2,370 acres: 49 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 281: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,105: poor rates in 1837, £121.

BURNAGE, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Manchester, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Salford: 187 miles from London (coach road 178), 4 from Manchester, 4 from Stockport.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe to Stockport, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Burton to Stockport, &c., 75 miles.---Money orders issued at Manchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---Contains 610 acres: 91 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 489: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 562: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,752: poor rates in 1837, £112.---W. 1 m. Grove House; Park Field.

BURNASTON, DERBY, a hamlet in the parish of Etwall, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Appletree: 138 miles from London (coach road 120), 6 from Derby, 8 from Burton-on-Trent.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Derby, thence 6 miles: from Derby, by coach, 6 miles.---Money orders issued at Derby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---Contains 29 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 143: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,193: poor rates in 1837, £91.

BURNBY, EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish in Wilton-Beacon division of the wapentake of Harthill, union of Pocklington, on a branch of the river Derwent, and in the neighbourhood of the Pocklington Canal: 234 miles from London (coach road 199), 2 from Pocklington, 12 from York.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, to Burnby: from Derby, through York, &c., 102 miles.---Money orders issued at Pocklington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ p.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.---The living (St. Giles), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of the East Riding and diocese of York, is valued at £7. 15s.: pres. net income, £318: patron, Duke of Devon: pres. incumbent, C. Carr, 1818: contains 2,100 acres: 20 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 110: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,662: poor rates in 1837, £58.

BURNESIDE, WESTMORELAND, a chapelry in the parish of Kirkby-Kendal, Kendal ward, on the river Kent: it comprises the townships of Strickland-Kettle, Strickland-Roger, and part of Skelsmergh: 255 miles from London (coach road 286), 3 from Kendal, 10 from Ambleside.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Lancaster to Kendal, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 155 miles.---Money orders issued at Kendal: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---The village stands on both sides of the river Kent, over which there is a bridge. The church was rebuilt in 1823, at an expense of £1,300; it stands in the township of Strickland-Roger. There is a school here, endowed with £40 a year, at which six children from Strickland-Roger, and four from Skelsmergh, have a right to be taught. There is some worsted-yarn spinning done here. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond, diocese of Chester, is valued at £13. 5s. 8d.: pres. net income, £109: patron, the Landowners: pres. incumbent, W. Robinson, 1817: contains 122 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 631: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 726: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,929: poor rates in 1837, £474.

BURNESTON, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a parish in the wapentake of Hallikeld, comprising the townships of Carthorpe, Gatenby, Exelby, Leeming and Newton, Theakstone and Burnestone: 250 miles from London (coach road 219), 14 from Bedale, 9 from Thirsk. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Leeds, to Thirsk, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 128 miles. — In 1688, a rent-charge of £43. 5s. was assigned by Mr. Robinson for endowing a school and hospital here, which gifts from other parties raised to £67 a year. The other parochial charities produce £29 a year. — The living (St. Lambert), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond, formerly in the diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £37. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £604: patron, Duke of Cleveland: pres. incumbent, R. Anderson, 1834: contains 6,920 acres: 323 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,494: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,518: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £12,325: poor rates in 1837, £505.

BURNETT, SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Keynsham: 116 miles from London (coach road 107), 3 from Pensford, 8 from Bristol. — Gt. West. Rail. to Keynsham station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Keynsham, &c., 134 miles. — Money orders issued at Bath: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — There is a curious brass tablet in the church, to the memory of J. Cutte, Esq., mayor of Bristol. — The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bath, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £5. 10s. 7½d.: pres. net income, £125: patrons, Trustees of Alderman Whitson's charities: pres. incumbent, J. B. Doveton, 1846: contains 620 acres: 12 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 82: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,246: poor rates in 1837, £47. — E., Burnett House.

BURN-HALL, DURHAM, in the middle division of Chester ward: 257 miles from London, 2 from Durham, 9 from Sedgfield.

BURNHAM, BUCKINGHAM, a parish, including the liberty of Boveny-Lower, in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Burnham, union of Eton: 26 miles from London (coach road 27), 3 from Maidenhead, 9 from Uxbridge. — Gt. West. Rail. to Maidenhead, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 158 miles. — Money orders issued at Maidenhead: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — The village is of very great antiquity, having given name to the hundred. On a moated site there was formerly a palace of the kings of Mercia, which was afterwards an occasional residence of some of the monarchs of the Norman line. There are also the remains of an abbey, founded, in 1165, by Richard, Earl of Cornwall, brother of Henry III. It was dedicated to the Blessed Virgin, and its inmates were an abbess and eight nuns, whose revenues at the dissolution, according to Speed, amounted to £91. 15s. 11d. The abbey was granted to William Tyldesley, in the 36th year of Henry VIII. There was formerly a market here.

— The living (St. Peter), a vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Buckingham, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £16. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £505: patron, Eton College: pres. incumbent, Thomas Carter, 1833: contains 6,740 acres: 378 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,284: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,627: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £10,361: poor rates in 1837, £1,089. — Fairs: May 1, for horses, sheep, &c.; Oct. 2, for horses, cattle, and hiring servants. — The Grove is the seat of Sir Hugh Hoare, Bart., who has another residence at Stourhead, in Wiltshire. Sir Hugh derives his descent from Sir Richard Hoare, Knt., who was lord mayor of London in 1713, and who represented the city in parliament. His third son, Henry Hoare, Esq., purchased the estate of Stourhead from Lord Stourton, and settled there in 1720. The second son of that gentleman, Sir Richard Hoare, Knt., was lord mayor of London in 1745, during the Scottish rebellion; and his elder son, Richard, was created a baronet in 1786, and of him the present baronet is the grandson. — East Burnham House is the residence of George Grote, Esq., until lately a member of the eminent banking firm in Threadneedle Street. Mr. Grote is a descendant of an ancient Livonian family, which was planted in England about the year 1740, by Mr. Andrew Grote, who married a lady named Adams, through whom he obtained considerable estates in Oxfordshire, and had by her an only son, Joseph Grote, Esq., who was seated at Badgmoor, in Oxon. That gentleman dying unmarried, the property devolved upon his half-brother, George Grote, Esq., who was high sheriff of Kent in 1809, and who was succeeded in the estates in 1830, by his eldest son the present proprietor. Mr. Grote was returned as a representative for the city of London, at the first election after the passing of the Reform Bill, and was for several years a distinguished member of the House of Commons. — The Priory is the seat of Alfred Hill, Esq.; Dropmore, of Lady Grenville; and the Ladies Charlotte and Fanny Proby have residences here. — Britwell House is the seat of William Miller, Esq.

BURNHAM, ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Dengie, union of Maldon, on the northern bank of the river Crouch: 48 miles from London (coach road 41), 19 from Chelmsford. — East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Chelmsford, thence 19 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 180 miles. — Money orders issued at Maldon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — There is a Baptist chapel here. There is a coast-guard station, and a ferry to the Wallasea and the islands at the mouth of the Crouch. — The living (the Virgin Mary), a vicarage in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £22. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £558: patron, Lady St. John Mildmay: pres. incumbent, Carew A. St. John Mildmay, 1827: contains 5,050 acres: 261 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,735: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,995: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £9,044: poor rates in 1837, £529. — Fairs: 25th April, and 24th September.

BURNHAM, SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bempstone, union of Axbridge: 159 miles from London (coach road 139), 8 from Axbridge, 8 from Bridgewater.---Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Bridgewater, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Bridgewater, &c., 173 miles.---Money orders issued at Wells, Somerset: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.---The village is daily rising in favour as a watering-place, having not only the advantage of a fine sandy beach, but also of two mineral springs. The church is large and handsome, and has a lofty tower, which serves as a landmark. The parochial charities produce about £36 a year.---The living (St. Andrew), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, and diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £16. 11s. 10½d.: pres. net income, £559: patron, Dean and Chapter of Wells; pres. incumbent, F. F. Beadon, 1841: contains 4,270 acres: 176 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,469: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,689: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £9,606: poor rates in 1837, £272.---Fair, Trinity Monday, for cattle, horses, and sheep.

BURNHAM-DEEFDAL, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Brothercross, union of Docking: 153 miles from London (coach road 120), 2 from Burnham-Westgate, 6 from Wells.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough and Dereham to Fakenham, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, &c., 159 miles.---Money orders issued at Lynn: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11½ a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m.---There are extensive salt marshes in this and the adjoining parish, for the embankment and improvement of which extensive works have been made.---The living (the Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £11: pres. net income, £257: patron, Trustees of H. Blyth, Esq.: pres. incumbent, E. G. Blyth, 1824: contains 960 acres: 25 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 109: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £806: poor rates in 1837, £44.

BURNHAM-NORTON, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Brothercross, union of Docking: 118 miles from London.---(For access and postal arrangements, see above.)---Tanner says of this place--About the year 1241, here was a house of White or Carmelite friars, founded by Sir Ralph de Hemenhale and Sir William de Calthorp, knights. It was valued at £2. 5s. 4d. per annum, according to Speed; and £1. 10s. 8d., according to Dugdale. It was granted in the 33d year of Henry VIII. to William Lord Cobham.---Contains 1,480 acres: 43 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 166: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,085: poor rates in 1837, £72.

BURNHAM-OVERY, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Brothercross, union of Docking: 117 miles from London.---(For access and postal arrangements, see above.)---Contains 1,920 acres: 130 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 613: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 706: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,553: poor rates in 1837, £394.

BURNHAM-THORPE, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Brothercross, union of Docking: 116 miles from London.---(For access and postal arrangements, see above.)---In the 55th year of Henry III., grants were obtained for a market and fair here, but these have long since been discontinued. This was the birth-place of our great naval hero, Admiral Lord Nelson, who was born during the incumbency of his father, the Rev. Edmund Nelson, whose father, who also bore the same name, was rector of Hilborough in Norfolk. His youngest son, Horatio, was born on the 29th of September, 1758, and received his early education at Norwich, and afterwards at North Walsham; but in his twelfth year, having evinced a predilection for a sea life, he was placed under his maternal uncle, Captain Suckling, then in command of the Raisonable. Whilst a mere boy, the determined energy and manly vigour of his intrepidity were fully demonstrated. During a winter excursion, when there was a heavy fall of snow upon the ground, he lost his way, and it was some hours after the shades of night had gathered round him before he reached his home. Upon being cautioned as to future mishaps, and asked whether he was not afraid of being so long in the dark lonely fields, he replied that he did not know fear. Shortly after joining the Raisonable, he made a voyage to the West Indies; and, on his return, he was appointed to the Carcass, in which, under Captain Phipps, he made a voyage to the polar regions, where he distinguished himself alike by his seamanlike conduct and entire contempt of danger. In 1777 he was made lieutenant, and two years afterwards, his uncle, Sir Richard Suckling, being one of the lords of the Admiralty, he attained the rank of post-captain. Very shortly afterwards, he was placed in command of the Hinchinbrooke, and having sailed to the West Indies, distinguished himself greatly in an enterprise on the Spanish main. Shortly after the peace of 1783, he obtained the command of the Boreas, in which he took the station of the Leeward Islands, for the protection of trade and commerce; and, while there, married Mrs. Nesbit, the widow of a physician. Captain Nelson continued from time to time in various employments under the Admiralty, until the breaking out of the French war, when he was appointed to the command of the Agamemnon, a crack ship of 64 guns, on board of which he sailed for the Mediterranean, and was at the taking of Toulon. Disregardless at all times of mere professional etiquette, notwithstanding that he was a strict disciplinarian, he was at all times ready to act with his crew for the public service, and consequently he was present, and rendered very efficient aid, at the siege of Bastia, where he served the batteries with a body of his seamen. He did the same at the siege of Calvi, where, while directing the pointing of two guns, a ball struck the sand at his feet, which threw the sand of which the soil was composed with such force into one of his eyes, as to entirely destroy the sight. Whilst on that station, his immense endowments for a warlike career fully developed themselves. Restless, determined, energetic, active, with the sense of duty and the love of country impelling him to the utmost exertions, he appeared to be everywhere; and he soon became dreaded throughout every creek of the Mediterranean. No odds daunted, no difficulties disheartened him. With him to will was to do. The probability of failure never seems to have crossed his imagination. What was necessary was possible. His spirit diffused itself through his officers and crew; and truly might it be said, that a nobler set of patriotic seamen never fought beneath the British flag, than those who trod the deck of the Agamemnon. Yet, while there was the spirit of a man towards men, there was the spirit of a father towards his children. If irregularity was suppressed, the merits of all were graciously and promptly acknowledged; and to the boys especially, he acted in a truly paternal character—cherishing their young spirits, directing their education, forwarding their views, alleviating their sufferings, and strengthening and uplifting their hearts. The result was, a heroic and worthy body of helpers to fight for and defend the country which they served. From isolated expeditions he soon began to take part in great actions, and he consequently served under Admiral Hotham, in his engagement with the French fleet on the 15th of March, 1795, and in the same year he took the island of Elba. During the year following, he was appointed commodore, and hoisted his flag on board La Minerve, in which he took La Sabine, a French frigate of 40 guns. Soon afterwards he despatched the French fleet, and sailed with the intelligence of its position and bearing to Sir John Jervis, who was at that time in the West Indies. After communicating his information, he shifted his flag on board the Captain, 74 guns, and had hardly done so when the enemy hove in sight. An action immediately ensued, which was long and severely contested, but which at length terminated in a complete victory on behalf of the British, who were very inferior in number to their opponents. During the fight, Commodore Nelson attacked the Santissima Trinidad, a five-decker of 136 guns; he afterwards boarded the San Nicholas of 80 guns, and after her surrender proceeded to the San Josef of 112 guns, which he entered by the stern galleries, and having driven the officers and crew sword in hand from the state-rooms, she also lowered her flag to the British ensign. For his share in this glorious fight, he was honoured with the order of the Bath; and soon afterwards, Sir Horatio hoisted his flag as rear-admiral of the blue, and was appointed to command the squadron which at that time blockaded Cadiz, when he made a bold attempt to take the city, heading his men himself in the attack; but the defences (which were afterwards improved, and so ably held by Sir Thomas Graham against the whole of the terrible armament of Soult) were too strong, and Nelson, with but inconsiderable loss, retreated to his ships. The next of the series of isolated attacks in which he was engaged, was that on the island of Teneriffe, but here also the fortifications were not only admirable, but admirably manned; and after a most persevering endeavour, the British were repulsed, Nelson himself being very seriously wounded. A cannon-shot struck his arm, which it severed from his shoulder, with the exception only of a small integument. He lay for some hours on the ground in a state of exhaustion, being only saved by the cool intrepidity of his son-in-law, Captain Nesbit, who carried him to the boat on his back. Yet such was his fortitude, that, instead of allowing himself to be slung up, he held on the rope like a common seaman to be hauled upon deck, whilst his wounded limb hung dangling by his side. In 1798, he rejoined Sir John Jervis, then Earl St. Vincent, by whose directions he proceeded up the Mediterranean, to watch the armament at Toulon preparing to convey Buonaparte and his army to Egypt. Notwithstanding all their vigilance, the Frenchmen escaped to sea, and Nelson at length traced them to the bay of Aboukir, at the mouth of the Nile. Soon as he arrived, he commenced an attack upon the whole of their fleet, and, by a characteristic manœuvre, placed himself between the enemy and the shore; and although exposed to a double fire for some hours, the combat resulted in such a glorious victory, that the whole of the French vessels, except two line of battle ships and two frigates, were taken or destroyed. During this engagement he was severely wounded, and for some time it was believed that he was killed. A cannon-shot in its course ran across his forehead, completely severing the scalp on the front of his head, which fell over his eyes, blinding him for the time, and filling them and his mouth with blood. His natural strength of character sustained him, and he soon reappeared upon deck amid the tumult of the fight. His wound did not incapacitate him for active service, and he was rewarded for this achievement by a peerage, under the title of Baron Nelson of the Nile, and an additional pension of £2,000 a year. Besides these advantages, the dukedom of Bronte, in Sicily, was conferred upon him, as well as high honours from the Sultan of Turkey. He soon afterwards sailed for Sicily, and thence for Naples, where he quelled a rebellion, and reinstated the king upon the throne. While at Naples, a sad blight came over him: Lady Hamilton, the wife of the British ambassador at the Neapolitan court, a person of low origin, but of the greatest beauty, and the most fascinating manners, obtained a pernicious influence over him, through which, not only did he enter into an adulterous connection with her, but lived openly with her after her husband's death; and further, became a party to the condemnation and ignominious execution of a venerable Neapolitan prince, who was simply the victim of an infernal cabal, bringing upon his fame the only stain by which the glorious reputation of Nelson is tarnished. The consequence of his connection with Lady Hamilton was, of course, a separation from Lady Nelson on his return to England. Three years after the battle of the Nile, in 1801, a confederation against the interests of Britain was entered into by the northern powers of Europe, through the suggestion of Buonaparte, in which it was not only stipulated that large stores should be supplied to the French government, but that the whole of the Danish fleet should be placed at their disposal. To prevent this was indispensable to the public safety, and Sir Hyde Parker, with Nelson under his orders, was despatched to the Baltic to take possession of, or destroy, their vessels. On their arrival at the Cattegat, Nelson offered his services to force the passage, and they were accepted. He passed the Sound with little loss, and soon arrived before Copenhagen, where a most formidable armament awaited the approach of the British. A large fleet of men-of-war had been gathered for the defence of the city; numerous heavy gun-boats, fully and bravely manned, were moored under strong and well-constructed fortifications. Indeed, so great and so complete were the preparations, that Sir

Hyde Parker, fearing much for the safety of the advanced squadron, signalled to Nelson to withdraw; but he, with a determination to carry out his project, humorously put the glass to his blind eye, and in reply to the intimation that the signal was flying, said that he positively could not see it, and ordered his men to proceed with the attack. It was so vigorously conducted, that in a few hours seventeen Danish sail of the line were destroyed or taken, the gun-boats were sunk or burnt, the fortifications breeched, and the city lay at his mercy. In this state of things a negotiation was proposed by the crown prince, in consequence of which the admiral went on shore, when an armistice was settled, through which the whole object of the expedition was obtained. Having rendered these eminent services he returned to England, and was created a viscount. In August of the same year he bombarded the immense flotilla of boats collected in the harbour of Boulogne by Buonaparte, for the invasion of this country, and subsequently cruising in the English Channel, materially impeded the designs of the enemy. A treaty of peace, however, being entered into in 1802, he lived for some time in retirement at his seat at Merton, in Surrey, but was immediately called into active service on the resumption of hostilities, and was engaged in several important commands, until the autumn of 1805. On the 19th of October in that year, the united French and Spanish fleets ventured out of the harbour of Cadix, and about noon, Admiral Nelson, with his British men-of-war, after a long over-the-world chase after them, closed with them off Cape Trafalgar. Lord Nelson ordered his ship, the Victory, to be placed alongside his old enemy the Santisima Trinidad, being on the other side assailed by a vessel of his own size, the Bucentaur, and for four hours the fight raged with unmitigated fury. In the tops of the Bucentaur, a number of riflemen had been placed, and from one of them, towards the middle of the engagement, he received a ball in the back, which, passing through the spine, lodged in the muscles. He fell, was instantly carried below, and after three hours of intense agony, expired in the arms of his officers. The victory was complete and entire, and virtually put an end to the maritime part of the war. The body of the departed hero was brought to England, and, through myriads of his admiring and lamenting countrymen, was carried to its place of interment in a sarcophagus, beneath the tomb of St. Paul's Cathedral, where his remains now rest. Nelson was comparatively short of stature, being about five feet six inches in height, but compact and bony in frame, and in possession of great muscular energy. His countenance was not, according to common acceptance, handsome, but firm, symmetrical, and full of the fire of intelligence. The leading trait of his character was a strong sense of duty, and the last signal of his life, as it fluttered to the breeze off the heights of Trafalgar, while it told "ENGLAND EXPECTS EVERY MAN TO DO HIS DUTY," told also the full spirit of the man, and set up a watchword which, in all future ages, will lead to the promotion of his country's glory. The living (St. Peter), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £19. 10s.:

pres. net income, £475: patron, Earl of Orford: pres. incumbent, D. Everard, 1802: contains 2,200 acres: 78 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 396: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 455: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,466: poor rates in 1837, £568.

BURNHAM-ULPH AND SUTTON, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Brothercross, union of Docking: 116 miles from London. (For access and postal arrangements, see above.) The living (All Saints), a rectory in mediocreties with Burnham-Norton and Burnham-Westgate: contains 1,220 acres: 80 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 355: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 408: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,477: poor rates in 1837, £78.

BURNHAM-WESTGATE, NORFOLK, a market town and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Brothercross, union of Docking: 117 miles from London. (For access and postal arrangements, see above.) The parochial charities produce about £28 a year. The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory, with a mediety of the rectories of Burnham-Norton, and Burnham-Ulph, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £20. 16s. 8d.: pres. net income, £768: patron, Christ's College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, B. Gilpin, 1832: contains 2,930 acres: 192 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,126: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,295: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,032: poor rates in 1837, £492. Fairs: Easter-Monday for cheese, 1st August for horses.

BURNINGHAM. See BRINNINGHAM.

BURNISTON, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Scalby, wapentake of Pickering-Lythe—(which see for access, &c.): 220 miles from London, 4 from Bedale, 8 from Ripon. Money orders issued at Bedale: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. Contains 1,400 acres: 71 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 389: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 447: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,917: poor rates in 1837, £78.

BURNLEY (anciently BRUNLEY), LANCASTER, a market town and chapelry in the parish of Whalley, hun<sup>d</sup>. of Blackburn, union of Burnley, on the banks of the river Brun, which joins the West Calder immediately below the town: 216 miles from London (coach road 211), 9 from Clitheroe. Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Manchester to Burnley station: from Derby, through Burton, Manchester, &c., 105 miles. Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m. and 9½ p.m.: post closes 4.10 p.m. and 9 p.m. The place, anciently called Brun, derives its name from that circumstance, and, from the variety of relics which have at different times been found here, is supposed to have been a Roman station. Several Saxon remains have also been discovered; and toward the east of the town is a place called Saxefield, which is believed to have been the scene of a battle in 957. Near to it there is an ancient cross, said to be erected to commemorate the visit of Paulinus to this part of the country to convert the natives to Christianity, and near which, for many years prior to the erection of the chapel, religious rites were celebrated; but the town is mostly modern, and the houses are neatly built of freestone, which is found in the neighbourhood. The streets are paved and well lighted with gas, under a private act obtained in 1819, and the inhabitants are abundantly supplied with good water from two reservoirs, one of which is to the north, and the other to the south, of the town. The chapel was originally built soon after the Conquest, but has been so enlarged, altered, repaired, and improved, as to be comparatively a new building. It of course comprises various styles of architecture, and is altogether a spacious and handsome structure. In the interior there are several monuments of the Townley family, and among them one of Charles Townley, Esq., the celebrated patron of the fine arts, whose collection of Greek and Roman sculpture was the most complete of any in the country, and which was esteemed of so much worth, that the trustees of the British Museum were enabled to purchase it by an express grant of parliament for £20,000. The barracks, which stand in the adjoining township of Habergham-Eaves, were erected in 1819, at an expense of £5,500, defrayed partly by government, and partly by private subscriptions in the neighbourhood. The Wesleyan Methodists, Baptists, Independents, and Romanists, all have chapels here. The free grammar-school was originally founded by Sir Robert Ingham in the time of Edward VI., and through his munificence, and the donations of other benefactors, it has now an income of £120 a year, and an interest in thirteen scholarships in Brasenose College, Oxford, which were founded by Dr. Nowall, who was Dean of St. Paul's in 1572. Its management is vested in trustees, and the master has the privilege of charging £4. 4s. a year for the instruction of each pupil in the ordinary elements of commercial education. There is a national school here, in which about 700 children are educated, and there is another school in which 200 children of each sex are taught gratuitously. The other charities are equal to the importance and the standing of the place. The trade of Burnley was formerly in the manufacture of worsteds and woollen goods, but that for the spinning, weaving, and printing of cotton, has since then been largely introduced. Its commercial importance has been much promoted by the Leeds and Liverpool Canal, which winds nearly round the town. Petty sessions for the division are held here, and Burnley is a polling-place for North Lancashire. — The living (St. Peter), a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Manchester, is valued at £23. 16s. 8d.: pres. net income, £1,400: patron, R. T. Parker, Esq.: pres. incumbent, R. M. Master, 1826: contains 1,630 acres: 1,423 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 10,699: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 12,304: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £8,273: poor rates in 1837, £1,018. — Market days, Monday and Saturday. Fairs: March 6, Easter Eve, May 9 and 13, July 10, Oct. 11, cattle and horses; horse fair, third Thursday in October; wool fair, second Thursday in July. Races are held in the month of August. — Bankers, Alcock, Birkbecks, & Co.—draw on Barnard, Dimsdale, & Co.—Inns: Bull, Thorn, Old Red Lion, and New Red Lion. — S. E., Townley Hall is the residence of Peregrine Edward Townley, Esq.; it is a mansion of venerable appearance, delightfully placed in an undulating country, richly wooded and adorned with copses and plantations of most graceful outline. Behind, a hill of gentle aspect rises to a considerable elevation, and before the residence there stretches an extensive prospect of luxuriant country. The house now occupies three sides of a quadrangle, with square towers at each of the interior angles. Formerly, it consisted of a perfect quadrangle, and must then have borne quite a collegiate aspect. The portion of the building taken away was the north-east side, which comprised two turrets at the angles, a chapel, and a sacristy, with a library over it. The interior of the mansion is furnished with a profuse elegance, and contains an almost unique collection of family portraits, from the time of Elizabeth to the present day. Dr. Whitaker has very elaborately and carefully traced the lineage of the owner of Townley Hall to Spartlingus, first abbot of Whalley, who lived in 896, during the time of King Alfred, and whose descendant, Geoffrey, who through marriage had attained the estates of the Lacies, had a license to erect a hunting-house at Tunleia, otherwise Townley, about the year 1211. Somewhat more than a century later, the property rested in Cecilia de Townley, an heiress, who married John de Legh, whose great-grandson, Richard de Townley, was appointed high sheriff of Lancashire, by John of Gaunt, in 1375, a dignity which was again held by one of his descendants, Sir John de Townley, from 1531 to 1540. Sir John was an active-minded man, and memorable in his generation. He enjoyed the estate nearly sixty years, and augmented it by several valuable purchases; and from him the property descended to Charles Townley, Esq., twenty-ninth lord from Spartlingus, who, during a lengthened residence in Rome, and travels through Sicily and South Italy, expended his ample revenues in purchasing the noble collection of marbles spoken of above. He died unmarried, and his brother also dying without issue, the estates went to John Townley, Esq. of Cornsey House, who was the father of the present proprietor. Mr. Townley was sheriff of Lancashire in 1831, and is a magistrate and deputy-lieutenant of the county.

BURNOP AND HAMSTEELS, DURHAM, a township in the parish of Lanchester—(which see for access, &c.): 268 miles from London, 6 from Newcastle, 10 from Durham. — Money orders issued at Newcastle-on-Tyne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m. — Contains 1,980 acres: 21 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 154.—(Other returns with the parish.)

BURNSALL, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the eastern division of the wapentake of Staincliffe and Eweross, union of Skipton, on the river Wharfe, comprising the chapelries of Conistown with Kilnsay, and Rilsdon, and the townships of Appletreewick, Burnsall with Thorp-sub-Montem, Cracro, Harlington, and Hetton with Bordley: 238 miles from London (coach road 220), 8 from Skipton, 18 from Knaresborough. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Leeds to Skipton, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 106 miles. — Money orders issued at Skipton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes 1½ p.m. — The grammar-school here was built in 1650, by Sir William Craven, Knight, and through his munificence, and that of others, has now an income of £42 a year. He also repaired the church in 1612, and built four bridges in the vicinity of the village. Sir William was a native of Appletreewick, and, by frugality, industry, and enterprise, amassed considerable wealth in London, of which city he was, in 1611, the lord mayor. — The living (St. Wilfrid) is valued at £36: contains 25,950 acres: 277 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,484: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,707: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £13,046: poor rates in 1837, £948.

BURNTWOOD, STAFFORD, a liberty in the parish of St. Michael, Lichfield, south division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Offlow, in the vicinity of the Essington Canal: 120 miles from London (coach road 118), 4 from Lichfield, 10 from Tamworth. — Nor. West. Rail. through Tamworth to Lichfield, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth, &c., 34 miles. — Money orders issued at Lichfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, and a peculiar of the Dean and Chapter of Lichfield: pres. net income, £78: patron, Vicar of St. Mary's: pres. incumbent, R. Errington, 1843: contains 87 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 426: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 490: poor rates in 1837, £189.

BURPHAM, SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Poling, rape of Arundel: 76 miles from London (coach road 58), 2 from Arundel, 9 from Steyning. — Brighton and South Coast Rail. to Arundel, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 208 miles. — Money orders issued at Arundel: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chichester, is valued at £7. 12s. 6d.: pres. net income, £145: patron, Dean and Chapter of Chichester: pres. incumbent, W. W. Holland, 1809: contains 3,150 acres: 35 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 280: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,844: poor rates in 1837, £129.

BURRADON. See BRIERDEAN.

BURRALS, WESTMORELAND, a township in the parish of Appleby, St. Lawrence, East ward, on a branch of the river Eden—(which see for access, &c.): 270 miles from London, 1 from Appleby, 8 from Brough. — Money orders issued at Appleby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m. — This village is supposed to have been crossed anciently by the borough walls of Appleby, and hence its name. — Contains 15 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 97.—(Other returns with the parish, which see.)

BURREL WITH COWLING, NORTH RIDING, York, 221 miles from London, 2 from Bedale, 6 from Middleham. — Money orders issued at Bedale: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — Contains 370 acres: 26 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 138: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,221: poor rates in 1837, £35.

BURRINGHAM, LINCOLN, a township in the parish of Bottesford, eastern division of the wapentake of Manley, parts of Lindsey: 204 miles from London (coach road 163), 5 from Burton, 10 from Glandford Brigg. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Peterborough to New Holland, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham and Lincoln to New Holland, &c., 99 miles. — Money orders issued at Burton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The living is a perpetual curacy to the vicarage of Bottesford: patron, Vicar of Bottesford: contains 2,120 acres: 72 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 624: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 718: poor rates in 1837, £101.

BURRINGTON, HEREFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wigmore, union of Ludlow, east of the river Teme: 148 miles from London (coach road 139), 5 from Ludlow, 4 from Bromfield. — Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 30 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 101 miles. — Money orders issued at Ludlow: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £5: pres. net income, £146: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, P. Ashworth, 1838: contains 2,850 acres: 42 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 236: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,572: poor rates in 1837, £92.

BURRINGTON, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of North Tawton with Winkley, union of South Molton, on the east of the river Taw, and near the confluence of its tributary, the Moule: 206 miles from London (coach road 195), 4 from Chumleigh: 8 from South Molton. — Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Tiverton, thence 22 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Tiverton, &c., 219 miles. — Money orders issued at Chumleigh: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. — This place was formerly called Borvington. — The living (the Holy Trinity), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Barnstaple, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £13. 11s. 3d.: pres. net income, £276: patron, Rev. J. Buckingham: pres. incumbent, J. Buckingham, 1814: contains 6,100 acres: 159 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,244: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,430: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,300: poor rates in 1837, £402.

BURRINGTON, SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Brent and Wrington, union of Axbridge: 147 miles from London (coach road 134), 12 from Wrington, 11 from Bristol. — Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Weston-super-Mare, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Weston, &c., 151 miles. — Money orders issued at Bristol: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 1 p.m. — The parochial charities produce £18 a year. In 1795, an ancient catacombe was discovered here, which contained the remains of about fifty skeletons. They were imbedded in black mould, partially covered with stalagmite, and, from the circumstance and discovery of some flint knives, Dr. Buckland concluded that it was an ancient place of sepulture. About a mile distant, there is a cave which contains similar remains. — The living (the Holy Trinity) is a perpetual curacy, subordinate to the rector of Wrington, in the diocese of Bath and Wells: pres. net income, £147: patron, the Inhabitants: pres. incumbent, John Vane, 1831: contains 2,420 acres: 89 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 531: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 611: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,742: poor rates in 1837, £205.

BURROUGH (or BURROW-ON-THE-HILL), LEICESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Gartree, union of Melton-Mowbray: 127 miles from London (coach road 99), 5 from Melton-Mowbray, 7 from Tugby. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Leicester to Melton-Mowbray, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Syston to Melton, &c., 50 miles. —

Money orders issued at Melton-Mowbray: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.—Camden has fixed a Roman station here, and infers from the name, that there was formerly a heathen temple on the summit of the hill. There are traces of a Roman encampment here, the area of which is about eighty acres. Dr. Stukeley describes it as—*a great Roman camp on the north-west tip of a ridge of hills, and higher than any other part of it, of a most delightful and extensive parapet, reaching as far as Lincoln, one way. * * * It is about 800 feet long, and for the most part there is a ditch beside the rampire.*—The living (St. Mary), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Leicester, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £12.: pres. net income, £433: patron, Rev. G. Barnaby: contains 1,190 acres: 33 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 149: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,989: poor rates in 1837, £37.

BURROUGH-GREEN, CAMBRIDGE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Radfield, union of Newmarket: 71 miles from London, 5 from Newmarket.—Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Chesterfield to Newmarket, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Syston and Peterborough to Newmarket, &c., 149 miles.—Money orders issued at Newmarket: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.—There is a school here, which has an endowment of £30 a year, left chiefly by Dr. Knight in 1734.—The living (St. Austin), a rectory in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £18. 10s.: pres. net income, £705: patron, Charles Porcher, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Charles Wedge, 1816: contains 2,000 acres: 75 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 452: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 519: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,945: poor rates in 1837, £186.

BURROW-WITH-BURROW, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Tunstall, hun<sup>d</sup> of Lonsdale, south of the sands, near the river Lune—(which see for access, &c.): 250 miles from London, 2 from Lonsdale, 4 from Burton.—Money orders issued at Kirkby-Lonsdale: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ p.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.—Contains 2,290 acres: 32 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 177: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,824: poor rates in 1837, £182.

BURROWGATE. See PENRITH.

BURSCOUGH, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Ormskirk, hun<sup>d</sup> of West Derby, close on the Leeds and Liverpool Canal: 220 miles from London (coach road 211), 3 from Ormskirk, 10 from Chorley.—Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Liverpool to Burscough station: from Derby, through Crewe, Liverpool, &c., 120 miles.—Money orders issued at Ormskirk: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.—Tanner says of this place—A priory of black canons, founded by Robert Fitz-Henry, lord of Latham, in the time of Richard I. St. Nicholas was the tutelar saint of this house, which had a prior and five religious, and forty servants, and was endowed at the dissolution with £80. 7s. 6d. per annum, or, according to Sir W. Dugdale, with £122. 6s. 7d.; or, according to Mr. Speed, with £129. 1s. 10d. Previous to that time, it was the burial-place of the noble family of Stanley, and the remains of the conventual buildings are still used as a sepulchre by a few poor Roman Catholic families.—The living (St. Nicholas) is a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Manchester:

patron, Vicar of Ormskirk: pres. incumbent, Wm. Mannop, 1840: contains 4,340 acres: 397 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,228: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,562: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £9,142: poor rates in 1837, £536.—Contiguous to Burscough, is Latham House, the seat of ——— which was anciently distinguished as the residence of the founder of the priory, and which, having passed through the families of the Stanleys, became at last the property of William Wilbraham Scottle, Esq. During the great civil war, Latham was the scene of the heroic defence of the Countess of Derby, whose lord being in the Isle of Man at the time, the mansion was invested by the parliamentary troops, determined to hold the house to the last. The number of her opponents is stated to have been upwards of 4,000, of whom one-half fell before the place. Trusting alone in Providence for protection and success, she left no means unprovided to increase her resistance, and animated her men alike by her exhortations and her example. She was constantly without the gates in the midst of the turmoil, and frequently close to the very trenches of the enemy; and as she always began her undertakings with prayer, so she always closed them with thanksgiving,—so that it has very truly been said of her, that it was hard to say whether she was most eminent for courage, prudence, or resolution, or for justice, piety, and religion. Her stronghold was admirably adapted for defence. It stood upon a flat boggy site, and had an outer wall six feet in thickness. On this wall nine towers were raised, each of them mounted with six pieces of ordnance, so placed as to enfilade the approaches on every side. A moat, twenty-four feet wide and six deep, surrounded the whole, and the ascent from the bottom of it was guarded by a strong row of palisades. In the centre of the whole pile of buildings, the eagle tower rose far above all, and the gatehouse at the entrance had a strong tower on each side of it. On the tops of these towers, marksmen were judiciously placed, who continually picked off the officers and men in the trenches of the enemy, as well as on their passage from one part of their works to another. The siege was at length raised by the relief of Prince Rupert, who ordered bastions, counterscarps, and other outworks to be added; but on the 4th December, 1645, it was surrendered to the parliamentarians by order of the king, and they immediately dismantled the fortresses. The manor was rescued by a composition of £600 a year. William, ninth Earl of Derby, wishing to re-edify his ancient seat, ordered a sumptuous front to be built, but he did not live to finish his design. After his death, Latham became the property of one of his co-heiresses, Henrietta Lady Ashburnham, and from her, by a double purchase in 1724, to Sir Thomas Bootle of Melling, who was afterwards chancellor to Frederick, Prince of Wales. The niece of that gentleman married Richard Wilbraham, Esq. The present mansion was built by Sir Thomas Bootle, after a beautiful design by Leoni. It consists of a ground floor, principal story, and attic, with a rustic basement, and a double flight of steps to the chief story. The north front contains nine windows in each story, and the south front thirteen. The façade of the mansion itself is a hundred and fifty-six feet long, and is connected with offices on either side by colonnades of Ionic pillars. The entrance-hall is forty feet square and thirty feet high; and the saloon, library, and other chief apartments, are of the noblest proportions. The park by which Latham House is surrounded is very extensive, and many parts of it command extensive views of the mouth of the river Ribble and the sea, with the mountains which divide Lancashire and Yorkshire. About a quarter of a mile from the mansion there is a chapel, founded in the fifteenth century, at which duty is regularly performed; and beside it there are almshouses for twelve indigent people.

BURSLEDON, HANTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Bishop's-Waltham, union of South Stoneham, Portsdown division of the county: 85 miles from London (coach road 75), 5 from Southampton, 4 from Titchfield. —Sou. West. Rail. to Southampton, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, and Reading, to Southampton, &c., 174 miles. —Money orders issued at Southampton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. —The chapel has lately been much enlarged. The village lies on the estuary of the river Hamble, about three miles from Southampton water; and many large vessels have been built here for the navy, the creek being very convenient, and the water deep enough for an 80-gun ship. —The living (St. Leonard) is a perpetual curacy to the vicarage of Hound: contains 830 acres: 89 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 548: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 630: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,028: poor rates in 1837, £150.

BURSLEM, STAFFORD, a market town and parish in the north division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Pirehill, union of Woolstanton and Burslem: the township is now included within the boundaries of the borough of Stoke-upon-Trent: it includes the township of Hulton-Abbey, and the hamlet of Sneyd: 164 miles from London (coach road 151), 2 from Newcastle, 10 from Congleton. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Leicester, and Burton, to Burslem station: from Derby, through Burton, &c., 43 miles. —Money orders issued at Newcastle-under-Lyne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. —The town is the largest and most populous in the district, and the capital of the pottery trade, in which business most of the inhabitants are engaged. Burslem had long been distinguished for the variety and excellence of the clays found in its vicinity; and as early as the seventeenth century, the greater part of the earthenware used in England was made here. It remained, however, for foreigners to give that impetus to the manufacture which was to carry it on to its present state of perfection; and Warner, in his Tour through the Northern Counties, gives the following account of it:—For centuries back the butter-pots (a species of earthenware for preserving butter) were made here, before a single vessel was moulded in its neighbourhood. In the course of time the articles of the manufactory became more various, but the products were coarse and clumsy, made entirely from the clays found contiguous to Burslem; painted and mottled in a rude way, and glazed with lead ore, finely powdered and sprinkled on the patterns before they were sent to the kiln. Two foreigners (for to other nations we have been indebted for almost every original hint of manufactures, and for their first improvements), by name Elers, introduced about the end of the seventeenth century a new mode of glazing the Staffordshire ware,—by casting into the kiln, when at its highest heat, a quantity of salt, whose vapours produced a vitrification of the clay on the surface of the vessel, and thus gave it a much more equal and beautiful gloss than the preceding process could afford. This was succeeded by a prodigiously great improvement in the materials of the ware itself, the addition of calcined powdered flint to the tobacco-pipe clay, which, being ground and mixed together, the mass was manufactured into the well-known white ware, that for many years was the favourite pottery of the table. But it was left to Mr. Josiah Wedgwood to bring the Staffordshire pottery to a state of perfection. The old church is a large brick edifice, with a massive square tower; and a new district church of handsome elevation has, within these few years, been built at a cost of £8,000: it contains upwards of 2,000 sittings. The town-hall, which is a very neat building, was erected in 1761 by public subscription: it contains the public offices, and an elegant news-room. Most of the several sections of Dissenters have places of worship here. A bequest of twenty-seven acres of land, made in 1749 by Mr. J. Bourne, has been applied to the benefit of the national school. —The living (St. Peter), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Stafford, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £22. 9s. 6d.: pres. net income, £509: patrons, J. Adam, Esq. and Misses Adam: pres. incumbent, E. Whieldon, 1811: contains 2,930 acres: 2,995 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 16,091: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 18,505: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £22,208: poor rates in 1837, £5,629. —Market days, Monday and Saturday. Fairs: Saturday before Shrovetide, Easter, and Whitsuntide; Saturday on, or next after, June 24; Saturday before Ember week; Dec. 26. —Bankers: J. J. & G. Allcock—draw on Jones, Loyd, & Co.; Suburban Branch of Manchester and Liverpool District Banking Co.—draw on Smith, Payne, & Co. —Leopard Inn, and George Inn.

BURSTALL, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Samford: 72 miles from London (coach road 68), 6 from Hadleigh, 4 from Ipswich. —East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Ipswich, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 204 miles. —Money orders issued at Hadleigh: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. —The living is a curacy annexed to the vicarage of Bramford: contains 1,230 acres: 40 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 223: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,074: poor rates in 1837, £72.

BURSTALL-GARTH, EAST RIDING, YORK, in the south division of the wapentake of Holderness: 232 miles from London, 24 from Kingston-upon-Hull. —Tanner, in his Notitia, says—Stephen, Earl of Albemarle, gave, A.D. 1115, to the Benedictine monks of St. Martin de Alecio, near Albemarle in Normandy, several tithes and churches in this part of Yorkshire, and in the north part of Lincolnshire, who thereupon sent over a procurator, or prior, with some monks of their own house, to look after the same. These, after some time, fixed their cell, and continued in the chapel of St. Helen here, till the frequent seizing of the estates of the foreign abbies, during the wars with France, occasioned this alien priory to be sold to the abbot and convent of Kirestall, in the 18th year of

Richard II. The site of the priory is now covered by Trinity Sands.

BURSTEAD (GREAT), ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Barstable, union of Billericay: it includes the market town and chapelry of Billericay: 25 miles from London (coach road 23), 2 from Billericay, 7 from Brentwood. — East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Brentwood, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 156 miles. — Money orders issued at Billericay: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — About a mile north of the town there are some earthworks, which enclose a space of four acres, called Blunt's Walls, where many Roman remains have been found. There are two endowed schools here. The other parochial charities produce about £23 a year. — The living (St. Mary Magdalen), a vicarage in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £17. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £188: patron, Edward Evans: pres. incumbent, John Thomas, 1822: contains 4,420 acres: 398 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,168: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,393: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £7,169: poor rates in 1837, £1,071.

BURSTEAD (LITTLE), ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Barstable, union of Billericay, near a branch of the river Crouch. — (For access and postal arrangements, see above.) — The parochial charities produce about £40 a year. — The living, a rectory in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £12: pres. net income, £356: patron, Bishop of London: pres. incumbent, W. B. Dalton, 1843: contains 1,320 acres: 31 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 170: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,190: poor rates in 1837, £192.

BURSTOCK, DORSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Whitechurch-Canonicorum, union of Beaminster, Bridport division of the county: 161 miles from London (coach road 136), 5 from Beaminster, 6 from Chard. — Sou. West. Rail. through Southampton to Dorchester, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, Reading, Southampton, to Dorchester, &c., 250 miles. — Money orders issued at Beaminster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living (St. Andrew), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Dorset, diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Sarum, is valued at £5. 19s. 4½d.: pres. net income, £155: patron, J. Bragge, Esq.: pres. incumbent, John Bragge, 1822: contains 970 acres: 46 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 307: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 353: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,926: poor rates in 1837, £155.

BURSTON, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Diss, union of Depwade: 100 miles from London (coach road 92), 3 from Diss, 7 from Harleston. — East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Stowmarket to Diss, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, and Norwich, to Diss, &c., 187 miles. — Money orders issued at Diss: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £16: pres. net income, £418: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, Temple Frere, 1825: contains 1,300 acres: 86 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 468: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 538: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,860: poor rates in 1837, £371.

BURSTON, STAFFORD, a hamlet in the parish of Stone, hun<sup>d</sup>. of South Pirehill—(which see for access, &c.): 142 miles from London, 3 from Stone, 9 from Uttoxeter. — The hamlet lies on the eastern bank of the river Trent. The editors of Lyson's Magna Britannia say—Dr. Plot will have this place and Burweston to be the same, but Mr. Erdreich makes them two different places; but both agree in their account, viz., that there was a chapel here, visited for some ages for devotion, being the place where Wolphere the pagan, king of Mercia, in his zealous infidelity, slew his son Ruffinus, because he was become a Christian, and had been baptized by S. Chad; as he had done his other son, Wulfadus, at Stone for the same reason. It was then a wood, into which the young prince fled for safety from his father's fury, but was soon found and slain there. There were some remains of this chapel standing not many years since. — (Returns with the parish.)

BURSTON. See BRISTON.

BURSTOW, SURREY, a parish in the east division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. and union of Reigate: 28 miles from London (coach road 26), 3 from Horley, 8 from Reigate. — Brighton Rail. to Horley, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 160 miles. — Money orders issued at Crawley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — The living (St. Bartholomew), a rectory and peculiar in the deanery of Croydon, and diocese of Canterbury, is valued at £15. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £511: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, O. F. Owen, 1848: contains 4,420 acres: 139 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 863: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 992: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,782: poor rates in 1837, £483.

BURSTWICK (or SKECKLINE), EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the southern division of the wapentake of Holderness: 211 miles from London (coach road 184), 2 from Hedon, 6 from Patrington. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough to Hull, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Normanton to Hull, &c., 120 miles. — Money orders issued at Hull: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living (All Saints), a perpetual curacy united to that of Skeckling, in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of the east riding and diocese of York, is valued at £7, and having jointly a pres. net income of £219: patron, Sir T. A. C. Constable: pres. incumbent, W. Clarke, M.A., 1811: contains 5,720 acres: 135 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 810: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 931: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £9,141: poor rates in 1837, £408. The tithes of the town and territories of Burstwick and Skeckling, the property of the lord of the manor and the vicar, were commuted in 1773.

BURSTWICK, EAST RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.) — Contains 3,340 acres: 84 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 501: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 576: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £5,834: poor rates in 1837, £275.

BURTHOLME, CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Lanercost Abbey, ward of Eskdale—(which see for access, &c.): 314 miles from London, 4 from Brampton, 13 from Carlisle. — Money orders issued at Brampton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 3½ p.m.: post closes 10 a.m. — Contains 41 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 330: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 379: poor rates in 1837, £98.

BURTLE-HOUSE. See BYRKLEY.

BURTON, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish and ward of Bambrough—(which see for access, &c.): 323 miles from London, 5 from Belford, 2 from Bambrough.—Money orders issued at Belford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.—Contains 14 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 111: poor rates in 1837, £57.

BURTON, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Tarvin, second division of Eddisbury hun<sup>d</sup>—(which see for access, &c.): 181 miles from London, 2 from Chester, 8 from Tarporley.—Money orders issued at Chester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.—Contains 320 acres: 12 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 79: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £607: poor rates in 1837, £45.

BURTON, CHESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Wirrall, comprising the townships of Burton and Puddington, on the east of the river Dee, near its mouth: 190 miles from London (coach road 191), 8 from Chester, 10 from Liverpool.—Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Chester to Sutton station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Burton, Crewe, &c., 90 miles.—Money orders issued at Chester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.—The church was rebuilt in 1721. At Donwall, not far from Burton, there is a colliery, opened in 1750, which extends upwards of a mile and three-quarters from high-water mark, under the bed of the river Dee, the coal from which is mostly sent to Ireland. At that place there was formerly an hospital, to which Alexander de Savensby, bishop of Lichfield and Coventry, appropriated the tithes of Burton, he being, in his ecclesiastical capacity, lord of the manor. Henry VII., in 1494, gave this hospital, with its revenues, to the hospital of St. John the Baptist, at Lichfield, founded by Bishop Smith, to which it now belongs. Bishop Langton, in 1298, granted a market to this parish, to be held on Thursdays, and a fair for three days at the festival of St. James, but both have long since been discontinued. In 1724, Dr. Wilson, the benevolent and pious bishop of Sodor and Man, gave £400 for founding and endowing a school for the children of Burton, and four of those of Puddington. Burton was the bishop's birth-place, and his son, Dr. Thomas Wilson, rector of St. Stephen's, Walbrook, and a prebendary of Westminster, added £200 to his father's benefaction.—The living (St. Nicholas) is a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester: pres. net income, £54: patron, R. Congreve, Esq.: pres. incumbent, R. Congreve, 1841: contains 2,920 acres: 78 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 428: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 492: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,443: poor rates in 1837, £114.

BURTON, CHESTER, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.)—Contains 1,620 acres: 55 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 360: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 414: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,392: poor rates in 1837, £65.

BURTON, PEMBROKE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Roose, union of Pembroke, South Wales: 243 miles from London (coach road 268), 10 from Haverford-west, 4 from Pembroke.—Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 140 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Stonehouse, &c., 243 miles.—Money orders issued at Haverford-west: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.

VOL. I.

—The living, a rectory in the diocese of St. David's, is valued at £15. 12s. 11d.: pres. net income, £202: patron, Earl of Cawdor: pres. incumbent, J. Brigstock, 1832: contains 158 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 846: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 973: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,256: poor rates in 1837, £207.

BURTON (or BODEXTON), SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Rotherbridge, rape of Arundel, south of the river Rother, and bounded on the north-east by the Rother and Arundel Canal: 53 miles from London (coach road 52), 3 from Petworth, 6 from Medhurst.—Brighton Rail. to Horsham, thence 16 miles: from Derby, through London, &c. 185 miles.—Money orders issued at Petworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.—The Roman Catholics have a place of worship at Burton Park. The Rother or Arundel navigation forms the north-eastern boundary of the parish, and over it there is a bridge which leads to Shropham.—The living is a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory with Coates, in the diocese of Chichester, valued at £7. 3s. 11½d.: pres. net income, £113: patron, George Wyndham, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Thomas Pannell, 1819: contains 1 house: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 7: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £505: poor rates in 1837, £122.

BURTON, SALOP, a chapelry in the parish and liberty of Much-Wenlock—(which see for access, &c.): 151 miles from London, 2 from Much-Wenlock, 8 from Bridgenorth.—Money orders issued at Much-Wenlock: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.—The living is a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, diocese of Hereford: pres. net income, £50: patron, Vicar of Much-Wenlock: pres. incumbent, R. H. G. Moore, 1844.—(Pop<sup>n</sup> with the parish.)

BURTON, SOMERSET, a hamlet in the parish of Stoke Courcy—(which see for access, &c.): 149 miles from London, 7 from Bridgewater, 1 from Stringston.—(Pop<sup>n</sup> with the parish.)

BURTON. See CHRISTCHURCH.

BURTON, HANTS, in the north-east half-hun<sup>d</sup> of East Medina liberty, in the Isle of Wight, in Whippingham parish. Tanner says of this place—About A.D. 1282, John de Insula, rector of Shal-fleet, and Robert de Winton, rector of Godshill, founded here an oratory dedicated to the Holy Trinity, consisting of six chapels and one clerk, who were to officiate for the living and the dead under the rules of St. Augustine. The bishop of Winchester was patron, into whose hands it was surrendered in the 18th year of Henry VI., and by his procurement was granted to Winchester College. The site and demesnes of the oratory are still held on lease from the fellows and wardens of the college, but the remains of the building have entirely disappeared.

BURTON. See WARROF.

BURTON AND LLAY, DENBIGH, a township in the parish of Gresford, hun<sup>d</sup> of Bromfield, bounded on the east by the river Dee: 191 miles from London (coach road 189), 5 from Wrexham, 1 from Holt.—Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Chester to Gresford station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Burton, Crewe, &c., 91 miles.—Money orders issued at Wrexham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.—Contains 188 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 985: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same.

BURTON WITH WALDEN, NORTH RIDING,

3 T

YORK, a township in the parish of Aysgarth, wapentake of Hang-West—(which see for access, &c.): 232 miles from London, 8 from Middleham, 7 from Masham. There is an old building adjoining the church, which is used as a school, in which the children are taught through the means of a bequest of £200, made in 1563 by Mr. Richard Green. The money was laid out in land, and now produces £50 a year, of which one-third is paid to the master, another is given to the poor, and the remainder is applied to repairing the church. An almshouse for four poor widows was endowed with £20. 10s. per annum, by the widow of the late William Boynton, Esq. Contains 6,950 acres: 119 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 523: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 601: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,157: poor rates in 1837, £212.

BURTON-AGNES, EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the wapentake of Dickering, union of Bridlington, near a branch of the river Hull: it includes the townships of Gransmoor, Haisthorp, Thornholm, and Burton-Agnes: 228 miles from London (coach road 201), 6 from Bridlington, 7 from Hunmanby. Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Peterborough and Hull to Burton-Agnes station: from Derby, through Normanton, Hull, &c., 137 miles. Money orders issued at Bridlington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12½ p.m.: post closes 12½ p.m. The living (St. Martin), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, is valued at £20. 6s. 3d.: pres. net income, £897: patron, R. Raikes, Esq.: pres. incumbent, R. J. Wilberforce, 1840: contains 6,540 acres: 101 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 603: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 693: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £8,746: poor rates in 1837, £382.

BURTON-AGNES, EAST RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.) Contains 3,010 acres: 54 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 402: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 462: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,368: poor rates in 1837, £196. Boynton Hall is the seat of Sir Henry Boynton, Bart. The mansion is of very handsome elevation, and is a peculiar ornament on the road to Bridlington, being delightfully placed in the midst of some very beautiful grounds. Sir Henry derives his origin from Bartholomew de Boynton, who was lord of the manor of Boynton in 1067, and whose descendant, Sir Francis Boynton, was high sheriff of Yorkshire in 1596. The son of this latter gentleman was created a baronet in 1618, but sided, notwithstanding, with the republicans when the civil war broke out, and married for his second wife Katherine, daughter of Thomas Viscount Fairfax, and from him the present baronet is a lineal descendant. Sir Henry succeeded to the title and estates in 1832, on the death of his brother, Sir Francis.

BURTON-BISHOP (or SOUTH BURTON), EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the Hunsley-Beacon division of the wapentake of Harthill, union of Beverley: 214 miles from London (coach road 185), 3 from Beverley, 6 from Market-Weighton. Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Peterborough and Hull to Beverley, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Normanton and Hull to Beverley, &c., 122 miles. Money orders issued at Beverley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. A bequest of £100, made in 1714, by Mrs.

Elizabeth Gee, was laid out on land; it now produces £20 a year, which is applied for the education of the poor. The Particular Baptists have a chapel here. The living (All Saints), a dioc<sup>h</sup> vicarage and peculiar in the jurisdiction of the Dean and Chapter of York, is valued at £5. 6s. 8d.: contains 3,970 acres: 104 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 532: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 612: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £6,935: poor rates in 1837, £340. Tithes commuted in 1767.

BURTON-IN-LONSDALE, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Thornton-in-Lonsdale, west division of Staincliff and Ewcross wapentake: 248 miles from London (coach road 247), 12 from Settle, 3 from Ingleton. Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Lancaster to Benthams, and from Leeds, through Skipton and Settle to Benthams, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, Lancaster, &c., 148 miles. Money orders issued at Lancaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond, and formerly in the diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £15: pres. net income, £94: patron, Vicar of Thornton: pres. incumbent, R. Chapman, 1831: contains 1,550 acres: 144 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 629: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 723: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,154: poor rates in 1837, £466. Fair, Whit-Monday.

BURTON-BRADSTOCK, DORSET, a parish in the liberty of Frampton, union of Bridport, Bridport division of the county: 156 miles from London (coach road 129), 3 from Bridport, 8 from Beaminster. Sou. West. Rail. through Southampton to Dorchester, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, Reading, and Southampton, to Dorchester, &c., 245 miles. Money orders issued at Bridport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. The parish has the British Channel on the south, and Bridport harbour on the west: the beach on both these sides rises into cliffs of very considerable height, which contain a vast quantity of fossils. The first establishment for spinning flax ever formed in England was opened here in 1794, and now gives employment to about 150 workpeople. The living, a rectory, with the curacy of Skepton George, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Dorset, and diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Sarum, is valued at £25: pres. net income, £336: patron, Lord Rivers: pres. incumbent, G. A. Seymour, 1812: contains 2,260 acres: 208 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,201: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,381: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,158: poor rates in 1837, £421.

BURTON-CHERRY, EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the Hunsley-Beacon division of the wapentake of Harthill, union of Beverley: 214 miles from London (coach road 186), 3 from Beverley, 8 from South Cave. Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Peterborough and Hull to Beverley, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Normanton, Hull, &c., 122 miles. Money orders issued at Beverley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of the east riding and diocese of York, is valued at £23. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £887: patron, Rev. H. Ramsden: pres. incumbent, Robert Swann, 1837: contains 3,180 acres: 84 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 455: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 523: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,369: poor rates in 1837, £318.

BURTON-COGGLES, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Beltisloe, parts of Kesteven, union of Grantham, on a branch of the river Glen: 151 miles from London (coach road 107), 2 from Corby, 9 from Folkingham. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Nottingham to Grantham, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham to Grantham, &c., 46 miles. — Money orders issued at Corby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — There is a school here, endowed, in 1734, by John Speight, with land at Quadring, which now produces £18 a year. — The living (St. Thomas à Becket), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £16. 12s. 3½d.: pres. net income, £664: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, Sir G. Burrard, 1822: contains 3,010 acres: 46 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 260: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 299: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,663: poor rates in 1837, £196.

BURTON-CONSTABLE, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Finghall, wapentake of Hang-West—(which see for access, &c.): 232 miles from London, 4 from Middleham, 6 from Richmond. — Money orders issued at Middleham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. at noon: post closes 1½ p.m. — Burton Constable, says Camden, derives its name from the lords of it, who, by marriages, are allied to very honourable families, and flourishes in great splendour at the present day. Robert of this house, as we find in Mewx Abbey book, was one of the knights of the Earl of Albemarle, who, being old and full of days, took upon him the cross, and went with King Richard to the Holy Land. — Contains 2,480 acres: 44 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 252: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,469: poor rates in 1837, £117. — Burton Hall is the residence of Sir Thomas A. Clifford Constable, Bart. The family had, during a long period, the title of Lords of Dunbar; and the estates here devolved on the present proprietor by inheritance. The mansion is a large and magnificent structure, with two superb fronts, and four embattled towers, two at either end, which give it all the appearance of a baronial residence. The west front is a hundred and ninety-one feet in length; the other is a hundred and thirty-three feet, being shortened by two wings. The interior quite corresponds in its feudal grandeur with the exterior. The great entrance-hall is sixty feet long, and thirty-one in breadth and height, and is emblazoned with upwards of seventy escutcheons of the family; the long gallery is a hundred and thirteen feet in length, and nineteen feet high, adorned with a long series of family portraits, and furnished with everything that a refined taste could desire. The park which surrounds the mansion is not undulated, but is very extensive and finely timbered, so as to show several admirable effects; it contains some extensive walks, and is adorned with a fine piece of water. The proprietors of this noble residence have for many centuries possessed the seigniorial rights over the district of Holderness. Sir Thomas Aston Clifford Constable is descended from the Hon. Thomas Clifford, son of Hugh, fourth baron of Chudleigh. His father, Thomas Hugh Clifford, Esq., was created a baronet in 1815, and in 1821 assumed the name of Constable, only by sign-manual. The present proprietor of Burton-Constable succeeded as second baronet in 1825.

BURTON-DASSET, WARWICK, a parish in the Burton-Dasset division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Kington, union of Southam, near the Oxford Canal: 96 miles from London (coach road 85), 4 from Kington, 13 from Stratford. — Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Fenny-Compton, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Fenny-Compton, &c., 68 miles. — Money orders issued at Banbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The Oxford Canal runs a short distance from the village. — The living (All Saints), a vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Coventry, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, now in the diocese of Worcester, is valued at £14: pres. net income, £167: patrons, Lord Willoughby de Broke and R. W. Blencowe: pres. incumbent, W. D. Sheard, 1846: contains 5,400 acres: 135 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 614: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 706: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £6,212: poor rates in 1837, £532.

BURTON (EXTRA), STAFFORD, a township in the parish of Burton-upon-Trent, north division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Offlow, contiguous to the southern part of the town of Burton-upon-Trent—(which see for access, &c.): 125 miles from London, 1 from Burton-upon-Trent. — Money orders issued at Burton-upon-Trent: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. — Contains 183 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,193: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,372: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,611: poor rates in 1837, £526.

BURTON-FLEMING (or NORTH BURTON), EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the wapentake of Dickering, union of Bridlington, on the Gipsy race: 244 miles from London (coach road 201), 7 from Bridlington, 4 from Hunmanby. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>s</sup> Rail. through Peterborough, Hull, and Bridlington, to Hunmanby station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Normanton, Selby, Bridlington, &c., 153 miles. — Money orders issued at Bridlington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 1 p.m.: post closes 12 noon. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of the east riding and diocese of York, is valued at £6. 4s. 2d.: pres. net income, £84: patron, Admiral Robert Mitford: pres. incumbent, J. Wilkinson, 1838: contains 3,590 acres: 77 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 506: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,240: poor rates in 1837, £47. The great and small tithes of the lordship, the property of the lay impropiator, the lord of the manor, and the vicar, were commuted in 1768.

BURTON-GATE, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Wells, parts of Lindsey, union of Gainsborough, on the east side of the Trent: 180 miles from London, 5 from Gainsborough, 10 from Retford. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>s</sup> Rail. through Lincoln and Peterborough to Burton-Gate: from Derby, through Nottingham, Lincoln, &c., 61 miles. — Money orders issued at Gainsborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. — The living (St. Helen), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stow, and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £8. 10s. 10d.: pres. net income, £88: patron, W. Hutton, Esq.: pres. incumbent, George Hutton: contains 1,160 acres: 16 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 126: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,086: poor rates in 1837, £116. — Burton Hall.

BURTON-HASTINGS, WARWICK, a parish in

YORK, a township in the parish of Aysgarth, wapentake of Hang-West—(which see for access, &c.): 232 miles from London, 8 from Middleham, 7 from Masham. — There is an old building adjoining the church, which is used as a school, in which the children are taught through the means of a bequest of £200, made in 1563 by Mr. Richard Green. The money was laid out in land, and now produces £50 a year, of which one-third is paid to the master, another is given to the poor, and the remainder is applied to repairing the church. An almshouse for four poor widows was endowed with £20. 10s. per annum, by the widow of the late William Boynton, Esq. — Contains 6,950 acres: 119 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 523: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 601: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,157: poor rates in 1837, £212.

BURTON-AGNES, EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the wapentake of Dickering, union of Bridlington, near a branch of the river Hull: it includes the townships of Gransmoor, Haisthorp, Thornholm, and Burton-Agnes: 228 miles from London (coach road 201), 6 from Bridlington, 7 from Hunmanby. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>a</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough and Hull to Burton-Agnes station: from Derby, through Normanton, Hull, &c., 137 miles. — Money orders issued at Bridlington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 12½ p.m.: post closes 12½ p.m. — The living (St. Martin), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of York, is valued at £20. 6s. 3d.: pres. net income, £897: patron, R. Raikes, Esq.: pres. incumbent, R. J. Wilberforce, 1840: contains 6,540 acres: 101 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 603: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 693: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £8,746: poor rates in 1837, £382.

BURTON-AGNES, EAST RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.) — Contains 3,010 acres: 54 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 402: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 462: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,368: poor rates in 1837, £196. — Boynton Hall is the seat of Sir Henry Boynton, Bart. The mansion is of very handsome elevation, and is a peculiar ornament on the road to Bridlington, being delightfully placed in the midst of some very beautiful grounds. Sir Henry derives his origin from Bartholomew de Boynton, who was lord of the manor of Boynton in 1067, and whose descendant, Sir Francis Boynton, was high sheriff of Yorkshire in 1596. The son of this latter gentleman was created a baronet in 1618, but sided, notwithstanding, with the republicans when the civil war broke out, and married for his second wife Katherine, daughter of Thomas Viscount Fairfax, and from him the present baronet is a lineal descendant. Sir Henry succeeded to the title and estates in 1832, on the death of his brother, Sir Francis.

BURTON-BISHOP (or SOUTH BURTON), EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the Hunsley-Beacon division of the wapentake of Harthill, union of Beverley: 214 miles from London (coach road 185), 3 from Beverley, 6 from Market-Weighton. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>a</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough and Hull to Beverley, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Normanton and Hull to Beverley, &c., 122 miles. — Money orders issued at Beverley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — A bequest of £100, made in 1714, by Mrs.

Elizabeth Gee, was laid out on land; it now produces £20 a year, which is applied for the education of the poor. The Particular Baptists have a chapel here. — The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage and peculiar in the jurisdiction of the Dean and Chapter of York, is valued at £5. 6s. 8d.: contains 3,970 acres: 104 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 532: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 612: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £6,935: poor rates in 1837, £340. Tithes commuted in 1767.

BURTON-IN-LONSDALE, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Thornton-in-Lonsdale, west division of Staincliff and Ewcross wapentake: 248 miles from London (coach road 247), 12 from Settle, 3 from Ingletton. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Lancaster to Bentham, and from Leeds, through Skipton and Settle to Bentham, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, Lancaster, &c., 148 miles. — Money orders issued at Lancaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Richmond, and formerly in the diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £15: pres. net income, £94: patron, Vicar of Thornton: pres. incumbent, R. Chapman, 1831: contains 1,550 acres: 144 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 629: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 723: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,154: poor rates in 1837, £466. — Fair, Whit-Monday.

BURTON-BRADSTOCK, DORSET, a parish in the liberty of Frampton, union of Bridport, Bridport division of the county: 156 miles from London (coach road 129), 3 from Bridport, 8 from Beaminster. — Sou. West. Rail. through Southampton to Dorchester, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, Reading, and Southampton, to Dorchester, &c., 245 miles. — Money orders issued at Bridport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. — The parish has the British Channel on the south, and Bridport harbour on the west: the beach on both these sides rises into cliffs of very considerable height, which contain a vast quantity of fossils. The first establishment for spinning flax ever formed in England was opened here in 1794, and now gives employment to about 150 workpeople. — The living, a rectory, with the curacy of Skepton George, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Dorset, and diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Sarum, is valued at £25: pres. net income, £336: patron, Lord Rivers: pres. incumbent, G. A. Seymer, 1812: contains 2,260 acres: 208 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,201: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,381: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,158: poor rates in 1837, £421.

BURTON-CHERRY, EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the Hunsley-Beacon division of the wapentake of Harthill, union of Beverley: 214 miles from London (coach road 186), 3 from Beverley, 8 from South Cave. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>a</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough and Hull to Beverley, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Normanton, Hull, &c., 122 miles. — Money orders issued at Beverley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of the east riding and diocese of York, is valued at £23. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £887: patron, Rev. H. Ramsden: pres. incumbent, Robert Swann, 1837: contains 3,180 acres: 84 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 455: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 523: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,369: poor rates in 1837, £318.

BURTON-COGGLES, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Beltisloe, parts of Kesteven, union of Grantham, on a branch of the river Glen: 151 miles from London (coach road 107), 2 from Corby, 9 from Folkingham. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Nottingham to Grantham, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham to Grantham, &c., 46 miles. — Money orders issued at Corby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — There is a school here, endowed, in 1734, by John Speight, with land at Quadring, which now produces £18 a year. — The living (St. Thomas & Becket), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £16. 12s. 3½d.: pres. net income, £664: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, Sir G. Burrard, 1822: contains 3,010 acres: 46 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 260: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 299: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,663: poor rates in 1837, £196.

BURTON-CONSTABLE, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Finghall, wapentake of Hang-West—(which see for access, &c.): 232 miles from London, 4 from Middleham, 6 from Richmond. — Money orders issued at Middleham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> at noon: post closes 1½ p.m. — Burton Constable, says Camden, derives its name from the lords of it, who, by marriages, are allied to very honourable families, and flourishes in great splendour at the present day. Robert of this house, as we find in Meux Abbey book, was one of the knights of the Earl of Albemarle, who, being old and full of days, took upon him the cross, and went with King Richard to the Holy Land. — Contains 2,480 acres: 44 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 252: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,469: poor rates in 1837, £117. — Barton Hall is the residence of Sir Thomas A. Clifford Constable, Bart. The family had, during a long period, the title of Lords of Dunbar; and the estates here devolved on the present proprietor by inheritance. The mansion is a large and magnificent structure, with two superb fronts, and four embattled towers, two at either end, which give it all the appearance of a baronial residence. The west front is a hundred and ninety-one feet in length; the other is a hundred and thirty-three feet, being shortened by two wings. The interior quite corresponds in its feudal grandeur with the exterior. The great entrance-hall is sixty feet long, and thirty-one in breadth and height, and is emblazoned with upwards of seventy escutcheons of the family; the long gallery is a hundred and thirteen feet in length, and nineteen feet high, adorned with a long series of family portraits, and furnished with everything that a refined taste could desire. The park which surrounds the mansion is not undulated, but is very extensive and finely timbered, so as to show several admirable effects; it contains some extensive walks, and is adorned with a fine piece of water. The proprietors of this noble residence have for many centuries possessed the seigniorial rights over the district of Holderness. Sir Thomas Aston Clifford Constable is descended from the Hon. Thomas Clifford, son of Hugh, fourth baron of Chudleigh. His father, Thomas Hugh Clifford, Esq., was created a baronet in 1815, and in 1821 assumed the name of Constable, only by sign-manual. The present proprietor of Burton-Constable succeeded as second baronet in 1825.

BURTON-DASSET, WARWICK, a parish in the Burton-Dasset division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Kington, union of Southam, near the Oxford Canal: 96 miles from London (coach road 85), 4 from Kington, 13 from Stratford. — Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Fenny-Compton, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Fenny-Compton, &c., 68 miles. — Money orders issued at Banbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The Oxford Canal runs a short distance from the village. — The living (All Saints), a vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Coventry, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, now in the diocese of Worcester, is valued at £14: pres. net income, £167: patrons, Lord Willoughby de Broke and R. W. Blencowe: pres. incumbent, W. D. Sheard, 1846: contains 5,400 acres: 135 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 614: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 706: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £6,212: poor rates in 1837, £532.

BURTON (EXTRA), STAFFORD, a township in the parish of Burton-upon-Trent, north division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Offlow, contiguous to the southern part of the town of Burton-upon-Trent—(which see for access, &c.): 125 miles from London, 1 from Burton-upon-Trent. — Money orders issued at Burton-upon-Trent: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. — Contains 183 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,193: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,372: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,611: poor rates in 1837, £526.

BURTON-FLEMING (or NORTH BURTON), EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the wapentake of Dickering, union of Bridlington, on the Gipsy race: 244 miles from London (coach road 201), 7 from Bridlington, 4 from Hunmanby. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Peterborough, Hull, and Bridlington, to Hunmanby station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Normanton, Selby, Bridlington, &c., 153 miles. — Money orders issued at Bridlington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes 12 noon. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of the east riding and diocese of York, is valued at £6. 4s. 2d.: pres. net income, £84: patron, Admiral Robert Mitford: pres. incumbent, J. Wilkinson, 1838: contains 3,590 acres: 77 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 506: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,240: poor rates in 1837, £47. The great and small tithes of the lordship, the property of the lay impropiator, the lord of the manor, and the vicar, were commuted in 1768.

BURTON-GATE, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Wells, parts of Lindsey, union of Gainsborough, on the east side of the Trent: 180 miles from London, 5 from Gainsborough, 10 from Retford. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Lincoln and Peterborough to Burton-Gate: from Derby, through Nottingham, Lincoln, &c., 61 miles. — Money orders issued at Gainsborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. — The living (St. Helen), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stow, and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £8. 10s. 10d.: pres. net income, £88: patron, W. Hutton, Esq.: pres. incumbent, George Hutton: contains 1,160 acres: 16 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 126: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,086: poor rates in 1837, £116. — Burton Hall.

BURTON-HASTINGS, WARWICK, a parish in the Kirby division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Knightlow, union of Hinckley: 99 miles from London (coach road 98), 3 from Nuneaton, 4 from Hinckley.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Nuneaton station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth to Nuneaton, &c., 38 miles.---Money orders issued at Nuneaton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---The parish is intersected by the Roman Watling Street.---The living (St. Botolph), a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Coventry, and the diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, now in the diocese of Worcester, is valued at £12: pres. net income, £87: patron, W. Bucknill, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. S. Bucknill, 1844: contains 1,910 acres: 53 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 276: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,327: poor rates in 1837, £131. The great and small tithes, the property of the lay impropiator, were commuted in 1788.

BURTON-JOYCE, NOTTINGHAM, a parish in the south division of the wapentake of Thurgarton, union of Basford, including the hamlet of Bulcote: 135 miles from London (coach road 127), 5 from Nottingham, 9 from Southwell.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Nottingham to Burton station: from Derby, through Nottingham, &c., 21 miles.---Money orders issued at Nottingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---The village is pleasantly situated on the northern bank of the river Trent. In the Harleian MSS. there is the following notice of this place:--About three miles northward from Colwick is the town of Byrton, called Byrton-Forze (now Burton-Joyce), upon the bank of the river Trent, wherein were, in times past, two ancient houses of two ancient gentlemen, one of Forze, the other of Byrton. That of Forze, Bryan Stapleton, Esq., last held it, and sold it to Sir Thomas Stanhope. The heiress of Byrton was married to Meynell and Wood. Meynell now possesses his, but Wood's heir sold his part. The village now belongs to the Chesterfield family; and the church contains several ancient tombs of the Frechevilles, Jors, Rooses, and Stapletons. The Wesleyan Methodists have a chapel here.---The living (St. Helen), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, with the chapelry of Bulcote, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Nottingham, and diocese of York, now in the diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £4. 19s. 2d.: pres. net income, £145: patron, Earl of Chesterfield: pres. incumbent, J. Rolleston, 1822: contains 1,300 acres: 160 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 610: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 650: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,152: poor rates in 1837, £210. The great and small tithes, the property of the lord of the manor and the vicar, were commuted in 1768.

BURTON-IN-KENDAL, WESTMORELAND, a market town and parish in Lonsdale ward, union of Kendal, part of the parish extending into the hund<sup>d</sup> of Lonsdale, south of the sands, county of Lancashire; comprising the township of Burton-in-Kendal, Dalton, and Holme, and the chapelry of Preston-Patrick; situated on the high road leading from Kendal to Lancaster: 243 miles from London (coach road 251), 10 from Kendal.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Lancaster to Burton station: from Derby, through Crewe, &c. 143 miles.---Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8.20 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---The town is small, but it is neatly and regularly built, and has a very prepossessing appearance: the market-place especially is spacious and cheerful in its aspect, with excellent houses and good shops. There is a very large flax-mill here, but the inhabitants are principally employed in rural occupations. Burton church is an ancient and interesting edifice, with a square tower; the interior is divided into a nave and side-aisles. The inns are numerous and excellent. Dawes, Langbaine, and W. Lancaster, all eminent as literary characters in the time of Charles I., but whose memory has paled out of the horizon of fame, were all natives of this place. Petty sessions for Westmoreland and Cumberland are held here every alternate Tuesday. The Independents have a place of worship here.---The living (St. James), a discharged vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond, and diocese of Chester, is valued at £15. 17s.: pres. net income, £199: patron, Simeon's Trustees: pres. incumbent, R. Morewood, 1842: contains 9,170 acres: 272 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,387: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,745: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £11,826: poor rates in 1837, £579. The vicarial tithes, the property of the vicar, were commuted in 1815.---Market day, Tuesday. Fairs: Easter-Monday, for cattle and horses.---Royal Oak Hotel, King's Arms Inn.

BURTON-IN-KENDAL, WESTMORELAND, a township in the above parish.---(For access and postal arrangements, see above.)---Contains 152 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 843: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 969: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £3,688: poor rates in 1837, £388.

BURTON-KIRK. See KIRK-BURTON.

BURTON-LATIMER, NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Huxloe, union of Kettering: 88 miles from London (coach road 71), 3 from Kettering, 7 from Thrapstone.---Nor. West. Rail. through Northampton to Higham-Ferrars, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Weedon to Higham-Ferrars, &c., 89 miles.---Money orders issued at Kettering: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---There is a school here endowed with an estate situated at Northampton, which returns £30 a year, and also with a rent-charge of £7 per annum, levied upon a property in the parish. The parochial charities produce about £107 a year. The church is very large and handsome, having a square tower and steeple. In the interior there are paintings of the twelve tribes of Israel, and fine stained glass windows. The Wesleyans and Baptists have chapels here.---The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £29. 10s.: pres. net income, £699: patron, David Bevan, Esq.: pres. incumbent, D. B. Bevan, 1843: contains 2,690 acres: 187 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 965: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, £1,109: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £4,235: poor rates in 1837, £423. Tithes commuted in 1803.---N., Burton House is the residence of the Rev. Lattimer Harpur, who derives his descent from Abraham Harpur, Esq., of Caldycote, who lived early in the last century. Mr. Harpur is a magistrate for the counties of Warwick and Leicester.

BURTON-LAZARS, LEICESTER, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Framland, union of Melton-Mowbray, south of the Melton-Mowbray and Oakham Canal: 109 miles from London (coach road 103), 2 from Melton-Mowbray, 2 from Stapleford. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Syston to Melton, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Syston, &c., 47 miles. — Money orders issued at Melton-Mowbray: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — Tanner says of this place—Roger de Mowbray, temp. R. Steph., giving two carucates of land, a house, mill, &c., here, to the lepers of St. Lazarus, without the walls of Hierusalem, laid the foundation of a well-endowed hospital, consisting of a master, and eight sound as well as several poor leprous brethren, which was the chief of all the spittles of leazar-houses in England, but dependent upon the great house at Hierusalem. This was also dedicated to the blessed Virgin Mary and St. Lazarus. Its possessions, 26th Henry VIII., were valued at £265. 10s. 2d. ob. per ann. as Dugd. and Speed, and the house itself was granted to John Dudley, Lord Lisle, 36th Henry VIII. Leland says that it was founded in the time of Henry I. by Lord Mowbray, for a master and eight brethren, who were to profess the order of St. Augustine, and for that reason gave them, in their common seal, a representation of their titular saint, joined with the arms of the Mowbrays, and a red cross. But, notwithstanding his authority, an impression prevails, that the monastery was built by a general subscription throughout England, to which the Mowbrays largely contributed. It stood near the spring of water which was, as may be supposed, in high repute for the cure of leprosy, and in 1760 a bath was built adjoining, which was much resorted to for scrofulous affections; but a few years since, the spring was nearly destroyed, and is now little used: the water contains hydro-chlorate of soda, and sulphuretted hydrogen gas. — The living is a curacy annexed to the vicarage of Melton-Mowbray: contains 2,060 acres: 49 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 262: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,529: poor rates in 1837, £261.

BURTON-LEONARD, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish, partly in the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the lower division of the wapentake of Clare: 226 miles from London (coach road 208), 4 from Knaresborough, 4 from Ripon. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Leeds, to Ripley, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 94 miles. — Money orders issued at Knaresborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 1 p.m. — There is an Independent chapel here. The parochial charities produce about £30 a year. — The living (St. Helen), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Richmond, and diocese of Chester, now in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £3. 0s. ¾d.: pres. net income, £140: patron, Dean and Chapter of York: pres. incumbent, J. Robertson: contains 1,760 acres: 124 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 455: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 523: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,898: poor rates in 1837, £170.

BURTON-BY-LINCOLN, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Lawress, parts of Lindsey, union of Lincoln: 171 miles from London (coach road 134), 3 from Lincoln, 3 from Broxholme. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Peterborough to Lincoln, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham to Lincoln, &c., 52 miles. — Money orders issued at Lincoln: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The living (St. Vincent), a rectory in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Stow, and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £11. 15s. 2d.: pres. net income, £419: patron, Lord Monson: pres. incumbent, E. R. Larken, 1843: contains 2,260 acres: 38 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 206: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,708: poor rates in 1837, £160. — Burton Hall.

BURTON-OVERY, LEICESTER, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Gartree, union of Billesdon, north-east of the Union Canal: 103 miles from London (coach road 90), 7 from Leicester, 5 from Tugby. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Countesthorpe, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Leicester to Countesthorpe, &c., 36 miles. — Money orders issued at Leicester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — There is a school here, endowed with the interest of £100 by Mrs. Catherine Palmer. The parochial charities produce about £16 a year. — The living, a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>r</sup> of Leicester, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £18. 5s. 10d.: pres. net income, £497: patron, Mrs. F. T. Thorp: pres. incumbent, Robert Thorp, 1846: contains 1,660 acres: 96 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 449: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 516: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,476: poor rates in 1837, £391. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1765.

BURTON-PEDWARDINE, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Aswardhurn, parts of Kesteven, union of Sleaford: 152 miles from London (coach road 114), 5 from Sleaford, 10 from Folkingham. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Boston, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham to Grantham, 39, thence 15 miles. — Money orders issued at Sleaford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living (St. Andrew), a vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £7. 12s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £339: patron, H. Handley, Esq.: pres. incumbent, H. H. Browne, 1837: contains 2,580 acres: 21 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 125: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,100: poor rates in 1837, £62.

BURTON-PIDSEY, EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish, partly in the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in the middle division of the wapentake of Holderness: 220 miles from London (coach road 184), 12 from Hull, 6 from Patrington. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Peterborough and New Holland to Hull, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Normanton and Selby to Hull, &c., 123 miles. — Money orders issued at Hull: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage and peculiar of the Dean and Chapter of York, is valued at £6: pres. net income, £42: patron, Dean and Chapter of York: pres. incumbent, J. Smyth, 1832: contains 1,980 acres: 79 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 364: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 418: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,106: poor rates in 1837, £226. The great and small tithes, the property of the dean and chapter of York, were commuted in 1761.

BURTON-SALMON, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Monk-Fryston, lower division of the wapentake of Barkston-Ash—(which see for access, &c.): 180 miles from London, 2 from Ferry Bridge, 10 from Tadcaster. —

Money orders issued at Ferry Bridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — Contains 640 acres: 28 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 166: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £905: poor rates in 1837, £83. — The tithes of Burton-Salmon, and of Bryan-cum-Poole, the property of the dean and chapter of York, and the prebend of Wiston, were commuted in 1817.

BURTON-UPON-STATHER, LINCOLN, a market town and parish in the north division of the wapentake of Manley, parts of Lindsey, at the mouth of the river Trent: 218 miles from London (coach road 113), 11 from Barton, 10 from Crowle. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough to Barton-upon-Humber, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through Chesterfield and Retford, to Barton, &c., 116 miles. — Money orders issued at Barton-on-Humber: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — The petty sessions for the division of Manley, east of the river Trent, are held here. — The living (St. Andrew), a vicarage annexed to the rectory of Flixborough, in the diocese of Lincoln, and having jointly a pres. net income of £752: patron, Sir R. Sheffield, Bart.: pres. incumbent, Charles Sheffield, 1822: contains 3,860 acres: 146 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 799: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 949: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £5,408: poor rates in 1837, £412. The great and small tithes of the township of Burton-upon-Stather, and the hamlets of Stather, Darley, and Thealby, the property of the clerical rector, the lay improprator, and vicar, were commuted in 1803.

BURTON-ON-TRENT, STAFFORD, a market town and parish, partly in Repton and Gresly hun<sup>d</sup>, county of Derby, and partly in the north division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Offlow, union of Burton-on-Trent, in the above county, comprising the townships of Branson, Burton-Extra, Horninglow, Stretton, and Winshill, and the chapelry of Chilcote: 132 miles from London (coach road 125), 12 from Lichfield. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Leicester to Burton station: from Derby, to Burton station, 10 miles. — Money orders paid here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. — Bishop Tanner says of this place—Wulfrie Spot finished and endowed, A.D. 1004, an abbey here for monks of the order of St. Benedict. It was dedicated to the blessed Virgin Mary and St. Modeven, and valued, 26th Henry VIII., at £267. 14s. 5d. per annum, Dugd., £356. 16s. 3d. ob. Speed.; but on the record, in the First-fruits office, the whole yearly valuation of this monastery is £501. 7s. 0d. ob., and after £80. 0s. 2d. ob. repairs deducted, remained clear £412. 6s. 10d. The abbot and convent surrendered this house, Nov. 14th, 1539, and about 3d Nov. 1541, King Henry VIII. founded, on the site and in the church of the same, a college of a dean and canons, to the honour of Jesus Christ and his mother Mary, and granted, for their support, the manor of Burton, and thirteen other manors, &c., belonging to the monastery. This collegiate church was but of short continuance, for it was dissolved before 31st Jan. 1545, when all the lands and endowments of the same were conveyed by the said king to Sir William Paget. The present parochial church was erected in 1720, on the site of the ancient dilapidated edifice, and a new church was erected here in 1823. The free grammar-school was founded by William Bean, Esq., and endowed with lands which now produce £450 a year; two-thirds of which are paid to the master, and the rest to the usher: there are fifty boys on the foundation. The town consists principally of two streets, one of which is well supplied with water, is well paved and lighted with gas, and runs parallel with the river Trent. The Trent is navigable up to here by barges of considerable burthen, and there is here over it one of the longest bridges in England, measuring, between the exterior piers, as much as 1,545 feet. The chief business of the town is in ale and cotton; the peculiar excellence of the former arising from the purity of the water in the neighbourhood, whilst, for the manufacture of the latter, a large number of power-looms is used; but there are also extensive iron foundries and tool manufacturing in and about the place—a canal from Burton to the Grand Trunk Canal greatly facilitating the transport of goods. The ordinary parochial charities produce about £300 a year. Burton derives its name from the ancient Saxon appellation of Burgh, for prior to the Conquest it was an important station of the Anglo descendants of that people. The manor, comprising the town and the adjacent hamlets, was, in the 37th of Henry VIII., granted to an ancestor of the Marquis of Anglesea, who is the present possessor, together with all the liberties, privileges, and franchises which had been theretofore enjoyed by the abbots of Burton, of whose recently-dissolved institution they formed the property. By these privileges the lord of the manor is empowered to appoint a steward and a bailiff, who hold their offices according to his will. The former of these officers presides as a judge in the Genter's court, which is established to recover debts under forty shillings; and its authority has been acknowledged by the Court of Queen's Bench on a quo warranto information, issued by the attorney-general of Queen Elizabeth against Thomas Lord Paget, who claimed its rights as prescriptive, from having existed beyond the memory of man. The process pursued is similar to the summons and distringas of the county court, and the court is held every third Friday at the town-hall. Further, the bailiff, as coroner, has an exclusive jurisdiction over the manor, and an authority concurrent with the county magistrates as a justice of the peace, but, being a practising attorney, does not exercise his right in that capacity. He has also the management of the police, and the general regulation of the town, except the lighting and paving. Beside the Genter's court, the lord of the manor holds a court-leet annually, and view of frank-pledge, at which the police, who consist of three constables for Burton, one for each of the hamlets, and six assistants called deciners, are appointed for the year ensuing. The juries at both these courts are selected, by the steward or his deputy, from the inhabitant householders. There is no prison, but only a station for the confinement of offenders until commitment. The Independents, Baptists, Wesleyan and Primitive Methodists, all have chapels here. The Burton-on-Trent poor-law union comprises fifty-two parishes, spread over an area of 133 square miles, with a population of upwards of 26,000 persons. The union workhouse, which was erected at an expense of £5,400, is capable of accommodating 300

innaten. As it shows an encouraging view of the operation of the new poor-law, we cite an extract from one of the reports of the guardians. They say—that although the relief to the aged and really impotent throughout the union has been raised by the law more than 20 per cent., the gross expenditure in relief from the poor rates has, nevertheless, been reduced, the first year 37 per cent., and that the last quarter shows a still greater reduction; that although in former years, in the parish of Burton-upon-Trent, out of a population of 5,000, there have been from fifty to sixty able-bodied men chargeable at one time, during the last severe winter there was not one single application to the guardians for relief from any able-bodied man of that parish. The guardians also declare, that the condition of the labouring classes has been improved in every particular; that they are, become more prudent, more independent, and more comfortable in their circumstances; and that numerous opponents of the law, some even amongst the poor themselves, are, after a more intimate knowledge of its character and tendency, become more friendly to it. It is to be hoped that the pecuniary saving was not attended with a disproportionate social demoralization of the recipients of the public bounty. —The living (St. Mary and St. Medwen), a vicarage in the diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, exempt from jurisdiction, is valued at £28: pres. net income, £192: patron, Marquis of Anglesey: pres. incumbent, S. Stead, 1839: contains 9,030 acres: 1,358 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 8,136: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 9,356: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £26,236: poor rates in 1837, £2,677. —Market day, Thursday. Fairs: Feb. 2, April 5, Holy Thursday, Oct. 29, first Tuesday in Sept., cheese. —Bankers: Burton, Uttoxeter, and Ashbourn Union Banking Co.—draw on Roberts, Curtis, & Co.—Queen's Hotel and George Inn.

BURTON-UPON-URE, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Masham, east of the river Ouse—(which see for access, &c.): 220 miles from London, 5 from Bedale, 7 from Ripon. —Money orders issued at Bedale: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m.—Contains 2,920 acres: 33 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 200: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,244.

BURTON (WEST), NOTTINGHAM, a parish in the North Clay division of the wapentake of Bassetlaw, union of Gainsborough: 188 miles from London (coach road 146), 3 from Gainsborough, 7 from East Retford. —Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Peterborough and Lincoln to Gainsborough, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Chesterfield, Woodhouse-Mill, and Retford, to Gainsborough, &c., 70 miles. —Money orders issued at Gainsborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. —The living (St. Helen), a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Nottingham, diocese of York, now in the diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £12. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £65: patron, John Barrow, Esq.: pres. incumbent, John Lake-land, 1845: contains 710 acres: 6 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 35: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,810: poor rates in 1837, £36.

BURTON-ON-THE-WOLDS, LEICESTER, a township in the parish of Prestwold, east division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Goscote, east of the river Stour: 119 miles from London (coach road 110), 4 from Loughborough, 1 from Prestwold. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Leicester to Loughborough, thence 4 miles: from Derby to Loughborough station, 17 miles. —Money orders issued at Loughborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.—Contains 1,690 acres: 87 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 448: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 515: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,801: poor rates in 1837, £330. —Burton Hall.

BURTON-WOOD, LANCASTER, a chapelry in the parish of Warrington, hun<sup>d</sup> of West Derby: 191 miles from London (coach road 192), 3 from Newton-in-Makerfield, 5 from Warrington. —Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Warrington to Newton-Bridge, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 81 miles. —Money orders issued at Warrington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—The living is a perpetual curacy, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester: pres. net income, £96: patron, Rector of Warrington: pres. incumbent, W. G. Thomas, 1829: contains 4,250 acres: 143 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 835: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 960: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £6,354: poor rates in 1837, £506. —N., Bradley Hall.

BURWARDSLEY, CHESTER, a chapelry and township in that part of the parish of Bunbury, which is in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Broxtown—(which see for access, &c.): 171 miles from London, 4½ from Tarporley, 9 from Chester. —Money orders issued at Chester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.—The living (St. John) is a perpetual curacy with that of Bunbury, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester: pres. net income, £50: patron, Trustees: pres. incumbent, E. Titley, 1848: contains 1,400 acres: 74 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 458: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 526: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,171: poor rates in 1837, £112.

BURWARTON, SALOP, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Stottesden, union of Bridgenorth; a streamlet of the river Rea passes through it: 150 miles from London (coach road 144), 8 from Bridgenorth, 10 from Ludlow. —Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford and Worcester to Kidderminster, thence 17 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Kidderminster, &c., 89 miles. —Money orders issued at Bridgenorth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.—The living (St. Lawrence), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, diocese of Hereford, is valued at £4. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £128: patron, Rev. J. Churton: pres. incumbent, J. Churton, 1800: contains 1,170 acres: 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 151: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £626: poor rates in 1837, £50. —Burwarton Hall.

BURWASH (or BURGHERRAN), SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Hawksborough, rape of Hastings, union of Ticehurst, on a branch of the river Rother: 58 miles from London (coach road 50), 6 from Wadhurst, 7 from Battle. —Sou. East. Rail. to Tunbridge Wells, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 192 miles. —Money orders issued at Hurstgreen: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 10 p.m.—Petty sessions are held at Hurstgreen, for the Burwash division of the rape of Hastings. Burwash gives the title of Viscount to the Earl of Westmoreland. —The living (St. Bartholomew), a rectory and vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Lewes, diocese of Chichester, is valued at £18: pres. net income, £699: patron, Rev. J. Gould: pres. incumbent, J. Gould, 1840: contains 7,321 acres: 329 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,093: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,407: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,513: poor rates in 1837, £1,262. Fairs: May 12, and Oct. 4, for cattle and pedlery.

BURWELL, LINCOLN, a parish in the Wold division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Louth Eske, parts of Lindsey, union of Louth: 169 miles from London (coach road 144), 5 from Louth, 9 from Horncastle. Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough, Boston, and Alford, to Anthorpe station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, Lincoln, Boston, &c., 108 miles. Money orders issued at Louth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. Tanner says of this place—Here was an alien priory of Benedictine monks, given by some of the lords of Kyme to the abbey of St. Mary Silve Majoris, near Bourdeaux. After the general seizing of these houses, this came to the college of Tateshall, and, as part of the possessions thereof, was granted, in the 36th year of Henry VIII., to Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk. Burwell was the birth-place of the celebrated Sarah Jennings, wife of John, first Duke of Marlborough, whose supremacy for many years over the mind of Queen Anne, gave her a large influence in political matters—a power which was only forfeited by the most insufferable arrogance and ingratitude. The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage with the curacy of Walsgate, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £51: patron, M. B. Lister, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. M. Lister, 1837: contains 2,190 acres: 28 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 174: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,575: poor rates in 1837, £114. Fairs: May 14, and Old Michaelmas-day. Burwell Park is the seat of Henry Lister, Esq., who is a descendant of Thomas Lister, whose son John, in 1312, married Isabel, daughter and heiress of John de Bolton, bow-bearer of Bolland, who was, according to Dugdale, the lineal representative of the Saxon Earls of Mercia. A distinguished descendant of his was Sir Martin Lister, the most eminent physician of the seventeenth century, who died at Burwell in 1657, at the age of 92. Mr. Lister succeeded his father in 1843.

BURWELL, CAMBRIDGE, a village containing the united parishes of St. Andrew and St. Mary, in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Staploe, union of Newmarket: 70 miles from London (coach road 63), 4 from Newmarket, 8 from Ely. Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup>'s Rail. through Chesterford to Newmarket, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Syston and Peterborough to Newmarket, &c., 150 miles. Money orders issued at Newmarket: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. The village consists of one irregular street, but the church is a beautiful specimen of Gothic architecture. There are the ruins of a castle here, which was built before the Conquest, and which was besieged during the contest between Stephen and the Empress Matilda, when the Earl of Essex, the commander, was killed. There is an Independent chapel here. The living (Virgin Mary), a vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Sudbury, and diocese of Norwich, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £20: pres. net income, £335: patron, University of Cambridge: pres. incumbent, J. J. Baines, 1803: contains 6,505 acres: 284 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,820: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,093: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,420: poor rates in 1837, £1,099.

BURY, HUNTINGDON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Hurstingstone, union of St. Ives, on a branch of the river Nen: 62 miles from London (coach road 69), 1 from Ramsey, 8 from Huntingdon. Gt. Nor. Rail. through Huntingdon to Woodwalton, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Syston and Peterborough to Woodwalton, &c., 93 miles. Money orders issued at Huntingdon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. The church, which stands on an eminence, is a fine specimen of Gothic architecture. The living (Holy Cross), a perpetual curacy, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Huntingdon, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £25: pres. net income, £167: patron, Lady O. B. Sparrow: contains 2,480 acres: 47 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 359: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 412: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,082: poor rates in 1837, £167.

BURY, LANCASTER, a thriving market town and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Salford, union of Bury, comprising the townships of Coupe-Lench Newhall, Elton, Henheads, Musbury, Walmersley, and the chapelries of Heap, Tottington Higher, and Tottington Lower: 198 miles from London (coach road 197), 10 from Manchester. Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Manchester to Bury: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 87 miles. Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. and 8 p.m. Bury, although it has only within these few years risen to be a place of importance, is of very ancient origin, and is supposed by some antiquaries to have been a Roman station; at any rate its name, Byri, implying, in Saxon, a fortified place, shows it to have been a town of consideration during the predominance of the Saxons in England. During the time of Henry II. the estates here belonged to John de Lacy, from whose family they went to the Burys, and afterwards to the Pilkingtons, on the attainer of whom, in the reign of Henry VII., they were granted to the Stanleys, by whom they are now held. The town is neatly paved, lighted with gas, well supplied with water, and is being rapidly improved by the formation of new streets, the widening of old ones, the removal of dilapidated buildings, and the erection of villas in the suburbs. The church was erected in 1776 at a cost of about £3,500, and to it Bury St. John's is a chapel of ease, the living of which is a perpetual curacy, with an income of £159 a year: patron, the Rector of Bury. In addition to these, a new church has been erected within these ten years by the parliamentary commissioners, which is of great use, and is an ornament to the town. The free grammar-school was founded and endowed by the Rev. Mr. Kay, and endowed by him with estates which now produce about £450 a year. Two exhibitions of £25 each are attached to it, which are continued for seven years, during residence at either of the universities; and in one of the departments of it, ten girls are instructed from an endowment of £7 per annum for a mistress. There is also a large central national school here, and the other educational institutions are numerous, and sufficient for the place. The ordinary parochial charities produce about £52 a year. The Wesleyans, Independents, New Connexion, and Primitive Metho-diste, all have places of worship here, and there are also two Roman Catholic chapels. There is a good public subscription library here, a news-room, a mechanics' institution, a medical library, a botanical institution, and a savings bank. The ancient staple trade of Bury consisted of the spinning, weaving, and dyeing of wool; but that branch of business, though still extensive, has been far superseded of late years by the manufacture of cotton goods. For the former of these two businesses, the mills are about twenty, which afford employment to about 1,000 hands; but for the latter there are above 120 mills, in which from 14,000 to 16,000 persons are generally engaged. The extensive establishments connected by the eminent firm who succeeded the late Sir Robert Peel, stretch for a considerable distance along the banks of the river Irwell, not far from which there are extensive bleaching grounds. Bury was enfranchised by the Reform Bill, and now sends one representative to parliament: the returning officer for whom is appointed by the sheriff of Lancashire: the number of the constituency is about 770. The general government of the town is vested in three constables, who are appointed at the annual court-leet of the Earl of Derby, and they select a deputy-constable, who acts for life in unison with the county magistrates, his jurisdiction extending over the whole parish. A court-baron is held every three weeks, for the recovery of small debts. Considerable improvements in the manufacture of cotton were effected by two natives of Bury, John Kay and his son Robert; the latter of whom, who was born in 1760, invented the drop-box, by which the weaver can, if he chooses, use any one of three shuttles at pleasure. — The living (Virgin Mary), a rectory in the diocese of Manchester, is valued at £29. 11s. 5½d.: pres. net income, £1,937: patron, Earl of Derby: pres. incumbent, G. Hornby, 1818: contains 22,600 acres; 8,145 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 62,301: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 66,021: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £52,047: poor rates in 1837, £6,016. — Market day, Saturday. Fairs: March 5, May 3 and 30: September 18, horses, cattle, &c. — Bankers: Branch of Manchester and Liverpool District Banking Co.—draw on Smith, Payne, and Co.: Bury Banking Co.—draw on Glyn, Halifax, and Co. — Inns: Eagle and Child: Old Hare and Hounds: Boar's Head.

BURY, LANCASTER, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.)—Contains 2,370 acres: 2,743 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 20,710: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 21,910: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £16,545: poor rates in 1837, £2,096.

BURY, SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Bury, rape of Arundel: bounded on the east by the river Arun, and on the north by the Rother: it includes the tithing of Westburton: 76 miles from London (coach road 57), 4 from Arundel, 11 from Chichester. — Brighton and South Coast Rail. to Arundel station, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 208 miles. — Money orders issued at Arundel: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The parochial charities produce about £13 a year. — The living, a discharged vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Chichester, is valued at £7. 5s. 5d.: pres. net income, £100: patron, Prebend thereof: pres. incumbent, R. Powell, 1841:

VOL. I.

contains 3,340 acres: 80 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 611: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 703: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,497: poor rates in 1837, £261.

BURY ST. EDMUND'S, SUFFOLK, a borough and a market town,—the former comprising, and co-extensive with, the two parishes of St. James and St. Mary,—having separate jurisdiction, in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Thingoe: 95 miles from London, 28 from Ipswich. — East. Co<sup>h</sup>. Rail. to Bury St. Edmund's station: from Derby, through Syston and Peterborough to Newmarket, 146, thence 15 miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. and 8 a.m. — No place in the kingdom more forcibly exhibits the change that has come over the habits and thoughts of the British people than Bury St. Edmund's. At one time the residence of monarchy, the shrine of saints, the acme of ecclesiastical dignity, and the favoured resort of a lordly priesthood; its streets trodden by the concentrated forces of an irritated sovereign, or the scene where rebellious nobles gathered their hands to dethrone their king,—now wearing the quiet aspect of a country town, whose inhabitants follow the peaceful avocations of ordinary life, away from the influence of aristocratic pride, and the busy din of manufacturing bustle. The interest of Bury, then, lies chiefly in the long record of its annals, from the earliest age of authentic history to the close of the feudal era. It was a place of considerable importance before the diffusion of Christianity in Britain, and is believed to have been the Villa Faustina of the Romans; and soon after the settlement of the Saxons, it was made a royal burgh, called Beodric's worthe, or the home of Beodric, who seems to have held it at the time of the heptarchy: he bequeathed it to Edmund, King of the East Angles, who was murdered by the Danes, and afterwards canonized as a martyr. Lambard, in his quaint amusing style, gives the history of the town for several centuries to the following effect:—It is named of Kinge Edmund, whom the comon chronicles call St. Edmund, or Edmund the Martyr; for Bury is but to say, a court or palace. It was first a colledge of priestes, founded by Athelstane the kinge of England, to the honour and memorye of Edmund that was slayne at Hoxton (then called Eylesdunnd, as Leland thinketh), whose bones he removed thither. The hole hystorie of this matter is so entrelaced with miracles, that Polydor himselfe (who be-leaved them better than I) began to dalye with it, sayinge that monkes weare muche delighted with them; I meane therfore to follow the hystorie, and balke them al. In the yeare 1015, Sueno the Dane spoyled and brent this house; but Canut or Onout his son made thamendes, for he (by the intreatie of Aloyne, bishop of Helmam, to whome Polydor imputeth the hole foundation) made it a monasterie, enlarged the possessions, and made that trenche for the bond of their libertye, which is yet to be sene on New Market heathe. As for the towne, one Harvey, the keper of the churche, walled it somewhat after the Conquest. This abbey, and some other within the realme, weare of suche and so holye estimation, that (as Mathew Paris witnesseth) not only their churches und cloisters, but also their hole buildinges and territories, wear sure sanctuaries to al offendours. In tyme of Hen. II. Robert therl of Leycester (after the spoile of his towne of Leycester) came from beyonde the seas withe a rable of Fleminges and Normanes, whome he made to beleve that al was theirs before hand, and as he was on his way, he purposed to spoil this towne and thabbe; but bycause he might come upon them the more uncares, he swarved a litle out of the way, as though he ment not to come neare them. Now while his gallantes paused upon the heathe, they fell to daunce, and singe,

8 u

Hoppe Wylkin, hoppe Willykin, England is thyne and myne, &c.

*In the meane tyme the kinge's army came sodenly upon them, and eyther slew, drowned, or toke them all. In tyme of Kinge John, the barones of the realme assembling at this place by pretence of devotion, conspired to enforce the kinge to ratifie the charter of the liberties of England, now called Magna Carta. In the year 1258, under Hen. III. the friers minors got into this towne, by the auctoritie of the pope, and stronge hand of the earl of Gloucester, maugre al the monkes. Edward the First held a parliament in this abbey, wherein was graunted that cities and boroughes should pay the eight part of their goodes, and the rest of the realme but the twelfe part of the same. This respect of persons is not used in the parliaments of latter age. Humfrey, the renowned duke of Gloucester, was slaine in St. Saviour's hospital in this towne, by the hand of Pole, then duke of Suffolke, in the 25 of Hen. VI. his reigne. Thabbe was valewed at 1,659 poundes yearly. It was here that Henry I. did homage for his safe return from Chartres; and here it was that Henry II. caused the sacred standard to be displayed when about to meet his rebellious barons in the eastern counties; and in 1381, Sir John Cavendish, the lord chief-justice, was brought here by the insurgents, who beheaded him. During the reigns of the Plantagenets several parliaments were held here, but it was for its ecclesiastical character that Bury was chiefly noted—the shrine of St. Edmund continuing, for a long series of ages, to occupy an immense influence over the minds of the nobles as well as people of the country. Tanner gives the following account of the foundation and progress of this celebrated abbey. He says—*Sigebert, king of the East Angles, about the year 633, quitted his crown, and took upon him a religious life in a monastery which he had founded here, but after the death of that prince we have no certain account of the state of this place, though probably—as far as the incursions of the Danish wars would permit—some sort of religious persons continued to live together, and to officiate in the church here. For hither, as to a place of some note, the body of St. Edmund the king was translated from the obscure wooden chapel at Hoxne, A.D. 903. Immediately whereupon the town changed its name, and several secular priests settling here, built a new church to the honour of that royal martyr. There were at first not above seven or eight in number, but increased in a few years to be nineteen, viz., fourteen priests and five deacons, all having their several prebends, and became a perfect college about A.D. 925, when King Ethelstan is said to be their founder. This minster from thenceforward was augmented in privileges and revenues by King Edmund, by Theodud, bishop of London, and other benefactors, but, A.D. 1020, King Canute expelled the secular clerks, and placed herein a convent of Benedictine monks from Hulm in Norfolk. These, he and others endowed with so many estates, royalties, and immuni- ties, that this abbey of St. Edmund's was inferior to very few in revenues, and to none in England as to situation, buildings, ecclesiastical exemptions, or civil franchises and liberties. In the valuation of the 26th year of Henry VIII., its yearly income was computed at £1,659. 13s. 11d. ob. Dugd., £2,336. 16s., Speed. The site was granted, 2d Elizabeth, to John Eyere. The abbot was a baron of parliament, held synods in his chapter-house, and appointed the secular clergy of the parish. Neither were his temporal prerogatives of a less extensive order, for he possessed the power of trying and determining, by his high steward, all causes arising in the eight hundreds and a half which were comprised in the liberty of Bury; while in the town, and for a mile round, he held the authority of chief magistrate, and had the power of inflicting capital punishment, besides many other arbitrary powers, the exercise of which led at length to acts of the most serious violence. In 1327, the inhabitants gathered together a mob from the surrounding country, when the abbot was in London, and assailed the monastery, seized Peter Clopton the prior, compelled him to sign a charter for their self-government, and carried off gold and silver plate, books, vestments, and other valuables, to an immense amount. The riot was at length quelled by the royal troops: the alderman and twenty-four of the burgesses were imprisoned, thirty carts full of the rioters were taken to Norwich, nineteen of the most notorious leaders executed, and one pressed to death because he would not put himself upon his trial. Most of the documents and valuables were recovered; but the damage was still estimated at £140,000, which was ordered to be levied on the town and neighbourhood, but the whole amount was ultimately remitted. The fire of religious persecution raged here during the reign of Mary; and twelve persons were burnt to death in Bury for their religious opinions. When the superstitious character of James I. had diffused his own peculiarities through the country, and excited the popular zeal, especially against the sin of witchcraft, some most discreditable instances of the persecuting spirit took place. In 1644, a fellow named Matthew Hopkins, who styled himself 'witchfinder-general,' was commissioned with some others to perform a circuit for the discovery of witches, and was allowed twenty shillings for every town that he visited. They went through many parts of Essex, Suffolk, Norfolk, and Huntingdonshire, caused sixteen persons to be hanged at Yarmouth, forty at Bury St. Edmund's, and others in different parts of the country, to the number of sixty; and it is to this circumstance that Butler alludes, when his hero says—

*"Has not this present parliament
A sodger to the devil sent,
Fully empowered to treat about Finding revolted witches out?
And has he not, within one year,
Hanged three score of them in a shire?"*

Hopkins used every means of extortion to induce the miserable creatures, whom he pretended to suspect, to confess; and when the ordinary course of examination failed, he tied their thumbs and their toes together, and had them thrown into the water. If they swam, they were guilty; if they sank, they were innocent. If the latter ensued, death was certain, from their age and infirmities; if the former, which, after the first plunge, was almost sure to be the case,—for any human frame, when almost entirely under water, will float near the surface,—they were burned. This mode of trial was pursued by Hopkins for some time, until several gentlemen, indignant at his barbarity, took the law into their own hands, tried his own experiment upon him, and, as he swam, he accordingly found his appropriate hell through the very tortures which he had inflicted upon others, and, as Hudibras says,—

"He after proved himself a witch,
And made a rod for his own breech."

Almost the last of these miserable scenes occurred here in 1664, when two poor old women, whose only fault consisted in their age and decrepitude, were tried for the offence before that upright judge, Sir Matthew Hale, who refused to sum up the case, and left the whole to the jury, with a prayer to God to direct their hearts. The prisoners were executed; and the judge afterwards published such an account of the trial, as is believed led to the extinction for ever of the horrid superstition of burning women for witchcraft in Britain. But the climax of absurdity, and happily of a somewhat less serious character than those just detailed, of which Bury was to be the scene, occurred in 1650, when it is asserted as a fact, that an unfortunate nobleman having evinced a desire to forsake the cause of Cromwell, received from his termagant spouse a summary lesson, more wholesome than agreeable, which Butler describes in the inquiry—

"Did not a certain lady whp,
Of late, her husband's own lordship?
And, though a grandee of the house,
Clow'd him with fundamental blows;
Ty'd him stark naked to a bed-post,
And flogged his hide as she had rid post."

During the monastic era, the natives or residents of Bury distinguished for their attainments and character were numerous; but none was more celebrated than John Lydgate, called the 'Monk of Bury,' who derived his name from his native village, which is situated in this county, where he was born in 1380. Having been educated at Oxford, he travelled in France and Italy, and on his return opened a school in London. From there he retired to the convent at Bury, and died somewhere about the year 1446. He is characterized as an elegant poet, an acute philosopher, an able rhetorician, and a decent divine; and, considering the age in which he lived, his poetry was really good; for his language is less obsolete than Chaucer's, and, in some instances, his versification is more consonant with the harmony of modern English. His tomb in the abbey church was destroyed at the general dissolution of the monasteries. It bore this inscription—

"Mortuus socio, superis superates
Hic jacet Lydgate tumulatus urna,
Qui fuit quondam celebris Britannie
Fama poeas."

Which may be translated—

"Dead to the world, yet alive on high,
Entombed here in earth doth Lydgate lie,
Once through wide England famed for his poetry."

But another member of Lydgate's faith, a native of Bury, was a man of a far different stamp, who, beneath the priestly garb, hid not the flutterings of a heart aspiring for mental elevation, but the proud throbbings of an ambitious spirit, which recked no means provided they led to personal advancement. Stephen Gardiner, the too celebrated Bishop of Winchester,—who is said to have been a natural son of Richard Woodville, a brother of the Elizabeth of whom Edward IV. became so enamoured in an accidental rencontre, that he put off his engagement with the daughter of the Duke of Savoy, and married her,—was born here in 1483, and educated at Trinity Hall, Cambridge. On leaving the university, he entered the family of Cardinal Wolsey, who appears to have early discerned his peculiar character, and by him he was recommended to Henry VIII., under whom he rapidly rose to the first offices in the state. His talents were great, and he had a corresponding zeal for—his own interest; he accordingly took a large share in promoting the separation of Henry from his legitimate wife, Catherine of Arragon; though in after life he belied the whole of his principles, even abjured the pope's supremacy, and wrote a book in behalf of the king, entitled 'De Vera et Falsa Obedientia,' an excellent title if it had been well followed up, but pharisaism is a character, and will ever be the same. He opposed the Reformation in the following reign, was thrown into prison, where he remained for several years, but on the accession of Queen Mary was released, and then his fury broke forth. He was elevated to the office of lord chancellor, and intrusted with the chief direction of affairs. He secured the interests of his university, but he had a principal share in promoting those persecutions which lighted the fires of Smithfield. He died in November, 1555, deeply repentant for the barbarities which he had caused. In 1583, in one of her progresses, Queen Elizabeth visited Bury, and was magnificently entertained there. During the reign of her successor, the town was visited with a most calamitous fire, of which Stowe gives the following account:—In the year 1608, April 11th, being Monday, the quarter-session was held at St. Edmund's Bury, and by negligence an out-malt-house was set on fire, from whence, in a most strange and sudden manner, through fierce winds, the fire came to the farthest side of the town, and, as it went, left some streets and houses safe and untouched. The flame flew clean over many houses, and did great spoil to many fair buildings farthest off; and ceased not till it had consumed 160 dwelling-houses, besides others; and in damage of wares and household stuff to the full value of £60,000. Bury is well built, and contains many highly respectable houses and pleasing public buildings. The livings of the two parishes are perpetual curacies in the diocese of Ely: that of St. James is valued at £110. 14s., and that of St. Mary at £110; the gross income of the former is £106, and that of St. Mary £110. The incumbent of St. James is the Rev. C. P. Eyre, inducted in 1832; patron, J. Fitzgerald, Esq. The incumbent of St. Mary is the Hon. and Rev. E. Pellew, inducted in 1845; patron, H. Wilson, Esq. In addition to these there is the perpetual curacy of St. John's, of which the Rev. R. Rashdall was inducted in 1841; patron, the Bishop. The old church of St. Mary was erected in 1005, but was rebuilt in 1424: it is an elegant and spacious edifice, and contains the remains of Mary Tudor, third daughter of Henry VII. The old church of St. James was built in 1200, but having become decayed, the present beautiful edifice was raised upon its site in the year 1500; it is remarkably unique in the effect of its Gothic architecture, and the Saxon gateway, especially, is considered to be one of the finest specimens of Gothic architecture in the kingdom. The grammar-school, which was founded by Edward VI., stands in high repute, and there are not less than a hundred and ten boys on the foundation, each of whom pays £2. 2s. a year; attached to it are four exhibitions of £20 a year each, and two of £18. 15s. each,—all of which are available for the two universities of Oxford and Cambridge. An almshouse here, for six decayed housekeepers, endowed by Dr. Clopton, a descendant of the prior spoken of above, enjoys an income of £300 a year; and there is a general hospital for the county, capable of accommodating forty patients, which is attended gratuitously by the neighbouring faculty. An additional infirmary, called the East Suffolk, was founded in 1836. The Suffolk library, formed out of two, respectively instituted in 1790 and 1795, is situated in Abbey Street. The shire-hall, raised on the site of the old church of St. Margaret, the guild-hall, the wood-hall, the theatre, and the market-cross, are all erections well worthy of notice. The county prison, situated at a small distance from the town, was erected in 1805. It is a spacious structure, surrounded by a wall twenty feet high; the Marquis of Bristol, as present lord of the liberty, appoints the keeper. Besides this, there is a well-arranged house of correction for females, which was formerly the county prison. The court-rooms in the shire-hall are excellently arranged, having within these few years been much improved, better ventilated, and made easier of access. The Wesleyan Methodists, Baptists, Independents, Quakers, and Roman Catholics, all have chapels here. The chief business carried on is in wool, but within these few years the manufacture of camlets and other worsted stuffs has, to a certain extent, been encouraged. Being the centre of a large agricultural district, the business done at the several fairs is very extensive. That in October, especially, which is held for the sale of millinery goods and dairy produce, lasts for three weeks. The importance of these fairs has long been acknowledged, and the editors of Lyson's Magna Britannia, in stating it, say—The greatest of these fairs is on St. Matthew's day, and is famous all over England, not so much for merchandises as for the company, of which we shall give a short account presently. It is kept upon the Angel-hill, which is a large and spacious plain, encompassed with the best of the gentlemen's houses, before which, in the fair time, are erected tents and booths for the traders. All the neighbouring nobility and gentry come to it every afternoon, as the Duke and Duchess of Grafton, the Lord and Lady Cornwallis, the family of the late Lord Jermin, many knights and gentlemen of estates, and with them an infinite number of knights and gentlemen's daughters from Norfolk, Cambridgeshire, and Suffolk, who come here to market, and that not in vain, for this fair seldom concludes (as our author tells us) without some considerable matches or intrigues, very advantageous to the knights-errant who venture themselves. The diversions of this fair are raffling, till it is time to go to the comedy, which is acted every night, which being ended, the company goes to the assemblies, which are always in some gentleman's house or other during the fair. By the Municipal Reform Act, the government of the borough is vested in 6 aldermen and 18 common councilmen, whose public income is £1,200 a year. Petty sessions for the hundreds of Thingoe and Thedwestry, and the assizes for the county, are held in the town, to which a commission of the peace and a court of quarter sessions have been granted. Bury returned members to parliament in the 30th year of Edward I., but after that the privilege remained in abeyance till the 18th of James I.; since which time it has regularly sent two representatives, the franchise being vested, until the passing of the Reform Bill, in the corporation, which altogether had only thirty-seven votes. By the extension of the right of election to all the £10 householders, the constituency has been raised to about six hundred. — Contains 3,040 acres: 2,231 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 12,538: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 14,419: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £13,026: poor rates in 1837, £6,627. — Market days, Wednesday and Saturday. Fairs: Easter-Tuesday, cattle; Oct. 2; Dec. 1, cattle and cheese. — Bankers: John Wolledge—draw on Barclay, Bevan, & Co.; National Provident Bank of England—draw on London and Westminster. — Angel Hotel, One Bell Inn, Suffolk Hotel, and Half Moon Inn.

BURYAN (St.) CORNWALL, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Penwith, union of Penzance: 334 miles from London (coach road 315), 6 from Penzance, 4 from St. Paul. — Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol and Exeter to Plymouth, thence 90 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, &c., 348 miles. — Money orders issued at Penzance: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 6 p.m.: post closes 9 p.m. — St. Buryan is a place of great antiquity, and though now nothing more than a country village, was formerly of great consideration. King Athelstane, after his conquest of Devonshire and Cornwall, thought it necessary to visit the Scilly Isles, and, in gratitude for his success, caused a Benedictine priory to be built here, of which Tanner says—King Ethelstan is said to have built and endowed a collegiate church almost at the Land's End, and to have granted the benefit of a sanctuary and other privileges to the same, in honour of St. Burienna or Beriena, a holy woman from Ireland, who had an oratory, and was buried here. At the Conquest, here were several canons, as there were a dean and three prebendaries at the time of making the Lincoln taxation, 20th Edward I., and also down to 26th Henry VIII., though this deanery was seized into the king's hands, temp. Edward III., by reason that Mr. John de Maunte, then incumbent, was a Frenchman, and as alien, was given, 24th Henry VI., to King's college, Cambridge, and afterwards by King Edward IV. (an. reg. 7) to Windsor college. Yet neither of those societies long enjoyed, or had any benefit from it; for it was all along, and still continues, an independent deanery, in the gift of the Crown, or of the Duke of Cornwall, of exempt jurisdiction as a royal free chapel. The church is built upon a high ground, and serves as a sea-mark for mariners, forming a conspicuous object both from the Land's End, the Scilly Isles, and the north and south Channels. It is built wholly of granite, and contains three aisles; and the east end was formerly divided from the body of the church by an extensive rood-loft, which was adorned with a profusion of gilding. There is in the church a monumental stone, promising so many days' pardon to whoever shall pray for the soul of Claris de Boleit. The inscription is in old Norman French. There is also the remains of an old sanctuary in the parish; and on the shore are the ruins of a chapel, resembling that at Perrau Labuloe, "The Church in the Sands." The country around St. Buryan, though apparently rude, wild, and desolate, unenlivened by the mansions of the gentry, or the sweetly rural aspect of the English village, is replete with interest for the antiquarian and geologist, abounding in druidical remains, and in indications of the deposits of the several eras of the world's history. It has some beautiful valleys on the south coast,—above one of which is situated Boskenna, the country seat of Thomas Paynter, Esq., in one of the most picturesque and sheltered spots in England. From an estate and headland in this parish, Carn Boscawen, the Earls of Falmouth derive their first title, Boscawen Ros. —The living (St. Buryan), a deanery, with the parishes of St. Levan and Sennen annexed, in the diocese of Exeter, a royal peculiar, is valued at £48. 12s. 1d.; pres. net income, £1,100: patron, the Duke of Cornwall: pres. incumbent, Hon. F. Stanhope, 1819: contains 6,970 acres: 286 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,911: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,000: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £7,288: poor rates in 1837, £192.

BURYTHORPE, EAST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the wapentake of Buckrose, union of Malton: 239 miles from London (coach road 213), 4 from Malton, 13 from York. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, to Castle Howard station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 107 miles. —Money orders issued at New Malton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. —In 1768, Francis Conrith died here, who was said to be 150 years of age. —The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of the east riding and diocese of York, is valued at £6. 16s. 3d.: pres. net income, £270: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, Wm. Carter, 1848: contains 1,020 acres: 46 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 226: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,394: poor rates in 1837, £43.

BUSBY (GREAT AND LITTLE), NORTH RIDING, YORK, two townships in the parish of Stokesley, west division of Langbaugh—(which see for access, &c.): 240 miles from London, 2 from Stokesley, 11 from North Allerton. —Money orders issued at Stokesley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. —Contains 2,090 acres: 17 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 148: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,686: poor rates in 1837, £132.

BUSCOT, BEAKS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Shrivensham, union of Farringdon, on the river Thames or Isis: 76 miles from London (coach road 75), 1 from Lechlade, 4 from Farringdon. —Gt. West. Rail. through Reading to Farringdon Road station, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, and Didcot, to Farringdon Road, &c., 128 miles. —Money orders issued at Lechlade: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. —The name of the place was Burdwascot. —The living, a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Berks, and diocese of Salisbury, now in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £21. 2s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £457: patron, Pryse Pryse, Esq.: pres. incumbent, T. D. Hudson, 1830: contains 2,910 acres: 84 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 505: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 581: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,186: poor rates in 1837, £237. —S., Buscot Park.

BUSHBURY, STAFFORD, a parish in the north division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Seisdon, union of Penkridge, containing the hamlet of Moseley and the township of Essington: 130 miles from London (coach road 125), 3 from Wolverhampton, 8 from Walsall. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Wolverhampton, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Wolverhampton, &c., 59 miles. —Money orders issued at Wolverhampton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. —The situation of the village is remarkably agreeable, being sequestered under the shelter of a lofty hill, which is well covered with ancient yew-trees. Its ancient name was Biscopeshurie, which would seem to indicate that it was once the seat of a Mercian bishop. The church is an ancient edifice in the pointed style. —The living (St. Mary), a discharged vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stafford, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £7. 11s. 5½d.: pres. net income, £159: patrons, —Phillips, Esq., and others: pres. incumbent, William Lister, 1839: contains 7,610 acres: 134 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,509: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,735: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £8,802: poor rates in 1837, £430. —Moseley Court, the seat of G. F. Whitgreave, Esq.; Oxley House, of Alexander Hordern, Esq.; Low Hill, of John Pountney, Esq.; Old Felling's Hall, of G. Briscoe, Esq.; Wobaston House, of the Miss Forsters; Ford House, of William Tarratt, Esq.; and Bushbury Hill, of E. Phillips, Esq.

BUSHBY, LEICESTER, a hamlet in the parish of Thurnby, hun<sup>d</sup> of Gartree—(which see for access, &c.): 94 miles from London, 4 from Leicester, 2 from Houghton. —Money orders issued at Leicester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. —Contains 760 acres: 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 86: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,288: poor rates in 1837, £37.

BUSHEY, HERTFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Dacorum, but located in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Cashio, union of Watford: 19 miles from London (coach road 14), 1 from Watford, 8 from St. Albans. —Nor. West. Rail. to Watford, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Rugby to Bushey station, which is at the bottom of the town of Watford, the Watford station being a mile further on, 115 miles. —Money orders issued at Watford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. —The church is a small fabric of flint and rubble, with a tower at the west end, opening to the nave with a pointed arch. —The living (St. James), a rectory in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £18. 2s. 1d.: pres. net income, £765: patron, Exeter College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, W. Falconer, 1839: contains 3,130 acres: 329 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,675: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,076: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £6,847: poor rates in 1837, £593. Tithes com-mutated in 1806.---The heath is bounded on one side by the domain of Bentley Priory, the seat of the Marquis of Abercorn (for which see STANMORE), and on the others are numerous villas and residences of the neighbouring gentry. Of these, The Sparrows is the residence of Henry Barkley, Esq.; Sparrow House, of Charles Adamson, Esq.; Bushey Grange, of H. Harper Burchill, Esq.; Merry Hill, of Dr. Lushington; besides which there are the residences of Stewart Marjoribanks, Esq., and several others of the élite of the district.—N., The Manor House.

BUSHLEY, WORCESTER, a parish in the lower division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Pershore, bounded on the east by the river Severn: 126 miles from London (coach road 105), 2 from Tewkesbury, 12 from Evesham.---Gt. West. Rail. through Stonehouse to Tewkesbury, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Tewkesbury, &c., 83 miles.---Money orders issued at Tewkesbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---The living (St. Peter) is a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester: pres. net income, £58: patron, J. E. Dowdeswell, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Charles Allen, 1847: contains 1,740 acres: 65 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 334: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 384: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,280: poor rates in 1837, £69.

BUSHMEAD, BEDFORD, in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Barford: 5 from St. Neot's.

BUSHY-PARK, MIDDLESEX, situated in the parish of Teddington, and hund<sup>d</sup> of Spelthorne: 14 miles from London (coach road 13), 4 from Richmond, 4 from Hounslow.---Sou. West. Rail. to Richmond, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 146 miles.---There is a royal park here, bounded by the river Thames, which contains about 1,100 acres, and comprising the enclosures of Hampton, except the Home park. The avenues, of which there are nine, are shaded by noble chestnut and lime trees, and are noted for the magnificence of their appearance.

BUSLINTHORPE, LINCOLN, a parish in the eastern division of the wapentake of Lawres, parts of Lindsey, union of Caistor: 182 miles from London (coach road 149), 4 from Market-Raisen, 6 from Wragby.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Peterborough and Lincoln to Wicken, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham and Lincoln, &c., 63 miles.---Money orders issued at Market-Raisen: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stow, diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £2: pres. net income, £244: patron, Governors of the Charter-house, London: pres. incumbent, W. Ramsden, 1844: contains 1,220 acres: 9 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 50: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,037: poor rates in 1837, £35.

BUSTABECK, CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Castle-Sowerby, Leath ward---(which see for access, &c.): 300 miles from London, 12 from Penrith, 4 from Hesket-Newmarket.---Money orders issued at Penrith: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12 noon: post closes 1 p.m.---Contains 46 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 249.

BUSTON (HIGH AND LOW), NORTHUMBERLAND, two townships in the parish of Warkworth, on the coast north of the Coquet river---(which see for access, &c.): 306 miles from London, 5 from Alnwick, 3 from Lesbury.---Money orders issued at Alnwick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1½ p.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.---Contains 34 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 215: poor rates in 1837, £91.

BUTCOMBE, SOMERSET, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Hartoliff with Bedminster, union of Axbridge, north of the river Yeo: 137 miles from London (coach road 127), 2 from Wrington, 8 from Axbridge.---Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Yatton station, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, &c., 151 miles.---Money orders issued at Bristol: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 1 p.m.---The church is old and interesting.---The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bath, and diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £6. 17s. 10d.: pres. net income, £248: patron, Rev. R. P. Hassell: pres. incumbent, W. H. Cartwright, 1848: contains 2,010 acres: 45 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 256: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,922: poor rates in 1837, £88.

BUTELAND AND BROOMHOPE. See BIRLEY, NORTHUMBERLAND.

BUTLEIGH, SOMERSET, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Whitley, union of Wells: 167 miles from London (coach road 122), 4 from Glastonbury, 9 from Bruton.---Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Bridgewater, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, &c., 181 miles.---Money orders issued at Glastonbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---The living (St. Benedict), a vicarage, with the perpetual curacy of Baltonsborough, in the exempt jurisdiction of Glastonbury, in the diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £12. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £380: patron, Hon. and Rev. G. N. Greville: pres. incumbent, W. F. Neville, 1845: contains 4,670 acres: 177 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 872: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,002: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £6,962: poor rates in 1837, £406.

BUTLEY, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Prestbury, hund<sup>d</sup> of Macclesfield---(which see for access, &c.): 170 miles from London, 3 from Macclesfield, 8 from Knutsford.---Money orders issued at Macclesfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---Contains 1,500 acres: 138 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 602: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 692: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,946: poor rates in 1837, £204.

BUTLEY, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Loes, union of Plomesgate: 72 miles from London (coach road 82), 6 from Woodbridge, 14 from Ipswich.---East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Ipswich, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 204 miles.---Money orders issued at Woodbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.---It is ecclesiastically united with Capel St. Andrew, an adjoining scattered parish, without a church, and containing 2,272 acres, 43 houses, and about 200 inhabitants.---Tanner says of this place---Ranulph de Glanvil, the famous lawyer (and after justiciary of England), founded here, in 1171, a priory of black canons, which was dedicated to the blessed Virgin Mary. Its annual income at the dissolution amounted to £318. 17s. 2d., and the site of the monastery was granted, in the 32d of Henry VIII., to Thomas, duke of Norfolk, and four years afterwards to William Forth. The ruins are not now very considerable.

—The living (St. John the Baptist), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £13: pres. net income, £150: patron, Trustees of P. J. Thellusson, Esq.: pres. incumbent, S. Hobson, 1841: contains 1,941 acres: 74 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 364: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 340: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £1,139: poor rates in 1837, £81.

BUTLERS-MARSTON, WARWICK, a parish in the Kineton division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Kineton, on a small branch of the Avon: 101 miles from London (coach road 84), 1½ from Kineton, 10 from Stratford.

—Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Fenny Compton, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Fenny Compton, &c., 77 miles. —Money orders issued at Kineton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. —The living (St. Peter and St. Paul), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Worcester, is valued at £8. 3s. 4d.: pres. net income, £88: patron, Christ Church, Oxford: pres. incumbent, G. F. Thomas, 1846: contains 1,620 acres: 65 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 313: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 360: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £1,968: poor rates in 1837, £133. The great and small tithes, the property of the dean and chapter of Christ Church, Oxford, were commuted in 1771. —There is a large and commodious mansion in the parish, which has been for many years the property of the Woodward family, and has lately been repaired by the present occupant, Mrs. L. A. Woodward.

BUTSFIELD, DURHAM, a township in the parish of Lanchester, west division of Chester ward—(which see for access, &c.): 253 miles from London, 3 from Wolsingham, 11 from Durham. —Money orders issued at Darlington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. —Contains 1,390 acres: 52 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 252. —(Other returns with the parish.)

BUTTER-CRAMBE, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Bossall, wapentake of Bulmer—(which see for access, &c.): 210 miles from London, 10 from York, 8 from Malton. —Money orders issued at York: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. —Contains 1,550 acres: 32 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 175: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £3,123: poor rates in 1837, £118.

BUTTERLAW, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Newburn—(which see for access, &c.): 281 miles from London, 5 from Newcastle, 9 from Corbridge. —Money orders issued at Newcastle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 1 p.m. —Contains 7 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 16: poor rates in 1837, £5.

BUTTERLEIGH, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Clifton, but located in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Hayridge, union of Tiverton, east of the Exeter river: 184 miles from London (coach road 164), 4 from Tiverton, 3 from Collumpton. —Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Collumpton, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, &c., 197 miles. —Money orders issued at Tiverton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. —The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £10. 8s. 8d.: pres. net income, £170: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, J. Pike Jones, 1832: contains 2,520 acres: 29 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 155: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> 856: poor rates in 1837, £69.

BUTTERLEY. See EDWIN-RALPH WITH BUTTERLEY.

BUTTERLEY, DERBY, a hamlet in the township of Ripley, parish of Pentrich, hun<sup>d</sup> of Morleston and Litchurch: 136 miles from London, 3 from Alfreton. —There are some very extensive iron-works here, which belong to a company formed in 1792, upon which, either in mining, smelting, or casting, more than 1,500 work-people are employed, besides nearly thirty steam-engines, of an aggregate power of 700 horses. Among the fine castings achieved at Butterley, are the iron work of Vauxhall bridge, the iron roof for the Rum quay at the West India docks, the colonnade before the Queen's theatre, the iron bridges at the harbours of Dublin and Leith, and the whole of the main-pipes through which water is supplied to Edinburgh; the usual supply of the furnaces is about seventy tons of pig-iron per week. There are admirable facilities of transit both by canal and railway.

BUTTERMERE, CUMBERLAND, a chapelry in the parish of Brigham, Allerdale ward, above Derwent—(which see for access, &c.): 297 miles from London, 7 from Keswick, 9 from Cockermouth. —Money orders issued at Keswick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 2 p.m.: post closes 1 p.m. —Buttermere lake is a beautiful sheet of water, about a mile and a quarter long, by about half a mile wide, surrounded by some of the finest mountain scenery in England, foaming cataracts flowing from Honister Crag, at its southern extremity, at heights of from four to five hundred yards. —The living (St. Bridget), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond, diocese of Chester, is valued at £1: pres. net income, £56: patron, Earl of Lonsdale: pres. incumbent, J. M. Woodmason, 1843: contains 3,480 acres: 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 84: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £809: poor rates in 1837, £61.

BUTTERTON, STAFFORD, a township and chapelry in the parish of Mayfield, south division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Totmonalow, near the Manifold—(which see for access, &c.): 156 miles from London, 5 from Leek, 5 from Longnor. —Money orders issued at Leek: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. —The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stafford, diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £17: pres. net income, £90: patron, Vicar of Mayfield: pres. incumbent, G. P. Belcher, 1834: contains 1,940 acres: 79 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 388: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 446: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £3,118: poor rates in 1837, £291.

BUTTERTON, STAFFORD, a township in the parish of Trentham, north division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Pirehill—(which see for access, &c.): 2 miles from Newcastle. —Money orders issued at Newcastle-under-Lyne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. —Contains 470 acres: 6 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 56. —(Other returns with the parish.)

BUTTERWICK, DURHAM, a township in the parish of Sedgfield, south of the river Skern—(which see for access, &c.): 251 miles from London, 7 from Stockton, 11 from Durham. —Money orders issued at Stockton-on-Tees: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12 noon: post closes 2 p.m. —Contains

1,010 acres: 7 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 51: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,120: poor rates in 1837, £38.

BUTTERWICK, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Skirbeck, parts of Holland, union of Boston, on the coast near Boston Deep: 141 miles from London (coach road 120), 4 from Boston, 12 from Wainfleet. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. through Peterborough to Boston, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham and Lincoln to Boston, &c., 85 miles. — Money orders issued at Boston: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The living (St. Andrew) is a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, united in 1751 to that of Frieston, and having jointly a pres. net income of £350: patron, Rev. Thomas Homer, D.D.: pres. incumbent, Thomas Homer, D.D.: contains 1,370 acres: 90 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 579: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 605: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,170: poor rates in 1837, £238.

BUTTERWICK, EAST RIDING, YORK, a chapelry in the parish of Foxholes, wapentake of Dickering — (which see for access, &c.): 206 miles from London, 10 from Great Driffield, 3 from Foxholes. — Money orders issued at Driffield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12½ p.m.: post closes 12 noon. — The living is a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of the east riding and diocese of York: pres. net income, £47: patron, Rector of Foxholes: contains 1,540 acres: 17 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 100: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,402: poor rates in 1837, £53. Tithes commuted in 1771.

BUTTERWICK, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Barton-le-Street, on the river Rye — (which see for access, &c.): 224 miles from London, 6 from New Malton, 4 from Middleton. — Money orders issued at Malton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — Contains 500 acres: 12 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 64: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,336: poor rates in 1837, £50.

BUTTERWICK (EAST), LINCOLN, a township in the parish of Messingham — (which see for access, &c.): 154 miles from London, 8 from Kirton, 11 from Glandford-Brigg. — Money orders issued at Boston: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12 noon: post closes 1 p.m. — Contains 680 acres: 58 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 200: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,929: poor rates in 1837, £137.

BUTTERWICK (WEST), AND KELFIELD, LINCOLN, a township and chapelry in the parish of Owston, west division of the wapentake of Manley, parts of Lindsey, intersected by the river Trent: 153 miles from London. — (For access and postal arrangements, see above.) — The living is a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stow, diocese of Lincoln: pres. net income, £80: patron, Vicar of Owston: pres. incumbent, J. J. Wilkinson, 1845: contains 163 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 846: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 972: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,494: poor rates in 1837, £173.

BUTTERWORTH, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Rochdale — (which see for access, &c.): 202 miles from London, 4 from Rochdale, 15 from Burnley. — Money orders issued at Rochdale: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — Contains 987 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 5,088: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 5,851: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £8,247: poor rates in 1837, £1,161.

BUTTINGTON, MONTGOMERY, a parish within the jurisdiction of the borough of Welshpool, North Wales, on the banks of the Severn: Offa's Dyke passes through the parish: it includes the townships of Cletterwood, Hope, and Trewern: 220 miles from London (coach road from Shrewsbury to Welshpool, 18), 2 from Welshpool, 8 from Montgomery. — Nor. West. Rail. through Stafford and Shrewsbury to Welshpool, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Crowe, &c., 120 miles. — Money orders issued at Welshpool: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m. — A fierce battle was fought here in 894, between the Saxons and the Danes, and relics of these contests and of the Danish forts are continually discovered. Almost the last of the bloody battles fought by the Welsh for their national independence took place here. In three separate holes, 330 human skulls were discovered in the churchyard, while excavating for school-room in 1837, covered with arm, leg, and thigh bones. — The living is a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Montgomery, and diocese of St. Asaph: pres. net income, £133: patron, Vicar of Welshpool: pres. incumbent, R. Dawkins, 1834: contains 144 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 826: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 950: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,222: poor rates in 1837, £354.

BUTTSBURY, ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Chelmsford, on the river Wid: 35 miles from London (coach road 26), 6 from Chelmsford, 3 from Billericay. — East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. to Chelmsford, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 167 miles. — Money orders issued at Chelmsford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. — The living (the Virgin Mary) is a perpetual curacy, annexed to the rectory of Ingatestone, and having jointly a pres. net income of £420: patron, Lord Petre: pres. incumbent, John Lewis, 1796: contains 1,440 acres: 100 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 521: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 599: poor rates in 1837, £291.

BUTTULPH, SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Steyning, rape of Brambor, union of Steyning: 60 miles from London (coach road 51), 2 from Steyning, 10 from Arundel. — Brighton and South Coast Rail. to Shoreham, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 192 miles. — Money orders issued at Steyning: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — The river Agur is navigable on the eastern boundary of this parish. — The living is a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, annexed to the rectory of Brambor: contains 910 acres: 10 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 48.

BUXHALL, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Stow, intersected by the upper and lower Ged and the river Orwell: 83 miles from London (coach road 80), 3 from Stow-Market, 10 from Ixworth. — East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. to Stow-Market, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 215 miles. — Money orders issued at Stow-Market: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. — The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Sudbury, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £20. Os. 5d.: pres. net income, £578: patron, Copinger Hill, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Charles Green, 1826: contains 2,120 acres: 73 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 533: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 613: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,905: poor rates in 1837, £306.

BUXLLOW, a hamlet in the parish of Knodishall, hun<sup>d</sup> of Blything. — The living is a rectory, annexed to that of Knodishall. — (Pop<sup>n</sup>. returned with the parish.)

• BUXTED, SUSSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Loxfield Dorset, rape of Pevensey, union of Uckfield, intersected by a branch of the river Ouse: 49 miles from London (coach road 51), 1 from Uckfield, 10 from Lewes. — Brighton Rail. to Hayward's Heath station, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 181 miles. — Money orders issued at Uckfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — In 1718, a bequest was made to the parish by Mr. A. Saunders, for the teaching and apprenticing of six boys, and the instruction of six girls; and Sir H. Fermor left £3,000, the interest of which is applied in clothing ten children of this parish, and thirty of Rotherfield. There was formerly an hospital here for six poor persons. It is asserted that the first pieces of cast-iron made in England were run in the village. — The living (St. Margaret), a rectory, with the perpetual curacy of Uckfield, in the exempt deanery of South Malling, and one of the twenty-two parishes in Sussex which are in the peculiar jurisdiction of the Archbishop of Canterbury, is valued at £37. 5s. 2½d.: pres. net income, £408: patron, Archbishop of Canterbury: pres. incumbent, H. Kingsmill, 1846: contains 7,020 acres: 290 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 1,574: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 1,810: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £4,417: poor rates in 1837, £663. — Fair: July 31, for cattle and pedlery. — Buxted Park.

BUXTON, DERBY, a market town and chapelry in the parish of Bakewell, hun<sup>d</sup>. of High Peak: 170 miles from London (coach road 162), 33 from Derby. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Derby to Buxton station: from Derby, by railway, 38 miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — Buxton stands on the late high road from London to Manchester; and though surrounded by high and bleak hills, like an oasis in the desert, is one of the most salubrious and agreeable places that any one can stop at, the town itself being handsomely built, and the surrounding district affording ample and inspiring walks for those who have strength and health to enjoy them. Antiquarians agree in considering Buxton to have been the Bucostenum station of the Romans; but the place was subsequently called Bankestanes, believed to be a corruption of Bathunstones, or Bathstones; one of the Roman roads which crosses it still retains the appellation of Bathorn Gate; and it is certain that the Romans, who were not slow to find out the advantages of a position, here constructed a bath, the wall of which still remains. Near it two great military roads intersected the country, one connecting Little Chester with Manchester, and the other passing through York to Aldborough, at each of which places there were important positions. Ebenezer Rhodes, the friend of Hofland, Chantrey, and the early kindly friend also of the writer of this article, — the gentle, the gentlemanly, who, with a lofty station, enjoyed an aspect of the softest goodness, than whom no one could more deeply appreciate and earnestly enjoy the varied aspects of nature, — who, by the witchery of his taste, threw around Chatsworth an air of elegance, in every trace of which refinement glows, — whose description of the High Peak of Derbyshire will long remain the acme of the descriptions of English rural scenery, — thus speaks of Buxton: — Strangers entering Buxton from the south must be greatly disappointed in their expectations. The Crescent, and the numerous buildings by which it is surrounded, together with the whole of the modern part of the town, are hid in the deep hollow below, over which the eye passes to the hills beyond, and nothing is seen but a miserable village, placed in as miserable a country as the mind can possibly conceive. Approaching the Eagle inn the place improves; but it is not until we arrive at the brow of St. Anne's cliff that the new part of Buxton, with its elegant buildings and splendid hotels, is beheld. The transition is so sudden, and the change of scene so complete and entire, that the mind, bewildered and confused, almost doubts the reality of so extraordinary a contrast. The upper part of Buxton is truly a Derbyshire village; the lower, in the elegance of its buildings, its show, and its parade, approximates to Bath. Nothing can be more instantaneous or more forcibly felt than the change of passing from one part to the other of this fashionable bathing-place; and the company who visit it during the summer season, furnish a contrast equally striking and impressive. The bloom of health, and the sallowness of disease — the elastic bound of youth, and the failing step of infirmity — wealth and poverty, and all the gradations that society produces between, are here mingled together, teaching a salutary lesson to the observing stranger as he passes along. But the town has all the appliances of comfort and enjoyment. Within these few years, a new church has been built, of the Tuscan order, of freestone, chiefly through the munificence of the Duke of Devonshire, the patronage of which is enjoyed by his Grace, who has also been a great patron of the town in other respects, and by whom that noble range of buildings, called the Crescent, was erected. At the eastern extremity of this range, two bath-houses have been built to receive the waters of Bingham's well, which pour in at a temperature of 81°; and fronting the Crescent, there is a pleasure-ground tastefully laid out after the manner of the parks and squares in London, judiciously interspersed with shrubberies and walks. Adjoining the Crescent is the New Square, which, like it, has an arcade that forms a promenade of considerable extent. Near the Crescent, also, there is a handsome temple-like building, which encloses St. Anne's well, generally drunk by the visitors and invalids, and the waters of which are conveyed there into a marble basin from the original spring; a singular interest attending them from the fact, that both hot and cold waters are supplied from sources not situated farther than twelve inches from each other. The active ingredients of the Buxton water appear to be hydro-chlorate of soda, and carbonate of lime; it has a brilliant sparkling appearance, and is taken before breakfast and before dinner, being stimulant and invigorative in its qualities, and devoid of that rapid taste, which is so often the drawback upon drinking mineral waters. The season lasts through the whole of the summer months, and during it the town is visited by from 12,000 to 15,000 persons of the highest respectability. The suburbs abound with highly picturesque scenery, and it is from here that Axedge, one of the highest summits of Derbyshire, is generally reached. It is about three miles from the town, and attains the elevation of 1751 feet above the level of the sea—the Crescent being about 1,000 feet above the sea. With respect to the neighbourhood, the author above cited says—Within the last half century the neighbourhood of Buxton has been much improved by cultivation and plantation, judiciously arranged on the adjacent hills by the command of the dukes of Devonshire. The present noble duke, following the example of his illustrious father, is continually adding to the rides, walks, and plantations in the vicinity. The serpentine walk commences opposite the square, winding beautifully on each side of the Wye. The walks are well laid out, the cascades and bridges have a good effect, and the trees, which are shooting into beauty, render it a delightful spot. The more recent improvements on St. Anne's Cliff were designed by Sir Jeffery Wyatville, and render that hill a highly ornamental pleasure-ground, harmonizing with the classic architecture of Carr. A series of terrace-walks, one above another, sweep in a circular direction, to agree with the convex form of the hill, and communicate with each other by flights of steps at each end, and in the centre of the different walks. Half a century ago, Buxton was described as being situated amidst the most dreary and cheerless scenery in the Peak of Derbyshire, and the country as exhibiting one wide extent of hopeless attraction. Half a mile from the town is Diamond Hill, so called from the number of detached crystals found in the caverns in its sides; and about three quarters of a mile off is Poole Hole, a large and dreary cavern, full of stalactites, into which Mary Queen of Scots is said to have penetrated, and from which circumstance one of the pillars within it has been called by her name. The Wesleyans and Independents have chapels here. There is, moreover, a school with a good endowment, and a charity for poor patients, each of whom not only enjoys the waters gratuitously, but receives five shillings a week for support during their stay, with baths, medicines, and medical advice free. The trade of the town chiefly consists in the manufacture of ornaments from spars and stalactite. The living, a perpetual curacy, in the peculiar jurisdiction of the dean and chapter of Lichfield, is valued at £5: pres. net income, £105: patron, Duke of Devonshire: pres. incumbent, R. P. Hull Brown, 1842: contains 540 acres: 211 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,569: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,810: poor rates in 1837, £355. Market-day, Saturday. Fairs: Monday preceding the Thursday before Old Candlemas, April 1, May 2, Monday before the second Wednesday in September, October 28. Hotels: Eagle, George, and Grove; Hall Inn.

BUXTON, NORFOLK, a parish in the south division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Erpingham, union of Aylsham, western bank of the river Bure: 136 miles from London (coach road 118), 3 from Coltishall, 8 from Reepham. Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Norwich, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, Norwich, &c., 176 miles. Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. A school here has a small endowment. Petty sessions are held here for the southern division of Erpingham hundred. The parochial charities produce about £140 a year. The living is a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, annexed to the rectory of Skepton: contains 1,460 acres: 127 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 713: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 820: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,506: poor rates in 1837, £207.

BUXTON AND COXALL, HEREFORD, a township in that part of Bucknill parish which is in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wigmore, bounded on the north and west by the river Clun, and on the south by the Teme—(which see for access, &c.): 13 from Knighton. Contains 1,430 acres: 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 116: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,606: poor rates in 1837, £67.

BWLCH, MONMOUTHSHIRE, a township in that part of the parish of Cwmyoy, which is in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Abergavenny, on the northern bank of the river Monnow—(which see for access, &c.): 164 miles from London, 7 from Crickhowel, 9 from Brecon. Money orders issued at Crickhowel: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. Contains 650 acres: 16 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 87: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £713: poor rates in 1837, £38.

BYERS-GREEN, DURHAM, a township in the parish of St. Andrew's Auckland, south-east division of Darlington ward—(which see for access, &c.): 249 miles from London, 1 from Bishop's Auckland, 8 from Durham. Money orders issued at Bishop's Auckland: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. Contains 790 acres: 49 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 489: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 562: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,326: poor rates in 1837, £207.

BYFIELD, NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Chipping-Warden, union of Daventry: 98 miles from London (coach road 74), 7 from Daventry, 9 from Banbury. Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Fenny Compton, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Rugby and Banbury to Fenny Compton, &c., 74 miles. Money orders issued at Daventry: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. There is an Independent chapel here. The parochial charities produce about £46 a year. The living (the Holy Cross), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £28: pres. net income, £917: patron, Corpus Christi College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, C. Wetherell, 1819: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,079: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,241: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,587. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1778.

BYFLEET, SURREY, a parish in the first division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Godley, situated between the river Wey and the Junction Canal: 21 miles from London, 3 from Cobham, 5 from Chertsey. Sou. West. Rail. to Weybridge station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 153 miles. Money orders issued at Cobham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. Edward II. presented the manor to his favourite, Piers Gaveston, and Henry VIII. was nursed here. The parochial charities produce about £28 a year. The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Surrey, and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £9. 11s. 8d.: pres. net income, £187: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, C. V. H. Sumner, 1834: contains 2,760 acres: 212 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 679: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 777: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,191: poor rates in 1837, £567. — S. E., Pains Hill Park.

BYFORD, HEREFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Grimsworth, union of Weobley, on the northern bank of the river Wye: 148 miles from London (coach road 142), 7½ from Hereford, 6 from Weobley. — From Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 101 miles. — Money orders issued at Hereford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £7. 1s. 8d.: pres. net income, £230: patron, Sir H. G. Cotterell, Bart.: pres. incumbent, James Johnson, 1820: contains 910 acres: 40 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 236: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £924: poor rates in 1837, £106. — Garnons, in this parish, is the seat of the patron. It is finely situated on the south-western acclivity of Bishopstone Hill, and commands various and extensive prospects, in which the river Wye forms a principal feature. The grounds are tastefully disposed, and ornamented with some fine timber. Sir Geers Henry Cotterell derives his immediate descent from Sir John Brookes Cotterell, who was high sheriff of the county, and knighted in 1761, whose son, John Geers Cotterell, Esq., a colonel in the army, and for many years representative for Herefordshire in the House of Commons, was created a baronet in 1805. His grandson, the present baronet, succeeded his brother in the title and estates in 1847.

BYGRAVE, HERTFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Odsey, union of Hitchin, near the Icknield Way and Metley Hill: 39 miles from London, 3 from Baldock, 6 from Roystone. — Gt. Nor. Rail. through Hitchin to Baldock, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 171 miles. — Money orders issued at Baldock: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. — The living, a rectory in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £17. 9s. 7d.: pres. net income, £377: patron, Marquis of Salisbury: pres. incumbent, T. Blackburne, 1832: contains 1,860 acres: 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 154: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,069.

BYKER, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of All Saints, Newcastle, bounded on the south by the river Tyne—(which see for access, &c.): 275 miles from London, 1 from Newcastle, 5 from Shields. — Money orders issued at Newcastle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. — The schools are numerous, and there is a Wesleyan chapel here. — The living is a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Durham: pres. net income, £130: patron, Crown and Bishop alternately: pres. incumbent, T. R. Green, 1845: contains 835 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 6,024: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 6,928: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £17,501: poor rates in 1837, £647.

BYLAND-CUM-MEMBRIS, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Coxwold, wapentake of Birdforth: 251 miles from London (coach road 220), 7 from Helmsley, 9 from Aldborough. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Leeds, to Thirsk, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 119 miles. — Money orders issued at York: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes 12 noon. — Tanner, in speaking of this place, says—Roger de Mowberry, at the instance of his mother, Gundreda, A.D. 1143, removed the convent of Cistercian monks from Hoda, to a part of her jointure near the river Rye, almost opposite to the abbey of Rysoall (Risevaux), since called Old Byland, which place being thought inconvenient for the habitation of these religious, four years after they removed to Stocking, near Crickwold, and at last, A.D. 1177, fixed a little more easterly, near Whitaker, where the abbey of Byland, dedicated to the blessed Virgin, continued in a flourishing state till the general dissolution, when its yearly revenues were valued at £238. 9s. 4d. Dugd.; £295. 5s. 4d. Speed. The site and most of the demesne lands were granted, 32d Henry VIII., to Sir William Pykering. The abbey was built of oolitic limestone, and the west front part of the aisles, and one end of the transept, still remain. — Contains 3,130 acres: 76 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 97: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,461: poor rates in 1837, £59.

BYLAND-OLD, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a parish in the wapentake of Birdforth, union of Helmsley Blackmoor, close on the river Rye: 227 miles from London, 5 from Helmsley, 7 from Moorside. — (For access and postal arrangements, see above.) — The living (the Blessed Virgin), a donative curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cleveland, and diocese of York, is valued at £14: pres. net income, £55: patron, G. Wombwell, Esq.: pres. incumbent, C. Mackereth, 1828: contains 3,120 acres: 25 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 185: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,147: poor rates in 1837, £112.

BYLAUGH, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Eynsford, union of Mitford and Launditch, on the river Wensum: 134 miles from London (coach road 105), 5 from East Dereham, 5 from Reepham. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Dereham to Elmham station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, Dereham, &c., 154 miles. — Money orders issued at Dereham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — The living (the Virgin Mary), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich: pres. net income, £75: patron, E. Lombe, Esq.: pres. incumbent, L. A. Norgate, 1836: contains 1,580 acres: 12 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 75: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,094: poor rates in 1837, £154.

BYLEY WITH YATEHOUSE, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Middlewich, hun<sup>d</sup> of Northwich, near the Trunk Canal—(which see for access, &c.): 167 miles from London, 1 from Middlewich, 5 from Northwich. — Money orders issued at Middlewich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Chester: patron, the Vicar: pres. incumbent, C. B. Hodges, 1847: contains 820 acres: 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 149: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,535: poor rates in 1837, £205.

BYRKLEY (or BURTLE-HOUSE), SOMERSET, in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Whitley.

BYRNESS (or BERENESS), NORTHUMBERLAND, a chapelry in the parish of Elsdon, south division of Coquetdale ward, on the river Reed—(which see for access, &c.): 13 miles from Bellingham. — Money orders issued at Hexham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. — The living is a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northumberland, and diocese of Durham: pres. net income, £75: patron, Rector of Elsdon: pres. incumbent, John Burrell. — (Pop<sup>n</sup>. returned with the parish.)

BYROME WITH POOLE, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township, partly in the liberty of St. Peter of York, and partly in Brotherton parish, lower division of the wapentake of Barestone-Ash, on the river Aire—(which see for access, &c.): 181 miles from London, 1 from Ferry Bridge, 4 from Pontofract.—Money orders issued at Ferry Bridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—Contains 850 acres: 12 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 79: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,008: poor rates in 1837, £79.

BYSHAM MONTAGUE. See BISHAM.

BYSHOTTLES. See BRANDON, DURHAM.

BYTHAM (LITTLE), LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Beltisloe, parts of Kesteven, union of Bourne, on the river Glen: 123 miles from London (coach road 98), 8 from Bourne, 8 from Stamford.—Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough to Stamford, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Syston to Stamford, &c., 78 miles.—Money orders issued at Bourne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.—The living, a rectory, with the vicarage of Castle Bytham, and the curacy of Holywell, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £4. 8s. 4d.: pres. net income, £610: patron, Bishop, and Dean and Chapter of Lincoln, alternately: pres. incumbent, Charles A. Wheelwright, 1811: contains 1,010 acres: 50 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 311: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 358: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,267: poor rates in 1837, £51. The great and small tithes, &c., of Little Bytham, and the hamlet of Awnby, the property of the dean and chapter of Lincoln, the clerical rector, and the vicar, were commuted in 1801.—N., Grimsthorpe Park—(for which see GRIMSTHORPE.)

BYTHAM (CASTLE), LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Beltisloe, parts of Kesteven, union of Bourne, comprising the chapelry of Holywell with Awnby, and the hamlet of Counthorpe, east of the great north road: 97 miles from London, 5 from Corby, 12 from Grantham.—(For access and postal arrangements, see above.)—There is a school here, endowed with £25 a year.—The living is a vicarage annexed to the rectory of Little Bytham: contains 776 acres: 129 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 672: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 772: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £6,056: poor rates in 1837, £358.

BYTHORN, HUNTINGDON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Leightonstone, union of Thrapston: 93 miles from London (coach road 71), 4 from Thrapston, 12 from Huntingdon.—Nor. West. Rail. through Northampton to Thrapston, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Weedon, and Northampton, &c., 105 miles.—Money orders issued at Thrapston: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.—There is a Baptist chapel here.—The living is a curacy annexed to the rectory of Brington: contains 1,510 acres: 65 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 322: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 370: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,857: poor rates in 1837, £183. The great and small tithes, the property of the clerical rector, were commuted in 1800.

BYTON, HEREFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wigmore, union of Presteigne, south of the river

Lug, near Shobden-hill-wood: 153 miles from London (coach road 146), 4 from Presteigne, 9 from Leominster.—Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 35 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 106 miles.

—Money orders issued at Presteigne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes noon.—There is a charity here, founded by John Woodhouse, producing about £9 a year, which is distributed among the poor.—The living, a discharged rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £5: pres. net income, £115: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, George Naylor, 1806: contains 1,030 acres: 32 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 172: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,000: poor rates in 1837, £56.

BYWELL (St. ANDREW'S), NORTHUMBERLAND, a small parish in the east division of Tindale ward, union of Hexham, containing the townships of Beal, Broomhaugh, Riding, Stocksfield-hall, and Styford, on the river Tyne: 318 miles from London (coach road 283), 13 from Newcastle, 8 from Hexham.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, York, and Gateshead, to Stocksfield station, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 186 miles.—Money orders issued at Newcastle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.—The river Tyne runs through the parish. There are the picturesque remains of Bywell Castle, formerly, it is thought, one of the old border-keeps, close by the church, though in the parish of St. Peter's.—The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northumberland, and diocese of Durham, is valued at £3. 9s. 2d.: pres. net income, £159: patron, W. B. Beaumont, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Jos. S. Jaques, 1843: contains 3,680 acres: 81 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 452: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 519: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,368: poor rates in 1837, £191.—Bywell Hall, the residence of Mr. Beaumont.—Styford Hall, the residence of Major Charles Bacon Grey.

BYWELL (St. PETER'S), NORTHUMBERLAND, a parish of nearly eight miles in length, and five miles in breadth, in the eastern division of Tindale ward, union of Hexham, on the north of the Tyne, comprising the following townships:—Acomb East, Apperley, Bromley, Bywell St. Andrew's and St. Peter's, Espersields with Millshields, High Fotherly, Heally, Newton, Newton Hall, and Stelling, with Whittonshill and Newlands, a chapelry and township united.—(For access and postal arrangements, see above.)—There are the remains of an ancient castle here; and the village, which is very romantically situated, constitutes, with its neighbourhood richly backed with woods, a very beautiful landscape. The river Tyne runs on the south of the parish.—The living (St. Andrew), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northumberland, diocese of Durham, is valued at £9. 18s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £119: patron, Dean and Chapter of Durham: pres. incumbent, B. E. Dwaris, 1846: contains 21,780 acres: 265 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,512: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,739: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £13,627: poor rates in 1837, £584.

C.

CABOURNE, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Bradley-Haverstoe, parts of Lindsey, union of Caistor: 157 miles from London, 2 from Caistor, 10 from Great Grimsby.---Nor. and East Co. Rail. through Peterborough and Lincoln to Moortown station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham and Lincoln to Caistor, &c., 74 miles.---Money orders issued at Caistor: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m.---The church of this parish is Saxon, and the font is one of the most ancient in the diocese. The water is of the purest description, proceeding from springs out of the chalk rock. On the highest point of the Lincolnshire wolds, within the boundaries of the parish, the late Earl of Yarborough erected a noble monument, in memory of the first Lord Yarborough, called Pelham's Pillar, from which extensive views are commanded of the river Humber, from Spurn Point almost to its junction with the Ouse, Lincoln Cathedral, Beverley Minster, &c., and we gladly transcribe some elegant lines written respecting it by the Rev. James Giffard, late vicar of the parish, who lately died full of years and goodness. It should be observed, that the first Lord Yarborough, who greatly improved his estates, planted more than twelve millions of trees upon 4,000 acres of land:—

"Who should he be who first this steep ascends,
But he, tho' humblest, most attached of friends;
He, who the lofty Column eager climbs,
While gratitude gives vigour to his limbs,
Which age denies, and memory the while Affords such balm as sweetens all the toil?
Upward I press the Cupole to seek,
For there enshrined thy sculptured features speak,
As of the Genius of the Woods around,
Wide spread o'er league on league of shady ground.
Trees here in millions planted first by you,
Their leafy honours now again renew;
To you a touching epitaph record,
Which brass or marble could not thus afford.

Commemorate the noble Planter's hand,
Who doubled thus the value of their land.
The Hunters too, the busy pack at fault,
Compelled to shiver in unwilling halt,
Bless, for the shelter these thy trees afford,
Their former leader and their long-loved Lord.
High o'er the woods beneath, it nobly towers,
Seen from the Sea, and Humber's distant shores;
And Time shall lentient to this Column prove;—
'Tis reared by gratitude and filial love."

---The living (St. Nicholas), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £5. 18s. 4d.: pres. net income, £270: patron, Earl of Yarborough: pres. incumbent, Sir Charles Macgregor, Bart.: contains 2,860 acres: 21 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 166: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £545: poor rates in 1837, £112.

CABUS, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Garstang, intersected by the Lancaster Canal—(which see for access, &c.): 231 miles from London, 3 from Garstang, 7 from Lancaster.---Money orders issued at Garstang: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---Contains 1,220 acres: 41 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 253: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,198: poor rates in 1837, £171.

CADBURY, DEVON, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Haybridge, union of Tiverton: 189 miles from London (coach road 167), 6 from Crediton, 8 from Collumpton.---Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Hele station, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Hele, &c., 202 miles.---Money orders issued at Crediton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £9. 4s. 4d.: pres. net income, £163: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, N. F. Lightfoot, 1846: contains 2,620 acres: 47 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 251: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,003: poor rates in 1837, £114.

CADBURY (NORTH), SOMERSET, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Catsash, union of Wincanton: it includes the hamlets of Galhampton, Woolston, and Blackford Wood: 138 miles from London (coach road 127), 3½ from Castle Cary, 6 from Bruton, 7 from Sherborne.---Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Bridgewater, thence 25 miles: from Derby, through Bristol, Birmingham, &c., 189 miles.---Wilts, Somerset, and Weymouth Railway (when completed), will pass through the adjoining parishes, with a station at Sparkford, 2 miles distant.---Money orders issued at Castle Cary: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---The living (St. Michael), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £28. 17s. 3½d.: pres. net income, £700: patron, Emanuel College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, R. Foley, B.D., 1842: contains 2,630 acres: 218 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,075: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,334: poor rates in 1837, £463.---Cadbury House, the seat of James Bennett, Esq.---Woolston House, the seat of Robert Perfect, Esq., M.P.---Galhampton House, the seat of Foster Mellyar, Esq.

CADBURY (SOUTH), SOMERSET, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Catsash, union of Wincanton: 174 miles from London (coach road 117), 6 from Wincanton, 6 from Sherborne.---Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Bridgewater, thence 22 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Bridgewater, &c., 187 miles.---Money orders issued at Wincanton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.---There are the remains of an encampment in the neighbourhood, called Camalet, which Camden believes to be the site of the ancient Cathbregion, where the Saxons were routed in a great battle by King Arthur.---The living (St. Thomas à Becket), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £10. 3s. 1½d.: patron, J. Bennett, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Henry Bennett, 1831: contains 800 acres: 53 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 254: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,025: poor rates in 1837, £97.

CADDINGTON, Bedford, a parish and township, partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Flett, union of Luton, in the above county, and partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Dacorum, county of Hertford: 52 miles from London, 2 from Luton, 4 from Dunstable.---Nor. West. Rail. through Leighton-Buzzard to Dunstable, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Rugby and Leighton to Dunstable, &c., 102 miles.---Money orders issued at Luton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The living (All Saints) is a vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bedford, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Ely: pres. net income, £319: patron, Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's: pres. incumbent, William Mellard, 1829: contains 4,500 acres: 312 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,747: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,009: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> 4,602: poor rates in 1837, £452.

CADEBY, West Riding, York, a township in the parish of Sprotsborough, wapentake of Strathforth and Tickhill, in the vicinity of the Dearn and Dove Canal---(which see for access, &c.): 163 miles from London, 4 from Doncaster, 5 from Tickhill.---Money orders issued at Doncaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---Contains 1,110 acres: 34 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 153: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,434: poor rates in 1837, £102.

CADEBY, Leicester, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Sparkenhoe, union of Market-Bosworth: it includes the township of Osbaston: 118 miles from London (coach road 105), 2 from Market-Bosworth, 11 from Leicester.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Leicester to Bedford station, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Leicester, &c., 45 miles.---The living, a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Leicester, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £4. 10s. 2½d.: pres. net income, £223: patron, Sir W. W. Dixie, Bart.: pres. incumbent, R. T. Adnutt, 1836: contains 2,130 acres: 75 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 395: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 454: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,254: poor rates in 1837, £274.

CADELEIGH (or CADLEY), Devon, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Haybridge, union of Tiverton: 188 miles from London (coach road 166), 4 from Tiverton, 8 from Bampton.---Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Tiverton, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Bristol, &c., 201 miles.---Money orders issued at Tiverton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---The living (St. Bartholomew), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £13: pres. net income, £198: patron, Mrs. Moore: pres. incumbent, P. F. Brittain, 1845: contains 2,020 acres: 59 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 403: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 463: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,491: poor rates in 1837, £89.

CADLEY, Wilts, an extra-parochial liberty in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Kinwardstone.---(Returns with the parish of Chute.)

CADLEY. See CADELEIGH.

CADNAM, Hants, a hamlet, partly in the parish of Eling, and partly in the parish of Minstead---(which see for access, &c.): 80 miles from London, 4 from Lyndhurst, 9 from Southampton.---(Returns with the parishes.)

CADNEY, Lincoln, a parish in the southern division of the wapentake of Yarborough, parts of Lindsey, union of Glandford-Brigg: it includes the township of Housham, and the extra-parochial of Newstead: 194 miles from London (coach road 157), 3 from Glandford-Brigg, 8 from Caistor.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Peterborough, Lincoln, and Market-Raisen, to Housham station: from Derby, through Nottingham, Lincoln, &c., 75 miles.---Money orders issued at Redbourn: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, with that of Housham annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £7. 18s. 4d.: pres. net income, £230: patron, Lord Yarborough: pres. incumbent, Samuel Turner, 1823: contains 5,100 acres: 53 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 438: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 504: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,378: poor rates in 1837, £162.

CADOXTON, GLAMORGAN, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Neath, South Wales: the hamlets of Blaen-honddan, Coed-frank, Dyffryn-clydach, Dy-lais (Lower and Upper), Neath (Middle, Lower, and Upper), and Ynis-y-mond, form the parish of Cad-oxton: 187 miles from London (coach road 206), 1 from Neath, 8 from Swansea.---Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Weston-super-Mare, thence across the channel by Cardiff, 49 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Weston, &c., 201 miles.---Money orders issued at Neath: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 2 p.m.: post closes 10½ a.m.---The neighbouring hills are particularly rich in mineral produce, which finds a ready and profitable outlet through the Neath Canal.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, with the chapels of Aber-Pergwn and Crynant, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Llandaff, is valued at £5. 11s. 10½d.: pres. net income, £240: patron, C. H. Leigh, Esq.: pres. incumbent, D. H. Griffith, 1838: contains 903 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 5,794: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 6,663: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £17,886: poor rates in 1837, £1,892.

CADOXTON NEAR BARRY, GLAMORGAN, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Dinas-Powis, union of Cardiff, South Wales, situated near the Bristol Channel: 153 miles from London (coach road 165), 8 from Cardiff, 10 from Llandaff.---Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Weston-super-Mare, thence across the channel, 15 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Weston, &c., 166 miles.---Money orders issued at Cardiff: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 1 p.m.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Llandaff, is valued at £5. 2s. 1d.: pres. net income, £100: patron, R. F. Jenner, Esq., and others: pres. incumbent, G. Powell, 1834: contains 63 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 242: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £368: poor rates in 1837, £36.

CADWELL. See BRIGHTWELL-BALDIN.

CADWELL-PRIORY. See BEDFORD.

CAENBY, LINCOLN, a parish in the eastern division of Aslaoe, parts of Lindsey, union of Lincoln: 190 miles from London (coach road 146), 6 from Market-Raisen, 11 from Lincoln.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Peterborough and Lincoln to Market-Raisen, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, Lincoln, &c., 71 miles.---Money orders issued at Spital: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---The living (St. Nicholas), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stow, and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £4. 13s. 4d.:

pres. net income, £280: patron, Sir C. M. L. Monck, Bart.: pres. incumbent, Hugh Nanney, 1848: contains 1,760 acres: 26 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 185: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,680: poor rates in 1837, £88.---Caenby Hall, the seat of John Golden, Esq.

CAERDIFF. See CARDIFF.

CAERGURLEY (or CAERGWRLE), FLINT, a township in the parish of Hope, hun<sup>d</sup> of Mold, North Wales, situated upon the river Alyn, or Allen—(which see for access, &c.): 187 miles from London, 5 from Wrexham, 7 from Hawarden.---Money orders issued at Wrexham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---The old castle here was once the residence of Eleanor, Queen of Edward I. In Nicholson's Cambrian Guide there is the following notice of this place:—The castle at present exhibits a most picturesque ruin, consisting of a mutilated circular tower, and some fragments of walls. It does not appear to have ever been a large structure, yet the site was uncommonly favourable. Aided by the British post, Caer Estyn, stationed upon the opposite elevation, formed of ditch and rampart, the castle was calculated to defend this pass. The valley here narrow as to leave little more space than is sufficient for the Alyn to pass through its romantic dingles. The country, however, opens in the distant vale, and the river expands at the village of Gresford. Nearly the whole of this rock is composed of brescia, or that mixed kind of gritstone so coarse in its texture, as to bear the appearance of small pebbles imbedded in mortar. It has been applied to the purpose of forming millstones, but they are inferior to French burs. The surrounding hills consist of limestone, which is burnt upon the spot, and mostly sold into Cheshire. In the overlay of loose earth are numerous organic bodies called entrochi and astroites. A singular kind has been found here, with protuberant joints, conjectured to have been parts of the species called Asterias arborescens, arborescent sea-star; the branches of which resemble these substances, the shape being cylindrical, made up of several articulations. On the demesne of Rhyddyn, almost close to the river Alyn, are two springs strongly impregnated with muriate of soda, resembling the celebrated fountain at Barrowdale, near Keswick, in Cumberland. These were formerly much frequented by scorbutic patients. The dose was from one to two quarts in a day. To increase the strength, people boiled the water till half was wasted by evaporation, the effect was then purgative, acting as a powerful cathartic, producing nausea. In small doses they operate diuretically. Many Roman relics have been found in the neighbourhood.---Pop<sup>n</sup> with the parish of Hope.---Fairs, Shrove-Tuesday; May 10; August 12; October 27, cattle.

CAERHUN, CARNARVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Isaf, union of Conway, North Wales, situated on the west bank of the Conway river: 235 miles from London (coach road 321), 5 from Llanrwst, 5 from Aberconway.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Chester to Conway, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Burton, Crewe, &c., 135 miles.---Money orders issued at Conway: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 3 p.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---The living is a vicarage annexed to the rectory of Llanbedr, and having jointly a pres. net income of £289: patron, Bishop of Bangor: pres. incumbent,

J. Hamer, 1826: contains 256 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,257: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,445: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,671: poor rates in 1837, £503.

CAERLEON, MONMOUTH, a market town in the parish of Llangattoch, lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Usk: 135 miles from London (coach road 146), 17 from Monmouth.---Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 32 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Stonehouse, &c., 135 miles.---Money orders issued at Newport; London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.---The following interesting history of this place is taken from Warner's admirable account of it; and as it affords a vivid depiction of the Romans when seated in Britain, we readily transcribe it at length:—Much of the present town stands within the precincts of an ancient Roman camp, the walls of which still partially exist, though deprived of their facings, and so dilapidated as to leave their foundation scarcely visible in many places. Their form is parallelogramical, and their extent nearly six hundred yards by five hundred. A little to the north-west of these, in a meadow, a circular depression or concavity of the ground occurs, which is supposed by the initiated to be a Roman amphitheatre; though the profane vulgar consider it as the place of revelry between Arthur and his knights of the Round table, and assert that the hero, when he quitted mortal existence, sank into the earth at this his favourite spot. The present name, Caerleon, that is, 'the Castle or camp of the legion,' clearly points out a Roman origin. Horsley—than whom we cannot follow a better authority—supposes that the Romans arrived at this spot in the reign of Antoninus Pius, about the middle of the second century; and finding it to be a place agreeing in the circumstances of its situation with their system of castrametation, they made it the station, or head-quarters, of the second Augustan legion. In allusion to this disposition of a particular body of troops, they called it Isca Legionis Secundae Augustae; or Isca Silurum, as being the capital city of the Silures or South-Wallians. Here, it appears, the legion continued till within a short time of the departure of the Romans from Britain; since inscriptions towards the close of the empire, and coins of some of the later emperors, have at different times been discovered on this spot. From these circumstances, as well as from the extensive ruins which have accidentally presented themselves in a circle round the present town of a mile in diameter, it cannot be questioned that Caerleon became, under the auspices of the Romans, a large and magnificent place,—exhibiting those specimens of grandeur and refinement which generally decorated a Roman city—a forum, temples, baths, and theatres. The arts, indeed, seem to have been cultivated here to a high degree, as the many elegant relics of antiquity, and beautiful fragments of Roman masonry, formerly to be seen in the possession of different people at Caerleon, sufficiently testify. But its chief glory arose from the success with which intellectual acquirements were pursued; for if we give credit to the testimony of an ancient author, cited by Camden, we are to believe that Caerleon was a second Crotona, since he tells us (just previous to the arrival of the Saxons in Britain) there was an academy of two hundred philosophers at this place! Even during the times of the Romans in Britain, it appears that Caerleon enjoyed the blessings of the Christian religion. Three noble churches are said to have been erected in it, almost as soon as the gospel found its way into this country, one of which was constituted the metropolitan church of all Wales. Here the archiepiscopal seat continued till the time of St. David, who, towards the close of the sixth century, translated it to Menevia, or, as it was afterwards called, from the name of this canonized prelate, St. David's. The deities of classical mythology, however, had their worshippers also, and the great goddess of the Ephesians boasted a temple erected to her honour in the city of Caerleon. How long the Roman forces were continued at Caerleon, is not to be ascertained. The second Augustan legion had retired from it, previous to the final desertion of Britain by that people; but as coins of the Valentinians have been discovered here, we may conclude that it was a station as low down as the beginning of the fifth century. The enfeebled and emasculated Britons, when deprived of the aid of the Romans, became an easy prey to the fierce hordes of Saxon invaders who flocked to this country about the middle of the fifth century. Caerleon, with the country surrounding it, fell into their hands, and, doubtless, suffered severely in the undistinguishing destruction which followed all the conquests of these barbarous tribes. It soon recovered its pristine splendour, however; and under the protection of the British hero, the renowned Arthur, who wrested it from the Saxons after a fierce battle, it became once more a place of consideration. Here it was that he received the crown from the hand of Dubritius, Bishop of Llandaff, on being elected King of all Britain; and here he instituted that order of chivalry, the Round table, which makes so conspicuous a figure in the old romances. Thus Caerleon became the scene of royal amusement, in which the British dames of Arthur's court were, at Easter and Christmas, entertained with the jousts and tournaments of his hundred and thirty noble knights. Little occurs relative to Caerleon during that period of darkness and confusion, known by the name of the Middle ages. It successively felt the fury of the Saxon and the Dane, and was afterwards alternately in the possession of the English and Welsh. The castle, a remain of which is seen on the north side of the bridge, seems to have been erected about the middle of the twelfth century, if, indeed, it be the same called by Powel the 'New Castle upon Usk.' At that time the English held the town, but surrendered it, after a desperate resistance, to Jorweth ap Owen, prince of South Wales, in 1773. In the ensuing year, Caerleon experienced another change of masters, when a large army of English and Normans took possession of it; they retained it, however, but a few months, King Henry II. again restoring it to its rightful owner, Jorweth ap Owen, on this prince and the other South-Wallian leaders doing homage to him at Gloucester. In the year 1218, Caerleon fell once more into the hands of the English, under William, Earl of Pembroke, and experienced all the horrors of a complete sacking, the frequent effect of military ferocity in the feudal ages. Llewellen ap Jorweth recovered it in 1231, and it was retained by his descendants till the complete reduction of Wales by Edward I. The town, which consists principally of two streets, is very pleasantly situated on the banks of the river Usk, which all along this portion of its course is famed for the excellence of its salmon. The church is a handsome edifice, but the houses are mostly old, and fast going to decay. There is, however, every prospect of its revival. A great interest has been excited lately in its antiquities, in which it is very rich, whether in Roman inscriptions, pottery, coins, pavements, and other works of art. A handsome building, in the form of a Grecian temple, is now in the course of erection, in which all the curiosities will be preserved, and lie ready for the inspection of strangers. It is probable that, in the course of time, the wealthy merchants of Newport will build suitable residences on so healthy and interesting a spot. There is a bridge of three arches here over the river. The Baptists, Independents, and Wesleyan Methodists, all have chapels here. The living, a discharged vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Monmouth, and diocese of Llandaff, is valued at £8. 1s. 5d.: pres. net income, £296: patron, Dean and Chapter of Llandaff: pres. incumbent, Daniel Jones, M.A., 1831: contains 550 acres: 224 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,174: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,350: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,878: poor rates in 1837, £173. Market day, Thursday. Fairs: third Wednesday in Feb., May 1, July 20, and Sept. 21.

CAERMARTHEN. See CARMARTHEN.

CAERNARVON. See CAERNAEVRON.

CAERPHILLY (or ENNERGLYTH), GLAMORGAN, a market town in the parish of Eglwys Ilan, hund<sup>d</sup> of Caerphilly, South Wales, situated on a small branch of the river Rumney, in a wide plain, which is surrounded by rugged mountains: 161 miles from London (coach road 160), 2 from Monmouth, 7 from Cardiff. Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Weston-super-Mare, thence across the Channel to Caerphilly, 25 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, Weston, &c., 174 miles. Money orders issued at Cardiff: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m. This place contains some well-built houses, and there are many collieries and iron-works in the vicinity, but the manufacture of woollen shawls, and other similar articles, is the principal business of the inhabitants; indeed, the hundred of Caerphilly is one of the most prosperous and populous of South Wales. One fact connected with the district is very singular—that whereas at Monmouth, which is only two miles distant, the inhabitants generally speak nearly pure English; at Caerphilly they use nothing but Welsh, but that is fast disappearing before the increasing communication of the other parts of Britain; so that, with regard to this neighbourhood, it is believed that it will shortly be as Mr. Barrington found it in his tour through Cornwall in search of the genuine Cornish—he discovered only one poor old woman, ninety years of age, who spoke it, and only two other old women that could understand her. (Returns with the hamlet of Ennerglyn.) Market days: Thursday; first Thursday in March, and first Thursday in May, are great markets. Fairs: April 5, June 6, July 19, Aug. 25, Oct. 9, Nov. 16; Thursday before Christmas-day, for cattle, horses, sheep, and pigs.

CAERSEDDFYN, MONTGOMERY, a township in the parish of Darowen, hund<sup>d</sup> of Marhynlleth—(which see for access, &c.): 200 miles from London, 6 from Marhynlleth, 1 from Darowen. Money orders issued at Marhynlleth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 4½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. Contains 88 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 513: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 590: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> along with Noddfa, £2,732.

CAERTON-ULTRA-PONTERN, MONMOUTH, a hamlet in the parish of Christ Church, hun<sup>d</sup> of Caldicot, situated on the south of the river Usk: 146 miles from London, 1 from Caerleon, 2 from Newport. (For access, &c., see CAERLEON.) (Returns with the parish.)

CAERWENT, MONMOUTH, a parish in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Caldicot, union of Chepstow: it includes the hamlet of Crick: 128 miles from London (coach road 142), 6 from Chepstow, 7 from Caerleon. Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 25 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Stonehouse, &c., 128 miles. Money orders issued at Chepstow: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. Although now only an inconsiderable village, Caerwent was at one time, like Caerleon, a place of high importance, and is well ascertained to have been the Venta Silurum of the Romans, described in the Itinerary of Antoninus, and is indeed supposed to have been the capital city of the Britons in Siluria. It is still partially surrounded by Roman walls, which enclose an area about a mile in circumference; and coins, fragments of columns and statues, and tessellated pavements of great beauty, have frequently been found in and about the neighbourhood. The ancient Roman road, called Akerman Street, now forms part of the turnpike road which runs through the town, at the two extremities of which, within the circuit of the place, were the two chief gates. The Particular Baptists have a place of worship here. At a small distance from Caerwent are the remains of Caldicot Castle, formerly a stronghold of the Bohuns, earls of Hereford. The keep, the immense round tower opposite the village, the circular tower at the southern angle, the ruins of several apartments, and among them of the baronial hall, a till remain. The principal entrance consists of a noble gateway, flanked by massive turrets. The whole is surrounded by a moat. The living (St. Stephen), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, united with the vicarage of Matherm, and perpetual curacy of Llanvair-Discoed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Llandaff, is valued at £7.11s. 8d.: pres. net income, £352: patron, Dean and Chapter of Llandaff: pres. incumbent, M. Steel, 1843: contains 1,900 acres: 75 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 446: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 512: poor rates in 1837, £192.

CAERWYS, FLINT, a market town and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Rhuddlan, North Wales, situated on a small branch of the river Clydd: 204 miles from London (coach road 212), 7 from Holywell, 6 from Denbigh. Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Chester to Holywell, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Burton, Crewe, &c., 144 miles. Money orders issued at Holywell: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. There is a school here endowed with an allotment of common ground, of which the trustees receive the rent. Caerwys is governed by two bailiffs, chosen at the court-leet of the lord of the manor. Formerly, the assizes were held here, but they have been removed to Mold. This place is joined with Flint and six others in returning one representative to parliament. The Calvinistic Methodists have a chapel here, and so have the Wesleyans.

VOL. I.

There was anciently an Eisteddfod, or trial of bards and harpers, when all the bards were assembled annually, and a harp was given to the best by the Welsh nobles, but the custom ceased in the 9th year of Elizabeth's reign. The living, a united rectory and vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of St. Asaph, is valued at £19: pres. net income, £425: patron, Bishop of St. Asaph: pres. incumbent, Morgan Davies, 1849: contains 209 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 987: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,135. ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,614: poor rates in 1837, £414. Market day, Tuesday. Fairs: March 5, last Tuesday in April, Trinity Thursday, first Tuesday after July 7, Aug. 29, Oct. 8, Nov. 5, cattle.

CAINHAM, SALOP, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Stottesden, union of Ludlow, southern division, on a branch of the river Teme: 153 miles from London (coach road 137), 3 from Ludlow, 5 from Tenbury. Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford and Worcester to Kidderminster, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Kidderminster, &c., 91 miles. Money orders issued at Ludlow: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £4.13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £338: patron, Rev. J. Mainwaring: pres. incumbent, J. Mainwaring, 1818: contains 3,040 acres: 180 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 973: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,118: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,555: poor rates in 1837, £351. Tithes commuted in 1779.

CAIRE (or CAIRAU), GLAMORGAN, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Kibbor, union of Cardiff, South Wales, in the vicinity of the Llandaff Canal: 163 miles from London, 3 from Cardiff, 3 from Llandaff. Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Weston-super-Mare, thence across the channel by Penarth to Cairau, 154 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, Weston, &c., 167 miles. Money orders issued at Cardiff: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. The living is a perpetual curacy, not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Llandaff: pres. net income, £60: patron, Prebend of Caire: pres. incumbent, C. Emerson, 1837: contains 17 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 80: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £544: poor rates in 1837, £64.

CAISTOR (or CASTOR), LINCOLN, a market town and parish in the south division of the wapentake of Yarborough, parts of Lindsey, union of Caistor: 191 miles from London, 12 from Great Grimsby. Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire Rail. to Moortown station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham and Lincoln to Moortown station, &c., 70 miles. Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. Caistor is a very agreeable, cheerful little town, situated on the side of a hill: it abounds in springs of the purest water. Besides the parish church, it contains three places of worship for dissenters. The church itself is an ancient edifice, and consists of a chancel, north and south aisles, south transept, and tower at the west end. It contains three effigies of the Hundon family, one of whom, Sir William de Hundon, died in the reign of Edward I. He built the north aisle; and, like the powerful proprietors in the turbulent reign of Henry III., committed some aggressions on the property of his weaker neighbours, the king's take-men in Caistor Moor, for which he was called up before the king's justices, in the 9th year of Edward I. The pleadings are preserved in the rolls of Plac. quo Warranto for that year. Tradition ascribes the origin of the town to the castle which was built here by the Romans. Dr. Stukeley says—I saw enough of the old Roman wall to evince its founders. One great piece stands on the verge of the churchyard, and another by the house. There are more behind the school-house, in the pastures; and I have met with many men that have dug at its foundations in several places. It is built of white rag-stone, laid sometimes sideways, sometimes flat, in mortar exceedingly hard, full of pebbles and sand; nor is it mixed to any fineness, so that I conjecture they used to pour the mortar on liquid as soon as the lime was slaked. Certain lands at Broughton, near Brigg, were held by a singular tenure. The proprietor of the estate employed a person on Palm Sunday, in every year, to take a gad-whip, made in the fashion of several centuries since, the stock being bound round with four pieces of wyche-elm, and a leathern purse, containing thirty silver pennies, attached to its extremity, and during divine service to make it crack three times in the church porch; he afterwards took it into the church, and held it over the head of the clergyman while the second lesson was being read: the whip was afterwards deposited with the tenant of Hundon, a hamlet in the parish. The ceremony, so utterly opposed to the sense of solemnity requisite for divine worship, was kept up until the last two years, under the supposition that the owner of the Broughton estate would be subject to some severe penalty to the proprietor of Hundon unless it was performed. About two years ago the Broughton estate was sold, and the new proprietor has since discontinued the custom. The marriage between Rowena, the daughter of Hengist, and Vortigern, the British prince, was celebrated here in 453. Caistor must have been the scene of many bloody conflicts, as the bones of men and horses have been dug up in all parts of the town. Fibulae, and beads of Romano-British character, have also been found. The grammar-school was founded in 1630, by the Rev. Francis Rawlinson, and subsequently received a bequest from William Hansard, Esq. It has an exhibition of £10 a year at Jesus College, Cambridge, open to all the sons of the inhabitants. The present head-master is William Ellis, LL.D. The town is under the jurisdiction of the county magistrates. The Caistor poor-law union comprehends seventy-six parishes, spread over an area of 164,898 acres, and comprising a population of about 27,000 persons: the annual expenditure, prior to the formation of the union, was about £10,500; it is now about £12,000 per annum. The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, with the chapelries of Holton-le-Moor and Clixby, is valued at £7. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £280: patron, the Rev. W. F. Hook, D.D. (Vicar of Leeds), the Prebendary thereof: pres. incumbent, H. Maclean, 1844: contains 3,220 acres: 433 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,988: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,286: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> in 1838, £7,572: poor rates in 1848, £602. 12s. 4d. Waste lands enclosed in 1798. Tithes commuted in 1839. Market day, Saturday. Fairs: Friday before Palm Sunday, for sheep and cattle;

3 r

Saturday before Whitsuntide; Friday after Old Michaelmas, for cattle. Bankers: Smith, Ellison, & Co.—draw on Smith, Payne, & Co.; Lincoln and Lindsey Banking Company open a room at the Red Lion on market days—draw on Prescott, Grote, & Co. Inns: Red Lion, George, &c. The present lord of the manor is George Skipworth, Esq., Moortown House.—Brooklesby Park, the seat of the Earl of Yarborough, is seven miles from Caistor. In the park is the mausoleum, a costly structure, commenced in 1787 under the direction of James Wyatt. The Pelham Pillar, commenced by the late, and completed by the present earl, is a mile and a half from Caistor, and stands on the highest spot of ground in the county.—Riby Grove, four miles from Caistor, the seat of George Tomline, Esq., late M.P. for Shrewsbury.—There was formerly a mansion at Caistor, the seat of the Maddison family.

CAISTOR (or CAISTER-ST.-EDMUND'S), NORFOLK, a parish in Henstead hun<sup>d</sup>, union of Henstead: 130 miles from London (coach road 104), 4 from Norwich, 11 from Bungay. Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Norwich, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Syston and Peterborough to Norwich, &c., 170 miles. Money orders issued at Norwich; London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. This is now but an inconsiderable village, but was anciently the principal station of the Romans in the country of the Iceni, and was termed the Venta Icenorum. The living (St. Edmund's), a rectory, consolidated with the rectory of Merkahall, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norfolk, is valued at £9: pres. net income, £447: patron, Mrs. H. Dashwood: pres. incumbent, John Arthy, 1842: contains 910 acres: 45 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 147: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £14,115: poor rates in 1837, £113.

CAISTOR, near YARMOUTH, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of East Flegg, eastern division, situated on the sea-shore: 148 miles from London (coach road 125), 2 from Yarmouth, 2 from Great Ormsby. Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Yarmouth, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, and Norwich, to Yarmouth, &c., 188 miles. Money orders issued at Yarmouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. This place has, by several antiquaries, been supposed to be the Garriannonum of the Romans, but it would rather seem to have been dependant upon and opposite to that fort. Tanner says of it—There had been an ancient free chapel in the manor-house here, dedicated to St. John the Baptist, as early as the reign of Henry I., wherein Sir John Fastolfe (who died in the 38th year of Henry VI.) intended to have erected a college for seven monks or secular priests (one of whom to be head) and seven poor men, and to endow the same with 120 marks, rent charge, out of several manors which he gave or sold to his cousin, John Paston, senior, Esq., charged with this charity. This Mr. Paston, senior, laboured to establish this pious foundation, according to Sir John Fastolfe's design, till his death—the sixth year of Edward IV.—as did afterwards his son and heir, Sir John Paston, Knt. But whether ever it was incorporated and fully settled, I much doubt, there being no further mention of it either in the rolls, or in the Bishop of Norwich's registry; only in the valuation, in the twenty-sixth year of Henry VIII., there is said to have been a chantry in Castore Hall, of the foundation of Sir John Fastolfe, Knt., worth £2. 13s. 4d. per annum. The sum of £105 a year, devised by Mrs. Blennerhasset and Sir William Paston, is applied to the purchasing of coal for the poor. A range of hills, called the Meals, or Marum Hills, extends, with little interruption, to Hapsbury Point, where two lighthouses have been erected. The living, a vicarage, consolidated with the rectory of St. Edmund's, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £875: patron, Rev. G. W. Steward: pres. incumbent, G. W. Steward, 1829: contains 2,920 acres: 168 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 909: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,045: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £4,106: poor rates in 1837, £297.

CAISTRON, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Rothbury, northern division, north of the Coquet river—(which see for access, &c.): 310 miles from London, 13 from Morpeth, 18 from Alnwick. Money orders issued at Morpeth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 2 p.m.: post closes 11½ a.m. Contains 9 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 54: poor rates in 1837, £55.

CALBOURNE, HANTS, a parish in the liberty of West Medina, Isle of Wight: it includes the ancient chapelry and borough of Newton: 102 miles from London (coach road 94), 5 from Newport, 4 from Carisbrook. Sou. West. Rail. to Portsmouth, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 234 miles. Money orders issued at Newport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. The living (All Saints) is valued at £19. 12s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £464: patron, Bishop of Winchester: pres. incumbent, R. Sumner, 1845: contains 5,090 acres: 137 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 655: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 753: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £4,629: poor rates in 1837, £549.

CALCEBY, LINCOLN, a parish in the Marsh division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Calceworth, parts of Lindsey, union of Spilsby: 163 miles from London (coach road 141), 2 from Alford, 8 from Louth. Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough and Boston to Alford, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, Lincoln, and Boston, to Alford, &c., 107 miles. The church is in ruins. The living (St. Andrew) is a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage united to the rectory of South Ormsby: contains 430 acres: 9 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 52: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £857: poor rates in 1837, £40.

CALCETHORPE, LINCOLN, a parish in the Wold division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Louth Eske, parts of Lindsey, union of Louth: 178 miles from London (coach road 152), 6 from Louth, 9 from Market-Raisen. Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Louth, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham and Boston to Louth, &c., 116 miles. Money orders issued at Louth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. The living (St. Faith), a rectory and a sinecure, is valued at £6. 2s. 6d.: pres. net income, £16: patron, W. Briscoe, Esq.: contains 710 acres: 11 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 69: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £904: poor rates in 1837, £72.

CALDBECK, CUMBERLAND, a parish in Allerdale ward, below Derwent, union of Wigton, western division: this parish possesses seven daily schools: it includes the three townships of Caldbeck High, Caldbeck Low, and Caldbeck Hilt-cliffe: 296 miles from London (coach road 295), 8 from Wigton, 17 from Penrith. Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Lancaster to Plumpton station, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Burton, Crewe, &c., 196 miles. Money orders issued at Wigton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 12½ p.m. The greater part of the parish—upwards, of 13,000 acres—consists of waste and moor lands; but even the bleakest of these wastes is made productive in the depasturing of as many as 7,000 or 8,000 sheep, the several flocks of which seldom produce less than 2,000 lambs. Indeed, on many of the estates, the flock of sheep is considered as an heir-loom, being sold and bought along with the land, and let out like it for a rent to the tenant, he being bound, on resigning his holding, to deliver as many sheep in number, and as like in condition, as those which he received. The village, in which some woollen work is carried on, is scattered, but is highly picturesque. The several hills contain lead, copper, limestone, and coal, besides various other minerals. The Caldbeck and the Caldew, both streams characteristic of the country, meet near the church, and the latter, especially, exhibits in its course some very bold and striking scenery. About half a mile below, it is crossed by a natural stone bridge, through which its impetuous torrent rushes in two cascades, by the sides of which it has formed two singular excavations, called respectively the "Fairies' Kettle," and the "Fairies' Kirk." The living (St. Kentigern), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £45. 13s. 6½d.: pres. net income, £436: patron, Bishop of Carlisle: pres. incumbent, James Lynn, 1813: contains 24,280 acres: 201 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,553: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,785: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £6,902: poor rates in 1837, £710.

CALDBRIDGE (or CALDBURGH), NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Coverham, in the wapentake of Hang-West—(which see for access, &c.): 233 miles from London, 3 from Middleham, 9 from Askrigg. Money orders issued at Middleham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11½ a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m. Contains 1,200 acres: 23 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 95: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £645: poor rates in 1837, £27.

CALDECOT, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Shocklach—(which see for access, &c.): 170 miles from London, 7 from Tarporley, 11 from Chester. Money orders issued at Tarporley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. About a mile west flows the river Dee. Contains 430 acres: 12 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 86: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £984: poor rates in 1837, £38.

CALDECOT. See CHELVESTON.

CALDECOT, RUTLAND, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Wrangdike, union of Uppingham: 110 miles from London (coach road 84), 4 from Uppingham, 1 from Rockingham. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Caldecot: from Derby, through Rugby, &c., 78 miles. Money orders issued at Uppingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. The living (St. John), a curacy to the vicarage of Liddington: contains 1,440 acres: 56 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 260: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup> £2,383: poor rates in 1837, £97.

CALDECOT, CAMBRIDGE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>.

of Longestow, union of Caxton and Arrington: 51 miles from London, 4 from Caxton, 10 from Cambridge. (For access, &c., see CAXTON.) Money orders issued at Caxton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, annexed to the rectory of Toft, and having jointly a pres. net income of £287: patron, Christ College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, E. A. Powell, 1843: contains 833 acres: 20 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 117: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £508: poor rates in 1837, £96.

CALDECOT, HERTFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Odsey, union of Hitchin: 40 miles from London, 3 from Baldock, 8 from Royston. (For access, &c., see BALDOCK.) Money orders issued at Baldock: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. The living (St. Mary Magdalen), a rectory in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £75: patron, W. Hale, Esq.: pres. incumbent, S. V. Edwards, 1837: contains 310 acres: 5 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 41: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £430: poor rates in 1837, £21.

CALDECOT, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of South Greenhoe, union of Swaffham, western division: 4 miles from Stoke Ferry, 12 from Downham-Market. (For access, &c., see DOWNHAM-MARKET.) Money orders issued at Brandon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. The living (Virgin Mary), a sinecure rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, diocese of Norwich, is valued at £3. 1s. 10½d.: pres. net income, £6: patron, Sir H. R. P. Bedingsfield, Bart.: pres. incumbent, Robert Rolfe, 1815: contains 930 acres: 9 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 48: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £468: poor rates in 1837, £37.

CALDECOT (or CALDICOTT), BEDFORD, a hamlet, divided into Upper and Lower, in the parish of Northill—(which see for access, &c.): 47 miles from London, 2 from Biggleswade, 9 from Baldock. Money orders issued at Biggleswade: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. Contains 71 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 509: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 576. (Other returns with the parish.)

CALDECOTE, WARWICK, a parish in the Atherstone division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Hemlingford, union of Nuneaton: 101 miles from London (coach road 78), 5 from Nuneaton, 3 from Atherstone. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Nuneaton, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth to Atherstone, 32, thence 3 miles. Money orders issued at Nuneaton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. The church is a plain Gothic structure, and contains several monuments of the Purefry family, who held the manor in the time of Edward VI., and by one of whom, William Purefry, the mansion of Village was rebuilt in the early part of the 17th century. It also contains a monument of Mr. George Abbot, a partisan of the parliament, who, in 1642, successfully resisted an attack of Prince Rupert, at the head of eighteen troops of horse, when assisted only by eight men, his mother, and her maids. The story looks somewhat marvellous, for the prince was not usually put off with so much facility, particularly when he had a force at his back sufficient to eat the garrison, house, and all. However, the story is told on a tablet in the church, and therefore must be true.

Fortunately, according to other records, not one of his little garrison was hurt. Caldecote Hall is now the seat of Kirby Fenton, Esq. The living (St. David and St. Chad), is a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the diocese of Worcester: pres. net income, £149: patron, D. Hemming, Esq.: pres. incumbent, S. B. Hemming, 1841: contains 820 acres: 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 93: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £853.

CALDER (or CALDERBRIDGE), CUMBERLAND, a hamlet in the parish of St. Bridget Berketmet, and ward of Allerdale above Derwent, western division—(which see for access, &c.): 290 miles from London, 4 from Egremont, 9 from Whitehaven. Money orders issued at Whitehaven: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. A Cistercian abbey was founded here, in 1134, by Ranulf Earl of Chester, which, at the dissolution, was granted to Thomas Leigh. Its ruins still remain, and Hutchison thus graphically describes them:—"The first part you come to is the colonnade, having five circular arches supported on clustered pillars, in length 27 paces. A facia remains above the arches, as it anciently supported the roof. The tower is supported by light clustered pillars of excellent workmanship, about 24 feet in height, with capitals ornamented with a roll, from whence spring very beautiful pointed arches, which formed the cupola or lantern. This church has been but small, the width of the choir being only 25 feet, the square of the tower 21 feet, and the limb of the cross, which we could trace, 22 feet wide; the monastery has adjoined to the church. The upper chambers show a row of eight windows to the west, and seven to the east. There are the remains of three arches on one side upon the ground floor, which appear to have belonged to a small cloister; the members of the arches are numerous and semicircular. At the end adjoining to the church is a large window, which appeared to us to have appertained to the chief apartment of the house, the chapter-house, or refectory, only the outside walls are standing. It appears that many eminent persons have been interred here, from the fragments of effigies preserved, and now placed against the walls; but no inscription or other evidence remains, save the devices on the shields, to point out to whose tombs the sculptures belonged. One of them is represented in a coat of mail with his hand upon his sword; another bears a shield reversed, as a mark of disgrace for treachery or cowardice."

CALDERBROOK. See BLATCHINGWORTH AND CALDERBROOK.

CALDEWEGATE, CARLISLE, a suburb of the city, and now comprised in part within the boundaries of that burgh. (For access and postal arrangements, see CARLISLE.) Contains 1,680 acres: 617 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 5,528: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 6,353: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £7,843: poor rates in 1837, £724.

CALDEY (GREAT and LITTLE), CHESTER, a township in the parish of West Kirby, lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wirral, southern division, at the mouth of the river Dee—(which see for access, &c.): 214 miles from London, 8 from Liverpool, 7 from Great Neston. Money orders issued at Liverpool: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. Contains 740 acres: 17 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in

1841, 104: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £800: poor rates in 1837, £23.

CALDICOT, MONMOUTH, a parish in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Caldicot, union of Chepstow: 133 miles from London (coach road 140), 5 from Chepstow, 8 from Caerleon.---Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 30 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Stonehouse, &c., 133 miles.---Money orders issued at Chepstow: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---The parochial charities produce about £23 a year. On a level piece of ground, about a mile from the shore, are the ruins of Caldicot Castle, thus beautifully described by Mr. Britton:—"The history of this fortress is obscure; but from the varied and ponderous style of the building, it was probably erected at two distinct but early periods. The most ancient part, containing the circular bastions, &c., might have been begun by Harold when he was attempting the conquest of Gwent; but the greater part was added by the early Normans when they proceeded to complete it. This fortress, which must have been of considerable importance in the subjugation of the south-eastern parts of Monmouthshire, was early in the possession of the great family of Bohun; for, according to Dugdale, Humphrey, Earl of Hereford, the fifth of that line, did homage, in 1221, for the livery of this castle, among other possessions of his late father. Coming into possession of the crown, it was annexed to the duchy of Lancaster; of which, under lease, it is at present held by the executors of the late Colonel Lewis of St. Pierre. From a statement given by the jury at a court of inquisition, held in the year 1613, it then appeared to have been in a very dilapidated state. Situated in a flat, the ruins do not produce that picturesque effect which others of a similar kind do, that have the advantage of more elevated sites. The ground environing the castle was formerly overflowed, so that the edifice stood upon an island, and it is still surrounded by a moat: in a distant view the shape seems quadrangular, but on a nearer approach it exhibits a polygonal form. The side fronting the village is flanked by a large round tower, and at the northern angle is a circular tower on a mound of earth, evidently the keep, encircled by a ditch. By means of galleries this was connected with the rest of the buildings. Another circular dilapidated tower is at the southern angle. The principal entrance to the south-west consists of a grand arched gateway, flanked with massive turrets, mantled with ivy, and was formerly guarded by portcullises. The greatest length of the inner area is 100 yards: the breadth differs from 75 yards to 40 towards the east. The thickness of the walls varies from five to nine feet, which are formed of coarse grit-stone. Within side are the remains of several apartments, particularly the baronial-hall; and opposite to the grand gateway is another entrance through a fine hexagonal tower, with a machicolated roof. A high ridge of land, perhaps formerly fortified, connects the castle with the village." The level, which at one time was inundated, has been drained and fenced, and is now a fine grazing district.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>r</sup>. and diocese of Llandaff, is valued at £6. 0s. 7½d.: pres. net income, £190:

patron, Sir E. Williams: pres. incumbent, E. T. Williams, 1841: contains 1,850 acres: 120 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 625: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 719: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,829: poor rates in 1837, £400.

CALDICOT. See TOWCESTER.

CALDICOTE, HUNTINGDON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Norman-Cross: 57 miles from London (coach road 54), 4 from Stilton, 3 from St. Neot's.---Gt. Nor. Rail. to St. Neot's, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Bedford, 102, thence 7 miles.---Money orders issued at Stilton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Huntingdon, diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £7. 3s. 6d.: pres. net income, £156: patron, William Wells, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. Warren, 1822: contains 740 acres: 13 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 52: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £823: poor rates in 1837, £16.

CALDWELL. See CAULDWELL.

CALDWELL. See CHADWELL.

CALDWELL, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of St. John Stanwick, in the wapentake of Gilling-West—(which see for access, &c.): 240 miles from London, 6 from Darlington, 5 from Greta Bridge.---Money orders issued at Darlington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---Contains 2,000 acres: 42 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 209: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,627: poor rates in 1837, £122.

CALKE. See CAULK.

CALLALEY AND YETTINGTON, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Whittingham, Coquetdale ward, northern division: 308 miles from London, 10 from Alnwick, 5 from Rothbury.---(For access, &c., see ALN WICK.)---Money orders issued at Alnwick: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 2½ p.m.: post closes 11 a.m.---Contains 63 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 306: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 352: poor rates in 1837, £88.

CALLERTON (BLACK). See BLACK CALLERTON.

CALLERTON (HIGH), NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Ponteland, southern division—(which see for access, &c.): 270 miles from London, 6 from Newcastle, 12 from Morpeth.---Money orders issued at Newcastle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---Contains 26 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 119: poor rates in 1837, £106.

CALLERTON (LITTLE), NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the same parish as the above—(which see for access, &c.): 271 miles from London.---Contains 6 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 34: poor rates in 1837, £5.

CALLINGTON (formerly KELLINGTON), CORNWALL, a borough, market town, and chapelry in the middle division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of East, union of Liskeard: 258 miles from London (coach road 215), 11 from Launceston.---Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Plymouth, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Plymouth, &c., 272 miles.---Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. at noon: post closes 1½ p.m.---The name of this place was formerly Calweton, Calvington, and Kilvington. It is situated on a gentle rise, and consists chiefly of one street, the houses of which are antique, ill-built, and mean in appearance; the town is, moreover, badly paved, and but ill supplied with water. There was, some years since, a considerable trade in wool carried on here, but it has almost quite declined, and Callington now depends for its support on the mines in its neighbourhood, which have been largely worked, and afford employment to a large number of persons; among the minerals obtained is some valuable manganese. The county magistrates hold a petty sessions here once in every month, at the court-house, which is a very convenient structure, recently rebuilt by Lord Clinton. The borough returned two members to parliament ever since the 27th of Elizabeth, the right of election being vested in the holders of real property, and in such assignees of such property, who were rated at forty shillings to the poor, within forty days of the election; but the place was disfranchised by the Reform Act. The church is a spacious edifice, erected chiefly by Nicholas de Asheton, one of the judges of the Queen's Bench, in 1645, to whose memory there is a marble tomb in the chancel. The Independents and Wesleyans have respectively places of worship here. A charity school here, originally established by Lord Clinton, is now supported through the munificence of Mr. Baring, who pays the master £30 a year; and there is, beside, an endowment of £12 a year for a child's school. — The living (St. Mary) is a rectory, annexed to that of South-hill, in the diocese of Exeter, and having jointly a pres. net income of £748: patrons, Lord Ashburton and G. Stroud, Esq.: pres. incumbent, H. M. Rice, 1841: contains 2,600 acres: 248 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,685: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,938: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,142: poor rates in 1837, £645. — Market day, Wednesday. Fairs: first Wednesday in March; May 1; September 19; November 12, cattle; and first Wednesday in the month. — Golding's Hotel, Wellington Hotel.

CALLOW, DERBY, a hamlet in the parish of Wirksworth — (which see for access, &c.): 137 miles from London, 2 from Wirksworth, 6 from Winster. — Money orders issued at Wirksworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. — Contains 16 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 112: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,566: poor rates in 1837, £68.

CALLOW, HEREFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Webtree: 137 miles from London (coach road 135), 4 from Hereford, 11 from Ross. — Gt. West. Rail. through Stonehouse to Gloucester, thence 25 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Gloucester, &c., 119 miles. — Money orders issued at Hereford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — There are the remains of two Roman camps on an elevation in the neighbourhood. — The living (St. Michael) is a perpetual curacy, annexed to the rectory of Acornbury: contains 640 acres: 30 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 171: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £466: poor rates in 1837, £25.

CALMSDEN. See NORTH CERNEY.

CALNE, WILTS, a borough, market town, and parish, in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Calne: it includes the liberty of Bowood: 101 miles from London (coach road 87), 12 from Marlborough. — Gt. West. Rail. to Chippenham, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Chippenham, &c., 164 miles. — Money orders issued at Calne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes

9½ p.m. — Calne, like many other places in this part of the country, is of very remote antiquity, being supposed to have been built on the ruins of a Roman station near Studley, on the opposite side of the river, an opinion which is abundantly countenanced by the large number of Roman remains which have been dug up in the town and neighbourhood. Tradition has marked it out as having been the residence of the West Saxon kings, but there is no vestige either of castle or palace to justify the supposition, except the name of a field hard by, and of a street which leads to it. In 977, a celebrated synod was held here, to decide the right to the several religious establishments in the country, between the regular and secular clergy, at which Dunstan, then Archbishop of Canterbury, presided. A catastrophe occurred at the time, of which the editors of Lyson's 'Magna Britannia' have given the following account:—The priests had a powerful champion, one Beornhelm, a Scotch bishop, who, with no less eloquence than strength of scripture and reason, pleaded their cause, which while he was doing, behold on a sudden the beams and whole timber-frame of the room in which the bishops and nobility of the kingdom were assembled, broke and fell to the ground, many of the chiefs were wounded or hurt, and some killed; but as to the secular priests, they were most of them slain and buried under the ruins, but the place or seat where Dunstan sat remained firm; and he being the chief advocate for the monks, as well as president of the synod, his miraculous preservation (as it was then esteemed) was thus interpreted, viz., that Heaven had appeared in defence of the monks, and confirmed their cause, intimating, by the preservation of their patron, that their order should be upheld; and thereupon the secular priests were every one outed in Dunstan's province, and monks put in their room. But some of our historians make this accident a judgment upon the nobility, who had a little before betrayed and murdered the young king Edward, who indeed got the name of a saint by his death, but king Ethelred got his throne. The town consists chiefly of one long street, the houses in which are mostly well built of stone; it is partially lighted and paved, and is watered by the little river Marlan, which, shortly after it passes through the town, falls into the Avon. The church is a large and ancient structure, consisting of a nave, chancel, and two side aisles, with a square tower at the north-east end, ninety-three feet high. The nave and aisles are divided by massive round columns, which have square decorated capitals that support rounded as well as pointed arches. The roof is of richly-carved woodwork, and on the north side of the church there is a curious zigzag doorway, and monuments of a member of the Erule family. In the churchyard, there is a large monument to the memory of Investo Boswell, commonly known in his day as King of the Gipsies. A branch of the Wilts and Berks Canal also reaches Calne, and by its union with the Kennet and Avon Canal, and afterwards, through the latter, with the Thames and Abingdon Canal, opens an easy access for goods to Bristol and London, and all the intermediate districts. There has been some silk and woollen manufacture carried on here, but the trade has gradually succumbed to the influence of the manufacturing places in the north, and the inhabitants are now therefore chiefly employed in agriculture. Though a borough by prescription, Calne is exclusively under the jurisdiction of the county magistrates. There was a court of requests here, held every six weeks, for the recovery of debts under 40s., within the hundreds of Calne, North Damenham, Corsham, and Chippenham. The town-hall is a neat structure, erected by the lord of the manor, and under it the market is held; it has been of late years repaired, and an upper story was erected by the Marquis of Lansdowne. Members were occasionally returned to parliament from the 23d year of Edward I. till the reign of Richard II., when it returned two, and continued to do so until deprived of one by the act of William IV., under which the franchise was extended from the twenty-three or twenty-four burgesses who formerly held it, to the inhabitants of the whole of the municipal parish of Calne, and part of the parish of Blackland: the number of electors is now somewhat more than 300. The Baptists, the Methodists, Society of Friends, and the Unitarians, all have places of worship here. There is a free school, which was founded by Mr. John Bentley in 1660, at which seven of the boys are taught Latin and Greek, and otherwise fitted to become exhibitioners at either of the universities, through a bequest made by Sir Francis Bridgman. An hospital, dedicated to St. John, existed here as early as the reign of Henry III.; its revenues, at the dissolution, amounted to £2. 2s. 8d. annually. The Calne poor-law union comprehends eleven parishes, spread over an area of about forty-six square miles, and comprising a population of about 9,000 persons. A workhouse has been built here by the poor-law commissioners, for the reception of the paupers. In the vicinity of the town, many curious fossils have been found; and, at the distance of about three miles, there is the figure of a horse cut in the chalk hills, which is 167 feet long. The living (St. Mary), a vicarage with the curacies of Barwick-Basset, Derry Hill, and Cherhill, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wilts, diocese of Sarum, is valued at £8. 6s.: pres. net income, £769: patron, Bishop of Sarum: pres. incumbent, John Gnthrie, 1835: contains 9,670 acres: 976 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 5,128: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 5,897: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £26,502: poor rates in 1837, £2,530. Market day, Tuesday. Fairs: May 6, and Sept. 29. Bankers: Tanner & Pinckney—draw on Spooner, Atwood, & Co.; North Wilts Banking Co.—draw on Drewett & Fowler. Inns: Lansdowne Arms and White Hart. W. 2 m., Bowood House, the seat of the Marquis of Lansdowne—for which see Bowood.)

CALOW, DERBY, a hamlet in the parish of Chesterfield—(which see for access, &c.): 148 miles from London, 3 from Chesterfield, 3 from Bolsover. Money orders issued at Chesterfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.—Contains 105 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 536: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 616: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,217: poor rates in 1837, £149.

CALSTOCK, CORNWALL, a parish in the middle division of East hun<sup>d</sup>, union of Liskeard, on the north bank of the river Tamar: 256 miles from London (coach road 214), 5 from Callington, 12 from Launceston. Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Plymouth, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Plymouth, &c., 269 miles. Money orders issued at Callington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1½ p.m.: post closes 11½ a.m.—There are several silver, copper, lead, and tin mines here, and the fine mineral euranium is also found here. The town is one of singular old English aspect, and is romantically placed on the Tamar, over which there is a bridge and ferry to Beer Alston. The Tamar is remarkably beautiful throughout the whole of its course, and is celebrated for the excellent salmon with which in the season it abounds. A little above the town there is a weir, beyond which the stream is navigable only for very small boats, and which is often the scene of some admirable sport. In the neighbourhood of Calstock there is a granite quarry, from which much of the stone was brought of which Waterloo Bridge is built. Cothele, or Cultaigh House, in the parish of Calstock, is an ancient and extensive mansion, with a massive embattled tower, which formerly gave the name of Cothele to a family whose heiress married an Edgcombe upwards of three centuries ago, and the property has devolved to their descendant, the Earl of Mount Edgcombe, who derives his second title of Viscount Valletort from the "winding vale" of the Tamar, near which it stands. Cothele is a place of much interest, from still presenting the entire mansion, the furniture, and the curious style of living of the nobility in the days of Queen Elizabeth. The woods on the grounds are in the extreme magnificent, the chestnuts especially being finely massed, and grown to an immense size. The living (St. Andrew), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cornwall, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £26. 7s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £510: patron, the Crown: pres. incumbent, E. Morshead, 1795: contains 5,450 acres: 449 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,553: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,935: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £5,801: poor rates in 1837, £612.

CALSTONE-WILLINGTON, WILTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Calne, north of the Roman road: 103 miles from London (coach road 86), 2 from Calne, 5 from Devizes. Gt. West. Rail. to Chippenham, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Chippenham, &c., 166 miles. Money orders issued at Calne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.—The hamlet of Calstone, not within the bounds of the actual parish, but an outlying portion of Calne parish, contains about 40 more houses, and about 200 inhabitants. There is a paper-mill, a large flour-mill (the latter in Calstone proper), and a flock, flannel, and grist mill. There are three considerable farms, and one smaller, all called Calstone. There are between fifty and sixty children in the day and Sunday schools. There is a small spring, which rises at the base of the chalk hills, by which this place is bounded, which, in the space of three miles, turns five mills. The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wilts, and diocese of Sarum, is valued at £4. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £192: patron, Marquis of Lansdowne: pres. incumbent, W. M. Macdonald, 1841: contains 1,130 acres: 6 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 31: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,250: poor rates in 1837, £40.

CALTHORPE (or CATTHORPE), LEICESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Guthlaxton, union of Lutterworth, southern division, on the north side of the river Avon: 87 miles from London (coach road 85), 4 from Lutterworth, 2 from Swinford. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Calthorpe: from Derby, through Rugby, &c., 55 miles. — Money orders issued at Lutterworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — Dr. Stukeley has fixed upon this place as being the Tripointum of the Romans, and describes it as a bridge placed in a sweet little valley, with the sides pretty steep. The stream here divides into two, with a bridge over each; upon one a stone inscription, very laconic, showing the three counties that repair it. Hard by antiquities have been found, both at Cat-thorpe and Lilburn, one on the north, the other on the south side of the river; so that the Roman city stood on both sides. Castle-hills, a place of Lilburn, where are some old walls. Camden, however, assigns the name to an erection in Towcester, and Dr. Henry to Rugby; but vestiges of Roman encampments appear both on the Northamptonshire and Leicestershire sides of the Avon, in the neighbourhood; and it is certain that a Roman road passed through the encampment, respecting which Mr. Ireland observes—It was indisputably the Roman station mentioned by Antoninus, in his journey from London to Lincoln, under the denomination of Tripointum. The circular tumulus, called by different writers the Prætorium Augurale, or Augustale, is sixty feet in height, having its base formed by a rampart or vallum, washed on the north side by the river Avon. This elevated spot, which commands a view of the whole encampment, was allotted to the general, the superior officers, and young men of rank who served as volunteers. On the eastern side of the Prætorium, and adjoining to it, is the upper camp, the north side of which is in like manner washed by the Avon. The northern side of the Prætorium, with that of the upper camp, form one line, two hundred and seventy-six feet in length. The inner vallum, or agger of the middle camp, is only twenty-eight feet in height, being defended by the river. Beyond this there is another encampment, which is defended by a fosse. — The living, a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £5. 5s. 2½d.: pres. net income, £260: patron, Rev. L. Harper: pres. incumbent, Lat. Harper, 1825: contains 520 acres: 44 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 167: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,208: poor rates in 1837, £149.

CALTHORPE, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of South Erpingham, union of Aylsham, eastern division: 143 miles from London (coach road 122), 4 from Aylsham, 7 from Cromer. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Norwich, thence 17 miles: from Derby, through Syston and Peterborough to Norwich, &c., 183 miles. — Money orders issued at Aylsham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living (St. Margaret), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £35: pres. net income, £143: patron, Sir W. Foster: pres. incumbent, S. M. Shephard, 1848: contains 850 acres: 48 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 214: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,697: poor rates in 1837, £76. — W. 1 m., Wollerton Hall—(for which see WOLLERTON.) S.W. 1 m., Blickling Park — (for which see BLICKLING.)

CALTHWAITE, CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Hesketh-in-the-Forest, eastern division — (which see for access, &c.): 7 miles from Penrith. — Money orders issued at Penrith: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. — Contains 17 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 206.

CALTON, STAFFORD, a chapelry, partly in the parish of Blore, and partly in the parishes of Croxden, Mayfield, and Waterfall, southern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Totmonslow — (which see for access, &c.): 152 miles from London, 2 from Leek, 4 from Warstow. — Money orders issued at Leek: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. — The living is a donative curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stafford, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry: pres. net income, £86: patron, Inhabitants: pres. incumbent, Richard Ward, 1832: contains 2,480 acres: 47 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 244: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £708: poor rates in 1837, £60.

CALTON, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in that part of the parish of Kirby in Malham-Dale, which is in the eastern division of the wapentake of Staincliff and Eweross, on a branch of the river Aire — (which see for access, &c.): 228 miles from London, 7 from Settle, 4 from Linton. — Money orders issued at Settle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes 12½ p.m. — There is a school here with a small endowment. This was the birth-place of General Lambert, a major-general in the parliamentary army, and one of the principal regicides of Charles I. — Contains 1,730 acres: 15 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 90: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,166: poor rates in 1837, £54.

CALVER, DERBY, a hamlet in the parish of Bakewell, northern division, on the east bank of the river Derwent — (which see for access, &c.): 156 miles from London, 4 from Bakewell, 6 from Tideswell. — Money orders issued at Bakewell: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — Contains 112 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 573: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 658: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £993: poor rates in 1837, £133.

CALVERHALL, SALOP, a chapelry in the parish of Prees, in the Whitchurch division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bradford North, northern division: it includes Williston and Millenheath — (which see for access, &c.): 170 miles from London, 4 from Wem, 8 from Drayton. — Money orders issued at Shrewsbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry: pres. net income, £65: patron, John W. Dod, Esq.: pres. incumbent, E. Mainwaring, 1843: contains 52 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 303: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 348. — (Other returns with the parish.)

CALVERLEIGH, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Tiverton, northern division, in the vicinity of the Western Canal: 163 miles from London, 2 from Tiverton, 8 from Collumpton. — (For access, &c., see TIVERTON.) — Money orders issued at Tiverton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — The living (St. Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £12: pres. net income, £161: patron,

G. W. Owen, Esq.: pres. incumbent, G. W. Owen, 1841: contains 550 acres: 16 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 81: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £810: poor rates in 1837, £26.

CALVERLEY, CHESTER, a township in that part of the parish of Bunbury, which lies in the first division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Eddisbury—(which see for access, &c.): 171 miles from London, 6 from Nantwich, 5 from Tarporley.—Money orders issued at Nantwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.—Contains 1,910 acres: 27 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 190: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,629: poor rates in 1837, £145.

CALVERLEY, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the wapentake of Morley, union of Bradford, south of the river Aire: it includes the townships of Bolton, Calverley-cum-Farsley, Idle, and Pudsey: 217 miles from London (coach road 198), 5 from Leeds, 4 from Bradford.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Leeds, to Apperley station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 185 miles.—Money orders issued at Leeds: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—A new church, with a tower and pinnacle in the Gothic style, was erected some years since by the parliamentary commissioners, at Calverley Pudsey, at an expense of £13,362. 8s.; it contains 2,000 sittings: another was erected also under the same authority at Calverley Idle; it contains 1,020 sittings. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel here. The parochial charities produce about £45 a year. Upwards of 2,000 hands are employed here in the manufacture of woollens. Calverley Hall, was the residence of an ancient family of the same name, by some of whom was perpetrated, in 1604, the horrible catastrophe, which was familiarly called the "Yorkshire Tragedy," the details of which are by some attributed to Shakespeare. At Apperley Bridge, there is a mansion most delightfully situated in Airedale, which is appropriated to the education of young men intended for the Wesleyan ministry: the number is restricted to seventy-two, and the institution is conducted on the same principles as those of Kingston in Gloucestershire.—The living (St. Wilfred), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £9. 11s. 10d.: pres. net income, £230: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, Alfred Brown, 1845: contains 8,390 acres: 3,240 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 21,039: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 24,189: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £21,557: poor rates in 1837, £3,189.

CALVERLEY-CUM-FARSLEY, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish.—(For access and postal arrangements, see above.)—Contains 3,640 acres: 520 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,142: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 4,763: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,997: poor rates in 1837, £574.

CALVERT-FENTON. See FENTON (GREAT).

CALVERTON, BUCKINGHAM, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Newport, union of Potters-Pury, south of the river Ouse, in the vicinity of the Buckingham Canal: 56 miles from London (coach road 52), 8 from Buckingham, 1 from Stony-Stratford.—Nor. West. Rail. to Wolverton, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Wolverton, &c., 83 miles.—Money orders issued at Stony-Stratford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.—The church was rebuilt in 1818, through the munificence of the late Lord Arden, and the then rector, Dr. Butler; and it has been much beautified and improved by the present incumbent, the Hon. and Rev. C. G. Perceval, with windows of stained glass and other decorations, and the appearance of the interior is now very pleasing and handsome. The rectory-house, also built by Lord Arden, occupies the site of a Roman encampment, where many relics were found while forming the plantations and laying out the garden. The manor-house was built on the site of an old mansion during the Commonwealth, by Simon Bennet, Esq., of London, whose daughter and co-heiress, Frances, conveyed it by marriage to the Earl of Salisbury, by whose descendant it was alienated in 1813. There is much lace-making in the parish, and there is a chalybeate spring in the neighbourhood.—The living (All Saints), a rectory in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £26. 2s. 11d.: pres. net income, £346: patron, Earl of Egmont: pres. incumbent, C. G. Perceval, 1821: contains 1,982 acres: 82 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 493: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 567: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,846: poor rates in 1837, £288.

CALVERTON, NOTTINGHAM, a parish in the southern division of the wapentake of Thurgarton, union of Basford, near a branch of the Trent: 145 miles from London (coach road 131), 7 from Nottingham, 9 from Mansfield.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Nottingham to Hucknall Torkard, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham to Hucknall, &c., 30 miles.—Money orders issued at Nottingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.—The parochial charities produce about £12 a year. There is a Methodist chapel here. Lee, the inventor of the stocking-frame, which laid the foundation of the whole hosiery trade of the district, was a native of the parish.—The living (St. Wilfrid), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £4: pres. net income, £145: patron, Prebendaries of Oton in Southwell College Church: pres. incumbent, Samuel Oliver, 1827: contains 3,320 acres: 228 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,339: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,540: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,080: poor rates in 1837, £331.—Calverton Hall is occupied by Lady Sherbrooke, widow of General Sir John Sherbrooke, G. C. B., &c.

CALWICH, STAFFORD, a township in the parish of Ellastone, south division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Toton-slow, west of the river Dove—(which see for access, &c.): 142 miles from London, 7 from Cheadle, 10 from Leek.—Money orders issued at Cheadle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.—There was anciently an hermitage here of Black Canons, which was granted, before the year 1148, by Nicholas de Gresseler Fitzniple to the abbot of Kenilworth. It was granted by Henry VIII. to the College of Merton in Surrey, in exchange for the manor of East Moulsey, and, as part of that, was again given to John Fleetwood.—Contains 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 152: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,047: poor rates in 1837, £90.

CAM, GLOUCESTER, a parish in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Berkeley, union of Dursley: 116 miles from London (coach road 110), 1 from Dursley, 6 from Wotton.—Gt. West. Rail.

through Stonehouse to Berkeley Road station, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Stonehouse, &c., 116 miles. Money orders issued at Dursley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. In 1730, Mrs. Frances Hop-ton bequeathed fifty-eight acres of land to endow a school here, in which eighteen boys and eighteen girls are taught and clothed. The other parochial charities produce about £80 a year. There is a woollen manufacture to some extent here, but the parish is principally celebrated for the quantity and quality of the cheese which it produces. The living (St. George), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £6. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £150: patron, Bishop of Gloucester: pres. incumbent, George Madan, 1838: contains 3,430 acres: 403 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,851: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, same: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £7,356: poor rates in 1837, £967. Norman Hill is the residence of M. J. Rhodes, Esq.; Tilsdown House, of Thomas Hardwick, Esq.; Chingre, of Major Wright.

CAMBERWELL, SURREY, a parish, including the hamlets of Dulwich and Peckham, and part of Norwood, in the east half hund<sup>d</sup> of Brixton, union of St. Giles, Camberwell: 3 miles from London, 8 from Croydon. Money orders issued here: post six times each way daily. Camberwell is, in the Domesday survey, written Cambrewell, and, in other records of a remote period, Camerwell, and appears to have been, during the early occupation of the Romans, an important station of that people, who constructed paved roadways across the marshes, of which the ground, between the river and the foot of the Surrey hills, at that time mostly consisted; the remains of which, formed of square chalk stones secured with oaken piles, were discovered, fifteen feet below the present surface of the ground, during the construction of the Grand Surrey Canal, in 1809. Towards the south of the town—village it used to be—on an elevation called Ladland's Hill, there are the remains of a quadrangular camp, which is defended on the south by a double intrenchment, and which is evidently of Roman origin; and in a field close by, called Well Hill, three large wells have been discovered, thirty-five feet in circumference, lined with cement, from which most probably the name of the place has been derived. As if to prove that this was a place of considerable importance,—and in all probability it was the spot upon which the Roman cohorts were artfully but judiciously concentrated prior to their crossing the tidal flood of the Thames, which they appear to have done as low from its mouth as they could have done, before attempting the subjugation of the varied and fertile districts beyond the northern bank,—a head of Janus, eighteen inches high, was found about a century since, indicating that it was here they made the parley of peace with the Britons, which lulled them into that fatal security which ended in the subjection and emasculation of the national character. According to tradition, and the opinion of some antiquaries, they forded the Thames,—an achievement which is evidently, at the present moment, impossible, and the notion of which must, at that time when the whole site between Cheap-side and Denmark Hill was an estuary, have been preposterous; but there is little doubt that here they crossed the river, and entered upon their northern progress. From the arrival of the Romans till that of the successful usurpation of William the Norman, there is little mention of Camberwell; the chief points of transit across the Thames being, in all probability, above the present site of London, from Middlesex to the high grounds about Richmond, or below it, from Essex to the acclivities of Kent; but, in Domesday-book, there is mention made of a church, showing that it is an inhabited locality; and in a register of Bishop Edgington, at Winchester, there is a commission inserted, dated in 1346, to reconcile Camberwell church, "which had been polluted by bloodshed." The village, or town—for, as has been before said, it is more entitled to the latter than the former appellation—is very pleasantly situated at the foot, and on the slope, of the hills which rise from the valley of the Thames, and undulate through Surrey; and the agreeableness of its site, and the beauty of its environs, has made it the residence of some of the first merchants in London, and among them many who have distinguished themselves by their abilities in literature and the arts, as well as in the pursuit of commercial success. Camberwell is well lighted and watched, and partly paved, under an act obtained in 1814 for that purpose, and the inhabitants are well supplied with water from the South London Company's works, and four springs arising in the district. The older part of the village nearest to London contains many old mansions, which were formerly the domiciles of men of opulence, but are now surrounded and built in; while the more modern parts of the place stretch up the sides of Grove, Champion, Denmark, and Herne hills, which are lined with terraces, and studded with villas of pleasing and appropriate elevation. The old church was destroyed by fire a few years since, and a new structure has been raised in the style of the middle Gothic, with projecting porches, and a lofty spire rising from the centre of the transept. The exterior, surrounded by its neat green turf churchyard, enclosed by a coped wall and rustic gates, is remarkably pleasing, but the interior is in the extreme beautiful; severe in its simplicity, it is yet rich in the admirable arrangement of its architectural adornment, while the windows, judiciously placed and filled with painted glass, throw around the sacred edifice, like flickerings of the moon's glance through the intermingling branches of a forest glade, disposing to

"A dim religious light of varied hue"

"A heart impurified an elevated thought."

St. Matthew's, formerly a chapel of ease, is situated on Denmark Hill, has just been renovated, and consecrated as a district church; Rev. Stephen Bridge, incumbent. St. George's, which is a district church, has within these few years been erected on the banks of the Surrey Canal, and is a handsome structure in the Grecian style; the living is a perpetual curacy, the income of which is £500 a year; patron, the vicar. Camden chapel was formerly a dissenting place of worship, but it was some eighteen years since made an episcopal proprietary chapel, in which the Rev. Henry Mel-

1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22 23 24 25 26 27 28 29 30 31 32 33 34 35 36 37 38 39 40 41 42 43 44 45 46 47 48 49 50 51 52 53 54 55 56 57 58 59 60 61 62 63 64 65 66 67 68 69 70 71 72 73 74 75 76 77 78 79 80 81 82 83 84 85 86 87 88 89 90 91 92 93 94 95 96 97 98 99 100

1841, 31: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,250: poor rates in 1837, £40.

CALTHORPE (or CATTHORPE), LEICESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Guthlaxton, union of Lutterworth, southern division, on the north side of the river Avon: 87 miles from London (coach road 85), 4 from Lutterworth, 2 from Swinford. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Calthorpe: from Derby, through Rugby, &c., 55 miles. — Money orders issued at Lutterworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — Dr. Stukeley has fixed upon this place as being the Tripointum of the Romans, and describes it as a bridge placed in a sweet little valley, with the sides pretty steep. The stream here divides into two, with a bridge over each; upon one a stone inscription, very laconic, showing the three counties that repair it. Hard by antiquities have been found, both at Cat-thorpe and Lilburn, one on the north, the other on the south side of the river; so that the Roman city stood on both sides. Castle-hills, a place of Lilburn, where are some old walls. Camden, however, assigns the name to an erection in Towcester, and Dr. Henry to Rugby; but vestiges of Roman encampments appear both on the Northamptonshire and Leicestershire sides of the Avon, in the neighbourhood; and it is certain that a Roman road passed through the encampment, respecting which Mr. Ireland observes—It was indisputably the Roman station mentioned by Antoninus, in his journey from London to Lincoln, under the denomination of Tripointum. The circular tumulus, called by different writers the Prætorium Augustale, or Augustale, is sixty feet in height, having its base formed by a rampart or vallum, washed on the north side by the river Avon. This elevated spot, which commands a view of the whole encampment, was allotted to the general, the superior officers, and young men of rank who served as volunteers. On the eastern side of the Prætorium, and adjoining to it, is the upper camp, the north side of which is in like manner washed by the Avon. The northern side of the Prætorium, with that of the upper camp, form one line, two hundred and seventy-six feet in length. The inner vallum, or agger of the middle camp, is only twenty-eight feet in height, being defended by the river. Beyond this there is another encampment, which is defended by a fosse. — The living, a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £5. 6s. 2½d.: pres. net income, £260: patron, Rev. L. Harper: pres. incumbent, Lat. Harper, 1825: contains 520 acres: 44 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 167: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,208: poor rates in 1837, £149.

CALTHORPE, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of South Erpingham, union of Aylsham, eastern division: 143 miles from London (coach road 122), 4 from Aylsham, 7 from Cromer. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup>. Rail. to Norwich, thence 17 miles: from Derby, through Syston and Peterborough to Norwich, &c., 183 miles. — Money orders issued at Aylsham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living (St. Margaret), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £35: pres. net income, £143: patron, Sir W. Foster: pres. incumbent, S. M. Shephard, 1848: contains 850 acres: 48 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 214: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,697: poor rates in 1837, £76. — W. 1 m., Wollerton Hall—(for which see WOLLESTON.) S.W. 1 m., Blickling Park—(for which see BLICKLING.)

CALTHWAITE, CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Hesketh-in-the-Forest, eastern division—(which see for access, &c.): 7 miles from Penrith. — Money orders issued at Penrith: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. — Contains 17 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 206.

CALTON, STAFFORD, a chapelry, partly in the parish of Blore, and partly in the parishes of Croxden, Mayfield, and Waterfall, southern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Totmonslow—(which see for access, &c.): 152 miles from London, 2 from Leek, 4 from Warshaw. — Money orders issued at Leek: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. — The living is a donative curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stafford, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry: pres. net income, £86: patron, Inhabitants: pres. incumbent, Richard Ward, 1832: contains 2,480 acres: 47 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 244: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £708: poor rates in 1837, £60.

CALTON, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in that part of the parish of Kirkby in Malham-Dale, which is in the eastern division of the wapentake of Staincliff and Eweross, on a branch of the river Aire—(which see for access, &c.): 228 miles from London, 7 from Settle, 4 from Linton. — Money orders issued at Settle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 1 p.m.: post closes 12½ p.m. — There is a school here with a small endowment. This was the birth-place of General Lambert, a major-general in the parliamentary army, and one of the principal regicides of Charles I. — Contains 1,730 acres: 15 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 90: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,166: poor rates in 1837, £54.

CALVER, DASSY, a hamlet in the parish of Bakewell, northern division, on the east bank of the river Derwent—(which see for access, &c.): 156 miles from London, 4 from Bakewell, 6 from Tideswell. — Money orders issued at Bakewell: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — Contains 112 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 573: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 658: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £993: poor rates in 1837, £133.

CALVERHALL, SALOP, a chapelry in the parish of Prees, in the Whitchurch division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bradford North, northern division: it includes Williston and Millenheath—(which see for access, &c.): 170 miles from London, 4 from Wem, 8 from Drayton. — Money orders issued at Shrewsbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry: pres. net income, £65: patron, John W. Dod, Esq.: pres. incumbent, E. Mainwaring, 1843: contains 52 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 303: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 348. — (Other returns with the parish.)

CALVERLEIGH, DEVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Tiverton, northern division, in the vicinity of the Western Canal: 163 miles from London, 2 from Tiverton, 8 from Collumpton. — (For access, &c., see TIVERTON.) — Money orders issued at Tiverton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — The living (St. Mary), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £12: pres. net income, £161: patron,

G. W. Owen, Esq.: pres. incumbent, G. W. Owen, 1841: contains 550 acres: 16 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 81: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £810: poor rates in 1837, £26.

CALVERLEY, CHESTER, a township in that part of the parish of Bunbury, which lies in the first division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Eddisbury—(which see for access, &c.): 171 miles from London, 6 from Nantwich, 5 from Tarporley. Money orders issued at Nantwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. Contains 1,910 acres: 27 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 190: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,629: poor rates in 1837, £145.

CALVERLEY, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the wapentake of Morley, union of Bradford, south of the river Aire: it includes the townships of Bolton, Calverley-cum-Farsley, Idle, and Pudsey: 217 miles from London (coach road 198), 5 from Leeds, 4 from Bradford. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Leeds, to Apperley station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 185 miles. Money orders issued at Leeds: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. A new church, with a tower and pinnacle in the Gothic style, was erected some years since by the parliamentary commissioners, at Calverley Pudsey, at an expense of £13,362. 8s.; it contains 2,000 sittings: another was erected also under the same authority at Calverley Idle; it contains 1,020 sittings. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel here. The parochial charities produce about £45 a year. Upwards of 2,000 hands are employed here in the manufacture of woollens. Calverley Hall, was the residence of an ancient family of the same name, by some of whom was perpetrated, in 1604, the horrible catastrophe, which was familiarly called the "Yorkshire Tragedy," the details of which are by some attributed to Shakspeare. At Apperley Bridge, there is a mansion most delightfully situated in Airedale, which is appropriated to the education of young men intended for the Wesleyan ministry: the number is restricted to seventy-two, and the institution is conducted on the same principles as those of Kingston in Gloucestershire. The living (St. Wilford), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £9. 11s. 10d.: pres. net income, £230: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, Alfred Brown, 1845: contains 8,390 acres: 3,240 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 21,039: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 24,189: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £21,557: poor rates in 1837, £3,189.

CALVERLEY-CUM-FARSLEY, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish. (For access and postal arrangements, see above.) Contains 3,640 acres: 520 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,142: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 4,763: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,997: poor rates in 1837, £574.

CALVERT-FENTON. See FENTON (GREAT).

CALVERTON, BUCKINGHAM, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Newport, union of Potters-Pury, south of the river Ouse, in the vicinity of the Buckingham Canal: 56 miles from London (coach road 52), 8 from Buckingham, 1 from Stony-Stratford. Nor. West. Rail. to Wolverton, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Wolverton, &c., 83 miles. Money orders issued at Stony-Stratford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. The church was rebuilt in 1818, through the munificence of the late Lord Arden, and the then rector, Dr. Butler; and it has been much beautified and improved by the present incumbent, the Hon. and Rev. C. G. Perceval, with windows of stained glass and other decorations, and the appearance of the interior is now very pleasing and handsome. The rectory-house, also built by Lord Arden, occupies the site of a Roman encampment, where many relics were found while forming the plantations and laying out the garden. The manor-house was built on the site of an old mansion during the Commonwealth, by Simon Bennet, Esq., of London, whose daughter and co-heiress, Frances, conveyed it by marriage to the Earl of Salisbury, by whose descendant it was alienated in 1813. There is much lace-making in the parish, and there is a chalybeate spring in the neighbourhood. The living (All Saints), a rectory in the diocese of Oxford, is valued at £26. 2s. 11d.: pres. net income, £346: patron, Earl of Egmont: pres. incumbent, C. G. Perceval, 1821: contains 1,982 acres: 82 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 493: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 567: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,846: poor rates in 1837, £288.

CALVERTON, NOTTINGHAM, a parish in the southern division of the wapentake of Thurgarton, union of Basford, near a branch of the Trent: 145 miles from London (coach road 131), 7 from Nottingham, 9 from Mansfield. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Nottingham to Hucknall Torkard, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham to Hucknall, &c., 30 miles. Money orders issued at Nottingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. The parochial charities produce about £12 a year. There is a Methodist chapel here. Lee, the inventor of the stocking-frame, which laid the foundation of the whole hosiery trade of the district, was a native of the parish. The living (St. Wilfrid), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £4: pres. net income, £145: patron, Prebendaries of Oton in Southwell College Church: pres. incumbent, Samuel Oliver, 1827: contains 3,320 acres: 228 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,339: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,540: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,080: poor rates in 1837, £331. Calverton Hall is occupied by Lady Sherbrooke, widow of General Sir John Sherbrooke, G. C. B., &c.

CALWICH, STAFFORD, a township in the parish of Ellastone, south division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Totonslow, west of the river Dove—(which see for access, &c.): 142 miles from London, 7 from Cheadle, 10 from Leek. Money orders issued at Cheadle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. There was anciently an hermitage here of Black Canons, which was granted, before the year 1148, by Nicholas de Gresseler Fitzniple to the abbot of Kenilworth. It was granted by Henry VIII. to the College of Merton in Surrey, in exchange for the manor of East Moulsey, and, as part of that, was again given to John Fleetwood. Contains 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 152: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,047: poor rates in 1837, £90.

CAM, GLOUCESTER, a parish in the upper division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Berkeley, union of Dursley: 116 miles from London (coach road 110), 1 from Dursley, 6 from Wotton. Gt. West. Rail.

versity, from the fact of its being the centre of a great thoroughfare through the north-eastern counties, and it has of late years become much more so from its being the principal railway station in that district of the country. The antiquity of this eminent place has long been a source of disputation among antiquaries, and the supporters of its remote origin have not hesitated to assert, that the university was founded as much as 375 years before the birth of our Saviour. According to those who hold this tradition, Cantaber, a Spaniard, and son-in-law of Gurgunt, King of Britain, built a number of cities, and among the rest Caergranta, now Cambridge, a name which certainly harmonizes with the Celtic appellation likely to be applied to it from its situation in the country where it stands, where he established seminaries for the instruction of young persons rising into manhood, and appointed teachers and philosophers, whom he had sent for to Athens, where he had himself been educated. It is further asserted that Anaximandor and Anaxagoras, travelling to this country, became teachers of philosophy at Cambridge, which, thenceforth, was called the "CITY OF SCHOLARS;" that it enjoyed peculiar privileges of sanctuary under Cassivalaunus; that it was deprived of many of its privileges by Julius Cæsar, who sent several of its professors to Rome, where they became celebrated in their vocations; that, in the reign of Lucius, 3,000 of its students were baptised at one time; and that, in the days of Dioclesian, "this renowned city, the mother of philosophy, beautiful for dwelling-houses, fortified on all sides with towers, and encompassed with walls of square stones, was consumed by fire." Now, to the ordinary reader of history, this appears to be all wild tirade, but it is derived from an ancient chronicle, and has much of probability to recommend it. We know little of the history of Britain during the four hundred years throughout which it submitted to the Roman sway. There is, indeed, no calendar of its annals, and we are almost instinctively led to suppose—for we have no other picture placed before us—that the original inhabitants of the island were, during the whole of that time, in a debased state of ignorance and superstition; and yet, day by day, not only here, but elsewhere, in every part of the island, relics of Roman greatness, splendour, and luxury, are every day being dug up out of the silent records of the earth. Tesselated pavements, pædæ, baths, the remnants of villas, highways which seem to defy time, and which have become the thoroughfares of our children, the traces of encampments, the fosse, the ditch, the warlike implement, all show that not only were the Romans in a high state of refinement, and perfectly intimate with the scientific appliances of warfare, but that they had a watchful, brave, determined, and well-informed foe to deal with. Who was the chronicler of the time? Cæsar; who, in order to ingratiate himself with his warlike countrymen, to gratify their ambition, and to preserve the position which his energy and ambition had won, urged them on to new conquests, and with the plausible hypocrisy—it could not be the self-deception, for of that there was nothing,—with the plausible hypocrisy of the Napoleon of our own day, threw over his unjustifiable aggression on the rights of mankind, the flimsy veil of assuming, that those he warred against were barbarians, and that his domination and that of his adherents would be for the benefit of those he subjugated, and the advantage of the world. Cassivalaunus, Caractacus, and the Queen of the Iceni, were no mean adversaries, and the opposition which they showed to the progress of the Roman arms proves, that the arts of war were in no despicable state in the island, and that there was an energy existing, sufficient to carry them out into effective use. We do know, that about the time alleged for the foundation of this university, the Phœnicians were trading to Cornwall for tin and other mineral produce; we do know, that in this country, at least, such produce is not obtained without much research, labour, and a certain amount—rude it may be—of scientific knowledge. The Phœnicians were the grand agents of commerce. They went everywhere, saw everything, and is it not natural that what they saw in one place, they should tell of in another? Is it not natural to suppose, that when strangers came with their ships to the British coast, the principal of the sea-girt natives should visit them to learn of foreign lands; and that others, enticed by the beauty of land, should come to it from distant shores? The Phœnicians, too, were the Athenians' neighbours. It has been alleged, that both the philosophers above spoken of must have been in their graves some years before the period named for the foundation of this university. But that is no argument against the antiquity of the place, for in all ages of the world it has been the custom to call dependents and followers after their masters' names; in this country it has been especially the case, and at the present day, in the districts and towns of Cumberland and Westmoreland, is still almost universally the practice; ay, and even in our own metropolis at the present moment, wherever a dependent appears in a public establishment, he is invariably addressed by those with whom he is not intimate, by the name of his principal. Besides, it is stated that the Christian religion was only introduced into these islands by St. Augustine, some six hundred years after the death of our Saviour, when we have the testimony of Clement, whom Paul praises, that he was here, and established Christianity after his visit to Spain, and very shortly after his first imprisonment at Rome; and there is still in existence an almost uninterrupted roll of the British bishops, from the time of Paul and Clement—in a golden thread—through Wicliffe and Cranmer, to the present day. Further, we have evidence that Cambridge was a place of importance in the earliest known British history. It was called Grantan-bryce, Granta-bridge, or Granta-brige, of the Saxon chronicle, signifying the bridge over the Granta, the ancient name of the river Cam; and Carter says—It once extended from the castle of Grandchester, or Grantchester, (i.e. a grand city,) now a small village, two miles south-west of the town, to the castle of Chesterton, three miles in length along the west bank of the river Cam. But we have nothing remaining of that ancient city, except the village of Grandchester, and the parishes of St. Giles and St. Peter, now part of modern Cambridge, being the two extremities of that ancient city, the first near the southern castle, (or at least where once it stood,) the latter near the nor- them; and the numerous coins and many urns that have been dug up in the neighbourhood of both places, prove them indisputably to have been Roman fortifications. Dr. Stukeley further states—The site of the Roman Granta is very traceable on the side of Cambridge towards the castle, on the north-west side of the river, of an irregular figure, containing thirty acres, surrounded by a deep ditch, great part of which yet remains on the south-west, and in the grounds behind Magdalen college. At this time the ditch is nearly filled up, but the banks may in several places be discovered; and the Roman agger, in the garden of Magdalen college, which has been converted into a fine terrace for the exercise of the fellows, is in excellent preservation. The river, which, from the deeds in the Cottonian library relative to the foundation of St. Giles's church, seems to have bounded the terrace, now flows from 150 to 300 yards eastward. Within the walls, which include the north-west end of the town, are the remains of three considerable bastions, which were raised by the orders of Cromwell; the gateway of the castle, now used as the county prison, and the churches of St. Giles and St. Peter. St. Peter's church was repaired some years ago; at which time, many Roman bricks are reported to have been found in the decayed walls. Numerous fragments of urns have also been picked up in the adjoining fields, and many Roman coins of Vespasian and the later emperors. However, after the usurpation of the Romish monks, the whole ecclesiastical arrangement of the kingdom underwent an alteration, and knowledge seemed to be darkened wherever the shadow of superstition moved; so that, at last, King Alfred exclaimed, that he could find no teachers when he had youth and leisure to be instructed, showing that the university had evidently fallen into great abeyance; yet there was, nevertheless, a seminary existing here in the time of Sigebert, King of East Anglia, in 631; but the merit of restoring it to its ancient foundation is due to Edward the Elder, who, as appears from the chronicle cited by John Rouse, erected halls for the students, and chairs and seats for the doctors, at his own charge. He also appointed professors, and took the most requisite measures for securing the stability of the institution. It continued, however, in a very languid state. Joffrid, Abbot of Croyland, according to the appendix to Ingulphus, by Petrus Blassensis, sent to his manor of Cottenham, near Cambridge, Gilbert, his fellow-monk and professor of divinity, who, with three other monks that had followed him to England, and were well versed in theoretical theorems, and other primitive sciences, repaired daily to Cambridge, and having hired a public barn, made open profession of their science, and soon collected a great number of scholars. The second year after their coming, the number was so increased, as well from every part of the county as the town, that the largest house, barn, or church, was insufficient to contain them.—[It should be recollected that this was the period of the dawn or renewal of the Aristotelian philosophy, falsely so called, throughout Europe, and France especially, whereby mind was separated from spirit in the dogmas of the theologians, which, during the last three quarters of a century, has borne such bitter fruits on the other side of the British Channel.]—The monks, therefore, separated, and at different quar- ters of the town, and at different hours, taught grammar, logic, and rhetoric, with divinity on Sundays and holidays. The fruit of their labours was abundant,—learning was spread, and the monasteries were made replete with rhetoricians, who soon became the masters of the mind and the spiritual tyrants of England. A calamitous fire occurred in 1174, which almost entirely destroyed the somewhat temporary buildings of the university, and greatly retarded its progress. During the whole of the period, from the Norman Conquest up to the time just spoken of, Cambridge had suffered all the disadvantages of an intestine feudal warfare. Roger Montgomery had ravaged the county and town with fire and sword, and committed such havoc that the students all fled. Henry I., in order to induce them to return, in 1101 conferred on the town many privileges, and exempted it from the jurisdiction of the sheriff, on the payment of one hundred marks annually, the same sum as the sheriff had paid when he had the jurisdiction; and the ferry, which before had been what was called vagrant, was now fixed at Cambridge, so that the prosperity of the town began to increase and be consolidated. About the year 1260, the peace of the university was much disturbed by violent contests between two parties, called the Northern and the Southern men, which prompted several of the students to join with a number of scholars from Oxford, who had left that academy for the same reason, to form a university at Northampton. This institution existed till 1265, when the king, fearing for the prosperity of the university of Oxford, recalled them to Cambridge, and soon afterwards, intending to fortify the town, built two gates, which were connected by a ditch which encircled the buildings;—the gates have long since been destroyed, but the traces of the ditch still remain, and are called the King's Ditch. From that time, till the reign of Richard II., little occurred, except the establishment of several colleges, and frequent disputes between the townsmen and the university respecting the rights of the latter, which, in 1281, rose to such a height, that the townspeople seized several authorities of the former, broke open their chests, abstracted their records and burnt them, besides committing other violences. The rioting continued till it was put down by the Bishop of Norwich. Several of the principal offenders were imprisoned for life: the mayor was degraded from his office, and the liberties of the town were declared forfeited, and bestowed on the vice-chancellor, in whom they remained till the reigns of Henry VII. and his son, when the corporation was restored, but many of its privileges were retained by the vice-chancellor. On the 2d May, 1534, the university renounced the supremacy of the pope, and surrendered all its muniments into the hands of Lord Cromwell, whom the king had deputed to receive them; but they were restored in the following year, and the principals were invested with the full exercise of their privileges. During the whole of the reign of Mary, Cambridge, both town and university, was very unsettled, but the fiery domination of Bishop Bonner was much ameliorated by the gentle moderation of Dr. Perse, the vice-chancellor, whose zeal was satisfied with the expulsion of the professors and masters. From the accession of Elizabeth to the throne, the university has gone on progressing in its peaceful course of public instruction, abounding in fruit for the national honour and welfare. When the breach occurred between Charles I. and his parliament, it declared for the king, and the principals sent all their plate to be converted into money for his use a few days before he erected his standard at Nottingham. This occasioned the arrest of many of them, to whom a compromise was however offered, on condition of their contributing to the support of the parliament; but several of them refusing to comply, a general measure of expulsion was determined, the execution of which was intrusted to the Earl of Manchester, through whose instrumentality a large number of the masters, fellows, and students were driven out in three days. Many of them were reinstated at the Restoration, since which period no remarkable occurrence has occurred in the history of the university. The charities and peculiarities of Cambridge are numerous and various, and are as follow:—The livings are—1. All Saints, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, valued at £105: pres. net income, £120: patron, Jesus College: contains 200 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1831, 1,422: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,606: poor rates in 1837, £750. The annual income of charity connected with this parish amounts to £123.—2. St. Andrew the Less, a curacy not in charge: pres. net income, £48: patron and incumbent, in 1835, Dr. Geldart: contains 1,419 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1831, 6,651: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,080: poor rates in 1837, £2,369. There are twenty-eight daily schools in this parish.—3. St. Andrew the Great, a curacy not in charge, valued at £100: pres. net income, £121: patron, Dean and Chapter of Ely: contains 327 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1831, 1,644: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,808: poor rates in 1837, £936. This parish possesses eight daily and three Sunday schools. The charities, of which the greatest is that of the widow of the celebrated Captain Cook, amount to £33 per annum.—4. St. Benedict, a perpetual curacy, valued at £60: pres. net income, £151: patron, Corpus Christi College: contains 146 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1831, 964: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,008: poor rates in 1837, £672.—5. St. Botolph, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, valued at £106. 18s. 9<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>d.: pres. net income, £100: patron, Queen's College: contains 106 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1831, 759: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,022: poor rates in 1837, £570. There are here three daily schools.—6. St. Clement's, a curacy, valued at £36. 17s. 7d.: pres. net income, £102: patron, Jesus College: contains 161 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1831, 890: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,785: poor rates in 1837, £468.—7. St. Edward, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory, valued at £9: pres. net income, £66: patron, Trinity Hall: contains 116 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1831, 727: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,947: poor rates in 1837, £269. There are in this parish eight daily schools, one of which is endowed by Dr. Perse with £180 per annum. The yearly income of charities amounts to about £20.—8. St. Giles and St. Peter's, united curacies, not in charge, valued at £120: pres. net income, £172: patron, Bishop of Ely: contains 510 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1831, 1,917: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,874: poor rates in 1837, £831. There are here two daily and two Sunday schools, and also ten well-endowed almshouses.—9. St. Mary the Great, a curacy not in charge, valued at £150: pres. net income, £153: patron, Trinity College: contains 146 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1831, 944: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,696: poor rates in 1837, £819. The charities connected with this parish produce about £100 per annum.—10. St. Mary the Less, a curacy not in charge, valued at £47. 17s. 1d.: pres. net income, £95: patron, Peter House College: contains 149 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1831, 810: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,661: poor rates in 1837, £661. A few poor children are annually bound out to some lawful employment by the produce of land, bequeathed by John Westfield in 1684.—11. St. Michael, a curacy not in charge, valued at £150: pres. net income, £98: patron, Trinity College: contains 68 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1831, 711: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £915: poor rates in 1837, £168. The yearly income of charities amounts to £29. 10s.—12. St. Peter's, a curacy united with St. Giles: contains 124 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1831, 702: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £715: poor rates in 1837, £293. This parish possesses three daily schools.—13. St. Sepulchre, a vicarage, valued at £87. 9s. 4d.: pres. net income, £124: patrons, the Parishioners: contains 130 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1831, 674: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,223: poor rates in 1837, £374.—14. Holy Trinity, a perpetual curacy, valued at £87. 9s. 4d.: pres. net income, £96: patron, Bishop of Ely: contains 405 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1831, 2,104: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,810: poor rates in 1837, £997. There are in this parish eight daily and two Sunday schools, and also eight endowed almshouses.—Pop<sup>n</sup> of all the parishes in 1831, 20,917: 3,470 acres: 4,007 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £31,150: poor rates in 1837, £10,147. Situated in a fenny district, with few natural advantages, Cambridge derives its chief attractions from the noble halls, colleges, and other buildings, with their grounds, of the university. On the south it is entered by two principal streets, one forming the continuation of the high road from London, and the other that from Colchester. These unite at a short distance from the iron bridge over the Cam, where they meet the great northern inlet from Ely, Huntingdon, and Godmanchester. Notwithstanding the many improvements of late years, the streets are narrow and irregular, but they contain many excellent houses, and the whole place has a highly respectable appearance. It is well paved, drained, and lighted with gas, for a better supply of which a company was incorporated in 1834. It is supplied with water through a conduit, erected in 1614, in the market-place, by the eccentric and benevolent Thomas Hobson, the carrier, through which water is drawn from a source at three miles' distance. No theatrical entertainments are permitted within nine miles of Cambridge, except during Stourbridge fair, when the Norwich company generally perform for three weeks; but concerts are frequent, and a grand choral meeting generally takes place every commencement, or fourth year. The book societies are numerous, and there are several excellent libraries, the principal of which has been established for many years, and is amply furnished with maps, globes, and all the other appliances for intellectual entertainment. But the principal glory of Cambridge is its university, the history of which we have sketched, together with that of the town, in the early part of this article.

The University of Cambridge consists of seventeen colleges or halls, each of which is a body corporate, and governed by its own separate institutions and statutes, but all are subject to one general common code of laws, by which, as a federalist body, they are governed. Each of these seventeen institutions has its peculiar share in the administration of the interests of the combined body, and each of them has its ministers deliberating upon, enacting, or rejecting laws in the general senate, and of enforcing whatever rules may be adopted for the general government, through the agency of the chief executive power. A body called the senate, composed of the heads of houses and other distinguished members of the university, takes cognizance of the whole of the business of protecting and furthering its interests, and directing its internal regulations. By it the office-bearers are appointed, and without a grace, as every decree is termed, having passed it, no degree can be granted. Its members consist of the masters of arts, doctors of divinity, civil law, and physic, who hold offices in the university, have their names upon the college boards, or are resident in the town; in number they are about 2,000. The senate is divided into two houses—the regent or upper house, consisting of masters of arts of less than five years' standing, and of doctors of less than two years' standing; the remainder compose the non-regent or lower house. The former wear white silk hoods, and the latter black ones; and they are therefore respectively termed the black-hood house and the white-hood house. Doctors of more than two years' standing, and the orators of the university, are entitled to vote with whichever house they please. The right of electing the two members of parliament for the university, is vested in all the doctors and masters of arts, who have their names upon the boards of their colleges; the vice-chancellor is the returning officer. Besides the two houses of the senate, there is a body called the caput, chosen annually, by which every grace must be unanimously approved before it can be introduced to the senate. It consists of the vice-chancellor, a doctor of each of the several faculties of theology, physic, and law, a regent and a non-regent master of arts. Each meeting of the senate is called a congregation, and a list of the days on which congregations are to be held is published by the vice-chancellor a few days before the commencement of every term. These congregations are generally held once a fortnight, but the vice-chancellor can convene the senate whenever he pleases; and masters of arts, with the proper officers, or their deputies, are competent to transact whatever business may be brought before the meeting. Meetings are appointed on certain days by the statutes, and a congregation may be held at any time when forty members can be convened. The executive administration of the university is committed to the chancellor, vice-chancellor, the high steward, commissary, public orator, an assessor, two proctors, two moderators, a registrar, two taxors, two scrutators, classical examiners, syndics, marshal, three esquire bedells, yeoman bedell, university printer, library keeper, under library keeper, school keeper, &c., the caput and the senate being the legislative bodies. The chancellor is the chief magistrate and governor of the university; his duties are to defend its rights and uphold its privileges, convoke assemblies, and distribute justice, to seal the diplomas, letters of degrees, laws, &c., and in every way to give authoritative sanction to whatever proceeds from the university as a body. His office appears to be nearly as ancient as the university itself, being mentioned in some of the oldest records extant. Before the creation of the office of the vice-chancellor, the general duties of that officer were executed by his principal, who at that time was chosen annually, and confirmed by the Bishop of Ely. This latter part of the election was found to occasion delay in the establishment of an adequate authority in the university, beside causing several other inconveniences; and the custom of the confirmation was at length suppressed by Pope Boniface IX., who decreed that the fact of election should institute the authority. The Bishop of Ely had ordained that the chancellor should only remain in office for two or three years; but the university, regarding this frequency of election as a great detriment, disregarded the ordinance, and, in 1504, elected Fisher, Bishop of Rochester, for life, denying to him, however, the right of retaining the dignity for longer than the old term, without their consent. The Chancellor's Court possesses exclusive jurisdiction over all suits and civil actions, where a scholar or any other privileged person is one of the parties, excepting where the right of freehold is concerned; and has authority to try and determine cases either according to common law or their own local customs. The high steward is chosen by the senate, and holds his office by patent from the university,—his duties being to assist the chancellor and other officers, and to hear and determine capital causes. The vice-chancellor is the actual head of the university, and the director of its discipline. His business is to govern the university, under the chancellor, according to its statutes; to see that its laws are duly observed; to take care that courts are properly called, and, in fact, to take the whole government of the university in the absence of the chancellor, who, generally, being some great nobleman or high officer of state—the present chancellor is His Royal Highness the Prince Consort—is unable to attend to the details of management. In 1587, Dr. Capcott was elected vice-chancellor, while only a fellow of Trinity College; but an act was then made, that in future no other than the heads of houses should be chosen for that office. The proctors are selected annually from the regent masters of arts, by a certain rotation, through which it is known who will be proctors for several years to come; their duties are to attend to the conduct and rule of the bachelors and under-graduates, to keep order in the university, assist in the business of the schools, appoint the days for disputations, and direct the mode in which they are to be conducted; to search houses of ill-fame, and commit women of loose and abandoned character; read the graces in the senate-house, attend at the taking of degrees, register the votes in the white-hood house, and punish all those who violate the statutes of the university. The taxors were originally appointed to regulate the prices of the lodgings of the students, as the charges of the housekeepers fell so exorbitantly on the scholars, that they threatened to leave the town. Their business is to take cognizance of the weights and measures, and to regulate the markets; they are appointed at the same time as the proctors. The moderators, who are paid by the proctors, are their deputies and assistants; they superintend the exercises and disputations in philosophy, and the examinations previous to conferring the degree of bachelor of arts; they ought to be, and generally are, gentlemen of the highest mathematical attainment. The scrutators are chosen annually from the non-regents or black-hoods, whose votes they are appointed to take, and also to read the graces in the lower house. The commissary is more peculiarly the legal officer of the institution; he acts as assistant or assessor of the vice-chancellor in his court, and holds a court of record of all privileged persons and scholars below the degree of master of arts, where all causes are determined by the civil and statute law, and the customs of the university. The public orator is appointed for life, and is, on all occasions, the voice of the university, whose letters he is empowered to write, and to address noblemen, on taking their degrees, with an appropriate speech; the office was instituted in 1511 by Nigellus Thorndon, a physician of Cambridge, who granted some small tenements for its support; it is justly esteemed one of the highest honours of the university, although the salary, exclusive of perquisites, is not more than forty shillings a year. The caput, of the respective members of which we have already spoken, is chosen annually in the senate-house by the vice-chancellor, the heads of colleges, the doctors and scrutators, out of three lists of names prepared by the vice-chancellor and the proctors. Of the senate we have also spoken. In the senate-house all the elections of officers are held, as also the appointments of magistrates, the admission to degrees, and the transaction of all the public business of the university; the resolutions submitted to the senate are always drawn up in Latin, and all oaths are administered, and all the degrees are conferred, in the same language. The number of persons maintained on the different foundations is upwards of eleven hundred,—among whom are various professors in the departments of Divinity, Civil Law, Physic, Hebrew, Greek, Casuistry, Arabic, Mathematics, Music, Natural and Experimental Philosophy, Chemistry, Botany, Anatomy, Modern History and Languages, Mineralogy, Astronomy, Geology, and Common Law: there are about four hundred fellows, and between two and three thousand students. The great body of the students are admitted members of their several colleges as pensioners or sizars; the scholars are elected indifferently out of both these bodies. The pensioners are generally members of noble families, or otherwise persons of distinction, and fellow-commoners, who live entirely at their own expense; the scholars have some emolument out of the college to which they belong; and the fellows are selected from the bachelors or masters of arts who have been scholars. The pensioners may have, and sometimes do have exhibitions, but they derive no pecuniary advantage from their college. The sizars are persons of inferior grade, who were formerly compelled to fulfil the menial office of waiting upon the fellow-commoners and fellows; but the degradation has become virtually extinct, and they enjoy the advantages, as well as the reputation, of gentlemen; they are assisted in their education by exhibitions, and certain benefactions granted out of the endowments of the colleges. The time required for study in the university, before taking the lowest degree of bachelor of arts, is rather more than three years; four more for the degree of master of arts; seven years more are required to take that of bachelor of divinity; and five beyond these for the degree of doctor. In law and physic, six years are required for a degree, but that of doctor may be attained in four years after their conclusion. The students of the several degrees are distinguished by the peculiarity of their academic costume. Previous to the erection of the colleges, the students resided in hostels or inns prepared by the townsmen for their reception; and all the charges of education and maintenance were paid by themselves, although the discipline of the university was nearly the same as it is at present. The number of these hostels, according to Fuller, was thirty-four; but some doubts have been entertained of the accuracy of that statement, for it is ascertained that, in the time of Richard II., there were only sixteen. Several of these buildings are now attached to the colleges, and great efforts have been made within the last twenty years to provide accommodation, and to induce the students to take up their residence within their own college walls; but there is still a great number of lodging-houses for the under-graduates, which are licensed and visited by the authorities of the university. From these hostels it was that the present colleges have arisen, and which we will now proceed to describe as briefly as possible. Beside the general professorships, there are several others founded by the university itself, or by individuals who took a deep interest in peculiar points, and for the promotion of particular studies. Of these, the first in the order of time is the Lady Margaret professorship of divinity, founded in 1502, by Margaret, Countess of Richmond, the mother of Henry VII. The regius professorship of divinity, civil law, physic, and Hebrew, was founded by Henry VIII. in 1540. The professorship of Arabic was founded in 1632, by Sir Thomas Adams, Bart.; and in 1663, a professorship was founded by Henry Lucas, Esq., named, in honour of him, the Leucasian professorship. In 1683, Dr. Knightsbridge, a fellow of St. Peter's, founded a professorship of casuistry; and in the following year the professorship of music was founded by the university, and another professorship of chemistry was founded by the university in 1702. In 1704, the professorship of astronomy and experimental philosophy was founded by Dr. Plume. Three years later, the professorship of anatomy and botany was founded by the same authorities, and in 1724 the professorship of modern history by George I. In 1727, the professorship of geology—an early date for that science—was founded by Dr. Woodward; while, in 1749, the chairs of geometry and astronomy were endowed by Thomas Lowndes, Esq. In 1768, John Norris, Esq., of Whitton, in Norfolk, founded the professorship of divinity, named, from the founder, the Norrisonian professorship, under which a prize is annually given for the best essay on the subject by the under-graduates. In 1783, the professorship of natural and experimental philosophy was founded by the Rev. Richard Jackson, M.A. The professorship of the laws of England and of medicine were founded in 1800, by Sir George Downing, Bart., K.B.; and, in 1808, a professorship of mineralogy was founded by the university, and soon afterwards endowed by government. In 1823, a professorship of political economy was founded, and afterwards one of geology. Beside all these professorships, there is a number of lectureships and other literary offices, distinct in their character, but noted for their excellence and utility in promoting the higher branches of education among the people. For instance, there are four Barnaby lectureships for philosophy, rhetoric, logic, and mathematics. The Sadlerian lectureships, seventeen in number, were founded by Lady Sadler. The offices of Christian advocate and Christian preacher—offices which have been eminently instrumental in promoting the cause of goodness—were founded in 1789, by the Rev. John Hulse, who was a graduate at St. John's; the Christian advocate having, so long as he holds the office, to write an answer to some of the objections to the Christian religion—an office which, within the last twenty years, has been no sinecure; while the Christian preacher, who is elected annually, so long as he holds office—during which he is termed the Hulsean lecturer—must preach and print twenty sermons, explaining the obscure parts of scripture, or demonstrating the tenets of the Christian faith. In addition to this, Mr. Hulse, beside founding two scholarships at St. John's, made a bequest to reward the writer, being an under-graduate, of the best dissertation or argument for proving the truth of the Christian religion. Two pensions, of £100 a year, bequeathed by William Worts, once one of the esquire bedells of the university, are given to two junior bachelors of arts, who are elected by the university, and who are required to travel in foreign countries, and, during their journeys, are to write Latin letters descriptive of the manners and customs of the places which they visit: these pensions are continued for three years. The prizes for the encouragement of learning generally amount, for the university at large, to £1,200 a year, and for the several colleges to £300 a year at the least. Each college has its gradations of rank, which are of similar import and standing throughout the university. They consist of a principal, fellows, noblemen, graduates, doctors in the several faculties, bachelors in civil law and in physic, bachelors of arts, fellow-commoners, pensioners, scholars, and sizars; the principal being generally, almost invariably, a doctor of divinity. The rules for attaining these several positions are distinctly laid down, and never dispensed with except in the cases of privy counsellors, bishops, noblemen, dukes, marquises, earls, viscounts, and barons, sons of noblemen, persons related by consanguinity to the sovereign, or affinity, if they be also honourable, and the eldest sons of such persons; as also in the cases of barons and knights who are candidates for the degree of master of arts. None, however, of such gentlemen can vote in the senate until they have kept three terms in the university. Before receiving any degree, every candidate must sign a declaration that he is, bona fide, a member of the Church of England as by law established; and for all degrees, excepting those of B.A., M.B., and B.C.L., it is requisite to sign the 36th canon of the Church of England. As has been stated, the university possesses two law courts—that of the consistory of the vice-chancellor, and the consistory of the commissary. In the former of these, justice is administered in all personal pleas arising within the boundaries of the university wherein any member of it is a party. The chancellor, of course, never sits, the office being chiefly honorary; and the vice-chancellor is assisted by some of the heads of colleges, and by one or more doctors of the civil law, as the nature of the case, and the necessary course of the proceedings, may require. Either of the parties to the suit, may, however, appeal from his judgment to the senate, by whom not fewer than three, nor more than five, delegates are appointed, with power to examine the merits of the case, and confirm or annul the judgment as they may see fit. The court of the commissary sits both in the university, and at midsummer at Stourbridge fairs, to judge in all cases except those of mayhem and felony, and the procedure is similar to that of the vice-chancellor's court, and is equally subject to the right of appeal to the senate. The university counsel are appointed by a grace of the senate, and the solicitors by the vice-chancellor. The terms are three:—Michaelmas term begins on October 10, and ends on the 16th of December. Lent term begins on the 13th of January, and ends on the Friday before Palm Sunday. Easter or Midsummer term begins on the 11th day after Easter day, and ends on the Friday after commencement day, which is always the first Tuesday in July. For such an array of principals, professors, fellows, tutors, students, and the adjuncts necessary to carry on the important business of a great institution like this, edifices are of course necessary. The senate-house, the public schools, the library, and the Fitzwilliam museum, are the principal buildings belonging to the university. The senate-house, an elegant building of Portland stone, designed by Sir James Burrell, was erected chiefly at the expense of the university, but was also furthered by an extensive subscription. The foundation was first laid in 1722, but the edifice was not entirely completed until 1766. The exterior is Corinthian, the interior Doric; the galleries are of Norway oak, and capable of accommodating 1,100 persons. The public schools were commenced on or near their present site in 1443, and were also built by the university, aided by extraneous subscriptions: they occupy three sides of a small square. The anatomical school contains a large number of rare and valuable preparations. The observatory stands on an eminence about a mile from the college walks, on the road to Madingley: it was completed in 1832, at an expense of £19,000; the façade extends about 120 feet, the principal entrance is under a portico, supported by fluted Doric columns. The botanical garden is situated on the south-east side of the town; it occupies between three and four acres of ground, is agreeably and conveniently planned, and well watered. In 1819, a philosophical society was instituted for promoting the knowledge of natural science, which has been eminently instrumental in inducing inquiry, and communicating important facts in philosophy and science. The university has its own printing-office, which is a very elegant building in Trumpington Street. But one of the prime glories of Cambridge is the Fitzwilliam Museum. It was erected through the munificence of Lord Viscount Fitzwilliam, who bequeathed £100,000 in trust to the university, the interest of which was to be used in the erection of a building for the collection which is known by his appellation. It was resolved that a new building should be forthwith erected, and the plans of various architects were exhibited for six months. A report of the syndicate was then made; the senate met on the 29th of October, 1835, and adjudged the prize and the execution of the works to Mr. George Basevi, Jun. The result of his skill and exertions was the present edifice. The museum now stands in the open part of Trumpington Street, opposite to Peterhouse college; the site possesses the advantage of a clear space on each side of the building, through which the grove of Peterhouse appears as a very effective background. The building is 160 feet in length, by 162 feet in depth, and the façade, which is 76 feet high, consists of an octastyle portico, with areostyle columns, and colonnades or wings on the side. A broad flight of steps leads to the portico, which is consequently much elevated above the surrounding buildings; it is imposing in its proportions, and possesses great affluence of aspect, from the abundant sculpture with which it is enriched. The other three fronts are also highly decorated with fluted Corinthian pilastres, niches, and statuary, while the bold florid medallion of the portico is carried all round the building, saving it from that tameness of effect which always results from other portions of an erection, when due care is not taken to make every portion harmonise with the principal front. The material employed is Portland stone. The first feature of the interior is the great hall and statuary gallery, which is 70 feet long, 46 broad, and 50 feet high; the roof, which is vaulted, is supported by twenty Corinthian columns of marble. On each side of this noble room there is a flight of steps of marble which ascends to the picture galleries, while another, of greater width, in the centre of the hall, descends to the library and print rooms. It would be invidious to make distinction of the colleges, but if any one enjoys a pre-eminence it is Trinity, both from the number and celebrity of its students, and the distinguishment of its endowments, though these latter advantages are perhaps inferior to several of the other colleges. It was founded by William Bateman, bishop of Norwich, in 1350, and is remarkable, not only for the properties just named, but also for the complete academical advantages by which it is distinguished: among its other advantages is the painted window of its chapel, which is almost unique, and its library, which contains the most complete collection of works upon the civil, Roman, and common law, which is to be found within the range of these islands. In the list of its students is contained many of the names which have been distinguished in the modern history of our country; and among them are Bilney the martyr, Horsley, bishop of London, and the Earl of Chesterfield; renowned alike for his urbanity of manners and his knowledge of the world. The college has twelve fellowships open to all the counties of England, and fourteen scholarships of ten shillings and sixpence per week during residence, two scholarships of £12 per annum, and a sizarship of about £60 per annum. The college is almost entirely devoted to the study of the civil law, and many of our most distinguished statesmen have been its members. Between Trinity and St. John's there has long been a rivalry; the honours of senior wranglers being pretty equally adjudged between them.—St. John's was founded by the trustees of Margaret, Countess of Richmond and Derby, about the year 1511. The buildings form sides of a quadrangle, the edifices being mostly built of brick, divided so as to form four courts. The first and most ancient is entered by a gateway from the street, surmounted by turrets, which are coeval with the foundation. The second, which is about 270 feet long by 240 broad, was built chiefly through the munificence of Mary, Countess of Shrewsbury. It is very handsome, and appropriated chiefly for the residence of the fellows. The third is built chiefly near the river, and is of smaller dimensions than either of the other two. The fourth consists of a very handsome range of buildings for the accommodation of the students. The chapel, which occupies one side of the north court, is 120 feet long. The ancient gallery, which is about 155 feet long, has a richly ornamented ceiling, but is now divided into apartments for the convenience of the pupils; it contains the portraits of benefactors to, and members of, the college. The library, built by Archbishop Willyams, occupies one side of the third court; it is a large room, and contains the best collection of books on real and controversial Christianity of any town in the kingdom. The fourth or new court contains a very ample range of buildings for the benefit of the students. During the great civil war this college was plundered, and great complaint was made of the outrage, and, among other matters, it was deprived of its communion plate, and of everything valuable which it contained; it is a spacious room, and contains the most correct detail of the books upon geology in the English language, besides a beautiful and almost unique collection of English coins and medals to be found anywhere; the outer court was, at the same time, converted into a prison for the royalists. The gardens and other domains attached to the college, lie on the west bank of the river Cam, over which there is an elegant bridge of three arches. No institution in the world ever had more brilliant alumni than Trinity Hall. It is associated with the brightest eras of our country, and the most striking periods in the progress of humanity and civilization. Among those who, by their characters or their talents, have thrown a lustre upon their mater academia, is Roger Ascham, the kindly guardian of Edward VI., the friend, the companion, and the tutor of Queen Elizabeth, of whose private conversations with his pupil it is difficult to estimate the value—the first of schoolmasters, the meekest of Christians, and the best of patriots—

"A spirit of meekness, a soul for heaven."

"In nomine pedagógus sed in naturâ episcopus."

Then there was Lord Burleigh, Sir Thomas Wyatt, both of whom have been dealt with in these pages; Wentworth, Earl of Strafford, the high-minded but mistaken minister, and betrayed friend of Charles I.; the patriotic Lord Falkland, who knew no happiness but in his country's rest; Bishop Stillingfleet, the acute, and Beveridge, the pious and the good; Wotton and Bentley, the small critics; and Ben Jonson, the great heart and the great poet; Ambrose Philips, Prior, Otway, and Hammond, beside a host of others, the small fry of the Augustan age, who smoothed the language of freemen for the noble spirits who, in after day, were destined to propound the thoughts of Britons in the language of nature's nobility, for the glory of their country and the benefit of the world, of whose spirits we have our share. To these a larger class succeeded, whom it would be impertinent to mention, the shadow of whose mantle rests upon the rising age; and we simply gather up the skirts of their glory, in mentioning Simeon the apostolic, Carus his disciple, and Whewell, the profuse and the profound—deep, earnest, energetic men, who live in the spirits of their age. Attached to this college there are 53 fellowships, 32 of which were thrown open, by letters patent from King George IV., to natives of England and Wales. Twenty-one other fellowships are restricted to particular schools, counties, districts, families, or choirs; they are founded by private benefactors. Beside these endowments, there are 114 scholarships, all of which, except sixteen, are unappropriated; these latter were founded partly by the Duchess of Somerset, and partly by the college, for students from the schools of Hereford, Marlborough, and Manchester; and, in addition to these, there are a great number of exhibitions of various value in a pecuniary sense.—King's College is the most magnificent foundation in Cambridge. It was founded, in 1441, by Henry VI., and consists of a provost, seventy fellows and scholars, the latter of whom are supplied exclusively from Eton college in regular succession. Within the college the provost possesses absolute authority, and no writ of arrest can be executed within its precincts without his permission. The college appoints its own coroner, and the members of it, by special composition between the society and the university, are exempt from the power of the proctors and the other university officers; and by usage they are also exempt from any necessity for keeping exercises, or undergoing any examination whatever, for the degree of bachelor of arts. The several buildings of the college constitute altogether the finest group in Cambridge. The chapel, one of the finest specimens of later English architecture in the kingdom, stands toward the south of the old court; it was begun in 1441 by Henry VI., continued by his adversary Edward IV., the usurper Gloucester, and completed in 1515 by money bequeathed for the purpose by Henry VII. Its extreme length, which is 316 feet, forms the north side of the grand court; its breadth is 84 feet; its height to the summit of the battlements 90 feet, to the top of the pinnacles 101 feet, and to the summit of the corner towers 146 feet. About the middle of the interior, a wooden screen, very richly carved, which supports the organ, separates the choir from the ante-church; the choir is paved with marble. But the great wonder of the building is the immense ceiling of stone spread out like a fanlight, and which, upon its upper side next the roof, appears like a huge chaos of rocks confusedly heaped together; the marvel being, how such an immense weight could be, as it is, supported without a single pillar. On each side of the chapel there are twelve windows nearly 50 feet high, filled with stained glass, and which, with the great window at the east, also exhibiting, like the others, depictions of portions of ancient history, throw hues of gorgeous beauty over the whole edifice. This beautiful glass was inserted during the reign of Henry VII., and is particularly worthy of notice, apart from its intrinsic worth, from having escaped from the energy of reforming zeal, and the violence of republican vandalism, and is therefore one of the most perfect instances of the splendour of our old ecclesiastical decoration in the kingdom. It was the intention of the royal founder, that the chapel should form the south side of a large court; and, in order to secure the erection of the buildings, he gave the stone of two quarries in Yorkshire for that purpose, besides £1,000 a year, payable out of the duchy of Lancaster, until the college should be completed; but Edward IV. deprived the college of this money, and little was done towards completing the design till the year 1724. The whole of the buildings have, within these few years, been repaired and embellished, after designs by Wilkins. Among the distinguished individuals who have been members of this society, are the martyrs Saunders, Glover, Fuller, and Fryth; Sir Francis Walsingham, Sir William Temple, Sir Robert Walpole, and Waller the poet.—Queen's College was founded in 1446, by Margaret of Anjou, consort of Henry VI.; and refounded in 1465, by Elizabeth Woodville, queen of Edward IV. The gardens and the grove, which are exceedingly beautiful, lie upon both sides of the river, and are connected by a wooden bridge of one arch, which is much admired for the ingenuity of its construction. The collegiate body consists of a president, nineteen fellows on the foundation, under certain restrictions, and one bye fellow, the endowment of which is perfectly open. Attached there are eight foundation scholarships of £25 a year each, tenable until the M.A. degree is attained; one of £20 a year, founded by Mr. Smith for his kin and name from Saffron Walden school, then those of the name of Alston, and then to Suffolk men. There are three Smithers' scholarships of £16 per annum each; and three of Stokes', restricted to two of a county. Two Sedgwick's of £15 per annum, one for Buckinghamshire, and the other for Northamptonshire, sons of clergymen preferred, tenable with other scholarships, and also with fellowships. One Mountaigne's of £13 per annum; two James's of £13 each per annum; three Clark's of £10 each per annum; and two Davenant's of £9 each. Erasmus was for some time a student at this college.—Catherine Hall was founded in 1475, by Robert Woodlark, D.D., chancellor of the university, and provost of King's College. The six foundation fellowships are restricted to there being no more than two holders from the same county at the same time. There are also one for men from Coventry school, one called the conduct fellowship, and six with a preference in the first instance for Yorkshire, and then for Lincolnshire men. There are ten scholarships of £35 per annum each, with rooms rent-free, with a preference to Yorkshire men, and then to Lincolnshiresmen; one of £10 per annum for a man from Tamworth school; two of £6 per annum each for men from Eton College, or Merchant Tailors' School; three of £20. 12s. 4d. per annum; eight of £20 each per annum; one of £12 per annum; five of £5 each per annum; seven of £4 each per annum; two of £3. 6s. 8d. per annum; two of £2. 13s. 4d. per annum; and two of £2 each per annum, all perfectly open. Of all the colleges which constitute the university, St. Peter's or Peterhouse is the most ancient. It was founded in 1257 by Hugh de Balsham, bishop of Ely, on the west side of Trumpington Street. He settled no revenue upon it, but only allowed the students chambers and studies, which was very acceptable to them, because they were freed thereby from the extortion of the townsmen, who required exorbitant rents for their lodgings. The same Hugh, being made Bishop of Ely, was careful to enrich his college, and endowed it with maintenance for one master, fourteen fellows, two bible clerks, and eight poor scholars, to be increased as the revenues did increase or abate. He appointed his successors, the bishops of Ely, to be honorary patrons—yea, nursing fathers to this his college, and they have all discharged their trust. Divers bishops of the same see, and others, have been great benefactors to the house. The buildings of the college comprise three courts, which, however, have little of architectural character; but the east window of the chapel has a remarkable fine east window, filled with painted glass; the subject is the crucifixion. There are fourteen foundation fellowships, and eight bye fellowships, in the college. The former are restricted to two of a county, except Cambridgeshire and Middlesex, seven of them being disposed of to men from the counties of Westmoreland, Cumberland, Northumberland, Durham, York, Lancaster, Chester, Derby, Stafford, Nottingham, Leicester, Lincoln, Salop, Worcester, Rutland, Norfolk, Bedford, Huntingdon, Anglesey, Carnarvon, Flint, Merioneth, Montgomery, and Denbigh. Of these, Cambridgeshire and Middlesex may each have four fellows at a time on the foundation. There are forty-eight scholarships on the foundation, of various worth, according to residence, with a preference to men from Hertford school; only two sizars are admitted at Peterhouse. Cardinal Beaufort, Crawshawe, Walton, the learned editor of the Polyglott Bible, Markland, Dr. Sherlock, and Bishop South, were all educated at Peterhouse College.—Clare Hall, originally called University Hall, was founded by Dr. Richard Badew, in 1326; but having been burnt down about the year 1342, it was rebuilt and liberally endowed by Elizabeth de Burgh, one of the sisters and coheireses of Gilbert Earl of Clare, and is thence called Clare Hall. The college stands on the banks of the river Cam, over which there is an elegant stone bridge, which leads, by a pleasing avenue, to a beautiful lawn, surrounded by lofty elm trees, from which there is a fine prospect towards Coton and Madingley. The edifice, which now comprises a court, 150 feet long by 111 broad, was again rebuilt in 1638, and is the most uniform of all the university buildings. The chapel, which was rebuilt in 1769, is noted for the beauty of its stucco-work: it cost upwards of £7,000. Among the most distinguished members of this society, were Bishop Latimer, Archbishop Tillotson, Dr. Burnet, Holcroft, the founder of dissent in Cambridgeshire, Parkhurst, the Greek lexicographer, and Cudworth, author of the Intellectual System; and, if Mr. Tyrwhitt be right, Chaucer, the earliest of truly English poets. Attached to the college, there are nineteen foundations and three bye fellowships. The ten senior fellowships are restricted to two of a county, but the nine junior fellowships are entirely open. Two of the bye fellowships are restricted to Kent, with a preference for Blackheath; the third is appropriated to a man from Norfolk. There are nine principal scholarships attached to Clare Hall—four of £50 a year each, and four of £20 a year each—which are so held that two of them become vacant every year; one of £20 is tenable until the M.A. degree is attained. Two of a guinea and a half a week are held by men, during residence, from Wakefield school; and one of twelve shillings a week, during residence, from Hull school; thirty other scholars receive from two shillings to six shillings a week, during residence. There are four exhibitions of £13 a year, with preference of men from Oakham and Uppingham schools. Only three sizars are admitted to Clare Hall. The college has sixteen benefices.—Pembroke Hall or College, as it is indifferently termed, was founded in 1347, by Mary Countess of Pembroke, but its endowments were greatly enlarged by Henry VI. It stands on the east side of Trumpington Street, nearly opposite to Peterhouse, and consists of two courts of about 95 feet long by 65 feet broad, connected together by the hall. The chapel, which was built by Dr. Matthew Wren, bishop of Ely, after a design by his nephew, Sir Christopher Wren, is considered one of the finest proportioned and most elegant edifices of the university. The college has fourteen foundations and two bye fellowships, open to the natives of all counties, with the restriction only, that not more than three men from any one county can be fellows at the same time. There are numerous scholarships here of £10 a year each, with three of £12 a year, always given to sizars. Besides, there are six of £40 a year each, for superannuated scholars from Merchant Tailors' school; one for a man from Bowes' school in Yorkshire; one of £50 per annum, for a superannuated scholar from Merchant Tailors' school; and some others of £40 a year each, for men from Christ's Hospital. Among the members of this society, who became eminent in after life, were Archbishops Grindall and Whitgift, Bishops Andrews and Ridley, the martyrs Rogers and Bradford; Spenser, Gray, and Mason, the poets, and William Pitt, the great statesman.—Caius or Gonville College was founded in 1348, by Edmund, son of Sir Nicholas Gonville of Torington, in the county of Norfolk, but was consolidated with a new foundation in 1557, by Dr. John Caius; and by the charter then obtained, the united institutions became one, and obtained their double appellation. The college consists of three courts, the most southerly of which, and three remarkable gates in the Grecian style of architecture, are believed to have been the work of John of Padua, who, for some time, was the architect of Henry VIII., and are supposed to be the only examples of his skill remaining in England. The chapel is but small, but is greatly admired for its beauty; the library is also small, but it contains books and manuscripts of great value, particularly in the department of heraldry. Caius possesses twenty-nine fellowships, of which twenty-one are open to all counties; five are appropriated to Norfolk men, two to the diocese of Norwich, and one for Devonshire. The number of scholarships is as high as seventy-seven, ten of which are appropriated to Norwich men, twenty-six to the diocese of Norwich, three for London men, two for Cambridge, two for Hertfordshire, one for Bedfordshire, one for Canterbury, one for a man educated in London and Westminster, and thirty-one are open to all counties. There are also fourteen exhibitions belonging to the college. Caius has, ever since its second foundation by Dr. Caius, been celebrated as a seminary for medicine and anatomy; and among those who were once its members, were Dr. William Harvey, the discover of the circulation of the blood; Dr. William Hyde; Wollaston; Sir Thomas Gresham; Bishop Taylor; and the commentator, Dr. Samuel Clarke; Sir Peter le Neve, the herald and antiquary; Dr. Brady, the historian; Henry Wharton, the author of the Anglia Sacra; Bishop Skip, one of the compilers of the Liturgy; Shadwell, the poet; and Lord Chancellor Norton.—Corpus Christi College was founded in 1351, by the brethren of two guilds, called Gilda Corporis Christi, and Gilda Beatae Mariæ Virginis. The west façade of the new court is 222 feet long, having a lofty tower at each end, with a superb gateway in the middle, flanked by massive towers, similar in character to those at the extremities. It is built of Ketton stone, and is richly embellished. The court is 158 feet long, and 129 broad, having the chapel on the east, the library on the west, and the hall on the north sides. The chapel is 66 feet long, and its exterior is richly ornamented with sculpture. The library is rich in manuscripts, bequeathed by Archbishop Parker; they consist chiefly of documents connected with the Reformation, and among them is the original record of the thirty-nine articles. Among the college plate is preserved a curious drinking horn, which was part of the treasures of the guild of Corpus Christi. The college is endowed with twelve fellowships, two of which are appropriated to Norwich, and four to Norfolk men in preference to any others. The scholarships and exhibitions are very numerous. Nine of them are open to all counties; three of them founded by Archbishop Parker for Norwich men; two by the same for native scholars from Norwich, Wyndham, or Aylsham schools; three of £20 each per annum, the nomination to which is vested in the dean and chapter of Canterbury, who must appoint such men from the school of that city as are sons of their tenantry in Norfolk, Suffolk, and Lincolnshire; or with the dean and chapter of Westminster, for Westminster scholars; or with the master and fellows, for any men from the province of Canterbury. Two are for natives of Kent, from Canterbury school, in the patronage of the dean of Canterbury, and the master of Eastbridge hospital; one for Norwich; one for Cambridgeshire; six in the patronage of the heirs male of Sir Nicholas Bacon, the founder, with the advice of a fellow of the college and the master of Redgrave school; also in the patronage of the master and fellows, in which case the scholarships are restricted to men from Redgrave school, if any are applicants. Of three others, one is presented by the Archbishop of Canterbury to a native and scholar of that place; the other two must be given to men from the schools of Aylsham and Windham, natives of these two places. Seven are unappropriated, three of them being ascribed in preference to men of the names of Caston, Clench, Amfield, or Brownrigg. One founded by John Borage for men of his name and kin, or a native of Norfolk. One of £20 per annum for men of the founder's name, Colman, or in default, to four men from Norwich and Windham schools. Two of £10 per annum each, for natives of York and Mansfield, or, after that, of York diocese. One of £20 per annum, unrestricted. Four of £10 per annum each, for men from St. Paul's school; and one of £30 per annum for a man also from that school, under the patronage of its governors. Eight of £30 per annum, and four of £40 per annum, given to such students as excel in the annual examinations; there are also three others of one shilling a week each. The celebrated men educated at Corpus Christi have been very numerous; among them were Archbishops Parker, Tenison, Sterne, and Herring; Bishops Allen, Flicher, Bradfôrde, Mawson, and Yorke; Lord-keeper Bacon; Rogers, fifth Earl of Rutland; Fletcher, the dramatic poet; Hales, the natural philosopher; Dr. Stukeley, and Gough, the antiquarians.—Jesus College was founded in 1496, by John Alcock, bishop of Ely, on the site of a Benedictine nunnery, dedicated to St. Rhadegund, St. John the Baptist, and the Virgin Mary; and established about the year 1180, the endowment of which was augmented by Malcolm, fourth king of Scotland, and the possessions of which, on its dissolution in the reign of Henry VII., were granted to the bishop. The buildings are situated at the extremity of the town, and consist of a principal court, 141 feet by 120, surrounded on three sides by offices, and a small court surrounded by a cloister; but an addition has within these few years been made to the eastern side of the cloister. The grand front is an imposing façade, 180 feet in length; both the master and fellows have excellent gardens. In the library there are many valuable editions of the classics. The chapel was anciently that of the ancient church of St. Rhadegund, and in several places exhibits traces of the original edifice: the altar-piece, representing the Presentation in the Temple, was presented, in 1796, by Dr. Pearce, the master of the college. In the south transept are the tombs of one of the nuns, named Berta Rosarta, and of John, prior of Pyckenham; in the north transept, is that of Tobias Rustal, spoken of elsewhere as being a munificent donor to the college, and who was famous alike for his great wealth and extensive charities. Among the members of this institution who afterwards became distinguished in the world, was Archbishop Cranmer, Bishop Bale the biographer, Nelson the historian, Roger North, Flamsteed the astronomer, Fenton the poet, Dr. Jortin, Sterne, Tyrwhitt, the founder of the Hebrew scholarship, and the celebrated traveller, Dr. Edward Daniel Clarke. There are sixteen foundation fellowships, the holders of eight of which are to be natives of the northern, and eight of the southern counties, and six in priest's orders. By a recent statute, granted by the Bishop of Ely, and with the king's license, the society has been empowered to elect fellows from any part of England and Wales, without restriction. There are four scholarships of £10 each per annum for Nottinghamshire and Yorkshire; eleven of £45 per annum for clergymen's orphans of England and Wales, founded by Tobias Rustal, yeoman of the robes to King Charles II.; one of £40 per annum to a living clergyman's son, with preference to Nottinghamshire and Lancashire; one of £15 per annum to the son of a clergyman, with preference to an orphan; three of £8 each per annum, and one of £2 per annum, open to all counties; one of £10 per annum, of Doncaster or Acksey free schools; two of £70 each, for Tunbridge and Seven Oaks schools; two of £16 each, tenable till the M.A. degree is taken after the scholars have graduated, for orphans of the clergy; one of £6. 8s. 6d. a year, for men from Caister, Louth, or Alford schools; one of £3. 6s. 8d. per annum, for Herefordshire, Lancashire, Cumberland, or Essex; two of £4. 10s. a year each, one for the county of Merioneth, or Anglesey, the other to St. Peter the Poor, or St. Foster in London; one of £60 per annum for Loughborough school, and fifteen of £3 a year each, open to all counties.—Trinity College occupies the site of seven hostels and two colleges, King's Hall and Michael House. The latter of these colleges was founded in 1324, by Hervey de Stanton, Chancellor of the Exchequer to Edward II., and the former in 1337, by Edward III.; and they are said to have been of sufficient extent to accommodate Richard II. and his parliament—that king holding a court at Cambridge in 1381. Both these colleges were suppressed in 1546, and the present magnificent institution was founded by Henry VIII., for a master, sixty fellows, and sixty-nine scholars; and the endowment was considerably increased by his daughter, Queen Mary. The buildings stand between Caius College and St. John's, consisting of three spacious quadrangular courts, which occupy the whole of the site between Trinity Street and the river. The first court, which is the largest, approaches to the strict form of a square; it is 630 yards in circuit, and is surrounded by a noble series of edifices; on the north side is the chapel, on the west the hall and master's lodge, and on the south and east are the apartments of the fellows and students. This court is approached by a turreted gateway, supposed to have been the original entrance to King's Hall; in the middle of it there is a conduit which supplies the college and the neighbouring inhabitants with excellent water, brought from a reservoir about a mile west of the town. The second court was built in 1600, and is called Neville Court, after the Dr. Thomas Neville, master of the college, and dean of Canterbury; it is more elegant, but less spacious than the former, and has, like it, irregular sides, varying from 132 feet to 228 feet in length. On the west side is the library, which is of later date, being projected by Dr. Sparrow; and on the other sides are rooms for the fellows and students, most of which have been rebuilt; the library and the cloisters, which extend along the north-west and south sides, were designed by Sir Christopher Wren. Beyond this court is the new and magnificent quadrangle, called King's Court, in honour of George IV., who opened the subscription for its erection by a donation of £2,000. It was commenced in 1823, and completed in 1825, at an expense of £40,000; the buildings were designed by Wilkins, and the principal front, with a fine tower gateway, faces the college walks in a line with the library. The chapel of Trinity, which is 200 feet long, is in the later style of English architecture, and was begun and finished by the sister queens, Mary and Elizabeth. The stalls are particularly handsome, and are adorned with some fine wood-carving by Gibbons; the thrones for the master and vice-master are remarkably beautiful. There are several tablets and other monuments in the ante-church, the principal of which is the statue of Sir Isaac Newton, by Roubilliac, which was presented by Dr. Smith, master of the college, and a bust and tablet by Chantrey, to the memory of the late Professor Porson. The hall, about 100 feet long and 50 feet high, is in the later English style. The master's lodge contains some very fine apartments; it is always the residence of the sovereign whenever Cambridge is honoured by a royal visit, and there the judges always take up their abode when holding the assizes. The library is a noble room, 200 feet long, and proportionally lofty; it cost upwards of £20,000, collected by subscriptions through the influence and exertions of Dr. Barrow; the collection of books is large and highly valuable. The fellowships are open to all counties, and all the fellows are required to go into priests' orders within seven years after they commence masters of arts, excepting two, who are appointed by the master, and are allowed to remain laymen; one of them is supposed to study law, and the other physic. The scholarships are open to men of any county, except three or four, which are appropriated to scholars chosen annually from Westminster school, and one of £37 per annum appropriated to a native of Kent and Cambridgeshire alternately. There are fourteen exhibitions, most of which are under £10 per annum. There are various donations, amounting in the aggregate to £163 per annum, which is divided annually among the sizars, to whom the noblemen pay two guineas, and the fellow-commoners one every quarter. The masterships of Stevenage school in Hertfordshire, and of Stone and Uttoxeter schools in Staffordshire, are in the gift of the college. Among the illustrious men who have been educated at this college, were Archbishop Fowler, several bishops noted for their literary ability or lofty character, Lord Bacon, Sir Isaac Newton, Dr. Barrow, Dr. Bentley, Ray the naturalist, Dr. William Whittaker, Dryden, Cowley, Donne, and Byron, Lee the dramatist, the Marquis of Lansdowne, Sir Robert Cotton, Sir Henry Spillman, Dr. Conyers Middleton, and the late Professor Porson. — Christ's College was originally founded in 1450, under the name of God's House, by Henry VI.; but in 1505 the name was changed, and the old society was incorporated with the new institution, at the instance of Margaret, Countess of Derby, who contributed liberal endowments for a master and twelve fellows. The buildings form a quadrangular court, 138 feet by 120, and a secondary court, enclosed on two sides by a massive pile of building, 150 feet long; the other sides are open to the gardens and the fields. The chapel is 84 feet long; it is floored with marble, and has in the east window portraits of Henry VII., and other members of the family of the foundress. Within the communion-rails is the tomb of Dr. Ralph Cudworth, author of the 'Intellectual System,' who was a master of the college. The foundation of Christ's is for divinity, and the fellows are consequently required to take orders within twelve months after they have attained the proper age. Objections having been made respecting the smallness of the number of the fellows, Edward VI. added one more, who shares in the emoluments of the others, who may be of any county, and is not required to take orders. Two other fellowships were founded by Sir Thomas Baines and Sir John Finch, which may be held by men of any county, preference, however, being made in favour of the kindred of the founders; they may be held by laymen, and the revenues are independent of the college authorities. There are forty-seven scholarships of 12s. a week each, held during residence; but not more than three men from any one county can hold at the same time. There are also six for men from Giggleswick school in Yorkshire; one for Upton school, Hants; one for Brentwood school, Maldon, or Chelmsford school, Essex; one to each of the natives of Newmarket or Huntingdon; one each for men from the counties of Durham, Suffolk, and Bedford; three for Norfolk; three of £12 a year each for Buntingford grammar-school; and six open, without any restriction of school or county. Among men, afterwards eminent in the world, who were members of this society, were Milton, Cleland, and Quarles; Leland, the antiquary; Echard, the historian; Sanderson, the mathematician; Archdeacon Paley, and Dr. Joseph Mede. — Magdalene College was first begun by Edward Stafford, Duke of Buckingham, in 1519, under the name of Buckingham House; but, being unfinished at the time of his attainder, was granted to Thomas Baron Audley, Lord High Chancellor, by whom it was endowed in 1542. The library was bequeathed by the celebrated Samuel Pepys, who was secretary to the Admiralty in the reigns of Charles II. and James II., whose diary of his own times, published within these few years, presents such a vivid picture of society during the period in which he lived. There are four fellowships upon the foundation of the college, and eleven bye fellowships, open to men from all counties; another attached to Shrewsbury school, and one travelling fellowship for Norfolk men. There are thirty-eight scholarships attached to the college, of various value, and conferred by various benefactors; four of them, of £20 each, are appropriated to men from Shrewsbury school; two of £20 each, to men from Shropshire; two of £40 per annum each, to scholars from Wisbeach school; three of £20 each are appropriated to men from Leeds, Halifax, and Heversham schools; and one of £5 is in the gift of the Haberdashers' Company. — Emanuel College was founded in 1548, by Sir Walter Mildmay. It occupies the site of a Dominican friary, which was founded before the year 1275, and endowed, or rather further enriched, by Alice, widow of Robert Vere, second Earl of Oxford, which, after the dissolution, was purchased by Sir Walter, prior to the foundation of this college. Emanuel's is pleasantly situated in St. Andrew's Street, near the southern entrance to the town. The greater part of the edifices are modern, elegant in appearance, and built of stone; they consist of a principal court, 128 feet by 107, to which a range of buildings has been added for the students within these few years, and which, with the library and the north side of the hall, form a second court. The chapel is 84 feet long, and has a marble floor; it was designed and commenced by Archbishop Sancroft in 1688, and was completed in nine years,—a contribution of £1,040, to further the work, being made by Sir Robert Gayer, K.B. The old chapel was fitted up as a library, towards the furnishing of which the archbishop just named gave his own collection of books; the works it contains are principally on divinity, but among them there is a very curious edition of Cicero's Offices, printed by Faust in 1465, in fine preservation. The hall is very elegantly furnished, and at the upper end contains a portrait of Sir Wolstan Dixie, lord mayor of London, who founded two bye fellowships and two scholarships. In the gardens, which are spacious, there is a bowling-green and a cold bath for the use of the fellows. There are twelve fellowships and one bye fellowship open to Englishmen of all counties, with the restriction, that there shall be only one fellow from each county at the same time. The Dixie fellowships are not on the foundation; and the fellows have no right to vote, and no title to the college livings; the presentation is vested in Sir Wolstan's heirs, and the candidates must be of the founder's kin, or have been educated at Market-Bosworth school. There are several foundation scholarships here of 11s. 4d. per annum each, and of 7s. 6d. each during residence, with the restriction, that not more than three are held by men from the county at the same time; five of £25 a year each are appropriated, with a preference, ceteris paribus, to the sons of orthodox clergymen; one of £12 a year to the best of the preceding five; ten of £10 a year each, with preference to men from Oakham and Uppingham schools; one of £16 a year, with preference for Durham and Newcastle schools; two of £12 each per annum, with preference to men from Christ's Hospital; four of 4s. a week during residence; one of £10, with a preference to a medical student, beside many smaller ones. Among the eminent personages who were members of this society, were Archbishop Sancroft, Bishops Hall,

Bedell, Kidder, Hurd, Percy, and Bennett, Matthew Poole, Dr. Wallis the mathematician, Sir Robert Twiston the antiquary, Sir William Temple, Anthony Blackwall, author of 'The Sacred Classics Defended and Illustrated;' Dr. Farmer, the commentator on Shakspeare; and Dr. Samuel Parr. —Sidney Sussex College, situated on the east side of Sidney Street, was founded in 1598, pursuant to the will of Frances Sidney, Countess of Sussex. The buildings comprise two courts, built of brick; the chapel was rebuilt in 1780. The hall and master's lodge have, within these few years, been cased with stone and greatly improved; in the former there is a portrait, in crayons, by Cooper, of Oliver Cromwell, who was a member of this society; and in the library, there is a bust of him by Bernini, moulded from a cast taken after death. In the grounds, which are spacious, there is a large bowling-green for the fellows. There are nine foundation fellowships, and two founded by Mr. Peter Blundell, appropriated to his scholars of this college, one to be nominated by the Fishmongers' Company. The mathematical lectureship is worth about £140 a year. The scholarships are twenty, of 7s. a week each during residence,—two founded by Mr. Blundell, for men from Tiverton school; and six others of £60 a year each. There are four exhibitions of £13 a year each, with preference to Oakham and Uppingham schools; two others of £40 a year each for the sons of clergymen, with preference to men from Oakham and Grantham schools; and two of £12 a year each for clergymen's sons. Among the eminent persons who were members of this society, were Oliver Cromwell, as stated above, Archbishop Bramhall, Bishops Seth, Ward, Gurnet, and Montague; Thomas Fuller the historian, Sir Roger L'Estrange, Dr. Comber, dean of Durham, and William Wollaston, author of the 'Religion of Nature Delineated.' —Downing College, which forms an elegant quadrangle in the Grecian style, was founded in 1800, by charter, in consequence of a bequest made by Sir George Downing, Bart. of Gamlingay Park, in this county, who bequeathed his estates, in Cambridgeshire, Bedfordshire, and Suffolk, to Sir Jacob Garrard Downing, afterwards to other relatives in succession, and, on their failure, to found a college on a plan to be approved of by the two archbishops, and the masters of St. John's College and Clare Hall. The other devisees died in Sir Garrard Downing's lifetime, and the property was held till her death by Lady Downing, after whose decease her devisees retained it, and the university was therefore obliged to sue in Chancery for its recovery. After six-and-thirty years their right was established, and a charter for the establishment and government of the college passed the Great Seal in 1800. In 1805, the statutes of government were framed, and the stipends. In May, 1807, the building was begun; and the building has been proceeded with, at intervals, till upwards of £60,000 has been spent upon it. The object of the foundation, as stated in the charter, is the study of law, physic, and other useful arts, so that this is the only exclusively lay college in the university. Up to the present time, only the masters, the professors, and three fellows, have been appointed; but the society will consist of a master, professors of law and medicine, and sixteen fellows, of whom only two are to be clerical; the appointment of the remaining fellows is deferred till the completion of the buildings. Two chaplains are nominated by the master, who is himself elected by the two archbishops, and the masters of St. John's College and Clare Hall, as devised by the founder, from amongst those who are, or have been, fellows of the college. The scholars are also to be elected when the buildings are finished, when only two are to be elected every year. — The curriculum, as it is called, or course of study in the University of Cambridge, varies according to the discipline of the various colleges; but until lately the end of it was similar in all—eminent attainments in mathematical knowledge, the Greek and Latin classics, and theology, towards the possession of which appropriate honours and rewards are respectively awarded by the university at the close of the collegiate course of study. Very lately a decree has passed the senate, at the suggestion of the present chancellor, H.R.H. Prince Albert, and the curriculum has been very greatly enlarged, by the admission of the modern sciences as subjects for the examinations of the under-graduates to excellency, in which also fitting honours and rewards will be appropriated. The honours are awarded to four different classes of students, who, according to their degree of attainment, are ranked as wranglers, senior and junior, optimes, and those who go out in the poll—the many—as it is called, or men who, though they may be persons of very considerable attainment, may not have chosen the severe course of application necessary to secure the peculiar commendation of the university authorities. The professorships at Cambridge comprise almost every branch of recognised science and literature, and the several chairs are at present held by men equal to any in the world in the vigour and comprehensiveness of their abilities, and the profundity of their learning. The university is free from ecclesiastical jurisdiction. The town of Cambridge is divided into four distinct wards, termed respectively, Bridge Ward, Market Ward, High Ward, and Preacher's Ward, which comprise the fourteen parishes, with their chapels of ease, specified in the early part of this article. Besides the several places of worship belonging to the Established Church there named, there are numerous chapels for the Wesleyan and Primitive Methodists, Independents, Baptists, and Society of Friends. The grammar-school was established through a bequest of Dr. Stephen Perse, senior fellow of Caius College, who, in 1615, left property for its erection and endowment. Scholars of three years' standing at least at this school are eligible, before all others, to the Perse fellowships and scholarships at Caius College. The free school, founded in 1808, has been incorporated with the National Society, as is also the school for 300 girls, erected in 1816. The Whiston's charity schools for both sexes were instituted in 1703. Addenbrooke's hospital, founded in 1766 by Dr. John Addenbrooke, is situated at the south entrance of the town, and it was for some time a private charity. By its funds being found insufficient for the claims made upon it, it was converted by act of parliament into a general infirmary, for the support of which voluntary contributions have been brought in aid of the original endowment; and, in 1813, Mr. Bowtwell bequeathed to it £7,000. The average number of patients is 1,000 per annum, the number of beds 105, and the yearly expense about £2,800, of which £900 is raised from invested funds, the rest being supplied by subscriptions. There are almshouses founded and endowed by various persons for upwards of fifty poor people. Of the numerous religious houses which formerly existed in Cambridge, Tanner, in his Notitia Monastica, has the following notice. He says—In or near the church of St. Giles, in Cambridge, Picot, a Norman lord of Bourne, and many years sheriff of Cambridgeshire, at the instance of Hugolina, his wife, began a religious house for a prior and six regular canons, A.D. 1092, which was, twenty years after, removed to a place on the other side of the river called Barnwell, by Pain Peverell, that famous soldier who was standard-bearer to Robert, duke of Normandy, in the holy wars. Here he new built and enlarged the priory in honour of St. Giles and St. Andrew, designing it for thirty canons of the order of St. Austin. At the dissolution, its yearly revenues were valued at £656. 11s. 10d. q. Dugd. £351. 15s. 4d. Speed. Its site was granted, in the 38th year of Henry VIII., to Anthony Broun, and in the 6th year of Edward VI. to Edward Lord Clinton. Some part of the buildings belonging to this convent are said still to be seen. About A.D. 1291, adds Tanner, a convent of white canons, from Sempringham, settled themselves at the old chapel of St. Edmund the king, over against Peter House, which they had by the gift of B. fil. Walteri, and here they continued till the dissolution, when this small priory was valued at £14. 8s. 8d. ob. per ann. Dugd. £16. 16s. Speed; and the site of it was granted, in the 35th year of Henry VIII., to Edward Elrington and Humphrey Metcalf. John de Cranden, prior of Ely, in the beginning of the reign of King Edward III., bought a house near Burden Hoale, wherein he placed a few Benedictine monks from Ely, for their better improvement in university learning. But within a few years this house was granted to William Bateman, bishop of Norwich, who thereon built part of Trinity Hall. Here were also an hospital, dedicated to St. Anthony and St. Eligius, an hermitage and lazaret-house, and houses of black, grey, white, and Bethlehemite friars; together with the houses of friars de Sacco and fratres S. Marice. There appears also to have been a Benedictine nunnery, dedicated to the Virgin, founded here about 1130. The castle, of which the only remains is the ancient gateway, was built by William the Conqueror, on the site of a Danish fortress, which had been long the residence of our Saxon monarchs. During the civil war it was garrisoned for the parliament. Some earthworks still remain, which are undoubtedly of Roman origin. The sessions were constantly held in it until the building of the shire-hall, and until lately it was used as a prison. Cambridge has no manufactures, its support depending upon the university and the produce of the agricultural district of which it is the centre, in which a considerable trade is carried on with Lynn by means of the Cam, which is navigable up to the town. There are warehouses situated on the banks of the river, at each extremity of the town, for the commodities of corn, coal, timber, and iron. Besides these, however, great quantities of oil, hemp, and cole cake are brought from the numerous mills in the Isle of Ely, and forwarded by the railway to London. The principal market-place forms two oblong squares, and here it is that Hobson's conduit, spoken of above, stands, erected by that eccentric individual for the benefit of the town. He was a carrier and hackneyman, whose unswerving determination only to let his horses go out in strict rotation, gave rise to the proverb, "Hobson's choice—this or none," and who, for his merits, was honoured by an epitaph from the pen of John Milton. The pease market, which is devoted to the sale of corn and fish, is situated in St. Edward's parish. The hog market, which is a large repository for the sale of cattle, sheep, and pigs, is held on St. Andrew's hill, and the haymarket in St. Giles', at the northern extremity of the town. The weekly market is on Saturday. Cambridge has two fairs, one for horses, cattle, timber, and pottery, beginning on the 24th of June, and lasting for a week. The other is called Stourbridge or Sturbitch fair, and was anciently one of the most celebrated and best frequented in the kingdom: it commences on the 18th of September, and continues for fourteen days; the staple commodities being cheese, hops, wool, cattle, leather, timber, and hardware;—the 26th is appropriated to the sale of horses. The fair, according to the best authorities, was granted by King John in aid of an hospital for lepers, which had an ancient chapel here; but it was ultimately granted by Henry VIII. for a thousand marks, to the magistrates and corporation of Cambridge. It has of late greatly declined, but during the last century it was, according to Carter, in a very flourishing condition, and it is still an important event in the annals of the town. Though a borough by prescription, it was not incorporated until the reign of Henry I.; but many valuable and important privileges have been granted to it by succeeding sovereigns, particularly by John, Henry III., Edward II., and Richard II. By the general municipal reform act, the government of the town has been vested in a mayor, ten aldermen, and thirty common councillors, and by it the town is now divided into five wards—East Barnwell, West Barnwell, Market Ward, Trinity Ward, and St. Andrew's Ward. A commission of the peace has been assigned to Cambridge, and the court of quarter sessions is always held on the Monday before the sessions for the county. Petty sessions are held every Friday, and a civil court once every four weeks, on Tuesdays. A new gaol has been built at an expense of something short of £16,000. The spinning-house, situated in St. Andrew Street, was erected by the benevolent Thomas Hobson, for the purpose, as he expressed it in the grant, of setting the poor people of Cambridge to work; and for a house of correction, for correcting and setting to work unruly and stubborn rogues, beggars, and poor people who refuse to work, and for providing wool and flax for their occupation. The prison presents a striking brick elevation towards the street, having a gate in the centre, on each side of which are the keepers' apartments; the interior is conveniently arranged in a parallelogram for the classification of prisoners. The university and the town being both named in Hobson's benefac- tion as participators, the trustees have divided it between them. The borough has returned two members to parliament ever since the 23d year of Edward I., the franchise being vested in freemen not paupers, in number about 200, a great portion of whom were non-resident. By the Reform Act, the franchise was extended to all resident £10 householders, and the constituency is about 1,500. The mayor is the returning officer. It is needless to observe that Cambridge is replete with all the appliances for refined and social enjoyment among an enlightened community, and that its aspect and character have of late been rapidly rising, especially since the introduction of the railway into the town. The rates collected in 1837 amounted to £11,275. 7s. 11½d.; pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 24,453; probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 25,300. — Bankers: Thomas Fisher & Sons—draw on Curries & Co.; John Mortlock & Sons—draw on Smith, Payne, & Co.: Branch of London and County Joint Stock Banking Co.—draw on Head Office, 21 Lombard Street; E. & C. F. & G. E. Foster—draw on Prescott, Grote, & Co. — Hotels: Rod Lion, Bull, and University Arms: George Inn.

CAMDEN-TOWN, MIDDLESEX, a hamlet in the parish of St. Pancras—(with which it will be described): 2 miles from London, 3 from Hampstead. — Money orders issued here: post six times each way daily. — Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 15,016: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 17,266.

CAMEL (WEST), SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Somerton, union of Yeovil, eastern division: 171 miles from London (coach road 120), 3 from Ilchester, 5 from Yeovil. — Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Bridgewater, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Bridgewater, &c., 185 miles. — Money orders issued at Ilchester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £13. 8s. 9d.: pres. net income, £275: patron, Bishop of Bath and Wells: pres. incumbent, W. L. Metcalf, 1847: contains 2,100 acres: 44 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 344: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 395: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,324: poor rates in 1837, £125.

CAMEL-QUEEN'S (or QUEEN'S CAMEL), SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Catsash, union of Wincanton: 121 miles from London. — (For access and postal arrangements, see above.) — Lyson, in speaking of this place, says—Near this village, by the side of a little river, stands Camalet, a steep mountain of a very difficult ascent; on the top whereof are the plain footsteps of an old decayed camp, and a triple rampire of earth cast up, including 20 acres. The inhabitants call it King Arthur's palace; but that it was really a work of the Romans, is evident from the Roman coins daily dug up there. The hill is a mile in compass at the top, four trenches circling it, and between each of them an earthen wall. On the very top of the hill, as hath been said, is an area of 20 acres or more, where in several places, as Leland observes, might be seen the foundations of walls. And there was much dusky blue stone, which the people of the adjoining villages had in his time carried away. Besides the coins, Stow tells us of a silver horse shoe dug up there in the memory of that age; and Leland describes it in a kind of ecstasy, thus: 'Good Lord, what deep ditches, what high walls, what precipices are here! In short, I look upon it as a very great wonder, both of art and nature! What the Romans might call it we are altogether ignorant, unless it be that Caer Calemon, which we meet with in Nennius's Catalogue by a transposition of letters for Camelion: but of that let the learned judge.' — The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £17. 16s. 8d.: pres. net income, £222: patron, P. S. J. Mildmay: pres. incumbent, C. Langdon, 1832: contains 2,280 acres: 102 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 739: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 850: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,629: poor rates in 1837, £267. — Fairs: June 1, and Oct. 25, for all sorts of cattle.

CAMELEY, SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Chewton, eastern division, union of Clutton: 116 miles from London (coach road 115), 9 from Bath, 11 from Frome. — Gt. West. Rail. to Bath, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Bath, &c., 152 miles. — Money orders issued at Bath: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — The living (St. James), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, and diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £6. 18s. 4d.: pres. net income, £256: patron, H. Hippisley, Esq.: pres. incumbent, T. Williams, 1810: contains 1,630 acres: 115 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 643: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 739: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,013: poor rates in 1837, £234. — N., Cholwell House.

CAMELFORD, CORNWALL, a borough and market town in the parish of Lanteglos, hun<sup>d</sup> of Lesnewth, union of Camelford: 274 miles from London (coach road 229), 11 from Bodmin, 15 from Launceston. — Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Plymouth, thence 30 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Plymouth, &c., 288 miles. — Money orders issued at Bodmin: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 3 p.m.: post closes 9½ a.m. — It was at this place that the celebrated battle between King Arthur and his nephew Mordred was fought in 543, in which the latter was slain, and the former mortally wounded. Camelford returned members to parliament from the time of Edward VI., till it was disfranchised by the Reform Act, at the passing of which, it contained only about twenty voters, and was, of course, a pocket borough. The only charter possessed by the town is one granted by Charles II., but the municipality has necessarily been affected by the general municipal reform act. The petty sessions for the county are held here, and there is a Methodist chapel. Camelford poor-law union comprises fourteen parishes, spread over eighty square miles, with a population of about 7,000 persons. — Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 705: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 811.

CAMERINGHAM, LINCOLN, a parish in the western division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Aslaoce, parts of Lindsey, union of Lincoln: 184 miles from London (coach road 141), 5 from Spittal, 8 from Lincoln. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Syston and Lincoln to Great Burton, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham and Lincoln to Great Burton, &c., 65 miles. — Money orders issued at Spittal: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stow, and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £4. 5s. 2d.: pres. net income, £140:

patron, Lord Monson: pres. incumbent, Joseph Green, 1842: contains 4,450 acres: 27 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 139: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,737: poor rates in 1837, £109.

CAMERTON, SOMERSET, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Wellow, eastern division, union of Clutton, intersected by the Somerset coal canal: 113 miles from London (coach road 112), 6 from Bath, 9 from Frome. — Gt. West. Rail. to Bath, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Bath, &c., 149 miles. — Money orders issued at Bath: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. — The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Wells, and diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £15. 9s. 2d.: pres. net income, £481: patron, John Jarrett, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. Jarrett, 1840: contains 2,020 acres: 231 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,501: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,726: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,663: poor rates in 1837, £466. — Camerton Court is the seat of John Jarrett, Esq., who married Anna-Eliza, daughter of Sir Jonathan Waller, Bart. Mr. Jarrett, who is a magistrate for the county, and who was high sheriff in 1840, derives his descent from a Protestant gentleman, who fled with his family from France after the massacre of St. Bartholomew, and two of whose descendants were also high sheriffs of Somersetshire.

CAMERTON. See RYHILL and CAMERTON.

CAMERTON, CUMBERLAND, a parish in Alledale ward, below Derwent, western division, near St. George's Channel: it includes the townships of Camerton and Seaton: 331 miles from London (coach road 302), 3 from Workington, 3 from Maryport. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe, Lancaster, and Carlisle, to Maryport, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 231 miles. — Money orders issued at Workington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 12½ p.m.: post closes 12½ p.m. — The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £15. 10s.: pres. net income, £100: patron, Dean and Chapter of Carlisle: pres. incumbent, R. L. Joyce, 1847: contains 2,880 acres: 183 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 941: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,082: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,178: poor rates in 1837, £229.

CAMMERTON, CUMBERLAND, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.)—Contains 23 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 116: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £751: poor rates in 1837, £59.

CAMPDEN-BROAD, GLOUCESTER, a hamlet in the parish of Campden-Chipping—(which see for access, &c.): 89 miles from London, 8 from Evesham, 9 from Stow. — Money orders issued at Evesham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — Contains 61 houses.—(Other returns with the parish.)

CAMPDEN-CHIPPING, GLOUCESTER, a market town and parish in the upper division of the hund<sup>d</sup>. of Kiftsgate: it includes the hamlets of Berrington, Campden-Broad, Wessington, and Combe: 91 miles from London (coach road 90), 27 from Gloucester. — Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Campden-Chipping station: from Derby, through Birmingham and Worcester to Campden-Chipping, 98 miles. — Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — Campden-Chipping is a place of great antiquity, and is supposed to have derived its name from an encampment formed during the contest between the Mercians and the West Saxons; but we have authentic data that a congress of the Saxon chiefs, allied for the purpose of subjugating Britain, was held here in 689. About the early part of the 14th century, the agricultural capabilities of the country began to be developed, and the town became a staple market for wool for many miles round, and the residence of some of the most eminent merchants, who exported large quantities of the article to Flanders; but, on the forced immigration of the Flemings, after which England, especially in the western counties, became a large manufactory of woollen cloth, the trade departed to more southerly and westerly districts, and the prosperity of the town speedily declined. Early in the 15th century, a magnificent mansion was erected here by Sir Baptist Hickeys at an expense of £29,000, which, with its various offices, occupied an area of eight acres; but when the differences between Charles I. and the parliament broke out into open warfare, his descendant, the then owner, in a spirit of loyalty, demolished the mansion to prevent it from becoming a stronghold of the republicans. Campden-Chipping is agreeably situated in a vale surrounded by wooded hills of considerable beauty, upon one of which athletic sports were established in the time of James I., similar to the Olympic games of Greece, which were attended by persons of all ranks, from the highest to the lowest, who flocked hither from all the surrounding districts, until they were suppressed during Cromwell's protectorate. They were, however, renewed after the Restoration for many years, and Ben Jonson, Drayton, and other poets, wrote in honour of them: they were originated by Robert Dover, a public-spirited attorney of Burton-on-Heath, and the prizes were distributed by a person arrayed in a discarded habit of James I. The town is neither lighted nor paved, and consists principally of one street, about a mile in length, lined with respectable but old houses, which generally show the style of the Elizabethan age. Water is supplied abundantly, of excellent quality, from several springs in the neighbourhood. The church, which is situated to the north of the town, in the hamlet of Berrington, is a handsome structure in the decorative style of English architecture, with a fine lofty tower, having angular and lateral buttresses, and pierced battlements with crocketed pinnacles. It had formerly a remarkably fine oak-carved roof, but the modern innovations, as bad in taste as ignorant in art, nearly obliterated it, but some portions are still preserved in the north aisle. The interior is embellished by some beautiful monuments, and among others, those of Sir Baptist Hickeys, the first Viscount Campden, the Earl of Gainsborough, and other distinguished persons. The free school was founded by Mr. John Fereby or Varby, and endowed with a moiety of the manor of Lynham in Oxfordshire; but through some mismanagement that property was sold, and another estate purchased, which produces only £60 per annum, which, by a decree of the Court of Chancery in 1627, was vested in trustees for the support of a master and an usher, who teach from thirty to forty boys. The school has an interest in eight scholarships in Pembroke Hall, Oxford, founded by George Townsend, Esq., in 1682, for boys from Gloucester, Cheltenham, Northleach, and Campden-Chipping schools, a further advantage being provided, that the scholars on his foundation should be preferred to his donatives of Colnbrook and Uxbridge. A charity school for clothing and instructing thirty girls was endowed with £1,000 by James Thynne, Esq., and there is a national school now incorporated with an ancient foundation of the Mr. Townsend spoken of above, from whose endowment the master receives a salary of £20 per annum. There are almshouses here for six aged persons of each sex, endowed by Baptist Lord Hicke, the first viscount who rebuilt the market-house, and during his life gave £10,000 towards charitable uses. He died in 1629, and was buried in the south aisle of the church. The Wesleyan Methodists and Baptists have each places of worship here. Under an old charter of James I., by which the town was incorporated, but the main provisions of which have become obsolete, two bailiffs are still annually appointed, whose office is chiefly honorary. The court-house is situated in the middle of the street, but it has no architectural character. Campden-Chipping is, by the Reform Act, made a polling-place for East Gloucestershire. — The living (St. James), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £20. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £640: patron, Earl of Gainsborough: pres. incumbent, C. E. Kennaway, 1832: contains 4,660 acres: 419 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,087: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,400: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,044: poor rates in 1837, £1,086. — Market day, Wednesday. Fairs: Ash-Wednesday, April 23, Aug. 5, Dec. 14, for horses, cows, sheep, linen cloth, and stockings. — Lygon Arms Inn, and Noel Arms Hotel.

CAMPSALL, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the upper division of the wapentake of Osgoldcross, union of Doncaster: it includes the townships of Askerne, Campsall, Fenwick, Moss, Norton, and Sutton: 217 miles from London (coach road 172), 8 from Doncaster, 8 from Snaith. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Peterborough, Lincoln, and Doncaster, to Norton, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Normanton and Pontefract to Norton, &c., 80 miles. — Money orders issued at Doncaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living (St. Mary Magdalene), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, is valued at £16. 16s. 8d.: pres. net income, £128: patron, G. C. Yarborough, Esq.: pres. incumbent, William Warde, 1846: contains 3,930 acres: 386 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,149: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,471: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £10,626: poor rates in 1837, £1,011. — Campsall House.

CAMPSALL, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.) — Contains 1,470 acres: 71 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 444: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 510: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,120: poor rates in 1837, £187.

CAMPSEA-ASH, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Loes, eastern division, union of Plumessgate, and south of the river Alde: 82 miles from London, 2 from Wickham, 9 from Aldborough. — East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. to Ipswich, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 214 miles.

— Money orders issued at Woodbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The living (St. John the Baptist), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Suffolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £14. 5s.: pres. net income, £350: patron, certain Trustees: pres. incumbent, Jermyn Pratt: contains 1,900 acres: 46 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 374: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 430: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,656: poor rates in 1837, £293. — Campsea-Ash Park.

CAMPTON, BEDFORD, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Clifton, union of Biggleswade, on the river Ivel: 35 miles from London (coach road 40), 3 from Silsoe, 6 from Biggleswade. — Gt. Nor. Rail. to Hitchin, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Bedford, 102, thence 8 miles. — Money orders issued at Amptill: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — The living (All Saints), a rectory with Shefford, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bedford, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £11. 9s. 7d.: pres. net income, £374: patron, Sir J. Osborne, Bart.: pres. incumbent, E. R. Williamson, 1839: contains 1,120 acres: 220 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,390: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,598: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,526: poor rates in 1837, £310. — N. 1 m., Chicksand Priory.

CAMROSE (OR CAMRHOS), PEMBROKE, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Roose, union of Haverford-west, on a branch of the river Cleddy: 233 miles from London (coach road 269), 3 from Haverford-west, 4 from Hook. — Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 130 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Stonehouse, &c., 233 miles. — Money orders issued at Haverford-west: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of St. David's, is valued at £6. 10s. 5d.: pres. net income, £127: patron, H. W. Bowen, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. W. Bowen, 1833: contains 235 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,210: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,391: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,617: poor rates in 1837, £452.

CANDLESBY, LINCOLN, a parish in the Wold division of the wapentake of Candleshoe, parts of Lindsey, union of Spilsby: 166 miles from London (coach road 136), 3 from Spilsby, 5 from Alford. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Peterborough and Boston to Alford, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, Lincoln, and Boston, to Alford, &c., 111 miles. — Money orders issued at Spilsby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 3¼ p.m. — The living (St. Benedict), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £9. 9s. 4d.: pres. net income, £200: patron, Magdalene College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, John Alington, 1834: contains 850 acres: 46 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 247: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,370: poor rates in 1837, £148.

CANDOVER-BROWN, HANTS, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Mainsborough, union of Alresford, Fawley division of the county: 164 miles from London (coach road 53), 6 from Andover Road, 9 from Basingstoke. — Sou. West. Rail. to Andover Road station, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, Reading, and Basingstoke, to Andover Road, &c., 151 miles. — Money orders issued at Andover Road: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.:

post closes 7 p.m. — The living (St. Peter), a rectory, with Candover-Chilton annexed, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £23. 4s. 2d., and having jointly a pres. net income of £497: patron, Lord Ashburton: pres. incumbent, F. V. Thornton, 1848: contains 1,230 acres: 39 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 313: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 360: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,501: poor rates in 1837, £311.

CANDOVER-CHILTON, HANTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Mainsborough, union of Alresford, Fawley division of the county: 52 miles from London. — (For access and postal arrangements, see above.) — The living (St. Nicholas), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £6. 6s. 3d.: contains 2,190 acres: 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 103: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £784: poor rates in 1837, £135.

CANDOVER (or PRESTON-CANDOVER), HANTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bermondsey, Basingstoke division and union: 64 miles from London (coach road 52), 8 from Basingstoke, 5 from Alresford. — Sou. West. Rail. to Andover Road station, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, Reading, to Andover Road, &c., 151 miles. — Money orders issued at Basingstoke: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — The living (St. Mary with Nutley curacy), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £18: pres. net income, £228: patron, Dean and Chapter of Winchester: pres. incumbent, T. Westcombe, 1826: contains 3,430 acres: 97 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 481: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 553: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,433: poor rates in 1837, £415.

CANEWDON, ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Rochford, southern division: 54 miles from London (coach road 36), 3 from Rochford, 13 from Chelmsford. — East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Witham to Maldon, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 186 miles. — Money orders issued at Rochford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — The living (St. Nicholas), a vicarage in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £34. 1s. 8d.: pres. net income, £495: patron, Bishop of London: pres. incumbent, George Heath, 1847: contains 2,800 acres: 78 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 723: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 831: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £6,353: poor rates in 1837, £375. — Fair, June 24, for toys.

CANFIELD (GREAT), ESSEX, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Dunmow, northern division, on the river Roding: 39 miles from London (coach road 34), 3 from Dunmow, 11 from Chelmsford. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Bishop-Stortford, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 171 miles. — Money orders issued at Dunmow: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £13: pres. net income, £140: patron, J. M. Wilson, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. P. Gurney, 1823: contains 3,070 acres: 93 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 496: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 570: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,636: poor rates in 1837, £352.

CANFIELD (LITTLE), a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Dunmow: 36 miles from London. — (For access and postal arrangements, see above.)

— The living, a rectory in the diocese of Rochester, is valued at £12. 0s. 7½d.: pres. net income, £327: patron, Christ's College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, C. L. Smith, 1839: contains 1,510 acres: 52 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 258: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,601: poor rates in 1837, £282.

CANFORD MAGNA, DORSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Cogdean, Shaston division, union of Poole, on the river Stour: it includes the chapelry of Kingston or Kinson, and the hamlets of Longfleet and Parkston: 117 miles from London (coach road 102), 2 from Wimborne, 7 from Poole. — Sou. West. Rail. through Southampton to Wimborne, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, Reading, and Southampton, to Wimborne, &c., 206 miles. — Money orders issued at Wimborne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. — The living, with Kinson curacy, a vicarage exempt from visitation, is valued at £11. 9s. 9½d.: pres. net income, £450: patron, Sir J. Guest: pres. incumbent, Hon. W. W. B. Ponsonby, 1846: contains 16,870 acres: 565 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,957: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 4,560: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £9,037: poor rates in 1837, £1,189.

CANN, DORSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Sixpenny-Handley, Shaston division, union of Shaftesbury: 116 miles from London (coach road 98), 1 from Shaftesbury, 6 from Gillingham. — Sou. West. Rail. through Bishopstoke to Salisbury, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, Reading, Bishopstoke, &c., 203 miles. — Money orders issued at Shaftesbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. — The living (St. Rumbold), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Dorset, and diocese of Bristol, now in the diocese of Sarum, is valued at £9. 2s. 1d.: pres. net income, £196: patron, Earl of Shaftesbury: pres. incumbent, William Gane, 1838: contains 910 acres: 86 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 523: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, £601: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,337: poor rates in 1837, £153.

CANNINGS (BISHOP'S), WILTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Potterne and Cannings, union of Devizes, north division of the county, in the vicinity of the Kennet and Avon Canal: it includes the tithing of Chittoe, and the chapelry of St. James: 110 miles from London (coach road 86), 4 from Devizes, 11 from Marlborough. — Gt. West. Rail. through Chippenham to Melksham, thence 10 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Melksham, &c., 164 miles. — Money orders issued at Devizes: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — The living (St. Mary), a vicarage in the peculiar jurisdiction of the dean and chapter of Sarum, is valued at £17. 19s. 2d.: pres. net income, £351: patron, Dean and Chapter of Salisbury: pres. incumbent, W. Macdonald, 1815: contains 10,290 acres: 643 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,947: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,389: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £17,103: poor rates in 1837, £2,143.

CANNINGTON, SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Cannington, union of Bridgewater, western division of the county: it includes the hamlets of Edstock and Beer: 154 miles from London (coach road 144), 3 from Bridgewater, 10 from Taunton. — Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Bridgewater, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Bridgewater, &c., 168 miles.---Money orders issued at Bridgewater: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.---Cannington is a place of considerable antiquity, and is supposed to have been the birth-place of Fair Rosamond, the mistress of Henry II. It was formerly the residence of the Cliffords, and a Benedictine nunnery was founded here by Robert de Courcy, in the reign of Stephen. There are four schools here, a Roman Catholic chapel, and a Benedictine nunnery. Kithill, a lofty height in the neighbourhood, attains, according to the trigonometrical survey, a height of 1,067 feet above the level of the sea.---The living (St. Mary), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Taunton, and diocese of Bath and Wells, is valued at £7. 10s. 10d.: pres. net income, £371: patron, Lord Clifford: pres. incumbent, Robert Davis, 1825: contains 3,970 acres: 260 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,349: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, £1,551: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £10,914: poor rates in 1837, £718.

CANNOCK, STAFFORD, a parish in the eastern division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Cuttlestone, union of Penkridge, in the neighbourhood of the Stafford Canal: it includes the townships of Cannock, Cannock-Wood, Hednesford and Leacroft, Cheslyn-Hay, Huntington, and Wyrley-Great: 137 miles from London (coach road 128), 8 from Walsall, 9 from Stafford.---Nor. West. Rail. through Birmingham to Four-Ashes station, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, &c., 67 miles.---Money orders issued at Walsall: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---There is an Independent congregation here, founded in 1815, and the parish has five daily schools, one of which is supported by an endowment. The parochial charities are about £30 a year. On the summit of Castle Hill, in the neighbourhood, there is a circular area of eight or ten acres, called Castle Ring, which is supposed to have been a British encampment; and near it, at Radmore, there is a place called the Old Nunnery, where a Cistercian abbey was founded in the reign of Stephen, but the revenues and authority of which were transferred, shortly after its completion, to Stoneleigh, in Warwickshire. Cannock Chase, celebrated in many of our old legends, which comprises upwards of 25,000 acres, stretches from here to the river Trent.---The living (St. Luke), a perpetual curacy, and peculiar of the dean and chapter of Lichfield, not in charge: pres. net income, £144: patron, Dean and Chapter of Lichfield: pres. incumbent, F. T. Blackburne, 1841: contains 11,970 acres: 582 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 3,626: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 4,170: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £8,088: poor rates in 1837, £950.---Fairs: May 8, Aug. 24, Oct. 18, for cattle.

CANNOCK, STAFFORD, a township in the above parish---(which see for access, &c.)---Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,012: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,164: poor rates in 1837, £499.

CANNONBY (Cross), CUMBERLAND, a parish in Allerdale ward, below Derwent, western division: it includes the townships of Birkby, Cross-Cannonby, Crosby, and the chapelry of Maryport: 331 miles from London, 7 from Cockermouth.---Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe, Lancaster, and Carlisle, to Maryport, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 231 miles.---Money orders issued at Cockermouth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.---The living (St. John), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £25: pres. net income, £150: patron, Dean and Chapter of Carlisle: pres. incumbent, J. Donald, 1806: contains 2,400 acres: 781 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 5,731: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 6,591: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £6,362: poor rates in 1837, £863.

CANNONBY (Cross), CUMBERLAND, a township in the above parish.---(For access and postal arrangements, see above.)---Contains 11 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 67.

CANON-FEE. See CREDITON.

CANON-FROME, HEREFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Radlow, union of Ledbury, on the river Frome: 135 miles from London (coach road 125), 5 from Ledbury, 9 from Hereford.---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 17 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 88 miles.---Money orders issued at Ledbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £4. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £193: patron, Rev. John Hopton: pres. incumbent, John Hopton, 1808: contains 1,040 acres: 17 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 115: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,457: poor rates in 1837, £72.

CANON-PION, HEREFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Grimsworth, union of Woobly: 146 miles from London (coach road 142), 7 from Hereford, 8 from Leominster.---Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 28 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 89 miles.---Money orders issued at Hereford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.---The living (St. Lawrence) is a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the diocese of Hereford: patron, Dean and Chapter of Hereford: pres. incumbent, Christopher Jones: contains 3,730 acres: 142 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 681: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 783: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,676: poor rates in 1837, £350.

CANONS-ASHBY. See ASHEY (CANONS).

CANON-TEIGN, DEVON, a hamlet in the parish of Christow, and hun<sup>d</sup> of Wonford: 4½ miles from Chadleigh.---(Returns with the parish.)

CANSFIELD. See CANTSFIELD.

CANTELOSE (or CANTELOFF), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Humbleyard: 4 miles from Wymondham, 4 from Norwich.---The living (All Saints) is a rectory in connection with that of Hethersett, in the diocese of Norwich, and having jointly a pres. net income of £651: patron, Caius College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, Jeremy Day, 1820.---(Returns with HETHERSETT.)

CANTERBURY, KENT, the metropolitan see of all England, and a city and a county in itself, under the name of the city and the county of the city of Canterbury, but locally situated in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bridge and Petham, lathe of St. Augustine, eastern division of the above county, on the banks of the river Stour, six miles from the port of Whitstable, with which place it is connected by a railway: 81 miles from London (coach road 55), 14 from Ramsgate.---Sou. East. Rail. through Ashford to Canterbury: from Derby, through London, &c., 213 miles.---Money orders issued at Canterbury:

London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7 a.m. and 3½ p.m.: post closes 8.35 a.m. and 9 p.m.--- Canterbury has existed far beyond the means of any man to record. Its origin is hidden in the remote ages of antiquity. It evidently existed long before the Roman conquest, or the dawn of Christianity beamed upon these islands. Tradition is silent, yet sure and ready; and, from its situation and its subsequent fate, it may be conjectured that it was an early settlement of the men who first planted their feet upon its shores, and made Britain their home. There is little doubt that it was one of the most decided, if not the earliest, among the settlements of the nomadic nations—an outpost of religion in the first instance, a centre of Christianity in the second. At any rate, on the advent of the Romans, it was a principal station for their occupation of the country; and, under the sway of the Saxons, became the metropolis of a large kingdom, which they called the Kingdom of Kent,—Caerwent, or Cantuary, or Canterbury, being the capital. "Our historians assure us," says an old authority, whose remarks we abridge, as transcribed by Lyson, "that when Hengist and Horsa, the first Saxon leaders, came over, Vortiger, who was then king of the Britons, resided and entertained them here; and though, soon after, Vortiger was forced to resign his palace to these his encroaching guests, this city lost not its prerogative to be the residence of kings, for Hengist kept his court here, as did also his successors, till King Ethelbert, becoming a convert to the Christian religion by the preaching of Augustine the monk, gave him not only his palace, and built himself another at Reculver, but the royalty of the city, and its territories, which, when Augustine was created an archbishop by Pope Gregory I., he made it the seat of himself and successors; and that he might heap on him as great honour as his labours deserved, the same pope removed the archiepiscopal dignity from London, the greater city at that time, to Canterbury; and the succeeding popes confirmed this settlement with such dreadful anathemas on such as should remove it, that it has in a manner continued there ever since. Kenulf, king of Mercia, seems to affirm, that the archiepiscopal see was settled here by parliament, i. e. all the wise men of the nation, who thought it most just that that city should have the metropolitan honour, where the body of St. Augustine, of blessed memory, was buried, because he had there first preached the gospel to them, and presided over all the Saxon churches. Whether this were so or not, we inquire not; however it was, this city much flourished ever after; and though it was greatly shattered in the Saxon and Danish wars, and several times almost quite destroyed by fire, yet it rose again with greater beauty, and in the conqueror's time, when his great survey, called Domesday-book, was taken, it was in this condition: 'In the city of Canterbury, King Edward the Confessor had 51 burgesses (i. e. free-traders, licensed by the king, who were to pay him a certain gablum, or rent, yearly), and 212 others, under his privilege and jurisdiction, of 40s. rent. Now the burgesses paying rent are but 19, for of the other 32, 11 in the city ditch are wasted; the archbishop has 7, and the abbot of St. Augustine 14, in exchange for the castle. There are yet 212 burgesses under the king's privilege and jurisdiction, and three mills, paying rent 108s. In the time of King Edward, the whole was worth £51, but now the tenant pays £30 of money, refined and weighed, and £24 of money by tale. Over and above all these, the sheriff has 110s., through the whole city the king has jurisdiction and protection-money, except the lands of the churches of the Holy Trinity and St. Augustine, and of Queen Eddive, Arnold Cild, Ester Biga, and Siret de Cilleham. The archbishop lays claim to forfeitures made in the public ways without the city, where his lands lie on both sides; but the king to all the rest, to the distance of 1 league, 3 perches, and 3 foot.' By this account from Domesday-book, it appears that the jurisdiction of the king and archbishop lay intermixed; and though this latter had some considerable privileges, as a mint, &c., and rents, yet the king had the supreme royalty, till William Rufus (according to the register of St. Augustine's Abbey), dedit civitatem Cantuariæ, &c.; i. e. gave the city of Canterbury to Archbishop Anselm wholly and entirely, which Archbishop Lanfranc held before out of courtesy only. As to the corporation, it is beyond all question that it had always a special and distinct magistrate to preside over it and govern it, though in different times and reigns called by different names. We know nothing in the times of the Britons, because we have no records to inform us; but in the Saxon days he was called a prefect; for, anno 780, we read of one Aldhune, hujus civitatis præfectus, in certain charters belonging to Christ's Church in Canterbury. Afterwards his name was changed into Portgrove, as we find in a deed of sale, anno 956, among the witnesses Hlothewig, Portgerafa; but this title did not hold long, for, anno 1011, we find that Alword or Alfred, the præpositus regis, i. e. king's provost of Canterbury, was one of the persons of quality that were taken prisoners by the Danes, in the reign of King Ethelred, when those barbarians slew Archbishop Alphege, many monks, townsmen, and others, to the number of 42,200. This provost continued single for a time, and was then doubled. King Henry III., at his coming to full age, granted to the citizens of this city sundry liberties, and ordaining their government under two bailiffs, made them his fee-farmers, under a reserved rent of £60 per annum, and allowed them to choose their own bailiffs, who ruled the city for many successions, but were at length changed into a mayor and aldermen, 26th Henry VI., as it now stands. After this, this city grew into a very flourishing state, partly by the liberality and expense of such superstitiously devout persons, who came from all parts to visit Archbishop Thomas à Becket's shrine, (whom they called St. Thomas,) and partly by the continual passage of travellers, who went to the sea-side about their private affairs and business; but chiefly by the residence, hospitality, and munificence of the archbishops, who were great benefactors to it; for Theodore, the seventh archbishop, founded a school, or college, and placed in it professors of the liberal sciences, and Archbishop Lanfranc did much to the reparations of the wall, which it is probable was built by the Britons, but had been ruined and demolished in many places by the Danes, and other enemies.

But the chief benefactor to this city was Simon Sudbury, the archbishop, who built the western gate of this city, and the long wall, as far as the north gate, and was purposed to have encompassed the whole city, if he had lived; however, the town itself seeing the necessity of that work, went on with it, and completed it, and the succeeding archbishops so assisted and encouraged the citizens, that Canterbury did not only recruit, but rose up to that splendour, as even, for the beauty of its private dwellings, to equal most of the cities of Britain, and for the magnificence of its churches, and their number, to exceed them." Jubilees were celebrated here every fiftieth year in honour of Thomas à Becket by permission of the pope, and were so thoroughly attended by the wealthy and devout, that every one of them was sufficient to enrich a whole generation of the inhabitants. The last was celebrated in 1520, shortly after which time the priory of Christchurch was dissolved, the festivals in honour of the churchman done away with, his shrine stripped of its costly ornaments, which Henry appropriated to his own use, and his bones burnt and scattered to the four winds of heaven. The immigrant Walloons, soon after their arrival, established silk-weaving here, and gave a new and more healthy impulse to the prosperity of the city. It was here that Charles I. celebrated the unfortunate marriage with Henrietta Maria, which, in all probability, led to his numerous misfortunes and death upon the scaffold; and during the war, the city was garrisoned by a party of Cromwell's horse. Charles II., on his return from the Continent, held a court for three days in the royal palace at Canterbury, and in 1676 granted a charter to the refugee silk-weavers who were established here. The city is pleasantly situated in a valley surrounded by hills, from which several fine springs of water flow; and the river Stour, a bustling and lively stream, flows through it, forming several islands in its capricious and meandering course. Viewed from whatever point it may be of the elevated grounds which enclose it like a protecting barrier,—

"Look how the hills on every side
Jerusalem enclose—
So stands our God around his saints,
To guard them from their foes,"—

the city presents a highly picturesque and interesting aspect; and as the eye wanders over its varied roofs, descries the massive central tower of its magnificent cathedral, the clustering spires of its churches, the venerable ruins of Augustine's monastery, the ancient city gate, and the noble hills that gleam with the tinted sunbeams, and frame in the whole, the heart searches back through the records of ages into the dim vista of long-past eras, till it rests upon that cradle of Christianity, which here first, through Paul's ministry, was rocked amid a dark and pagan population, with a scintillating luminence which grew and grew, dispelling the mists of error, softening the hearts, increasing the sensibilities, refining the manners, improving the morals, increasing the power, and purifying the energies of those among whom it shone, till glory after glory was shadowed out, and at length the sun of righteousness burst forth in all the magnificence of its splendour, to render our country the first amongst the nations of the earth, the cynosure of that wealth from whence has radiated those streams of spiritual light which have enlivened and invigorated almost every region of the globe. It was God's work, and to God, with thankful hearts, be rendered all the praise. The city is of considerable extent, reaching within the walls to the extent of about half a mile from east to west, and something more from north to south; the wall being something short of two miles in circumference. Within the last few years, Canterbury has been much improved in appearance; many of the old and ruinous buildings have given place to new and respectable dwellings; the streets have been in some cases widened, and the old courts demolished; the paving has been renewed; gas has been introduced; the inhabitants have received a good supply of water from the Stour; and an efficient police has been instituted. The discovery of tessellated pavements, lachrymatories, lavatories, personal ornaments, and other Roman remains, has of course been abundant. At what time the town was first walled in, is quite uncertain; but, from mention being made of the fortifications before the Norman conquest, it is evident that before that period it had long been a stronghold of the Anglo-Saxons. On the walls there were twenty-one turrets, at equal distances, erected, it is believed, during the reign of Richard I.; five or six of these only now remain, and they, with the walls, are in a very ruinous condition. The walls measured six feet in thickness, composed of large masses of chalk, cemented by strong mortar, lined and faced with flint, and were surrounded by a ditch, at one time 150 feet wide; but the greater part of the space has been either built upon, or converted into gardens. All the gates, of which there were six, except one, the west gate, have, together with the arches, which carried the wall over the river, been taken down. The west gate, the only one standing, is a fine embattled structure, consisting of a centre, flanked by two round towers, which have their foundations in the bed of the western branch of the Stour. The principal streets of Canterbury are four in number, and intersect each other at right angles; and in some of them, particularly in Mercery Lane, the houses have still the projecting upper stories; but, as before observed, a modern appearance is rapidly, but gradually, creeping over the whole place. The old Chequers Inn, so celebrated by Chaucer as the resort of pilgrims to the shrine of St. Thomas à Becket, has been converted into shops and dwelling-houses; and the remains of the mansion of Sir Thomas More is now the store of a woolstapler. On the road to the Isle of Thanet there are extensive barracks for cavalry, infantry, and artillery; and in a field towards the south-east, called the Dane-John Field, a conical mount, believed to have been thrown up by the Danes during their siege of Canterbury in 1011, has, within these last five-and-twenty years, been converted, with a part of the old ramparts, into a broad and beautiful terrace, or city wall, 1,130 feet in length: it is tastefully laid out in winding walks, broken by shrubberies, and shaded by lime trees. There was a town-hall erected here in 1318, on the site of what is now the corn-market. The present hall was built in 1489, and re-edified in 1688 and 1697. The principal entrance is handsome, embellished with four Corinthian pilasters, supporting a pediment, and resting on a rustic basement; the interior contains a large court-hall of antique appearance, ornamented with pikes, matchlocks, and other warlike weapons, taken from Lady Wotton's mansion in the time of Cromwell. The council-room is at the north end, and is the depository of the city archives. The ruins of St. Augustine's Abbey are situate at Longport, in the eastern division of the city; it was founded by Augustine soon after his arrival in Britain, and was built for him by Ethelbert, the chief object being to provide a burial-place for the founder and his followers. The ruins now remaining are trifling in extent, but indicate a place of great magnificence: at the west end is the pointed arch of a Gothic window, which is protected and covered by ivy; the enclosing wall is 250 feet long, and at each end there is a gate. The great gate is in the pointed style, having two flanking towers, with a pointed arch. It is now a private residence. The gate at the north-west end is considered the finest specimen of its style in England.—The lower part is now made use of as a brewery. But Canterbury is principally noted as being the seat of the primacy of the English Church. As we have seen above, there is authentic evidence from the writings of Clement, that St. Paul visited England and first planted the banner of the cross in these islands; and there are other historical documents to show, that, in the second century, while the city was under the domination of the Romans, the heralds of Christianity, in some considerable numbers, visited the district, and were very favourably received by its inhabitants. Canterbury becoming the capital of the Saxon kings of Kent, Bertha, the queen of Ethelbert, who was a Christian before leaving her native country of France and taking up her residence here, stipulated for the free enjoyment of her religion. That was acceded to; and she brought over in her train the Bishop of Soissons, and had a church appropriated to her, which was consecrated in due form, and dedicated to St. Martin. Anxious to convert the Britons, and perhaps stimulated by the communications of the Bishop of Soissons, Pope Gregory sent over Augustine as a missionary, who succeeded in converting Ethelbert, and received, as a grateful testimony of that monarch's gratitude for spiritual services, the royal palace. This Augustine converted into a priory for his own order; and, in conjunction with Ethelbert, founded, besides, a cemetery outside the walls, which was dedicated to St. Peter and St. Paul. Christianity, however disguised, having been planted in the land, Ethelbert proceeded a step farther, and, in compliance with the will of the pope, made Canterbury the primary see of his kingdom, and constituted Augustine its archbishop and minister; and, from that day to this, through the long-rolling period of 1,200 years, it has claimed and enjoyed the metropolitan dignity. During that lengthened course of time it has been placed under the sway of ninety-three archbishops; some, like Dunstan, Stigand, and Becket, men of a proud, unbrooking ambition; others, like Lanfranc, Wolsey, and Laud, high-stomached churchmen, who would, in any other country, have raised the clerical above the kingly power; and others, again, like Cranmer, Tillotson, and Sumner, have been distinguished for their earnest zeal in the cause of truth, and by that meek lowliness of spirit, which is the best evidence of their being true disciples of their heavenly Master. Since the erection of the see, eighteen archbishops of Canterbury have been canonized, nine have been raised to the princely dignity of cardinal, twelve appointed lord chancellors of England, four lord treasurers, one lord chief justice, and nine chancellors of the University of Oxford. As metropolitan, the Archbishop of Canterbury ranks as first peer of the realm, taking precedence, in right of his position, of all the nobility and great officers of state, except such as are members of the royal family. At coronations he places the crown on the head of the sovereign; and wherever the court may be, the king and queen are considered his parishioners. The Bishop of London is his dean, the Bishop of Winchester his subdean, the Bishop of Lincoln his chancellor, and the Bishop of Rochester his chaplain. In right of his primacy, he is a privy councillor; and he has the power of conferring degrees in the several faculties of divinity, law, and physic, except within the immediate jurisdiction of the universities of Oxford and Cambridge. His province comprehends the sees of twenty suffragan-bishops, and his diocese comprises 258 parishes in the county of Kent, and nearly 100 parishes in that and other counties are in his peculiar jurisdiction; he has, besides, the privilege of nominating the several officers belonging to the ecclesiastical courts over which he presides; and has 149 livings, and three prebendal stalls in his gift. The establishment attached to his cathedral, as fixed in the reign of Henry VIII., on the dissolution of the priory of Holy Trinity, or Christ Church, consists of a dean, twelve prebendaries, six preachers, six minor canons, twelve lay-clerks, ten choristers, two masters, fifty scholars, and twelve almsmen. The deaneries under the see are ten, namely—Canterbury, Bridge, Charing, Dover, Elham, Lympne, Ospringe, Sandwich, Sittingbourne, Sutton, and Westbere. The first is in the patronage of the crown. The ecclesiastical commissioners propose increasing this diocese by additions from those of Rochester and Winchester. At the dissolution, the revenues appertaining to the see, and of Christ Church, amounted to £5,171. 16s. 11d. per annum; and in 1834, the gross revenue of the archbishop was £22,216, and that of the dean and chapter, £21,551 yearly. The prebends reside upon the establishment, and the minor canons have residences assigned to them within the precincts. The preachers are nominated by the archbishop, and their duty is to preach at the cathedral on eleven holidays during the year. The almsmen are in the appointment of the crown. An ecclesiastical court is held by the archbishop once in four years. Canterbury cathedral, celebrated alike for its extent and its beauty, was originally the chapel of the priory of Augustine, and stands nearly on the site of that ancient foundation: it is dedicated to our Saviour. Having suffered very severely from fire, it was nearly rebuilt, about the year 1080, by Lanfranc, the first archbishop after the Conquest, by whom also the archbishop's palace was erected, and who founded and endowed a priory, dedicated to St. Gregory, and built the hospitals of St. John and St. Nicholas. In 1174, the cathedral was again nearly destroyed by fire, but was speedily re-edified, and afterwards enlarged and enriched with architectural decorations by subsequent primates. The cathedral is situated in the northern district of the city, and covers a vast extent of ground. Its form is that of a double cross, with a tower in the later style of English architecture, with a pierced parapet and pinnacles, and having octagonal turrets at the angles, terminating in minarets, rising to the height of 235 feet from the intersection of the nave and the western transept. At the west end there are two towers, differing from each other, but both in the Norman style of architecture. There is a narrow entrance between the western towers, through a high-pointed arched doorway; but the principal entrance is at the south-west porch, which is a highly enriched specimen of the later English style, profusely ornamented with niches of the most elegant forms; the roof being groined with numerous shields, emblazoned at the intersections of the ribs. The nave and the western transept, both remarkably fine, are also in the later style of English architecture, while the eastern part wears an air of peculiar grandeur, from the numerous avenues which lead from it to the many chapels in the interior. Among these the chapel of Henry IV. is remarkable for the elegant simplicity of its design. The lady-chapel, separated from the eastern side of the transept by a stone screen richly carved, is small but exquisitely beautiful. Behind the great altar is the chapel of the Holy Trinity, in which was the gorgeous shrine of Thomas à Becket, and around which the pavement is worn into hollows by the knees of the myriad hosts of devout pilgrims that for so many ages frequented it. It contains the episcopal chair, composed of three pieces of grey marble, with many interesting monuments erected to the memory of eminent individuals. The whole length of the cathedral, from east to west, is 514 feet within the walls. The length of the choir, by far the most spacious in the kingdom, is 180 feet. The length of the eastern transept is 154, and the length of the western 124 feet. The breadth, including the aisles, is 71, and the height of the vaulted roof 80 feet. Beneath, occupying the whole extent of the building, is a spacious crypt, the several parts of which correspond with the cathedral. Its vaulted roof, 14 feet in height, is supported on massive pillars, here and there sculptured with foliage and grotesque ornaments, but the prevailing character of which is simplicity and strength. This crypt was granted by Queen Elizabeth for a place of worship to the Walloons and the French refugees. It is still occupied by their descendants, and the service conducted in the French language, whence it has the name of the French Church. The precincts of the cathedral comprehend an area three-quarters of a mile in circumference. The library on the north side contains a valuable collection of books, with a series of Grecian and Roman coins. The chapter-house, a large and elegant building, contains a hall, 92 feet in length, 37 in breadth, and 54 in height. Along the sides are stone seats, anciently used by the monks.—The parochial livings of the city are as follow:—St. Alphage is a rectory, with the vicarage of St. Mary Northgate, rated at £20. 13s. 7½d.: gross income, £226: net income, £189: patron, the Archbishop of Canterbury. The church of St. Alphage, situated on the west side of Palace Street, is of considerable antiquity.—St. Andrew and St. Mary Bredman are united rectories, rated at £22. 6s. 8d.: gross income, £224: patrons, the Archbishop of Canterbury two turns, and Dean and Chapter of Canterbury one turn. The church of St. Andrew is a brick structure, built in 1762 to replace the old church, which stood in the centre of the road.—St. Cosmus and Damian in Blean is a vicarage: gross income, £423: patron, the Master of Eastbridge Hospital.—St. Dunstan is a vicarage, rated at £5: gross income, £121: patron, the Archbishop. The church is an ancient structure. It is noted from its being the burial-place of the Roper family. One of the vaults contains the coffin of Margaret Roper, beside which is the skull of her father, the able but unfortunate Sir Thomas More.—St. George the Martyr, and St. Mary Magdalene, are united rectories, rated at £12. 7s. 11d.: gross income, £170: patrons, the Dean and Chapter.—Holy Cross Westgate is a vicarage, united with the rectory of St. Peter, rated at £16. 11s. ½d.: valued in the parliamentary returns at £120: gross income, £181: patrons, the Archbishop and Dean and Chapter, alternately.—St. Mary Bredin is a vicarage, rated at £4. 1s. 5½d.: gross income, £150: patron, in 1835, H. Lee Warner. The church is situated near the Dane-John: it was erected in the time of the Conqueror.—St. Margaret is a donative rectory: gross income, £101: patron, the Archdeacon of Canterbury.—St. Mildred, All Saints, and St. Mary de Castro, are united rectories, rated at £17. 17s. 11d.: gross income, £129: patron, the Lord Chancellor. The church of St. Mildred is a very ancient structure, and exhibits many traces of Roman workmanship.—St. Paul's is a vicarage, with the rectory of St. Martin, rated at £9. 18s. 9d.: gross income, £365.—Besides the above-mentioned churches, there are the following places of worship:—An Independent chapel; an Antipædobaptist chapel; Countess of Huntingdon's chapel; a Catholic chapel; a Unitarian Antipædobaptist chapel; a Wesleyan Methodist chapel; a chapel of the Society of Friends; and Jewish Synagogue. The king's free grammar-school was founded by Henry VIII. (it is believed, under the influence of Cranmer, who, with the other reformers, was desirous of spreading, as widely as possible, the benefits of education among the people), for the education of scholars from all parts of the kingdom. It possesses several scholarships in Cambridge university. The Blue-coat school was founded by the corporation out of the proceeds of a gift, by Queen Elizabeth, of the hospital and its property. The Grey-coat school is supported principally by the dean and chapter; in it thirty children of each of the sexes are educated. Two large schools, originally established on Dr. Bell's plan, are now incorporated with the institutions of the National Society. Besides these, the educational institutions, both public and private, are abundant and excellent. The charitable establishments are also numerous. That of Eastbridge was founded by Archbishop Lanfranc, for the entertainment of pilgrims. It is the first of the kind in Canterbury, and was founded for a master and ten brothers and sisters; the in-residents receiving £25 per annum, and the out-residents £3 per annum each. A school for twenty children is annexed to the hospital. In 1595, Sir John Boys founded Jesus' Hospital, for a warden, nine brothers, and four sisters, over fifty-five years of age, who each receive £20, with a considerable amount of surplus money as it accrues. St. John's Hospital was founded, it is supposed, by Archbishop Lanfranc, for sixty poor, infirm, lame, and blind men and women. The archbishop has the exclusive patronage. Maynard's and Cotton's Hospital consists of ten dwellings under one roof. Almshouses are numerous in this city. Cogan's was founded in 1657, by John Cogan, who gave his mansion in trust to the corporation to be the residence of six clergymen's widows. To this there have been numerous benefactions, and each widow receives an annual stipend of £35. The infirmary, called the Kent and Canterbury Infirmary, is liberally supported by annual subscriptions. It is built on a part of the ancient cemetery of St. Augustine's abbey, and can accommodate about 200 patients. A dispensary was established in 1836. Canterbury gave the title of viscount to the late speaker of the House of Commons, and son of Dr. Sutton, the predecessor of the late Archbishop of Canterbury. He was created a viscount in 1836. The limits of the city of Canterbury, previous to the late general municipal corporation act, comprised the parish of All Saints, St. Alphage, St. Andrew, St. Margaret, St. Mary Bredman, St. Mary Magdalene, St. Peter, St. George, St. Mary Bredin, St. Mary Northgate, St. Mildred, and St. Martin, the part of Holy Cross Westgate, generally called Westgate Within, and parts of the parishes of St. Paul, St. Stephen, or Hackington, Nackington, Patricbourne, and of the borough of Fordwich. In a city of this peculiar character, there were, of course, several districts peculiarly under sacerdotal authority, which were exempt from the civil jurisdiction; but, by the act just named, the general government has been much altered, and the borough limits of the city very considerably extended, the whole of the borough of Longport, part of Holy Cross, Westgate Without, parts of the parishes of St. Dunstan and Thanington, and a further part of St. Stephen's parish, together with all those districts especially under sacerdotal rule, having been included for parliamentary purposes: and by the recent act the parliamentary boundary is taken as the municipal boundary also. The business of Canterbury now mainly consists in the transfer of agricultural produce from the surrounding affluent districts, of which it is the mart. There are numerous mills on the river Stour, and one especially, called the Abbot's mill, which has been the property of the corporation since the year 1543, is of very considerable extent. Several attempts to make the Stour navigable having failed, an act was obtained in 1825 to form a canal from Canterbury to Deal, where there was to be a harbour; but an act for forming a railway to Whitstable, whence there is uninterrupted water communication to London, having been obtained about the same time, the former project was abandoned, and the railway has, since then, been in active operation: it runs as nearly as possible in a straight line from North Lane to the harbour at Whitstable. The cattle market has been held on the same spot, under the city walls, from time immemorial. The corn, hop, and seed market is held in a spacious room in the Exchange, a large and imposing edifice, erected in 1824, behind which there is an ample area for the daily sale of meat and vegetables. The hop-grounds around Canterbury are numerous, affluent, and profitable, affording considerable employment to persons of both sexes of the labouring class. The first municipal record of which we have any sufficient date, is the grant of Henry II. of the city to the inhabitants, for a fee farm-rent of £60 a year, by which they were also empowered to elect two bailiffs; but the nature of its internal government was altered from time to time by subsequent charters, till James I. confirmed all the previous charters, and reincorporated the citizens under the title of "The mayor and commonalty of the city of Canterbury." By the late municipal act, the city has been divided into three wards, termed respectively Northgate ward, Dane-John ward, and Westgate ward. The revenue of the borough is about £8,000, arising from rents, markets, and fairs, premiums on leases, and borough rates. The freedom of the city is acquired by birth, servitude, gift, marriage with a freeman's daughter, or by the payment of £20 to the corporation. Courts of quarter sessions are held every three months; and petty sessions are held every Thursday at the Guildhall. There is a mayor's court, but it is seldom held, nor has it exercised jurisdiction in civil pleas for many years. A court of requests is held every Thursday. The quarter sessions for the county are held in the sessions-house; and the petty sessions, for the country district, in the same place, on the first Saturday in every month. The sessions-house, the house of correction, and the gaol, form an extensive pile of building within the precincts of St. Augustine's abbey. The county gaol and house of correction were built in 1808, on the radiating plan, with the governor's house in the centre. Canterbury has returned two members to parliament since the reign of Edward I.; the number of the constituency, under the Reform Act, is about 1,850, comprising freemen and householders. —Contains 3,204 acres: 2,839 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 15,435: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 17,750: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> in 1815, £26,508: poor rates in 1837, £7,073. —Market day, Saturday. Fair: October 11. —Bankers: Hammond and Co.—draw on Glyn, Halifax, and Co.; Branch of London and County Joint Stock Banking Co.—draw on Head Office, 21 Lombard Street. —Fleur-de-Lis Inn, Royal Fountain Hotel, Rose Hotel, Star Hotel.

CANTLEY, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Blofield, on the north of the river Yare: 137 miles from London (coach road 116), 5 from Ayle, 10 from Yarmouth. —Nor. and East. Co. Rail. through Norwich to Buckenham station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, and Norwich, to Buckenham, &c., 177 miles. — Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 1 p.m. — The living (St. Margaret), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £14: pres. net income, £203: patron, W. A. Gilbert, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. D. Gilbert, 1845: contains 2,970 acres: 38 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 210: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,048: poor rates in 1837, £157.

CANTLEY, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the lower division of the wapentake of Strafforth and Tickhill, union of Doncaster, near the river Idle, on the Great north road: 210 miles from London (coach road 159), 3 from Doncaster, 5 from Hatfield. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. through Peterborough and Lincoln to Doncaster, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham and Newark to Doncaster, &c., 74 miles. — Money orders issued at Doncaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — There is a cold bath here, called "St. Catherine's Well," which attracts many visitors, from the invigorating qualities of the water. — The living (St. Wilfrid), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, is valued at £0. 6s. 5½d.: pres. net income, £233: patron, J. W. Childers, Esq.: pres. incumbent, George Clerk, 1845: contains 5,160 acres: 127 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 651: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 748: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £6,248: poor rates in 1837, £173. Tithes commuted 17 Geo. III. c. 141.

CANTREFF, BRECON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Penkelly, or Pen-celle, union of Brecknock, South Wales, near the river Usk: it includes the chapelry of Nantddu: 158 miles from London (coach road 170), 2 from Brecon, 10 from Talgarth. — Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 55 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Stonehouse, &c., 158 miles. — Money orders issued at Brecon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — The range of hills, called the Brecknock Beacons, runs through this parish. The church is romantically situated on the river Cynnig. The manor anciently belonged to the Duke of Buckingham, upon whose attainder, in the reign of Henry VIII., it passed to the Aubroys, and from them, by descent, to its present possessor. — The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of St. David's, is valued at £9. 10s. 7½d.: patron, Rev. T. Powell: pres. incumbent, T. J. Powell, 1824: contains 43 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, £223: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,467: poor rates in 1837, £112.

CANTSFIELD (or CANSFIELD), LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Tunstall, near the river Lune—which see for access, &c.): 248 miles from London, 4 from Kirkby-Lonsdale, 6 from Burton. — Money orders issued at Kirkby-Lonsdale: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — Contains 1,560 acres: 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 111: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,674.

CANVEY-ISLAND, ESSEX, a chapelry belonging to nine several parishes, but principally connected with South Benfleet—which see for access, &c.): 33 miles from London, 4 from Leigh, 7 from Rochford. — Money orders issued at Leigh: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. — The inhabitants, about 200 in number, are mostly fishermen. — The living (St. Catherine) is a curacy in the diocese of Rochester: pres. net income, £58: patron, Bishop of London: pres. incumbent, William Ray, 1836. — Fair, June 25, for toys.

CANWELL, STAFFORD, an extra-parochial liberty in the south division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Offlow, in the neighbourhood of the Fazeley Canal: 112 miles from London, 5 from Tamworth, 8 from Birmingham. — (For access, see TAMWORTH.) — Money orders issued at Tamworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. — A Benedictine priory was founded here about the year 1142, by Geva, daughter of Hugh, Earl of Chester. — Contains 260 acres: 4 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 27: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £396: poor rates in 1837, £28.

CANWICK, LINCOLN, a parish in the union of Lincoln, near the river Brant: 170 miles from London (coach road 132), 2 from Lincoln, 10 from Wragby. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. through Peterborough to Lincoln, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham to Lincoln, &c., 57 miles. — Money orders issued at Lincoln: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £5. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £231: patron, Mercers' Company: pres. incumbent, G. Quilter, 1818: contains 33 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 190: poor rates in 1837, £147. Tithes commuted in 1786. — Canwick Hall is the seat of Colonel Sibthorpe. The mansion is very agreeably situated on a considerable elevation, and is elegantly furnished. The colonel, who is of an ancient family, has for many years represented the neighbouring city of Lincoln in parliament; and has, during his occupation of a seat in the House of Commons, been distinguished for an unflinching opposition to any measure which he conceived might prove detrimental to the welfare of his country, come from whatever quarter it might.

CAPEL, SURREY, a parish in the second division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wotton, union of Dorking: 30 miles from London (coach road 29), 8 from Dorking, 9 from Ryegate. — Brighton Rail. to Ryegate, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 162 miles. — Money orders issued at Dorking: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — There is a school here, built and endowed by Robert Barclay, Esq. — The living (St. John the Baptist) is a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Surrey, and diocese of Winchester, not in charge: pres. net income, £84: patrons, Trustees of the late Duke of Norfolk: contains 4,990 acres: 119 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 989: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,137: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,329: poor rates in 1837, £796.

CAPEL (St. ANDREW), SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wilford, union of Woodbridge, and west of the river Butley: 81 miles from London (coach road 82), 6 from Woodbridge, 13 from Ipswich. — East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. to Ipswich, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 213 miles. — Money orders issued at Woodbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. — The living (St. Mary) is a curacy annexed to Butley: contains 2,400 acres: 23 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 222: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,121: poor rates in 1837, £104.

CAPEL-CURRIG, CARNARVON, a chapelry and hamlet in the parish of Llandegai, and hun<sup>d</sup> of Uchaf, on the banks of the river Llugwy, and at the foot of Snowdon—(which see for access, &c.): 221 miles from London, 10 from Bangor, 6 from Llanrwst. — Money orders issued at Bangor: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.

— This is one of the polling-places for the county. Copper and lead are mined to some extent in the parish. Through the enterprise of the late Lord Penrhyn, the roads through this romantic district, which used to be, in Pennant's time, as he calls them, "the worst horsepaths in Britain," have been wonderfully improved, so the easiest carriage access is now given to some of the most beautiful scenery in Wales. During the summer months, therefore, numerous genteel families make a temporary residence of Capel-Currig, in order to enjoy the prospects which are spread everywhere around Snowdon, towering in its grandeur above every other object. Cerrig, or Curig, to whom the chapel is dedicated, fixed his cell here about the sixth century, and hence the origin of the name of the village; and some of the mendicant friars, who made it their dwelling-place in after times, appear to have adopted all the tricks of their profession to delude and impose upon the people in their neighbourhood, bartering miniature images of reported saints for cheese, bacon, and others of the necessities of life. Among those which were most popular for their supposed sanctity were the representations of Curig and Seiriol, the effigy of the latter being considered infallible for the removal of inveterate diseases, and the former for the expulsion of evil spirits, in allusion to which belief Lloyd writes—

"Beneath his cloak the begging friar bore
The guardian charm, grey Curig, to the door;
Another, Seiriol's healing image sold,
And found the useful saints like modern gold."

— The living is a chapelry, not in charge, to the rectories Llandegai and Llanlechid, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Bangor: pres. net income, £89: patron, Bishop of Bangor. — Fair, September 28, for sheep.

CAPEL-CYNOG, CARDIGAN, a chapelry in the parish of Llandisiliogogo—(which see for access, &c.): 209 miles from London, 1 from Lampeter, 8 from Tregavon. — Money orders issued at Lampeter: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 4½ p.m.: post closes 9 p.m. — Fairs: Ascension day, Thursday after St. Michael, Sept. 29, for cattle, horses, and sheep.

CAPEL-GARMON (or GARTHARMON and TY-BRITH UCHAF), DENBIGH, a parochial chapelry, in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Isdulas: 232 miles from London. — (For access and postal arrangements, see above.)

— The living is a chapelry, not in charge, to the rectory of Llanrwst, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of St. Asaph's. — (Other returns with the parish.)

CAPEL-VOELAS (properly PENTRE-VOELAS, or TRA-YR-ABORT), DENBIGH, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Isaled, union of Llanrwst, North Wales, on the river Conway: 248 miles from London (coach road 221), 8 from Llanrwst, 16 from Ruthin. — Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Chester to Conway, thence 25 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 148 miles. — Money orders issued at Conway: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 3½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — The living is a curacy, not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of St. Asaph: contains 119 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 611: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 703: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,288: poor rates in 1837, £324.

CAPESTHORNE, CHESTER, a chapelry in the parish of Prestbury—(which see for access, &c.): 165 miles from London, 3 from Macclesfield, 3 from Congleton. — Money orders issued at Macclesfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — The living (the Holy Trinity) is a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester, not in charge: pres. net income, £76: patron, E. D. Davenport, Esq.: pres. incumbent, R. H. Hepinstall, 1829: contains 960 acres: 12 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 95: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £972: poor rates in 1837, £52.

CAPHEATON, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township forming the southern and smaller division of the parish of Kirk-Whelpington—(which see for access, &c.): 283 miles from London, 9 from Newcastle, 10 from Corbridge. — Money orders issued at Newcastle-on-Tyne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 1 p.m. — Contains 42 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 213: poor rates in 1837, £52.

CAPLE (or CAPEL), KENT, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Washlingstone, lathe of Aylesford, extending into the lowey and union of Tunbridge: 44 miles from London (coach road 33), 3 from Tunbridge, 10 from Maidstone. — Sou. East. Rail. to Tunbridge, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 176 miles. — Money orders issued at Tunbridge: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. — The living (St. Thomas & Becket) is a vicarage annexed to that of Tudely, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Canterbury, and having jointly a pres. net income of £238: patron, Baroness le de Spenser: pres. incumbent, Sir F. J. Stapleton, 1832: contains 1,630 acres: 48 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 257: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,813: poor rates in 1837, £363.

CAPPENHURST, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Shotwick, hun<sup>d</sup> of Wirral—(which see for access, &c.): 201 miles from London, 6 from Chester, 10 from Frodsham. — Money orders issued at Chester: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m. — Contains 1,130 acres: 28 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 154: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,339: poor rates in 1837, £113.

CARBROOKE, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Wayland, near the Wissey river: 117 miles from London (coach road 93), 3 from Watton, 7 from East Dereham. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. through Wymondham to Hardingham, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Syston and Peterborough to Dereham, 146, thence 7 miles. — Money orders issued at Thetford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. — There was a commandery here of the knights-templars, founded by Roger, Earl of Clare, about the middle of the twelfth century, which, at the dissolution, was valued at £65. 2s. 9½d. — The living (St. Peter and St. Paul), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £7. 12s. 6d.: pres. net income, £170: patron, R. Dewing, Esq.: pres. incumbent, William Wells, 1845: contains 3,020 acres: 152 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 807: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 928: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £5,230: poor rates in 1837, £420.

CARBURTON, NOTTINGHAM, a chapelry in the parish of Edwinstow—(which see for access, &c.): 141 miles from London, 4 from Worksope, 8 from East Retford. — Money orders issued at Worksope: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — Contains 28 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 193: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup>. £778: poor rates in 1837, £107. — W. 1 m., Welbeck Abbey, the seat of the Duke of Portland—(for which, see CUCKNEY.)—E., Clumber Park, the seat of the Duke of Newcastle, which is a mansion of great extent and of imposing appearance, placed in a park of very varied aspect, upwards of eleven miles in circumference, and in a district particularly rich in the residences of the nobility—Welbeck, and Worksope manor, formerly the property of the Duke of Norfolk, and the seat of Earl Manvers, almost adjoining to Clumber. The mansion is a truly ducal residence, furnished with the utmost magnificence, and contains an immense number of costly works of art, so that it has been asserted, "here the writer of romance might fill his imagination, and the poet imagine himself wandering through an enchanted palace." The house has three fronts, and in the centre of that which faces the lake there is a peculiarly delicate Ionic colonnade, which has a remarkably pleasing effect when seen from the lofty bridge which spans the water. The entrance-hall is lofty, supported by pillars, and is embellished by a view of the old house of Clumber, and numerous other paintings, besides several sculptures. The library is a lofty and noble room, well stocked with works in English, foreign, and classical literature; and from its windows there are most delightful views of the lake and grounds. In the small drawing-room, among other admirable works of art by Rubens and others, is the famous piece by Coreggio, of 'Sigismunda weeping over the heart of Tancred,' a work in which the peculiarly refined, yet effective, force of that great master, with all his naturalness of colouring, is particularly evident. The picture, apart from its intrinsic merits, is remarkable as having been the means of exhibiting the total incapability, on the part of Hogarth, to deal with what is expressly termed historical subjects, in which there was no grotesqueness of handling to set off, by its contrast, the fearful depth of the moral to be conveyed by a painting. He determined to rival the celebrated "old masters" in a copy of this one of the most ancient of their works. After many attempts, he at length produced his Sigismunda, but no more like to Sigismunda than "I to Hercules." The female figure had all the attributes of the grossest vulgarity, without one single tinge of the womanly elevation, earnestness of affection, or heroic self-devotion, by which the original was distinguished. He charged four hundred guineas for it, but the painting was returned upon his hands; and he afterwards took subscriptions for a plate of it, but at last had the sense to suppress it altogether. As a companion to the Sigismunda, there is on the same side of the apartment the Artimesia, with the vase containing her husband's ashes, by Guido, and numerous works by Poussin, Canaletti, Rubens, Teniers, and others, which enrich an apartment seldom equalled in the worth and variety of its works of art. The same may, to a great extent, be said of the great drawing-room, the breakfast-room, and the other of the chief apartments of Clumber; but the greatest glory of the mansion is the state dining-room, a magnificent space of sixty feet in length, thirty-four in breadth, and thirty in height, capable of containing a hundred and fifty guests when seated at table, that is, exclusive of a fine recess for the sideboard. The ceiling, the lustres, and the noble fireplace, are all in admirable keeping, while the other ornaments of this noble room, consisting chiefly of paintings, are stated to be worth, at the least, the sum of £25,000. All the other rooms in this truly ducal abode are furnished with corresponding taste and luxuriant costliness, and are, of course, replete with all the elegancies of social life. From its extent, and the variety which a varied surface affords, the park of Clumber is particularly rich in pleasing effect, the white stone elevation of the mansion, contrasted with the dark hill by which it is backed, forming a consonant and noble finish to the several avenues from which it may be seen, or by which it is approached. The family of his grace the Duke of Newcastle is supposed, by some antiquaries, to derive its surname of Clinton from a place in Oxfordshire, now called Glimpton, and to deduce its descent from William de Villa Tancredi, chamberlain of Normandy, and Maud, his wife, daughter of William de Arches, descended from Weria, sister to Gunora, Duchess of Normandy; but the first distinguished member of the family of whom we have sufficiently authentic notice, is John de Clinton, of Amington, in the county of Warwick, who was summoned to parliament as Baron Clinton of Maxtock, in the 27th year of Edward I., in 1299. His son, Sir William de Clinton, obtained considerable renown as a military leader in the reign of Edward III.; and having assisted at the triumph of Halidon, so disastrous to the Scottish arms, was by that monarch created Earl of Huntingdon; but he dying without issue, the dignity expired, while his elder brother, who succeeded his father in the estates, was repeatedly summoned to parliament as a baron; as was also his son, Sir John Clinton, a participator in the glories of Edward III. and the Black Prince. His lineal descendant, Edward, ninth Lord Clinton, was a person of the highest consideration as a naval officer, during the reigns of Henry VIII. and his three immediate successors, was created a knight of the garter, and three times constituted lord high admiral of England. Queen Elizabeth, in 1672, created him Earl of Lincoln. At the demise of Edward, the fifth earl, the barony fell into abeyance between his aunts, and ultimately passed to another family; while the earldom reverted to Sir Francis Fiennes Clinton, a descendant of Sir Edward Clinton, second son of the second earl. The successor of that nobleman, Henry, K.G., became such a favourite with Lord Torrington, in consequence of his opposition to the ministry during the last four years of Queen Anne, that his lordship bequeathed to him the greater part of his extensive estates. His lordship subsequently filled several distinguished appointments. He married Lucy, daughter of Thomas, Lord Pelham, and sister of Thomas, Duke of Newcastle, whose honours devolved upon his son Henry, ninth Earl of Lincoln, in consequence of his marriage with Catherine, daughter of the Right Hon. Henry Pelham, whose uncle, Thomas Pelham Holles, had been created Duke of Newcastle in 1756. His grace, upon the acquisition of this title, assumed the surname of Pelham. The present duke is the grandson of that nobleman. His grace is a knight of the garter, ranger of Sherwood Forest, custos rotulorum of Newark, and high steward of Retford.

CAR-COLSTON, NOTTINGHAM, a parish in the northern division of the wapentake of Bingham, union of Bingham, in the vicinity of the river Trent: 144 miles from London (coach road 126), 9 from Newark, 8 from Southwell.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Nottingham to Bingham, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, &c., 29 miles.---Money orders issued at Newark: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Nottingham, and diocese of York, now in the diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £6. 1s. 10½d.: pres. net income, £203: patron, Rev. J. C. Girardot: pres. incumbent, J. C. Girardot, 1838: contains 1,200 acres: 52 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 276: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,365: poor rates in 1837, £106.

CARDEN, CHESTER, a township in the parish of Tilston, higher division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Broxton—(which see for access, &c.): 172 miles from London, 8 from Tarporley, 10 from Chester.---Money orders issued at Tarporley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---Contains 730 acres: 39 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 233: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,200: poor rates in 1837, £55.

CARDESTON WITH WATTLESBOROUGH, SALOP, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Ford, union of Atcham, on a branch of the river Severn: 168 miles from London (coach road 159), 6 from Shrewsbury, 12 from Oswestry.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Stafford to Shrewsbury, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Tamworth, Stafford, &c., 68 miles.---Money orders issued at Shrewsbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m.---The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Salop, and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £3: pres. net income, £274: patron, Sir B. Leighton, Bart.: pres. incumbent, F. Leighton, 1828: contains 1,980 acres: 59 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 372: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 427: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,073: poor rates in 1838, £122.

CARDIFF (CAERDIF or CAERDYDD), GLAMORGAN, a borough and town, having separate jurisdiction, situated in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Kibbor, union of Cardiff: 146 miles from London (coach road 160), 4 from Llandaff.---Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Weston-super-Mare, thence across the Channel, 10 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Bristol, &c., 159 miles.---Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 3.10 p.m.---Cardiff lies on the eastern bank of the river Taff, over which there is an excellent bridge of five arches leading to Swansea. Most of the streets are paved and lighted with gas, and present some very respectable houses and shops. The spire of St. John's church—an elegant and light structure, having a lofty tower, with open corners and lantern pinnacles—forms a beautiful object in the aspect of the town. There was formerly another church here, dedicated to St. Mary, but it was carried away in the great inundation of the Taff in 1607, and has never been restored. The castle stands insulated on a high mound of earth, in an ample area, and has of late been very judiciously restored by the Marquis of Bute, the proprietor. It was either in a dungeon of this castle, or in one of the Norman towers, that Robert I. of Normandy was confined for twenty-six years by his brother Henry I., who had usurped his throne and deprived him of his eyesight. During the great civil war, the castle stood a bombardment of three days, and was only at length taken through the treachery of some of its inmates. There were formerly four religious houses here; one founded by the Earl of Gloucester in 1147; another, a Benedictine priory; a house of black friars without the west gate; and a house of grey friars in Crockerton Street, under the wardenship of Bristol. The trade of Cardiff is in a very flourishing condition; and having both canal and railway communication with the iron-works of and about Merthyr-Tydvil, it has become the port of that district, and the principal place of transit for the English markets; and as packets continually run from Cardiff across the channel to Uphill, on the Bristol and Exeter Railway, the whole distance between the former two of these places can now be traversed in two hours. As the Taff drains much of the mineral district of Glamorganshire, advantage was taken of it in the construction of the Glamorganshire Canal; but the sea-lock at the outlet not being formed for the rapidly-increasing trade of late years, the Marquis of Bute, who possesses considerable property in the Cardiff moors, which are admirably fitted for the sites of docks and warehouses, obtained an act of parliament in 1830 for the formation of a ship canal, which he has constructed at his individual expense, together with a new harbour, safely screened by the headland of Penarth, and possessing all the appliances for accommodating the active and extensive business of the port. The principal features of this great undertaking comprise an open channel running north-north-east, and south-south-west, about three-quarters of a mile in length, from Cardiff Roads to the new sea-gates, which are 45 feet wide, with a depth of water at neap tides of 17 feet, and of 32 feet at spring tides. After passing the gates, vessels enter a spacious area of about an acre and a half in extent, on the north side of which there is the principal ship-lock, which is capable of containing a vessel of 600 tons burthen. It is 152 feet long, and 32 feet wide. Beyond this lock is the inner basin, which constitutes the great feature of the work. It is a basin which extends nearly to the town of Cardiff, and is 1,450 yards long, and fully 200 feet wide, capable of containing four hundred vessels, and is frequently used for ships of very considerable burthen, as well as for steamers. Quays are built on each side for more than two-thirds of its length, forming an open space for mercantile business, with ample accommodation for more than a mile, and abundant space for warehouses, exclusive of the wharfs at the outer basin. In order to keep the basin free from deposit, a feeder from the Taff supplies a reservoir, about 15 acres in extent, from which, through the means of sluices, with cast-iron pipes 5 feet in diameter, and by ten sluices at the sea-gates, as many as 100,000 tons of water can be passed through the basin per hour whenever it is necessary. The works were commenced in 1834, and completed in 1839. The whole of them, including the basins, the feeder, and the warehouses, have cost the marquis nearly £400,000. The principal export trade of Cardiff consists of iron and tin, and oats, barley, and other agricultural, with some dairy produce. Cardiff is the capital of the county, and joins with Cowbridge and Llan-Trisant in returning one member to parliament. The constituency is between 600 and 700, of whom, including freemen and householders, about 320 belong to Cardiff: the mayor is the returning officer. By the late municipal act, the corporation consists of two bailiffs, six aldermen, and eighteen councillors. Their ordinary income is about £1,000 a year. A court of record for the recovery of debts is held here every Thursday, and the assizes are held here every year in April and August. Petty sessions are held every Monday and Thursday. The county gaol stands at a convenient distance from the town, apart from other buildings. It is a modern edifice, finished in 1832 at a cost of £12,000. The tread-wheel labour of the inmates is applied to the pumping of water, and the turning of a fly-regulator. — Contains 1,191 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 10,077: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 11,588: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £9,086: poor rates in 1837, £1,729. — Market days, Wednesday and Saturday. Fairs: second Wednesday in March, April, and May, June 29, Sept. 19, and Nov. 30, cattle. — Bankers: Towgood & Co. (Old Bank) — draw on Rogers, Olding, & Co.; Branch of West of England and South Wales — draw on Glyn, Halifax, & Co.; National Provident Bank of England — draw on London and Westminster Bank. — Inns: Angel, Cardiff Arms, and White Lion.

CARDIGAN, CARDIGAN, a market, borough, union, and county town, in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Troedyrour, on the river Teifi: 223 miles from London (coach road 245), 10 from Newcastle-Emlyn. — Gt. West-Rail to Stonehouse, thence 120 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Stonehouse, &c., 223 miles. — Money orders issued at Cardigan: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 p.m.: post closes 10 p.m. — Cardigan lies on the northern bank of the river Teifi, and consists principally of two streets, in which there are some handsome houses; one of these streets, of considerable width, runs from the bridge into the country towards Aberystwith, while the other passes nearly parallel to the river, in the direction of Llechryd and Lampeter. Over the river Teifi there is a bridge of seven arches, which leads to Milford. The church is an ancient and interesting structure, with a fine tower rising from the western end, and is, upon the whole, an imposing and stately edifice. Near it is the site of the ancient priory, which, according to Lambard, was a dependant of the priory at Chertsey; its position is now occupied by a comfortable family residence. The county gaol and house of correction stand on the north end of the town; it was built in 1796, at a cost of upwards of £7,000, and contains twenty cells, besides day-rooms and airing-yards. Of the castle, there now remain only two round towers, connected by a curtain wall, picturesque in their aspect, from the ivy by which they are covered and sustained. This fortress, so famous in Welsh history, was originally built by Gilbert de Clare about the year 1160, but was shortly afterwards seized by a chieftain called Rhys ap Gryfydd, and was successively occupied by several of the Welsh princes, until it was taken by the Flemings, shortly after their expulsion from the continent. Cardigan claims to be a borough by prescription, and was formerly governed by a mayor, two bailiffs, and thirteen aldermen, assisted by a coroner and town-clerk; but under the new municipal act it is placed under the authority of a mayor, four aldermen, and twelve common councillors. The town lies within the parish of St. Mary, with which the old borough was co-extensive; but the parliamentary limits now include the hamlets of Bridge-End and Abbey, in the parish of St. Dogmells, Pembrokeshire, and new municipal boundary. There is an endowed grammar-school in this town since 1653: the present master's name is David James, Esq., B.A., of Jesus College, Oxford. The school is in the patronage of the mayor, aldermen, and councillors of the borough of Cardigan. The endowment is £21 per annum for teaching six poor boys; the other children are the master's private pupils. And a large and very splendid National school, in separate rooms, for boys and girls, was finished and opened in 1848, with sufficient room for 322 children: and there are upwards of 250 children in daily attendance. The whole buildings have cost, in the erection, besides the site, £1,473. 7s. 3½d. The site was given by the Rev. Robert Miles, who paid for the buildings upwards of £660. In conjunction with Lampeter, Atpar, and Aberystwith, it returns one member to parliament, the constituency consisting of somewhat more than 900, out of which number about 280 are freemen or householders of Cardigan: the mayor is the returning officer. The coasting trade of Cardigan is very considerable, employing upwards of 10,000 tons of shipping, and 1,000 seamen. The port extends four or five miles beyond Fishguard, on the coast of Pembrokeshire, to a point on the coast north-east of Aberseron; and twenty-four miles from the mouth of the Teifi; but the harbour of Cardigan itself is not good, the bar being a great impediment to navigation, while the entrance is extremely dangerous during winter. Vessels of 300 or 400 tons can approach the town, but the business is generally carried on in vessels of from 15 to 100 tons burden. About 300 vessels are registered as belonging to Cardigan, but few of them visit the port; and it contains a number of shipowners, and many vessels were at one time built in its dockyards. From its peculiar size, several of the vessels connected with Cardigan do double duty, being employed during the summer season in carrying limestone from Pembrokeshire, and in some other branch of the coasting trade; and in the latter part of the year being engaged, sometimes with a little change of appearance, in the fishery off the coast; but a number of them are engaged in carrying on the trade between England and Ireland. The imports of Cardigan are coal from Liverpool, Staffordshire, Gloucestershire, and South Wales generally; limestone from Pembrokeshire, and Memel and American timber from Bristol, Liverpool, and the outports; the last branch of business having increased largely since the general peace. The exports are corn, chiefly oats, butter, and slates; the last article indeed being perhaps the principal staple of the place, though the slate is not considered equal to that of North Wales. The Cardigan poor-law union comprises twenty-six parishes, with a population of about 19,000 persons. All the tithes of the parish are commuted for £300 per annum, being the property of the Rev. Robert Miles, rector of Bingham, Notts, the impropiator and the owner of the Priory estate, who pays the vicar £10 per annum. This place gives the title of earl to the noble family of Brudenell. The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cardigan, and diocese of St. David's, is valued at £9. 15s. 10d.: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, Rev. Griffith Thomas, 1824: contains 578 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,898: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 3,200: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £6,339. 4s.: poor rates in 1837, £967. Market day, Saturday. Fairs: Feb. 13; April 5, horses; Sept. 8; Dec. 19, for horses and cattle. Bankers: Williams & Co.—draw on Williams, Deacon, & Co.—Black Lion Hotel, Red Lion Inn, and White Hart Inn.

CARDINGTON, BEDFORD, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Wixamtree, union of Bedford, on the river Ouse: it includes the chapelry of East-Cotts: 65 miles from London (coach road 48), 2 from Bedford, 7 from Ampthill. Nor. West. Rail. to Bedford, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Bedford, &c., 104 miles. Money orders issued at Bedford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. A tablet has been put up in the church to the philanthropist Howard, who was for some time a resident here; and it contains a monument to the memory of Samuel Whitbread, Esq., whose family settled here about the year 1650; it was put up in 1799, and is the last of the works of the great sculptor Bacon. The living (the Virgin Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bedford, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £7. 17s.: pres. net income, £245: patron, Trinity College, Cambridge: pres. incumbent, C. F. Bromhead, 1829: contains 5,050 acres: 258 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,466: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,686: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £7,753: poor rates in 1837, £336.

CARDINGTON, SALOP, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Munslow, union of Church-Stretton: 153 miles from London (coach road 156), 4 from Church-Stretton, 8 from Market-Wenlow. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Wolverhampton, thence 26 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Wolverhampton, &c., 81 miles. Money orders issued at Shrewsbury: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. The living (St. James), a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Salop, and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £6. 2s. 6d.: pres. net income, £287: patron, R. Hunt, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. J. Hughes, 1819: contains 6,500 acres: 129 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 691: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 795: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,462: poor rates in 1837, £334. Tithes commuted in 1814.

CARDINHAM, CORNWALL, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of West, union of Bodmin, intersected by the Fowey river: 269 miles from London (coach road 230), 5 from Bodmin, 17 from Launceston. Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol and Exeter to Plymouth, thence 30 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Bristol, &c., 283 miles. Money orders issued at Bodmin: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 12.10 p.m. The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cornwall, and diocese of Exeter, is valued at £24. 17s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £524: patron, John Vivian: pres. incumbent, Jno. Vivian Vivian, 1845: contains 8,550 acres: 123 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 802: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 820: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,029: poor rates in 1837, £274.

CAREBY, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Beltisloe, parts of Kesteven, union of Bourn, on the river Glen: 123 miles from London (coach road 96), 7 from Stamford, 7 from Bourn. Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Peterborough to Stamford, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Syston to Stamford, &c., 76 miles. Money orders issued at Stamford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. The living (St. Stephen), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £8. 17s. 1d.: pres. net income, £400: patron, General B. Reynardson: pres. incumbent, J. B. Reynardson, 1844: contains 1,590 acres: 15 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 73: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,742: poor rates in 1837, £44.

CAREW, PEMBROKE, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Narbeth, union of Pembroke, South Wales: 233 miles from London (coach road 277), 5 from Pembroke, 7 from Narbeth. Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 130 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Stonehouse, &c., 233 miles. Money orders issued at Pembroke: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. This was a favourite residence of Rhys ap Thomas, the Welsh chief, who held a tournament here in the park, within the range of the castle precincts, in honour of his being admitted companion of the illustrious order of the garter, and in commemoration of the anniversary of St. George, celebrated then at court, where at that time he was, by reason of his age, unable to attend, which lasted five days, and was attended by upwards of six hundred persons of quality. Among all the enterprising men who, for their courage, influence, and extent of possessions, during the feudal ages of Britain, were famous, Rhys ap Thomas was one of the foremost. Sprung from a long line of warlike princes, his immediate predecessors had attached themselves to the cause of the house of Lancaster; and when, after the fatal battle of Tewkesbury, the contest for a while ceased, young Rhys accompanied his father to the court of Burgundy, where he was appointed to a post of honour in the duke's household; but his father being obliged to withdraw from the duchy, he returned to Wales, and put an end to the feuds which had theretofore existed between his house and that of Count Henry, by marrying Eva, daughter of Gwilym, who was of that family, and through whom he obtained possessions almost equal in extent to his own, becoming thereby one of the most opulent subjects of the realm, so that a poet of the time wrote of him,

"Y Brenin bla'u'r ynys Ond sy e run i Syr Rhys;"

or, in English,

"The king owns the island, excepting what pertains to Sir Rhys."

He acquired immense popularity, and by degrees very formidable power, by the institution of athletic games and amusements on his estates in Pembroke-shire and Carmarthenshire, converting his commons into race-courses, and rewarding those who displayed most address and intrepidity with horses and other prizes; and, by training the young men, through the medium of sham-fights and military spectacles, to the use of all manner of arms, he raised a very numerous and able band to back him at any time of need. He had nineteen hundred tenants bound by their leases to attend him at the shortest call, and it is believed that he could, at a very short notice, have taken five thousand horsemen, well disciplined, mounted, and armed into the field. After the defection of the Duke of Buckingham, Richard III. required hostages and an oath of fealty from all the chiefs in the west. From the former, Rhys got himself excused; but was obliged to give a conditional declaration of fealty, from which, however, on the persuasion of some friends, he was induced to deviate by a subterfuge; and when the Earl of Richmond landed at Milford-Haven, he met him at a place called Deal with such a chosen band of well-appointed followers, that the earl was induced at once to take the field, and he despatched notices to his partisans in all quarters to join him at Shrewsbury. The little army was divided into two bands, one of which, commanded by the earl himself, marched through Cardiganshire, while the other, under Rhys ap Thomas, advanced through Carmarthen. The latter caused the beacons to be lighted on every hill to signalise the landing of the earl, and his orders for his adherents to join him. At every village multitudes crowded to his standard; but he selected two thousand horsemen from the best of his followers to attend him, and left five hundred infantry for the defence of the district. He joined the earl as appointed. He assisted largely in gaining the battle of Bosworth, and behaved with such gallantry, that tradition ascribes to him the death of Richard, when fighting hand to hand with him. However that may be, it is certain that the spoils of Richard's tent were divided between Rhys and Sir William Stanley, the earl's father-in-law; and ever afterwards, Henry honoured him with the title of Father Rhys, made him governor of Wales, and loaded him with other honours. He subsequently served with great distinction in several other of Henry's expeditions, and at length retired to his own castle of Carew, continuing to indulge his taste for military spectacles till his death, which occurred in 1527, when he was at the age of seventy-six. He was buried in the priory at Carmarthen. Of his far-famed castle, the following account is given by Fenton:—"The noble edifice of Carew castle is situated on a neck of land washed by the tide of two estuaries, with a gentle fall towards the water, and consists of a superb range of apartments round a quadrangle, with an immense bastion at each corner, containing handsome chambers. In almost all the rooms were elegant chimney-pieces of wrought freestone, some of which had been built over to be preserved were carried to Devonshire, but many, where that precaution had not been used, were disfigured and destroyed by the people of the neighbourhood, for the sake of the freestone powder to scour their wooden ware, in the course of twenty years since I saw them before. I trace the barbican, and passing through the port-cullised gateway enter a grand door-way, now miserably defaced and stripped of its rich freestone casings, into the great court or inner balleum, looking into which, as well as into the park and towards the water, there were windows. The ground rooms of the north front may boast of windows than which nothing more nobly magnificent is known in the kingdom, giving light to the great state-room, one hundred and two feet long by twenty. On the east side, over a chimney-piece of no inelegant workmanship, there is an escutcheon bearing the royal arms, perhaps placed there in compliment to Henry the Seventh, who is said to have been entertained and lodged there by his great adherent and supporter, Sir Rhys ap Thomas, on his way to Bosworth Field, and this might have been the royal bed-chamber. All the south-west side of the castle shows old towers of various height, diameter, and form. The whole north side is very majestic, ending in the return of a bastion to the east of the same character. The building is evidently of various eras, yet I make no doubt but what some parts are coeval with its first possessor; but I apprehend, and it is confirmed by old Leland (and there cannot be better authority) that Sir Rhys ap Thomas new-modelled the whole and much enlarged it, giving to the north front the magnificence it now displays. The castle stands in a paddock, bounded by the water on three sides, and on the other by the road leading to Carew church and village; but it had to the south a very extensive deer-park, whose outer wall is still visible in many places, though it is now subdivided into many enclosures. In part of this ground, at a small distance from the castle—and the 'hoary-headed swain' will still exultingly point to the spot—Sir Rhys ap Thomas held the tilt and tournament before mentioned."

—The living is a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of St. David's: pres. net income, £182: patron, Bishop of St. David's: pres. incumbent, J. Phelps, 1845: contains 189 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,056: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,214: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,203: poor rates in 1837, £462.

CAREY (or CARY-COATS), NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Throckington—(which see for access, &c.): 284 miles from London, 11 from Hexham, 3 from Haltwhistle.—Money orders issued at Hexham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.—Contains 8 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 51: poor rates in 1837, £50.

CARGO (or CRAGHOW), CUMBERLAND, a township in that part of Stanwix, which is in Cumberland ward, on the river Eden, and in the vicinity of the Ship Canal—(which see for access, &c.): 306 miles from London, 3 from Carlisle, 6 from Longtown.—Money orders issued at Carlisle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m.—Contains 55 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 259.

CARHAM, NORTHUMBERLAND, a parish in the western division of Glendale ward, union of Glendale, on the river Tweed: it includes the townships of Carham and Shidlaw, Downham, Hagg, New Learmouth, West Learmouth, Mindrim East and West, Moneylaws, Preston, Tythehill, Wark and Wark-Common: 378 miles from London (coach road 337), 3 from Coldstream, 15 from Berwick.

—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, York, and Newcastle, to Belford, thence 24 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 246 miles. —Money orders issued at Coldstream: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 4 p.m.: post closes 10 a.m. —From its border position, this place was frequently the unhappy subject of the border forays; and here, according to Leland, a severe engagement was fought between the Saxons and the Danes, in which eleven bishops and two counts were slain. In 1018 it was also the scene of a sanguinary battle between the English and the Scotch, as also of another in 1370, when the English suffered a total defeat. An abbey of black monks, a cell to the priory of Kirkham in Yorkshire, was burnt by the Scots under Wallace, whose encampment is still called Campfield. There is a beautiful view from the hamlet of Shidlaw into Scotland. —The living (St. Cuthbert) is a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northumberland, and diocese of Durham: pres. net income, £233: patron, Heirs of A. Compton, Esq.: contains 11,470 acres: 230 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,282: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,474: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £16,751: poor rates in 1837, £625.

CARHAMPTON, SOMERSET, a parish in the hund<sup>l</sup> of Carhampton, union of Williton: 171 miles from London (coach road 160), 1 from Dunster, 3 from Minehead. —Gt. West. Rail. through Bristol to Bridgewater, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Bridgewater, &c., 185 miles. —Money orders issued at Taunton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. —The living (St. John the Baptist), with Rode Huish curacy, a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the diocese of Bath and Wells, and a peculiar of the dean's, is valued at £11. 8s.: pres. net income, £182: patron, J. F. Luttrell, Esq.: pres. incumbent, T. F. Luttrell, 1832: contains 6,460 acres: 109 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 682: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 784: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,541: poor rates in 1837, £437. —Castle Dunster Park—(for which see DUNSTER.)

CARINGTON (or CARRINGTON), CHESTER, a chapelry in the parish of Bowdon, on the river Mersey—(which see for access, &c.): 182 miles from London, 5 from Altrincham, 9 from Manchester. —Money orders issued at Altrincham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. —The living (St. George) is a curacy to the vicarage of Bowdon, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Chester: pres. net income, £375: patron, Earl of Stamford and Warrington: pres. incumbent, George Heron, 1831: contains 2,070 acres: 88 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 559: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 642: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,604: poor rates in 1837, £191.

CARISBROOKE, HAMPS, a parish in the liberty of West Medina, Isle of Wight division of the county: it includes the hamlets of Billingham and Barcombe, and the Isle of Wight poor-house: 101 miles from London (coach road 84), 1 from Newport, 11 from Portsmouth. —South West. Rail. to Portsmouth, thence 11 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, Oxford, and Reading, to Portsmouth, &c., 198 miles. —Money orders issued at Newport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. —Carisbrooke, though now a populous village, is a very different place to what it was formerly, when enjoying the dignity of a city: it possessed also the advantage of being protected from foreign invasion, and the castle was the only fortified fortress in the island to which the inhabitants could fly when their homes were invaded by hostile troops. Pleasantly situated, its few streets rise on the side of an acclivity opposite to that on which the castle stands, and between them there is a vale, through which flows a stream,—beautiful in its winding course towards Newport,—sufficiently copious to turn several mills, while the numerous springs in the neighbourhood supply a water almost unrivalled in its purity. Its church is still a fine pile of Gothic building, but it has lost its chancel and north aisle; and yet, notwithstanding, its lofty tower is an object of admiration to all visitors, relieving, as it does, the surrounding objects, while its musical peal of bells, make the vale redolent of sweet affections and pleasing thoughts,—a kindred to delightful emotions,—and engendering many a reminiscence of bygone times. As if to complete the scene, close by in the neighbourhood are several farm buildings, as if intended to put by the world, and bring up the agreeable associations which always accompany the remembrance of an old priory. In the vicinity are a few genteel residences and some good lodging-houses; but the principal interest of the place arises from the venerable castle, which has been the scene of so much historic interest. It has been the abode and the prison of royalty, and, gainsay them as we may, such objects still steal upon our feelings: and when united with the gentlest, however they be the mistaken, emotions of our nature, we cannot help exclaiming with John Scott—

"Discoursing sweet music,"

"How picturesque the view, where, up the side
Of that steep hill, the roofs of russet thatch
Rise, mix'd with trees; above whose swelling tops
Ascends the tall church tower; and, loftier still,
The hills' extended ridge, crowned with yellow corn;
While, slow beneath the bank, the silver stream Glides by the flowery isles and willow groves!"

This celebrated monument of antiquity is boldly placed on the summit of a steep acclivity, of a circular form, about a mile westward of the town of Newport, and presents

"A scene of magnificence in ruins," which is as well worthy of observation as any object in the island. Its principal entrance is through an ivy-mantled gateway, flanked by two round towers, which, by an inscription of "1598, E. R.," is evidently an erection in the 40th year of Elizabeth. This gate leads to one of an earlier period and greater dimensions, evidently built when the feudal principle was strong in the land, and which still

"A warlike mien, a sullen grandeur wears," and opens to the court in the basement or inner fortification; the oak of which it is formed has become almost as hard as iron itself. Around, on every side, the venerable ivy is seen mantling the grey turrets, climbing up the walls, and casing the battlements. To describe every portion of the edifice within the space allotted, would be a fruitless task; and it may therefore suffice to observe, that it possesses all the remains of a castellated hold of the first eminence, the walls being as much, in some instances, as eighteen feet thick, and exhibiting every appliance of comfort of feudal notions in the days of Elizabeth. One of the greatest curiosities of the interior, is a well of fully 200 feet in depth, which, in the driest seasons, supplies water of the purest quality, and as abundantly as is desired for the wants of the neighbourhood. If a pebble be dropped into this well, it takes four seconds in falling, and upon reaching the surface of the water, produces a sound like thunder: the water is obtained by a windlass, drawn up by an ass kept for that purpose. Every part is rich in historic associations, and in romantic and rural excellence of the rarest kind; the neighbourhood being an admirable counterpart of the castle in all that is characteristic and picturesque. Truly may it be said of it, as was done by Mason—

"— Time by his gradual touch
Has mouldered into beauty many a tower,
Which, when it frowned with all its battlements,
Was only terrible."

It was from here that Charles I. made his last attempt to escape from the power of his conquerors,—here his children were imprisoned after his might had ceased,—here his Elizabeth, who is buried in the parish church of Newport, at the age of fifteen met her death. The neighbourhood of the castle has been much enriched by the plantations of Lord Bolton, who, in 1805, was governor of the island. — The living (the Virgin Mary), a vicarage, with the curacy of Newport, and vicarage of Northwood, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £23. 8s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £1,123: patron, Queen's College, Oxford: pres. incumbent, E. D. Scott, 1845: contains 8,880 acres: 757 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 5,613: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 6,455: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £10,781: poor rates in 1837, £1,347.

CARKIN, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Forcett—(which see for access, &c.): 242 miles from London, 4 from Darlington, 8 from Richmond. — Money orders issued at Darlington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — Contains 770 acres: 9 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 55: poor rates in 1837, £6.

CARLATTON, CUMBERLAND, an extra-parochial hamlet in Eskdale ward: 286 miles from London, 10 from Carlisle, 1 from High Heskest. — Money orders issued at Carlisle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> at noon: post closes 1 p.m. — Contains 7 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 61: poor rates in 1837, £1,810.

CARLBY, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Ness, parts of Kesteven, union of Bourn, on the river Glen: 122 miles from London (coach road 95), 6 from Stamford, 8 from Bourn. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Peterborough to Stamford, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Syston to Stamford, &c., 75 miles. — Money orders issued at Stamford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. — The living (St. Stephen), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £9. 1s. 10½d.: pres. net income, £195: patrons, Marquis of Exeter, and Sir E. Smith, Bart.: contains 1,020 acres: 34 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 216: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,333: poor rates in 1837, £29. Tithes commuted in 1804.

CARLETON (or CARLTON), BEDFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Willey, union of Bedford, bounded on the west by the river Ouse: 70 miles from London (coach road 57), 5 from Olney, 7 from Bedford. — Nor. West. Rail. to Bedford, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Bedford, &c., 109 miles. — Money orders issued at Newport-Pagnell: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory, consolidated in 1769 with that of Chelington, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Bedford, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Ely, is valued at £15. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £370: patron, Hon. G. R. Trevor: pres. incumbent, H. J. Elman, 1829: contains 1,530 acres: 87 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 444: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 510: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,497: poor rates in 1837, £37. Tithes commuted in 1805.

CARLETON, CUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Dregg—(which see for access, &c.)—ward of Allerdale, above Derwent, on the river Mite: 291 miles from London, 2 from Ravenglass, 19 from Keswick. — Money orders issued at Ravenglass: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. — Pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 143.—(Other returns with the parish.)

CARLETON (or CARLTON), CUMBERLAND, a township in that part of the parish of St. Cuthbert, Carlisle, which is in Cumberland ward—(which see for access, &c.): 301 miles from London, 2 from Carlisle, 9 from Wigton. — Money orders issued at Carlisle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — Contains 33 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 175. Tithes commuted in 1777.—(Other returns with the parish.)

CARLETON, DURHAM, a chapelry in the parish of Red Marshall, south-west division of Stockton ward—(which see for access, &c.): 246 miles from London, 4 from Stockton-on-Tees, 8 from Darlington. — Money orders issued at Stockton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 2 p.m. — Contains 1,630 acres: 35 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 157: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,418: poor rates in 1837, £46.

CARLETON (or CARLTON), LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Poulton—(which see for access, &c.): 234 miles from London, 1 from Poulton, 10 from Garstang. — Money orders issued at Lancaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. — Contains 1,960 acres: 63 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 378: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 484: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,161: poor rates in 1837, £116.

CARLETON (or CARLTON), LEICESTER, a chapelry in the parish of Market-Bosworth—(which see for access, &c.): 107 miles from London, 10 from Hinckley, 8 from Ashby-de-la-Zouch. — Money orders issued at Hinckley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — The living is a curacy, annexed to the rectory of Market-Bosworth: contains 680 acres: 44 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 282: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,204: poor rates in 1837, £119.

CARLETON (or CARLTON), NORFOLK, a parish, consolidated with Ashby St. Mary, in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Loddon and Clavering, south of the river Yare: 135 miles from London (coach road 114), 9 from Norwich, 11 from Yarmouth. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. to Norwich, thence 9 miles: from Derby, through Syston and Peterborough to Norwich, &c., 175 miles. — Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m. — The living (St. Peter) is a rectory in the diocese of Norwich: pres. net income, £140: patrons, Sir W. B. Proctor, and Sir C. H. Rich: pres. incumbent, T. W. H. B. Proctor, 1838: contains 930 acres: 16 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 96: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,204: poor rates in 1837, £78.

CARLETON (or CARLTON-EAST), NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Corby, union of Kettering, south of the river Welland: 98 miles from London (coach road 81), 3 from Rockingham, 7 from Market-Harborough.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Market-Harborough, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, &c., 73 miles.---Money orders issued at Rockingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.---The living (St. Peter), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £12. 16s. 3d.: pres. net income, £108: patron, Sir J. H. Palmer, Bart.: contains 1,420 acres: 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 68: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,372: poor rates in 1837, £37.

CARLETON (or CARLTON), NOTTINGHAM, a township in the parish of Gedling, north-east of the river Trent---(which see for access, &c.): 127 miles from London, 3 from Nottingham, 13 from Mansfield.---Money orders issued at Nottingham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---Contains 361 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,015: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,317: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,878: poor rates in 1837, £410. Tithes commuted in 1792.

CARLETON (or CARLTON), NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Husthwaite---(which see for access, &c.): 219 miles from London, 4 from Thirsk, 9 from Aldborough.---Money orders issued at Thirsk: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---Contains 1,120 acres: 36 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 171: poor rates in 1837, £56.

CARLETON, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a parish in the west division of the liberty of Langbaugh, union of Stokesley, on a branch of the river Tees: 264 miles from London, 3 from Stokesley, 8 from Stockton.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and York, to Northallerton, thence 14 miles: from Derby, through York, &c., 132 miles.---Money orders issued at Stokesley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 2 p.m.---The living, a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Cleveland, and diocese of York, is valued at £7. 7s. 4d.: pres. net income, £56: patron, C. Reeve, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Thomas Brown, 1823: contains 830 acres: 62 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 259: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,084: poor rates in 1837, £148.

CARLETON, WEST RIDING, YORK, a chapelry in the parish of Snaith, wapentake of Barkstone Ash, north of the river Aire---(which see for access, &c.): 176 miles from London, 1 from Snaith, 5 from Selby.---Money orders issued at Selby: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---The living (St. Mary), a perpetual curacy, with that of Snaith, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, is valued at £25: pres. net income, £168: patrons, J. Day, and --- Cave: pres. incumbent, S. G. Crompton, 1839: contains 3,070 acres: 166 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 802: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 922: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £5,268: poor rates in 1837, £298. Tithes commuted in 1799 and 1800.

CARLETON (or CARLTON WITH LOPTHOUSE),

WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Rothwell, in the wapentake of Agbrigg, two miles south of the river Aire, and the Leeds and Liverpool Canal---(which see for access, &c.): 186 miles from London, 3 from Leeds, 5 from Wakefield.---Money orders issued at Leeds: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---Contains 1,810 acres: 296 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,536: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,766.

CARLETON, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Pontefract---(which see for access, &c.): 175 miles from London, 2 from Pontefract, 8 from Wakefield.---Money orders issued at Pontefract: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---Contains 620 acres: 35 houses: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,133: poor rates in 1837, £102. Tithes commuted in 1797.

CARLETON (or CARLTON), WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Guiseley, south of the river Warp---(which see for access, &c.): 3 miles from Otley.---Money orders issued at Otley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m.---Contains 1,270 acres: 24 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 205: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £785: poor rates in 1837, £70. Tithes commuted in 1772.

CARLETON (or CARLTON), WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the wapentake of Staincliffe and Ewcross, union of Skipton, on the river Aire: 232 miles from London (coach road 216), 2 from Skipton, 7 from Colne.---Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Leeds, to Skipton, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Leeds, &c., 100 miles.---Money orders issued at Skipton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---There is an hospital here, founded in 1700 by Mr. Spence, for eighteen poor widows; and in 1709, a schoolhouse was built by Mrs. Wilkinson, who endowed it with land, for the education of four boys; but the income has now risen to £120 a year, by the expenditure of a part of which, twenty boys are taught, four of whom are also clothed; out of the rest a fund is provided, from which £7 are given to each on being apprenticed, at the age of fourteen.---The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the diocese of Ripon, is valued at £5. 2s. 1d.: pres. net income, £400: patron, Christ Church, Oxford: pres. incumbent, Walter Levett, 1816: contains 2,390 acres: 246 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,242: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,428: poor rates in 1837, £494.

CARLETON (or CARLTON), WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Royston---(which see for access, &c.): 3 from Barnesley.---Money orders issued at Barnesley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6½ p.m.---The Barnesley Canal runs by the village.---Contains 2,090 acres: 69 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 411: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 473: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,509: poor rates in 1837, £254.

CARLETON (or CARLTON-FORSHOE), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Forshoe, on the river Yare: 124 miles from London (coach road 105), 5 from Wymondham, 14 from Norwich.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Ely and Wymondham to Hardingham, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Syston and Peterborough to Hardingham, &c., 155 miles.---Money orders issued at Wymondham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.---The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the

archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £5. 17s. 1d.: pres. net income, £120: patron, Lord Wodehouse: pres. incumbent, F. Raikes, 1848: contains 700 acres: 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 151: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,036: poor rates in 1837, £79. Tithes commuted in 1766.

CARLETON (CASTLE), LINCOLN, a parish in the Marsh division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Louth-Eske, union of Louth, parts of Lindsey: 172 miles from London (coach road 148), 6 from Louth, 6 from Alford. —Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Peterborough and Boston to Leghourn, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, Lincoln, Boston, &c., 117 miles. —Money orders issued at Louth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. —The children of this parish have a right of access to a school at Great Carleton. This place was once a market town. Within the parish there are three artificial mounds, on one of which formerly stood the castle of Sir Hugh Bardolph, who was lord of the manor in the time of Henry I. —The living (Holy Cross), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £12: pres. net income, £69: patron, Mrs. Reynardson: pres. incumbent, John Badcock, 1842: contains 500 acres: 10 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 52: poor rates in 1837, £111.

CARLETON-COLVILLE, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Mutford and Lothingland: 153 miles from London (coach road 110), 4 from Lowestoft, 6 from Beccles. —Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Norwich to Lowestoft, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, Norwich, &c., 193 miles. —Money orders issued at Lowestoft: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. —The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £12. 10s. 7½d.: pres. net income, £345: patron, W. Andrews, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. H. Andrews, 1848: contains 2,130 acres: 157 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 785: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 918: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,359: poor rates in 1837, £294.

CARLETON IN LINDRICK, NOTTINGHAM, a parish in the Hatfield division of the wapentake of Bassetlaw, union of Worksop: 185 miles from London (coach road 150), 4 from Worksop, 8 from East Retford. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Woodhouse Mill, to Worksop, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Woodhouse Mill, &c., 52 miles. —Money orders issued at Worksop: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. —A branch of the river Ryton passes through this parish: it is near the Chesterfield Canal. —The living (St. John), a rectory, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Nottingham, and diocese of York, now in the diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £15. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £576: patron, Archbishop of York: pres. incumbent, C. W. Eyrie, 1826: contains 3,980 acres: 187 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, £1,056: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,214: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,164: poor rates in 1837, £303.

CARLETON-RODE, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Depwade: 107 miles from London (coach road 100), 5 from Attleborough, 14 from Norwich. —East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Haughley Road to Moulton, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, and Norwich, to Moulton, &c., 185 miles. —Money orders issued at Attleborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10½ a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. —There is a Baptist chapel here. —The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £16: pres. net income, £850: patron, Sir R. J. Buxton, Bart.: pres. incumbent, F. S. Bevan, 1822: contains 2,680 acres: 176 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 938: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,079: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,036: poor rates in 1837, £903. All the tithes were commuted in 1839.

CARLISLE, CUMBERLAND, a city, inland port, and market town, having separate jurisdiction, situated in the ward of Cumberland, union of Carlisle: 300 miles from London (coach road 304), 8 from Brampton. —Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Lancaster to Carlisle station: from Derby, through Burton, Crewe, &c., 200 miles. —Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ p.m. and 9½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. and 10.10 p.m. —It comprehends a part of each of the ecclesiastical parishes of St. Cuthbert and St. Mary, and consists of nine townships or quarters, the ancient city being included between the townships of Rickerate and Botchergate, and the river Caldew, by which it is bounded on the west; but the buildings which now properly and popularly constitute the city of Carlisle, extend far beyond the range of these limits. By the boundary act, for political purposes, the inhabitants of the two townships above named, together with those of part of Caldewgate, have been added to the constituency. In 1763, the population was somewhat more than 4,000; in forty years it had more than doubled itself; and in forty years again it has once more doubled its numbers. Carlisle is pleasantly situated on a gentle eminence, near the confluence of the Eden and the Caldew, and is justly considered the metropolis of that part of England. What was its origin cannot now be ascertained, being lost in the mist of remote ages; but some antiquaries have attributed it to Lul, a British sovereign, or rather chieftain, who lived anterior to the Roman invasion; while others trace it no higher than the construction of the wall of Severus, and believe it to have been a fortress on that celebrated rampart. But that it was a place of some consequence in the time of the Romans, Camden remarks, appears plainly from the various evidences of antiquity dug up occasionally, and from the frequent mention of it by the writers of those days; and even after the ravages of the Picts and Scots it retained something of its ancient splendour, and was accounted a city. Camden's opinion of its antiquity is justified by the derivation of its title, being evidently from Ocer Lul, or the "City of Lul," a name which it again resumed when the Roman domination ceased in these islands. On their assumption of authority in the district, they changed its ancient name to Lugovallum, in all probability from the lake-like reach formed by the junction of the two rivers, and from the vicinity of the vallum of Hadrian, which ran near it. From its position near to the borders of Scotland, and from the easy nature of the country by which it is approached, the place was always and continually subject to the forays of the northern tribes, to resist whose incursions the Romans built a wall and a fortress. In the time of Nero it was burned to the ground, but Agricola repaired it, and added new fortifications for its defence. Shortly after the final departure of the Romans it appears to have been again destroyed, for we find that, in the seventh century, it was rebuilt by Egfrid, King of Northumbria, during whose reign it rose into a place of importance. In 875 it was demolished by the Danes, and lay for more than a century in ruins, till William Rufus ordered a certain sum to be expended in rebuilding the city, and raising a castle, and sent a colony from the south of England to execute the works, and cultivate the surrounding lands. The works, however, advanced but slowly, for it appears that when his successor, Henry I., some years afterwards, visited the place, they were still incomplete; and they were in all probability finished by David, King of Scotland, to whom the place was ceded by King Stephen. David greatly improved the defences, and resided here for some time after the unfortunate battle of the Standard; but the city was restored to England by Malcolm IV., and suffered a severe siege by William the Lion, whom it successfully resisted, but was obliged to yield to his successor, Alexander. It was to Carlisle that Edward I. retreated after the battle of Falkirk, and here he summoned a parliament in 1298; and here, too, he concentrated his forces, and celebrated his birthday, shortly before his death in 1307, when on his way for the final subjugation of Scotland. During the long struggle of border warfare, Carlisle repeatedly suffered severely, and was often reduced to great extremity. Here it was that, in 1568, the unfortunate Mary Queen of Scots was apprehended by the orders of Elizabeth; and here, in 1596, the Earl of Buccleuch succeeded in securing the noted freebooter, Kinmont Willie. In the great struggle between Charles I. and his parliament, the city took the side of the king; but after a long and severe siege, during which the garrison and the inhabitants suffered almost incredible hardships, it was obliged to surrender to General Leslie, in June, 1645. Just one hundred years afterwards it was invested by the young Pretender, Prince Charles Edward, on his march into England, and disgracefully yielded at the first summons, through the pusillanimity of the magistracy, and the treachery of one of the inhabitants. The particulars of this circumstance are very amusingly narrated by Gilpin, whose account we transcribe:—"When the insurgents came before it, it was garrisoned only by two companies of invalids, and two raw undisciplined regiments of militia. General Wade lay at Newcastle with a considerable force; and the governor of Carlisle, informing him how unprovided he was, begged a reinforcement. The single hope of this relief enabled the gentlemen of the county, who commanded the militia, to keep their men under arms. In the meantime, the rebels were known to be as ill prepared for an attack as the town was for a defence. They had now lain a week before it, and found it was impracticable, for want of artillery, to make any attempt. They feared also an interruption from General Wade; and, besides, were unwilling to delay any longer their march towards London. Under these difficulties they had come to a resolution to abandon their design. At this critical time the governor of Carlisle received a letter from General Wade, informing him he was so circumstanced, that he could not possibly send the reinforcement that had been desired. This mortifying intelligence, though not publicly known, was, however, communicated to the principal officers, and to some others, among whom was a busy attorney, who was then addressing a young lady, the daughter of a gentleman of the county; and, to assist his cause, and give himself consequence with his intended father-in-law, he whispered to him, among his other political secrets, the disappointment from General Wade. The whisper did not rest here. The father frequented a club in the neighbourhood, where, observing—in the jollity of a cheerful evening—that only friends were present, he gave the company the information he had just received from the attorney. In that company there was a gentleman of some fortune, who, though a known papist, was at that time thought to be of very entire affection to the government. This man, possessed of such a secret, and wishing for an opportunity to serve a cause which he favoured in his heart, took horse that very night, after he left the club-room, and rode directly to the rebel camp, which he found under orders to break up the next morning. He was carried immediately to the Duke of Perth, and others of the rebel leaders, to whom he communicated the intelligence, and assured them that they might expect a mutiny in the town if they continued before it one day longer. Counter-orders were immediately issued; and the next day the Cumberland and Westmoreland militia, being under no discipline, began to mutiny and disperse; and the town, defended now only by two companies of invalids, was thought no longer tenable. It was then surrendered by the mayor and corporation, who made the best terms they were able; but the inhabitants were obliged to raise £2,000 to prevent their houses being plundered. This capitulation was made on the 14th of November. In the following month the city was attacked by the Duke of Cumberland, who planned and directed the operations himself, and on the 27th opened a six-gun battery of 18-pounders against the castle. Two days afterwards the rebels displayed a flag of truce, and on the 13th surrendered on the laconic terms offered to their acceptance by the duke, and conceived in these words:—"All the terms his royal highness will or can grant to the rebel garrison of Carlisle, are, that they shall not be put to the sword, but be reserved for the king's pleasure." No inquiry was instituted into the conduct of the authorities; but several unhappy men, whom Charles had left here behind him in his retreat, were taken prisoners, carried up to London, and some of them executed as traitors, their heads being sent down to Carlisle, to be set up in conspicuous places as a warning to the rest of the community. This was the last occasion on which Carlisle saw the collision of hostile troops: may the day be a long one before it sees another. The parish of St. Mary, and that of St. Cuthbert, both stand within the deanery and diocese of Carlisle. The former comprises the northern and western side of the city, the gross income being £179 per annum; incumbent, Rev. W. Rees, inducted in 1819. The latter comprises the southern part;

gross income, £126; incumbent, Rev. John Fawcett, 1801; both are in the patronage of the Dean and Chapter. Certain tithes in both parishes were commuted in 1777; and a handsome district church has been built in each, in the Gothic style, by the parliamentary commissioners, with towers and spires, each capable of accommodating 1,000 persons. These are perpetual curacies, respectively subject to, and dependent upon, the patronage of the vicars. Besides these, there is an additional perpetual curacy in St. Cuthbert's, and one also under the patronage of the Dean and Chapter. These perpetual curacies are styled, and are of the value, respectively, as follows:—Holy Trinity, Caldewgate; incumbent, Rev. James Thwaytes, 1838; income, £196. Christ's Church, Rev. B. Ward, 1831; income, £150. Upperby, Rev. W. Cockett, 1846. Wreay, Rev. R. Jackson, 1836, incumbent; income, £86 per annum. Carlisle was erected into a bishopric in 1133 by Henry I., who appointed his father-confessor Adeluph to the see, with a jurisdiction over Cumberland and Westmoreland. The three principal streets of Carlisle, which are wide and handsome, diverge from the market-place, and are severally called Castle Street, English Street, and Scotch Street; and, at the upper end of the second of these two streets, there are two elegant court-houses facing each other, which were erected after the designs of Mr. Robert Smirke, jun., on the site of the ancient citadel, the court communicating by a subterranean passage with the gaol. There are bridges over the Eden and the Caldew; the former, of five elliptical arches, communicates with the town by an arched causeway of more than a mile and a quarter in length, and which, with the bridge, cost more than £70,000 in its construction. The house of correction and county gaol were completed in 1827, at an expense of more than £40,000. The town-hall, where the mayor's court and the city sessions are held, stands on the north side of the market-place; but the council-chamber and the other corporation offices are comprised in a more modern erection, at the east end of the court. On the whole, Carlisle presents an aspect of the highest respectability; the houses are good, the streets well paved, and brilliantly lighted with gas; the roads are excellent, and kept in admirable order; and now that the great trunk union of railway is completed between the manufacturing districts of England and Scotland, the city has increased in importance, as being the centre of communication between these and the other great trunk line which runs up to Edinburgh, along the eastern districts of the country. But the chief glory of this ancient city is its venerable cathedral, which, standing on a lofty eminence in the parish of St. Mary's, forms a conspicuous and noble object to all the surrounding country. The edifice was originally Saxon, but the additions and embellishments have occupied the attention, and called into exercise the skill of many generations. In length it is 137 feet, and in height 75 feet; the aisles are 71 feet wide; the tower is 130 feet high. Many parts of the interior, and several of the architectural effects of the outside, are particularly beautiful; but the cathedral was shorn of its proper proportions during the ravages of the civil war, when about from ninety to a hundred feet of the nave were pulled down by the parliamentary soldiers, to erect guard-houses and batteries. The opening was afterwards closed by a wall, and the space between the wall and the transept fitted up as the parochial church of St. Mary, where divine service is regularly performed, as had been the case before, in the entire west end of the cathedral. The arches in this part of the cathedral are in the ancient style of Saxon architecture; the pillars are exceedingly massive, being only 14 feet high, while they are 17 feet 6 inches round; but the eastern end of the structure is in the subsequent Gothic styles, pleasing and elegant in its effect. Of the several portions, the choir is the most magnificent; the building of it was begun by Bishop Welton, in the reign of Edward III., and it was finished by Bishops Appleby and Strickland. All the expenses were defrayed either by voluntary contributions, by indulgences, or remissions of penance, to such persons as should contribute money, materials, or labour, towards its construction. The great east window, which is 48 feet high and 30 broad, is partly embellished with stained glass. Archdeacon Paley here wrote several of his works, and was buried here. The castle stands at the north-west angle of the city, and from its parapets several noble views are commanded. The grammar-school was founded by Henry VIII., the endowment of which has risen to £190 a year, through which, by paying a small quarterage, from forty to fifty scholars are instructed in the classics. The other schools are abundant, and the charitable institutions very numerous. Besides the churches of the Establishment, there are Wesleyan, Independent, Presbyterian, Quaker, Baptist, and Primitive Methodist chapels here. The city also possesses all the other appliances—a public library, news-rooms, excellent assembly-rooms at the two principal hotels, a theatre, and a mechanics' institute. Races are annually run in September, on a fine piece of ground in the township of Rickergate; and in April there is a cattle show, when prizes are distributed by the Agricultural Society. The commercial business of Carlisle is considerable and active. The port nominally extends from the mouth of the river Sark to Bank-end, near Maryport; but large sea-going vessels cannot discharge their cargoes nearer than twelve miles from the city, and a canal has been cut down to the Solway Frith, by which vessels of 80 tons burthen can come up. It is twelve miles in length, and is supplied from the Eden, from which river water is pumped into it by steam-engines, which can deliver nearly 800,000 cubic feet twice in the twenty-four hours. The tonnage of the coastwise vessels engaged in the trade of Carlisle is about 25,000 tons inwards, and the same outwards; the foreign vessels being on an average in the aggregate something more than 3,000 tons inwards, and somewhat less than 1,000 tons outwards, the exports consisting chiefly of cotton goods for the West India market. There are about 200 power-loom here, which occupy about 1,500 hands. The fisheries of the Eden are very valuable, and the markets are always well supplied with fish, and also with other provisions. Through the privilege granted under an ancient charter, no person can be arrested on a civil suit within the liberties of the city whilst the fairs are being held. The city of Carlisle is a borough by prescription; but charters were granted by Henry II. and several succeeding sovereigns up to the time of Charles I., by whose charter it was governed until the passing of the late general municipal act for the regular corporations. It is now divided into five wards, termed respectively, Botchergate, St. Cuthbert's, Rickergate, St. Mary's, and Caldewgate. The assizes for the county are always held here, and the Easter and summer quarter sessions; and there is also a court of record held every Monday for the recovery of debts of any amount. Carlisle has regularly returned two members to parliament since the 23d year of Edward I., the franchise being formerly vested in the freemen, who had been admitted into any of the eight guilds of the city, whether they were resident or not. Their number was about 1,000, of whom only 280 were resident. By the Reform Act, the right of election has been extended to the £10 householders. The mayor is the returning officer. Carlisle gives the title of Earl to the second branch of the Howard family. Contains 6,740 acres: 2,924 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 23,012: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 26,462: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £31,739: poor rates in 1837, £3,184. Market days, Wednesday and Saturday. Fairs: Aug. 26, Sept. 19, Saturday before Whitsuntide, and Martinmas. Bankers: Joseph M. Head & Co.—draw on Masterman, Peters, & Co.; Carlisle and Cumberland Banking Company—draw on Hankeys & Co.; Carlisle City and District Bank—draw on Glyn, Halifax, & Co. Bush Inn, Coffee House, Grapes Inn, and Royal Hotel.

CARLTON, SUFFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Hoxne, union of Blything: 101 miles from London (coach road 90), 1 from Saxmundham, 6 from Framlingham. East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Stowmarket, thence 21 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 233 miles. Money orders issued at Saxmundham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. The nave of the church is in the ancient Norman style, the nave being built of flint stone, and the tower of brick. The living (St. Peter), a rectory, with Kelsall, in the archd<sup>r</sup>. of Suffolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £3,11s. 4d.: pres. net income, £700: patron, Colonel Bruce: pres. incumbent, L. R. Brown, 1826: contains 2,070 acres: 20 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 133: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £805: poor rates in 1837, £142. Carlton Hall, the residence of Frederick Newton Dickenson, Esq., is of handsome elevation, and is surrounded by a well-wooded and extensive park. The Rookery, the residence of Robert Knipe Cobbold, Esq., is also a fine mansion.

CARLTON, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Coverham—(which see for access, &c.): 232 miles from London, 5 from Middleham, 9 from Hawes. Money orders issued at Middleham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 1 p.m. Contains 3,380 acres: 54 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 303: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 348: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,234: poor rates in 1837, £120.

CARLTON WITH CHELLINGTON. See CARLETON, BEDS.

CARLTON. See CARLETON, CUMBERLAND.

CARLTON. See CARLETON, LANCASTER.

VOL. I.

CARLTON-FOREHOE. See CARLETON, NORFOLK.

CARLTON CASTLE. See CARLETON (CASTLE.)

CARLTON WITH WILLINGHAM, CAMBRIDGE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Radfield, union of Linton: 64 miles from London (coach road 44), 7 from Newmarket, 8 from Linton. Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Chesterford to Balsham Road, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Cambridge to Balsham Road, &c., 143 miles. Money orders issued at Newmarket: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. The living, a rectory, with the curacy of Willingham annexed, in the archd<sup>r</sup>. and diocese of Ely, is valued at £9: pres. net income £287: patron, Trustees of Rev. W. S. P. Wilder: pres. incumbent, W. S. P. Wilder, 1832: contains 2,200 acres: 68 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 424: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 488: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,589: poor rates in 1837, £117.

CARLTON (EAST), NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Humbleyard, union of Henstead, formed of the united parishes of St. Mary and St. Peter the Apostle: 130 miles from London (coach road 105), 4 from Norwich, 5 from Wymondham. Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Norwich, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Syston and Peterborough to Norwich, &c., 170 miles. Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m. Certain lands in this parish were once held by a singular tenure—that of carrying to the king, in whatever part of England he might be, a hundred herrings, made up into twenty-four pies, when they first came into season; the herrings were provided by the town of Yarmouth, and sent to the lord of the manor by the sheriffs of Norwich. Contains 1,140 acres: 62 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 310: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 356: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,224: poor rates in 1837, £137.

CARLTON (GREAT), LINCOLN, a parish and village in the Marsh division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Louth-Eske, parts of Lindsey, union of Louth: 172 miles from London (coach road 148), 5 from Louth, 6 from Alford. Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough and Boston to Legbourn station, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, Lincoln, and Boston, to Legbourn, &c., 117 miles. Money orders issued at Louth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. A school was built here in 1716, by Sir Edward Smith, Bart., who endowed it with £20 per annum; to which Sir John Monson added £10, on condition that the master should teach the poor children of Great and Little Carlton, Burton, and Broxholme, and those of his tenants at Saxilby; four acres of land were afterwards added, on enclosing the lordship of Carlton Castle. There is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel here. The living (St. John the Baptist) is a vicarage, not in charge, in the archd<sup>r</sup>. and diocese of Lincoln: pres. net income, £571: patron, Dean and Chapter of Lincoln: pres. incumbent, G. Prettyman, 1844: contains 2,190 acres: 57 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 352: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 404: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,082: poor rates in 1837, £208. Tithes commuted in 1770 and 1839.

CARLTON (LITTLE), LINCOLN, a parish in the Marsh division of the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Louth-Eske, union of Louth, parts of Lindsey: 132 miles from London, 7 from Wragby. (For access and postal arrangements, see above.)—The living (St. Edith), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £5. 16s. 10<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>d.: pres. net income, £159: patron, John Forster, Esq.: pres. incumbent, John Bradcock, 1842: contains 940 acres: 18 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 136: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,061: poor rates in 1837, £70.

CARLTON (NORTH), LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Lawress, parts of Lindsey, union of Lincoln: 173 miles from London (coach road 139), 5 from Lincoln, 12 from Gainsborough.—Nor. and East. Co<sup>a</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough to Lincoln, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham to Lincoln, &c., 54 miles.—Money orders issued at Lincoln: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> a.m.: post closes 5<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m.—The living, a perpetual curacy, in the peculiar jurisdiction of the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln, is valued at £15. 15s.: pres. net income, £35: patron, Prebendary thereof: pres. incumbent, Edward Garfit, 1847: contains 1,940 acres: 27 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 178: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,704: poor rates in 1837, £99.

CARLTON (SOUTH), LINCOLN, a parish in the same wapentake, union of Lincoln: 137 miles from London, 4 from Lincoln.—(For access and postal arrangements, see above.)—The church contains several monuments of the Monson family. There is a school here, partially endowed by Sir John Monson.—The living, a perpetual curacy, in the peculiar jurisdiction of the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln, is valued at £15. 15s.: pres. net income, £200: patron, Bishop of Lincoln: pres. incumbent, W. F. J. Kaye, 1846: contains 2,040 acres: 29 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 166: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,971: poor rates in 1837, £126.

CARLTON-CURLIEU WITH ILSTON, LEICESTER, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Gartree, union of Billesdon, near the Union Canal: it includes the chapelry of Ilston-on-the-Hill: 104 miles from London (coach road 89), 7 from Market-Harborough, 8 from Leicester.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby to Market-Harborough, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Rugby, &c., 72 miles.—Money orders issued at Market-Harborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.—The living (St. Mary), a rectory, with the curacy of Ilston, formerly in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Leicester, and diocese of Lincoln, now in the diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £18. 15s. 10d.: pres. net income, £200: patron, Sir J. H. Palmer, Bart.: pres. incumbent, C. M. Hesilrige, 1846: contains 2,970 acres: 50 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 208: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,003: poor rates in 1837, £124.—Carlton Hall, the seat of Sir I. H. Palmer, is now occupied by the Dowager Lady Harlerigg.

CARLTON-HIGHDALE, LEICESTER, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.)—Contains 12,480 acres: 80 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 385: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 443: poor rates in 1837, £202.

CARLTON-ISLEBECK (or MINOR), NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish, and included within the boundaries of the borough of Thirsk—(which see for access, &c.): 220 miles from London, 3 from Thirsk, 9 from Northallerton.—Money orders issued at Thirsk: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> a.m.: post closes 4<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m.—The living, a perpetual curacy, with that of Thirsk, in the diocese of York, is valued at £4. 12s.: pres. net income, £115: patron, Archbishop of York: pres. incumbent, Edw. Jowett, 1843: contains 2,070 acres: 73 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 313: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 320: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,338: poor rates in 1837, £98.

CARLTON-LE-MOORLANDS, LINCOLN, a parish in the lower division of the wapentake of Boothby-Graffo, parts of Kesteven, union of Newark, bounded on the east by the river Brant, and on the west by the Witham: 155 miles from London (coach road 128), 8 from Newark, 9 from Lincoln.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Nottingham to Newark, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham to Newark, &c., 41 miles.—Money orders issued at Newark: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—There is a Baptist chapel here.—The living (St. Mary), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Stow, and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £7. 0s. 10d.: pres. net income, £90: patron, Lord Middleton: pres. incumbent, A. C. Brackenbury, 1848: contains 2,610 acres: 71 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 331: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 381: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,524: poor rates in 1837, £135.

CARLTON-SCROOP, LINCOLN, a parish in the wapentake of Loveden, parts of Kesteven, union of Grantham, on a branch of the river Witham: 158 miles from London (coach road 115), 6 from Grantham, 11 from Newark.—Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Nottingham to Grantham, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Nottingham, &c., 44 miles.—Money orders issued at Grantham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> a.m.: post closes 5 p.m.—The living (St. Nicholas), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Lincoln, is valued at £13. 1s. 5<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>d.: pres. net income, £386: patrons, Sir R. Bromley, and G. White, alternately: pres. incumbent, H. Schneider, 1830: contains 1,460 acres: 40 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 219: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,225: poor rates in 1837, £103.

CARLTON-UPON-TRENT, NOTTINGHAMSHIRE, a chapelry in the parish of Norwell—(which see for access, &c.): 130 miles from London, 6 from Newark, 8 from Southwell.—Money orders issued at Newark: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> a.m.: post closes 5<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> p.m.—About a quarter of a mile east from the village there is a ferry over the Trent, which bounds the chapelry.—Contains 1,160 acres: 43 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 230: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,579: poor rates in 1837, £97.—Carlton Hall is the residence of Robert Ramsden, Esq., who derives his descent from Robert Ramsden, Esq., fifth son of Sir William Ramsden, Bart., by his wife Elizabeth, second daughter of John, Viscount Lonsdale, who was an officer in the army, and served at Dettingen and Fontenoy. Mr. Ramsden is a magistrate, and served the office of high sheriff in 1837.

CARMARTHEN (or CAER FRYDDY), the county town of Carmarthenshire, having a separate jurisdiction in the district, called the county of the borough of Carmarthen, union of the same name: 206 miles from London (coach road 218), 7 from Llangharne.—Gt. West. Rail. through Stonehouse, thence 103 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Stonehouse, &c., 206 miles.—Money orders issued at Carmarthen: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 2½ p.m.: post closes 9½ a.m. — Carmarthen is situated on the banks of the river Towy, over which there is a bridge of six arches, with four auxiliaries to carry off the water during floods. Carmarthen is ascertained to have been the Maridunum of Antoninus, and was worthily considered the capital of Wales. When it was erected into a Principality, the chancery and exchequer of the southern portion were fixed here, and so continued until the jurisdiction of the Welsh marches was abolished. It was for a long time the residence of the Welsh princes, and was given in trust, to hold for Henry I., to Owen ap Caradoc, who lost his life in its defence. It was burnt to the ground in 1137, by Owen Gwynedd, but was shortly afterwards rebuilt by the Earl of Clare; but there are few remains either of the town walls or the noble castle by which it was at one time defended. Carmarthen owes great part of its celebrity to having been the birth-place of the prophet Merlin; and at about the distance of three miles of the town is Merlin's Cave, where, according to tradition, the unhappy magician was entombed by the Lady of the Lake, and the chair from which he uttered his prophecies is also to be seen. The lady appears to have been a fairy, of whom the prophet was enamoured; and the tale of the fatal deception which she practised upon him is thus told, as modernised by Malkin, in a romance printed in the "Morte Arthur," by Caxton, in 1485:—"The Lady of the Lake and Merlin departed, and by the way as they went, Merlin showed to her many wonders, and came into Cornwall; and always laid about the lady for to have her favour; and she was ever passing weary of him, and fain would have been delivered of him; for she was afraid of him because he was a divell's son, and she could not put him away by any means. And so upon a time it hapned that Merlin showed to her in a roche whereas was a great wonder, and wrought by enchantment, which went under a stone; so by her craft and working she made Merlin to go under that stone, to let him wit of the mervailles there. But she wrought so there for him, that he never came out." Merlin, indeed, appears to have been a man of singular capacity in that dark age, and, like Roger Bacon, far beyond the era in which he lived,—only turning the force of his faculties toward the investigation of moral causes and effects, rather than towards the discovery of the hidden data of natural philosophy. He was accordingly hated by the ignorant monks, who dreaded nothing more than the diffusion of light among their benighted supporters. We have it from authentic history, that Ambrose Merlin was the greatest sage and mathematician of his time,—the councillor and friend of four English kings—Vortigern, Ambrosius, Uther Pendragon, and Arthur,—than whom four finer spirits have never swayed the British sceptre. He died towards the latter end of the fifth century. Of late years, Carmarthen has simply been the abode of quiet rusticity in a most beautiful country. The town, situated on the side of a height, commands an extensive and varied prospect; the streets are consequently steep and irregular, but the houses are well built, and of highly respectable appearance. The parish church, which is very large, stands outside the town. It contains the tomb of Sir Thomas ap Rhys and his lady, beside several other monuments of interesting character. In addition to it, a district church, in the Gothic style, has been erected here by the parliamentary commissioners, at an expense of upwards of £4,000, which affords accommodation for 1,062 persons, which is under the patronage of the vicar, and has a stipend attached of £150 a year. Besides these, another perpetual curacy has been added for the spiritual benefit of the district, called Llaullwch, under the patronage of the bishop, to which a stipend of £120 is attached. The town-hall, built of freestone, is a handsome structure, with Ionic columns in front; and the market-house is also a substantial and respectable building. There is a free grammar-school here, endowed by Dr. Owen, Bishop of St. David's; and there are endowments also for the maintenance of an almshouse and a marine-school. The Wesleyan and Calvinistic Methodists, the Independents, and the Baptists, all have chapels here. The business is an active one. Ships from 50 to 150 tons burthen are built here. Beside that branch, if such it can be called, there are no manufactories; but Carmarthen is the centre of supply of the whole district for imported commodities, the river being navigable up to the bridge for vessels of 200 tons burthen. The exports comprise chiefly dairy and other rural produce, and lead ore; the imports consist almost entirely of articles for domestic consumption. The port was, until lately, only a creek to Llanelly, but has now a separate independent customs entry. Carmarthen is a borough by prescription, and by the late municipal act it has been divided into two wards—the eastern and the western—each of which elects nine councillors. This town, in conjunction with Llanelly, sends one representative to parliament; the number of the constituency is about 700: the £40 freeholders vote for the county. There is a court for the registry of wills here, under the jurisdiction of the see of St. David's. The county sessions are held in January and August, and there is also a fortnightly court, in which the mayor, recorder, and town-clerk have the right of holding all manner of pleas within the borough. The county gaol, which is very spacious, is part of the old castle, and is fortunately much larger than is necessary for the wants of the district; the town gaol comprises four airing-yards, nine cells, and two day-rooms. Carmarthen was the birth-place of Lewis Bayly, chaplain to James I., afterwards Bishop of Bangor, who wrote the excellent treatise entitled "The Practice of Piety;" and in the vale of the Towy, on a little farm, was the last retreat of Addison's brilliant friend, Sir Richard Steele, who died here, and lies buried at his own express request, without a memorial, in Carmarthen church. The Carmarthen poor-law union comprises twenty-nine parishes, with a population of about 38,000 persons. —The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Carmarthen, diocese of St. David's, is valued at £6. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £177: patron, St. David's College, Lampeter: pres. incumbent, Thomas Bevan, 1833: contains 1,614 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 9,526: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 10,955: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup> £16,684: poor rates in 1837, £4,009.

—Market days, Wednesday and Saturday. Fairs: June 3 and 4, July 10, Aug. 10, Sept. 9, Oct. 9, and Nov. 14 and 15, for cattle and horses. —Bankers: David Morris & Sons—draw on Lubbock & Co.; Wilkins & Co.—draw on Williams, Deacon, & Co. —Inns: Boar's Head, Ivy Bush, and White Lion.

CARNABY, YORK, a parish in the wapentake of Dickering, union of Bridlington: 239 miles from London (coach road 204), 3 from Bridlington, 8 from Driffield. —Nor. and East. Co<sup>a</sup> Rail. through Peterborough and Hull to Carnaby station, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Normanton and York to Carnaby, &c., 142 miles. —Money orders issued at Bridlington: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 12 noon: post closes 1 p.m. —The living (St. John the Baptist), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of the east riding and diocese of York, is valued at £7. 8s. 11<sup>d</sup>.: pres. net income, £44: patron, Sir G. Strickland: pres. incumbent, F. Simpson, 1841: contains 1,950 acres: 22 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 185: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,270: poor rates in 1837, £111.

CARNARVON (or CAERNARVON), CAERNARVON, a borough and town in the parish of Llanbeblig, hun<sup>d</sup> of Is-Gorfa, union of Carnarvon, on the east side of the Menai Straits, which is here two miles broad, and at the mouth of the river Seiont: 246 miles from London, 9 from Bangor. —Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Chester to Bangor, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 146 miles. —Money orders issued at Carnarvon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8.20 a.m. and 2.24 p.m.: post closes 11 a.m. and 5.15 p.m. —Carnarvon, which is the Segontium of Antoninus, was almost the only station which the Romans possessed in Cambria, except a few outposts, established for the purpose of keeping up the communications; and the remains of the ancient town, which are divided from the modern by the roadway, are objects of high interest to the antiquary. Its present designation is derived from Caer, a fortress; yn, in; and Arfon, opposite to Mon, or Anglesea, that is, "the stronghold in Arfon;" and the place appears to have remained in existence from the time of the domination of the Romans, throughout the period of the Saxon and Danish and Norman rule, till the reign of Edward I., to whose able mind the situation presented an admirable place for defence, and a post for curbing the unruly and intrepid spirits whose country he had just conquered; and he consequently erected the extensive castle which now forms such an interesting feature in the scenery. The position is naturally very strong, being bounded on one side by the Menai Straits, on another by the estuary of the Seiont, and on a third by the Menai Creek; the other was easily insulated by art. Edward II., who afterwards was created Prince of Wales, was born here. The entrance is from the street, over what was formerly the bridge across the fosse, whence another regular well-built street extends to the gateway on the rampart which surrounds the walls on the sea-side. The castle and the castle-yard are about a mile in circumference, the latter having four unequal sides, with four round towers, about seventy yards from each other, including the gateways. So extensive an erection, even in its present state of decay, cannot be otherwise than most imposing and magnificent in its aspect, giving to the splendid scenery that air of feudal grandeur which was required to complete its beauty. Over the gateway is a statue of the founder, sheathing his sword, in token of the amity into which he had entered with the country. The Eagle tower, so called from an enormous figure of that bird placed upon the battlements, was the birth-place of Edward II.; it is a noble structure, with ten sides, and has 300 steps to lead to the top. Besides this, there are twelve other towers clustering from the roof of the castle. On the north and west sides the sea washes the basement, the foundation of which rests upon a rock. The whole, it is asserted, was completed in a single year, and was immediately afterwards garrisoned by John de Havering. Twelve years afterwards, the governor, Sir Roger de Pulesdon, was seized by the natives, in one of their hasty revolts, and beheaded. When the civil war broke out, Carnarvon was, in 1644, taken, for the parliament, by Captain Swanley, who secured in it 400 prisoners, and obtained a large store of arms and ammunition; but it was soon regained by the royalists, who held it till 1646, when the governor, Lord Byron, surrendered on honourable terms to Generals Mytton and Langhorne. In 1648, Sir John Owen again beleaguered it for the king, but was obliged to raise the siege, in order to meet a body of troops, under Colonels Carter and Twisselton, in an encounter with whom he was defeated and taken prisoner, after which circumstance the whole of North Wales submitted to republican authority. The property of the castle is still vested in the crown, but it is held by the Marquis of Anglesea. The town consists chiefly, within the walls, of ten streets, the principal of which, the High Street, runs from the Land to the Water Gate. Without the walls, it consists of double that number of streets, and there are many very handsome villas in the suburbs. The streets are paved by the corporation, who, until lately, lighted them with gas from their own works, but now the whole place is under the general regulation of a private act of parliament. Water is supplied partly by the corporation, and partly by a public company. For the accommodation of visitors, as well as the inhabitants, there are hot and cold water baths, well supplied with every convenience, —the water being drawn from the sea, about half a mile off, through iron pipes, and deposited in iron reservoirs. These baths were erected by the Marquis of Anglesea, at a cost of upwards of £10,000. Without the wall there is a beautiful terrace, with an excellent pier at the north end. On the south end of the terrace is the custom-house, the quay of which extends along the banks of the river, under the walls of the castle. The harbour was formerly dangerous, but it has of late years been much improved, under the authority of an act of parliament, by which additional port dues were imposed to pay the expense, and it may now be safely visited by vessels of from 400 to 500 tons burthen. The principal exports are slates and copper ore, —the former of which are brought from the quarries, Llandberris and Llanllffin, about ten miles distant, by a railroad of recent construction. The coasting trade, by means of sailing vessels, is extensive, and there is steam communication with Liverpool. The imports consist of colonial produce, Manchester and Birmingham goods, and articles of domestic necessity. Carnarvon received its first charter from Edward I., and, until the passing of the late municipal reform act, it was governed by a mayor, who is, by patent, constable of the castle, two bailiffs, a town-clerk, and two sergeants-at-mace. The Marquis of Anglesea was perpetual mayor; but it is now divided into two wards, and has a mayor, six aldermen, and eighteen common councillors. The county gaol stands in one of the streets; it is small, and not very secure. The Wesleyan and Calvinistic Methodists, and Independents, have chapels here. In conjunction with Pwllheli, Conway, Nevin, and Crickieth, Carnarvon has sent one member to parliament since the reign of Henry VIII., but the borough of Bangor has been added for this purpose by the Reform Act; the constituency is about 500 in number. Behind the town is a hill called Twt Hill, from which a most splendid and extensive prospect is commanded. A workhouse has been built here by the poor-law commissioners, which can accommodate 200 persons; the poor-law union comprises 16 parishes, with a population of about 23,000 persons. The living is a curacy, not in charge, subordinate to the vicar of Llanbeblig: contains 9,618 acres: 1,477 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 9,192: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 10,571: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,149: poor rates in 1837, £2,214. Market day, Saturday. Fairs: March 4, May 15, Aug. 12, Sept. 23, for cattle. Bankers: North and South Wales Bank—draw on London and Westminster; Williams and Co.—draw on Roberts, Curtis, and Co.—Inns: Castle, Sportsman, Uxbridge Arms.

CARNFORTH, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Warton, close on the Lancaster and Kendal Canal—(which see for access, &c.): 246 miles from London, 6 from Lancaster, 7 from Kirkby-Lonsdale. Money orders issued at Lancaster: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. Contains 1,410 acres: 59 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 306: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 352: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,254: poor rates in 1837, £192.

CARNGIWCH, CARNARVON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Gafflagian, union of Pwllheli, North Wales: 268 miles from London, 4 from Pwllheli, 4 from Nevin. Nor. West. Rail. through Crewe and Chester to Bangor, thence 30 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 168 miles. Money orders issued at Pwllheli: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 11½ a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m. The living (St. Ciwg or St. Beuno) is a chapelry, not in charge, to the rectory of Edern, in the diocese of Bangor: contains 24 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 119: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £336: poor rates in 1837, £44.

CARNO, MONTGOMERY, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Llanidloes, union of Newtown and Llanidloes, North Wales: it includes the townships of Lllyslyn and Troasord; with Dirlwyn: 214 miles from London (coach road 186), 9 from Newtown, 11 from Llanfair. Nor. West. Rail. through Tamworth, Stafford, and Shrewsbury, to Newtown, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Burton, Stafford, &c., 120 miles. Money orders issued at Newtown: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 2½ a.m.: post closes 10 p.m. The living (St. John the Baptist), a vicarage in the diocese of Bangor, is valued at £10: pres. net income, £100: patron, Sir W. W. Wynn, Bart.: pres. incumbent, H. Herbert, 1838: contains 178 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 995: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,144: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,210: poor rates in 1837, £635. Plas Lllyslyn, the residence of David Harner, Esq.; and Ty Mawr, now the property of Andrew Davies, Esq.

CARON (or TREFF-GARON, or ISCLAWD), CARDIGAN, a small town and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup>. of Penarth, South Wales: it lies in a hollow upon the banks of the river Berwyn, a small distance above its union with the Teifi: it includes the townships of Argoed and Ystred, Blaen-Aeron, Blaen-Caron, Croes and Berwyn, Tre-Cefel, Tref-Lynn, and the chapelry of Caron-Urwch-Clawdd, otherwise Strata-Florida: 220 miles from London (coach road 221), 9 from Lampeter. Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 102 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 173 miles. Money orders issued at Lampeter: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 6 p.m.: post closes 10 p.m. Caron was once a corporate town, but was disfranchised for corruption in 1742. There is a Calvinistic Methodist chapel here. The living (St. Mary), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup>. of Cardigan, and diocese of St. David's, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £80: patron, W. E. Powell, Esq.: pres. incumbent, T. Williams, 1823: contains 452 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,572: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,957: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £5,095: poor rates in 1837, £357. Market day, Thursday. Fairs: March 15, 16, and 17, for horses and pigs; second Tuesday in October, for cattle and horses.

CARPERBY, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Aysgarth—(which see for access, &c.): 244 miles from London, 5 from Hawes, 8 from Middleham. Money orders issued at Hawes: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 3½ p.m.: post closes 9½ a.m. Contains 3,460 acres: 69 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 354: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 407: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £2,515: poor rates in 1837, £158.

CARRIGHOVA, DENBIGH, a township in the parish of Llan-y-Mynierch, on the river Varnier, and near the Montgomeryshire Canal—(which see for access, &c.): 190 miles from London, 5 from Oswestry, 8 from Llangollen. Money orders issued at Oswestry: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. Contains 84 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 388: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 446: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £1,213: poor rates in 1837, £114.

CARRINGTON. See CARINTON.

CARRINGTON, LINCOLN, formerly an extra-parochial township in the eastern division of the soke of Bolingbroke, parts of Lindsey—(which see for access, &c.): 127 miles from London, 7 from Horncastle. Money orders issued at Boston: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9 a.m.: post closes 5 p.m. The township was made parochial by act of parliament in 1812, and named after Lord Carrington. The living is a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Lincoln: pres. net income, £86: patron, certain Trustees: pres. incumbent, T. Mitchinson, 1819: contains 2,660 acres: 19 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 229: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £5,869: poor rates in 1837, £90.

CARROW. See WARDEN.

CARSHALTON (or CASEHORTON), SURREY, a parish and village, formerly a market town, in the second division of the hund<sup>d</sup> of Wallington, union of Epsom: 14 miles from London (coach road 10), 3 from Croydon. —Croydon Rail. to Croydon, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 146 miles. —Money orders issued here: letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. three times from, and two into, London, daily. —The village is situated near Banstead Downs, on the river Wandle, which is here joined by numerous springs, which cause it to expand into a beautiful lake-like piece of water in the centre of the place, giving it a very pleasing effect. Carshalton was once a place of much greater consideration than it is at present, extensive calico-printing and bleaching works having been established here; but the only mills now in operation are some upon the Wandle, for grinding drugs and snuff, making paper, and expressing oils. The church, pleasantly situated upon a rise, is an ancient and interesting structure, and contains several monuments and memorials, in brass, to the Ganeyssford family. Near the churchyard there is a fine spring, called Queen Anne Boleyn's spring, the water of which is much esteemed. There is a Roman Catholic chapel and seminary here. The resident gentry are numerous. —The living (All Saints), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Surrey, and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £11. 12s. 6d.: pres. net income, £600: patron, John Cator, Esq.: pres. incumbent, W. A. B. Cator, 1845: contains 2,680 acres: 352 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,228: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,662: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £11,335: poor rates in 1837, £1,338. —Carshalton Park.

CARSINGTON, DERBY, a parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Wirksworth: 153 miles from London (coach road 139), 2 from Wirksworth, 12 from Derby. —Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, and Ambergate, to Wirksworth, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Ambergate, &c., 21 miles. —Money orders issued at Wirksworth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. —The living (St. Margaret), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Derby, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £5. 1s. 10d.: pres. net income, £176: patron, Bishop of Lichfield: pres. incumbent, H. B. Chinn, 1832: contains 1,080 acres: 53 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 235: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £1,858: poor rates in 1837, £173. —S.E., Hopton Hall, the seat of —Gell, Esq.

CARSWELL. See BUCKLAND WITH CARSWELL.

CARTHORPE, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Burneston, near the river Swale—(which see for access, &c.): 219 miles from London, 4 from Bedale, 6 from Northallerton. —Money orders issued at Bedale: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 10 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. —Contains 1,960 acres: 76 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 314: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 361: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £2,286: poor rates in 1837, £57.

CARTINGTON. See CHARTINGTON.

CARTMEL, LANCASTER, a market town and parish in the hund<sup>d</sup> of Lonsdale, north of the sands, union of Ulverstone: it includes the townships of Allithwaite Lower and Upper, Holker Lower and Upper, and Staveley, and the chapelries of Broughton East, and Cartmel Fell: 242 miles from London (coach road 265), 12 from Lancaster. —Nor.

West. Rail. through Crewe to Lancaster, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Crewe, &c., 142 miles. —Money orders issued at Milnthorpe: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 12 noon: post closes 2½ p.m. —According to Camden, Egfrid, king of Northumberland, about the year 677, made a gift of this parish, with all the Britons who inhabited it, to St. Cathbert; and here it was that Ethelred, after his restoration to the throne, having decoyed the two sons of Alfwold from their sanctuary at York, caused them to be murdered. Tanner, in speaking of this place, says—William Mareschal, the elder Earl of Pembroke, founded, A.D. 1188, a priory of regular canons, for the order of St. Austin, which was dedicated to the Blessed Virgin, and rated in the 26th year of Henry VIII. at £91. 6s. 3d. per annum, or, according to Dugdale, at £124. 2s. 1d., or Speed, at £212. 11s. 10d. Herein, about the time of the dissolution, were reckoned ten religious and forty-eight servants. The site of this monastery was granted, in the 32d year of Henry VIII., to Thomas Holcroft. Cartmel stands in a valley surrounded by lofty hills, whose broken and jagged outlines intermingling, give an aspect of unusual picturesqueness to the place, the romantic falls of Conistoun rising towards the north boldly behind them. The church is a large cruciform structure in the early English style, with a tower rising from the centre, supported by four firmly-built and connected pillars. In the choir there are several handsomely-carved stalls, which were used by the canons before the Reformation. In the chancel is the tomb of William de Walton, one of the first priors of Cartmel, and in other parts of the church there are monuments of the Lowther and Preston families, of Holkar Hall. The streets are narrow and irregular, but the houses being built of stone, and mostly whitewashed, the town wears a healthy and cheerful appearance. Cotton manufacture, to a considerable extent for the size of the place, has been carried on here for some years. The bay of Morecambe bounds the parish on the south and south-east, where, at ebb-tide, there is a passage over the sands, called Lancaster Sands, to Bolton. There are two routes over them, one nine miles, the other four miles in length; but as both are dangerous, there are always guides in waiting to conduct strangers. Mr. Warner, in his Western Counties, in speaking of them, says—“For many centuries the priory of Cartmel was under the necessity of providing a proper person for this charge, and received Synodals and Peterpence to reimburse their expenses; but since the dissolution, the duchy of Lancaster grants it by letters-patent to a trusty man, whose yearly allowance from the receiver-general is £20. Nor should it appear, from the many accidents which have repeatedly occurred on these wastes of sand, that the precaution of a director over the fords is at all unnecessary; but larger still is the list of unfortunate people who have perished on their dreary surface, overtaken by darkness, or involved in unexpected mist. Inevitable destruction is the consequence of either of these disasters; since the moment the traveller has lost the distant marks which guide his course, diverted from the line he should pursue, he either turns towards the ocean, or, taking a contrary direction, wanders over the waste, 'still more and more astray,' till he is overtaken by the tide returning with an impetuosity not to be escaped, to cover the flat which for a time it had deserted."—The living (the Virgin Mary) is a perpetual curacy, not in charge, united to that of Cartmell Fell, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Richmond: pres. net income, £113: patron, Earl of Burlington: pres. incumbent, T. Remington, 1834: contains 23,960 acres: 905 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 4,927: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £20,318: poor rates in 1837, £2,738. —Market day, Tuesday. Fairs: Whit-Monday, Monday after October 23, cattle; Wednesday before Easter, November 5.

CARTMEL-FELL, LANCASTER, a chapelry in the above parish: 256 miles from London, 12 from Ulverstone. —(For access and postal arrangements, see above.) —The living, a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Chester, is valued at £8. 10s. 2d.: pres. net income, £67: patron, Earl of Burlington: pres. incumbent, R. B. Cockerton, 1829: contains 2,900 acres: 62 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 856: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 409: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,133: poor rates in 1837, £182.

CARTWORTH, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Kirk-Burton, on a branch of the river Colne—(which see for access, &c.): 184 miles from London, 5 from Huddersfield, 6 from Barnsley. —Money orders issued at Huddersfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. —Contains 2,820 acres: 315 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 2,247: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,584: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,252: poor rates in 1837, £308.

CARWOOD. See SIDBOR-CARWOOD.

CARY. See CAREY.

CASCOB, RADNOR, a parish divided into two portions by Pentregawen brook, which runs through it: the south-western portion, in which the church is situated, is usually called the parish of Cascob, and is in the borough of New Radnor, and county of Radnor: the north-eastern portion, which is much the smallest, wherein is the rectory-house, is in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wigmore, and county of Hereford, being part of the township of Litton and Cascob, the remainder whereof being part of the chapelry of Discord, and parish of Presteign: 163 miles from London (coach road 157), 5 from Presteign, 22 from Ludlow. —Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 45 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 116 miles. —Money orders issued at Presteign: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 1 a.m. —The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Brecon, and diocese of St. David's, is valued at £7. 0s. 7½d.: pres. net income, £160: pres. incumbent, William Jenkins Rees, 1806: contains 3,373 acres, whereof 2,836 are in the southern, and 537 in the northern portion: in 1841, the southern portion had 21 houses, and 127 persons; and the northern had 9 houses, and 45 persons: total in the parish, 30 houses, and 172 persons: poor rates in the southern portion in 1837, £50. Tithes commuted in 1840; amount, £143.

CASEHORTON. See CASEHALTON.

CASHIO. See WATFORD WITH CASHIOBURY.

CASSINGTON, OXFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Wootton, union of Woodstock, north of the river Isis, and west of the Oxford Canal: it includes the hamlet of Worton: 68 miles from London (coach road 57), 5 from Oxford, 4 from Woodstock. —Gt. West. Rail. to Oxford, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Rugby and Banbury to Oxford, &c., 100 miles. —Money orders issued at Oxford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. —The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Oxford, is valued at £12: pres. net income, £166: patron, Christ Church, Oxford: pres. incumbent, Thomas Forster, 1824: contains 2,990 acres: 87 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 381: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 438: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,232: poor rates in 1837, £140.

CASSOP, DURHAM, a township in the parish of Kelloe—(which see for access, &c.): 256 miles from London, 4 from Durham, 11 from Sunderland. —London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. —Contains 1,160 acres: 11 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,076: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,237: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,006: poor rates in 1837, £10.

CASTERTON. See HAM WITH THROWLEY AND CASTERTON.

CASTERTON, WESTMORELAND, a township in the parish of Kirkby-Lonsdale, and to the east of the river Linn—(which see for access, &c.): 253 miles from London, 1 from Kirkby-Lonsdale, 8 from Melthorpe. —Money orders issued at Kirkby-Lonsdale: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. —The living is a perpetual curacy in the diocese of Chester: patron, Trustees: pres. incumbent, W. Carus Wilson: contains 4,320 acres: 58 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 623: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 716: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,648: poor rates in 1837, £160.

CASTERTON (GREAT), or BRIGG-CASTERTON, RUTLAND, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of East, union of Stamford: 117 miles from London (coach road 91), 2 from Stamford, 3 from Ryall. —Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Peterborough to Stamford, thence 2 miles: from Derby, through Syston to Stamford, &c., 71 miles. —Money orders issued at Stamford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. —The living (St. Peter and St. Paul), a rectory, with Pickworth, in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £11. 2s. 11d.: pres. net income, £450: patron, Marquis of Exeter: pres. incumbent, Henry Atlay, 1827: contains 1,590 acres: 67 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 376: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 432: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,556: poor rates in 1837, £97.

CASTERTON (LITTLE), RUTLAND, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of East, union of Stamford: 92 miles from London. —(For access and postal arrangements, see above.) —The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £6. 15s. 6d.: pres. net income, £254: patron, Hon. C. C. Cavendish: pres. incumbent, C. W. Cavendish, 1848: contains 1,450 acres: 21 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 132: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,634: poor rates in 1837, £50.

CASTLE-ACRE (or EAST-ACRE), NORFOLK, a parish in the Lynn division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Freebridge, union of Freebridge Lynn, northern bank of the river Setch: 135 miles from London, 6 from Swaffham, 11 from Fakenham. —Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup> Rail. through Cambridge and Lynn to Swaffham, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, and Lynn, to Swaffham, &c., 141 miles. —Money orders issued at Swaffham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.---

This is a place of great antiquity, exhibiting the traces of its having been a Roman station; but it takes its name from a noble castle, built here by William de Warrenne, first Earl of Surrey, soon after the Conquest, of which some of the ruins still remain. The manor was given to him by William the Conqueror, together with 139 others, and he made it the head place of all his property. He also founded a priory here for monks of the Cluniac order, which was subordinate to the house at Lewes, in Sussex. It would seem to have been enlarged by his descendant, who entertained Edward I. with royal magnificence. It was dedicated to the Virgin Mary, and valued, in the 26th year of Henry VIII., according to Dugdale, at £306. 11s. 4d.; or, according to Speed, at £324. 17s. 5d.; and was granted, in the 29th year of the same king, to Thomas, Duke of Norfolk. The ruins of the priory are exceedingly picturesque, and the plan of it may still be distinctly traced in some farm buildings which occupy the site. In a room called the prior's dining-room, there is a fine oriel window, with the arms of the priory, of the Earls of Warren and Arundel, of Mowbray Duke of Norfolk, and of France and England, in stained glass; and at the east end there are the remains of an altar, with a window over it. The place is now the property of Anthony Hamond, Esq. of Westaire High House, who was high sheriff of Norfolk in 1836, and who is a magistrate and deputy-lieutenant of the county. Mr. Hamond's family is one of great antiquity, and most probably derived its origin from the ancient Norman house of St. Amand; but the founder from whom this gentleman traces his immediate descent, was Edmund Hamond, Esq., who died about the year 1650, whose great grandson, Mr. Anthony Hamond, married a sister of the celebrated minister, Sir Robert Walpole, first Earl of Oxford. From that lady and gentleman, the present proprietor of Westaire is the fifth in descent.---The living (St. James), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Norwich, is valued at $5. 6s. 8d.: patron, Earl of Leicester: pres. incumbent, J. H. Bloom, 1835: contains 3,210 acres: 277 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,495: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,719: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,954: poor rates in 1837, £575. Tithes commuted in 1840.---Fairs: May 1, and Aug. 5, for toys, &c.

CASTLE-ASHBY. See ASHBY-CASTLE.

CASTLE-BARNARD. See BARNARD-CASTLE.

CASTLE-BYTHE, PEMBROKE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Kemees, union of Haverford-West: 228 miles from London (coach road 260), 8 from Haverford-West, 7 from Newport.---Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 125 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Stonehouse, &c., 228 miles.---Money orders issued at Haverford-West: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of St. David's, is valued at £6: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, John Pugh, 1816: contains 733 acres: 48 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 266: poor rates in 1837, £63.

CASTLE-CAER-EINEON, MONTGOMERY, a parish, partly in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Cawrse, and partly in that of Mathrafel, North Wales: it consists of the townships of Treheligg and Gaer: 194 miles from London (coach road 180), 4 from Welchpool, 8 from Llanfyllan.---Nor. West. Rail. through Birmingham, Stafford, and Shrewsbury, to Welchpool, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Burton and Stafford to Welchpool, &c., 104 miles.---Money orders issued at Welchpool: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 1 p.m.---There is a school here, which has a small endowment.---The living (St. Garmon), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of St. Asaph, is valued at £12. 17s. 6d.: pres. net income, £575: patron, Bishop of St. Asaph: pres. incumbent, David Davies, 1847: contains 134 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 733: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 843: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,324: poor rates in 1837, £415.

CASTLE-CAMPS, CAMBRIDGE, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Chilford, union of Linton: 56 miles from London (coach road 58), 5 from Linton, 13 from Cambridge.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>s</sup> Rail. to Chesterford, thence 8 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, and Cambridge, to Chesterford, &c., 144 miles.---Money orders issued at Linton: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m.---There are the remains of a magnificent castle here, once the residence of the Veres, Earls of Oxford, one of whom received it as a grant, when he was lord high chamberlain, from Henry I. The site is now occupied by a farm-house. Not far from hence, says Carter, there are the remains of those great and large ditches which were undoubtedly thrown up by the East Angles to prevent the incursions of the Mercians, who frequently ruined all before them. The first begins at Hinkstone, and runs eastward by Hildersham, towards Horscheath, for about five miles. The second, called Brentditch, runs from Melborne by Foulmere.---The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Ely, is valued at £16. 4s. 2d.: pres. net income, £570: patron, Charter-house, London: pres. incumbent, G. Pearson, 1825: contains 2,613 acres: 144 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 854: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 982: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,222: poor rates in 1837, £469.

CASTLE-CAREY, SOMERSET, a market town and parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Catsash, union of Wincanton, romantically situated, and deservedly admired: 129 miles from London (coach road 113), 11 from Wells.---Gt. West. Rail. through Chippenham to Westbury, thence 20 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Westbury, &c., 183 miles.---Money orders issued here: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 5.20 p.m.---This place most probably derives its name from an extensive castle, originally belonging to a lord of the name of Carey, which was held against King Stephen by its owner, Lord Lovell, one of whose descendants, taking part with the deposed monarch, Richard II., was dispossessed of it by Henry IV. The site is still called the Camp, and weapons of iron are occasionally found in the ground. The manor-house was one of the places of refuge of Charles II. after the battle of Worcester. The town is pleasantly situated, and extends nearly a mile in length; is partially paved, but is not lighted. The houses are neat and respectable in appearance, the air is salubrious, and the environs particularly pleasing. The church is a fine structure, and occupies an elevated situation. The Wesleyan Methodists and the Independents have places of worship here. In 1779, two sums of £10 each were given for the benefit of the poor, by John Francis and David Llewelyn, which were applied to the erection of a police-station; but the charity commissioners have ordered the money to be refunded from the rates for its original purpose. The living (All Saints) is a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Wells, and diocese of Bath and Wells: pres. net income, £312: patron, Bishop of Bath and Wells: pres. incumbent, R. J. Meade, 1845: contains 3,640 acres: 328 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,942: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,233: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,877: poor rates in 1837, £879. Fairs: Tuesday before Palm-Sunday; May 1; and Whit-Tuesday, for bullocks and sheep. Bankers: Stuckey's Banking Company—draw on Roberts, Curtis, & Co. Britannia Commercial Inn, and George Commercial Hotel.

CASTLE-CARLETON. See CARLETON CASTLE. CASTLE-CARRACK, CUMBERLAND, a parish in Eskdale ward, union of Brampton: 281 miles from London, 10 from Carlisle, 4 from Brampton—(which see for access, &c.) Money orders issued at Carlisle: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> at noon: post closes 1 p.m. The church was rebuilt of freestone in 1828; the former edifice is supposed to have been built out of the ruins of an ancient castle which stood here. The parish is bounded by the little river Gelt, which rises in the royal forest of Geltsdale, a lofty tract of moorland, which forms the northern part of it, and which abounds with lime and freestone. On the enclosure of the moors, twenty acres of land were appropriated to the support of the National school here. On the summit of a long and lofty fall, forming the northern part of the mountains extending from Cross Fell, near Alston, there are two cairns; and in another, near Gelt Bridge, a human skeleton was discovered in a rude stone coffin. Near the church there is a mineral spring, the waters of which are similar to those of Gilsland spa. The living (St. Peter), a disch<sup>d</sup>. rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Carlisle, is valued at £5. 12s. 11d.: pres. net income, £159: patron, Dean and Chapter of Carlisle: pres. incumbent, T. C. Vaughan: contains 3,640 acres: 72 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 351: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 403: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,208: poor rates in 1837, £73.

CASTLE-CHURCH, STAFFORD, a parish in the east division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Cuttlestone, union of Stafford: 133 miles from London (coach road 139), 1 from Stafford, 8 from Eccleshall. Nor. West. Rail. to Stafford, thence 1 mile: from Derby, through Barton and Lichfield to Stafford, &c., 43 miles. Money orders issued at Stafford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 7½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m. The living (St. Lawrence), a perpetual curacy in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Stafford, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £9. 6s. 8d.: pres. net income, £120: patron, Lord Chancellor: pres. incumbent, C. H. Aitkens, 1846: contains 3,460 acres: 289 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,484: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,707: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £7,333: poor rates in 1837, £450.

CASTLE-COMBE, WILTS, a parish in the union and hun<sup>d</sup> of Chippenham: 99 miles from London (coach road 98), 5 from Chippenham, 9 from Bath. Gt. West. Rail. to Chippenham, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham, Bristol, and Bath, to Chippenham, &c., 162 miles. Money orders issued at Chippenham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m. The village was formerly celebrated for its castle, which was the baronial residence of the Dunstanvilles, which occupied the summit of a hill on the north side of the town; but it was dismantled towards the end of the 14th century, and but few of its ruins remain. In speaking of this place, Britton says—Castle-Combe was anciently noted for a custom, once generally practised, but now discontinued. The inhabitants used to meet annually about Whitsuntide, at what was termed a Church-al, to distribute alms to the indigent, and to make merry. Near the church was a house furnished with the utensils requisite for dressing victuals. After a sober entertainment the younger individuals of the party amused themselves with dancing, bowling, and shooting with the long bow at a mark, under the inspection of their seniors. Aubrey, who mentions this custom, supposed it to have originated from the Agape, or Love Feasts, of the primitive Christians. From the contributions at such meetings, and the produce of the boxes for alms placed in churches, the poor were chiefly supported before the institution of parochial rates. The living (St. Andrew), a rectory in the diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £9: patron, H. Scrope, Esq.: pres. incumbent, Thomas Hooper, 1811: contains 1,770 acres: 137 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 600: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 690: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,731: poor rates in 1837, £133. Fair, May 4, for horned cattle, sheep, and horses.

CASTLE-DURRAN (or DWYRHAN), CARMARTHEN, a chapelry in the parish of Kilmaenllwadd, hun<sup>d</sup> of Derllys, South Wales—(which see for access, &c.): 235 miles from London, 17 from Carmarthen, 2 from Llamboidy. Money orders issued at Carmarthen: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 6½ p.m.: post closes 7 p.m. The living is a curacy annexed to the rectory of Kilmaenllwadd: contains 17 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 61: poor rates in 1837, £28.

CASTLE-DYKES. See BARTON-UPON-HUMBER.

CASTLE-EATON, WILTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Highworth, Cricklade, and Staple, union of Highworth and Swindon, on the river Thames, and close upon the Thames and Severn Canal: 88 miles from London (coach road 84), 4 from Fairford, 5 from Highworth. Gt. West. Rail. through Swindon to Purton station, thence 7 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Stonehouse to Purton, &c., 140 miles. Money orders issued at Fairford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 4 p.m. The living (the Virgin Mary), a rectory in the diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, is valued at £19: pres. net income, £633: patron, Rev. E. Goddard: pres. incumbent, John Sharpe, 1847: contains 1,900 acres: 67 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 312: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 359: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £3,224: poor rates in 1837, £185. Lushill House, a handsome mansion, lately erected by John Archer, Esq., is the residence of that gentleman, whose family is very ancient.

CASTLE-EDEN, DURHAM, a parish in the south division of Easington ward, union of Easington: 289 miles from London (coach road 257), 10 from Durham, 10 from Sunderland. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby, Derby, York, and Ferry Hill, to Castle-Eden station: from Derby, through York, &c., 157 miles. — Money orders issued at Durham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 1½ p.m. — The living (St. James), a curacy not in charge, in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Durham, is valued at £12. 4s.: pres. net income, £62: patron, R. Burdon, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. Edmunds, 1844: contains 1,630 acres: 46 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 558: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 641: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,521: poor rates in 1837, £123. — Castle-Eden House, the residence of Rowland Burdon, Esq., is a modern mansion, and commands several very fine views over the surrounding country.

CASTLEFORD, WEST RIDING, YORK, a parish in the upper division of the wapentake of Osgoldcross: it includes the township of Castleford and Houghton-Glass: 199 miles from London (coach road 180), 3 from Pontefract, 8 from Wakefield. — Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Derby to Castleford station: from Derby, through Sheffield to Castleford, 67 miles. — Money orders issued at Pontefract: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. — The church occupies the site of a Roman camp. — The living (All Saints), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of York, is valued at £20. 13s. 1½d.: pres. net income, £555: patron, Duchy of Lancaster: pres. incumbent, Theoph. Barnes, 1803: contains 2,040 acres: 342 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,850: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 2,127: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,851: poor rates in 1837, £361.

CASTLEFORD, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the above parish—(which see for access, &c.) — Contains 540 acres: 255 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,312: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,509: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,457: poor rates in 1837, £246.

CASTLE-FROME, HEREFORD, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Radlow, union of Ledbury, bounded on the west by the river Frome: 133 miles from London (coach road 126), 6 from Bromyard, 12 from Hereford. — Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 15 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 86 miles. — Money orders issued at Bromyard: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9½ a.m.: post closes 3½ p.m. — The living, a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of Hereford, is valued at £5. 13s. 4d.: pres. net income, £300: patron, F. T. Freeman: pres. incumbent, W. G. Lyall, 1843: contains 1,320 acres: 58 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 183: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,562: poor rates in 1837, £169.

CASTLE-GRESLEY, DERBYSHIRE, a hamlet in the parish of Church-Gresley—(which see for access, &c.): 122 miles from London, 4 from Burton-on-Trent, 11 from Derby. — Money orders issued at Burton-on-Trent: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — Contains 25 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 164: poor rates in 1837, £52.

CASTLE-HEDINGHAM. See HEDINGHAM CASTLE.

CASTLE-INN, BRECON, an extra-parochial part of the borough of Bruen, South Wales—(which see for access, &c.): it occupies the site of the old castle of Brecknock: 171 miles from London, 1 from Brecon, 9 from Talgarth. — Money orders issued at Brecon: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. — Contains 2 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 33.

CASTLE-LEAVINGTON, NORTH RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Kirk-Leavington—(which see for access, &c.): 245 miles from London, 3 from Yarm, 11 from Darlington. — Money orders issued at Yarm: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10 a.m.: post closes 2½ p.m. — A branch of the river Tees runs through this parish. — Contains 730 acres: 7 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 46: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,348: poor rates in 1837, £107. Tithes commuted in 1839.

CASTLE-MARTIN, PEMBROKE, a parish, containing a village of the same name, in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Castle-Martin, union of Pembroke, South Wales: 238 miles from London (coach road 276), 6 from Pembroke, 5 from Milford. — Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 135 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Stonehouse, &c., 238 miles. — Money orders issued at Pembroke: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 6½ p.m.: post closes 10 p.m. — The remains of the ancient earthwork, which gives name to the village, are still visible. — The living (St. Michael), a disch<sup>d</sup> vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> and diocese of St. David's, is valued at £7. 17s. 6d.: pres. net income, £260: patron, Earl Cawdor: pres. incumbent, James Allen, 1839: contains 71 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 408: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 469: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £2,572: poor rates in 1837, £455.

CASTLE-MORTON (or MORTON-FOLIOT), WORCESTER, a parish in the lower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Pershore, union of Upton-upon-Severn: 130 miles from London (coach road 115), 4 from Upton-upon-Severn, 12 from Worcester. — Gt. West. Rail. through Oxford to Worcester, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Worcester, &c., 83 miles. — Money orders issued at Upton-upon-Severn: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m. — The living (St. Gregory) is a perpetual curacy, annexed to the vicarage of Longdon, and having jointly a pres. net income of £448: patron, Dean and Chapter of Westminster: pres. incumbent, C. Crewe, 1815: contains 3,780 acres: 160 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 855: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 983: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £4,510: poor rates in 1837, £162.

CASTLE-NORTHWICH, CHESTER, a township in that part of the parish of Great Budworth which is in the second division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Eddisbury—(which see for access, &c.): 176 miles from London, 3 from Northwich, 7 from Frodsham. — Money orders issued at Northwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. — Contains 100 acres: 141 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 746: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 857: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £991: poor rates in 1837, £220.

CASTLE-RISING, NORFOLK, a parish and borough, formerly a market town, having separate jurisdiction, locally in the Lynn division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Freebridge, union of Freebridge Lynn: it is a borough by prescription, with a jurisdiction extending over the parishes of Castle-Rising, Roydon, North Wootton, and South Wootton: 122 miles from London (coach road 100), 4 from Lynn, 16 from Fakenham. — Nor. and East. Co<sup>t</sup> Rail. through Cambridge to Lynn, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Syston and Peterborough to Lynn, &c., 128 miles. Money orders issued at Lynn: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 6 p.m. Castle-Rising derives its name from a castle which formerly stood on an eminence to the south of the town, the present remains of which attest its ancient strength and magnificence. It was the property of the Howards, and often the temporary residence of royalty. The editors of Lyson, in speaking of it, say—It was surrounded by a vast circular ditch, the form of which, according to Procopius's description, answers the Gothic manner of fortifying; and therefore 'tis probably a work of the Normans, who are descended from the Goths. The Saxons, indeed, made their fosse circular; but then it was both narrow and less deep, and generally of greater circumference. But the Romans also seem to have had something of a fortification here, the shore being much exposed to piracies (in which the Saxons showed themselves cunning artists), and the place, as it were, guarding and overlooking one of the best harbours in these parts; which conjecture may seem well grounded from hence, that there was dug up near this place a coin of Constantine the Great, which Sir Henry Spelman says was brought him. There were three towers in the walls of this castle, which the lords of Hunstanton, Watton, and Rildon were bound to defend and maintain; and to support their men, they had a power to take provision of the circumjacent villages, paying for it within forty days, according to a statute made anno 3 Edward I. This place was, from the Conqueror's time, the manor and seat of the family of the Albinies, Earls of Arundel, who enjoyed, by virtue of their castle here, a third part of the customs of the port of Lynn, till the people of Lynn besieged him in his castle, and so straitened him that he was forced to release his right to them, and never never to attempt their recovery. The castle was made, for eight-and-twenty years, the prison of that she-wolf of France, the infamous consort of Edward II., after the murder of her husband, and the destruction of her paramour Mortimer. The town is pleasing in appearance, and the church is an ancient cruciform structure, with a tower rising from the centre. Castle-Rising was formerly a seaport and a bustling place of business, but its harbour gradually became choked up, and its trade then rapidly declined. The corporation of the borough formerly consisted of a mayor, twelve aldermen, and their usual appendages; but latterly, the whole authority was vested in two aldermen, who alternately elected each other, and each of whom, until the passing of the Reform Bill, sent his representative to parliament. The living (St. Lawrence), a rectory, united with that of Roydon, in the peculiar jurisdiction of the rector, and in the diocese of Norwich, is valued at £8: pres. net income, £419: patron, Hon. Mrs. G. Howard: pres. incumbent, C. W. Bagot, 1846: contains 2,330 acres: 65 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 358: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 411: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,400: poor rates in 1837, £218.

CASTLE-THORPE, BUCKINGHAM, a parish, about 2½ miles in length and 1½ in breadth, in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Newport, union of Newport-Pagnell, bounded on the west by the river Yare: 50 miles from London (coach road 55), 3 from Stoney-Stratford, 5 from Newport-Pagnell. Nor. West. Rail. to Wolverton, thence 3 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Wolverton, &c., 88 miles. Money orders issued at Stoney-Stratford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m. There was in ancient times a castle here, but a ditch and an artificial mound are the only vestiges of its existence. The living (the Virgin Mary) is a curacy to the rectory of Hanslope, in the diocese of Oxford, and having jointly a pres. net income of £90: patron, George Hyde, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. Mayne, 1841: contains 1,380 acres: 70 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 365: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 419: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>y</sup> £1,767: poor rates in 1837, £209.

CASTLETON, DERBY, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of High Peak, union of Chapel-en-le-Frith: the river Nen flows through this parish: it includes the chapelry of Edale: 180 miles from London (coach road 165), 13 from Sheffield. Nor. West. Rail. through Rugby and Derby to Sheffield, thence 13 miles: from Derby, through Chesterfield to Sheffield, &c., 58 miles. Money orders issued at Bakewell: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 10½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m. The village, as will be surmised from the number of its inhabitants, is a considerable one. It is placed at the foot of the castle hill, and was formerly fortified by a rampart, of which the ditch, extending from the ravines at the base of the rock to the outworks connected with the castle, is still visible, while the ruins of the ancient fortress are boldly conspicuous on the brow of the height. From the various records, it is evident that a castle existed here as early as the time of Edward the Elder, which was either built by that monarch or his sister Ethelfleda, which in Doomsday-book is styled Castelli Wt Peverel in Pechivers, and which, in the time of Edward the Confessor, was the property of Earl Gundeburne. But the town is believed to have taken its name from the castle built by William Peverel, a natural son of the Conqueror, who, with this honour, gave him also thirteen other lordships in this county, and which, from the elevation in which it stood, was called the Castle of the Peak, or Peak Castle. The extent of the ruins, even at the present day, evince how extensive this building must have been, the castle-yard, the walls of which are in some places twenty feet high and nine thick, occupying the whole of the summit of the hill; the keep, consisting of two storeys, is almost entire, and towers fifty feet above the mouth of the Peak Cavern. The castle remained the property of the Peverels until the attainder of the third William, for poisoning Ranulph, Earl of Chester, when Henry II. granted it to John, Earl of Montague, afterwards King John. In 1204, John appointed Hugh Neville governor, but the disaffected barons seized it, and kept possession till the reign of Henry III. From that time it remained a royal fief, till Edward III. granted it to his son John of Gaunt, afterwards Duke of Lancaster, when it became a part of the Duchy of Lancaster, and remains so till the present day, his grace the Duke of Devonshire being lessee under the crown. The church is a pleasing fabric in the early English style. The inhabitants of the village derive their subsistence from the mines in the neighbourhood, and from the numerous visitors who, during the summer months, inspect the natural wonders of the place. Excelling all the rest in its beauties, the Peak Cavern is the chief object of attraction. The entrance to this, the Devil's Cave, as it is called, is singularly imposing, cloven as it were out of a dark chasm of the gigantic rocks, which here rise to an immense elevation. This arch is regular in its structure, and extends in width 120 feet; is about 42 feet high, and 90 deep. Within this gloomy recess, some twine-makers have established their dwellings, and their business, their primitive mode of working, rude dwellings, and rustic figures, harmonize happily with the rugged features of the scenery without. After proceeding about thirty yards, the roof becomes lower, and a gentle descent leads to the interior entrance of the cavern, where the light of day is altogether lost. The way then becomes low and confined, and the visitor, for twenty or thirty yards, is compelled to proceed in a stooping posture, when a spacious opening, called from its form the Bell-house, permits him again to walk upright. From here the path conducts to the margin of a small lake, commonly called the First Water, about fourteen yards in length, but not more than two or three feet in depth. A small boat is provided by the guides to transmit the passenger to the interior of the cavern. Beyond the lake, the cavern opens into a noble hall, 220 feet in length, 200 broad, and in some places 120 feet high; but from the want of light, neither the sides nor the roof of this abyss can be perceived. In a passage at the inner extremity of this hall, the water which flows through the cavern again expands into a lake-like form, usually called the Second Water, which is passed without much difficulty. Near the termination of this passage there is a projecting pile of rocks, distinguished by the name of Roger Rain's house, from the circumstance of water continually falling from the roof. Beyond this there is another fearful chasm; large masses of stalactite incrust the sides and prominent points; and the visitor is generally here surprised by a wild, unearthly music from the upper part of the chasm. From the chancel the pathway conducts to the Devil's Cellar, and from thence, by a somewhat rapid descent of 150 feet in length, to what is called the Half-way House, neither place affording any particular subjects for observation. Having advanced, however, a little from these, the way proceeds beneath three arches, pretty regularly formed, beyond which the roof again rises, assuming the form of a bell, from which it is called the Great Tom of Lincoln, from respect to that bell, which is the second in size in England. From this point to the end of the cavern the distance is inconsiderable; the vault gradually descends, the pathway contracts, and at last nearly closes, leaving no other room than is sufficient for the passage of the water, which flows through a subterraneous channel of some miles. The entire length of the cavern is about 750 yards, and its depth from the surface of the mountain about 207. Not far from the cavern is the Odin lead-mine, which, although it has been wrought for centuries, is still very productive; and at a short distance from this, rising to the height of 1,300 feet, is Mam-Tor, called, from the pieces of shale which continually fall off from it, the Shivering Mountain. In speaking of it, Rhodes says, in his 'Peak Scenery'—It is an immense hill, composed of a very flaky substance; and sometimes in winter, during a severe frost, the decomposition is so rapid, that the shivering mountain, as it is called, keeps a continual discharge, accompanied with a gentle noise, resembling the sound of a river passing over its pebbled bed, as it comes upon the ear softened by distance. I once, during the stillness of a November night, heard the rush of this mountain very distinctly in my bedroom in Castleton, and I listened to the murmurs that it made, but was utterly unable to discover the cause. From the top of Mam-Tor we had a delightful view into Edale, which a modern tourist has described as a place in which the inhabitants, secluded in the bosom of the mountains from the bustle of the world, appear to enjoy all the quiet and security that pervaded the happy vale of Rasselas. The view from this eminence is not of a common description: the most striking features of the Peak of Derbyshire—its loftiest hills, and some of its loveliest dales—are included in the prospect. There are the remains of a Saxon camp on its summit, nearly entire; and not far distant is the Waterhall Mine, from which is procured the beautiful spar, called Blue John.---The living (St. Edmund), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Derby, and diocese of Lichfield and Coventry, is valued at £6. 7s. 6d.: pres. net income, £186: patron, Bishop of Chester: pres. incumbent, Charles C. Bates, 1818: contains 10,100 acres: 264 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,500: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1,725: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £5,397: poor rates in 1837, £361.---Fairs: April 21, and Oct. 3.

CASTLETON, DORSET, a parish in the hund<sup>red</sup> and union of Sherborne, Sherborne division: 137 miles from London (coach road 116), 1 from Sherborne, 7 from Stalbridge. ---Gt. West. Rail. through Chippenham to Westbury, thence 28 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Westbury, &c., 191 miles. ---Money orders issued at Sherborne: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8 a.m.: post closes 5½ p.m. ---The living (St. Mary Magdalene), a perpetual curacy in the peculiar jurisdiction of the dean of Salisbury, is valued at £7: pres. net income, £81: patron, Earl Digby: pres. incumbent, J. Parsons, 1811: contains 30 acres: 28 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 113: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>y</sup>. £267: poor rates in 1837, £99. ---Castle Sherborne Park is the seat of Earl Digby. The mansion is singular in its construction, both as respects its external and its internal arrangements. The ground plan in form represents the letter H. It was erected at different periods; but the centre part, which is the most ancient, was built by Sir Walter Raleigh, whose arms, and the date 1514, appear upon the windows. Soon after the Restoration, the Earl of Bristol added two wings. The apartments are enriched by several paintings, among which are portraits of different members of the family, and among them of Sir Kenelme Digby, of historical celebrity. The park, which contains 340 acres, is justly admired for its picturesque beauty, the variety of its grounds, the agreeable diversification of its ornamental waters, and the noble mantling of its woods. One of the groves is said to have been planted by Sir Walter Raleigh, and still retains his name. Edward Earl Digby, Viscount Coleshill, Baron Digby in the peerage of England, and Baron of Geashill in that of Ireland, is a D.C.L., lord-lieutenant, and custos rotulorum of the county of Dorset, and of the town and county of Poole, derives his descent from Everard Digby, Esq., high sheriff of Rutland, who fell fighting under the banner of Henry VI. at the battle of Towton. His son, Sir Simon Digby, attached himself to the cause of the Earl of Richmond, and with his six brothers mainly contributed to the success of Bosworth Field, for which they were all rewarded. A descendant was elevated to the peerage of Geashill, in right of his mother, in 1620, as Baron Digby of Geashill in Ireland. A direct descendant of that nobleman, Henry, the seventh baron, was created a peer of Great Britain in 1765, by the title of Baron Digby of Sherborne, and in 1790 was advanced to the dignities of Viscount of Colleshill Warwick, and Earl Digby of Lincoln, and was succeeded, in 1794, by the present earl in the titles and estates.

CASTLETON, LANCASTER, a township in the parish of Rochdale, close upon the Rochdale Canal—(which see for access, &c.): 197 miles from London, 1 from Rochdale, 9 from Manchester. Money orders issued at Rochdale: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 7½ a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.—Contains 2,088 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 14,279: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 16,420: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £13,515: poor rates in 1837, £1,814.

CASTLETON, MORMOUTH, a hamlet in the parish of Marshfield—(which see for access, &c.): 152 miles from London, 5 from Newport, 5 from Cardiff. Money orders issued at Newport: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.—Fairs: May 6, July 25, November 26, for cattle.

CASTLE-WRIGHT, MONTGOMERY, a township in the parish of Mainstone, hun<sup>d</sup> of Montgomery, North Wales—(which see for access, &c.): 168 miles from London, 1 from Montgomery, 8 from Newtown. Money orders issued at Welchpool: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. at noon: post closes 12½ p.m.—Contains 28 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 173: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £899: poor rates in 1837, £64.

CASTLEY, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Leathley, on the northern bank of the river Warfe—(which see for access, &c.): 202 miles from London, 7 from Leeds, 5 from Otley. Money orders issued at Leeds: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.—Contains 480 acres: 23 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 110: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £743: poor rates in 1837, £27.

CASTON, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> and union of Wayland: 116 miles from London (coach road 90), 4 from Watton, 6 from Attleborough. Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. through Peterborough to Attleborough, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through Syston, Peterborough, and Wymondham, to Attleborough, &c., 167 miles. Money orders issued at Thetford: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 9½ a.m.: post closes 6 p.m.—The living (the Holy Cross), a rectory annexed to Rockland, All Saints, in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Norwich: contains 1,680 acres: 108 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 513: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 590: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £3,131: poor rates in 1837, £269.

CASTOR (OR CASTRE), NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the liberty and union of Peterborough, bounded on the south-west by the river Nen: it includes the hamlet of Ailesworth, and the chapelries of Sutton and Upton: 107 miles from London (coach road 87), 5 from Peterborough, 8 from Stamford. Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Peterborough, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Syston and Stamford to Peterborough, &c., 87 miles. Money orders issued at Peterborough: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 8½ p.m.—The church is a spacious and interesting cruciform structure, having a spire. This place, and the village of Chesterton, on the other side of the Nen, occupy the site of the Roman station Durobrivæ; and the editors of Lyson's Magna Britannia, in speaking of it, say—And doubtless it was a place of more than ordinary note, because in the fields adjoining, commonly called Normanton Fields, instead of Dorman-ton Fields, which is the proper name, such quantities of Roman coins are thrown up, that a man would really think they had been sown there: almost all of them are of copper. They are the coins of many emperors, all from Trajan to Valens. Some pieces of urns, and other antique vessels of earth, have also been found there, as also stones of foundations and ruined walls, little tiles, ridge-tiles, and bricks. From the Roman highway, going from thence, called Erming Street, which, having gone single awhile, divides itself into two, the causeways whereof are still to be seen, the one called the Forty-Foot Way, leading to Stamford, and the other, named Long Ditch, or High Street, by Lolham bridges (bridges certainly of a very great antiquity, of which eleven arches are still to be seen, though cleft and ruinous with age), through West-Deeping into Lincolnshire. These two ways part at Upton above-mentioned. From the way called by the inhabitants the Lady Conyburrow's Way, for Kyn-burga's Way, which, from all conjectures, appears to be nothing but a Roman paved way, leading from a fortress on the other side of the river Nene to the castle or principal fort upon the hill, where now the church stands, which was the residence then of the Roman governor, or chief commander. The city was destroyed by the Danes. Domesday-book speaks thus of Castor:—The church of Petersburgh holdeth Castra, where are two hides; the land consists of twelve carucates; in the demesne are two, with one servant, and thirteen villains, and two bordemen, with three carucates and an half. There is a mill of eight shillings, and fifteen acres of meadow, a wood, six quarentenes long, and four broad. It was formerly twenty shillings, but of late 'tis worth fifty pounds. The manor at present belongs to the dean and chapter of Peterborough, and is worth to them £51. 10s. 7d. In Castor-field, near Gunwade ferry, are two long stones standing upon a balk, which erroneous tradition hath given out to be two draughts of arrows from Alwalton churchyard thither, the one of Robin Hood, the other of Little John; but the truth is, they were set up to testify that the carriages of stone from Bernack to Gunwade ferry, and from thence to be conveyed to St. Edmunds-Bury, should pass that way toll free. They are still called St. Edmund's Stones, and the balk St. Edmund's Balk. The stones on the top are nicked after the manner of arrows, in memory of St. Edmund, who was shot to death with arrows.—The living (St. Keneburgh), a rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £52. 12s. 8½d.: pres. net income, £528: patron, Bishop of Peterborough: pres. incumbent, the bishop: contains 7,020 acres: 201 houses:

pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 1,313: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 1510: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £6,354: poor rates in 1837, £282.---N.E. is Milton Park, a seat of Earl Fitzwilliam. The mansion is a stately and spacious edifice, evidently built at different periods, the oldest portion being of the date of about Elizabeth's time. It is furnished in accordance with the rank of its noble owner, and is surrounded by an extensive and pleasing domain. The genealogy of his lordship, and the historical notices of his family, will be found with our description of Wentworth House, in the West Riding of Yorkshire, which is the noble earl's principal residence.

CATCHBURN, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Morpeth, east division of Castle ward, south of the river Wansbeck, south of Morpeth, within the new boundaries of which borough it is included: it includes Morpeth Castle, Park-house, and Stobhill---(which see for access, &c.): 287 miles from London, 2 from Morpeth, 14 from Newcastle.---Money orders issued at Morpeth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> at noon: post closes 2 p.m.---Contains 1,570 acres: 35 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 145: poor rates in 1837, £43.

CATHERSIDE, NORTHUMBERLAND, a township in the parish of Kirkwhelpington, east of the river Reed---(which see for access, &c.): 301 miles from London, 13 from Morpeth, 12 from Rothbury.---Money orders issued at Morpeth: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 2 p.m.: post closes 11½ a.m.---Contains 4 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 12: poor rates in 1837, £2.

CATCLIFFE, WEST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Rotherham---(which see for access, &c.): 159 miles from London, 3 from Rotherham, 4 from Sheffield.---Money orders issued at Rotherham: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---Contains 930 acres: 42 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 252: poor rates in 1837, £66.

CATCOTT, SOMERSET, a chapelry in the parish of Moorlinch, hun<sup>d</sup> of Whitley, union of Bridgewater: 154 miles from London (coach road 130), 5 from Bridgewater, 10 from Wells.---Gt. West. Rail. to Bridgewater, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Bridgewater, &c., 169 miles.---Money orders issued at Bridgewater: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8½ a.m.: post closes 8 p.m.---The living is a donative, not in charge: pres. net income, £85: patron, A. Henniker, Esq.: contains 2,060 acres: 108 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 750: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 862: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,445: poor rates in 1837, £135.

CATEBY, YORKSHIRE. See CADEBY.

CATESBY ABBEY, NORTHAMPTON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Fawsley, union of Daventry, east of the Oxford Canal: it includes the hamlet of Newbold-Grounds: 68 miles from London (coach road 69), 4 from Daventry, 15 from Northampton.---Nor. West. Rail. to Weedon, thence 5 miles: from Derby, through Rugby to Weedon, &c., 74 miles.---Money orders issued at Daventry: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 7½ p.m.---A Benedictine monastery was founded here by Robert de Easby, as early as the time of Richard I. At the dissolution, it had ten religious.---The living, a vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Northampton, and diocese of Peterborough, is valued at £10: patrons, T. and M. Scrafton, Esqrs.: contains 1,990 acres: 21 houses:

pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 105: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £3,892: poor rates in 1837, £139.

CATFIELD, NORFOLK, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Happling, bounded on the west by the river Bure: 138 miles from London (coach road 121), 7 from Coltishall, 12 from Norwich.---Nor. and East. Co<sup>r</sup>. Rail. to Norwich, thence 12 miles: from Derby, through Syston and Peterborough to Norwich, &c., 178 miles.---Money orders issued at Norwich: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---The living (All Saints), a rectory and vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Norfolk, and diocese of Norwich, is valued at £7. 10s.: pres. net income, £467: patron, Bishop of Norwich, and G. Cubitt, Esq., alternately: pres. incumbent, John Prowett, 1833: contains 2,400 acres: 100 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 655: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 753: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £2,041: poor rates in 1837, £238.

CATFOSS, EAST RIDING, YORK, a township in the parish of Sigglesworth, north division of the wapentake of Holderness---(which see for access, &c.): 192 miles from London, 9 from Beverley, 2 from Hornsea.---Money orders issued at Beverley: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 11½ a.m.: post closes 4½ p.m.---Contains 1,020 acres: 7 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 45: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,261: poor rates in 1837, £43.

CATHEDINE, BRECON, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Talgarth, union of Brecknock, South Wales: 148 miles from London (coach road 165), 8 from Crickhowell, 7 from Brecon.---Gt. West. Rail. to Stonehouse, thence 45 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham to Stonehouse, &c., 148 miles.---Money orders issued at Crickhowell: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 9 a.m.: post closes 3 p.m.---A branch of the river Wye flows through this parish.---The living, a disch<sup>d</sup> rectory in the archd<sup>y</sup> of Brecon, diocese of St. David's, is valued at £5. 2s. 11d.: pres. net income, £141: patron, Rev. Richard Davies: pres. incumbent, William Davies, 1815: contains 35 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 175: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £1,159: poor rates in 1837, £86. The tithes were commuted in 1839.

CATHERINE (St.), SOMERSET, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Bath-Forum, union of Bath: 111 miles from London (coach road 118), 4 from Bath, 12 from Bristol.---Gt. West. Rail. to Bath, thence 4 miles: from Derby, through Birmingham and Bristol to Bath, &c., 143 miles.---Money orders issued at Bath: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup> 8 a.m.: post closes 9 p.m.---The living is a curacy annexed to the vicarage of Bath-Easton: contains 750 acres: 30 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 159: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £4,296: poor rates in 1837, £116.

CATHERINE (St.), MIDDLESEX, a precinct in the Tower division of the hun<sup>d</sup> of Ossulston.---Contains 14 acres: 12 houses: pop<sup>n</sup> in 1841, 606: probable pop<sup>n</sup> in 1849, 697: ass<sup>d</sup> prop<sup>r</sup> £16,827: poor rates in 1837, £2,155.

CATHERINE (St.), DORSET, an ancient chapel and landmark.

CATHERINGTON, HANTS, a parish in the hun<sup>d</sup> of Finch-Dean, Alton, union of Catherington, south division of the county: 94 miles from London (coach road 60), 6 from Petersfield, 6 from Havant.---Brighton and South Coast Rail. to Havant, thence 6 miles: from Derby, through London, &c., 226 miles.---Money orders issued at Petersfield: London letters deliv<sup>d</sup>. 8½ a.m.: post closes 7 p.m.---A workhouse, capable of containing eighty persons, has been erected here by the poor-law commissioners. The Catherington poor-law union comprises five parishes, spread over twenty square miles, and has a population of about 2,000 persons.---The living (St. Catherine), a disch<sup>d</sup>. vicarage in the archd<sup>y</sup>. and diocese of Winchester, is valued at £9. 5s. 10d.: pres. net income, £150: patron, J. Hayward, Esq.: pres. incumbent, J. G. Griffinhoofe, 1805: contains 3,540 acres: 163 houses: pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1841, 1,003: probable pop<sup>n</sup>. in 1849, 1,153: ass<sup>d</sup>. prop<sup>r</sup>. £4,299: poor rates in 1837, £686.

